Governor Curry is For Square Deal

Albuquerque Citizen

Captain George W. Curry, recently appointed governor of New Mexico by the president, spent several hours in this city last evening and was entertained by a number of his old friends.

The governor is en route to Roswell from where he will either go to Washington direct or to Santa Fe, where he will take the oath of office and later go to Washington.

Captain Curry has seen a whole lot of the world, some hard campaigning and some rough life since he left New Mexico to serve as a soldier.

But his old friends declare that he has changed but little in appearance. He carries himself as a soldier, but he is the same amiable, optimistic, fearless and capable George Curry.

Among those who greeted the new governor as an old friend and who spent the evening with him were W. B. Childers, W. S. Hopewell, E. W. Dobson, W. S. Strickler, A. A. Keen and Elfege Baca.

After a dinner at the Sturges hotel, the governor spent the balance of the evening at the homes of friends in this city until the arrival of his train for El Paso.

While impromptu and informal the occasion was an enjoyable one and the time before the train was due proved only too short.

The new governor did not discuss politics with newspaper men, and although a newspaper man met him at the train and tried to secure a statement from him.

Governor Curry has not yet taken the oath of office and he feared that it would seem indelicate on his part to enter a political discussion at this time.

The many friends who saw him last night, however, were given to understand that the new governor would first and foremost, do all in his power to aid in adjusting local political feuds and differences. On the other hand, he will carry out the national administration policy in New Mexico. He will be an exponent of the "square deal" and he will support the republican organization.

It is also said that the new governor believes strongly in Roosevelt and that he is a republican of the Roosevelt stripe and just as fearless.

While Governor Curry, with commendable reticence did not care to be quoted in any manner, his friends feel assured that George Curry will be governor in every sense of the word and will not be the whip crack for any self seeking faction.

Governor Curry, while not posted in detail on some of the recent political events in New Mexico, nevertheless possesses a good general knowledge of political conditions here and he will make himself fully acquainted with all the details before he acts in any manner.

Governor Curry stated to a Citizen reporter last evening that he was happy to be again in the Sunshine Territory and that he had often longed for his old New Mexico home while serving his country in the Philippines. New Mexico welcomes him back with equal pleasure.

Later reports are to the effect that Gov. Curry will go from Roswell to Santa Fe, about Wednesday, the 31st, and that the inaugural will be on the first. This is quite a change from the program of a few weeks ago and will place the new governor in charge of affairs nearly a month sooner than was expected.

LATER

As we were going to press news reached this office that Captain George B. Curry, who was to be inaugurated governor of New Mexico on August 1, received a telegram summoning him to Washington for a conference with the president. All inauguration plans have been changed.

DRA FARMING

GREAT SUCCESS

People are flocking in the country around Amarillo by the trainload and the country surrounding that town is destined to become one of the greatest farming sections in the west," declared T. Booth, mechanical superintendent of the Pecos Valley railroad who is in the city on business. Mr. Booth is an old time El Pasoan and until about five years ago was master mechanic of the Santa Fe in this city for many years.

He says that experiments in the Campbell system of dry farming are being carried on successfully on the Wentland farm near Amarillo, and that, notwithstanding that these has been an unusually dry year, the success has been almost phenomenal.

"They are raising everything they plant and they are planting everything that grows anywhere," declared this enthusiast this morning. "Very little rain has fallen during the past year compared to the regular rainfall, yet the success of the experiments have been marked, so much so that the people who come down there and see what is being done do not hesitate to invest in the lands and bring their families, household supplies and live stock from their native states and risk everything in the new country. All the big ranches are being cut up into farms and the settlers are gobbling them up as fast as they are put onto the market.

"Excursions from the eastern states are run into the section every two weeks, and sometimes the trains run in several sections to accommodate the demand of the people for space on board. They come, they see, they buy, and then they come back with their outfits and go to work. Irrigation is not necessary and the country is going to be a garden spot before many years elapse."—El Paso Herald.

GOOD BUILDING MATERIAL

Mr. G. A. Bush, of the Rock Island Cement and Plaster Co., of Ancho, N. M., was in town Wednesday and made a pleasant call at this office. Mr. Bush informs us that the new brick kilns at the works of the company are in full blast and turning out brick at the rate of about thirty thousand per day.

We examined some samples of the dry-pressed brick manufactured by this company and have no hesitancy in pronouncing them the best of anything we have seen in the southwest. The company make nothing but a high grade brick, one that will compare favorably with the best facing brick of other manufacturers, yet at the same price as common brick, while the facing brick from these works are of the most perfect form and finish.

One of the peculiarities of the samples shown was the freedom from lime spots which are so common in all brick manufactured in the southwest, and we are informed that all the output of this factory is the same in this respect.

Mr. Bush tells us there is sufficient material at the plant of the company to supply all demands for many years to come, and that they are enlarging the capacity of the plant so as to be in a position to supply all demands, and will be in a position from now on to fill orders either small or large on short notice.

As the factory at Ancho is only twenty miles from Carrizozo, it is a wonderful thing for our town to have such a supply of the very best of building material at our very door with which to supply the greater Carrizozo.

GOOD ORE SAMPLES

George C. Hopkins was in from his camp in the White mountains the first of the week and brought some as fine samples of copper ore, taken from the Buster Brown claim, as we have seen in some time. The claim is being worked in a small way by Mr. Hopkins and associates and is in a fair way to prove a bonanza.

If it could be worked on an extensive scale and developed at depth we have no doubt it would be one of the big mines of the southwest. Being as it is, only a few miles from Carrizozo, its development would be a vast benefit to this place and should be encouraged in every possible way by our people.

MINSTREL SHOW

A fine minstrel performance will be given at the Bank building next Thursday at 8 o'clock. A first class show and a good cause, it being for the benefit of the Base Ball team.

The show is under the management of Messrs. Van Schoyck and Orr, and will be one of the best attractions of the season and should be patronized by everyone in our town.

Manzano Picnic Well Patronized

Between five and six hundred people attended the third annual picnic at Manzano which was held under the ancient apple trees there last Saturday.

Frank Disbert, assistant secretary and treasurer of the Santa Fe Central Railway, was among the Santa Feans. He was there with members of his family. Rev. E. C. Anderson, pastor of St. John's Methodist Episcopal church, was another visitor present from the Capital.

The Santa Fe delegation returned last evening from Estancia, which is the nearest railroad point to Manzano. Mr. Disbert in discussing the picnic today stated that the attendance was larger than on either of the two previous occasions.

