Can You Beat It?

As a beet raiser Marshall Rankin is hard to beat. During his spare moments Marshall devotes his attention to agricultural pursuits, and although somewhat of a novice at the business, the success he has made at raising beets is worthy of one who has given the subject much time and attention. He was exhibiting a sample from his garden Wednesday in the shape of a monster beet. The vegetable measured 19 1-2 inches in length, 17 inches in circumference, and tipped the scales at exactly eight pounds. The beet was raised at Mr. Rankin's residence on South Blackburn street and he states that his garden contains many others almost, if not entirely, as large as the one he was showing Wednesday.

CLOSES DEALS

McCulloch County Real Estate Exchange Reports Sales

Manager R. D. Dyer of the McCulloch County Real Estate Exchange returned the first of the week from a trip to Brownwood and San Angelo, and reported the closing up of two deals last week.

A well improved 1,000-acre ranch two miles south of Junction was sold to N. G. Graves of San Angelo for a consideration of $12,500 cash. This is one of the best small ranches in Kimble county, and will be stocked with high-grade cattle by the new owner.

Mr. Dyer also sold a stock of general merchandise at Brooksmith to John Martin of Brownwood. The stock invoiced $8,800.

Mr. Dyer left again Tuesday afternoon for San Angelo in connection with another large ranch deal which he expects to be able to close up within the next few days.

Some Turnip.

J. M. Johnson, who lives a few miles north of the city, has demonstrated the fact that when it comes to producing turnips this McCulloch county soil is "some punkins."

A few weeks ago Mr. Johnson planted a small patch in turnips, using only 5c worth of seed. From this patch he has sold $10 or $12 worth of turnips and states that he has at least forty bushels yet to be marketed.

He presented the editor of The Standard with an extra large one Tuesday, weighing two pounds and ten ounces.

BOOTLEGGER JAILED

Caught by Sheriff Wall Tuesday Night After Two Sales Made

J. K. Plumlee was arrested here Tuesday night by Sheriff J. C. Wall and Deputy John Martin and lodged in the county jail on a charge of bootlegging.

According to evidence secured by the sheriff's department, Plumlee, who has been employed on the farm of J. L. Smith, near Lohn, as a cotton picker, came in on the train Tuesday night from Menard. He had a suit case loaded with booze, as well as a fairly good load himself when he alighted from the train and made his way up town. He first visited the gins and offered his wares and finally succeeded in disposing of two quarts—one of them to a minor. He then came to the square and visited one of the pool halls in search of customers, and in his rounds ran afoul of the high sheriff. The sheriff refused to buy, but did not fail to investigate the contents of the suitcase, and then very promptly announced to the young man that he would take charge of both he and his stock of goods. And he did—placing both under lock and key—but in different places, however.

Under the present law, the second sale makes the offense a felony, and the young man is now facing a term in prison as a culmination of his ambition to become a wet goods merchant. His examining trial has been set for tomorrow before Justice of the Peace T. J. King.

There is a pathetic side to the story of this young man's troubles, however, and there are some innocent ones who must suffer also for the misdeeds of the husband and father. A wife and several small children were left in a camp on the Smith farm, where few comforts were afforded them by the derelict one when he came to town the first of the week, after having been paid $25 Saturday night by Mr. Smith. The mother was unable to work on account of having to care for her small children, and when the father was jailed they were left without resources and in a strange land.

When searched at the jail $13.40 in money was found in Plumlee's pockets. This sum was turned over to a son of Mr. Smith's who came in Wednesday to talk to the prisoner by request of Plumlee's wife. Enough was added by Messrs. Smith and Cox to bring the total up to $25 and this was given Mrs. Plumlee, so that she might return to the home of her mother at Malakoff, from which place the family came to Lohn several weeks ago.

A Merited Honor

County Superintendent E. L. White has received notice from State Superintendent W. F. Doughty of his appointment to a place on the program of the meeting of the State Teachers' association, which convenes in San Antonio on the 26th, 27th and 28th of this month.

