

BALLINGER COMPRESS BURNS

More Than Seven Thousand Bales Cotton Destroyed--Total Loss Will Reach $300,000--Burning Grass Starts Blaze and Strong Wind Thwarts Firemen.

The compress of the Texas Compress Company at Ballinger, together with between 7,000 and 8,000 bales of cotton, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The loss, according to a statement by Manager R. L. Bassett this morning, will be more than $300,000, the compress plant being valued at almost $50,000 and the cotton at more than $275,000. In the fire were several hundred bales owned by the cotton firms operating in Brownwood, and under orders of local cotton buyers, including C. R. Willis, E. H. Lake, J. I. Mays, A. H. Richardson and others. The exact losses sustained by each of these firms can not be ascertained until the losses are all checked through Ballinger banks and the books of the cotton companies.

The fire was started at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, from burning grass on the south side of the compress. A strong south wind was blowing, and sparks soon ignited the cotton. In the face of the wind the flames spread over several cars of cotton near the compress and then to hundreds of bales on the compress platforms. The Ballinger fire department was powerless to fight the fire on account of a lack of sufficient pressure. The entire compress plant was destroyed and all the cotton in the vicinity of the fire except a very few cars which were shunted out of the way by switch engines. In other parts of the railroad yards at Ballinger there were about a hundred cars of cotton which were not in the fire zone. This cotton will be sent to the Texas Compress company here, and arrangements are now being made to take care of it without trouble.

Besides the loss of cotton, all of which was fully insured, the Santa Fe and the Abilene Southern railways lost several cars which were on the tracks near the compress and were destroyed. The total loss to the railroads is estimated at $11,500, according to a Ballinger dispatch to the state papers.

Manager J. F. Manley of the Brownwood plant, following a telephone conversation with Manager Bassett of Ballinger last night, obtained the information given above. Mr. Bassett said that he believes the plant at Ballinger will be rebuilt in time for the next cotton season. The plant had been very busy all this season, pressing practically all the Runnels county crop and a great deal of cotton from surrounding counties. The Brownwood plant has pressed more than fifty thousand bales this season, but is prepared to take care of the crop of Runnels and other counties which have been served by the Ballinger plant.—Wednesday's Brownwood Bulletin.

STACY GIN DESTROYED

Loss About $9,000—23 Bales of Cotton Burned.

The Stacy gin was completely destroyed by fire last Saturday night, entailing a loss of about $9,000, with only about $5,000 insurance. The fire was of unknown origin. A light was noticed at the gin about 2:30 o'clock a. m., but it was thought that the ginners were still running the plant. Some twenty bales of seed cotton were destroyed along with the gin, as well as three bales that had been ginned and left on the platform. The gin was the property of Messrs. Polk, Bowen, Hoga and Kerr. While they have made no definite announcement, it is understood they will not rebuild.

The loss of the gin is a blow to the Stacy community. The gin was the only one in the county with the exception of the Brady gins, that had been equipped for the ginning of "bollies". Quite a number of the Stacy farmers had picked their cotton in the boll, and it will now be necessary for them to haul the "bollies" to Brady in order to get them ginned. It is hoped that a company will be formed to build a new gin, and that the same will be completed in time for the next crop.

Better see Brady Land Co. about that fire insurance policy today.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF
Girls! Try It! Your Hair Gets Soft, Fluffy and Luxuriant At Once
If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.
Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, health hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.
If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.
We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Kinney by deed dated December 15th, 1909, recorded in Book 18, page 603, Deed Records of McCulloch County, Texas, which deed and record are here referred to and made part hereof for description.

(3) That on December 20th, 1914, plaintiff was and now is entitled to the possession of said land and that on that date defendant unlawfully entered upon said land and ejected plaintiff therefrom and now unlawfully withholds from plaintiff the possession thereof.

(4) That heretofore, to-wit, on or about January 7th, 1914, by deed of that date, recorded in Book 28, Page 609 Deed Records of McCulloch County, Texas, plaintiff joined by his wife, L. E. Kinney, conveyed said land to defendant. And as consideration for said land defendant executed and delivered to plaintiff his certain vendor's lien notes all dated January 7th, 1914. One of said notes being for the sum of $500.00 and due on or before December 15th, 1914, and seven of said notes being for the sum of $280.00 each, one due on or before December 15th, of each and every year for years 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920, and 1921, and one note for the sum of $290.00 and due on or before December 15th, 1922. Said notes being numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, and said note number one being due Dec. 15, 1914, and said note number two being due December 15th, 1915; and said note number three being due December 15, 1916; and said note number four being due December 15th, 1917; and said note number five being due December 15th, 1918; and said note number six being due December 15th, 1919; and said note number seven being due December 15th, 1920; and said note number eight being due December 15th, 1921; and said note number nine being due December 15th, 1922. All said notes signed by defendant and payable to plaintiff at Brady, Texas, and all bearing interest from their date at the rate of 8 per cent per annum, interest payable December 15th, 1914, and annually thereafter, and all said notes providing that the failure to pay any principal or interest when due should, at the election of plaintiff or the holder of said notes or either of them, mature all said notes.

