THE CITY BAKERY

COUNCIL MEETING.

Called Session of City Fathers Held Monday Night.

At a special meeting of the city council held Monday night of last week with all members present, the financial condition of the city was gone into thoroughly, and after full consideration, plans were evolved for relief. The general fund of the city has been exhausted for some time, and with the expense of the city government yet to be incurred for the remainder of the present fiscal year, the overdraft will be much larger than will be provided by the present basis of a rendition of 60 cents on the dollar, and it is necessary that some steps be taken to relieve the situation.

With this object in the view, the council passed the following order:

"It is found that there are overdrafts against the general fund amounting to approximately $3000, and that the current expenses for the coming fiscal year will amount to about $3500, and the third payment on note for the fire engine amounting to $1700 and two years' interest, due March 15, 1917, aggregating over $8000, and the resources of the general fund (from which all the above must be paid) will not exceed $4500 for the year with the usual property valuation of 60 cents on the dollar, leaving a deficit of at least $3500, and that the financial credit of the city be not impaired and her warrants on the treasury be not depreciated in value by reason of long delay in payment thereof, it was unanimously agreed by the city council that there was no other remedy to relieve the situation than to increase the basis of the property valuation and as the shortage in funds was only in the general fund, it was agreed that the increase in valuation should not increase the tax on other funds than the general fund; therefore, it is ordered that the board of equalization for the city be instructed to increase the property valuation from 60c (the basis on which the assessor made the assessments) to ninety cents on the dollar. It is further ordered that the secretary furnish the board of equalization with a certified copy of this order."

The above increased valuation is estimated to not increase the total city tax more than 10 cents on the hundred dollars valuation, based on the 1915 renditions. It is thought that by increasing the valuations as outlined in the above order, the tax rate can be lowered to 50 cents instead of 65 cents, the levy for the city's bonded indebtedness being reduced to as low a figure as is allowed by law, that each year's interest and sinking fund may be provided.

The total valuation of all taxable property in the city for the year 1915 was approximately $1,500,000 assessed on a 60 cent basis. Under the above order, the valuations for this year would be increased to $2,250,000. A tentative levy by the council on the above valuation for this year is as follows: General fund, 25 cents; waterworks sinking fund, 13 1-3 cents; street bonds, 6 2-3 cents; street fund, 5 cents; total 50 cents. This levy if made, would bring a revenue to the several funds as follows: General fund, $5625; waterworks sinking fund, $3000; street bonds, $1500; street fund, $1125, a total of $11,250. Under last year's valuation and the levy of 65 cents a total revenue of $9,750 would be derived, but the general fund would not receive enough of this increase to materially relieve the stringency. Last year the taxpayer paid $6.50 on the $1000 valuation, while this year he will pay $7.50 on a valuation of $1500—a difference of only 10 cents on the hundred.

This plan, as worked out by Mayor Sheridan and the city council will materially relieve the situation, and at the same time will work a hardship on no one. It is hoped that the citizenship generally will view the matter in the proper light and lend their assistance in every way in helping the council in their efforts to overcome the difficulties.

ANNUAL RECITAL.

Pupils of Brady School of Music Render Pleasing Program.

The pupils of the Brady School of Music appeared in annual recital at the Methodist tabernacle last night, rendering a program of unusual merit before an audience that fairly filled the building.

The pupils acquitted themselves in a most creditable manner, each number being rendered in a manner which showed thoroughly earnest effort on the part of the pupil, as well as painstaking work on the part of Prof. J. C. Robbins' director.

Assisting the class, A. F. Rose, cornetist, appeared in several numbers with Prof. Robbins and Miss Dora Robbins; their numbers being among the most pleasing of the entire program. The ladies' quartette, composed of Mesdames Leonard Wood, Ed Broad, O. E. Jackson and J. C. Robbins appeared in two or three selections which were especially well rendered.

ADKINS FOR CONGRESS.

Popular Brady Citizen Tosses Sombrero into the Ring.