The apple orchard which is the scene of this annual gathering is believed to be the oldest in the United States. The trees are known to have been in existence when the Spanish explorers invaded New Mexico. They are still bearing fruit in spite of their advanced age. One of them by actual measurement is eight feet four inches in circumference.

The above item clipped from the New Mexico gives a slight idea of what the territory, and particularly this section of it, may be expected to be in a few years as an apple growing country. This old tree, it is true, are only seedlings of the small Mexican variety, but the fact remains that they have stood there and born fruit almost every year for over one hundred years, and that without any care or cultivation. If these old trees will live and bear under such circumstances, what might not the horticulturist who plants choice varieties and gives them good care expect from them, and what a heritage he can leave to his children and grandchildren.

CARRIZOZO 9; NOGAL 8

Last Sunday the ball team from here and a large crowd of rooters went up to Nogal and played a game with the Nogal nine. Everybody reports a fine game and a royal time. Owing to the inexplicable chance which is frequently noticed in ball games, the score ran high, yet the playing was good and the teams closely matched, and the grand stand was given a run for its money.

One of the most pleasant features of the day was the royal treatment the visitors received at the hands of the people of Nogal, and their hospitality will long be remembered by all who were there. A fine dinner was served at the surveyor's camp for the visiting team and some of the Carrizozo boys are yet complaining of being fondered with the good things set before them at the feast.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENT

Wednesday evening Mrs. W. C. McDonald very pleasantly entertained a number of young people at her beautiful home near town, in honor of Misses Layton and Spencer of El Paso, who have been visiting her the past few weeks.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of games, music, guessing contests, and last but not least, a delectable luncheon.

Besides the young people from the town there were quite a number from white Oaks present, and when they left at a late hour all proclaimed Mrs. McDonald a charming hostess.

THE WEATHER.

Kansas City, July 23.—One hundred and twenty-five horses dropped dead on the streets here today from the effect of the heat. Two persons were prostrated. Today was the warmest day of the summer, the government thermometer registering 96 degrees. At Emporia and Concordia, Kansas, temperatures of 100 degrees were reported.

With the nice cool showery weather we are having in the Carrizozo Valley it seems almost impossible that they should be having such heat in the east, but then we remember with joy that this is New Mexico.

A UNION OF BEGGARS

AN ASSOCIATION IS FORMED BY FRENCH CRIPPLES.

Not Affiliated With Other Labor Organizations—"Northern Hobble" Originator of the Movement—Rules Adopted.

Paris—The latest development in unions hails from Marseilles, where the crippled beggars have met to form an association to protect their interests.

The originator of the movement is Francois Rosin, better known as the Northern Hobble, who is a globe trotter, celebrated for racing matches, to which he challenges any one who, like himself, is condemned to wood in the matter of legs. M. Rosin summoned a meeting of his fellow cripples, 26 of whom answered the call.

Some came on crutches, some had wooden legs, some with no legs at all came sitting on little wheeled carriages, and some had no arms. All listened attentively while the convoker of the meeting explained his purpose.

"We must first of all struggle against false beggars who exploit children borrowed from anywhere by making them dance around their miserable barrel organs, poor little kids for whom they pay seven francs a month to parents. That at least is the present rate.

"We must wage war against the contractors of mendacity who put beggars out on the sidewalks, covered with long blouses, which often conceal a perfectly sound body. These contractors take most of the money given to the beggars.

"We must finally put the public on its guard against all those beggars who, coming from goodness knows where, from foreign parts, shamming horrible infirmities, live on French public charity and so rob us."

M. Rosin was elected president of the new union without a dissenting murmur, and then the following code was drawn up and adopted:

Article 1.—Every member of the union must be French.

Article 2.—Members must refrain from singing or reciting songs or monologues against the Republican government, its officials, the police and clergy of any religion.

Article 3.—The duty of a member of the union who finds himself in a town exploited by sham mendicants or by beggars working under a contractor is to give information to the authorities.

Article 4.—It is clearly understood that to belong to the union a member must be crippled or suffering from some infirmity, visible or apparent.

Article 5.—Crippled or infirm women can become members.

Article 6.—No officer of the union shall receive any pay or indemnity.

After a short discussion it was decided that the union, in order to acquire the good grace of the government should not affiliate with the Bourse du Travail or with the General Labor Confederation. But as it was thought well that the union should seek official recognition, a deputation, consisting of the president, secretary, treasurer and dean of the cripples, Celestin Marius, waited on the prefect.

Unfortunately the prefect was away on business, but if the reception given by the prefectural staff may be taken as a token the union is not likely to get any status from that officer.

FRUITS OF EXPERIENCE

JACKSON GETS MUCH GOOD ADVICE

When Jackson moved into his new flat last September he remarked to his wife that the drug store on the corner was very attractively fitted up and seemed to be well stocked. Also that the proprietor impressed him as a very decent sort of fellow.

"What have you been doing in the drug store?" asked Mrs. Jackson.

"I felt as if I'd like to smoke a cigar," explained Jackson. "I was waiting for the car and I stepped inside to get out of the wind."

"And then you stood out on the drafty front platform and smoked the cigar, I suppose," said Mrs. Jackson. "Now, didn't you?"

Jackson looked a little foolish. Presently he observed: "That was a mighty fine smoke I got. Only a five-center, too. The man put me on to it himself—said he had smoked them for 15 years."

Mrs. Jackson coughed somewhat unsympathetically.

"There's a mighty fine soda fountain there, too," said Jackson, diplomatically. "It will be handy for us in the summer time."

"If we don't move by spring," said his wife.

The next evening Jackson complained of having a little cold and said he believed he would go down to the drug store and get something for it.

The druggist came forward to wait upon him and greeted him politely. He was a youngish, pale-faced, slightly bald man, this druggist, with a candid blue eye and a winning smile. Jackson quite warmed to him for the second time.

"I've got a little cold," he said. "What would you recommend?"

"Head or chest?" asked the druggist.

"Head," replied Jackson.

"Then I'd recommend you to try this," said the druggist, promptly, taking a bottle down from the shelf behind him.

Jackson took it and examined it dubiously. "Do you honestly think that it's any good?" he queried.

"It always does the work for me," the druggist assured him. "Whenever I get a little cold I take a dose or two and it straightens me out."

"Wrap it up, then," said Jackson. He took the medicine home and dosed himself according to directions, but it failed to straighten him out in the way he confidently expected. He mentioned his disappointment to the druggist a day or two later and the druggist recommended mustard plaster after a hot footbath, which he said had always been very efficacious with him. He produced some mustard leaves, of the brand he used himself, and further advised a pectoral, from which he had personally derived much benefit, for an incipient huksness that he had detected in his customer's voice. Jackson bought both and felt quite grateful. His cold wore itself out in time.

