CITY RECEIVES ENGINE-ROLLER

Big Machine Unloaded Saturday. Will Start Work Next Week.

The big 10-ton Kelly road roller and engine combined, purchased by the city a few weeks ago from Austin Bros. of Dallas, arrived and was unloaded last Saturday. The new piece of machinery will fill a long-felt need in the equipment of the city's road working force, as it will enable some effective road work to be done.

It is expected that the big machine will be put into service next week, at which time Austin Bros. have promised to send a man to thoroughly demonstrate the new purchase, and to instruct the city's force in its use. The first task undertaken will be the improvement of Blackburn street. The city will be given the use of the county's scarifier and the macadam on Blackburn will be torn up and thoroughly re-rolled and packed by means of the big roller. This will give that thoroughfare a smooth, hard wearing surface, and will obviate the waves and bumps which invariably resulted from the use of the old roller, which was dragged behind the engine and which could not be backed over the high and rough places.

Following the improvement of Blackburn, the engine will be hitched to the city's rock crusher and put to work on the huge pile of accumulated rocks, which will be broken up into shape for use in macadamizing the streets. As soon as sufficient amount of macadam has been secured, North Bridge street will undergo some much-needed improvement, being surfaced and put in A1 condition. Following this the city's portion of the Brady public square will be attacked, and the work of improving this section will be continued as long as the funds hold out.

Altogether, the contemplated improvements will fill a long-felt want, and the members of the city council and the street committee are to be commended for their efforts towards bringing about this much-desired change in the condition of the main-traveled thoroughfares.

SELLING PIPING.

City Has Disposed of 12,700 Feet of Water Mains.

Supt. J. M. Lyle of the Brady Water & Light Works yesterday closed a deal with Edwin Jarrett, city engineer for the Fort Worth Power & Light Co., for the sale to the Fort Worth concern of 3700 feet of water mains belonging to the local concern. This makes a total of 12,700 feet of 4 inch pipe that has been disposed of by the city, 4,000 feet having been sold some time ago to the American Guarantee Oil Co. for use in their oil well at Humble, and 5,000 feet of pipe has been contracted by the city of Dallas, and is being held here subject to their orders.

This pipe has been used by the city in connecting up with distant water holes, and is no longer of use to the city. Something like 5,000 feet of pipe still remains on hand and is being used at present to pump from Live Oak. This, too, will be disposed of as soon as the water supply is thought sufficient to warrant.

The city was rather fortunate in its disposal of the pipe, the value having increased since its purchase, and as a consequence while part was disposed of at a loss, the last sale was at a figure showing a profit, and as a result the city has about broken even on its purchase.

PROSPERITY IS HERE ONCE MORE

Good Rains Bring Smiles of Happiness—Water in Brady Dam at Last.

Water in Brady dam at last! That is about the biggest news item of the week. As a result of the splendid rains which fell both on Saturday night and on Sunday night, all the water holes along Brady creek are brimming over, and the Brady dam now holds about 5 feet of water. It was on April 6th of last year that water ran over the dam the last time.

The rains were again general and added greatly to the beneficial rains of ten days ago, as the winds had dried much of the previous moisture. The first rain began falling Saturday night shortly after 8:00 o'clock, and continued through most of the night—1 1/2 inches of down-pour being recorded in Brady. The rain which fell Sunday night, or rather Monday morning early, amounted to about 1-2 of an inch. The last rain put out considerable water, as the first had thoroughly saturated the ground.

The creek below town was running yesterday, the water coming out of Flat Branch. Bowie Creek was also running and had filled most of the holes above the dam, while Post Oak put out the water in the dam. Live Oak was full and running over the dam at W. D. Crothers. In order to avoid the wasting of the water running out of Live Oak, Supt. J. M. Lyle of the waterworks company, has laid a string of pipe to that hole, and is pumping to the filter plant, and will also pump the water to the new dam. There is no drainage to the new dam; it being fed only by water running over or leaking by the old dam, and Live Oak enters Brady creek below it. By pumping the surplus from Live Oak, much water will be saved.

