

SEVENTY RURAL SCHOOLS BEING BUILT OVER N. M.

Construction On Schools To Replace Old Model Buildings Progressing Rapidly; 400 Projects Up for Approval.

Construction of rural schools to replace old, out-of-date structures, progressing rapidly throughout the state, according to information from Governor Clyde Tingley. More than seventy projects are ready underway and more than 400 more projects are being considered by Washington. The buildings are being constructed according to latest school specifications. They will meet the requirements of the state and of education and the state regulations. Every precaution has been taken to permit easy egress in case of fire. Doors swing outward and inside doors have panic-proof latches. Where windows are screened, at least one screen can easily be removed. While new buildings are being erected under most of the projects, special call for improvement of present structures and one project for construction of 1,200 desks.

NEW CARBON DIOXIDE WELL

The Estancia Valley Carbon Dioxide Company has brought in a new carbon dioxide gas well on the Hoox Dome, six miles west of Hagerman. The well was drilled in Friday afternoon and the flow estimated at over a million feet per year. Accurate measurement will be made when the pipe line is laid and connected to the main line. H. Wood, president of the company, said another well will be drilled by the company as soon as its geologist, Dean E. Winkler of Denver, selects the location.

TEACHERS AT DEXTER HURT

Two Dexter public school teachers were seriously injured, and another slightly hurt in a head-on collision between two cars, near Hagerman, last night, press dispatches reported. Miss Pauline Regensberg of Coler received a fractured arm and ankle and severe facial bruises, and Miss Rosamund Deen of Portales received a fractured jaw, lost several teeth and suffered bruises on her face. Miss Mary Winford, Des Moines, driver of the car, escaped with a strained ankle. Miss Frances Schultz of Santa Fe, driver of the other car, received slight cuts as did her negro aide. They were en route to Roswell. Although not verified by press notices, it is believed that Miss Schultz is a former resident of Roswell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schultz. The teachers were on their way to Albuquerque to attend the meeting of the New Mexico Educational Association.

52 Acres of 1935 Cotton Certified

A total of 852 acres of 1935 cotton has been certified by the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association, according to T. M. Reid, of the New Mexico State College. Of this acreage, 695 acres are that is known as College Acala cotton, while the remaining 157 acres are of the Pardue Acala variety. Listings of acreages by counties as follows: Chaves county, 347 acres of College Acala cotton, grown in the districts of Roswell, Dexter, and Hagerman; Dona Ana county, 273 acres of College Acala cotton and thirty-seven acres of Pardue Acala cotton, grown in the districts of Hamberino, Picacho, San Isidro, and Hatch; Eddy county, fifty-six acres of College Acala cotton and 20 acres of Pardue Acala cotton, grown in the districts of Carlsbad and Loving; Otero county, nine acres of College Acala cotton, grown in the district of Tularosa. There was a noticeable increase in the total number of applications for cotton certification in 1935 over that of 1934. Many of the county branches of the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association are taking a greater interest in the certification of different crops. Consequently, many new members are affiliating and requests for inspections are increasing yearly.

Loan Racket In New York Is the Object of A Special Drive Now

NEW YORK—Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey ripped Manhattan's $1,000,000-a-week small loan racket wide open Tuesday and sent the "six for five boys" scattering. Fifteen squads of Dewey's investigators, striking at once in surprise raids Monday, dragged in twenty-seven alleged usurers. Other arrests will follow, the prosecutor indicated, until he cleans out the "skylock racket, which has been bleeding wage earners of as high as 1040 per cent interest. The loan racket poured profits of $200,000 a week into the money lenders' pockets on an estimated $1,000,000 a week business, the Russell Sage Foundation declared. Most of those in custody, Dewey said, are "six for five boys"—they loan $5 today and demand $6 for principal and interest next week. If the loan is not paid, the investigation disclosed, "strong arm collectors" are sent after the borrower. The victim is forced to agree to additional loans to pay off the original debt. He is threatened with—and often has received—bodily injury if he refuses to build up the debt.

Relief Costs Mount In 1935

WASHINGTON—An official summation showed Tuesday that the government, despite its program to end the dole, has spent more for relief so far this year than it did during the same period of 1934. This year's relief grants were placed at $1,227,973,573, compared to $1,013,069,738 in the corresponding ten months of last year. The amount granted for relief since October 1 has been only a fraction of what it was in October a year ago, however, and officials are predicting that increased employment from the works program will bring an end to all federal outlays for relief during November.

AAA Decision May Be Delayed Until After Christmas

WASHINGTON—Administration hopes for a final decision before Christmas on the constitutionality of AAA processing taxes dwindled Monday when the supreme court ordered the Hoosac Mills case argued December 9. Overriding a government request that the case be set for November 20, the justices complied with the wishes of Hoosac Mills attorneys, who contended the question was "too important to be crowded." While it would be entirely possible for the court to hand down its opinion by Christmas, even after hearing arguments in December, attaches said that would be highly unlikely. Usually it requires a few weeks after arguments for the justices to discuss an important case, and carefully prepare the opinion. Then the opinion must be printed. Since the court is expected to take at least a three weeks' recess beginning December 23, some observers predicted an announcement was unlikely before January 13. In a brief session Monday before recessing for two weeks, the court added another new deal case to the three it had previously docketed. The latest involves the right of the government to condemn land for its slum clearance and low cost housing construction program.

COTTON USE MAY EXCEED PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON—Asserting the export demand for American cotton is the "greatest ever," Secretary Wallace expressed belief last week exports and domestic consumption will exceed this year's estimated crop at 11,478,000 bales. Wallace at his press conference discounted European war scares as a factor in the increased demand attributing it to the fact that only a small part of the 1934 crop was exported and one-third of normal foreign supplies of American staple.

World's Deepest Well Is Producer

Featured by the completion of Gulf No. 103 McElroy, world's deepest drilling operation, as a producer from the Permian pay horizons although deep pay was not encountered, the oil well in west Texas was otherwise principally routine development of field locations, says the Midland Reporter-Telegram. Started in March of 1933, the Gulf No. 103 McElroy long held the interest of the oil world in general when after February 28, 1935, on which date it surpassed the former deep drilling record of 11,377 feet, it became the deepest hole ever drilled and a model of careful operation. In June the test reached a total depth of 12,786 feet and operators determined to go on deeper but to test pays logged as the well drilled. Finally plugged back to 3,518 feet, the 103 McElroy has been put on the pump and is capable of making 175 barrels of oil daily.

Corn-Hog Plan Gets A Majority

WASHINGTON—AAA officials, expressing delight at the overwhelming majority endorsing the 1936 corn-hog control program in a nation-wide referendum Saturday, made plans Monday to increase pork production in 1936. They indicated that an average of twenty-five to thirty per cent over this year would be made. Present high prices of pork have been much under discussion recently with new deal critics hitting at them. AAA officials blamed the shortage on the drought. In incomplete returns from thirty-one states, a seven to one majority in favor of the plan was shown. In not one single state was the plan opposed.

Two Producers Are Drilled In

Activity Is More or Less Routine Except For the Geophysical Surveys.

Except for geophysical surveys in two districts of Lea county, the oil activity of the southeastern sector has been more or less routine, the past week, as there were only two completions recorded. New locations staked number five. Included in the new wells to start soon are: Texas Company, J. M. Dean No. 1, sec. 28-22-36; Shell Petroleum Corp., State 1-E, sec. 14-18-37; Shell Petroleum Corp., State Endura 1-C, sec. 24-21-35; Getty Oil Co., State 1-B, sec. 16-21-36; Phillips Petroleum Co., Land Office No. 1, sec. 19-19-37. The biggest well of the week was completed in the Hobbs district in the Sanedam Oil Co., State 4-C, sec. 24-18-37, which was drilled to 4218 feet and treated with 14,000 gallons of acid. On an open flow the well make 17,170 barrels of oil with 17,000,000 feet of gas. The Repollo Oil Co., Askina No. 4, sec. 9-21-36, was the only other well completed. Drilled to 3900 feet, the Adkins made 300 barrels in nine hours on the initial production test.

Needy Youth Should Register For Benefits Of NYA At Once

Tom L. Popejoy, assistant director for the National Youth Administration for New Mexico, announced recently that single youth, sixteen to twenty-five, from families on relief or employed on WPA projects, should register at once with the United States Employment Service in the district in which they now live. Plans of the NYA include placing unemployed youth from these families on WPA projects, after heads of families have been cared for. These young people are to be employed in addition to the adult labor for one-third of the security hours and at one-third of the security wage. Selection of the individuals will be made after consultation with local relief and welfare workers, and the youth should come from large families. It is intended that the earnings of these young people should go to supplement the income of the primary wage earner of those families particularly in need of aid.

FLETCHER RE-ELECTED BY STATE'S SHERIFFS

Cotton Papers Should Be Sent In By Nov. 10th

Sales certificates covering cotton sold prior to November 1st, must be on file in the state office before November 16. These buyers certificates should be in the office of the county agent on or before November 10th in order that they may be checked and sent to the state office before November 16th. It is very necessary that each of these buyers statements must have the Bankhead application number inserted in the space on the upper right hand corner of the certificate. Any certificates submitted to the county office without this number will be returned to the producer to be completed. All persons who have surplus certificates for sale should surrender them to the county agent's office and all persons wishing to buy surplus certificates may do so by applying at the office of the county agent where there is a supply on hand, which will be sold at the rate of 4c per pound. Any producer who has cotton in two states may use his surplus certificates from one state on cotton produced in another state. The cotton tax exemption certificates that were in the 1934 national pool, and those certificates that were submitted to Washington to be changed for certificates in 1935 form have not been returned from Washington. It is expected that these certificates be returned to the office of the county agent in the near future.