The subject assigned Mr. White is "What Should Rural Children Study?" Since his election, almost two years ago, Mr. White has been a zealous and untiring worker for the rural schools of the county, and the result of his efforts in this direction has brought him prominently to the notice of the foremost educators of the state. The subject assigned him at the San Antonio meeting is one to which he has given much time and thought, and one on which he is thoroughly qualified to speak.

His number appears on the program for the second day of the meeting.

Alleged Causes of Pellagra.

The Beaumont Enterprise says: "Roman scientists have published result of an investigation into the cause of pellagra which proves that the disease is not caused by eating a corn diet, as was long supposed, but by drinking water that has come into contact with a clay soil containing silicic acid. It has been shown that the eating of corn or corn products has nothing to do with the disease. When the theory was first advanced, several years ago, that pellagra was caused by eating a diet composed largely of corn products, considerable injury was done to the corn industry and investigators at once set to work finding the causes of other disease in the eating of other cereals. It was alleged that certain diseases were caused by eating polished rice, by eating buckwheat, by eating rye and other cereals. All those theories have been exploded either wholly or in part.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try It! Your Hair Gets Soft, Fluffy and Luxuriant at Once

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as direct-

MONSTER INDUSTRY

Statistics on Livestock Receipts At Ft. Worth

Ft. Worth, Tex., Nov. 11.—A report issued today by the local stockyards company shows very plainly that the livestock receipts on the Ft. Worth yards during October have not slumped one iota, but, on the contrary, have made a substantial gain, compared with the number of head received for the same period of 1913. The report shows that 204,326 head of livestock were received here during October of this year as against 169,499 head for the same month of last year. Hogs manifested the highest increase, there being 54,389 head last month as compared with 36,616 head for October, 1913.

According to the stock yards company, 100,269 head of cattle were unloaded on the local yards during October, while only 84,637 head of the same class were recorded during the same period of last year. Calves, horses and mules also made big gains over the October, 1913, receipts.

The sheep receipts were the only class of livestock which showed a decrease during October compared with the same month for 1913, and this falling off was largely due to the sheepmen holding their stuff until later in the fall when better prices prevail. The remainder of the receipts were divided as follows:

Calves, 25,244 head.
Horses and mules 8,838 head.

From January 1st, 1914, up to November 1st there has been received on the Ft. Worth yards 781,364 head of livestock.

Fire Prevention

Electricity is a wonderful thing. It is a trinity of mysteries. It has light, it has power, it has heat. When properly confined it is man's servant; it is woman's labor saver.

But familiarity with electricity breeds danger. It provides fuel for the fire demon. It works in a wonderful way. A careful inspection of wiring today may save a cankering regret tomorrow.

There is no light of prosperity, no power to undo, no heat to make the heart glow in the ruins of a home.

Is your house wired properly? Has time corroded the insulation that confines this wonderful fluid in the little copper wires? Don't suppose so — do you know it?

If the wiring in your residence is not properly inspected you may pay out the savings of a life time as a result. Play safe.—S. W. English, State Fire Marshal, Austin.

GOOD NEWS.

Many Brady Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of back sufferers in this vicinity are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands upon thousands of people are telling the good news of their experience with this tested remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

J. Walsh, engineer, 702 Rogan St., Brownwood, Texas, says: "Years ago, I suffered from pain and weakness in the small of my back and a constant feeling of languor. I steadily grew worse until I had to stop work. I had little energy and there was often a complete retention of kidney secretions. I had rheumatic pains in my limbs and continued to run down until I was a wreck. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a supply. After I had taken two boxes, I noticed improvement. I continued using this remedy until my back was strengthened and my kidneys had become normal. I have had no sign of kidney complaint since."

