WIN FIRST OF SERIES.

Brady Defeats Brownwood Yesterday—Score 4 to 0.

Brady took the first of the series of three games away from Brownwood yesterday by the score of 4 to 0. Spiller was in the box for the locals while Peavey occupied the slab for the visitors. Not only did the Brady boys outplay the Brownwood bunch at all points, but Spiller contributed much to the interest of the game by having to his credit 17 strike-outs.

Cotton Is Moving.

Two more bales of cotton arrived in Brady yesterday, making it look like the fall rush was close at hand. They were ginned at the Koerth gin.

J. E. Shropshire and John E. Brown have dissolved partnership in the law business. Mr. Brown having decided to locate in Pauls Valley, Okla., for which place he and Mrs. Brown left last week. "Resolved that we endorse our national democratic platform and our candidates for president and vice president, and recommend them to the people of our state as wise and patriotic men, and the Baltimore platform as being the embodiment of pure democracy, and we respectfully ask our people to work for the election of our democratic electors in Texas."

"Resolved that we endorse the administration of Gov. O. B. Colquitt as being within the keeping and teaching of democracy and that it is within the keeping and teaching of the democracy of our fathers, being wise, patriotic, clean and humane, and that we commend to thinking democrats the high order of statesmanship as displayed by him in the recent campaign, and come to those who opposed him, both in this county and our beloved state, with the olive branch of peace and say to them: 'We be brothers, let us greet one another with a smile and a kind word and all work for a greater and better state, and for the upbuilding of our county and state.'

"Resolved that we endorse the efforts of our State Department of Education in its efforts to build up our school system in Texas, and advance the educational interests of our people, for we realize that the perpetuity of our free institutions depend upon the education of our children. We endorse the appropriation made by our State Board of Education for free school purposes for the coming school year; it being a greater per capita appropriation than was ever made."

"We endorse the clean administration of our county officials, and take pleasure in saying that no county in Texas has more faithful and more efficient county officials."

Upon the suggestion of the chair the hat was passed and a collection for the Wilson campaign fund was taken, $3.30 being collected and turned over to the secretary to be sent to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Thereupon the convention adjourned.

CONNER IS STATE SENATOR

Coleman County Majority Gives Lead Over Opponent.

Although it has been thought that C. G. Foust of Dublin was the winner in the state senatorial contest in this district, it now appears certain that Judge R. P. Conner of Brownwood is the state senator. A report from all counties except Runnels and Coleman gave the Dublin man a good lead over Judge Conner, but in figuring the result, one did not reckon with the plurality in Coleman county, hence the error in estimating Foust's vote. Returns received from Coleman yesterday give Judge Conner 1214 to Mr. Foust's 398, a majority of 816, which in all probability cannot be overcome by the Runnels county returns. In fact it is claimed by Judge Conner's friends that he has also carried Runnels county.

According to the Bulletin's estimate Judge Conner is from 500 to 600 ahead at this time. Returns are slow in coming in to the district chairman.—Brownwood Bulletin.

A Good Turn-Out.

In mentioning the first bale Tuesday, we stated that the 1450 pounds of seed cotton turned out a 435 pound bale. This was an error, the seed cotton weighing 1250 pounds, and the Koerth gin turning out a 435 pound bale from this amount.

No calls were made for the next convention, so it is loose on the river—any class may have it for the asking. We were rather disappointed, as we had prepared dinner for quite a crowd and expected other classes to assist with the singing. Miss Clyde Wright rendered a beautiful solo entitled "Face to Face."

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hutto have moved over to the Holbert farm, where they will be near his work.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Johnson left Thursday morning for San Benito, where they will make their home. Mr. and Mrs. Brown accompanied them, but do not intend making their home there but a short time.

Mr. H. L. Simmons was called to the bedside of his brother-in-law last week, but did not reach there until after his death.

Editor Brady Standard:

Well, as I have been absent for some time, will come again. Say, Mr. Editor, don't some of those candidates look disappointed? Guess they do—those who didn't get elected especially.

Yesterday was hog election day. At this writing we have not heard whether they were turned out or not.

Mr. Coopender, the fruit tree man, was in our midst Friday.

Mrs. Walker is quite sick at present. Hope she will soon recover.

Master Oscar Stucke, who has been quite sick for the past month, is reported better now.

Talk about Editor Callan of the Menard Messenger, ye scribe did not believe all that he heard until the other day when he happened to pass through that miserable district. As he crossed the street—or a dirty sort of a place they call a street—a man drew up at the editor's office. A shabby looking man with an old slouch hat on appeared at the door and the following conversation took place:

The man in the wagon said: "Is that Mr. Callan?"

"Yes, sir."

"I came over to pay my subscription to The Messenger."

"All right, sir."

"Me and Jeditth gathered some turnips which I brought to town to sell, but finding I could not sell them, I thought I would pay my subscription with them, provided you would take them."

"Yes, sir, they are just as good as money to me. How many have you?"

"Forty cents worth."

"All right, sir, empty them into this box."

The man emptied his turnips and drove off. The editor went in to cancel off the charges to the man's subscription, and came to find out that he had not asked the man's name, and he is still trying to find the man's name, for he said he did not want to bet the man out of four year's subscription. Wonder if it's worth ten cents a year?

The holiness are having their meeting now, and from what I can find out a good many souls have been saved. So let the good work go on, and may everyone hold out faithful.