Educator Says School Revenue $2,000,000 Short

J. R. McCollum, veteran Albuquerque school principal and member of the New Mexico Educational Association Council, in a fighting speech to that organization in session at Albuquerque yesterday declared that school revenues next year will be two million dollars short, suggested remedies and asserted that even in rugged New Mexico there are the beginnings of censorship upon teachers. "In this state," McCollum said, "we have been told to persistently and pathetically that this is a moribund state, so decrepit economically that it cannot provide for the public welfare. The public seems to believe this propaganda and the politician finds it to his gain to diligently hum the doleful song." "Is it true," the speaker asked, "that we are unable to protect health and education of our children?" "Should we accept the stories that are put out for our consumption or should we examine them?" Then asking if it were not the duty of teachers to examine statements as to state finances and speak the truth, McCollum said: "Already in this country powerful influences are at work, trying with some degree of success to put the muffer on teaching the truth on economic subjects in our schools and communicating it to the adult public."

PINSON REPLACES DIGGS AS RANGER

Walter J. Pinson will replace Robert L. Diggs as ranger of the Guadalupe district of the Lincoln National Forest, within the next few days, C. R. Dwe, forest supervisor of the Lincoln National Forest, said last week. Pinson has been in the forest service for many years. Diggs has been transferred to the Carson National Forest in the northern part of the state.

Officials Hope To Speed Relief Work

WASHINGTON—A speed-up in the work relief drive was indicated Saturday when Administrator H. L. Hopkins reported employment figures showing a 110,737 gain in dole-replacing jobs in two days. Checking over November allotments, which have been forecast as the last federal contributions to direct relief, Hopkins said 1,421,470 persons were at work last Saturday, compared with 1,310,733 on the preceding Thursday. Officials predicted that Comptroller General J. R. McCarl's release Saturday of most of the funds allotted to WPA would pave the way for a two-weeks drive, beginning Monday, which Hopkins hopes will bring him within striking distance of the goal. Hopkins intimated on his return to the capital Thursday that he would provide his full quota of jobs before December 1, the date when states and communities must assume responsibility for the 1,000,000 "unemployable" families and individuals on the dole.

May Add 2 New Grazing Districts

Organization of two new grazing districts in New Mexico, in addition to the four already established under the Taylor grazing act, is scheduled for consideration at Gallup Monday by a committee appointed by New Mexico stockmen at the Taylor act hearing in Albuquerque last January. The proposed districts would be called District No. 1, covering 302,000 acres of public domain land in the Rio Grande valley between the Carson and Santa Fe National Forests, and District No. 2, comprising about 1,759,300 acres of public domain west of the Rio Grande and north of Sierra county. The latter would be one of the largest grazing districts in New Mexico from the standpoint of area.

Rexford Tugwell Sees A Balanced Budget By the End of 1938

LOS ANGELES—A balanced national budget by 1938 was foreseen Tuesday by Rexford Tugwell, under-secretary of agriculture. Tugwell said he arrived at his prophecy by "estimating receipts for the treasury on the basis of present rates of taxation, but taking into account the fact that they are to be applied to a national income which has increased, by now, about one-third since March of 1933." Barring war or catastrophe, he said in an address here last night, the national debt should show an actual net increase of only about three billions of dollars, by the end of the fiscal year of 1933.

Red Bluff Dam To Get $700,000

According to word from Pecos, Texas, $700,000 to continue the construction of the Red Bluff dam was made available last week when PWA officials authorized the third requisition for the sale of four percent bonds to cover that amount. The Federal Reserve was authorized to deposit this amount in the First National Bank in El Paso by WPA officials in Washington and requested to notify local Red Bluff officials that the money was available. J. H. Miller, secretary of the Red Bluff project, said that this amount is for a period of four months and will finance the project up to March 1, 1936. Work at the dam continues at a rapid pace, according to reports from there this week. Lundin Brothers, general contractors, this week put several new trucks to work and pouring of concrete into the conduit which will divert the waters of the Pecos river during construction was started. The number of men working on the project was increased by thirty-one last week when 301 men were employed. Of the men working there, 115 are from Reeves, sixty-nine from Pecos, forty-seven from Ward, and one from Loving county. Texas has forty-three men employed other than those of the above counties, and forty-six are from outside the state.

HOSTILE VALLEY

By Ben Ames Williams

SYNOPSIS

At a gathering of cronies in the village of Liberty, Maine, Jim Saladine listens to the history of the neighboring Hostile Valley—its past tragedies, its superb fishing streams, and, above all, the mysterious, enticing "Huldy," wife of Will Ferrin. Interested, he drives to the Valley for a day's fishing, though admitting to himself his chief desire is to see the reputedly glamorous Huldy Ferrin.

CHAPTER I

THE pot which boiled over that day in Hostile Valley had been years brewing; two years, or twenty, according to the point of view. Huldy Ferrin may have been its chief ingredient; but Jenny Pierce had also a major part in what ensued.

Jenny had never lived for long in any other world than this deep green. It was almost twenty years since her father died; and her mother sold their farm in Liberty and came, with Jenny in her arms, to lodge here with old Marm Pierce, who was Jenny's grandmother.

Marm Pierce, before their coming, dwelt alone in one half of what had been a farmhouse of some size, on the old Haven place. The house itself was built by her father long ago. When he died, her brother Win, who had a wandering foot, and who had never spent more time here in the Valley than he must, wished to sell; but Marm Pierce would not.

"I was born in this house and I'm a mind to die here," she told him stoutly. "Half of it's mine, and half's yours. You go on and sell your half if you want; but I aim to go on living in mine."

But obviously it was impossible to sell half a house; and Win Haven raged at her obstinacy. She remained unshaken and the result was one of those quarrels which become more bitter with years, which grow and thrive on their own acrid juice. The house and the farm they divided half and half, by a straight line drawn through the very middle of the house itself; and since then, Marm Pierce kept rigidly to her half—and her brother maliciously allowed his side of the house to molder and decay. He made no repairs, gave the rotting boards no preserving touch of paint; and he refused to permit his sister to remedy her side of the house; walked off her half of the cellar; nailed up the connecting doors.

Jenny, as she grew older, for a while used to imagine dreadful things lurking in the other side—Marm Pierce called it the Win-side—of this strange house divided; and when windows fell out and doors sagged on their hinges, she sometimes crept secretly into the empty rooms to peer into shadowed corners, and start and run at the squeak of a mouse. Till one morning, thus venturing, she found Win Haven himself in a drunken sleep on the floor, and fled in stark dismay, weeping with fright, to her grandmother.

"Good enough for you," Marm Pierce told her sharply. "You keep out of the Win-side of the house after this. Let him lay there and rot in his own dirt if he's a mind."

Thereafter, Jenny obeyed this injunction, though she eventually lost any particular fear of Win Haven. He was a restless man, appearing and disappearing at long intervals, some times for months, some times for years. But always the day came when Jenny and her grandmother heard some stir of movement in the empty rooms so close to those in which their own lives were lived; and old Marm Pierce would say tartly:

"Well, that Win's back again!" Jenny sometimes encountered him. He was already an old man, who grew older; yet there was youth in him too, and a vigorous spirit and a wise old eye. Bleared sometimes, by the life he led; leering sometimes with an appreciative glint as he watched Jenny's young beauty passing by. But wise and keen for all of that. A man with mirth and malice in him. Some times, in his own side of the house, he sang far into the night drunken, ribald songs, for the sake of annoying Marm Pierce with whom so long ago he had quarreled.

But as the Win-side of the house began to crumble, and the roof to leak, and the windows to sag, he came less often. There was no decent shelter in the rotting rooms. Jenny and Marm Pierce might forget him for months on end. The farm was remote, approached by a byway which led off the road that ran up and down the Valley; but even the Valley road itself was little traveled. As long ago as Jenny's childhood, the Valley was already a solitary place, with only scattered families here and there. The farm was hidden within a belt of woodland, halfway between the Valley road and the brook. Some meadow land Marm Pierce tended year by year, hiring neighbors to cut back the encroaching underbrush, and to harvest the hay; and she and Jenny made a garden sufficient for their needs. The meadows that were part of Win's half of the farm were long since gone back to birch and popple and young hackmatack; a youthful wilderness.

In this remote spot Jenny grew from a baby into childhood. She never vividly remembered her mother, who died soon after they came to Granny Pierce's farm to live. Thereafter the old woman and the little girl dwelt here alone; and Jenny grew older.

Marm Pierce was not a solitary, however; she had some skill with roots and herbs, and a certain healing power in her, and since there was no doctor nearer than Liberty village, folk hereabout were apt to turn to her to tend their lesser ills. So visitors came not infrequently to seek Marm Pierce's ministrations, or to cut and mow her hay, or plow her garden, or merely for the sake of passing by. The old woman's sharp tongue was kindly, too; her wit pleased more than it hurt. And either from friendliness, or from a desire to keep her good opinion, neighbors did her a favor when they could. If a man were going to Liberty village for supplies, he was apt to stop by to ask whether there were any errand he might do. If a man had more apples than he could well market, he brought her a barrel. The bins in her cellar were well filled with potatoes and other roots, every fall; and when her cow calved, there were helpers ready if he needed one.

Jenny, as she grew older, wore none of the shyness natural to farm children. She saw a surprising number of people, and met them in friendly fashion, so that even when a stranger came into her life, she could greet the newcomer unafraid. Also, as she grew older, she took to herself the liberty of the fields, and the deep woods; and she knew every foot of the brawling stream that from Carey's bridge came in swirls and cascades through a narrowing gorge, to relax in wide sluggish pools as it entered the cedar bog a little below.