HOW CITIES ARE MADE

A station is a point on any railroad where there is a cinder platform on one side of the track and an elevator on the other. The inhabitant of the station operates the platform twice a day and the elevator for three months in the year. The remainder of his time is spent in an effort to make a living for his family. It requires only two generations and continued good crops to attract a general store, newspaper and a cemetery. The opera house, church, school and politician follow in their order, after which the station has only to await the next census enumeration to get on the map in lower case letters and be referred to in the marginal index as a village. The village stage in municipal life is that era in which the post office box numbers do not run higher than 275 and while the residents point out a telephone pole with more than one cross-arm as evidence of their right to recognition in the commercial world. Another 20 years, void of cyclones and conflagrations, generally develop such a feeling of unrest that something more than matrimonial ties is needed to hold the population together and keep the municipal metamorphosis headed in the right direction. The village board then meets and orders a city charter and the destiny of the city is placed in the hands of its first mayor. This dignitary either starts a "reform" of some kind and kills the town forever, or he inaugurates an annual chautauqua, encourages clean sports, harmless amusements and even perhaps permits Sunday base ball, all to keep the young fellows interested in their new city and then he sits back and sees the town grow faster than a politician's appetite for office.

ORGANIZED GOOD-WILL

Who can prescribe the limits of the usefulness of the farmer's clubs? They mirror the new time in which we live and out of a jealous, suspicious, narrow, selfish past there grows a new order of neighborhood kindness, courtesy and good-will. The Jackson Farmer's Club near Duluth, Minn., has bought, as an organization, four and a half acres of land near a school house, and the club which was organized primarily for co-operative marketing will extend its usefulness as a social factor. A ball ground is to be a feature of the Jackson Club Park with a children's play ground, swings and simple equipment. A permanent building will be erected

OLD-FASHIONED MOTHERS.

Thank God some of us have an old-fashioned mother. Not a woman of the period, painted and enameled, with all her society manners and fine dresses, white jeweled hands that never felt the clasp of baby fingers, but a dear, old-fashioned mother with a sweet voice, eyes into whose clear depth the love light shone, and brown hair just threaded with silver, lying smooth upon her faded cheek. The hands, worn with toil, gently guided our steps in childhood and smoothed our cheeks in sickness, ever reaching out to us in yearning tenderness. Blessed is the memory of an old-fashioned mother. It floats to us like the beautiful perfume of some wood blossoms. The music of other voices may be lost, but the enchanting memory of her's will echo in our soul forever.

Notice to Hunters: Be sure your gun is properly loaded by frequently looking down the barrel. In crossing fences go through first, drag your gun behind with the muzzle pointed directly over the left breast. If a shell fails to explode, get a hammer and investigate. If you stop to rest place the muzzle of your gun on the right foot when standing or beneath the chin when sitting. Whether the gun is loaded or not will make no difference to the doctor, the coroner, the undertaker or the preacher.—Ex.

Adventure With Rattle

Our correspondent Owl Creek furnishes us at that for remarkable passes anything that we have ever read and impresses us that indeed truth is stranger than fiction.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner of that community went to the field one day last week to pick cotton. Mrs. Turner commenced picking while Mr. Turner went further on to some turn rows alongside some stubble. Soon he heard his wife screaming for him to come to her. Responding promptly on reaching her he found her on her knees on the cotton sack grappling with a large rattlesnake—it having ten rattles. The snake had made its way between her skirts and had reached her waist-line before it was discovered. Dropping on her knees and holding it tight, she prevented it biting her. About six or eight inches of the snake was exposed. Turner put his hand on the body of the snake and cautiously moved it up until he reached his head, then he seized it with a death grip about the neck, the snake began to rattle and coiled many times about his arm, but he held on to it and freed Mrs. Turner from a position in which the least slip must have meant her death and perhaps his, too. Being released, Mrs. Turner gathered some large rocks, these being placed close at hand, Mr. Turner freed his arm and threw the snake from him in a partially dazed condition and proceeded to kill it. Mr. and Mrs. Turner have been receiving congratulations of neighbors and friends on their wonderful presence of mind under most critical circumstances; and for both to have escaped without either being bitten is regarded as almost a miracle.—Gatesville Messenger.