The many Brady and McCulloch county friends of Judge Joe A. Adkins of this city were pleasantly surprised Friday by the announcement that Judge Adkins had decided to enter the race for Congress from this, the 14th district, against Hon. Jas. L. Slayden of San Antonio. The announcement came, following a visit by Judge Adkins to San Antonio last week, where he received assurances of strong support from that end of the district.

Judge Adkins is a life-long Democrat, fighting—for the most part—as a private in the rear ranks for the time-honored principles of the party, using both his means and his ability as a speaker in the interests of Democracy. He is an able attorney, being rated one of the best criminal lawyers in this section of the State, and one of Brady and McCulloch county's most popular and useful citizens.

By reason of his long residence in this section of the State he is in a position to know and appreciate the needs of the district which he seeks to represent in the national congress, and all Brady and McCulloch county citizens feel that in case of his election they will be ably represented and their interests carefully safeguarded. He is in perfect harmony with President Wilson's administration in all respects, and one of the president's staunchest supporters and admirers.

Judge Adkins will make an active and aggressive campaign throughout the district, and will arrange speaking dates to begin early in the coming month.

McCormick & Deering Twine has stood the test for many years, in fact, it was here before most of us, it is better today than ever. We do not ask any more for McCormick & Deering than others ask for twine that you never heard of before, and that you have got for it being good is their word. Their intention of course is all right, and if they had manufactured the twine themselves, of course they would have made it good, but in McCormick & Deering Twine, you have no one's word to take for it being good twine, for every child knows the quality of McCormick & Deering. With Texas National Guard.

A post card from Henry McCain, a well known McCulloch county teacher, says: "Please send my paper to San Antonio, Troop 1st Cavalry, T. N. G." Mr. McCain taught last term at Salt Gap and has rendered similar services in a number of the rural schools of the county the past several years.

It is not known here whether he joined the guard since leaving Brady a few weeks ago, or whether he was a member on leave of absence from his company while making his home here. Any way his many Brady and McCulloch county friends trust that he will find the life of a soldier to his liking, but that he will soon return to this land of sunshine and plenty once more.

BITTEN BY RATTLESNAKE.

Herbert Crumley Almost Loses Life by Bite of Deadly Reptile.

Herbert, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Crumley of the Pear Valley community came near losing his life last Friday from the bite of a rattlesnake.

The lad was plowing in a field which was infested with Johnsrass, and his father had instructed him to pull up each clump of the grass which he came across. In stooping down to pull up a bunch of the grass the deadly snake struck at him, imbedding one of its fangs in the inside of the little finger of the right hand. Instinctively the boy jerked his hand back, the poisonous fang ripping the finger open from the last joint to the tip.

After being bitten, the boy unharnessed one of the horses from the plow and rode to the house about three miles distant, while a companion went to the nearest telephone to call medical assistance, and to the fact that the doctor arrived within twenty minutes after he was bitten young Crumley very likely owes his life.

Yesterday he was reported as doing well, although the arm was swollen to two or three times its normal size, the swelling extending almost to the shoulder. His condition however, is regarded as highly satisfactory, and he is expected to be fully recovered within a week or so.

Will Use City Water.

Street Sprinkling Contractor S. J. Durnett has closed a deal with the city water department for his supply of water, the contract becoming effective June 1st. When taking charge of the street sprinkling work several years ago, Mr. Durnett installed a pumping plant on the Dutton property northeast of the public square, pumping his water from Brady creek. He has experienced some difficulty at various times in breakdown of his machinery and depletion of the water supply, and thereby has been hindered in his efforts to give the kind of service that he wanted to give.

Negotiations for water supply from the city mains were begun several weeks ago, and last week the contract was closed. By the new arrangements Mr. Durnett will have an ample supply of water, and will also be enabled to give even better service than in the past, in that he will have filling stations from the fire hydrants on the four corners of the public square and thereby save much time in the refilling of his sprinkler tank.

Watch for the nice assortment of swings we will put in our show window and mark the price down. O. D. Mann & Sons.

FLOWERS FOR THE LIVING.