(5) That on December 15th, 1914, note number one was due and payable and there was on that date an installment of interest owing on all said notes, and defendant has failed and refused and still fails and refuses to pay said note and said interest so past due.

(6) That on December 20th, 1914, defendant having failed and refused to pay the principal and interest then due on said notes and plaintiff being the owner and holder of all said notes and having declared all said notes due and payable on that date on account of the failure of defendant to so pay said note and the interest on all said notes, defendant forfeited all his rights, title and interest in and to said land and plaintiff has elected to cancel said trade and forfeit all of defendant's rights therein and plaintiff now tenders said notes in court in order that the same may be cancelled.

Wherefore plaintiff prays that defendant be cited to appear and answer this suit and that plaintiff have judgment for said land and for costs of suit and for cancellation of said deed made by plaintiff to defendant and for removal of the cloud cast on plaintiff's title by defendant's claim thereto and for such other and further relief to which plaintiff may be entitled in law and in equity.

SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Move Acids, Gases and Clogged

Waste from Liver and Bowels

Get a 10 cent box now.

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which can not be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Our stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10 cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

CATARRH OF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

Peruna Saved Me

Mrs. Powers, whose address is given below her portrait, is an ardent friend of Peruna. She says: "I am thankful to tell you that my old trouble has never bothered me any since you received my testimonial. Any one wishing to know the facts in my case, if they will write me I will be glad to answer. Your medicine has saved me, and gave me perfect health. I frequently meet friends that knew me when I was in poor health. They ask me what has made such a change in me. I always tell them that it was the noble remedy, Peruna. I shall praise Peruna as long as I live."

Catarrh of the Internal Organs

Mrs. A. T. Powers, R. R. 7, Box 121, London, Ohio, writes: "I write to thank you for the wonderful good your Peruna has done for me. I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble for twenty-two years. Two years ago I began to take Peruna, and I only took about three bottles and today I can say I am a well person." Catarrh is liable to affect any of the internal organs. This is especially true of the bladder, which is very frequently the seat of catarrh. This is sometimes called cystitis.

Death of Mrs. Mollie Phares.

The death of Mrs. Mollie Phares occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. D. Dyer, Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon from the residence at 2:00 o'clock, Rev. I. T. Morris conducting, while Rev. T. P. Grant officiated at the burial, which took place in Brady cemetery.

The passing away of Mrs. Phares was the beautiful death of a good, Christian woman. Conscious to the last, she requested the saddened watchers to sing for her the favorite old hymns, after which she gently fell into the sleep that knows no awakening this side of the grave.

At the time of her death Mrs. Phares was 78 years, 10 months and 12 days old. For the past ten years she had been making her home with her daughter. In spite of her advanced age she maintained fairly good health until about three months ago, when she first became ill, and it was only during the past ten days that she was confined to her bed, suffering with pellagra.

Mrs. Phares was the relict of W. S. Phares, an ex-Confederate Veteran, who preceded her to the great beyond 18 years ago, his funeral having taken place on Memorial Day in 1897. She was born in Kentucky, the family later moving to Dallas, where she was married to Mr. Phares 49 years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mesdames R. D. Dyer and Oscar Galloway, and one son, Harry Phares all of Brady.

Condition Serious.

Word was received here the first of the week from Temple to the effect that "Uncle Joe" Elliott, who underwent an operation at the hospital there about two weeks ago in which his right foot was amputated, was in a serious condition and it was feared that a second operation would be necessary in order to save the patient's life.

On account of his age, it is feared that Mr. Elliott cannot withstand the second operation, and it will be performed only as a last resort.

Dr. O. C. Jackson of Voca, a son-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Campbell of this city left Tuesday for Temple to attend Mr. Elliott, but no word has come from them as to his condition.

CLOSES BIG DEALS.

Melton Land Co. Makes Two Large Trades

A deal was closed Monday by Melton Land Co. whereby a party of local citizens transfer to J. B. and H. J. Carriger of Concho county 450 acres of the old J. M. Stewart ranch, ten miles east of Menard on the San Saba river, the consideration being $16.00 per acre.