Fight on Sugar Trust Suggested

Washington, Nov. 12. — The beet sugar factories throughout the country are facing a peculiar situation. After working at full capacity to meet a supposed demand for high-priced sugar, they find that there is no such demand. Although the sugar is offered at six cents per pound, wholesale, sales are slow. The jobbers and wholesalers, it seems, stocked up heavily when the war broke out and, with warehouses loaded to the rafters, they are not eager to put more money into the product. So the sugar is going begging at six cents. How long this condition will last is a question. The consumer, however, as long as he uses the usual quantity of sugar, may rest assured that he will not profit. The retail price of sugar has been advanced to about eight cents a pound, and it is likely that it will be kept there, indefinitely. The old "law" of supply and demand appears to have been repealed in this century. The only way to touch the speculator is through the pocket. A tack of demand, or a falling off in demand is likely to result in a reduction in price, for the jobbers will not care to carry big stocks that are slow sales. Therefore, if every American would cut down his allowance of sugar, just a trifle, we would see the prices tumbling in a few weeks. One spoonful or one lump, instead of two in your coffee every morning for a month would result in a return to five-cent sugar before Christmas.

were all robed in their ghostly costumes. All were trying to guess who the others were. After a while part were lined up on one side of the porch and the others on another side, and were marched into the room, following in double file. After they had guessed their partners they unmasked and went to a little room, where at an old witch, their fortunes were told.

Next a "dumb" cake was made. Each had to put in some of the ingredients and help mix it without saying anything. After the cake was cooked each one had to take a piece, but no one could eat it on account of the peculiar ingredients used. The witches then unmasked. Music and various games furnished pleasure and amusement for the remainder of the evening.

Refreshments of red herring, potatoes, doughnuts, sandwiches, cake, nuts and tea were served to the following: Misses Jenny and Jewel Westbrook, Mattie Huey, Bernice Bell, Eth-

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months.

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

TOM'S MOTHER'S VIEW

By JEAN SHEAR.

"Why, didn't you get an announcement of Tom's wedding?" exclaimed Tom's mother, in amazement. "Well, that just goes to show how you've got to take care of things yourself! I sent a list of friends to Susie's mother and asked her to be sure to mail announcements to them—and yours was one of the first names on it!"

"Well, anyway, Tom's married, and you don't know how relieved I am! He's got a lovely wife, which is a wonder!"

"I hope my other son will be less popular. Why, Tom had no peace whatever! The telephone rang until my ears ached, and I threatened to take it out because it was never used by any one except Tom—he was at it constantly!"

"There was Isabel. She deliberately set out to catch him. Any one could tell it. She phoned him and invited him out there and fussed over him until in sheer desperation he proposed to her. Then, of course, the poor boy had a time breaking off!"

"Then Clara deliberately forced him to propose. I know she did, for you can't tell me that Tom of his own accord would have become engaged to her just a week after he and Isabel broke off!"

"Tom, poor boy, is so absurdly tender-hearted. He can't bear for any one to feel badly, and you know how girls can act when they want a man's sympathy!"

"So it just served her good and right when he met Sally and liked her better than Clara. Of course, Clara made a fuss, and I almost wondered if she'd cause Tom trouble, but she knew in her heart that she'd no right making him propose to her, so she retired as gracefully as she could. But I felt rather sorry for her, for she seemed really fond of my boy Tom!"

"Sally and Tom seemed suited to each other, but I didn't like her very much. She was the languid sort, and if I had to have a daughter-in-law I did want one I could take comfort in. I hate the clinging vines, so I talked to Tom about it all I could. Of course, I praised her as much as I could manage and did not let him hear of anything but Sally when he was at home. And, of course, when he was with her she didn't nearly come up to what I'd said of her and he naturally began to notice her defects.