Reports from every part of this section indicate a splendid rain. Rochelle reports 2 inches; 1 1/2 inches were reported from Eden and at Menard; 1 inch or more at Richland Springs and at London; and good rains were reported at San Saba, Melvin, Stacy, Waldrip and Doole. Good rains were also had all along the line of the Frisco as far as Fort Worth and Dallas.

Sudden Death of Visitor.

One of the saddest occurrences in Brady in many a day, was the sudden death of Mrs. Sallie E. Seargent of Orange, who was a guest here of her mother, Mrs. M. A. Crenshaw, and sister, Mrs. J. C. Wall. Mrs. Seargent, in company with her sister, Mrs. Alice Windrow, of Waco, arrived May 14th for a visit here and was taken ill with pneumonia almost immediately following her arrival. Her condition was at once recognized as serious, and everything possible was done, but without avail, the patient gradually growing worse until the end came Friday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

Funeral services were held at the Wall residence Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock, Rev. Owen Hornburg conducting, and the body was shipped to Orange for interment.

Mrs. Seargent was 69 years of age, and had been a member of the Christian church for many years. She is survived by one son, C. T. Seargent, of Orange, who arrived in time for the funeral, and who accompanied the body back to Orange. The only other near relatives are the aged mother, Mrs. Crenshaw, and two sisters, Mrs. Windrow and Mrs. Wall. In their deep grief these bereaved ones have the deep sympathy of all Brady citizens.

South Side Bible Class.

The South Side Bible Class met Friday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock with Mrs. M. J. Campbell. Quite an interesting Sunday School lesson and a good attendance was had. The talk by Rev. J. H. Taylor on the book of Job was very instructive and highly appreciated by all those present. As our time was limited the Bible lesson was dispensed with until our next meeting which will be with Mrs. L. A. Williams, May 25th, at 4:00 o'clock, for a study of the same lesson.

We are very desirous of securing new members and invite all, especially the ministers to come and help us in this great work. We need you.

WE SAW IT FIRST.

E. J. Powell, community lecturer, made a notable address at the Brady chautauqua last night and his suggestions were greatly appreciated. There were two points in his address, however, in which he failed to inform himself as to local conditions. The first was in regard to the improvement of Blackburn street. Had he read the issue of The Standard of May 4th, he would have found that Brady had already laid its plans and was getting matters in shape for the immediate improvement not only this important thoroughfare, but of all the main-traveled streets of the city. Also he would have ascertained the reason why this work had not been sooner done, viz: lack of funds and lack of proper road-building equipment.

The second point was with reference to the noting by him of some tin cans scattered about someone's premises, and the suggestion by him that the city should inaugurate a clean-up and haul away the cans and rubbish for rich and poor alike. If there is any premise in Brady in the above-named condition, it is due primarily to the occupants' laziness and neglect and secondarily to oversight upon the part of the city's sanitary committee. Brady has undergone the most thorough "Clean-Up" campaign ever inaugurated, and as set forth in the issue of The Standard for May 15th, if anyone was overlooked in the cleaning, all that remained was to write, phone or wire the city sanitary committee, who would see that a wagon was sent to complete the task.

The Standard is not criticising Mr. Powell. It commends his point of view, and calls attention to these matters simply to show that some Brady citizens at least are and have been alive to these matters in times past and in times present. But the great advantage Brady citizens have over Mr. Powell is that they are enabled to read The Brady Standard and thereby keep informed on local timely topics.

If the roads exhibited in the moving picture story, "The Defense of a Nation," are any criterion, then we would suggest that some of the Texas Good Roads advocates should feel it their Christian duty to go to the New England states and preach the doctrine. New England appears several centuries behind the times when it comes to matters of good roads.

Exciting Runaway.