Crops are beginning to show the effects of the dry weather, especially old cotton. The late cotton is holding up remarkably well yet, but unless it rains before much longer there can't be very much made in this neighborhood.

Mrs. Will Long has been quite sick, but is better at this writing.

I would like to know what has become of some of our good writers. Guess they are attending the big meetings, picnics, encampments, etc.

Well, as news is scarce and the weather so warm, I will step aside and give a more gifted writer room.

With best wishes to one and all, I am still, T. 9 E.

TEXAS NEEDS GREAT MEN

XXIII. HASTE

ISTORY tells us that the battle of Winchester was won by the valor and courage of General Sheridan and the post has given us a graphic description of "Sheridan's Ride," as he hurried to the battlefield and saved the day, the battle having begun with Sheridan twenty miles away. The battle for commercial supremacy is now raging on land and sea. Our strategic position, our undeveloped resources and our progressive citizenship makes Texas the battlefield of Twentieth Century civilization and every man in Texas must ride under whip and spur to save the day with the Panama Canal less than three years away.

SHERIDAN'S RIDE.

Let those who would wear a laurel wreath of victory answer the bugle call of progress and rally round the plow and the hammer; and amid the smoke of industry, the roar of the furnace, the rattle of the dinner pails and scream of the factory whistle, plant the flag of grand old Texas on the parapets of prosperity. A Permanent Cure For Chronic Constipation

Although those who dispute it who have not tried it, yet thousands of others, who speak from personal experience, assert that there is a permanent cure for chronic constipation. Some testify they were cured for as little as fifty cents, years ago, and that the trouble never came back on them, while others admit they took several bottles before a steady cure was brought about. The remedy referred to is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been the standard for over a quarter of a century and has been popularized on its merits by one person killing another. The fact that its strongest supporters are women and older people—the ones most persistently constipated—makes it certain that the claims regarding it as a permanent cure for constipation have not been exaggerated.

without griping and without shock to the system. It contains tonic properties that strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles so that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with and nature is again solely relied on. Among the legions who testify to these facts are Ella Butler, Flatonia, Texas, and W. G. Kameyer, 449 Broadway, Galveston, Texas, and they always have a bottle of it in the house, for it is a reliable laxative for all the family from infancy to old age. Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 604 Washington St., Houston, Tex. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Lieut. Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to elope, but wreck of taxicab prevents their seeing minister on the way to the train.

CHAPTER II.—Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. Porter has a lively time with an Englishman and Ira Lathrop, a Yankee business man.

The Englishman was craning his head around owlishly to ask:

"I say, pawtah, does this train ever get wrecked?"

"Well, it hasn't yet," and he murmured to the Yankee, "but I has hopes."

The Englishman's voice was querulous again.

"I say, pawtah, open a window, will you? The air is ghastly, abso-rippling, luteely ghastly."

The Yankee growled:

"No wonder we had the Revolutionary war!"

Then he took from his pocket an envelope addressed to Ira Lathrop & Co., and from the envelope he took a contract, and studied it grimly. The envelope bore a Chinese stamp.

The porter, as he struggled with an obstinate window, wondered what sort of passenger fate would send him next.

CHAPTER III.

In Darkest Chicago.

The castaways from the wrecked taxicab hurried along the doleful street. Both of them knew their Chicago, but this part of it was not their Chicago.

They hailed a pedestrian, to ask where the nearest street car line might be, and whether it might run. He answered indistinctly from a discreet distance, as he hastened away. Perhaps he thought their question merely a footpad's introduction to a sandbagging episode. In Chicago at night one never knows.

"As near as I can make out what he said, Marjorie," the lieutenant pondered aloud, "we walk straight ahead till we come to Umptump street, and there we find a Rarara car that will take us to Bloopybop avenue. I never heard of any such streets, did you?"

"Never," she panted, as she jog-trotted alongside his military pace.

"Let's take the first car we meet, and perhaps the conductor can put us off at the street where the minister lives."

"Perhaps" there was not much confidence in that "perhaps." When they reached the street-carred street, they found two taxicabs, but nothing occupying them, as far as they could peer either way. A small shopkeeper in a tiny shop proved to be a delicatessen merchant so busily selling foreign horrors to aliens, that they learned nothing from him.

At length, in the far-away, they made out a headlight, and heard the grind and squeal of a car. Lieutenant Mallory waited for it, watch in hand. He boosted Marjorie's elbow aboard and bombarded the conductor with questions. But the conductor had no more heard of their street than they had of his. Their agitation did not disturb his stolid calm, but he invited them to come along to the next crossing, where they could find another car and more learned conductors; or, what promised better, perhaps a cab.

He threw Marjorie into a panic by ordering her to Jettison Snoozieums, but the lieutenant bought his soul for a small price, and overlooked the fact that he did not bring up their fares.

The young couple squeezed into a seat and talked anxiously in sharp whispers.

"Wouldn't it be terrible, Harry, if, just as we got to the minister's, we should find papa there ahead of us, waiting to forbid the bands, or whatever it is? Wouldn't it be just terrible?"

"Yes, it would, honey, but it doesn't seem probable. There are thousands of ministers in Chicago. He could never find ours. Fact is, I doubt if we find him ourselves."

Her clutch tightened till he would have winced, if he had not been a soldier.

"What do you mean, Harry?"