A large portion of the tract is fine agricultural land, with about 100 acres in a high state of cultivation, and has one set of improvements and a bounteous water supply.

The new owners will put practically all the tillable land into cultivation and otherwise improve their property by the addition of commodious buildings.

Melton & Co. also closed another deal Monday whereby they disposed of the balance of the Stewart tract located on the north side of the San Saba river to W. P. Portwood of Ft. Worth.

This tract consists of 1582 acres, 1000 to 1200 of which is fine tillable land, although none of it is at present in cultivation, and brought $17.50 an acre. In the deal Messrs. Anderson, McCall and other local parties become the owners of the two brick business houses on the west side of the public square formerly owned by Mr. Portwood.

Mr. Portwood announces that he will cut up the tract which he acquired in the deal into 160 acre farms and sell it out to actual farmers.

Henry Shore Dead.

Henry Shore died Wednesday morning at 6:00 o'clock at the family residence on South Blackburn, after a lingering illness. Funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon by Revs. T. P. Grant and I. T. Morris, and interment was made in the Brady cemetery.

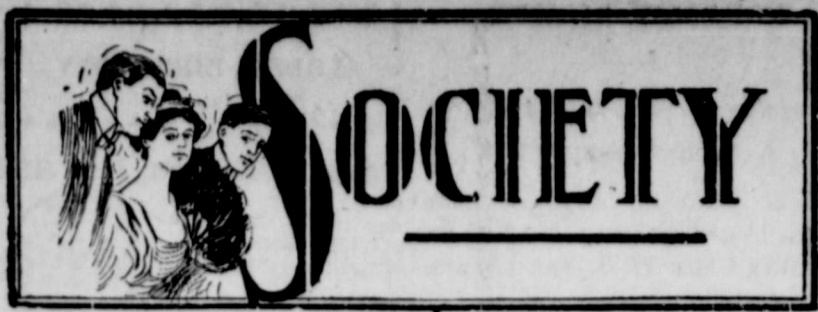

Henry Shore was 23 years, 5 months and 6 days old and his death was a peculiarly sad one, cut down as he was at the beginning of young manhood. He was born and raised in Brady, and his quiet, manly bearing won friends upon all hands. For the past four years he had made his home in Dallas where he was employed up to a year ago with the express company. His health began failing about that time, and he gradually became worse, being confined to his bed for the past three months. Three weeks ago the family returned to Brady to take up their residence here again, and it was hoped that the change in climate might prove beneficial.

Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Jim Gibbs, and three brothers, George and Walter, of Brady, Will of Dallas, Mesdames H. B. Stothoff of Tyler, Jess Dyer of DeLeon and C. A. Bennett of Brady, brother and sisters of Mrs. Gibbs, and Mrs. O. N. Huff of Brady, grandmother of the deceased.

Rainbolt-Terry Nuptials.

Wednesday's Brownwood Bulletin contained the following account of the marriage of Boyd Rainbolt, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rainbolt of this city, to Miss Leta Terry of Brownwood, which occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Terry, West Chandler street, at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday evening:

At the home of the bride's parents on West Chandler street at 8 o'clock last night, Mr. J. Boyd Rainbolt and Miss Leta Terry were united in marriage, the impressive ring ceremony being performed by Rev. K. P. Barton of the First Methodist church. Attractive decorations of ferns, pot plants and cut flowers were used throughout the house. Attending the wedding were the relatives and a large number of friends of the young people, and Mrs. McCall and Mr. Ike Rainbolt of Brady, sister and brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony and while congratulations and good wishes were being extended, refreshments of chicken salad, nut bread sandwiches, hot chocolate and wafers were served. Mr. and Mrs. Rainbolt went to Brady this morning to spend a few days with his parents, who were unable to attend the wedding on account of illness, and will be at home at the Conway residence in this city after February 14th.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Terry, and is a young lady of many charms and accomplishments which have made her universally popular among a large circle of friends in this city. Mr. Rainbolt is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rainbolt of Brady. For a year or more he has been an employe of M. W. Terry in this city, and it was while engaged upon his duties there that he met and won his bride. The popularity of the young couple was shown by the large number of attractive and useful gifts received, which included silverware, cut glass and linens.

NATIONAL REUNION. Local Camp Ben McCulloch, U. C. V., Names Delegates.

At a meeting of Ben McCulloch Camp, U. C. V., held last Saturday afternoon at the Odd Fellows hall, delegates to the national reunion of Confederate Veterans to be held at Richmond, Va., June 1, 2 and 3, were elected as follows: J. M. Able of Pasche and J. T. Wade of this city. S. T. Ward and L. Ballou were named as alternates.