"I knew that would fix you," said the druggist, when Jackson reported, speaking of the last remedy. "It always has me."

A few weeks later Mrs. Jackson caught her husband shaking up a bottle of some dark-brown fluid with one hand while he held a tablespoon in the other. She naturally inquired what it was.

"A little medicine I'm taking for my liver," said Jackson. "I've been out of kilter for the last few days, but I didn't want to make you uneasy by mentioning it."

"Why don't you see a doctor?" asked Mrs. Jackson.

"What's the use of running up doctor bills? This will put me right in a day or two. Wicksey down on the corner takes it himself whenever his liver gets out of whack and he says it's the greatest thing he ever struck."

"I don't see what's coming over you," said Mrs. Jackson. "Your liver never used to trouble you. You never told me you had one before."

"I didn't conceal it purposely," said Jackson. "I guess it never occurred to me to mention it."

Apparently the liver medicine did its work, but the next thing Jackson was inserting some odd-looking contrivances in his shoes. They were batteries, he said—miniature batteries and the finest thing for rheumatism there was.

"For rheumatism!" exclaimed Mrs. Jackson.

"I've had a few little twinges in my right knee," said Jackson. "Of course, it's nothing alarming. Most men when they get to my age have an occasional touch of rheumatism. Canway is down at Eureka Springs now trying to boil it out of his system. Still, it's just as well to take it in time. These little metallic plates set up a mild current of electricity that permeates the entire system. Wicksey explained the whole thing to me, and it sounds reasonable. Then once you get a pair of the batteries they last for a lifetime. Wicksey has got a pair that he's had for seven years and he put them on last week when he was threatened with an attack of sciatica and knocked it out inside of 24 hours."

"Well, if you think it's going to help you I'm sure I've no objection," said his wife.

Mrs. Jackson had a headache an evening or two after that and her husband at once put on his hat and disappeared, returning in a little while with a contrivance like a small double-ended salt shaker, which he said was a menthol inhaler.

"Close one nostril and take some good long sniffs with the other at that," he directed, his face glowing with triumph. "Do that for an hour or so and you won't have any headache. I knew Wicksey would be able to think of something to help you."

"I'd be surprised if he couldn't," said Mrs. Jackson.

"You see, working over chemicals and things the way he does he naturally gets headaches a great deal," explained Jackson. "He says he'd have to quit and go into some other business if it wasn't for the inhaler. You close one nostril and—"

"Hand me the cologne bottle, please," interrupted Mrs. Jackson, after a sniff at the salt shaker. "I should think this would give anybody a headache if he didn't have one."

Jackson's next proceeding was to stock the flat with a sanitary soap of great virtue and to experiment with a corn eradicator that had totally eradicated Wicksey's corns. Mrs. Jackson said that only Wicksey's baldness and her husband's abundant hair accounted for the fact that the apartment was not odoriferous with a hair restorer. In December, Jackson began taking a remedy that had cured Wicksey of dyspepsia and in February he began flooding his system with a blood purifier. That was the last of it, however.

One morning he went down to the drug store and happened to enter without Wicksey's noticing him. The druggist was engaged in conversation with a man who appeared to be talking insurance to him. At all events, Jackson heard him say: "That's all very well, my friend, but suppose you were taken down sick?"

"Nonsense," said Wicksey. "I'm never sick. Never had a day's sickness or an ache or a pain in my life."

Then he happened to look up and see Jackson and his usually pallid countenance flushed slightly. Nevertheless, he advanced with a smile, winking one candid blue eye as he came.

Jackson regarded him severely and the flush deepened and the candid eyes wavered.

"I wondered if you hadn't something for the morphine habit that you could recommend from personal experience," said Jackson, sternly.

"I—I don't think I can," faltered the druggist.

"Did I say morphine?" asked Jackson. "I meant the drug habit. Well, if you haven't anything I guess I'll try to cure myself. Good morning."—Chicago Daily News.

The Wily Arab of Tripoli.

Down the street the faint intermittent tinkle of a bell was heard. "Burrro!" (Get out!) in warning rasped the high-pitched voice of a camel-driver. I dodged quickly into the shop of a silversmith and watched four lumbering camels sudge softly by. To prevent those behind the driver from being stolen, the halter rope of each is tied to the tail of the one ahead, and on the tail of the last camel as he flips and slaps it from side to side tinkles a bell.

A wily one of the faithful, dusting the flies from his eyes and hooding himself with his barracan, stealthily followed. He was aware that near the New Gate the street narrowed and made a double turn. No sooner had the driver and head camel rounded the first corner than the wily one seized the bell to the hindmost camel, with a stroke of his knife he severed it from the tail of the animal, and keeping it tinkling, he quickly fastened it to the tail of the next, cut loose the last beast, and—"Allah wills!"—made off with his loot.—Harper's.

Mrs. Lottie Thompson, a rich widow of Grand Junction, Col., has adopted a young Ute Indian as her son and heir. She saw the lad recently and was struck with his intelligence. He had no parents and the widow offered him a home. The boy is known under the name of Earl Dennis and is 12 years old.

DANIEL DEFOE'S HOME TO GO.

Dwelling Where "Robinson Crusoe" Was Written Will Be Demolished.

London.—One of the most interesting "literary shrines" in England, the house in which Daniel Defoe penned the greater part of "Robinson Crusoe," is about to be torn down to make way for modern dwellings. This little old-fashioned house, set back from the Finborough road, Tooting, and in striking contrast with the modern shops which flank it on either side, is now practically just as it was 219 years ago when Defoe came to it with his family to begin a strange life of isolation. He lived at Tooting for 18 months and during this time and for 20 years thereafter is said rarely—by some, never—to have spoken to his wife or children.

The sole change that has been made in the house since Defoe's time was the substitution of a new front in the year 1785. Over the scullery on the second floor is the little room where Defoe worked over the literary masterpiece which has secured his reputation for all time. This, the smallest room of the 12 which comprise the house, was his sanctuary, and only he passed its portals. Here for whole days he would shut himself from his family, receiving his meals, the meager repasts of an impecunious genius.

During the time Defoe lived in this house he was hard beset by creditors.

Where Author of "Robinson Crusoe" Lived.

Indeed, four years later, he was declared a bankrupt and was compelled to secrete himself to escape a term in a debtor's prison.

The old house is at present occupied by an aged woman and her equally aged husband. For a small fee they show visitors the room where Defoe wrote "Robinson Crusoe." In recent years the American pilgrims to this literary shrine have far outnumbered English callers.

KING OSCAR RESUMES REIGN.