Sometimes Marm Pierce went with her; or rather, sometimes when the old woman went searching here and there for the herbs she required, she took the child along, and taught Jenny to recognize all those plants which comprised her simple pharmacopoeia. Later, as she found it not so easy to get about, she sent Jenny herb-gathering alone.

The girl learned from her grandmother some of that infinite lore which the older woman had through the years acquired. Before Jenny was fifteen, she knew that if you wanted pullets, you must choose blunt-pointed eggs for the hatching; that a piece of red flannel wet twice a day with strong camphor will cure bumblefoot; that ground tobacco stems will keep lice out of the hens' nests; that castile soap and tobacco ashes make the best dentifrice; that borax, or the yolk of an egg mixed with soda, will cure dandruff; that a fence of heavy paper will keep cut worms away from young plants; that wood ashes mixed with salt will seal the cracks in a stove; that sulphur is good for mange; that a laudanum drench will relieve colic.

One day in the spring of the year when she was sixteen years old, she saw Will Ferrin for the first time; and that day she ceased to be a child and was thereafter in her heart, without herself wholly understanding the change, a woman. Will was at the time just past twenty-one years old; and he had lived all his life on his father's farm, sprawled up the slope of the ridge above the brook, on the east side of the Valley. The farm was a good one, even though its tilled acres were contracted since the old days when Enoch, great-grandfather of young Will, and his three sons worked it well.

Will, when he could be spared from the farm work, sometimes came down to fish the stream; and he had thus come on this day when Jenny first saw him. Jenny and Will, though they had lived for a dozen years within a mile or so of one another, had never met at all. Will came to fish a few of the deep holes in the gorge; and Jenny wandered through the woods to the streamside, seeking here and there the springing herbs which Marm Pierce liked to gather in the flood tide of June.

Jenny by old habit moved through the forest silently, finding pleasure in surprising the birds at their pleasant occupations, in catching quick fleeting glimpses of small creatures unawares. She was no more a disturbing element in the forest than the creatures which lived there, and Will, his ears filled with the rushing song of the water as he fished, heard nothing of her coming.

He had crossed to the west side of the stream for his fishing, so that his back was toward her when she first discovered him. She saw a tall, strong figure in blue overalls and blue shirt and a battered old hat, the overalls tucked into rubber boots that ended just below his knee. She saw him, and she paused, a little way off, standing utterly still, leaning with one hand against a tree, motionless and yet not rigid, beautifully at her ease.

She watched him for a moment; and he lifted a fine trout out of the stream. It fell flopping by his side, and he dropped the rod to pin it with his hands. So doing, he turned sideways to her, so that she saw his face, and the shock of straw-colored hair under the hat, and his delighted grin.

But as he pinned the fish, he uttered an exclamation of pain, and snatched one hand away and looked at it; and Jenny, with the quick sympathy which all women have, came toward him. She was six paces off when he heard or felt her presence there, and turned and looked up at her; and his eyes widened in quick surprise, and then he said something, laughing. And he got up, the trout in one hand, his rod in the other, and held the fish for her to admire.

"Handsome, ain't he?" She asked: "Did he stick the hook into you?"

Will was puzzled. "No!" "I could see you hurt your hand, when you grabbed him."

"Oh," he remembered; and he extended the hand which held the fish, turned it so that she could see an inflamed and swollen finger joint. "Got a felon," he said. "It's sore as time!"

She took his hand in her two hands, gently, looking at the felon. "Granny can cure that," she said. "If you'd come on home with me." "So!" he ejaculated, in pleased surprise. "Can she now? I've heard tell that Marm Pierce is a mighty hand at curing ills; but I thought a felon you just had to take and stand it."

She frowned in thought, with an amusing affectation of maturity. "I've just forgot what it is you do," she confessed. "But Granny, she'll know." And she urged: "It ain't only a little ways through the woods to our place."

Will said heartily: "Why, let's go along, then. Like trout, does she? I've a couple here. You'll have to show me the way."

She nodded; and he fetched his fish from a moss bed where he had laid them under ferns; and the two young people went together through the woods back toward Marm Pierce's farm. There was no path; but there would be, by and by. It needs only a little tracing and retracing of the same way in wild land where no foot has trod, to leave a thread of trail along the ground. And Jenny would come often by this way, in the years that were to follow; would come thus to the brook and wait here on the chance that Will might find time for the fishing; would even cross the brook and climb the steep path beyond, and so go up through the orchard to the Ferrin farm for a glimpse of him.

But now the way was trackless, and Will followed on her heels. He said: "Guess you're Jenny Pierce. I never see you before." "Yes, I be," she assented; and she added, with a glance over her shoulder: "Nor I never see you." "I'm Will Ferrin," he explained. She stopped as though in surprise; she turned, and looked at him, and her eyes were wide with wonder.

"Will Ferrin? You live right up there?" She pointed. "Certain." He was puzzled by her surprise.

But she made no explanation, only nodded; yet it seemed to her incredible that he could have been all her life, so near without her knowing. There was already in her heart such certainty, and poignant bliss at being near him now.

When they emerged into the back pasture behind Marm Pierce's barn, he came to walk beside her. Jenny, for no reason, smiled. Her head was high and proud; she brought him home to old Marm Pierce like a trophy, like a prize.

They found the old woman in the kitchen. "Granny," said the girl. "This here is Will Ferrin, and he's got a felon on his finger. I told him you could cure it for him."

Marm Pierce, brisk, black-eyed, white-haired, with a quick-thrusting tongue, said sharply: "Take it in time and I could. Howdy, Will. Let's see it. If you'd had any sense, you'd have come before now."

Jenny cried softly: "You already knowed him? You never told me, Granny!"

Marm Pierce looked at the girl with swift probing eyes. "Told you?" she echoed. "Why should . . . ?" She checked the question unasked, reading her answer in the girl's warm color and soft tones; and she spoke briskly to Will again. "It's a bad one," she said. "I dunno as I can do it a mite of good, but you set down and we'll see!"

Will obeyed her, and the old woman, with another wise glance at Jenny, turned to the cupboard above the sink where many of her stores were kept, and rummaged there.

Jenny said: "I couldn't remember what it is you do, Granny." "Take a piece of wild turnip," Marm Pierce explained. "There's some here somewhere." She found it. "I'll grate it up, and mix it with turpentine, and put it on that finger of yours, Will. It'll kill the pain right away; and if it works the way it's sposed to, it'll eat the felon out, too. Be a hole there tomorrow morning, clear in to the bone."

"I'll Give You Some Salve to Put on It Tomorrow."

She was busy with the grater at the sink, her shoulders moving as she worked energetically.

"I'll give you some salve to put on it tomorrow," she said. "That'll heal it right up, like as not. If it don't, you let me know . . ."

What followed, Jenny watched without speaking; or rather she watched Will, and his eyes that were so deeply blue, and his straw-colored hair rough and unkempt across his brow, and the youthful lines of his mouth and chin. Marm Pierce gave the girl a sidelong scrutiny, while she affected to be busy with her ministrations; till presently the thing was done, and Will offered them the trout by way of payment, and departed, and Jenny—though even then her feet wished to follow him, to follow him anywhere, forever, wherever he should go—stayed in the door to watch him disappear through the barn.

She turned then to her grandmother with shining eyes. "He looked back and waved, Granny!" she cried.

"Sh'd think he would," Marm Pierce assented crisply. "Ungrateful young imp if he didn't. You get the yards I sent you for, Jenny?" Jenny colored in distress. "I for got," she said.

The old woman made a sound like mirth. "No matter," she decided. "Time enough for them, another day."

She did not then ask any question, or offer any least instruction, finding a deep pleasure in watching this unfolding of the girl into the woman; in watching the birth in Jenny of that teaming ardor, frank and tender and unashamed, which a girl learns by and by to conceal and to control, but which may be at first as apparent as the blush on a rose.

And during the next two years, while Jenny came to maturity, as a stream rushes to the sea, Marm Pierce still held silent; but she was not blind. She knew that the girl slipped away on every occasion on the chance of seeing Will. Jenny gave the young man that deep and boundless affection of which only a child is capable; and Marm Pierce watched her tenderly, ready with the sympathy and comfort which, she began to perceive, would be needed by and by.

Fabric Honors Go to New Woolens

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MOST of the glory in the fabric realm is going to the new woolens this season. Whether you work or play, whether you travel or saunter about town, whether you are campus-bound or enroute to the office, whether you are counted among the spectator sports group in the grandstand or whether you tea at five or dance at the midnight "prom," if you would register among the best-dressed, fashion decrees that your costume be of some one or two of the handsome new wools that are showing this season.

Time was "way back when" that the merits of woolens were reckoned in terms of sturdy utilization qualities that insured comfort when the temperature went low as well as sterling wearability throughout the practical hours. But now all is changed in that you may have your woolen weaves as fastidious, as eloquent of chic and charm as you please.

Wherefore, the new wool fabrics have become the idol of fashion. The current collections intrigue with their wide versatility, their breath-taking novelty, the colorings which are rich and beautiful beyond wildest flights of fancy, together with weaves and textures the likes of which were not dreamed of in days of yore.

The woman who knows her woolens will choose according to time, place and occasion. For sports and for practical daytime clothes, rabbit woolens are outstanding. They are shown in cunning novelty checks and stripes and bold plaids which particularly stress the new wines, chic violet tones, dark browns and deep rich greens. Nubby mixture tweeds and herringbones are also favorites in sports woolens. Popular cordings, diagonal or vertical ribbing and endless weaves that are nubbed, slubbed, flecked and highly metalized, fascinating and mysterious beyond anything previously achieved in the annals of the woolen industry.

