President Talks to Miners.

Business was Suspended at Wilkebarre, Pa., While the Chief Executive Addressed the Assembled Thousands.

COMBINATIONS AND TEMPERANCE

President Roosevelt made one of his characteristic addresses to miners and their families, at Wilkesbarre last week, which contained many good things. The following paragraphs are taken from his speech, which deal mainly with temperance and the labor problem:

"I am particularly glad to speak to this audience of miners and their wives and children, and especially to speak under the auspices of this great temperance society. In our country the happiness of all the rest of our people depends most of all upon the welfare of the wage-worker and the welfare of the farmer. If we can secure the welfare of these two classes we can be reasonably certain that the community as a whole will prosper. And we must never forget that the chief factor in securing the welfare alike of wage-workers and of farmers, as of everybody else, must be the man himself.

"The only effective way to help anybody is to help himself. There are exceptional times when any one of us needs outside help, and then it should be given freely, but normally each of us must depend upon his own exertions for his own success. Something can be done by our action taken in our collective capacity through the state and nation.

Something more can be done by combination and organization among ourselves in our private capacities as citizens, so long as this combination or organization is managed with wisdom and integrity, with insistence upon the rights of those benefited and yet with just regard for the rights of others.

"But in the last analysis the factor most influential in determining any man's success must ever be the sum of that man's own qualities, of his knowledge, foresight, thrift and courage. Whatever tends to increase his self-respect, whatever tends to help him overcome the temptations with which all of us are surrounded, is of benefit not only to him, but to the whole community.

"No one society can do more to help the wage-worker than such a temperance society as that which I am now addressing. It is of incalculable consequence to the man himself that he should be sober and temperate, and it is of even more consequence to his wife and children; for it is a hard and cruel fact that in this life of ours the sins of the man are often visited most heavily upon those whose welfare should be his special care.

"For the drunkard, for the man who losses his job because he cannot control his desire for liquor and for vicious pleasure, we have a feeling of anger and contempt mixed with our pity; but for his unfortunate wife and little ones we feel only pity, and that of the deepest and tenderest kind.

"Everything possible should be done to encourage the growth of that spirit of self respect, self-restraint, self-reliance, which if it only grows enough is certain to make all those in whom it shows itself move steadily upward toward the highest standard of American citizenship. It is a proud and responsible privilege to be a citizen of this great self-governing nation; and each of us needs to keep steadily before his eyes the fact that he is wholly unfit to take part in the work of governing others unless he can first govern himself. He must stand up manfully for his own rights; he must respect the rights of others; he must obey the law, and he must try to live up to those rules of righteousness which are above and behind all laws.

"This applies just as much to the man of great wealth as to the man of small means; to the capitalist as to the wage-worker. And as one practical point, let me urge that in the event of any difficulty, especially if it is what is known as a labor trouble, both sides show themselves willing to meet, willing to consult, and anxious to treat the other reasonably and fairly, each to look at the other's side of the case and to do the other justice. If only this course could be generally followed, the chance of industrial disaster would be minimized.

"The hand of the Lord is sometimes heavy upon the just as well as upon the unjust, and in the life of labor and effort which we must lead on this earth it is not always possible either by work, by wisdom, or by upright behavior to ward off disaster. But it is most emphatically true that the chance for leading a happy and prosperous life is immensely improved if only the man is decent, sober, industrious and exercises foresight and judgment. Let him remember above all that the performance of duty is the first essential to right living, and that a good type of average family life is the corner-stone of national happiness and greatness. No man can be a good citizen, can deserve the respect of his fellows, unless first of all he is a good man in his own family, unless he does his duty faithfully by his wife and children.

I strongly believe in trade-unions wisely and justly handled, in which the rightful purpose to benefit those connected with them is not accompanied by a desire to do injustice or wrong to others, I believe in the duty of the capitalist and wage-worker to try to seek one another out, to understand each the other's point of view, and to endeavor to show broad and kindly human sympathy one with the other."

Massachusetts Aroused.

One of the complications of tariff reform is reciprocity with Canada and other countries. In Massachusetts this issue is already being discussed in the newspapers and by Republican politicians preparatory to the campaign for state officers this fall. It would seem to be incongruous to inject such discussions into a purely state campaign, and especially for the office of lieutenant governor, upon which it now seems to center, but it is an indication that tariff reform cannot be laid on the shelf, however much the trusts and monopolies may wish to relegate it.

The discussion is welcome. When highly protected New England is declaring for reciprocity and demanding a revision of tariff schedules the possibility of such a necessary reform being taken up by congress and settled upon a business basis is not remote.—Buffalo Times.