Celebration of Marriage Anniversary Marks Abolition of Regency.

Stockholm.—The fiftieth wedding anniversary of King Oscar II. and Queen Sophia was celebrated the other day with extensive ceremonies. Messages of congratulation were received from all the crowned heads of Europe as well as from most of the foreign ministers and prominent persons over the entire world.

KING OSCAR II. (Monarch of Sweden Who Has Resumed Reins of Government.)

Members of the diplomatic corps assigned to the Swedish court called in a body to pay their respects and wish the aged king and his consort many more years of happy domestic life.

For the people of Sweden there was a double significance in the celebration, as it marked the return to the throne of King Oscar after his temporary abdication in favor of Crown Prince Gustave as regent.

When King Oscar laid down the reins of government December 14, 1905, it was feared he would never be able to assume the duties of governing the country again, but his health has improved to such an extent that the regency was abolished. It was as active sovereign that Oscar received the homage of his subjects at the wedding anniversary celebration.

Rattler Came Into Kitchen.

Mrs. Theilyard, who resides near the railroad station, was startled the other morning to see a large rattlesnake glide into the kitchen, and throwing its head high in the air take a casual survey around. With the aid of a stick of wood Mrs. Theilyard drove the reptile from the house.—Daily Flat Cor. Sacramento Bee.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

GIANT CUTTLE-FISH.

Two Remarkable Models Added to a British Museum.

Two remarkable models of giant cuttle-fish have just been placed in the shell-fish gallery of the Natural History museum at South Kensington, England. One of these is of an octopus from the west coast of North America, which measures no less than 20 feet across the great arms that make these creatures so terrible to divers, and even to bathers.

The other is of a huge "squid" from Newfoundland, which from the tip of its longest tentacles to the tip of its tail, measures just 40 feet! The longest tentacles, just referred to, are represented by a pair of terrible grasping organs just 30 feet long. During rest they are withdrawn into the body until they project no further than the remainder of the tentacles; when pursuing prey, however, this creature, so soon as he has come within striking distance of his victim, shoots out the long arms like a pair of piston-rods; and these being armed at their tips with a cluster of powerful suckers, escape is impossible for anything upon which they may have fastened. When the writhing victim is once grasped it is drawn and pushed nearer and nearer to the great and horrid beak, which, shaped like that of a parrot, tears the living body in pieces with merciless fury.

At times even the cuttle-fish, however, may meet his match. If possible, conflict is avoided; a way of escape being found by the ingenious and effective device of ejecting clouds of ink in the face of the pursuer, the ejector, under cover of the cloud, making good his retreat by darting backwards, as the result of a stream of water ejected from a special tube, known as the "siphon." This ink furnishes the pigment, beloved of painters, known as "sepia;" and even its fossil state still retains its power. It must not be supposed by the way, that such giants are peculiarly American products. Specimens quite as large have been obtained in British waters!

Interlocking Rubber Tiling.

The growing popularity of interlocking rubber tiling is shown by its invasion of new fields, being extensively used in kitchens, vestibules and bathrooms of the better sort; in fine ocean liners, lake steamers, ferry-boats and yachts, where its non-slippery character and the fact that it remains unaffected by constant wrenching strains render it very valuable, and now it may be seen in one of the finest cathedrals in the country and in one of the largest of our public art galleries.

Polishing Paste.

Melt together two parts of paraffine and six parts of lubricating oil; then mingle with eight parts of infusorial earth one part of oleic acid and a few drops of oil of mirbane are to be added.

Limited to Two Types.

Two types of men may say, truthfully: "I don't care what people think of me," and they will be of the best and the worst.—John A. Howland.

SCIENCE OF TEA-MAKING.

Ninety Per Cent. of Americans Do Not Know How to Brew Beverage.

That 90 per cent. of Americans do not know how to brew tea is the assertion made by L. Beling, who contributes an article on the subject to The Tea and Coffee Trade Journal. This is the more remarkable, if true, in that so few elements enter into success in this regard. We have only, it appears, to use good tea, see that our water is boiling, and not allow it to stand too long on the leaves. It would seem to be this last particular in which the American tea-brewer most often fails. Says Mr. Beling:

"A nauseating decoction is produced by housewife and servant-maid alike stewing the tea-leaves by letting the teapot stand on the hot stove and adding hot water for a second, third, and often a fourth 'drawing.' Tea, as a beverage, must possess extraordinary virtues and attraction for the human system, or it could not have survived such mistreatment and still retain so large a measure of popularity. * * *

"The correct preparation of tea becomes a simple matter when a few facts are kept in mind. The principal thing to see to is that the liquid tea is strained off from the leaves or 'grounds' in from three to seven minutes, according to the kind of tea used and the strength desired. Unless this is done you can not expect to make good tea."

There are numerous devices to insure the separation of the tea from the leaves at the proper time. That shown in Fig. 1, where the leaves are placed in the perforated tank, is pronounced simple and good, but if the tank is not lifted out in time its purpose is defeated. In the form shown in Fig. 2 the leaves are placed in the upper section, and the pot is tilted back while the tea draws. In order to pour off the tea, the pot must be brought into the upright position, which automatically separates the leaves and the liquid. Where no special device is at hand, the writer recommends the use of two pots, one for making the tea, and the other to hold it when poured off. In concluding, the author recapitulates his rules as follows:

- "1. Strain the tea from the tea-leaves in from three to seven minutes.
- "2. Use fresh water that is really boiling.
- "3. Let your teapots be of china or earthenware and warmed, if possible.
- "4. Use one teaspoonful of tea or less, according to kind."

A Bitter One.

He drew forth his check book reluctantly. "It costs more," he growled, "to get divorced than to get married." "But," said the lawyer, "it's worth more, isn't it?" They laughed together bitterly.

A Spider's Wonderful Eyes.

The Attus family of spiders, abounding in Java, have, in addition to numerous smaller eyes, a pair of large ones, which writers have called "gig-lamp" eyes. A specimen of the spider, captured recently near Buitenzorg, exhibited a remarkable power of changing the color of its "gig-lamps," says Youth's Companion. When it was captured the eyes were dark brown, like the body. But suddenly they changed to bright grass-green. Soon afterward they turned back again from green to brown, and this change of color was repeated several times in succession apparently at the will of the creature. Whether it was an effort of the spider to inspire terror in its enemy or an effect of its own terror is uncertain. Another singular fact is that the color of either one or both eyes could thus be changed.

"Elsie," said the little girl's mother, who was tidying up their cabin as the big ocean liner started down the bay, "where's your father?" "Why," replied the little girl, "I think he's upstairs on the side porch."