The following deserved compliments so nearly co-incide with the opinion of the Temporary Editor of The Standard that we decided to "put one over on the boss" in his absence and reproduce it, despite the knowledge that by so doing we will bring down heaps of condemnation from him:

And now it transpires that the young lady who consented to marry Harry Frederick Schwenker of the Brady Standard is a favorite niece of John Esten Cooke of the Rockdale Reporter. In each life some rain must fall, John Esten—some day be dark and dreary. Cheer up, and try to treat Harry Frederick as if he came into the family with your consent.—State Press in Dallas News.

John Esten Cooke belongs to the "Flowers of the Living" club—he will welcome Schwenker into the councils of the clan. There is no doubt of that.—Andrew McBeath in Temple Telegram.

The above talk from two of Texas' most famous paragraphers gives us the opportunity to pay a deserved tribute to a good man and at the same time pay our dues to the Flowers for the Living Club, of which McBeath is chairman and Sate Press secretary. The Creator never made a nobler man than H. F. Schwenker. We have known him as a competitor in business; as a business partner; as a friend in the home; and for a brief time after the dissolving of the business partnership, as an employer. We have watched his course as an editor; as a business man; as a citizen; as a defender of the weak and an upholder of that which was right; as a suitor in the hand of one of the sweetest women whom God has ever allowed to bless this world; and in every respect he has measured up to that standard of manhood and nobility of character which every honest man admires. H. F. Schwenker is every inch a man and a gentleman; fully worthy of the respect which is given him by those who know him, and worthy of the love of the true woman he has won. May his future be as bright as his past life has been clean!—Rockdale Reporter.

In a meeting of the directors of one of the Carthage banks recently while considering the cashier's report one of the directors, a merchant, called attention to the large number of loans to farmers, most of which are secured by mortgages on domestic animals. It was agreed by all the board that such security is preferable to that usually offered by merchants and other business men. A farmer with mules, horses, cattle or hogs doesn't need a land bank or rural credits system but can get money on his stock to tide him over ordinary difficulties. It is to the interest of the banks to encourage stock raising among the farmers.—East Texas Register.

The Parson congratulates Harry Schwenker of the Brady Standard on his marriage; but how is he to express his sympathy with HER? He hopes that Harry will not try to spend his honeymoon in a car at the top of a telephone pole.—Brownwood Bulletin.

For County Surveyor.
In the proper column of today's issue of The Standard will be found the name of Judge W. P. Doty as a candidate for reelection to the office of County Surveyor, his candidacy being subject to the action of the Democratic primary July 22.

Judge Doty is too well known to the voters of McCulloch county to need a word of introduction, having been a resident of Brady for many years and numbered among the county's oldest citizens. He has served in the capacity of County Surveyor for a number of years, and all agree that he is a most capable and accommodating officer, always ready and anxious to render the public prompt and efficient service.

He asks careful consideration of his candidacy, and promises the same efficient service as has characterized his past administrations, should he again prove the choice of the voters.

THE BOND

By HAROLD CARTER.

"Cheer up, my lad! You've had your lesson, and if you've only learned your lesson, it will be the best thing that ever happened to you. No man but can live down his past."

Harry Lawson looked up at the man who was addressing him in a hopeless manner. Should he tell him? Why not?

Since his release from the state penitentiary, where he had served the greater part of a seven years' sentence, Lawson had been living at a cheap hotel, a huge place put up for the poor. There, while his remnants of money lasted, he had stayed, planning a burglary which might bring him in enough to start his criminal career with full equipment. There, too, John Mannering, the clergyman noted for his social work, had found him. The two had become fast friends. Mannering had been attracted by the young man, and soon had from him the story of his past life—all save one thing.

Lawson had been married. Most crooks are. They have the natural human instincts, the same as us honest folks. Besides, any of us honest folks may become a crook some day. It is largely a matter of circumstances and environment.

Elise had been an honest girl when he married her. During their two years together he had slowly and deliberately poisoned her soul and mind. Bit by bit he lifted the curtain that concealed his life from her. He told her that life was a battle of the strong, he had thoroughly initiated her into his pernicious doctrines before he let her know that his "night work" was burglary, and his "traveling salesmanship" journeys to other cities for pulling off coups.