American Goods Excluded.

Yokohama, Aug. 7—Chinese here have agreed not to deal in American goods, not to ship goods on American steamers, especially the Pacific Mail company's steamships and to punish any Chinese dealing in American goods through others; also not to deal with American banks and insurance companies.

Chinese convicted of contravening this agreement will be heavily fined.

The Miracle of Memory

One of the most remarkable of all the mental processes is memory. How are sight pictures and sound pictures and other impressions stored in the mind, and how are we able to recall them? Here, again, we are in the presence of a wonderful miracle, and at best we can only seek to make clear the fact by illustration and comparison. There are certain bodies possessed of a property known as phosphorescence. After having been exposed to daylight for a time, these bodies give off light in the dark. They store up certain portions of the sunbeam, and give them off again. This is a sort of a physical memory. These phosphorescent bodies simply continue in the dark that which they do in the sunlight.

In some way the impressions made through the eye, ear and other senses induce such actions and changes in the nerve cells which are connected with these organs that under the right sort of stimulus the same action may be reproduced, and brought within the range of consciousness. This reproduction of past impressions is secured through the connection of that portion of the brain which is the seat of consciousness with other portions in which impressions are stored by means of the delicate nerve branches previously described. The numerous connections of these nerve fibers bring them in direct or indirect association with all the different parts of the brain. In trying to remember, one often is conscious of an effort, and the brain may be very much wearied in a long-continued effort to recall impressions which have been partially effaced. The mental effort consists in energizing the fibers so as to make them project forward their delicate endings, thus making numerous contacts, perhaps millions, with different cells, until by and by the particular cell or group of cells in which the desired word or other impression was made is recognized. When one is weary, it is often difficult, sometimes impossible, to recall names or data of various sorts which may be entirely familiar. This is because of the impossibility of energizing the nerve cells sufficiently to make the desired contacts. Anything which benumbs the nerves, as alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee, opium, may have the effect to benumb the nervous sensibility and lessen nervous energy, and thus operate deleteriously upon memory. Memory, however, is perhaps most seriously injured by loss of sleep, whereby brain energy becomes exhausted. Sometimes the memory may be for the time being almost entirely effaced by long-continued loss of sleep.

Depreciation of memory in old age is one of the first indications of failing mental power. It is interesting to note, however, that the memory of events which happened in early life are often remembered, while others of recent occurrence quickly pass from the mind.

How He Became Liveryman

"How'd I come to go into the livery business? Why," said the genial and opulent livery stable proprietor, as he rolled the big black cigar to a slightly different angle between his teeth, "it was kind o' funny.

"You see, I had a large family, all girls, nice girls, all of them, and naturally they all had a good deal of company, and they used to go a good deal, and to a good many places they went to they had to have carriages; and my carriage bill was something frightful, for me.

"I was doing a fair sort of a business, very fair, in fact, but I couldn't by any means afford to keep a carriage myself, and every month that carriage bill for my daughters used to bite a frightful hole into my income. And finally that set me to thinking.

"I'm not the only man in the world, I says to myself, with a bunch of fine daughters. The world is full of fine daughters, I says to myself, belonging to fine families that want 'em to make as good a show as anybody and all hiring carriages for 'em.

"Why shouldn't I make, myself, the profit on the business that my daughters would bring to a stable, a pretty fair sort of a business in itself, or at least a sure starter, and do business for other people's daughters, too?

"That's all there was to it. I was certain of some business and I was willing to take a chance on the rest.

"And everything went all right. My daughters gave me all their patronage, and they used more carriages now than they ever had before—they said they wanted to see their father do well, and I got my full share of the patronage of other people's daughters, and the volume of it was great.

"In the course of time my daughters all married and they all did well; very comfortably, to say the least. Every one of them now keeps a carriage of her own, and keeps it in my stable; and so the girls, nice girls, every one, that once cost me so much, though I never begrudged 'em a cent of it, now send me money, every one.

"Their business alone is something tidy, but they are really only a few of many profitable customers, and I have never regretted taking up the livery business.

"But it was sort of funny, now, how I came to go into it, wasn't it?"