The Girl Who is Gentle.

By the gentle girl is not meant the girl who is gentle in heart and thought, though she should strive to be both, but the girl who is gentle in her movements and in her speech.

She does not knock against chairs as she enters the room, she does not plant down each foot as if she were trying to stamp the pattern out of the carpet.

When she talks and becomes interested in her subject she does not allow her voice to become a shrill tone that is ear-piercing.

Of course, none of these things are wicked, but they show a lack of consideration, and suggest that there is a strain in one that does not belong to the refined and lovable temperament.

The girl who is gentle learns to walk quietly, to keep her eyes open so that she does not trip over rugs, cushions, chairs or tables.

The girl who is gentle realizes that a sweet, low voice and a quiet manner are more convincing of the power of womanhood than all the loud-talking and blustering imaginable.

It cost the New Jersey Legislature $3,200 for tooth brushes and manicure sets. Evidently New Jersey needs a treasury watch dog of the Uncle Joe Cannon type.

It is said icebergs live 200 years, so it may be assumed that the Judge Gray presidential boom will be floating around about 190 years from now.

Apparently the "lone bandit" who is holding up stages in the Yosemite is getting money enough so he doesn't mind his loneliness much.

The question of ownership and legality of the Las Vegas grant is again being considered by the grant commission, or rather has never ceased to be considered. Now, as 16 or more years ago, there is a division among the people in that vicinity as to the ownership of the land, and it seems is no nearer to a settlement now than at any time in the past. It seems to us that the only way to settle this question is to give the occupied lands to the occupants of them at the time the controversy came up and let the unoccupied portions revert to the public domain for the benefit of actual settlers.

There is much wonder among the politicians of New Mexico at the recent move of the new governor, as he arrived from the Philippines, not even announcing that he would be here but passing by without meeting anyone except a few personal friends and going directly to Washington to consult with the president. One thing all are pretty sure of, and that is that Captain Curry will be an independent executive and will conduct the affairs of his office in what he believes to be the best interests of the people of the territory.

Good advice is cheap: ours to the new towns in eastern New Mexico is to stop fighting each other and pull together for the whole section and for the territory.

The above good advice from the El Paso Herald is timely and to the point. Along the line of the El Paso & Southwestern are several of the liveliest towns in the southwest that are exemplifying it in actual practice. Beginning with Carrizozo and continuing eastward we find Corona, Duran, Santa Rosa and Tucumcari, all of which are so busy with their own affairs that they have neither time nor inclination to fight with their neighbors.

There is one thing about mining men that people in other lines would do well to emulate—they nearly always spend the bulk of their winnings in opening up new properties.

The above from the El Paso Herald is worth considering. The men who come into our country to purchase and exploit mining properties always bring a lot of money with them which is spent in the country, and if successful in their venture give the community where they are operating a permanent wealth producer.

Every town in the southwest has weekly band concerts except El Paso. The Concerts in the plaza are too good a feature of summer life to be omitted again.—El Paso Herald.

Carrizozo and El Paso are trotting in the same class as regarding the band concert question. We should have a band, and then we can arrange for the concert.

We will venture to predict that, if all factions are as well united in boosting Governor Curry's administration of the affairs of the office he is to take as they now are in singing the praises of the man, there will be unprecedented development in New Mexico during his administration. Let us all get a shoulder to the wheel and lift together.

Kansas in recent years is raising more wheat and more corn and less cane. If Kansas continues in this direction the state will be too prosperous. It has more than its fair share of that very desirable commodity already.

There is no slowing up of mining activities in the territories. Properties are being bought and financed right along, and work is going forward on a scale never exceeded. There is no "dull season" in the mining regions.

Twenty or thirty million acres of public land remain in New Mexico to be taken up by anybody who wants to grow up with a large country.

ANOTHER RAILROAD

Among the good things for Corona is another railroad in the near future. It is practically certain that the Santa Fe Central will come this way when it builds the extension to Roswell. The officials of that road have been considering the matter of suitable routes for some time and have determined on this as the best one for several reasons.

Starting from a point near Progreso the line could be built into this place with little expense, and light grades, aside from perhaps a short distance crossing the divide, which would be no heavier than the hill at Camdeon on the present route. Again, the route by Corona and down the Gallo would run through one of the richest regions in New Mexico, and would guarantee the road good local business in both passengers and freight from the day it is built. Another great advantage is the water to be had on this line. From Progreso to Roswell there is an abundance of good water for steaming purposes, which would be a great advantage over the route from Torrance, which runs across the dry mesa for miles and would furnish neither water nor patronage of any kind.

The date of beginning on this extension has not yet been given out publicly, but it is understood that the officials of the road are making every provision for its construction at an early date.

A nice rain Wednesday put a smile on all nature as well as all mankind.

STOLEN AND OTHERWISE.

The pay roll of the Phelps-Dodge properties at Dawson last Friday called for a total of $114,000.

But $50,000 of insurance was carried on the burned district in Bisbee. The property loss was $100,000.

The Raton Gazette has suspended publication after a year or two under the management of E. H. Hehmyer, who found the venture was not a success financially, there being several other weekly papers in Raton.

The fourteen-year-old daughter of Seferino Griego, who was terribly burned by kerosene at Las Vegas Thursday afternoon when a can of oil with which she was lighting a fire exploded, is now believed to have a chance for recovery. At first it was thought her injuries would prove fatal.

The week of August 19th will be a busy one in Roswell. The New Mexico Bar association is to meet on the 20th, and a meeting of Pecos Valley editors is to be held for the organization of the Pecos Valley Press association. On the 21st Secretary of the Interior Garfield is expected.

The Santa Fe has agreed to furnish an advertising car for the territorial fair association and has assured the association that a suitable car will be placed at their disposal and transported to all towns and cities on the railroads of the territory for the purpose of advertising the fair. Practically the same arrangement will be made as last year to aid in giving wide publicity to the fair. This car will be loaded with all sorts of advertising matter which will be posted on all bill boards and other conspicuous places all through the southwest. The officials are now contracting for attractive advertising paper to have the car start on its mission by the middle of the month.

Approximately twenty thousand railroad ties have been unloaded at the site of the new tie picking plant south of Albuquerque, and more are arriving daily from Flagstaff, from Horabin and McGaffey, at Thoreau and other western points. As soon as the spur track to the boom of the Rio Grande Boom company at Domingo, north of the city, has been completed, the ties will begin coming from the forests of the upper Rio Grande. W. S. Garvin has been appointed foreman of the receiving gang of nearly a dozen men at the plant, and the force is kept busy unloading the timber. Work on the construction of the plant is proceeding rapidly, notwithstanding the delay in completing the foundations caused by the water encountered.