This is the third and, quite likely, the last reunion of the veterans held in Richmond, and because of the fact that many members of the local camp saw a great deal of active service in and around the Virginia city, an extra effort will be made on their part to attend this year's meeting although the long, hard trip will probably prevent some undertaking the journey. An effort is to be made at Richmond to bring the next reunion to Texas, with San Antonio as the most likely candidate for the honor of entertaining the veterans in 1916. A fight was made for Texas at the meeting last year, but the delegation withdrew in favor of Richmond, when they received promise of strong support for the reunion in 1916.

side and waved the nurse back out of hearing.

"If I don't get well," he said feebly, "there's a job for you two boys. I reckon you know what it is?"

They nodded, and Asberry whispered a name:

"Samson South?"

"Yes," Purvy spoke in a whisper; but the old vindictiveness was not smothered. "You got the old man, I reckon you can manage the cub. If you don't he'll get you both one day."

The two henchmen scowled.

"I'll git him tomorrow," growled Asberry. "Thar hain't no sort of use in a-waitin'."

"No!" For an instant Purvy's voice rose out of its weakness to its old staccato tone of command, a tone which brought obedience. "If I get well I have other plans. Never mind what they are. That's my business. If I don't die, leave him alone, until I give other orders."

"If I get well and Samson South is killed meanwhile I won't live long either. It would be my life for his. Keep close to him. The minute you hear of my death—get him." He paused again, then supplemented.

"You two will find something mighty interestin' in my will."

It was afternoon when Purvy reached the hospital, and, at nightfall of the same day, there arrived at his store's entrance, on stumbling, hard-ridden mules, several men, followed by two tawny hounds whose long ears flapped over their lean jaws, and whose eyes were listless and tired, but whose black muzzles wrinkled and sniffed with that sensitive instinct which follows the man scent. The sheriff's family were instituting proceedings independent of the chief's orders. The next morning this party plunged into the mountain tangle and beat the cover with the bloodhounds in leash.

The two gentle-faced dogs picked their way between the flowering rhododendrons, the glistening laurels, the feathery pine sprouts and the moss-covered rocks. They went gingerly and alertly on ungainly, cushioned feet. Just as their masters were despairing they came to a place directly over the store, where a branch had bent back and hitched to clear the outlook and where a boot heel had crushed the moss. There one of them raised his nose high into the air, opened his mouth, and let out a long, deep-chested bay of discovery.

CHAPTER IV.

George Lescott had known hospitality of many brands and degrees. He had been the lionized celebrity in places of fashion. He had been the guest of equally famous brother artists in the cities of two hemispheres, and, since sincere painting had been his pole star, he had gone where his art's wanderlust beckoned. He had followed the lure of transitory beauty to remote sections of the world. The present trip was only one of many like it, which had brought him into touch with varying peoples and distinctive types of life. He told himself that never had he found men at once so crude and so courteous as these hosts who, facing personal perils, had still time and willingness to regard his comfort.

The coming of the kinsmen, who would stay until the present danger passed, had filled the house. The four beds in the cabin proper were full, and some slept on floor mattresses. Lescott, because a guest and wounded, was given a small room aside. Samson, however, shared his quarters in order to perform any service that an injured man might require. It had been a full and unusual day for the painter, and its incidents crowded in on him in retrospect and drove off the possibility of sleep. Samson, too, seemed wakeful, and in the isolation of the dark room the two men fell into conversation, which almost lasted out the night. Samson went into the confessional. This was the first human being he had ever met to whom he could unbosom his soul.

The thirst to taste what knowledge lay beyond the hills; the unnamed wanderlust that had at times brought him a restiveness so poignant as to be agonizing; the undefined attuning of his heart to the beauty of sky and hill; these matters he had hitherto kept locked in gully silence.

In a cave or lowland pocket, stretching into the mountain side, lay the small and meager farm of the Widow Miller. The Widow Miller was a "South;" that is to say, she fell, by tie of marriage, under the protection of the clan head. She lived alone with her fourteen-year-old son and her sixteen-year-old daughter. The daughter was Sally.

The sun rose on the morning after Lescott arrived, the mists lifted, and the cabin of the Widow Miller stood revealed. A tawny-headed boy made his way to the barn to feed the cattle, and a red patch of color, as bright and tawny as a Kentucky cardinal, appeared at the door between the morning-glory vines. The red patch of color was Sally.

She made her way, carrying a bucket to the spring, where she knelt down and gazed at her own image in the water.