"Well, in the first place, honey, look what time it is. Hardly more than time to get the train, to say nothing of hunting for that preacher and standing up through a long rigmarole."

"Why, Harry Mallory, are you getting ready to jilt me?"

"Indeed I'm not—not for worlds, honey, but I've got to get that train, haven't I?"

"Couldn't you wait over one train—just one tiny little train?"

"My own, own honey love, you know it's impossible! You must remember that I've already waited over three trains while you tried to make up your mind."

"And you must remember, darling, that it's no easy matter for a girl to decide to sneak away from home and be married secretly, and go all the way out to that hideous Manila with no trousseau and no wedding presents and no anything."

"I know it isn't, and I waited patiently while you got up the courage. But now there are no more trains. I shudder to think of this train being late. We're not due in San Francisco till Thursday evening, and my transport sails at sunrise Friday morning. Oh, Lord, what if I should miss that transport! What if I should!"

"What if we should miss the minister?"

"It begins to look a great deal like it."

"But, Harry, you wouldn't desert me now—abandon me to my fate?"

"Well, it isn't exactly like abandonment, seeing that you could go home to your father and mother in a taxicab."

She stared at him in horror.

"So you don't want me for your wife? You've changed your mind! You're tired of me already! Only an hour together, and you're sick of your bargain! You're anxious to get rid of me! You—"

"Oh, honey, I want you more than anything else on earth, but I'm a soldier, dearie, a mere lieutenant in the regular army, and I'm the slave of the government. I've gone through West Point, and they won't let me resign respectably and if I did, we'd starve. They wouldn't accept my resignation, but they'd be willing to court-martial me and dismiss me from the service in disgrace. Then you wouldn't want to marry me—and I shouldn't have any way of supporting you if you did. I only know one trade, and that's soldiering."

"Don't call it a trade, beloved, it's the noblest profession in all the world, and you're the noblest soldier that ever was, and in a year or two you'll be the biggest general in the army."

He could not afford to shatter such a devout illusion or quench the light of faith in those beloved and loving eyes. He tacitly admitted his ability to be promoted commander-in-chief in a year or two. He allowed that glittering possibility to remain, used it as a basis for argument.

"Then, dearest, you must help me to do my duty."

She clasped his upper arm as if it were an altar and she an Iphigenia about to be sacrificed to save the army. And she murmured with utter heroism:

"I will! Do what you like with me!"

He squeezed her hand between his biceps and accepted the offering in a look drenched with gratitude. Then he said, matter-of-factly:

"We'll see how much time we have when we get to—whatever the name of that street is."

The car jolted and wailed on its way like an old drifting rocking chair. The motorman was in no hurry. The passengers seemed to have no occasion for haste. Somebody got on or got off at almost every corner, and paused for conversation while the car waited patiently. But eventually the conductor put his head in and drawled:

"Hay! Here's where you get off at."

They hastened to debark and found themselves in a narrow, gaudily-lighted region where they saw a lordly transfer-distributor, a profound scholar in Chicago streets. He informed them that the minister's street lay far back along the path they had come; they should have taken a car in the opposite direction, transferred at some remote center, descended at some unheard-of street, walked three blocks one way and four another, and there they would have been.

Mallory looked at his watch, and Marjorie's hopes dropped like a wrecked aeroplane, for he grimly asked how long it would take them to reach the railroad station.

"Well, you'd ought to make it in forty minutes," the transfer agent said—and added, cynically, "if the car makes schedule."

"Good Lord, the train starts in twenty minutes!"

"Well, I tell you—take this here green car to Wexford avenue—there's usually a taxicab or two standing there."

"Thank you, Hop on, Marjorie."

Marjorie hopped on, and they sat down, Mallory with eyes and thoughts on nothing but the watch he kept in his hand.

During this tense journey the girl perfected her soul with graceful martyrdom.

"I'll go to the train with you, Harry, and then you can send me home in a taxicab."

Her motherly lip trembled and her eyes were filled, but they were brave, and her voice was so tender that it wooed his mind from his watch. He gazed at her, and found her so dear, so devoted and so pitifully unworldly, that he was almost overcome by an impulse to gather her into his arms there and then, indifferent to the immediate passengers or to his far-off military superiors. An hour ago they were young lovers in all the lit and thrill of elopement. She had clung to him in the gloaming of their taxicab, as it sped like a genie at their whim to the place where the minister would unite their hands and raise his own in blessing. Thence the new husband would have carried the new wife away, his very own, soul and body, duty and beauty. Then, ah, then in their minds the future was an unwaning honeymoon, the journey across the continent, a stroll along a lover's lane, the Pacific ocean a garden lake, and the Philippines a chain of Fortunate Isles decreed especially for their Edes. And then the taxicab encountered a lamppost. They thought they had merely wrecked a motor car—and lo, they had wrecked a Paradise.

The railroad ceased to be a lover's lane and became a lingering torment; the ocean was a wailing Sahara, and the Philippines a Dry Tortugas of exile.

Mallory realized for the first time what heavy burdens he had taken on with his shoulder straps; what a dismal life of restrictions and hardships an officer's life is bound to be. It was hard to obey the soulless machinery of discipline, to be a brass-buttoned slave. He felt all the hot, quick resentment that turns a faithful soldier into a deserter. But it takes time to evolve a deserter, and Mallory had only twenty minutes. The handcuffs and legirons of discipline hobbled him. He was only a little cog in a great clock, and the other wheels were impinging on him and revolving in spite of himself.