Wool crepes, printed challis and cashmeres are especially lovely styled in soft types that are suitable to wear under fur coats. There is much excitement, too, in regard to the new sheer woolens.

Quite the newest trend in fashioning the smartest woolen suits is to bind the edges with supple fur after the manner shown to the left in the group pictured. Here we see a young fashionable clad in a jacket frock of sheer black woolen. It has the new short peplum. The edges of the jacket and the modishly flared skirt are banded with black Persian lamb. The crushed ascot scarf is of bright green moire. Speaking of sheer black, at this moment it is the rage for daytime dresses, with clever buttonings, shirtings, pleatings and metal gadgets to give the individual touch.

Campus-bound, the chic girl centered in the trio is wearing a smart two-piece frock of lightweight woolen styled to look young. Gray Persian lamb decorates the collar and the patch pockets of the tailored jacket that fastens down the front with self-fabric covered buttons. Smartly simple in line, the three-piece frock for the junior, shown to the right, is practically a "must" in the school wardrobe. The cardigan jacket and the tailored skirt are made of a sheer soft rabbit woolen fabric. The tuck-in blouse is of soft wool jersey in the natural tan color, worn with a Peter Pan collar outside the cardigan.

STRESSING PLAID

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The world of fashion is growing increasingly plaid-conscious. Never has eye seen plaids so gorgeous, so bold in color and in such fascinating wool weaves as are now enlivening the style panorama. The tulle of soft spongy woolen here pictured is in the smart new gray. The same gray is in the plaid contrasting the vivid reds, greens, yellows and white. Note the ascot tie, which is a very special style feature of the majority of sports costumes.

TROUSERED STYLE FOR WOMEN GAINS

The trousers-for-women idea is strong in the new fall fashions, and girls who heretofore have restricted their mannish costuming to the beach or the back yard, may now come right out in the open and wear trousers to dinner and dance.

There seems no doubt that some of the leading designers are all for the trousered mode.

Some gowns have the trousers beneath a skirt, slit to the waist.

Some feature divided skirts concealingly draped.

And some come right out with undisguised trousers in formal afternoon and dinner clothes.

The most daring variation of the theme presented thus far is the slashed evening skirt which reveals matching shorts.

More Daring Your Color Combinations the Better

There's a color revolution afoot. The old order changeth, and it changeth pretty fast.

Traditions are just something to throw out the window and the more daring your color combinations the better, just now.

There are those, for instance, who would shudder at the use of bright blue with wine.

But that's one of the prize color mergers of the season.

There are those who cling to the antiquated idea that you must combine only two colors in a costume. And that's another theory that goes bang in the ash can.

Grecian Modes

The Grecian influence is still apparent in the widespread use of draping. Both Patou and Paray work their draperies like those of Tanagra figurines, in the purely classic tradition.

Choicest Products Sent Afeld, Travelers Find

If one must have the choicest caviar, stay away from Russia, or if the finest cheese is desired, avoid Switzerland, reports the Columbus Dispatch. This statement only reflects what experienced travelers have discovered, for it is an axiom that the finest products of a district or country usually are reserved for export. Even in southern California one looks in vain in the grocery stores for the great sound oranges so common elsewhere.

Moscow serves the inferior caviar, with the eggs small and many of them broken, while search for a cheese of the large-holed variety in Lucerne brings the answer from the shopkeeper that the good cheeses are shipped to England or America. The answer to all this is very simple. Shipment to other parts brings higher prices.

Apparently the people are not concerned over the fact that these fine qualities of their choicest products are sent afeld. Familiarity with their qualities lessens the appetite for the delicacies, and the increased revenue is sufficient to make up for any denial on their part.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—It may be, and possibly is, true that the bulk of our people pay little attention to the fact that gold is pouring into the United States in an unprecedented volume. I can understand how the wheat farmer of the plains country or the cotton farmer of the South or any other type of farmer can fall to become excited over the influx of gold in the last five or six months. It appears to be a far cry from the grain fields or the cotton fields or the quarries or the small town to the heavy concentration of yellow metal to which the United States has been subjected. But the link nevertheless exists. It exists as surely and as definitely as night follows day and, therefore, it becomes a subject in which all of us are vitally interested.

In this instance, the tangent of inflationist sentiment is joined with the sponsors of the silver buying program. They see all of this gold and silver and they simply cannot resist the opportunity for continued howling. Their speeches and their conversations are almost like a college yell: "We want more money," the more money which they desire being nothing more nor less than currency run off in the printing presses of the great bureau of engraving and printing in Washington.

Whether it is the first or the second type of inflation that is demanded, whether it is the printing press money or the money issued against gold as security, the results are the same. It is to be remembered in this connection that none of us can obtain gold from the treasury. The Roosevelt administration demanded of and obtained from congress legislation which definitely prohibited payment of gold for monetary use by the treasury under any circumstances except for the settlement of balances owed foreign nations. But that fact has not deterred demands by inflationists. They are calling and will continue to call for more paper money, and with every call the prices you pay for commodities are bound to increase—that is, they will increase until or unless there is a release of gold again for circulation as money.

So, it is quite apparent that as long as this influx of gold continues and as long as other nations are harassed by monetary manipulation in the United States, we are continually threatened with a "business boom" which is nothing less than inflation of credit. The real danger confronting this country, then, lies in that direction. Summarized, the threat is this: If that inflationist "business boom" gets started, no power on earth is able or will be able to stop it. The next and final step after that is complete destruction of our currency, and medium of exchange.

Political developments in the last few weeks have been completely dominated by the spurge of activity on the part of former President Herbert Hoover. His pot shots at the New Deal in several speeches have agitated the Democrats much more than they are willing to admit and, notwithstanding assertions of satisfaction, they have thrown a new fear into the laps of the Roosevelt New Dealers.

But, if the Hoover speeches have excited the New Dealers and the conservative Democrats, they have almost precipitated a riot among the Republicans of whom he must be said to be, at least, the titular leader. The bulk of the Republicans look upon Mr. Hoover, because of these recent speeches, as a potential Republican nominee for the Presidency against Mr. Roosevelt next year. They look upon him, further, as an individual who is likely to disrupt plans that contemplate reconciliation, a love feast, among the various factions of the Republican party. They have been struggling to lay a base for this love feast and because of the intense hatred that some of their number have for Mr. Hoover, his activity has opened this breach again, made it a blood-red wound.

Political observers and commentators have shown all manner of excitement because Mr. Hoover has made no statement whether he will or will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination. In plain words, they have been trying valiantly to conduct a campaign that will smoke out Mr. Hoover and make him say whether he is or is not a candidate.

All of the efforts to find out what Mr. Hoover proposes to do have failed and will continue to fail, even with the underground work of the New Deal, to bring from him a statement as to his purposes. He will announce them in his own good time. Personally, from all of the information I have been able to assemble, I do not believe that Mr. Hoover has any intention of seeking the nomination. I am convinced his purpose is directed wholly and completely to one end; he fears the New Deal and he is trying with all of the power that he possesses to acquaint the country with his views which are obviously in opposition to the theories and policies and experiments of the New Deal. From sources which I consider to be faithful, because they always have been accurate heretofore, it is apparent to me that Mr. Hoover desires to lend his help in acquainting the country with the things in the New Deal which he regards as dangerous to our nation's well being and that beyond such a purpose he is content to enjoy life as a fisherman and vacationist.

laxative, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit even with children. Syrup Pepsin is the nicest tasting, nicest acting laxative you ever tried.

IMPORTANCE

"And so this is college," quoted a youth, who had entered a so-called institution. From babyhood he had been drilled, trained and taught; that college must be a part of his life, and so when he reached the place and found it different from his more youthful days, only in that it was a more intensive, elaborate manner of training, he paused and questioned in his mind upon the meaning of importance, and its connection with his future.

Sometimes we make a grand ado over what the world calls importance. When we say the world, we mean our world, that with which we intermingle in daily contact. With some it may be small, while others converse with kings and diplomats.

Is there a possibility that we give it a misinterpretation? What is importance or important after all? Is it that which is lauded to the sublime heights by the lusty voice of popularity; is it that which has a hint of silver or gold in its offering? Is it something we gain through acquisition; is it a physical characteristic or a mental faculty?

Into the boiling pot of training and reason, life has cast each human, and out of its seething mass of pitfalls and mountain tops, each must emerge as individualists. He wants to be happy, born of a free conscience and clear thinking, and so he makes his own decisions toward the pursuance of a well-rounded-out being, possibly guided by the vast experience of others.

He will find a free conscience and clear thinking is the result of a belief in, and the practice of the teachings of, a supreme being. A part of those teachings lies in the golden rule "Do unto others," so after all that which is important, is peace of mind. Somehow we are reminded here of this poem: "Life is like a journey, taken on a train, with a pair of travelers at each window pane. I may sit beside you, all the journey through, or I may sit elsewhere, never knowing you. But if fate should mark me to sit along your side, let's be pleasant travelers. It's so short a ride."

State Gets Check For $92,079 Under Mineral Lease Act

New Mexico's remittance under the mineral leasing act for the last fiscal year will be $92,079.43, State Treasurer James J. Connelly last week was notified by Mrs. Antoinette Funk, assistant general land commissioner at Washington, D. C. It is the biggest sum the state ever has received under this act.