Before the two years were ended she was his foil and confederate. And so well had he done his work that none suspected in the sweet-voiced girl as daring and skilled a crook as her husband.

The judge had pitied her when he sentenced Lawson to seven years. She had been advised to secure a divorce. But she had clung to him; she had paid him visits in the penitentiary for six or seven months. Then her visits stopped. She disappeared, and Lawson had been unable to trace her.

Crook as he was, the man was human enough to enjoy the pastor's discourses. Lawson was an educated man. Together they had frankly discussed the advantages and disadvantages of crime. John Mannering was shrewd enough to see that he could not win a man of intellect by platitudes. But all the while Lawson pretended gradually to be convinced, secretly he was planning another stroke.

If only he had Elise. She had left him six years and more. None of his old pals could trace her. If she would take him, he would live a decent life for her sake. He had not many regrets, but the corruption of her mind was one of them.

And he told Mannering, blurring out the truth. The clergyman realized what he had not seen: The released convict needs feminine influence, the ministrations of some woman to redeem him from his tendencies. At once he made up his mind.

"Harry," he said, laying his hand on his shoulder, "come up to my house as my guest for a day or two. We'll thrash all these matters over then, and if your wife's in the parish we'll trace her. If she isn't—well, talk to my wife, and get her point of view. I always consult her about things."

"You'll get me there and hold a prayer fest over me," growled Lawson.

"Not a word, my boy. We'll have grace before meals, but you don't have to join in. It only lasts a minute, anyway. And you can stay away from bedtime prayers."

"I'll come for the evening, then," Lawson growled.

"Come at five, then," said the pastor heartily. "Don't mind how you look. Mrs. Mannering is used to my friends."

At five o'clock Lawson was at the pastor's house. The maid, who admitted him, knew all about him, evidently, for she said, smilingly: "Mr. Mannering has just had a call to go out. Mr. Lawson, but if you'll wait in the living room, Mrs. Mannering will be home in a minute."

Lawson waited. He began to feel uncomfortable; he wished he had not come. The hypocrisy of his role was getting on his nerves. And then—the thought of Elise made him physically ill. He wanted her with all the strength of his better nature.

"Good evening, Mr.— I didn't catch your name."

A handsomely-gowned young woman stood smiling before him. He rose to his feet sheepishly. He looked into Elise's face. The recognition was mutual.

He saw the look of horror upon her features. She swayed, as if she were about to faint. But he caught her in his arms.

"Elise! You! I have wanted you these six years. Where have you been? Why did you hide from me? You are coming with me."

She struggled free. "Don't!" she whispered. "I am John Mannering's wife. And he does not know."

"The man's look was as wild as hers. 'His wife? You divorced me?'"

"Yes. I tried to be faithful, but he—Mr. Mannering made me a good woman. He knows I was—not everything good, but he does not know I had a husband. And he does not believe in divorce."

Lawson shouted exultantly. "He doesn't! Then you are mine, Elise. I'll tell him. Listen, now! Keep calm! If you are changed, gone on the good track, I'm ready to also. I'm a bit tired of the old life. Help me, Elise, and we'll fight together."

"Harry! You don't know what you are saying. Listen, now!" she went on rapidly. "I love him. Do you understand that? He is the only man who has ever shown me what goodness is. He loves me. You won't—you won't ruin his life? I wouldn't go with you if he turned me away. You would gain nothing. And think! He has helped you. He has spoken of you to me. Harry, for my sake—"

"Why should I give you up?" cried the man brutally. "I want you. I'll make you love me. If I can't, at least I'll smash things. I'll pay him back in his own coin."

"Harry, you're mad! He has only helped you. If he hadn't brought you here you would never have known Harry, the—the babies are upstairs. I can't lose them. I can't—my God, Harry, you must—"

She recoiled, and again he caught her and held her. He looked incredulously into her face.

"Kids? Two of them?"