Golfing on Desert Sands

"Not only in Egypt, but all over the world, the English are always the leaders in sports," writes an Egyptian traveler. "It is so afloat and ashore. In Egypt the English visitors get up polo matches, tennis, croquet, golf and bridge tournaments, fancy-dress balls, smoking concerts and organize gymkhanas. Those who know the difficulties of keeping up a golf club in a green and well watered country, where there are permanent residents to pay the dues, can readily conjecture what must be the difficulties in a dry and desert country, where the only permanent residents are Arabs and donkeys and where the golf players come only three months in a year. Yet there are not a few golf clubs in the land of the Pharaohs.

"There are many humorous things connected with golf in Egypt. There are what might be called extra-hazardous hazards; for example, at one links, in Upper Egypt, the golf course wound its desert way past an oasis on which was a luxuriant field of clover. A sliced ball was extremely apt to hide itself in this clover. The following new rule was made by the Arabs: Nobody in boots or shoes could enter the oasis limits to search for balls; only barefooted people (otherwise Arabs) were allowed to enter. Every day we found a large population of Arabs around the oasis waiting for golf balls to go to grass. Sometimes, I fear, they were assisted there. It required much backsheesh to get them out.

"At last there were so many lost balls that an investigation was made by the greens committee. An old woman was discovered hiding near the clover hazard. When you made a fine, long approach the old lady grabbed the golf ball and took to her heels. She regarded the balls as her legitimate spoil and offered them freely for sale to the original owners at cut prices. It took an enormous amount of time and labor to convince her that she must give up her practice."

CONSTANT ACHING.

I think a cold was responsible for the whole trouble. It seemed to settle in my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills rooted it out. It is several months since I used them, and up to date there has been no recurrence of the trouble."

Four Facts For Sick Women To Consider

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has an Unequalled Record of Cures—Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Is Confidential, Free, and always Helpful

FIRST.—That almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacements of the uterus, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing-down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

SECOND.—The medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute cures of female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates, strengthens and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can.

For thirty years it has been helping women to be strong, curing backache, nervousness, kidney troubles, all uterine and ovarian inflammation, weakness and displacements, regulating menstruation perfectly and overcoming its pains. It has also proved itself invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the change of life.

THIRD.—The great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

FOURTH.—Every ailing woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women.—Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. From symptoms given, your trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of the vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Surely, any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

BABY'S TERRIBLE SORE

Body Raw With Humor—Caused Untold Agony—Doctor Did No Good—Cuticura Cured at Once.

"My child was a very delicate baby. A terrible sore and humor broke out on his body, looking like raw flesh, and causing the child untold agony. My physician prescribed various remedies, none of which helped at all. I became discouraged and took the matter into my own hands, and tried Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment with almost immediate success. Before the second week had passed the soreness was gone, not leaving a trace of anything. Mrs. Jeannette H. Block, 281 Rosedale St., Rochester, N. Y."

For Plain Attire.

The best thing that was said in any pulpit in the United States yesterday was uttered by a parson in Des Moines, Iowa. Rev. Dr. McConnell declared that the decadence of church-going was because attendants—especially at Protestant churches—wore the most expensive clothes they possessed. This had the effect of keeping away the poor, plainly attired people. In making the usual announcements for future services this long-headed parson said: "Please note that all people attending services here are requested to wear plain and inexpensive clothing in order that no one, however humble, may be embarrassed." This man is on the right track. Dress is the barrier between church attendance and the poorer classes. Of course, it is not expected that a man will go to the house of worship in his overalls. It is to be hoped he wouldn't sit down to dinner in such garb—certainly not if he loves and respects his wife, who cooks the meal.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Floating Menageries.

The recent inundation of the river Parana has had strange consequences, cables the Herald's correspondent at Buenos Ayres. By the great extension of the river Platte, the docks of Buenos Ayres and the harbor have been invaded by floating islands or land torn from the banks of the Parana.

These have brought hosts of tropical animals, hundreds of big elephants and many crocodiles. Even a tiger cub has been captured within the harbor and delivered to the zoological gardens.

WANTED TO SLEEP

Curious That a Tired Preacher Should Have Such Desire.

A minister speaks of the curious effect of Grape Nuts food on him and how it has relieved him.

"You will doubtless understand how the suffering with indigestion with which I used to be troubled made my work an almost unendurable burden, and why it was that after my Sabbath duties had been performed, sleep was a stranger to my pillow till nearly daylight.

"I had to be very careful as to what I ate, and even with all my care I experienced poignant physical distress after meals, and my food never satisfied me.