All of the check will go into the state's free texts fund, except $10,000, which goes to the state school of mines, that amount being set aside annually for this institution.

The unexpectedly large amount said State School Superintendent H. R. Rodgers, will make it possible for him to recommend to the state board of education the addition of more texts to the free list next year. He said he expects to urge a new adoption of readers for the upper grades, above the third, at a meeting of the board scheduled for some time in February, to be purchased by the state for free distribution among the pupils.

The state gets back from Washington 37 1/2 per cent of the royalties paid in to the general land office under the mineral leasing act. Last year, the amount was $61,920.75; the year before, $42,987.21.

You will find them interesting and profitable. Tremendous things are happening these days. They were all foretold ages ago in the Word of God. And they are leading up to the next greatest event in the program of God. "Lest that day should come upon you unawares" is a tremendous warning of our Saviour.

One cannot afford to be ignorant along these lines if he would be an intelligent and well-prepared christian. "These were more noble than those of Thessalonica in that they received the word with all readiness of mind and searched the scriptures daily, whether these things were true."

School Notes

Tuesday night the Girl's Glee club, under the direction of Miss Welborne, presented "The Ghost of Hilo." The operetta was well done and well attended and the school wishes to express its appreciation for the fine attendance by the patrons.

The all-school carnival will be held this year on Friday, November 8th. This annual affair has always been a success, due to the splendid support of the school patrons. Expecting this year to be no exception, we are planning to make the carnival bigger and better than ever before. The usual attractions will be in evidence and a number of new ones, too. All prizes will be much more valuable than in previous years, such things as fine Indian blankets, rayon taffeta pillows, pound boxes of candy, etc., being only a few of the prizes.

This year we have decided to give the girls a chance to vote for the young man of their choice, so in addition to the usual queen contest, the king of the carnival will also be selected. Miss Seeley and Miss Growden will again have charge of this part of the carnival. Miss George will be on hand with her Bingo stand and Mr. Curd will again pick 'em up when you knock 'em down at the doll racks. To those of you who wanted to go deer hunting this season and couldn't, we offer a chance to test your marksmanship at our new shooting gallery. In addition to seeing that you are well supplied with carnival novelties, canes, whips, noisemakers, etc., Mr. Welborne will stage a very instructive picture show about cotton. These are only a few of the many attractions that will be offered. Of course there will be plenty to eat and drink, so come out and have a big time.

The Rev. J. A. Hedges favored the American history class on Monday morning of this week with a fine talk on "The Writing of the Constitution." His talk was very instructive and interesting and the class is looking forward to another visit soon.

Prof. E. A. White is attending the New Mexico Teachers' Association at Albuquerque this week.

The carnival queens and kings have been chosen from the various high school classes, the winners will be crowned the evening of the carnival. The candidates are: Seniors, Phyllis Andrews, Charles Wier; Juniors, Sammy Nan McKinstry, Stenson Andrus; sophomores, Wills Smith, George Goodwin; freshmen, Patsy Farkas and Jack Bogle.

Who will be chosen carnival queen at the carnival next week? How the Junior play is progressing.

Who gets letters from Artesia. Who celebrated Hallow'e'en Tuesday night? When the Seniors are going to get their rings? Why the teachers preferred to stay home this week? If we will have a dress parade

New Mexico Cotton Grade Improve

Cotton classed during the week ending October 24 showed some significant changes in grade as staple from that classed during the previous week. The proportion classed as strict middling above was only slightly less than during the week ending October 17, but the proportion classed good middling was considerably less in all states with the exception of New Mexico.

The proportion classed as 1-1/8 inches and longer was less in every state except California, which showed a decided increase.

NEW MEXICO: Cotton from this state alone showed an improvement in grade over the classed last week, 96 percent having been classed as strict middling and above. Less than 1 percent has been classed as spotted to date.

Staple lengths show little change from last week, however, there was a slight increase in 1-1/8 inches. Ninety-three percent was classed as 1-1/16 inches and longer this week and for the season date.

A Higher Tax Rate For State Made for 35-36

Average Rate Is Over One Mill Higher Than Last Year.

SANTA FE—New Mexico's average tax rate for the twenty-fourth fiscal year, July 1, 1935, to June 30, 1936, will be 22.807 mills, an increase of more than a mill over the previous fiscal year, according to a table issued Monday by the state tax commission.

Budgeted allowances or appropriations for state funds, county funds, schools and cities, towns and villages total $13,698,063 of which sum there are credits of $6,985,486, according to the table. This leaves $6,712,577 to be raised from taxation. Figuring on the basis of delinquencies collected, a full 100 per cent collection, $7,354,230 will be taken in, the tax commission shows on the table. However, only a 90 per cent collection is allowed for, which brings the revenue and cost to about the same level instead of showing a surplus collection with an estimated 100 per cent collection.

The total taxable valuation for municipalities, towns and villages is $71,655,517. The state will get six mills, which on $285,003,833 has to bring in $1,566,076, the table shows. The counties, with their average rate lower than last year, will add 6.312 mills to the total, which has to bring $1,635,399. School levies of 10.397 mills, up from last year, have to produce $2,717,436. The municipal levy averages the same this year and is 3.098, which has to bring in $793,666.

Pink Eye Kills—

By HARVEY ROBERTS

IT WAS breakfast time at the Barlow residence in the more fashionable quarter of the city. Tom Barlow—the young man who now controlled the family millions—played with a half of a grapefruit which was set before him. Danville, the butler, brought in the morning paper which young Barlow grabbed quickly. One look at the headline: PINK EYE KILLS—and he slid out of his chair in a faint.

Unused to such behavior on his master's part, Danville displayed a nervous fright. But he forgot himself and raised the slightly built young man up and carried him to a lounge in the next room. There he left him while he sprinted to the telephone to call a doctor.

Danville came back to the room. "The doctor will be right over, sir," he reported, standing at attention at one end of the couch. But Barlow ignored his butler. His mind, never before so vividly acute, raced back with relentless activity to the day he had read in the papers of Pink Eye's arrest for murder, with a case against him that looked impregnable. It seemed at last that Pink Eye had been caught for good.

Barlow debated the matter over in his mind. During his entire life he had been accustomed to get what he wanted because there had always been plenty of money in the family till his father had died and left him his millions. Yet there was one thing that he wanted in life with intensified yearning. That one thing was Frida... and he couldn't get her. His money would have won her for him if it hadn't been for Brown. The thought had nearly driven him insane.

Barlow had been particularly hard to secure Pink Eye's release. "Gosh, buddy!" Pink Eye was almost weeping with joy, "it must have cost you plenty—plenty! Me, I'm frank! It cost before I got framed again. This town is no place for me. But tell me, mister, is there anything I can do for you?" "I would clear out of town as soon as possible," Barlow advised him. "Not that I wouldn't get you out again if it was humanly possible providing I could do so without being known as I managed to do this time. No, there's nothing you can do for me. I live a quiet, fairly comfortable life except for a man named Brown who works at the Empire Marketing company, at their Main street office, and who is about to steal the girl I love. Except for that I'd be happy."

"Oh, yeah?" began Pink Eye, but Barlow shook his hand and bid good-by to Pink Eye before the freed man said any more. Pink Eye's release had only occurred yesterday. Since that time Barlow had discovered a conscience whose activities he had never before been aware of.

The doctor came in the house and leaned over Barlow, pressing a stethoscope to the heart. "You're all right now," he said cheerfully. "This room isn't particularly airy—and maybe a slight attack of indigestion..."

"Perhaps," Barlow admitted. When the doctor had gone, Barlow picked up the paper and unfolded it: "PINK EYE KILLS FOR LAST TIME!" the headline read. Reading hastily below, Barlow saw: "The notorious gunman and murderer, known as Pink Eye, last night attempted to hold up the Main street branch of the Empire Marketing company. A young office worker, Mr. Sidney Brown, killed him after the murderer had shot a watchman. The astonishing bravery shown by Brown is something—"

Some men are smart, but this one about Louie Heick just about takes the cake. Louie goes hunting, some say way over in the Black Range, and the next morning after he leaves, word comes that the cattle must be dipped. Well! Mrs. Heick proved herself capable of managing.

Will someone venture to ask Dalton Keeth why the lateness of his paper delivery the other afternoon. We heard he did some "tall talking."

(Now this was told to us, and with the admonition that even WE were not to ask any questions, so how are we to know anything about it?) Did you happen to see the TWO old-time citizens out car riding?

And if you ask us, a certain member that T. club can make the grandest cake we ever ate.

We would also like to know a little more about those two young matrons and their trip to the Pass City, with its nearby neighbor. If they had brought us a peace offering of a little red chair, we would keep quiet too.

First Aid Treatment Taught Thousands By Red Cross

More than 187,000 certificates showing completion of first aid courses were issued last year by the Red Cross. This shows a gain of 66,000 certificates over the previous year. Approximately 64,200 boys in C.C.C. camps throughout the country passed first aid tests. Since the Red Cross first entered the field of first aid teaching, being one of the first organizations in the world to do so, almost one million persons have been trained in handling emergency treatment.

The annual report of the Red Cross further reveals that more than 327,000 copies of the Red Cross First Aid Handbook have been sold at home and abroad.

Junior Red Cross members increased by 402,000 enrollments during the year which has just passed. Junior members carried on an exchange of correspondence with junior members in 62 other countries having Red Cross Societies.

Last year 3,837,941 persons became members of the Red Cross. The annual roll call takes place each year between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day.