She nodded faintly. The man's passion seemed suddenly to leave him.

"You always wanted kids, didn't you, Elise?" he said.

"Harry," she sobbed, "they are all in the world to me—they and he."

The struggle on his face was pitiful. Then suddenly he clapped on his hat and strode toward the door.

"I'm going," he said, halting. "I'm going, Elise. God bless you. And I'm going to think of you and—run straight if I can."

A moment later the door had closed behind him.

Maternal Discipline.
It was a mild spring day in the garden, writes a Companion reader. The Anna humming bird had made her nest low in a bush, and I had been watching it every day since the first spider web, with a mouthful of lichens, had composed the foundation. From the two tiny eggs had emerged twin birdlings as black as jet, more like bugs than birds. But they grew, for they were fed every fifteen minutes with predigested nectar from the mother's throat. I cannot tell how the mother knew them apart, for they were exactly alike; but she did distinguish them, for I often shifted them in her absence, using a child's tin teaspoon to move them. When she returned, the mother always fed the one whose turn it was. She was so accustomed to me that she would alight on my finger while she fed the youngster.

As the birdlings grew, they tried each to get the bigger share of the food. One day the one that had been fed on the previous trip jostled his brother out of the way, and stretched his own mouth toward the coveted morsel; but the mother would not permit any such defiance of order and discipline. Tenderly, but firmly, she placed her tiny foot, which in the humming-bird family is too frail for walking, on the shoulder of the greedy birdling. Perfectly adapted to cling, if not to walk, the slender toes closed about the tiny form and held it fast, while the bird whose turn it was got his food.—Youth's Companion.

Money-Making Inventions.
It is not always the greatest invention that brings the largest financial reward. Roller skates are said to have brought their inventor nearly $5,000,000, while nearly half a million was realized by the man who first devised foot laces. The inventor of the safety-pin, who took the idea from the reproduction of a Pompeian fresco, made $10,000,000. On the other hand, Charles Bourseul, who discovered and described the principle of the telephone in 1855, died poor; Michaux, the inventor of the bicycle, ended his days in the utmost penury; and Frederick Sauvage, who is credited with the invention of the screw propeller, was imprisoned and died bankrupt and insane.

Her Mite.
"My poor woman," said the settlement worker, "what can I do to relieve your distress?"

"Can you sing, ma'am?"

"Why—er—a little."

"I wish you'd sing some of the new ragtime songs, ma'am. Me and my husband ain't been to a cabaret in two years."

In today's issue you will see the advertisement of Sam H. Hill & Son. These people are the largest handlers of rams in Texas, and their methods of doing business are too well known to need any endorsement. They are the only Texas people that raise sheep that were exported to South America, and also having sold the Governor of Cuba both ewes and rams. They breed and raise lambs on their Schleicher County ranch that win first money in the show ring in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. They sold 650 ewes for $20.00 a head.

SEVERE PUNISHMENT

Of Mrs. Chappell, of Five Years' Standing, Relieved by Cardui.

Mt. Airy, N. C.—Mrs. Sarah M. Chappell of this town, says: "I suffered for five years with womanly troubles, also stomach troubles, and my punishment was more than any one could tell."

I tried most every kind of medicine, but none did me any good.

I read one day about Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I decided to try it. I had not taken but about six bottles until I was almost cured. It did me more good than all the other medicines I had tried, put together.

My friends began asking me why I looked so well, and I told them about Cardui. Several are now taking it.

Do you, lady reader, suffer from any of the ailments due to womanly trouble, such as headache, backache, sideache, sleeplessness, and that everlastingly tired feeling?

If so, let us urge you to give Cardui a trial. We feel confident it will help you, just as it has a million other women in the past half century.

Begin taking Cardui to-day. You won't regret it. All druggists.

WONDERFUL INSECT IS FLY

Nuisance, and a Menace to Human Life, but Well Worth the Most Careful Study.