In the close-packed seats where they were jostled and stared at, the soldier could not even attempt to explain to his fascinated bride the war of motives in his breast. He could not voice the passionate rebellion her beauty had whipped up in his soul. Perhaps if Romeo and Juliet had been forced to say farewell on a Chicago street car instead of a Veronese balcony, their language would have lacked savor, too.

Perhaps young Mr. Montague and young Miss Capulet, instead of wailing, "No, that is not the lark whose notes do beat the vaulted heaven so high above our heads," would have done no better than Mr. Mallory and Miss Newton. In any case, the best these two could squeeze out was:

"It's just too bad, honey."

"But I guess it can't be helped, dear."

"It's a mean old world, isn't it?"

"Awful!"

And then they must pile out into the street again so lost in woe that they did not know how they were trampled or elbowed. Marjorie's despair was so complete that it paralyzed instinct. She forgot Snoozieums! A thoughtful passenger ran out and tossed the basket into Mallory's arms even as the car moved off.

Fortune relented a moment and they found a taxicab waiting where they had expected to find it. Once more they were cosy in the flying twilight, but their grief was their only baggage, and the clasp of their hands talked all the talk there was.

Anxiety within anxiety tormented them and they feared another wreck. But as they swooped down upon the station, a kind-faced tower clock beamed the reassurance that they had three minutes to spare.

The taxicab drew up and halted, but they did not get out. They were kissing good-byes, fervidly and generously, while a grinning station-porter winked at the winking chauffeur.

Marjorie simply could not have done with farewells.

"I'll go to the gate with you," she said.

He told the chauffeur to wait and take the young lady home. The lieutenant looked so honest and the girl so mad that the chauffeur simply touched his cap, though it was not his custom to allow strange fares to vanish into crowded stations, leaving behind nothing more negotiable than instructions to wait.

CHAPTER IV.

A Mouse and a Mountain.

All the while the foiled elopers were eloping, the San Francisco sleeper was filling up. It had been the receptacle of assorted lots of humanity tumbling into it from all directions, with all sorts of souls, bodies, and destinations.

The porter received each with that expert eye of his. His car was his laboratory. A railroad journey is a sort of test-tube of character; strange elements meet under strange conditions and make strange combinations. The porter could never foresee the ingredients of any trip, nor their actions and reactions.

He had no sooner established Mr. Wedgewood of London and Mr. Ira Lathrop of Chicago, in comparative repose, than his car was invaded by a woman who fung herself into the first seat. She was flushed with running, and breathing hard, but she managed one gasp of relief:

"Thank goodness, I made it in time."

The mere sound of a woman's voice in the dark back of him was enough to disperse Ira Lathrop. With not so much as a glance backward to see what manner of woman it might be, he jammed his contract into his pocket, seized his newspapers and retreated to the farthest end of the car, lounging down into berth number one, like a sulken snapping turtle.

Miss Anne Gattie's modest and homely valise had been brought aboard by a leisurely station usher, who set it down and wailed with a speaking palm outstretched. She held her tickets in her hand, but transferred them to his teeth while she searched for money in a handbag old-fashioned enough to be called a reticule.

The usher closed his fist on the pile she dropped into it and departed without comment. The porter advanced on her with a demand for "Tickets, please."

She began to ransack her reticule with hurried haste, taking out of it a small purse, opening that, closing it, putting it back, taking it out, searching the reticule through, turning out a handkerchief, a few hairpins, a few trunk keys, a baggage check, a bottle of salts, a card or two and numerous other maidenly articles, restoring them to place, looking in the purse again, restoring that, closing the reticule, setting it down, shaking out a book she carried, opening her old valise, going through certain white things blushing, closing it again, shaking her skirts, and shaking her head in bewilderment.

She was about to open the reticule again, when the porter exclaimed:

"I see it! Don't look so mo'. I see it!"

When she cast up her eyes in despair, her hatbrim had been elevated enough to disclose the whereabouts of the tickets. With a murmured apology, he removed them from her teeth and held them under the light. After a time he said:

"As near as I can make out from the— the undigested portion of this ticket, yo' numba is six."

"That's it—six!"

"That's right up this way."

"Let me sit here till I get my breath," she pleaded. "I ran so hard to catch the train."

"Well, you caught it good and strong."

"I'm so glad. How soon do we start?"

"In about half a hough."

"Really? Well, better half an hour too soon than half a minute too late." She said it with such a copy-book primness that the porter set her down as a school-teacher. It was not a bad guess. She was a missionary. With a pupil-like shyness she volunteered:

"Yo' berth is all ready whenever you wishes to go to bald." He caught her swift blush and amended it to—"to retiah."

"Retire?—before all the car?" said Miss Anne Gattie, with prim timidity. "No, thank you! I intend to sit up till everybody else has retired."

The porter retired. Miss Gattie took out a bit of more or less useful fancy stitching and set to work like another Doxas. Her needle had not dived in and emerged many times before she was holding it up as a weapon of defense against a sudden human mountain that threatened to crush her.

A vague moon face, huge and red as a rising moon, dawned before her eyes and from it came an uncertain voice:

"Excuse me, mad'm, no 'fench intended."