Land Offices in this Territory

A Washington, D. C., special to the Santa Fe New Mexican, says:

The four New Mexico land offices for the year ending June 30th, will show the largest business in homestead entries of any state or territory in the Union. The Clayton district is on top with more than ten thousand entries, being the largest number of entries of any district in the United States. Five clerks are engaged in the Clayton office and they have hard work to keep up.

The Roswell land district will show over five thousand homestead entries. This is the next largest business in the U. S.; the Santa Fe land district stands next with over three thousand entries. The Las Cruces land district is not making as good a showing, but is coming up to the number of homestead and desert entries.

Diaz Won By a Speech.

President Diaz has paid high compliment to United States ambassador David R. Thompson by ordering that a translation of his speech before the tomb of the youthful heroes of Chapultepec on last Decoration day be read before all the school children over the entire republic. Before the end of the month every boy and girl attending school will have become familiar with the speech.

The speech was made by the American ambassador in accordance with the custom that has long ruled in the Mexican Capital when on Decoration day Americans decorate the graves of the boys who so bravely fought against them in defense of the castle of Chapultepec. On this occasion the American ambassador always makes an address. The discourse of ambassador Thompson was so happy, so evidently sincere and in such good taste that it received instant recognition.

It was made in English, but was ordered translated by President Diaz.

DRESSES WOUNDS AT POINT OF GUN

TOPEKA, KAN., DOCTOR TELLS OF SINGULAR EXPERIENCE WITH PAIR OF STRANGERS.

MEN SUPPOSED TO BE BANDITS

Physician Called to Lonely Spot to Attend Patient—Story Reads Like Chapter of "Wild West" Novel.

Topeka, Kan.—Called to a deserted spot five miles south of Topeka the other night, Dr. H. H. Keith reported to the police upon his return a series of singular circumstances which read like a chapter from a novel of the blood and thunder order. After dressing the wounds of a man the doctor received his fee, and at the point of a revolver was ordered to depart. He returned to Topeka, where he told his story to the local officers.

According to the story of Dr. Keith he received a call to come out on the Burlingame road and dress a wound at seven o'clock the other night. He asked how he was to know when the place was reached, and was told that he would be met by a man who would show him the way.

Arriving at a lonely corner five miles out on the Burlingame road, Dr. Keith was met by a stranger, who waited in the middle of the road for him to stop. Climbing into the auto, the stranger directed Dr. Keith as to how to drive and the men rode a mile and a half in comparative silence. Once Dr. Keith asked the stranger of the wounds and was told that they were a gunshot. This was all the information which could be learned from the stranger.

Finally arriving at a deserted spot fully a mile and a half from the Burlingame road, they came upon a campfire which was burning low, and saw a spring wagon and a single buggy, another man and three horses. The animals were foaming from the drive they had experienced, which must have been a hard one, considering the cool weather.

"Here's your patient, doctor," said one of the men, walking to where the covered spring wagon stood.

In a rudely constructed bed within the wagon lay a man, about 30 years of age, suffering from three wounds in his legs, two in the left and one in the right leg. Dr. Keith asked various questions, but was reminded that his business was to dress the wounds, and not to ask questions.

Strapped about the body of the injured man was a cartridge belt and by his side hung a large revolver. Beside him were hung two Winchester rifles. Both the stranger who met Dr. Keith and his companion wore revolvers in plain sight.

After unwrapping the bandages which might or might not have been placed on the wounds by a physician, Dr. Keith dressed the wounds, which proved to be old, as their condition denoted that they had not been treated for some time. He urged the man to return with him to the hospital, but the stranger steadfastly declined to do so. He was told by Dr. Keith that he might live but a short time in case he did not return to a hospital, but still he declined to go to a hospital, declaring that he wanted none of it.

Finally Dr. Keith finished dressing the wounds and packed his instruments preparatory to his departure. A ten-dollar bill was thrust into his hand.

"Say nothing," said the man who had met him in the road as he drew a revolver from his belt, "say nothing and get." The revolver clicked, and Dr. Keith did not stop to argue the matter of fees. He reported the matter to the police on his arrival here.

Sheriff Wilkerson telephoned all over the section east and south and west of here to hold the men, but nothing has been heard of them.

with the full set of plates. She called upon Dr. Burrus, informing him that she desired to have them remade to fit her and the request was granted.

When she left the dental office she said that she hoped that the teeth would make her feel 30 years younger, as she intended to soon again enter the matrimonial class.

Why Called Trams.

"Abroad this summer," said a tourist agent, "you must call street cars trams, and street railways you must call tramways. If you speak of trolleys over there you won't be understood."

The word tram must puzzle the average etymologist. It derives from a man's name—Outram—Thomas Outram.

"Outram lived in Derbyshire, and in the beginning of the last century he invented a peculiar sort of track that diminished the friction between wheels and roadbeds. These tracks of Outram's, though nothing like a trolley track, were called first outtramways, then tramways, and when street lines and street cars came into existence they were dubbed respectively tramways and trams."

College Graduates in Lowly Stations.

College graduates seem to be about the cheapest things going in New York city. A publisher doing business there is quoted as saying that the easiest kind of help to obtain at $12 a week is the recent college graduate. A leading lawyer of New York goes even further by declaring: "It is appalling to find the number of college graduates of long standing who are to-day filling clerical positions at $10 or $12 per week. For many years it has been possible in New York city to employ at from $10 to $12 per week large numbers of lawyers of over ten years' standing who were graduates of both college and law school."

Doing It Now.

"See here, I want you to reform and lead a better life."

"Sure, pop, can I lead a better life than at the races?"—Baltimore American.

IS LAST SEASON FOR J. J. MCGRAW

MANAGER OF NEW YORK GIANTS TO RETIRE FROM BASEBALL IN THE FALL.

FOURTEEN YEARS IS ENOUGH

Famous Diamond General Still Very Fond of National Game but is Tired of Traveling—A Home Man at Heart—Has Other Interests Demanding His Attention.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National League club, will give up baseball at the end of this season. This means that he will neither play ball nor manage a ball club after the last game of 1907 is ended.

The manager of the Giants, one of the greatest generals that the national game has ever seen, is not giving up this news broadcast, yet he makes no denial of its truth and he admits that there are some features of the professional baseball life that he does not like. Statements similar to this are made periodically by many ball players and managers of note at times when they are dickering for bigger salaries. Some make it a point to hold out for a short time each spring with more or less success as to the salary proposition. Mr. McGraw, however, has no ax of this kind to grind, since his salary is mutually agreeable to him and to President John T. Brush, of the New York club, and Manager McGraw has come to his determination with the season of 1907 well under way. The fact is, McGraw and Brush have a high admiration for each other and a money affair is not likely to separate them. John J. McGraw does not have to play baseball any longer. He has been in the game 14 years; has made good money during most of this time and now he has commercial and property interests which make him independent of salary.