Before going home she set down her bucket by the stream, and, with a quick glance toward the house to make sure that she was not observed, climbed through the brush and was lost to view. She followed a path that her own feet had made, and after a steep course upward came upon a bald face of rock, which stood out storn, battered where a rift went through the backbone of the ridge. This point of vantage commanded the other valley. Down below, across the treetops, were a roof and a chimney from which a thread of smoke rose in an attenuated shaft. That was Spicer South's house and Samson's home. The girl leaned against the gnarled bowl of the white oak and waved toward the roof and chimney. She cupped her hands and raised them to her lips like one who means to shout across a great distance, then she whispered so low that only she herself could hear:

"Hello, Samson South!"

She stood for a space looking down, and forgot to laugh, while her eyes grew religiously and softly deep, then, turning, she ran down the slope. She had performed her morning devotions.

That day at the house of Spicer South was an off day. The kinsmen who had stopped for the night stayed on through the morning. Nothing was said of the possibility of trouble. The men talked crops and tossed horse shoes in the yard, but no one went to work in the fields, and all remained within easy call. Only young Tamarack Spicer, a raw-boned nephew, wore a sullen face and made a great show of cleaning his rifle and pistol.

Shortly after dinner he disappeared, and when the afternoon was well advanced Samson, too, with his rifle on his arm, strolled toward the stile.

He sauntered down the road, but, when he had passed out of vision, he turned sharply into the woods, and began climbing. His steps carried him to the rift in the ridge where the white oak stood sentinel over the watch tower of rock. As he came over the edge from one side his bare feet making no sound, he saw Sally sitting there, with her hands resting on the moss and her eyes deeply troubled. She was gazing fixedly ahead and her lips were trembling. At once Samson's face grew black. Some one had been making Sally unhappy. Then he saw beyond her a standing figure, which the tree trunk had hitherto concealed. It was the loose-knitted figure of young Tamarack Spicer.

"In course," Spicer was saying, "we don't 'low Samson shot Jesse Purvy, but them Hollmans 'il 'spicion him, an' I heered just now that them dawgs was trackin' straight up hyar from the mouth of Misery. They'll git hyar against sundown."

Samson leaped violently forward. With one hand he roughly seized his cousin's shoulder and wheeled him about.

"Shet up!" he commanded. "What d—n fool stuff hev ye been tellin' Sally?"

For an instant the two clansmen stood fronting each other. Samson's face was set and wrathful. Tamarack's was sullen and snarling. "Hain't I got a license ter tell Sally the news?" he demanded.

"Nobody hain't got no license," retorted the younger man in the quiet of cold anger, "ter tell Sally nothin' thet'll fret her."

"She air bound ter know hit all pretty soon. Them dawgs—"

"Didn't I tell ye ter shet up?" Samson clenched his fists, and took a step forward. "Ef ye opens yore mouth again, I'm a-goin' ter smash hit. Now, git!"

Tamarack Spicer's face blackened, and his teeth showed. His right hand swept to his left arm-pit. Outwardly he seemed weaponless, but Samson knew that concealed beneath the hickory shirt was a holster, worn mountain fashion.

"What air ye a-reachin' atter, Tamarack?" he inquired, his lips twisting in amusement.

"Ther's my business."

"Well, git hit out—or git out yerself, afora I throws ye often the cliff."

Sally showed no symptoms of alarm. Her confidence in her hero was absolute. The boy lifted his hand, and pointed off down the path. Slowly and with incoherent muttering, Spicer took himself away. Then only did Sally rise. She came over, and laid a hand on Samson's shoulder. In her blue eyes, the tears were welling.

"Samson," she whispered, "ef they're ter ye, come ter my house. I kin de ye out. Why didn't ye tell me, 'ese Jurvey'd done been shot?"

"It hain't nothin' ter fret about, 'ny," he assured her. He spoke skwardly, for he had been trained to regard emotion as unmanly. "Thar hain't no danger."

She gazed searchingly into his eyes, and then, with a short sob, threw her arms around him, and buried her face on his shoulder.

"Ef anything happens ter ye, Samson," she said, brokenly, "hit'll jest kill me. I couldn't live withouten ye, Samson. I jest couldn't do hit!"

The boy took her in his arms, and pressed her close. His eyes were gazing off over her bent head, and his lips twitched. He drew his features into a scowl, because that was the only expression with which he could safeguard his feelings. His voice was husky.

"I reckon, Sally," he said, "I couldn't live withouten you, neither."

The party of men who had started at morning from Jesse Purvy's store had spent a hard day. The roads followed creek-beds, crossing and re-crossing waterways in a fashion that gave the bloodhounds a hundred baffling difficulties. Often, their noses lost the trail, which had at first been so surely taken. Often, they circled and whined, and halted in perplexity, but each time they came to a point where, at the end, one of them again raised his muzzle skyward, and gave voice.