"Six months have elapsed since I began to use Grape-Nuts food, and the benefits I have derived from it are very definite. I no longer suffer from indigestion, and I began to improve from the time Grape-Nuts appeared on our table. I find that by eating a dish of it after my Sabbath work is done (and I always do so now) my nerves are quieted and rest and refreshing sleep are ensured me. I feel that I could not possibly do without Grape-Nuts food, now that I know its value. It is invariably on our table—we feel that we need it to complete the meal—and our children will eat Grape-Nuts when they cannot be persuaded to touch anything else." HE BOUGHT THE NECKLACE.

But Not for the Adornment of His Loving Wife.

Henry Clews, the banker, talked at a banquet about the danger of deceit. "A New York woman," he said, "saw in a shop window on Fifth avenue a collar of pearls that she liked. She stopped her carriage and sought out the shopkeeper.

"What is the price," she said, "of that pearl collar in your window?"

"Six thousand dollars, ma'am," said the shopkeeper, as he drew forth the collar, and displayed its beauties to the dazzled woman.

"She took out her checkbook.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," she said, "I'll give you my check for three thousand dollars, and I'll send my husband to see the collar this afternoon. Don't tell him it is six thousand; tell him it is three thousand. Then maybe he will buy it for me."

"The jeweler bowed and smiled. He had seen this sort of game played many a time before.

"I wish you luck, madam," he said, and the lady departed.

"Her husband she found in his office in a mood unusually tractable. He had sold certain stocks at a great profit that morning. He consented readily, therefore, to go and look at the necklace.

"That evening his wife dressed for dinner with unusual care. She wore her most beautiful gown. She dreamed, as she dressed, of an affectionate husband, clasping about her white throat a collar of pearls.

"And 'I bought that pearl collar,' were the man's first words when he got home.

"You dear!" she exclaimed. "Let me see it."

"Can't," he said. "I had it sent to my mother. You know it is her birthday to-morrow."—San Antonio Express.

Fickleness of Woman.

Gray—"Hello, Smith, old boy! And so you are married, eh?"

Smith—"That's what the parson told me."

Gray—"And, of course, you are happy?"

Smith—"Well, I don't know about that. To tell the plain, unvarnished truth, I'm just a little bit disappointed."

Gray—"I'm sorry to hear that. What's the trouble?"

Smith—"Well, you see, during the courtship stunt she used to tell me how strenuously she loved me, but we had no sooner got spliced than she gave up her $10 a week job as typewriter thumper. That goes to show how much you can bank on a woman's love."

On Your Knees, Court Said.

Fourteen-year-old Joseph Porter of 65 Willow avenue, Hoboken, was arraigned before Recorder Stanton recently for running away from home.

"I just hopped a freight train to go up the road," he said. "I didn't know I had gone so far, and then I was afraid to go home."

His mother told the recorder that the boy had no reason to leave home. She said she took good care of him.

"Get down on your knees," said the recorder to the runaway, "and don't you get up until your mother has forgiven you."

He was on his knees five minutes before his mother said the word. Then the recorder told him to go home and stay there.—New York Times.

The Tie Magnetic.

"And now, darling," said the newly accepted lover, "tell me how you ever came to be attracted to such a plain, everyday man as myself? What could you see in me to love?"

The beautiful girl blushed and looked down at the diamond sparkling on her finger. "Well," she said at last, hesitating.

"Yes, yes—what was it?" exclaimed the impatient lover.

"Because you tie your Ascots so beautifully. I never could make mine look right. Will you show me how, dear?"

To the Farmers.

Appreciating the good results to be attained by judicious advertising, of which an exhibit of farm and orchard products should be properly classed, the NEWS has this proposition to make to the farmers of Lincoln county.

Send to this office, not later than September 10th, small samples of your best products, such as corn, wheat, oats, barley, hay, etc., potatoes and all kinds of vegetables, and the fruits that will at this season of the year stand shipping.

We will undertake the labeling, packing and shipping to Albuquerque, to be on exhibition at the Territorial Fair, which begins September 18th, and runs to the 23rd.

Make your exhibits as small and select as possible, consistent with a good effect, send them in and we will do the rest. By concerted action on the part of the farmers, great good may be accomplished and that, too, at little trouble and cost.

The Panama canal strip is in a bad sanitary condition, and is one of the most unhealthy spots on the globe. The government is having a great deal of trouble in securing laborers, and statements have been issued advising people to keep away from the infected district. This is really unfortunate; for as we have decided to dig the canal, and most all applaud the purpose, the people would like to see the long dreamed of project completed.

The joint statehood proposition seems to be growing in popularity, even in Arizona. In that territory now, quite a number of papers are supporting joint statehood, and they declare that the most violent opponents of the measure are office holders of the territory. We have felt for a long time, despite statements to the contrary, that a majority of the people of both territories would approve jointure if ever given an opportunity to vote on the question.