"Especially after Mrs. Burk's niece came to town. Being next door, Tom saw a good deal of her. Sally was spunky and objected to his taking Trixie around. I told him it was a warning, for nothing's worse than a jealous wife! So he told Sally they'd better break off. He was just as nice about it as he could be—but she wailed and wept, for she was sure of a good home, you see, with him. But he was firm and that was ended and I was considerably relieved!"

"Even then the girls couldn't leave the poor boy in peace! Truly, I almost lose track! When Trixie found he had broken with Sally she put in her best looks, and she had his ring in less than two weeks! What do you think of that for forwardness in a girl? I wouldn't have her in the family! There'd be nothing she'd stop at!"

"But she didn't last long. Tom realized what she was and he wrote her that he found they weren't suited and she'd best forget him. She was popular, as they always are, so she was more than willing to pick up with some other man—for she kept Tom's ring, and the more rings she'd get, you see! Tom's generous and wouldn't make a fuss for it, though I advised him to get back the ring.

"Tom had met Susie at a party just before he met Trixie. He hadn't been much impressed at first, for she was quiet and not so forward as most girls. But he met her again a few days later just before he broke off with Trixie—and I guess he proposed to her right away!"

"Well, she hung on to him and set an early wedding date and she captured him, all right."

"I'm so glad it's over! He just couldn't refuse anyone anything, if it was in his power, but now girls will leave him alone, I suppose, and he'll live in peace."

"They'll be happy. Oh, yes, Tom has such a loyal nature and I'm proud of him! But aren't girls queer?"—Chicago Daily News.

A Suggestion.

The retailer stopped one of his oldest customers on the street.

"I want to speak to you," he began.

"Go ahead and see if I care."

"You've got to care. This bill of yours has been running a long time now."

"Poor thing! How can you be so cruel as to let it run a long time?"

"Well, what are you going to do with it?"

"I'm going to make you a suggestion. If that bill has been running for as long as you say it has, give it a rest. Let it stand for a month or two."

Influence of Clothes.

He—Did you ever observe what a difference clothes make on one's mind? Now, when I am in my riding togs I'm all horse; when I have on my business suit my mind's full of business; when I get into my evening dress my mind takes a purely social turn."

She—And I suppose that when you take a bath your mind's an utter blank?—Stray Stories.

Flirting With Fame.

"Why do you insist on nibbling around that hook?" said the wise fish.

"You know the danger."

"Yes," replied the little fellow; "but we all have a certain appetite for glory. I am willing to take a chance for the sake of being described to that man's friends as the big fish that got away."

WELL NAMED.

She—Do you notice that Lord De Broke calls Miss Milyuna, to whom he's engaged, "My Subby?"

He—Yes; I suppose he means "sub-treasury."

Didn't Live Long.

Day and night
He sought fresh air;
That's his grave
In the corner there.

A Bit Radical.

"It seems to me that Mrs. Waggon is inclined to go too far in her demand for woman's rights."

"She does seem a bit radical."

"I heard say, the other day, that she would never be satisfied until the word 'patriot' had become obsolete and 'matriot' had taken its place."

Doing Something.

"Say, John, our calf isn't any better. Isn't there anything we could do till the vet comes?"

"Well, there are two powders left that the doctor gave Tommie for the measles. Let's try those."—Flegende Blaetter.

Well Satisfied.

Biffers—Buncom is a self made man, isn't he?

Wiffers—Yes. What made you think so?

Biffers—He seems to be so well satisfied with the job.

Oh, You Revolving Door!

Attendant (as lady comes around the eighth time)—This ain't no merry-go-round, lady!

Lady—I know; but I can't remember whether I was going in or coming out.—Judge.

Movable Boundaries.

"Didn't you buy a lot at Prune Beach?"

"Yes."

"How deep is it?"

"About 150 feet at low water, 100 feet at high water."

A Sad Loss.

"I am lost!"

"How so?"

"The man with whom I expected to get a good job, wants me to find myself."

LIGHT OF THE CANDLES

By JEAN INCL'S.