SUNBURNED GOLD

CHANGE, dark ore from a hidden mine—copper gold! The padres of San Diego mission using it before the annexation of California. How much they knew of its source they did not relearn. But it is said that when the dispensation began they caused Indian to hide their mine and that it existed. And it hidder and forgotten until day when it was found by Peg Smith.

ing was, as his name implies, a one-legged man—a ronstabout, a prospector. What he was doing in the Colorado desert that day in 1884 is unknown. Somewhere between Yuma and San Diego, instead of going from water hole to another as sensible people should, he decided to take a short cut, and as a result, he became lost.

There was a mountain close by, Peg knew that the only way to do was to reach its top and get his bearings from there. It had been an unpleasant experience, with but one good leg to go on, but finally Smith stood on the summit and looked about him. He also looked down—and there his feet was ore—strange, dark ore. He was not certain that it was any value, but picked up a few chunks anyway, and resumed his unkindly march to San Diego.

For several weeks the ore lay unnoticed. Finally, just because it was curious-looking stuff, Peg showed it to his acquaintance. Some one recognized it as a new search was on.

Such things will, this search proved fruitless. Finally the excitement died down. But it had no more than done so there came a soldier from Yuma with more of that same ore. He had a slightly detailed location to give: there were three peaks, he said, and one of them. He was anxious to turn, and lost little time in outfitting and choosing several companions. They set out with vast loads of gold. Then the first of Warner's Pass all trace was lost.

Later, an Indian woman appeared with some of the ore at a place where workmen were laying tracks for the railroad. She had lost her ore, she said, and like Pegle, she had seen the mountain and had climbed it, to discover the ore. She said, also, that there were three peaks, which substantiated the soldier's story. From the mountain she had seen the tracklayers, and she had headed for their camp.

The tracklayers took one startled look at her little load of ore, and then most of them immediately threw down their tools and "made tracks" in the direction from which she had come, without waiting to hear the end of her story. This was a fatal mistake, for she had the rest that she had circled around and approached their camp from an entirely different direction than that in which the mountain tracklayers had so hastily shuffled off were never seen again.

The Indian woman refused to disclose the location of the gold. At last a prospector, Jim Denlow, became her friend, and after many years she told him of the three peaks, and that the mine was near a dry lake. Then he set out, as so many had done before him, seeking for the strange dark ore. He found the three peaks at that, but between him and them stretched, not a dry lake, but a vast, shallow, wet one, with such dangerous quicksands around its margin that he could not cross it.

Denlow decided that the thing to do was to return to San Diego, re-outfit, and come back prepared to do some work. This he did, and succeeded in skirting the lake and climbing the peaks only to find nothing but obsidian, volcanic glass. The next to locate the mine was a Mexican cowboy. He disappeared for several days from the ranch where he was employed, and on his return he showed some of the copper gold. This he squandered on the saddles and other such matters dear to the cowboy heart, and on gambling. When he was broke again, he disappeared as before, and returned with more gold. This he did several times, managing each time to elude all those who tried to trail him. Of course he would not tell the location, but the character of the ore revealed that it had been taken from the same place as that which Pegle and the others had visited. At last the cowboy was killed in a knife duel, and his secret died with him. A former sheriff of the county, however, had seen the Mexican riding in a certain direction. He decided to ride that way, too, and see what lay out there. He set out but never returned.

SCHOOL LUNCHES That Ring The Bell

THEY don't creep like snails unwillingly to school" any more. Watch them. It's a sunny day in September. There's a campus and an athletic field around even the most humble school house. There's a basket ball game to be played before school; there's an orchestra rehearsal scheduled before the nine o'clock bell rings; or there's a marble game tournament to be decided, or something else nice that's very, very important.

Modern educators have seen to that. And they've done a good job of it. They've made school not merely a preparation for life, but a life right now—living in a big, big way. Give Mother a Hand Mothers, too, have done their part. They have organized Parent-Teacher's associations to co-operate. And they've studied the problem of dietetics, so that the foods which this important generation eats will best equip them for these interesting and healthful activities. Lunch boxes are no longer carriers of something to merely "hold you over" until the evening dinner hour. They are exciting little adventures in themselves containing good things that you devour. It is easier today than it used to be, to prepare these lunches. There are canned fruit juices and thermos bottles to keep them cold; there are canned sandwich spreads and sliced bread to spread them on. There are even such new foods in cans as Brown Betty, or baked apples. There are wooden or paper spoons to eat these delicious desserts with, so that even boys who don't like to carry spoons back home again can enjoy eating desserts and toss away the spoons. Hot or Cold? If you live near enough the school, or the school bus, a hot home lunch is better, as a regular thing. But if not, it isn't difficult to prepare a carry-lunch that will rival the home-prepared noonday meal. Here are some menu suggestions for both sorts:

- MENUS FOR HOT HOME LUNCHES: Puffy Omelet with Tomato Sauce, Creamed Corn, Raisin Bread, Cocoa Malted Drink, Home Made Cookies, Fruit. Clear Soup (with "letters"), Corned Beef Hash, Fruit Salad, Milk, Chocolate Pudding. Cream of Pea Soup, Chicken Baked Potatoes, Whole Wheat Bread and Butter, Apple Sauce, Brownies, Milk. MENUS FOR SCHOOL LUNCHES: Date Bread Sandwiches Spread with Butter or Cream Cheese, Cocoa Malted Drink, Fruit Cookies, Orange. Lettuce and Tomato Sandwich, Stuffed Egg, Sweet Pickle, Milk, Baked Apple. Peanut Butter Sandwich, Battered Fruit Muffin, Tomato Juice, Colory Hearts, Chocolate Bar, Milk.

LIGHTFOOT VISITS PADDY THE BEAVER

DEEP in the Green Forest is the pond where lives Paddy the Beaver. It is Paddy's own pond, for he made it himself. He made it by building a dam across the Laughing Brook.

When Lightfoot the Deer bounded away through the Green Forest after watching the hunter pass through the hollow below him, he remembered Paddy's pond. "That's where I'll go," thought Lightfoot. "It is such a lonesome part of the Green Forest that I do not believe that hunter will come there. I'll run over and make Paddy a friendly call."

So Lightfoot bounded along deeper and deeper into the Green Forest. Presently through the trees he caught the gleam of water. It was Paddy's pond. Lightfoot approached it cautiously. He felt sure he was rid of the hunter who had followed him so far that morning, but he knew that there might be other hunters in the Green Forest. He knew that he couldn't afford to be careless for even one little minute. Lightfoot had lived long enough to know that most of the sad things and dreadful things that happen in the Green Forest are due to carelessness. No one who is hunted, be he big or little, can afford ever to be careless.

Now Lightfoot had know of hunters hiding near water, hoping to shoot him when he came to drink. That always seemed to Lightfoot a dreadful thing, an unfair thing. But hunters had done it before and they might do it again. So Lightfoot was careful to approach Paddy's pond up wind. That is, he approached the side of the pond from which the Merry Little Breezes were blowing towards him, and all the time he kept his nose working. He knew that if any hunters were hidden there, the Merry Little Breezes would bring him their scent and thus warn him.

He had almost reached the edge of Paddy's pond when from the farther shore there came a sudden crash. It startled Lightfoot terribly for just an instant. Then he guessed what it meant. That crash was the falling of a tree. There had been no sound of axes, so he knew it could not have been chopped down by men. It must be that Paddy the Beaver had cut it, and if Paddy was working by daylight it was certain that no one had been around that pond for a long time.

So Lightfoot hurried forward eagerly, but still cautiously. When he reached the bank he looked across towards where the sound of that falling tree had come from. A branch of a tree was moving along in the water and half hidden by it was a brown head. It was Paddy the Beaver taking the branch to his woodpile.

"THINK NOT OF THE PROFIT"

A MODERN educator urges the youth of the land to turn their backs on the objective of accumulating wealth, to make their goal the enrichment of life. In these times he says, those deciding upon their path in the world should ask of any enterprise not "Will it yield profit and wealth?" but "Does it in every particular enrich life?"

have achieved success and fortune with it have very rarely been those who started out with the idea of becoming successful to attain wealth. The idea of "fame and fortune" may to a certain extent have a relationship in the dreams of the ambitious. But wanting fame and fortune never brought them any closer than the moon.

It is the people who had something they wanted to do—an idea they wanted to bring to life—work which meant something to them, who have "made good" with all that that implies. And the probability is that where wealth was a great part in their own satisfaction. It was not what they were after; that is why they got it—in addition to what they were after.

No, "think not of the profit, but of the work you love to do"—for the most practical of reasons. That is that preoccupation with the profit of a venture in work is the surest road to its failure.

THE DAY OF LEFTOVERS

IN EVERY well-regulated home there will be nice food which should not be slighted because it is left over. One housekeeper cleverly gets everything eaten by serving a tray with small dishes, nicely warmed and seasoned and each member of the family may have a choice. The food never goes begging.

In these days of vegetable plates one may have a hot vegetable plate with a few spoons of peas, beans, tomatoes, cabbage or onions. Such a meal is often preferred by those who realize that they eat too much meat.

Leftover baked potatoes make most delicious creamed potatoes, having quite a different flavor from the freshly cooked or boiled ones. One large grapefruit when carefully peeled and the sections (minus their covering) placed on tender lettuce with a sprinkling of shredded almonds and a good dressing, make the best of salad.

By the way, our beauty dietitians tell us that a dozen almonds a day with an apple, banana or a glass of fruit juice is one of the best luncheons for beautifying the complexion. The almonds must be carefully masticated.