He asserts that what he most hates in the baseball life is traveling. To a close friend he said recently: "I detest, more than I can express in words, this moving from place to place throughout the playing season. I have been traveling from one part of the country to another so much, to say nothing of my trips to foreign countries, that the very sight of a railroad train appalls me. I want to stay at home, right here in New York. In spite of my sporting proclivities my tastes are domestic and I want to quench forever the feeling that I am a slave to the Pullman sleeper and the tender mercies of the hotel in the next city."

When asked if his decision to give up baseball was irrevocable, he said: "Practically, it is. Of course, I might be invited to sign a contract for a short period of time—say two seasons or something like that—for such an advantageous sum that I would be false to my own interests and to the interests of my family if I threw down the proposition. Now, understand me, I am not fishing for such a contract. I do not want it. I still love the national game as such, but I am tired of the traveling game and, as soon as I can, I am going to stop moving around except to go where I shall go from personal choice."

GOSSIP OF THE BIG LEAGUES

Good base runners among big men are by no means scarce—Crawford, Isbell, Flick, and Anderson, for instance.

Johnny Kling, the Cubs' catcher, says he always knows where the ball is coming when Brown is doing the pitching. Roger Bresnahan, the Giant's backstop, says he could sit in a rocking chair and catch when Mathewson is in the box. But the poor batter is always the "fall guy" for these pitchers. He never knows where the ball is going.

The Cincinnati players have asked President Hermann to divide the receipts of all exhibition games with them. With such nerve, the Reds should be higher in the pennant race.

Dave Fultz was asked the other day to describe his sensations when he was knocked cold in the collision with Elberfeld just before he retired from baseball. "There weren't any," replied Dave sentimentally. "When I woke up I was in the hospital."

The right-handed pitchers have had something on their southpaw rivals this year in the American league, having won 108 of their 208 games while the left-handers won but 36 out of 80. All of the first seven or eight pitchers are right-handers, Joss, Glade, Glaze, Young, Smith, Walsh, Orth, Mullin, Donovan and Rhoades, showing much better form than the crack southpaws, Waddell, Plank, Tannehill, Patten, Hess and others.

SAFEGUARD THE HOME

GOOD CITIZENS ARE THE BULWARK OF THE NATION.

EDUCATION AND PROTECTION

Two Vital Things to Be Considered by Those Who Would See the Greatest Progress and Advancement.

Where is found the greatest advancement and civilization there is also found among the people the highest type of fealty and love of home. The American homes are the most substantial pillars of the nation's greatness, and in American citizenship is found the bulwark of our republican government.

Where the home life is ideal, there is found genuine patriotism which is always commensurate with the enlightenment and the domestic happiness of the people. How important it is then that every safeguard be thrown about the home, which is the hotbed where are produced for development all the strength that is necessary for the perpetuation of a government and the maintenance of a nation's greatness.

The student who will study into conditions of the countries that are continually wrecked by internal turmoil, such as Russia and the Central American republics, will discover the homes are far from ideal homes, and that there is an absence of the love of country that should be found in the hearts of its citizens. There is a duty that involves upon all, and which is due to the generations growing and to come. The duty is to surround the home with such environments as will make it attractive and develop in the growing youth the highest qualities of manhood and womanhood. Where the people are oppressed by monarchy and feudalism there is no incentive to develop the highest state of home life. In America where all are upon an equal plane and opportunities are open to every citizen, and where the people are secure in their rights to homes, there is every reason why each one should make the greatest endeavor to found for himself and his progeny a residence place that will be sure from intrusion and be an incentive to higher mental and social development.

Education is all important and no other country in the world offers to all such glorious advantages to receive enlightenment as does the United States. It is important that the home be located near good schools. Good schools are generally found where there are good homes and good towns. The quality of citizenship of a community can generally be gaged by the standard of its educational institutions. It is important to the home builder that the town wherein he is located or which he may reside near, be a progressive place. And the better that this town be, the better will be its educational facilities for the youth. It is essential to the greatest good of a community that it be realized by all residing within it that the more wealthy it can be made, the greater will be its advantages both as to education and otherwise. By support to home institutions the home is made better in every way. Patriotic citizens will make it their first aim to be loyal to their own home interests and then their state and nation. One who is loyal to home is generally faithful in the performance of all the duties that good citizenship implies.

Cigarettes and Conscience.

The man who limits himself to cigarettes shows a smallness of mind. He seems smitten with some hidden conscience that feels it is not right to smoke; but he smotheres it, and with great bravado determines to be a devil of a dog, and take a cigarette. —Grata.

Living for the Children.

Froebel's sentiment "Come, let us live for our children" rests on a sound philosophic basis. To live for them is to call out the noblest impulses of parenthood. And we cannot live for them in the trust sense until we become familiar with their needs. It is in the endeavor to meet those needs in the largest way possible that we find our own characters richly recompensed in strong and well-developed parenthood. We practically become what we are by what we have done or left undone, what we are willing or unwilling to do for our children. The principle is universal, and should find its extension and application among children at all times and in all places. Has not the church lost ground in failing to recognize the primary and fundamental place of the child in society? If so, it is obvious how that lost ground may be recovered.—Homiletic Review.

NO TIME FOR STUDY.

People Who Are Either Too Busy or Too Indolent for Self-Improvement.

That person who takes no interest in affairs of his fellow men, who fails to keep himself informed as to what is transpiring around him, is far from being either progressive or well-informed. These days when papers and magazines are so plentiful and so cheap, there is little excuse for the average person not keeping closely in touch with events, and particularly keeping enlightened as to what is transpiring that may affect his own individual interests.

One of the great beauties, and an extraordinary privilege of our American form of government, is the right of ever citizen to take a part in public affairs and particularly in governmental transactions. How many follow party leaders, perhaps blindly, and too late find that they made errors through not having understood the situation? How many who are negligent in the study of measures that are brought up for consideration both by state and national legislative bodies, and too late find that unwise laws were enacted that directly oppressed certain classes to the advantage of others? How many people are gathered in by alluring promises made in the finely printed literature sent broadcast through the country for the purpose of exploitation of fraudulent stock companies, just through not keeping informed as to the means and methods employed by schemers to entrap the unwary? It is conservatively estimated that each year more than $50,000,000 are taken from the earnings of the people just through the operations of fraudulent mining, oil, insurance and like concerns. It would be impossible for the promoters of such frauds to exist were the people careful readers of the newspapers and the magazines, the pages of which are filled with accounts of the doings of "get-rich-quick" schemes.