The magic light of the unshaded wax candles lay on the white robed table. They were placed in a dozen sticks of old silver, and burned low and stingly, and their pure glimmer and the lilies which stood in silver vases, gave an air of holy mystery to this very worldly entertainment.

Marion Lamont turned to the man on her left. He was speaking.

"I feel like a nun," he said. "It isn't too white for you?" he added.

"Oh, no," said she.

"It chills me," he said. "I like red shades and a heap of roses."

This wouldn't be bad at a hunt dinner with the men in pink, but tonight it's unearthly. There is only one man here who doesn't look a florid sinner."

She followed his eyes down the table, and they indicated a man of about thirty, whose profile alone was visible to them.

"He is very handsome," said Marion.

"I suppose," he said, "your soul is just like that—a glimmering whiteness, with here and there your good works burning like little candles."

Marion laughed. "And you want me to believe," said she, "that yours is as completely black?"

"No," said he, "not black—only scarlet. And, after all, I would rather you believe nothing at all about me."

"Why?" asked Marion.

"Well," said he, "you are a debutante, and your illusions must not be shattered."

"If they are false?" she asked.

"Illusions are no more false than anything else," said he. "Miss Lamont, you remind me very much of a friend of mine. I haven't seen him for six years until today. There wasn't an illusion he didn't enshrine in the lofty temple of his thoughts. When he was eighteen he was happy burning incense before his ideals that he wasn't good for much else. The next year a friend went back on him—forgot his name, and disappeared."

"He foreswore friendship, took up philanthropy, and went to work in a mission church, where he fell in love with one of the girls in the choir. Her mother kept a shop, but what did it matter? Not a bit to my friend. It brought about a quarrel with his father, though, who disinherited him and died. You can guess that the relatives kept the money and turned up their noses at the little saleslady. By this time most of my friend's illusions were gone. Experience is an iconoclast. The temple had been desecrated, and the sacred images had been thrown down. There was only one shrine left, and here he had placed a little golden figure of a saint. It was love he worshipped, and with that left he scarcely seemed to miss friends or father, money or position. After all, a chapel does as well to pray in as a cathedral. He was perfectly happy till his pretty chorister went on the stage, took a boy's part in a comic opera, and married the tenor."

"He should have been glad to have escaped," said Marion.

"I don't think he took that view. It wasn't that he regretted her; but you see, Miss Lamont, she had stolen his golden saint. For the hundredth time I congratulated myself that my mental bric-a-brac was inferior and dispensable. There was my friend with a long life before him and no taste for living. I think he would have ended it, only he has a great deal of persistency, hates to beg off, wants to carry out what he begins. So he pulled himself together, looked out for hard things to do, made life an intellectual gymnasium, cultivated a distaste for women, studied Russian, and buried himself in Siberia for six years."

"There," he said, "you have the history of the man with the lost ideal."

She looked at him rather strangely. "Is that all?" she asked.

"Not quite," he answered. "I met him again today, and I find that once more the altar is illumined and the service going on as before. Some one has restored his golden image."

"Why," said Marion, "that is the best part of the story."

There was a quiver in her voice, and a brightness like tears on her lower lids. She was looking down the table at the man they had noticed before, and his eyes were fixed on her face, adoringly.

"The candles are alight on the altar," said Marion's friend.

He asked: "Then you know him?"

"Yes," she said. "We are engaged to be married. We met last summer in St. Petersburg."

Re-Crossed Old Trail in Auto
Bunceton, Mo., Nov. 9.—In 1852 U. D. Stephens, of this place journeyed across the continent in a prairie schooner.

It took just 100 days for the oxen to haul the slowly moving wagon. Recently this old gentleman had the pleasure of going over the same route in an automobile driven by his son, J. D. Stephens of Woodland, Calif. Just fourteen days elapsed from the time the engine started in Woodland until the machine was brought to a stop at the doorstep of the old homestead in Bunceton.