The Portland Fair.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 11—The million mark has been reached and passed in the record of attendance at the Lewis and Clark exposition. When all the admissions were added to the aggregate since the fair opened on June 1, it was found that in six-three days 1,013,551 gate admissions had been recorded by the turnstiles. The admission department was jubilant, and all the rest of the exposition officials and the people of Portland and the Pacific northwest in general joined in the jubilation. Figures tell the truth, and these figures show that the Lewis and Clark centennial is a success.

Before the fair opened, there were those who said: "Well, if you have 1,000,000 attendance during the four and a half months of your show, you will be doing well." The management, of course, expected a total considerably in advance of this, but nobody was sanguine enough to count upon a million during the first two months. With more than half the exposition period still to run, it is now the popular prophecy that at least 2,500,000 will be reached. The experience of all expositions has been that the largest attendance is enjoyed during the last two months. Portland expects the crowds to increase from week to week, and the figures thus far prove that such an expectation is well founded. The attendance by weeks, up to August 2, has been as follows:

June 1 to 7, inclusive	99,275
June 8 to 14, inclusive	100,724
June 15 to 21, inclusive	98,842
June 22 to 28, inclusive	89,916
June 29 to July 5, in.,	141,415
July 6 to 12, inclusive	111,534
July 13 to 19, inclusive	113,737
July 20 to 26, inclusive	131,984
July 27 to Aug. 2, in.,	126,124

The extra attendance for the week from June 29 to July 5, was due to the large number of admissions on the Fourth of July. Since then, as a perusal of the figures shows the attendance has increased constantly.

Moon in Eclipse.

True to predictions of observers, the moon for a time, had a small part of her face hidden from the inhabitants of this part of the mundane sphere, Monday night. Evidently the nocturnal luminary failed to revolve in its regular orbit, and White mountain peak got between it and the sun and for two hours, from 8:30 the southwestern corner of the lunar planet was obscured. Finally it reached its regular route, got beyond the altitudinous shadow of the earth in these parts, and shone forth in its fullness and glory.

MARKETING POTATO CROPS.

In line with the classic case of the oyster shippers, cited by President Hadley of Yale University in his book on Railroad Transportation, is the case of the Aroostook potato growers brought by President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine Railroad before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce. Nothing could better show how a railroad works for the interest of the localities which it serves.

A main dependence of the farmers of the Aroostook region is the potato crop, aggregating annually eight to ten million bushels, which find a market largely in Boston and the adjacent thickly settled regions of New England. The competition of cheap water transportation from Maine to all points along the New England coast keeps railroad freight rates on these potatoes always at a very low level.

Potatoes are also a considerable output of the truck farms of Michigan, their normal market being obtained in and through Detroit and Chicago and other communities of that region.

Not many years ago favoring sun and rains brought a tremendous yield of potatoes from the Michigan fields. At normal rates and prices there would have been a glut of the customary markets and the potatoes would have rotted on the farms. To help the potato growers the railroads from Michigan made unprecedentedly low rates on potatoes to every reachable market, even carrying them in large quantities to a place so remote as Boston. The Aroostook growers had to reduce the price on their potatoes and even then could not dispose of them unless the Boston and Maine Railroad reduced its already low rate, which it did. By means of these low rates, making possible low prices, the potato crops of both Michigan and Maine were finally marketed. Everybody eats potatoes, and that year everybody had all the potatoes he wanted.

While the Michigan railroads made rates that would have been ruinous to the railroads, had they been applied to the movement of all potatoes at all times, to all places, they helped their patrons to find markets then. The Boston and Maine Railroad suffered a decrease in its revenue from potatoes, but it enabled the Aroostook farmers to market their crop and thereby to obtain money which they spent for the varied supplies which the railroads brought to them. If the making of rates were subject to governmental adjustment such radical and prompt action could never have been taken, because it is well established that if a rate be once reduced by a railroad company it cannot be restored through the red tape of governmental procedure. If the Michigan railroads and the Boston and Maine Railroad had been subjected to governmental limitation they would have felt obliged to keep up their rates as do the railroads of France and England and Germany under governmental limitation and let the potatoes rot.—E han jr.

Fortune is evidently blind if we may judge by the way she passes us by and bestows her favors upon others.

RISKED DEATH FOR FRIENDS.

Heroic Work Done by Scotch Miners Makes Good Reading.