The words and the breath that carried them gave the startled spinster an instant proof that her vis-a-vis did not share her prohibition principles or practices. She regarded the elephant with mouse-like terror, and the elephant regarded the mouse with elephantine fright, then he removed himself from her landscape as quickly as he could and lurched along the aisle, calling out merrily to the porter:

"Chauffeur! chauffeur! don't go so fast 'round these corners."

He collided with a small train-boy singing his nasal lay, but it was the behemoth and not the train-boy that collapsed into a seat, sprawling as helplessly as a mammoth oyster on a table-cloth.

The porter rushed to his aid and hoisted him to his feet with an uneasy sense of impending trouble. He felt as if someone had left a monstrous baby on his doorstep, but all he said was:

"Tickets, please."

There ensued a long search, fat, flabby hands fopping and fumbling from pocket to pocket. Once more the porter was the chauffeur.

BRADY TEXAS, Aug. 9, 1912.

THE HATFIELDS AND WEST TEXAS.

West Texas is different. This, in a nut shell, explains the lack of success in securing rain through the agency of the Hatfield Brothers. The conditions here are different from anywhere they have worked before, and the boys learned some new things, as also did the citizens who met the rainmakers. The visit of these Californians has not been without good results. Citizens will study the conditions for rain more than they ever did before and the result may be that West Texas will become more of a rain belt than it is at present.

The fact that the humidity in the air was only about ten to thirty per cent will be interesting information to some. Many have never thought of the humidity and what this means. The thought along this line will possibly result in the adoption of means for increasing the humidity to fifty or sixty or maybe ninety per cent—and when this is done the rainfall will increase in proportion. If the people living in Concho and all of West Texas learn what to do to increase this humidity, they will owe a great big vote of thanks to the Hatfield Brothers for thus calling attention to the remedy.

The tip given out by Chas. M. Hatfield that the humidity and the rainfall can be increased by impounding the waters that have been allowed to go to waste, is a suggestion that may be taken up with profit to the citizens of this section. Another statement by Mr. Hatfield was to the effect that trees are great producers of humidity. Vegetation of all kinds acts an agent of this humidity and when the humidity is present, the rain is a result.

The Hatfields voluntarily gave up their contract and have acted square with the Chamber of Commerce and the citizens. They did not bring the rain, but they did not fail. In fact, they have demonstrated to a certainty that the rain can be secured if the humidity is present. They have called attention to the fact that West Texas has within its power to bring on a condition which will make rain more plentiful. It is up to West Texas now to accept the advice of these men who have studied these matters for the past fifteen years.

Western Kansas at one time was considered an arid waste. In those days rain was unheard of to any great extent. Nowadays that section of Kansas raises bumper crops and is considered one of the best agricultural sections. Why? Because the conditions in the air there have changed. Cultivation of the soil is the secret of the change in Western Kansas. This is the only solution of the problem there. The cultivation of the soil in that part of what had been called a desert, has made of it a flower garden instead of a trackless waste. It has changed the price of land from five to seven dollars an acre to one hundred and one hundred and twenty-five dollars an acre. It has changed the small villages into large towns and future cities. It has changed the farmer from the crop mortgage class to the automobile owning class.

This section has just as good prospects. This section can produce just as good crops, and even better. The land will be worth just as much money as is the land of Western Kansas. And West Texas does not need to wait as long as did that state, for the land here is more in demand, and given even half a chance, will produce even more abundantly than any of the land in Western Kansas. It is up to the people of West Texas to take the suggestions offered and get busy. Then this will truly be a promised land.—San Angelo Standard.

It hasn't rained in Brady for several days now.

Two things that invariably follow a rain are sunshine and the shoeshine.

A third of a million cubic feet of gas per day is encouraging news from the oil fields.

Menard has one advantage over Brady—the cemetery. The dead ones outnumber the living 1,000 to 1.

Business is so dog-gone rotten in Menard that even the fabric of their fish stories won't hold water.

Just about the time the water melon season closes we expect to walk up to the pie counter and help ourselves to a nice fat, juicy postoffice.

Rain will not be welcome in Brady until our several new business blocks and numerous residences, now in course of construction, have been roofed over.

It cost Wm. F. Ramsey $20,481.35 to learn that he couldn't be elected Governor, and Wolters bought experience to the tune of $15,000. This, dear reader, is the reason why we have never been defeated for either the Governorship or Senatorship.

Just because we have but three business houses in course of construction in Brady just at present, is no indication that business is dull in Brady. Just as soon as we can import more carpenters and brick masons we expect to have several more buildings under way.

Life in Menard may be compared with sparking a wealthy grass widow, while in Brady it is like being sought after by an old maid.—Menard Messenger.

If all the old maids in the world were as beautiful, charming and bewitching as are those of the free and untrammelled fair sex in Brady between the ages of 16 and 45, we would willingly live an hundred years and be sought after. None of the second-hand Menard article for us.

The San Angelo Record excoriates the Hatfield Brothers in a recent issue for their failure to make the rain fall in Concho land. The chief grievance of the Record is that the San An-

So far as the Hatfields are concerned, their efforts cost San Angelo not one cent of money, and of the two, the Hatfields seem to have purchased the largest amount of experience.

Tampering with trifles was not said in connection with rain-making.

BEAUTIFUL CALIFORNIA.

Misses Lois and Willie Duke Write Interestingly.