Larger Than Expected
Beaumont, Texas, Nov. 9.—Local rice planters have been notified that the United States department of agriculture has revised its estimate, made a month ago, of the Texas rice yield for 1914 and the new figures place the production at 8,330,000 bushels, which exceeds the previous prediction by 10,000 bushels.

OWE MY HEALTH to Peruna

I was Gradually Breaking Down From Confinement to Store.
Mr. C. N. Petersen, dealer in fine boots, shoes and cigars, No. 132 South Main St., Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I cannot tell you how much good Peruna has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies prescribed by my physician, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peruna. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health. I have been in the best of spirits since, and feel that I owe my health to it."

Catch Cold Easily.
Mr. Arthur G. Peterson, R. F. D. 21, Box 21, Omro, Wisconsin. He was in the habit of catching cold easily. He says: "It has been seven months now since I have taken any Peruna and I haven't felt the least touch of cold since, and I am positive that I am now rid of the tendency to catch cold. Peruna is a wonderful remedy." Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

COTTON GINNINGS
Show Increase of More Than Forty-Three Per Cent

According to the report of Dimmitt Wood, cotton statistician of McCulloch county, to the federal department of agriculture, the number of bales of cotton ginned in the county to the 18th of October reached a total of 17,045. Ginnings in the county to the same date last year were 11,888 bales.

The first report of the present season issued the 1st of September showed a total of only 49 bales ginned in the county, while the ginnings of the preceding year to the same date were 1166.

The number of bales ginned this season show an increase of a little more than 45 per cent over that of 1913.

Texas Ranks Eighth
Grand Saline, Tex., Nov. 11.—The United States Geological Survey has just issued a report showing the 1913 salt production of Texas. The yield that year was 49,774 tons, valued at $278,000 or an average of $5.59 per ton. Texas now ranks eighth with other states in quantity of salt produced and the quality of the product mined in this state compares favorably with that of any other state or county.

Only two counties in Texas produce salt. They are Van Zandt and Anderson.

AN EYE ON THE MAIN CHANCE

"And what, my dear boy," asked the minister, "do you intend to do when you grow up?"
"A farmer, sir."
"Very good indeed—to supply the natural food—most good."
"And you?" turning to the second.
"Please, sir, a schoolmaster."
"Even better. Filling the mind of the rising generation with mental food—yes, even better."
"And you?" turning to the third.
"A preacher, sir."
"The best of all, my dear little boy; for filling the soul with spiritual food is far worthier than either filling the mind or body. And why do you wish to become a minister?"
"Cos we always have duck for dinner when the parson comes," replied the boy.

A Pretext.
"Yes," said the determined looking woman; "I might manage to hand you a bite to eat if you'll saw and chop a good pile of stove wood and bring in a few buckets of water and chop the weeds out of the garden and fix up the fence."
"Lady," replied Meandering Mike, "I'm only a hungry wayfarer; I ain't yer husband."

THOUGHT TOO MUCH.
Tompkins—Your wife seems to be a very thoughtful woman.
Thompson—She is. She thinks all kinds of things if I happen to be out late.

Took Too Much.
A very doleful case, alas—
He hoped to "escape from pain
And so he took some laughing gas,
But never smiled again.

How is This?
"Didn't you get the place?"
"Seems the lady was a suffragist and wanted a maid to look after her children."
"You have had plenty of experience along those lines."
"Yes; I thought I'd clinch the job. Told her I was a suffragist, too."
"And then?"
"Then she wouldn't hire me."

Deduction.
"I wonder what the slender young woman works at?" says the man with the vibrant ears.
"She must be a school teacher," answered the man with the deep set eyes. "I overheard her say that she tans very quickly."—Judge's Library.

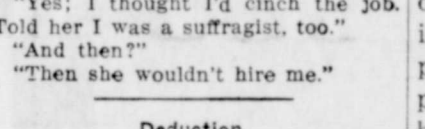

Cruel Insinuation.
"Henry went to get a marriage license, but got a dog license by mistake."
"Oh, he'll find it wasn't such a bad mistake when he starts to lead the married man's life."