These days there is every opportunity for self-improvement. Rural deliveries carry papers to the most remote farms, and telephones connect the farmhouses in the average community. If the people were only to utilize the means so close at hand, and to take the time to read, and examine into such propositions as interest them, there would be less cause for complaint on the part of those who perchance get their "fingers blistered." It is evident from the success that exploiters of schemes meet with, that the majority of people lack good business judgment, or that they are blinded by some inherent gambling desire. It is always a safe plan to avoid any investment that offers more than legitimate returns on an investment. Any proposition that will pay even ten per cent. a year, and where the principal is secured, can find all the capital that may be required for its operation, without calling upon the general public. It is only the uncertain kind of investments, the ones that are a "gamble," such as mining, and the like, that are most prominent in the advertising columns of the papers. The basis on which the promoters work, is the inclination of the people to seek great returns for little money. It is the same sentiment that allows numerous establishments located in different parts of the country to dispose of cheap goods at enormous profits through holding out to the people the promise of extraordinary values. The well-informed man will avoid all kinds of investment schemes that are designed to draw money from the pockets of the people, and will also refuse to buy any "pigs in bags," it matters not whether the matter of barter be stocks and bonds or the necessities of life.

Tough Luck.

"Your wife has been ill a long time, hasn't she?"

I should say so. Her doctor bill is bigger already than an undertaker's bill would have been.—Cleveland Leader.

His Dire Threat.

There was determination stamped on his brow.

"Refused, eh!" he hissed, snapping his words like the explosions of a motor-cycle. "Then I shall turn on the gas."

The beautiful girl swooned. When she recovered she found him sitting in an easy chair reading the sporting news.

"Ah, you didn't turn on the gas after all, did you?" she asked in trembling tones.

"Yes I did," he replied coldly.

"You—you turned on the gas, Harold?"

"Of course I did. How could I light it if I didn't turn it on?"

And then she asked his forgiveness and accepted him on the spot.

Where Babies Thrive.

"There's not much danger of race suicide on the East side, at any rate," said the New York slum worker who lives there. "Every time you look out the window there's a brand new baby on some opposite balcony or fire escape."

WIDOW WEARS FALSE TEETH OF HUSBAND

REMOVES PLATES JUST BEFORE FUNERAL AND HAD DENTIST REMOUNT THEM.

Janesville, Wis.—Economy is a marked characteristic of Mrs. August Kramer, a thrifty little 63-year-old widow who lives near Fort Atkinson.

Twenty years ago Dr. A. P. Burrus, of Janesville, made a set of false teeth for her husband, consisting of upper and lower plates.

For 18 years these teeth served all purposes and would undoubtedly have

Just prior to placing the body in the casket Mrs. Kramer asked that her husband's false teeth be removed, as she would soon be obliged to purchase some. Her request was complied with and Mrs. Kramer arrived in Janesville

AROUND THE HOUSE

BEAUTY AND COMFORT IN APPOINTMENTS.

Plants for the Window Garden—
Chintz and Light Washable Material Make Effective Hangings—
—Burlap to Be Popular.

If one can get plants for the window garden from a florist, it is desirable to do so, as they will be well established in pots and may be transferred with little checking of their growth. For attaching boxes to the house, many sizes and varieties of metal brackets can be purchased at the hardware stores. These should be held in place by long screws that run directly into the upright joists of the house, and it is desirable to paint them the same color as the building.

This is the season when chintz, linen taffeta and cretonne seem the most beautiful fabrics in the shops. The various designs in flowers look almost real, and each year are prettier. Nearly every summer home, as well as many of the winter ones, are now hung with washable materials. They may be had in subdued or gay colorings. A room in which nothing clashes, though done in cretonne and wicker, is often more effective than one with massive furniture and heavy hangings.

One can now buy almost everything made in cretonne, from bed covers, window hangings, hat and shirt-waist boxes, to desk sets and bureau accessories.

If you cannot afford to have wicker furniture, and the old must be covered, have the slips made of flowered cretonne or linen taffeta. They are much newer and brighter than the old-fashioned ecru ones. The flowered effects will give a cool appearance to the room. If a good quality is purchased, it will launder well. Do not have several kinds of figured material in one room, or it will have an inharmonious appearance.

Burlap is surely having its day this season and bids fair to become more popular as the summer advances. Not only are the curtains, table covers and sofa pillows made from this material, but bureau covers and dressing table covers, many elaborately embroidered, are shown. However, burlap does sound a trifle heavy for one's dressing table in the summer, but the cushions for the window seats are certainly artistic and satisfying if chosen in the quiet tones of brown or green. Natural colored burlap is the most durable for the covering of window cushions, as the sun is often very bright in that spot. Some of these cushions lace at the edge with cord or can be coarsely buttonholed with a heavy rope silk of the same color.

French Salad.

Peel three Spanish onions, scoop a teaspoonful of the center of each, and half fill the cavity with butter and a seasoning of salt and pepper; put in a baking pan and cook in a moderate oven until brown. When the onions are cold cut them into quarters and place them on a bed of watercress; skin and bone a half dozen sardines and lay them on the quarters of onion. Make a mayonnaise dressing, to which add one teaspoonful of curry powder, and pour over the onions and sardines. Garnish with hard boiled eggs, sliced, and sprinkle over all a little chopped parsley and chervil. Curry may be omitted.

Gingered Pears.

Four pounds pears, three pounds sugar, one gill water, two lemons cut in rings, one-half ounce ginger root. Have the pears a little green, cut in strips and cook with the other ingredients until the pear is transparent. Place in jars while hot, fill to overflowing and quickly screw on the tops. Invert the jars as a final test as to air tightness and tighten further if necessary.

About the Garden.

Seedlings should never be taken direct from the greenhouse to the garden. You should harden them off gradually by putting the boxes out of doors whenever the weather is suitable during the daytime, says Home Chat.

A few days of such airing makes all the little plants sturdy and independent, so that when they are carefully transferred from the boxes to the flower beds they suffer no shock from the sudden change.

Doing up Chamois Gloves.

Chamois gloves, so popular this season, should be washed on the hands. After making a good lather, squeeze and rub as though washing the hands, and then rinse in cold water. Wipe with a soft linen cloth, but not with enough friction to wear. When dry, push into shape with the glove stretcher.

There is something uncanny about the mother who admits that her boy may have been just as much to blame as her neighbor's child.