Berkley, Cal., July 29.
We have spent a month enjoying the refreshing climate of California. The ocean breeze is very delightful and bracing.

San Francisco is certainly a busy city. Being built on hills, it makes a beautiful picture at night when its streets are lighted.

To us one of the most picturesque sights is the Frisco bay at night. On crossing it going from Berkley to the city, looking ahead in the distance you can see the reflection of the lights on the water and the beautiful tower of the Ferry building all aglow. The most prominent feature of the building is the date "1915" which can be seen several miles away.

Many preparations are being made for the great Panama Exposition, and judging from the complete renovation of the burned district, which occurred six years ago, I am sure it will be a grand success.

There are many points of interest to be seen in and about the bay cities—among them being the Golden Gate we hear so much about, The Cliff House, beautiful parks and lovely flower gardens. Chinatown, of course, is always visited by the tourists.

The University of California, with its beautiful campus, situated in Berkley, is quite noted on account of its many beautiful buildings. The Greek theatre, which has a seating capacity of 5,000, is one of the most attractive of these buildings.

On the island of Alcatraz in the San Francisco bay is the Federal prison where the sailors are imprisoned for misconduct. Also Yuba Buena island, commonly called Goat island is of interest, for on it is situated the training school for sailors. You can see the wireless telegraph station on this island for quite a distance.

The Presidio should be mentioned, for one would naturally be interested in a place established to harbor those who protect our country.

There are so many things that could be mentioned that would be of interest, but we shall stop with these.

At the Blue Hole.

Judge Adkins left word with us Monday that henceforth Brady would know the Adkins family no more, at least not until after their return from the Blue Hole, where they expect to indulge in some great camping stunts during the next week. There were thirty-seven in the party which included in addition to the Adkins family, Misses Etie Adkins, Nita Wolf; Messrs. Lee Bodenhamer, Glen Brooks of Brownwood and Tom King. The task of providing food and shelter for this family did not appall the Judge in the least, but for fear the fish might be attending a camp meeting somewhere up-stream, he thoughtfully carried with him provisions and supplies sufficient to feed a small army.

WILL DRILL FOR OIL.

T. L. Sansom, Mercury, Found Good Flow at 124 Feet.

T. L. Sansom, a prosperous farmer of the Mercury country, is here today making arrangements for the purchase of casing with which he expects to case off a strong flow of water in order to test a flow of oil that was struck in his well at a depth of 124 feet. Mr. Sansom was boring for water about a year ago, and at this depth struck a nice flow of oil. He thought he could find more oil by going deeper and went down with the drill, but his calculations had been misplaced and instead of oil, he found artesian water. The water flow was so strong that the oil would not come into the well and time has gone on and the well was never tested for oil. Now that it is a little dull, he thinks he will just spend his time experimenting with the well. He is going to case off the water and see how strong the oil flow is. If it is sufficient to pay, he will sink another well and develop the oil field on his farm. He says he is not out trying to organize a stock company or anything of the kind, that he is only going to do a little experimenting on his own hook.—Brownwood Bulletin, July 25th.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded. Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kid- ney Pills do this.

It's the best proof, for it comes from this vicinity.

Mrs. Mary E. Bourland, 1513 First street, Brownwood, Texas, says: "I received great benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills, and therefore recommend them.

About four years ago, while doing my household duties, I was suddenly seized with severe pains in my back which laid me up for two days. I was so bad that I could not move in bed and had to call for help when turning to another position. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I obtained a box and began their use. After I had taken half the box, the pains in my back left me and I have had no return at- tack since. My health has been improved in general. I consider this remedy a good tonic for the entire system."

MUSICAL COMEDY CO.

Feature Attraction for Airdome All Next Week.

Tomorrow night closes the second week's engagement of the DeRoame Stock company at the Lyric-Airdome this season, and despite the fact that the company is considerably changed by the addition of new play- ers since their first coming a few weeks ago, they have lost none of their popularity with the Brady folks by the change, and their performances each night have met with words of praise and complimentary re- marks upon all sides. As usual Mr. DeRoame captivates his audi- ences with his naive interpre- tations of his lines and to quote one admirer's expression, "he is the whole show". However this remark is not to be taken too literally, for he is supported by a cast of clever artists each of whom is essential to the success of the play and each one carry- ing out his part in faultless style.

Tonight the Airdome will, no doubt, be packed, the company having announced their feature bill, Marie Corelli's "Worm- wood". All who have read any of Miss Corelli's works, and more especially that of "Worm- wood", know the strength of her writings, and in presenting this play tonight, the DeRoame com- pany has undertaken a task the carrying out of which would re- flect credit upon the strongest of theatrical troupes, yet no one doubts for a minute their ability to successfully present the play.

For next week Manager Levy announces the coming of the Cannon Musical Comedy com- pany. This company comes high- ly recommended as one of the best out this season. There are sixteen members in the com- pany and they carry their own mu- sic. They will present an un- usually entertaining program all next week with complete change of play and wardrobe each night. Everyone enjoys a good musical comedy and that is what the Cannon Musical Comedy company will present.