Rice and Meat Mold. Mix two cups of boiled rice with one-half teaspoon of salt and line a buttered mold with two-thirds of the mixture. Mix two cups of chopped cooked meat with one cup of soft bread crumbs, salt, paprika, two tablespoons each of chopped onions, celery and parsley; add two beaten eggs, one-half cup of milk and pour into the mold. Cover with the remaining rice. Over the top place a thick waxed paper. Set into hot water and bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Contango Day Contango day is a day upon which premium or interest is paid by a buyer to a seller in order to be permitted to defer payment of the debt.

The other alphabetical divisions contain equally as impressive recruits.

Laval in Uncomfortable Position as Anglo-Italian Relations Grow Worse—Senator Vandenberg "Not a Candidate."

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

PIERRE LAVAL, premier of France, found himself in a tight place because of his efforts to re-establish the friendship of both Great Britain and Italy and to keep his government from being upset by its foes at home. In the process of trying to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war, Laval proposed that Britain withdraw its big home fleet from the Mediterranean to mollify Mussolini. This suggestion was laid before the British cabinet and turned down flatly.

The cabinet gave hearty approval to the policy at Geneva of Capt. Anthony Eden and Samuel Hoare, secretary for foreign affairs. Its stand was reported to be substantially this: Mussolini will respect anything but force. He would ingratiate any withdrawal of British Mediterranean forces as a sign of weakening. If Mussolini wants to clear the way for Italo-Ethiopian peace talks, let him halt his armies in Ethiopia and accept league terms as basis for negotiation as Ethiopia already has done.

Furthermore, the British government called on Laval for a definite reply to its question whether France would co-operate with the British fleet if there were an open break with Italy. The French answers to this query had been too wobbly to suit Downing street. Particularly the English wanted to know if their fleet would be permitted to use the French naval dockyards. It was believed that if Laval could not satisfy the British, the latter would withdraw from active leadership in the League of Nations and refuse to renew the Locarno commitments on which France relies for protection against Germany.

DISPATCHES from the African war front are subjected to so severe a censorship that they are not only unsatisfactory by often quite unreliable. All kinds of sensational stories are circulated and some of them may be true. One such is the report from Djibouti, French Somaliland, that Italians killed a number of British Somaliland subjects near the Ethiopian frontier, some of the victims being members of the camel corps that is a part of the colonial army. British Vice Consul Lowe heard, also, that Italians had gassed and shot a lot of cattle and goats in British Somaliland.

Certainly relations between Italy and Great Britain were growing worse daily and there were many predictions that the two nations would be at each other's throats before long. The British have been in a deadly cold humor ever since they found out that Mussolini's friends had been trying to stir up an anti-British revolt in Egypt. Now the border between Egypt and Italian Libya is the scene of swift concentration of troops on both sides.

ETHIOPIA'S representatives in Geneva were told by delegates of several nations that Mussolini was ready to end the warfare if he were given considerable concessions of territory and certain large economic advantages. This tentative offer was transmitted to Addis Ababa, and the reply of Emperor Haile Selassie was a determined "No." The Italians want virtual control over the entire country, and the emperor is not willing to give up a yard of territory.

The Italians in northern Ethiopia were jubilant over the desertion of Degiac Haile Selassie Gugsu and several thousand warriors. This Gugsu, a son-in-law of the emperor, is a descendant of King John, who reigned in the last century. The traitor was rewarded by the Italians by being made ras or chief of the occupied territory in the north.

Seemingly reliable reports from medical missionaries in the southern sector, the Ogaden zone, said the Italians were making free use of chlorine gas and dum-dum bullets which for many years have been outlawed in all "civilized" warfare.

IT DOESN'T take much these days to cause the Republicans to rejoice. The latest event hailed by them as a harbinger of victory next year was merely a by-election in Massachusetts to fill a vacancy in the state senate. The district normally is Republican and this time as usual a Republican was elected. The reason for the G. O. P. slouch was found in the decreased vote polled by the Democrats, and the fact that Salem, a mill town and former Democratic stronghold, was captured by the Republicans.

Democratic leaders said that the

Lesson for November 3

JUDAH TAKEN CAPTIVE

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 25:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Proverbs 14:34.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Black Man God Cared for. JUNIOR TOPIC—In Time of Danger.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Results of Doing Wrong. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Nations Accountable to God.

I. The Siege of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

1. The time (vv. 1, 2). It began on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, lasting about eighteen months. The tenth month, according to the Jew's calendar, corresponds to our December-January, as their calendar began about the middle of March. The reason the exact time is given is that this was to be an event of great importance to the Jews in their exile. In their gloomy exile God directed Ezekiel to utter a parable unto the captives of that day (Ezek. 24).

2. The method (v. 11). Nebuchadnezzar came in person with a large army and encamped against Jerusalem, building forts against it round about. It is thought that several walls were built around the city, shutting it in. On the tops of these walls forts were built from which missiles of destruction could be hurled by their engines of war against the city. With the city thus shut in, its fall was only a question of time.

3. The famine (v. 3). Geikie says, "It was speedily followed, as is always the case, with an outbreak of pestilence. Food was well-nigh gone. There had long been no bread. Mothers were at last driven to murder and eat their children. The richest citizens wandered about searching for scraps in the dung hills." Even outside the city the people were starving. "There was no bread for the people of the land." It is estimated that one-third of the people of Jerusalem died of starvation.

II. Zedekiah's Flight and Fate (vv. 4-7).

1. "The city was broken up" (v. 4). The Chaldeans had succeeded in making an opening in the wall so large that they could make their way into the city in spite of all that the Hebrews could do. Resistance was carried on to the bitter end.

2. Zedekiah's flight (v. 4). The king with his men of war fled by night toward the plain. His object no doubt was to cross the Jordan at Jericho and hide in the mountains east of the Jordan.

3. Zedekiah's fate (v. 5-7).

a. He was overtaken in the plains of Jericho (v. 5). As soon as the Chaldean army discovered the flight they pursued and captured him.

b. He was brought to the king of Babylon at Riblah (v. 6). Riblah was a town north of Damascus. It was the king's headquarters from which he directed his armies against Tyre and Jerusalem. Before Nebuchadnezzar Zedekiah was tried as a criminal.

c. His fate. His sons were slain in his sight. His own eyes were put out. He was bound with fetters of brass and they carried him to Babylon where he remained a prisoner to the day of his death (Jer. 52:11).

III. Jerusalem Destroyed (vv. 8-10).

The dismantling of the city was delayed a month, perhaps awaiting instructions from Nebuchadnezzar who was at Riblah. The work of destruction was executed by the officer next in rank to the king.

1. They burnt the house of the Lord (v. 9). This was the sacred temple built by Solomon, with additions and alterations. Before burning it, they plundered it of all its sacred contents.

2. Burnt the king's house (v. 9). This was doubtless the palace built by Solomon.

3. Burnt all the houses of Jerusalem (v. 9). The implication is that the common houses were left for the people (v. 12).

4. They broke down the walls of Jerusalem. The aim in this was to render the walls useless as a means of defense.

IV. The Disposition of the Temple Furniture and Priests (vv. 13-21).

1. The temple furniture carried to Babylon (vv. 13-17). The pillars of brass and the brazen seat were broken into pieces by the Babylonians and together with the utensils were carried to Babylon.

2. Certain officers and priests taken to Riblah (vv. 18-21). These officers and priests and three score men of the land were taken to Riblah, where they were slain by the king of Babylon.

The events recorded in Second Kings cover a period of 308 years. God had said, "If thou wilt, then I will"; they had invited disaster by disobedience.

Last year a number of specimens of the Monarch butterfly, which is a native of North America, were seen in England. These are notable travelers, and not only have crossed the Atlantic but also have flown 2,000 miles over the Pacific to the Hawaiian Islands.

The beautiful Painted Lady butterflies also are long distance flyers. Born in northern Africa or Asia Minor, they may have covered 2,000 or 3,000 miles before they arrive in America. Some of them have gone even farther; in a few cases to Iceland.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed. How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs is one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the system. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds. Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

one of the three men who really built the Panama canal and last surviving member of the canal commission, died at the age of seventy-five at his country home near Bowling Green, Ky. He was buried in Arlington National cemetery with full military honors.

General Sibert's career as an engineer and soldier was distinguished. He was made brigadier general by special act of congress for his services in connection with the building of the Panama canal.

During the World War he commanded the First division of the A. E. F. He retired in 1920 to engage in private engineering work and subsequently served as chairman of the Alabama state docks commission in construction of the state docks at Mobile. From 1928 to 1932 he was chairman of the Boulder dam commission, and in 1929 and 1930 was president of the American Association of Port Authorities.

CAROL, king of Rumania, celebrated his forty-second birthday at his summer palace in Sinaia, and as the family gathered for the occasion Mme. Magda Lupescu, the king's intimate friend, arrived unexpectedly from Paris. The Peasant party had intended to make the day notable by "anti-Lupescu" demonstrations, hoping this would help to keep her in exile, but her return confounded the leaders.

The agitation against Magda has now taken a decided antisemitic turn, her enemies circulating broadsides calling attention to her Jewish origin and charging that through her influence a large number of Jews are getting easy jobs in the public service.

The peasant leaders also redistributed a statement of Julius Maniu, outstanding foe of Mme. Lupescu, that she is "responsible for almost every ill which besets Rumania."

"I am a monarchist," Maniu's statement continued, "but every Rumanian should receive a good example from the palace. The crown must respect itself."

PARLIAMENTARY elections in Canada resulted in the defeat of Premier Richard B. Bennett and the Conservatives who have been in control since 1930. The next premier will be Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberals who won 158 out of 245 seats in the house of commons. The new deal policies of the Bennett government were repudiated by the electors.