A New Industry.
"Now that so many automobiles are passing your house," said the visitor, "I should think you would keep your hens shut up."
"What?" said the farmer. "And cut off my greatest income?"—Judge's Library.

SUNBURNED.
She—Oh! Belle's a shirt waist girl.
He—But she wears a coat of tan.

Not He.
Who thinks the world all right
When fish begin to bite,
Will never vex his heart

The First.
A little boy who was evidently attending Sunday school for the first time, listened with much interest to the questions that were asked by the teacher and answered by the pupils. Finally he was asked:
"Who were the first man and woman?"
"Punch and Judy," he confidently replied.

Operate Night and Day

Post Tex., Nov. 11.—The cotton growers in this and the surrounding counties have met a boon that will greatly relieve their present conditions concerning their cotton crop. The news that the Postex cotton mills, located here, would begin immediately and operate day and night shifts, consuming several thousand bales more of cotton than was previously planned, was optimistically received by producers of the staple in this section. Buyers of the concern are already making heavy purchases and are paying about 1 cent more per pound for the cotton than could be had anywhere else in the state. The officials of the company say that all the cotton consumed will be bought from farmers in this and adjoining counties.

Best Laxative For Children

When your baby is cross and fretful instead of the happy, laughing little dear you are accustomed to, in all probability the digestion has become deranged and the bowels need attention. Give it a mild laxative, dispel the irritability and bring back the happy content of babyhood. The very best laxative for children is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, because it contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant tasting and acts gently, but surely, without griping or other distress. President Indignant at Negroes
Washington, Nov. 12.—President Wilson today dismissed a delegation of negroes who called at the White House, because of the angry manner of speaking employed by the leader of the delegation, M. W. Trotter of Boston.

The president said that he would refuse to ever see Trotter again. The president declared he had never been addressed in such a manner since entering the White House. The company of negroes charged that Secretaries Burleson, McAdoo and Williams had enforced the segregation rules against them.

CONTESTANTS' STANDING

No. 186 Shown to Be More Than 20,000 Ahead

The race for the $400 Claxton upright grand piano to be given away by Jones Drug Co., January 2, 1914, has narrowed down to two contestants, and they are running so closely together that it is hard to tell who the winner is going to be. On the last count No. 115 had somewhat the best of it, but the count this week shows a reversal of this condition, and puts No. 186 in the lead by 21,515 votes. This week's count gave No. 115 75,655 votes, while No. 186 received a total of 52,005.

The standing is as follows:
No. 115.....620,590
No. 186.....642,105
Don't forget to call for the votes when making purchases either at the Jones Drug Co. store or at The Brady Standard.

A Resemblance

"Ambassador Bernstorff's story of the Germans' destruction of the Louvain library and the Rheims cathedral," said Thomas J. McSweeney, the English consul at Mobile, "reminds me of the little girl and the fly.

"Count Bernstorff, you know, insists on the 'good humor' of the German troops, and if they did destroy Louvain and the Rheims cathedral—well they did it regretfully. They hated to do it. Nothing but necessity of their righteous cause—and so forth.

"Yes, it's just like the little girl who, bending down over a captured fly, murmured: "Does 'oo love Heaven, fly?" "Pause. "Would 'oo like to go to Heaven, fly?" "Pause, then—Squash! "Now 'oo's there."—New Orleans States.

Queer Lights

"Speaking purely as a neutral," said Representative Harvey Helm the other day in Washington, "I can't help remarking what odd lights the various powers have to throw on events in order to make them seem favorable to themselves.

"Now England, now Russia, now Germany and now France comments on events so strangely that I am reminded of Hellyon."

"Hellyon, talking about his employer, a manufacturer, said: "He's no harsh task-master. He's no speeder-up. Other firms have this here blasted 8-hour law—ye got to git through a whole day's work in 8 hours, or out ye go. But down our place ye can take yer time.