As part of the purchase money agreed to be paid by defendant, D. H. Miller, to plaintiff, the defendant, D. H. Miller, executed and delivered to plaintiff three certain vendor's lien notes for the sum of $83.33 each, all dated October 19, 1910, one due on or before January 1st of each and every year for years 1912, 1913 and 1914, all said notes providing for interest from date at the rate of ten per cent per annum, the interest payable Jan. 1, 1912, and annually thereafter, and providing that all past due interest shall bear interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and all providing that the failure to pay any one of said notes or any installment of interest thereon when due shall at the election of the holder of said notes, or any of them, mature all of said notes, and thereby all said notes shall at once become due and payable and the vendors lien retained to secure payment of said notes shall become subject to foreclosure proceedings, all as vendor may elect; and said notes also provide that if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, or if collected by suit, that the obligator is to pay ten per cent additional on the principal, and take out as attorney's fees. A vendors lien was retained in said deed and said notes on said land and premises to secure payment of said notes. If said notes were signed by defendant, D. H. Miller, and are payable to E. E. Willoughby or order at Brady, Texas. Said note due on or before January 1st, 1912, is note No. 1 in the series of notes given by defendant to plaintiff for said land, and is in words and figures substantially as follows, to-wit:

To. I. $83.33. First 19, 1910. On or before January 1st, 1912, after date, I, we or either of us, jointly and severally, waiving grace and protest, promise to pay to E. E. Willoughby or order, the sum of Eighty-three and 33-100 Dollars with interest thereon from date until paid at the rate of 10 per centum per annum, the interest payable on the 1st day of January, 1912, and annually thereafter on that date of each year, as it accrues, both principal and interest payable at Brady, Texas.

This note is given in part payment of a certain lot or parcel of land situated in McCulloch county, Texas, and being part of W. P. Beebe School Section 264, Abstract 1616, Certificate 33-3338, patented to E. E. Willoughby by Patent No. 481, Vol. 18, this day conveyed to D. H. Miller by E. E. Willoughby to secure the payment of which a vendors lien is retained in said conveyance and is hereby acknowledged, which conveyance is here referred to and made part hereof for description of land sold and for terms and conditions of the sale, and it is agreed that the stipulations in this note are part of the terms and conditions of said sale; all past due principal and interest to bear interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum from date when due.

It is understood and agreed that failure to pay this note or any installment of interest thereon when due, or to pay any other obligation given or assumed as part purchase money of said land or any installment of interest thereon when due, shall, at the election of the holder of them, or any of them, mature all notes and other obligations given or assumed as part payment of said property.

And it is hereby specially agreed, that if this note is placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, or if collected by suit or in probate or bankruptcy proceedings, I, we or either of us agree to pay 10 per cent additional on the principal and interest due, as attorney's fees. D. H. Miller.

Said note due on or before January 1st, 1913, is note No. 2 of said series of notes and is in words and figures substantially the same as Note No. 1, except said note No. 2 is due on or before January 1st, 1913. Said note due on or before January 1st, 1914, is note No. 3 in said series of notes, and is in words and figures substantially the same as said Note No. 1 above set out, except said Note No. 3 is due on or before January 1st, 1914.

Plaintiff is now the legal and equitable owner of said notes, and on January 1st, 1912, Note No. 1 and interest on all said notes from their date to January 1st, 1912, was due and payable, but the defendant failed and refused to pay said Note No. 1 when it was so due or to pay the interest on any of said notes at said date when it was due or at any time since then, and he still fails and refuses to pay said Note No. 1 or any part thereof or any of said interest, and plaintiff elected and declared all said notes due on account of such failure to pay said notes and interest, and has placed said notes in the hands of F. M. Newman and Sam McCollum, attorneys, for collection and has agreed to pay said attorneys the ten per cent on principal and interest provided for in said notes as attorney's fees. And which said ten per cent attorney's fees is a reasonable fee in this case.

Wherefore plaintiff prays that defendant be cited to appear and answer this petition and that plaintiff have judgment for the amount of principal, interest and attorney's fees provided for in said notes and that he have judgment foreclosing plaintiff's lien on above described land and premises and that the land be decreed to be sold according to law to satisfy the judgment rendered on said notes, and that plaintiff have such other and further relief, both general and special, to which he may be entitled in law and in equity.

Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court, at office in Brady, Texas, this 8th day of July A. D. 1912.

To My Friends in McCulloch Co.

I should be indeed lacking in gratitude if I failed to thank my good friends in Brady and all over McCulloch county for their loyal support in the race for the nomination as state representative just closed. Although defeated by a small majority, I take pride in the fact that in the places where my opponent and myself were known best, I ran the best.

I do not feel myself the loser, even though defeated, when I consider the many warm friends that I made over the district. I shall never forget your kindness and especially gratifying to me was the stinging rebuke which the people of Brady gave to those local politicians, who stooped to false personal attacks in an attempt to discredit me because I did not believe in some of the things they profess to believe in. To those who helped and defended me, your kindness will be forever inscribed upon the tablets of my love and memory. I had rather be defeated with your indorsement, and the endorsement of those who have known me from childhood than to be elected by the votes of men who were strangers to my real character.

Especially am I grateful to the young men of Brady who made such a fight for clean politics and fair play. I am proud of the fact that under great provocation you did not stoop to personal attacks upon my opponent. More than the blow to my personal ambition is my sorrow that your gallant efforts should have been in vain.

Again, I thank all my supporters for their generous assistance. If you are ever in San Saba, look me up.

COMMERCIAL CORNER By the Secretary.