In the program outlined by King, in case he won, the great emphasis was laid on relieving unemployment and lowering tariffs back to 1930 levels. A reciprocal trade agreement with the United States was one of his strong arguments. Nationalization of the Bank of Canada, to control credit inflation and deflation was another plank.

One immediate result of the Liberal victory was the resignation of W. B. Herridge as Canadian minister to the United States, effective when the new administration takes hold. Herridge is a brother-in-law of Premier Bennett and his appointment to the Washington post was severely criticized by King during the campaign.

HOW Firestone GIVES YOU LOWEST COST PER MILE

FIRESTONE TIRES are built different—they have three patented construction features not used in any other truck tire. The body is built with Gum-Dipped High Stretch cords. Gum-Dipping, the patented Firestone process, soaks the cords in pure liquid rubber, insulating and coating every strand in every cord. This is why Firestone Tires run cooler and are stronger.

The tread is made of a new and tougher rubber compound which gives greatest resistance to wear. This, together with the scientific non-skid design, gives greater traction and longer non-skid mileage. Firestone locks this wider, heavier and more rugged tread securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body of the tire by building two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords (patented) under the tread.

These exclusive construction features result in lowest cost per mile. The largest operators in the country and operators of all types of equipment buy Firestone Tires year after year on their cost-reducing performance.

Tax Collections 92 Percent In '34

SANTA FE—Tax collections last year of ninety-two per cent, as compared with the expected ninety, give a bright outlook for the present fiscal year, according to State Treasurer James J. Connelly. In commenting on the needs of the state as shown by the state tax commission table, Connelly said he believed taxes would be sufficiently met again this year to provide necessary funds.

He said relief workers had been able to pay taxes, and that the HOLC, FHA and other federal agencies had so functioned as to permit, or require, that taxes be paid.

L. C. CLUB

The hospitable home of Mrs. Earl Stine was lovely with its decoration of dahlias, grown by Mrs. Stine, on last Thursday afternoon when Mrs. Stine entertained members and one guest, Mrs. Folling, of the L. C. club. Mrs. Fred Evans read the scripture lesson, and verses of scripture were read in response to roll call. During the afternoon the ladies worked on the club quilt. Cake and coffee were served.

Thorne of Carlsbad and Mrs. Arthur Stevens of Roswell. Mrs. V. L. Gates sang a solo arrangement of "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again."

Miss Ellanore Ewing, field worker of the San Francisco division, and a member of the National Board of Missions, and Mrs. C. Chan of Albuquerque, Presbyterial Synodical president, gave enthusiastic accounts of the biennial meeting at Asheville, after which the reports of the Presbyterial were received by Miss Ewing and suggestions were made for more efficient work. The change in plans accepted at the biennial in the Chart for Growth were studied. The day's program was considered very successful by all those who were present.

Sixty-four from the different valley towns were present. From Hagerman were: Mmes. H. J. Cumpsten, Willis Pardee, B. F. Knou, Charles Micelet, Robert Cumpsten, C. G. Mason and T. D. Deveport. A covered dish lunch, with the main course served by the Artesia ladies, was served at the noon hour.

D. D. CONTRACT CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hearn were hosts to the club on Monday evening for a dinner and evening of games. Lovely chrysanthemums were used for decorations. All members but one were present, Miss Almetta Growden substituting for W. A. Losey. Miss Gene Seely won the cup for the evening.

SENIOR CLASS HAS HALLOWEEN PARTY

Miss Sara Beth West's home was the scene of much merriment last night when members of the Senior class of 1936 and their guests were entertained with a "Spooks" social. Each member of the class had invited one guest, and they arrived in masquerade, finding the house darkened, having to enter from an entrance other than the usual door, and with queer noises in every direction. After some time of mystery and guessing who each person was, the hour arrived for unmasking. The evening was spent in playing "Spooks." There were about five tables of players.

Refreshments of cheese and nut sandwiches, pumpkin and chocolate pie and cider were served to a happy crowd of youngsters at a late hour.

LEGION AUXILIARY MEETING

The American Legion Auxiliary held their fifth district meeting in Hagerman last Friday in the basement of the Presbyterian church. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian Ladies Aid, the tables being decorated in Halloween motifs. Corsages of small yellow chrysanthemums were given each lady.

A musical program was given. Mrs. Ramon Welborne's violin class played two numbers, and Mrs. Price Curd sang a solo, with Miss Frances Welborne at the piano.

Mrs. Jeanne Michelet, district president, presided, with Mrs. Ben Prior of Artesia, secretary. The assembly pledged allegiance to the flag, and sang one stanza of the "Star Spangled Banner." During the business meeting, it was decided to hold two other meetings, one in February in Roswell. Mrs. Michelet offered awards to the unit reaching their membership quota by the February meeting. A round table discussion was held. The department president, Mrs. Lorraine Zent, was present and introduced to the assembly. Mrs. Zent gave a very interesting talk.

Covers were laid for thirty-four, including nine from Roswell, five from Carlsbad, twelve from Artesia, and seven from Hagerman.

BAPTIST BROTHERHOOD PROGRAM FOR NOV. 4th

An interesting program will be presented at the Hagerman Baptist church on November 4th, beginning at 7:00 p. m., by the Roswell Baptist Brotherhood. A banquet will be served by the ladies of the Hagerman church and following the banquet the program to be given by the visitors includes the following speakers: The Rev. Julian Atwood, C. M. Martin, a response by Supt. E. A. White of Hagerman, instrumental music by the Hillbilly band, B. F. Fields, H. W. Little, J. B. Allison, R. H. Carter, all of Roswell, and the Rev. George E. Toby of Hope.

METHODIST MISSIONARY

Fourteen were present yesterday afternoon at the meeting at the educational building of the Methodist church. The president, Mrs. Harry Cowan, presided. In the study book, Mrs. Ben F. Gehman gave the chapter on "Japanese," and Mrs. Tom McKinstry gave the chapter on "America's New Oriental, the Filipino." Plans were completed for the all-day meeting of next week.

GLEE CLUB OPERETTA "THE GHOST OF HILO"

Under the direction of Miss Frances Welborne, the Girl's Glee club presented an operetta on Tuesday evening to a good-sized and appreciative audience.

The cast consisted of Charlene King, Sammy McKinstry, Rowena McCormick, Roma Ellen Stroup,

They were assisted by the chorus personnel: Lola Mae Ridgeley, Ruth Jenkins, Ruby Rhodes, Grace Wade, Beulah Ridgeley, Ruth Wade, Ruth Solomon, Isador Dolohan, Phillips Andrews, Patsy Farkas, Lila Lane, Ruby Bailey, Naomi Jenkins, Virginia Deter, Nannie Mae Haines, Mable Jo Wade and Willine Andrews.

A very interesting story was interwoven in the theme, of a Hawaiian princess, who apparently was under a spell of a sorceress and had a belief in ghosts, the little sister has no such belief, having more faith in the magic of her drum. The scenes are laid in a lovely glen of Hilo, and in the celebrations of the Feast of Laka, the identity of the beloved little sister is made known, and all ends lovely.

All of the cast played their parts sincerely, as did the chorus. The little sister was really the star of the performance, acting unaffectedly and adding expression and grace to her role.

As an interlude, Mrs. Ramon Welborne and Miss Elaine Frazier delighted the audience with a violin duet, and Miss Frazier rendered a violin solo. These artists are always enthusiastically received by their listeners.

BRIDE-ELECT GIVEN DINNER AND SHOWER

A charming setting was the scene on last Sunday evening in the private dining room of the Nickson hotel in Roswell, when girlhood friends of Miss Eleanor Paddock, an autumn bride, complimented her with a six o'clock dinner.

Great shaggy 'mums in corresponding colors for the season, and delightful Halloween motifs were used for decoration. A long table gracefully arranged, held for favors, Halloween cups and place cards.

The feature for the evening was a miscellaneous shower of lovely gifts bestowed upon the honoree.

Covers were laid for Miss Paddock and Misses Oriol Curtis, Harriet Poorbaugh, Florrie Rabb, Flossie White, Rose Hurt, Frances Hurt, Virginia Margrave, Margaret Wolfe, Lenore Shafer, Hilton Ray and Rozella Krop.

Your Doctor

A question often asked and not easy to answer is: How shall I choose my doctor?

Avoid the doctor who directly or indirectly expresses contempt for other registered physicians. No good doctor advertises himself unless it be to insert a card in the local newspaper. No good doctor claims to have any peculiar method of treatment: there are no secrets in the science and art of medicine. If your local library has a copy of the American Medical Directory you may find therein some useful information. It will tell you when each doctor graduated and from what school. The names of the schools are listed and you may see which are first-class schools. You will learn other facts such as the doctor's age, when he was licensed and whether he specializes.

Your doctor should be on the staff of the local hospital and member of the county medical society, if there is one. You will prefer a doctor who attends scientific meetings and sometimes takes a course of post-graduate study. Try to choose a man or woman whom you would be glad to have as a friend.

Having taken all possible in the choice of your doctor give him your full confidence. Him that you want to have advice not only when you are sick but also to prevent sickness; you expect him to tell you the children should receive ventive inoculation against diphtheria, smallpox, whooping cough and perhaps also typhoid fever. Some doctors do not like to do such treatments unless you insist that you want them. It is clear that you want them to protect the whole family against sickness. When you are sick, tell him to guard against possible complications. Do not expect him to discuss with you all the dire fortunes which might be in your path, but be careful to do as he directs. If for any reason you cannot fully trust his judgment ask him to call a colleague in consultation. He will not be offended but on the contrary will be glad to share the responsibility.