Toward evening, they were working up Misery along a course less broken. The party halted for a moment's rest, and, as the bottle was passed, the man from Lexington, who had brought the dogs and stayed to conduct the chase, put a question:

"What do you call this creek?"

"Hit's Misery."

"Does anybody live on Misery that—er—that you might suspect?"

The Hollmans laughed.

"This creek is settled with Souths thicker'n hops."

The Lexington man looked up. He knew what the name of South meant to a Hollman.

"Is there any special South, who might have a particular grudge?"

"The Souths don't need no part'lar grudge, but that's young Samson South. He's a wildcat."

"He lives this way?"

"These dogs air a-makin' a bee-line fer his house," Jim Hollman was speaking. Then he added: "I've done been told that Samson denies doin' the shootin', an' claims he kin prove an alibi."

The Lexington man lighted his pipe, and poured a drink of red whiskey into a flask cup.

"He'd be apt to say that," he commented. "These dogs haven't any prejudice in the matter. I'll stake my life on their telling the truth."

An hour later, the group halted again. The master of hounds mopped his forehead.

"Are we still going toward Samson South's house?" he inquired.

"We're about a quarter from hit now, an' we hain't never varied from the straight road."

"Will they be apt to give us trouble?"

Jim Hollman smiled.

"I hain't never heered of no South submittin' ter arrest by a Hollman."

The trappers examined their firearms, and loosened their holster-flaps. The dogs went forward at a trot.

CHAPTER V.

From time to time that day, neighbors had ridden up to Spicer South's stile, and drawn rein for gossip. These men brought bulletins as to the progress of the hounds, and near sundown, as a postscript to their information, a volley of gunshot signals sounded from a mountain top. No word was spoken, but in common accord the kinsmen rose from their chairs, and drifted toward their leaning rifles.

"They're a-comin' hyar," said the head of the house, curtly. "Samson ought ter be home. Whar's Tam'rack?"

No one had noticed his absence until that moment, nor was he to be found. A few minutes later, Samson's figure swung into sight, and his uncle met him at the fence.

"Samson, I've done asked ye all the questions I'm a-goin' ter ask ye," he said, "but them dawgs is makin' fer this house. They've jest been sighted a mile below."

Samson nodded.

"Now—Spicer South's face hardened—I owns down ther ter the road. No man kin cross that fence withouten I choose ter give him leave. Ef ye wants ter go indoors an' stay thar, ye kin do hit—an' no dawg ner no man hain't a-goin' ter ask ye no questions. But, ef ye sees fit ter face hit out, I'd love ter prove ter these hyar men that ye Souths don't break our word. We done agreed ter this true. I'd like ter invite 'em in, an' let them damn dawgs sniff round the feet of every man in my house—an' then, when they're plumb teetotally damn satisfied, I'd like ter tell 'em all ter go ter hell. Ther's the way I feels, but I'm a-goin' ter do jest what ye says."

Lescott did not overhear the conversation in full, but he saw the old man's face work with suppressed passion, and he caught Samson's louder reply.

"When them folks gets hyar, Uncle Spicer, I'm a-goin' ter be a-settin' right out thar in front. I'm plumb willin' ter invite 'em in." Then, the two men turned toward the house.

Already the other clansmen had disappeared noiselessly through the door or around the angles of the walls.

Fifteen minutes later, Lescott, standing at the fence, saw a strange cavalcade round the bend of the road. Several travel-stained men were leading mules, and holding two tawny and impatient dogs in leash. In their number, the artist recognized his host of two nights ago.

They halted at a distance, and in their faces the artist read dismay, for, while the dogs were yelping confidently and tugging at their cords, young Samson South—who should, by their unbridled convictions be hiding out in some secret stronghold—sat at the top step of the stile, smoking his pipe, and regarded them with a lack-luster absence of interest. Such a calm reception was uncanny. After a whispered conference, the Lexington man came forward alone. Old Spicer South had been looking on from the door, and was now strolling out to meet the envoy, unarmed.

And the envoy, as he came, held his hands unnecessarily far away from his sides, and walked with an ostentatious show of peace.

"Evenin', stranger," hailed the old man. "Come right in."

"Mr. South," began the dog-owner, with some embarrassment, "I have been employed to furnish a pair of bloodhounds to the family of Jesse Purvy, who has been shot."

"I heerd tell that Purvy was shot," said the head of the Souths in an affable tone, which betrayed no deeper note of interest than neighborhood gossip might have elicited.