A runaway which occasioned some excitement took place yesterday afternoon. A young and spirited horse belonging to Paul Irvine which had been tied on the east side of the square, became frightened and broke from its fastenings. In its efforts it overturned the sulky to which was attached, and the bumping and jolting of the vehicle caused it to run faster the farther it went. At the corner of Borchow's store it tore down an awning post and next swung the upturned sulky into a horse and buggy belonging to Mrs. E. W. Marshall, and which had been left standing untied at the curb. The commotion excited the second animal and it started down the street after the runaway, but proved its gentle nature by stopping short when 13-year old Chester Clark shouted "Whoa!" at it.

In the meantime the first animal had kicked itself free and continued its flight uninterrupted for several blocks. No damage resulted except a broken shaft and torn harness.

PENROD

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright, 1914, by Doubleday, Page & Company

SYNOPSIS.

Penrod, fearing the ordeal of playing the part of the Child Sir Lancelot, seeks forgetfulness in the composition of a dime novel.

Penrod's mother and sister dress him in his costume for the "Children's Pageant of the Round Table." Penrod is ashamed to wear it.

He breaks up the whole party by putting on a pair of the janitor's overalls over his costume.

A visit to a moving picture show gives him an idea and he loafs away his time in school, dreaming dreams.

The teacher reproves him. He seeks to distract attention from himself by alleging loss of sleep because of a drunken uncle.

The teacher sympathizes with Penrod's aunt because of her wayward husband, and it then develops that Penrod has been lying.

Penrod, Sam Williams and two colored boys, Herman and Verman, get up a big show to entertain the town.

Verman makes a decided hit, but Roderick Magworth Bitts, Jr., says the show is a failure. Penrod asks him if he is a relation of Rena Magworth, a murderer.

Roderick, seeking fame, says she is his aunt. Roderick's mother finds him posing as a nephew of the murderer and stops the circus.

Penrod gets very musical and buys an accordion, with which he makes a great hit with beautiful Marjorie Jones.

At the big and noisy show Penrod eats so many different varieties of indigestible things that he takes violently ill.

Rupe Collins, a very tough boy, bullies Penrod and at once becomes a great hero in Penrod's eyes.

CHAPTER XV.

The Imitator.

MEANWHILE, for Penrod himself, "life had taken on new meaning, new richness." He had become a fighting man in conversation at least. "Do you want to know how I do when they try to slip up on me from behind?" he asked Della. And he enacted for her unappreciative eye a scene of fistic maneuvers wherein he held an imaginary antagonist helpless in a net of stratagems.

Frequently, when he was alone, he would outfit and pummel this same enemy, and, after a cunning feint, land a dolorous stroke full upon a face of air. "There! I guess you'll know better next time. That's the way we do up at the Third!"

Sometimes in solitary pantomime he encountered more than one opponent at a time, for numbers were apt to come upon him treacherously, especially at a little after his rising hour, when he might be caught at a dead advantage—perhaps standing on one leg to brace the other in his knickerbockers. Like lightning he would hunt the trapping garment from him, and, ducking and pivoting, deal great sweeping blows among the circle of sneaking devils. (That was how he broke the clock in his bedroom.) And while these battles were occupying his attention, it was a waste of voice to call him to breakfast, though if his mother, losing patience, came to his room, she would find him seated on the bed pulling at a stocking. "Well, ain't I coming as fast as I can?"

At the table and about the house generally he was bumptious, loud with fatuous misinformation and assumed a domineering tone, which neither satire nor reproof seemed able to reduce, but it was among his own intimates that his new superiority was most outrageous. He twisted the fingers and squeezed the necks of all the boys of the neighborhood, meeting their indignation with a hoarse and rasping laugh he had acquired after short practice in the stable, where he jeered and taunted the lawnmower, the garden scythe and the wheelbarrow quite out of countenance.

Likewise he bragged to the other boys by the hour, Rupe Collins being the chief subject of encomium—next to Penrod himself. "That's the way we do up at the Third," became staple explanation of violence, for Penrod, like Tartarin, was plastic in the hands of his own imagination, and at times convinced himself that he really was one of those dark and murderous spirits exclusively of whom "the Third" was composed—according to Rupe Collins.