Kill a fly, but study him. He is a wonderful creature, though a menace and a nuisance, writes Garrett P. Eerriss. His muscles are as strong as steel; his nerve action is as quick as lightning. If you were proportionately as strong as a fly you could seize a beam over your head with your hands, and with two tons of iron fastened to your feet; easily raise yourself, together with the attached weight, from the floor.

This calculation is no mere guess; it is based upon experiments made by the Belgian naturalist, Felix Plateau, who harnessed insects and small animals of many kinds, in very ingenious ways, to ascertain their strength.

Likewise, if a fly were as big as a man and retained his relative strength, he could kill tigers with his hands and split asunder the jaws of lions with much more ease than Samson did.

If you were as quick as a fly you could let an oncoming express train, traveling a mile a minute, come within a foot of your nose and then dodge it. Strike at a fly that is lazily circling with a playmate before your eyes and observe with what nonchalant ease he avoids your blow and instantly returns to his play.

Time Lock Universal. Practically all the modern safe deposits possess time locks. These timepieces operate from one hour to three days. When the doors are closed the timepiece is set, and on no account can the doors be reopened until the clock has run its allotted time. The other week a clerk overwound the timepiece at a well-known safe deposit, with the result that the renters could not gain access to their safes until late in the afternoon.

Anyone, of course, can hire a safe in a public safe deposit by paying the necessary rent. Each renter is supplied with his own key, and if he loses it his safe has to be broken open, for the company does not possess duplicate keys.

New Discovery in Iron. Very pure iron in tubes and other forms is a French factory's electrolytic product from a basis of ordinary cast-iron. To cause a deposition of iron on the surface, the negative pole is rotated in a solution of ferrous salt, which is kept neutral by iron turnings placed at the bottom of the tank, and by adding iron oxide as depolarizer. The electrolytic iron deposited, very hard at first, becomes soft and malleable, with the giving off of some gas, on annealing. A rod being used as core, iron pipes are produced direct, and the production of sheet iron, without rolling, is expected and is looked upon as very valuable for electrical machinery.

Nipped in Bud.

An alleged plot to raid Fort Stockton, Texas, murder its sheriff, D. S. Barker, then loot the town was skillfully unearthed Wednesday through the work of a Mexican deputy sheriff from Alpine. During the night nineteen of the suspected conspirators were arrested, disarmed and lodged in the Pecos county jail.

This was information considered reliable received in San Angelo Friday afternoon. According to the report, the officers who uncovered the plot attended one of the secret meetings of the band. Whether or not the Mexicans were captured in a body or were taken into custody separately was not known here this afternoon. All the plotters were armed with rifles, on which were stamped Mexican names.

As the result of this trouble nipped in the bud and the recent murder of Jarvis Harp near Ozona, heavy shipments of arms and ammunition were made from San Angelo to western towns Friday morning. Sixteen 30-30 rifles and 2,500 rounds of ammunition were shipped on the Orient by express to Ft. Stockton, Rankin and Girvin. Six of the guns were consigned to R. M. Johnson at Rankin and several to H. F. Mayse at Girvin.—Menard Messenger.

Sanitary Farming.

We've bathed the bossie's toes, We've cleaned the rooster's ears; We've trimmed the turkey's wattles with antiseptic shears. With talcum all the guinea hens are bountiful and bright. And Dobbin's wreath of gleaming teeth we've burnished snowy white. With pungent sachet powder we've glorified the dog. And when we have the leisure we will manure the hog! We've done all in our power to have a barn de luxe. We've dipped the sheep in eau de rose; we've sterilized the ducks. The little chicks are daily fed on sanitized worms; The calves and colts are always boiled to keep them free from germs. And thoroughly to carry out our prophylactic plan. Next week we think we shall begin to wash the hired man. —Ex.

The defendant gave notice of appeal from the present verdict.

From The Star.
Twenty-six cars of cows and calves passed through here Friday of last week enroute to John White at Brady. The cattle were in poor condition, and we understand were bought very cheaply owing to the continued drouth in South Texas having damaged the range to such an extent that cattlemen are being forced to dispose of a considerable portion of their herds to avoid even heavier losses from overstocking.