Last week we had something to say in regard to the work now being done by the secretaries of the state in getting funds to assist the producers in securing better prices for the king of staples. The work being done by these men is purely an unselfish labor. No special compensation or graft in sight for them. However, whatever will benefit the producer will be of help to all.

There are a great army of fellows now in the South planning and scheming ostensibly for the eternal welfare of the farmers in order to help him put his cotton on the market at very satisfactory prices. Some of these men are offering great inducements, provided we pay them for their plans, etc. It is almost amusing that these schemes are called "non-taxable" and "non-assessable" shares but they promise to bring immediate profits. But these are not new things. There are all ways lots of men looking for fortunes from the labors of producers and showing plans where we can double our profits and find ready sales for our staple products.

About the best way to secure satisfactory prices is not to crowd the market—that is, hold in some legal way whatever surplus there may be and thereby supply only the calls of the market. So far as securing just one price for any staple is next to the impossible. Supply and demand are the two great dictators in the marts of the commercial world. They rule as universal monarchs and there is no appeal from them.

If the farmers unions and the business men's associations continue to get on the track of the bears in the marts of the commercial world, they may run him so hard a race that the fellows who push prices up may have an easier time in the future. But business problems must be solved in a business way and we are of the opinion that this is now being done for the first time.

AN ORDINANCE.

Be it ordained by the city council of the City of Brady that Article 4 of the Criminal Ordinances of the City of Brady be, and the same is hereby amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

Art. 4.—Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Brady that it shall hereafter be unlawful for any person owning or having in their possession and control, a lot or lots or a part of a lot within the corporate limits of this city to permit to be carried on upon the same any trade, business or occupation which is injurious to the health of those who reside in the vicinity thereof, or to suffer any substance which shall have that effect or which is injurious to the public health to remain on said lot or lots or to permit weeds or shrubbery of any kind to grow or be deposited on said lot or lots; except garden vegetables, flowers, fruit trees, vines and ornamental trees; and provided that all such owners, occupants or person in charge of such premises shall be required to keep the sidewalks adjacent to said lot or lots free from weeds and shrubbery above referred to, and provided further that 10 feet shall be considered the width of sidewalks on streets sixty feet wide and eight feet shall be considered the width of sidewalks on streets 50 feet wide, and any person, after receiving notice from the city health officer to remove the same on notice from the city marshal, by order of the city council to remove the same, who shall fail or refuse to do so, or who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one dollar nor more than twenty-five dollars, and each day such person shall fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this ordinance, after receiving notice as aforesaid, shall constitute a separate offense.

The importance and necessity of the immediate passage of this ordinance creates an emergency and an imperative public necessity that the constitutional rule requiring ordinances to be read on three several days be suspended, and said rule is therefore suspended, and this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed and approved this 6th day of August, 1912. F. M. RICHARDS, Mayor. Attest:—S. M. Richardson, Sec.

GALLAN CONCOCTIONS FOR MAGNIFICENT MENARD

From the Messenger.

Only seven months until a saved country feels the blessed influence of the honest party. We can almost see the playing fountains and upholstered seats that will be placed in the great lobby of each postoffice, where the patron will sit under a buzz fan until the postmaster brings his mail.

The defeated candidates need not think the country is so bad. The people, as a whole, are all right, but the blame fools are just slow to recognize genius.

We are sorry, Jake, that you are not going to the senate, but you are not by yourself. We are not going either.

Mrs. John E. Brown came over from Brady Wednesday.

Julian Davis of Miserable Brady enjoyed a day in Menard this week.

The Hatfields bagged some large game at San Angelo in the way of experience. They were absolutely confident of success, but it takes more than confidence to produce rain in this country.

The leap year is still slipping by and the old maid market in Brady is still glutted. Their only hope now is for the Democratic administration to pass a law forcing the republicans to marry them or be burned at the stake. Of course, most of them would prefer the latter, but once in a while would appear a hero willing to live on in the slow torture prescribed.

The Trials of a Traveler.

"I am a traveling salesman," writes E. E. Youngs, E. Berkshire, Vt., "and was often troubled with constipation and indigestion till I began to use Dr. King's New Life Pills, which I have found an excellent remedy." For all stomach, liver or kidney troubles they are unequalled. Only 25c at Jones Drug Co.

CHARCOAL.

When Sap is Down Will Save Trees.

Of the many theories that have been advanced during the tree-saving campaign, the most unique one is offered by W. L. Fuller, a prominent Fort Worth real estate and fire insurance man.

Mr. Fuller's idea, which he says is not original, is to drive nails into the trees when the sap is down.

About five years ago while visiting in North Texas, Mr. Fuller says that he noticed as he was waiting for his train, a tree that was so perfect in its beauty he was inspired to ask the owner what he did for the tree to make it grow so well.

He was told that the tree had been planted some years before. A friend had suggested that in order to stop the web worms, a dozen nails be driven into the body of the tree while the sap was down. Following the advice he saved the life of the tree.

Mr. Fuller declares that he has tried the same method successfully with the shade trees he owns and found that the farmer's advice was especially valuable in the case of the pests that infest the hackberry tree.

Mr. Fuller says that he is not prepared to declare that the nails have the means of saving his trees, but he is sure that they have prospered much better since he has been driving the nails into the trees in the winter time, and he is inclined to believe that the remedy is a good one.—Fort Worth Record.