"I have no personal interest in the matter," went on the stranger, hastily, as one bent on making his attitude clear, "except to supply the dogs and manage them. I do not in any way direct their course; I merely follow."

"They Have Followed Their Noses Here."

"Ye can't hardly foce a dawg." Old Spicer sagely nodded his head as he made the remark. "A dawg jest natch'ly follows his own nose."

"Exactly—and they have followed their noses here." The Lexington man found the embarrassment of his position growing as the colloquy proceeded. "I want to ask you whether, if these dogs want to cross your fence, I have your permission to let them?"

Go Back to Old Time Conditions

So many cotton growers are suspicious of the advice to diversify their farming and raise live stock and feed crops as well as cotton, says Southwestern Trail, that many are ready to oppose the proposition every time it is suggested, because they think that it is a new plan that book farmers and city men are trying to force on them to their disadvantage. If such farmers would stop to look back they would remember that every farmer and planter in their grandfather's time followed diversified farming of which the raising of cotton was a part and at that time the cotton growing districts were among the most prosperous farming sections of the world.

The old time cotton grower had a well filled smoke house, his garden produced more than the family could use, the pantry shelves were filled with pickles and preserves and other good thinks, more than enough to last through the winter. There were hens and turkeys and geese and ducks and eggs in abundance. Milk and rich cream and golden butter were plenty, as were berries and fruit. The old time cotton grower raised his own corn and hay. Every year he had a colt or a mule of his own raising to sell and marketed a fat steer or some cows and a few pigs. He made his farm feed his family and his animals and his cotton was a surplus crop not needed to pay store bills.

Old time cotton growers say that for years cotton sold at 4 and 5 cents a pound and that they made money every year. When it got up to 8 cents a pound they merely made expenses. Since cotton has been ten cents or more a pound they have been left in debt after settling time almost every year. While cotton was low it was raised as a surplus crop and the farmer raised his own food and feed. When cotton got high it was planted on all the land and everything the farmer ate or fed was bought on credit at the store.

Mr. Cotton Grower, 1915 is the time for you to drop the methods of farming that have been keeping you in debt and to adopt the methods of farming that made your grandfather so prosperous. Grow a variety of crops and raise enough livestock so that you will never again have to use a dollar received from the sale of cotton to pay for "supplies." Diversify; live at home; become independent.

Reduction No. 3 On Goodyear Tires

Making Total Reductions 45% in Two Years
To Give Always the Most for the Money

We are glad again—for the third time in two years—to announce a big reduction on Goodyear tires, effective February 1st.

Goodyear policy on prices is to give the utmost in a tire at the lowest possible profit. Our reductions are made to that end, without ever reducing the quality.

That always means, with our matchless output, more for the money than any other maker can give.

As rubber came down our prices came down. As our output multiplied, reducing factory cost, our prices came down with it. In two years our reductions—including the present—have totaled 45 per cent.

Last year we increased our output 26.6 per cent. A few days ago the embargo on rubber was modified so that supplies seem assured. The market price for rubber seems for a time established. So under our minimum profit policy, we announce this new reduction.

Only Fair Basis

We consider profit margin on a trade the only fair price basis. We keep that margin just as low as our line allows.

While we do that, Goodyear tires will always undersell any tires that compare with them. That is because we have the

FOOTSTEPS AGAINST

ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS

110 Admitted in One Month Who Brought Diseases

There seems to be a general agreement that the cessation of the European war will see a renewal of the flood of immigrants which will surpass anything heretofore experienced. Before the war the daily average landing at Ellis Island was 3,000, which was given a sudden check by the declaration of hostilities. The country is alert to the possibility of the influx being renewed and preparations to meet the expected increase are already in evidence. The proposed changes in our immigration laws will, if enacted, enforce more rigid physical requirements than any previous legislation on this subject. There is no doubt that the country needs these added safeguards. The truth of this is forcibly illustrated by that section of the report of the committee on inquiry into the department of health, charities, and Bellevue and Allied hospitals of New York city, which deals with aliens in institutions.

The committee examined, as far as practicable, every patient admitted to Bellevue for a period of 31 days. Of the 3,454 admissions during that period 363 were aliens who had been in the United States less than five years. The physicians who examined these aliens believe that there were 185 of them suffering from diseases caused existing prior to landing in the United States.

Among these were 10 cases of pulmonary tuberculosis; 15 cases of venereal disease; 81 psychopathic cases; 2 cases of epilepsy, and 2 of imbecility.

largest output. We have a new factory, modernly equipped. And we have worldwide facilities for buying rubber, of our extra grade, at the lowest market price.