The heroic conduct of twenty-five men who descended a burning mine in Lanarkshire, Scotland, the other day resulted in six colliers being saved from a terrible death. A pit in the Clyde colliery, at Hamilton, was discovered to be on fire at 6 p. m. Only fifteen miners were at work at the time, and eight of these, who made a dash for safety, succeeded in reaching the surface. Twenty-five volunteers, headed by the manager and overman, descended the burning pit, from which smoke was issuing in great volumes, and penetrated into the furthest recesses of the workings, where the seven men were imprisoned. Although it was thought that there was little chance of saving them, the rescue party worked heroically for hours. At about ten o'clock, after they had been below for some three hours, it was announced that the rescuers had succeeded in diverting the smoke through another air course, and that it was just possible they might reach the imprisoned men. About two hours afterwards the entombed colliers were discovered in a distant part of the mine. They had lost their way. One lad had been suffocated by the smoke, but the other six were safe. A great crowd of relatives and friends stood at the mouth of the pit for hours waiting for news, and a loud cheer went up when the survivors were brought to the surface.

Knew Nothing of Bolivia.

Col. Suarez, Bolivian charge d'affaires in London, tells this story: "It is not very long ago that I was invited to a country house in England, and when I arrived there I found only the ladies of the house party. They were all staring at me, and I could not make out what was the reason. But soon I discovered it. One of the ladies of the house party brought me her album and asked me to write my name down and the country from which I came. I did so, and after having written 'Bolivia,' she asked, 'Something else?' I said, 'What?' 'Something else?' I said, 'South America?' 'Yes,' she said, 'that is what we want.' And then the lady of the house told me they had been discussing at length where Bolivia was; some said it was in South America and some in Bohemia. When she told me this I found out they expected to see me dressed in feathers."

Necessary Use of Consonants.

In a recent book on his adventures in Tibet, Col. L. A. Waddell writes: "One curious result of the cold should be mentioned here—namely, its effect upon the speech of the people. A peculiarity of the language of the Tibetans, in common with the Russians and most arctic nations, is the remarkably few vowels in their words and the extraordinarily large number of consonants. For example, the Tibetan name for Sikhim is Hbrasljongs. Indeed, so full of consonants are Tibetan words that most of them could be articulated with almost semiclosed mouth, evidently from the enforced necessity to keep the lips closed as far as possible against the cutting cold when speaking."

"After you, my dear Alfonso," he murmured, bowing deeply.

Fought With a Rattler.

Game Commissioner Woodard is in receipt of a letter from James Tibbits, a ranchman a few miles south of Meeker, Colorado, which recites that one of the greatest and fiercest battles that he ever saw took place on his ranch on Monday between a huge rattlesnake and a buck deer. The battle continued unceasingly and fiercely for half an hour and finally resulted in the rattler being killed.

Mr. Tibbits states that while he was standing in his doorway on Monday morning watching a large buck deer which had been wandering around his ranch for a few days, he was surprised to see the deer rear on his hind legs and engage in a struggle with something which was wound around its legs. Rushing near to where the deer was standing, the ranchman was startled to see a huge rattler, measuring easily six feet, wound around the legs of the buck. Climbing a tree near by, Mr. Tibbits watched the battle for over half an hour. It was about an even struggle, but finally the buck succeeded in extricating himself and dashed the snake against a rock, killing it.—Denver News.

Arriving at a Verdict.

Kushequa, Pa., July 10.—(Special)—In this section of Pennsylvania there is a growing belief that for such Kidney Diseases as Rheumatism and Lame Back there is only one sure cure and that is Dodd's Kidney Pills. This belief grows from such cases as that of Mrs. M. L. Davison of this place. She tells the story herself as follows:

"I have suffered from Rheumatism for thirty years and find that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken. I was also bothered with Lame Back and I can only say that my back hasn't bothered me since I took Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Considering that Mrs. Davison only took two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the result would be considered wonderful if it were not that others are reporting similar results daily. Kushequa is fast arriving at a verdict that "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure for Rheumatism."

Baptist Association!

The Lincoln Baptist association met with the Hondo church Thursday evening of last week, at 8 p. m., with a full attendance of messengers from the different churches. The introductory sermon was preached by F. M. Wylder, of Capitan. We had a very harmonious session, said to be the best that ever was held. The people of Hondo and community deserve great credit for the manner in which they entertained the association and visitors.

Our venerable moderator, Brother Green, of Carlsbad (81 years old) presided with his usual generalship and fairness to all. Rev. R. P. Pope was chosen for our missionary for another year.