For a long, long time most tires have sold much above Goodyear prices. Some have sold one-third higher. A few have sold lower, as some always will, because of less rubber, less quality. But we can and do, under all conditions, give more for the money than any rival tire can offer.

The Best We Know

Goodyear Fortified Tires offer the best we know. They are built to give you the lowest cost per mile. They minimize tire trouble in five costly ways employed by no other maker. And they are always the same, regardless of price reductions.

Most tires will always sell higher, because of smaller output. Some tires will always sell lower because of lower standards. But we promise you that none will ever give better than Goodyear value.

This policy has made Goodyear the largest-selling tires in the world. It will make them more so as more men find them out.

Ask your Goodyear dealer for our new price on the size you buy.

SHARP BUSINESS UPTURN.

Basic Industries Beginning to Be Active

"Shipments of foodstuffs," says the Industrial Record of Dallas, Tex., "and other supplies bought here have been so heavy lately as not only to pay off a large floating indebtedness but to establish a substantial credit abroad to be used later in such manner as may be needed. The statement issued by the government at Washington this week shows a trade balance favoring the United States of $131,863,000 for the month, which compares with an import balance of $19,400,000 in August.

"It is gratifying to know that trade throughout the United States has been accelerated as a result of the demand for its products. Domestic trade, which had been much depressed, has begun to revive. Confidence is returning. The securities markets have taken on new energy. The steel, copper and other basic industries are beginning to be active and general business must soon feel the impetus.

"Commodity prices, with the exception of foodstuffs, have been very low, and raw materials, at present quotations, are beginning to look much more inviting to manufacturers.

"This is especially true as regards cotton and copper quotations, which lately have had a sharp upturn."

Constipation causes headache, indigestion, dizziness, drowsiness. For a mild, opening medicine use Doan's Regulants. 25c a box at all stores.

Conditions Growing Easier

Business is picking up throughout the Southwest. The increase in the price of cotton is enabling those in debt to discharge all of their obligations. While money is still somewhat restricted still there is a large amount of freedom running through trade circles. Conditions are rapidly growing better, and will doubtless become normal in a short while. It is not likely that conditions will return just like they were before the depression, and it is questionable whether those conditions would be preferable.

More attention is going to be given to all investments, and there will naturally be a tightening all along credit lines. This, we are sure, will prove a blessing, as the people are prone to go in debt unnecessarily when they can do so with so much ease. Economy is still playing its part in the business of industry and commerce.

While many men are still unemployed, yet the whole industrial fabric is bending every nerve to give work to all who want to work and there is promise that this will be done without delay.

Bonds are just now in greater demand than they have been in for a long time, and this will enable public work to be resumed and pushed with vigor. This work will include the building of roads, paving of streets, building and extending waterworks, sewers, light plants, etc., and erecting public buildings of all kinds.

With the placing of public work in full swing, private enterprises will be induced to start operations, and before long there will be more work than there will be laborers.

The public undertakings are usually of large proportions and it takes some time to get in shape to properly carry them forward. It was hardly expected work of this kind could be started in January, and much of it will not be started before March. New work is developing every day and the situation is being relieved most satisfactorily.—Industrial Record, Dallas, Texas.

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE

Millersview Presents Modern Version of Job's Patience

You have heard that saying, "There is Nothing Impossible," and "Just About the Time a Man Says It Can't Be Done," Somebody Gets Up and Does It."

So much for precept: Here-with follows the example.

Some five months ago three strings of tools were lost in the well being drilled on the Schultz place near Millersview. The tools were lost at a depth of 1430 feet and six inches, just as they entered oil sand. The situation was viewed very discouragingly by some of the best oil well men who gave it as their opinion that the tools could never be recovered and that the well would have to be abandoned. Chas Stewart, the well known local driller, who has had charge of operations at the Millersview well was in no wise discouraged, but set to work to recover the lost tools, and with the patience of Job he has continued week after week, until the weeks became months, at the task of fishing. His patience has had its reward insofar that two of the strings have been recovered, and it is thought that within another week the third string will be secured, and operations will then be resumed and the oil sand developed.

The Millersview well has claimed attention from all parts of the State, and its progress has been watched and noted in all of the leading dailies. Consequently, great things have been looked forward to, and it is the hope of the promoters that their fondest expectations may be realized when work is once more resumed.

Most Old People Are Constipated

The wear of years impairs the action of the bowels. With advancing age people are disposed to restricted activity and exercise, which is responsible for the constipated condition of most old folks. The digestive organs are more sensitive to the demands made upon them and rebel more quickly.

A mild, effective remedy for constipation, and one that is especially suited to the needs of elderly people, women and children, is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. R. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.