Then, when Penrod had exhausted himself repeating to nudes accounts of the prowess of himself and his great friend, he would turn to two other subjects for vainglory. These were his father and Duke.

Mothers must accept the fact that between babyhood and manhood their sons do not boast of them. The boy, with boys, is a Choctaw, and either the influence or the protection of women is shameful. "Your mother won't let you," is an insult. But, "My father won't let me," is a dignified explanation and cannot be hooted. A boy is ruined among his fellows if he talks much of his mother or sisters, and he must recognize it as his duty to offer at least the appearance of persecution to all things ranked as female, such as cats and every species of fowl. But he must champion his father and his dog, and, ever ready to pit either against any challenger, must picture both as ravening for battle and absolutely unconquerable.

Penrod, of course, had always talked by the code, but, under the new stimulus, Duke was represented virtually as a cross between Bob, Son of Battle, and South American vampire, and this in spite of the fact that Duke himself often sat close by, a living lie, with the hope of peace in his heart. As for Penrod's father, that gladiator was painted as of sentiments and dimensions suitable to a superdemon composed of equal parts of Goliath, Jack Johnson and the Emperor Nero.

Even Penrod's walk was affected. He adopted a gait which was a kind of taunting swagger, and when he passed other children on the street he practiced the habit of feinting a blow; then as the victim dodged he rasped out the triumphant horse laugh which he gradually mastered to horrible perfection. He did this to Marjorie Jones. Aye, this was their next meeting, and such is Eros, young. What was even worse, in Marjorie's opinion, he went on his way without explanation and left her standing on the corner talking about it long after he was out of hearing.

Within five days from his first encounter with Rupe Collins, Penrod had become unbearably. He even almost alienated Sam Williams, who for a time submitted to finger twisting and neck squeezing and the new style of conversation, but finally declared that Penrod made him "sick." He made the statement with fervor one sultry afternoon in Mr. Schofield's stable in the presence of Herman and Verman.

"You better look out, 'bo," said Penrod threateningly. "I'll show you a little how we do up at the Third."

"Up at the Third!" Sam repeated, with scorn. "You haven't ever been up there."

"I haven't?" exclaimed Penrod. "I haven't?"

"No, you haven't."

"Looky here," Penrod, darkly argumentative, prepared to perform the eye to eye business. "When haven't I been up there?"

"You haven't never been up there."

In spite of Penrod's closely approaching nose Sam maintained his ground and appealed for confirmation. "Has he, Herman?"

"I don't reckon so," said Herman, laughing.

"What!" Penrod transferred his pose to the immediate vicinity of Herman's nose. "You don't reckon so, 'bo, don't you? You better look out now you reckon around here. You understand that, 'bo?"

Herman bore the eye to eye very well. Indeed, it seemed to please him, for he continued to laugh, while Verman chuckled delightedly. The brothers had been in the country picking berries for a week, and it happened that this was their first experience of the new manifestation of Penrod.

"Haven't I been up at the Third?" the sulister Penrod demanded.

"I don't reckon so. How come you ask me?"

"Didn't you just hear me say I been up there?"

"Well," said Herman mischievously, "hearin' ain't believin'!"

Penrod clutched him by the back of the neck, but Herman, laughing loudly, ducked and released himself at once, retreating to the wall.

"You take that back!" Penrod shouted, striking out wildly.

"Don't git mad," begged the small darky, while a number of blows falling upon his warding arms failed to abate his amusement, and a sound one upon the cheek only made him laugh the more unrestrainedly. He behaved exactly as if Penrod were tickling him, and his brother, Verman, rolled with joy in a wheelbarrow. Penrod pummeled till he was tired and produced no greater effect.

"There!" he panted, desisting finally. "Now I reckon you know whether I been up there or not!"

Herman rubbed his smitten cheek. "Pow!" he exclaimed. "Pow-ee! You cert'n did lan' me good one nat time! Oo-ee, she hurt!"

"You'll get hurt worse'n that," Penrod assured him, "if you stay around here much. Rupe Collins is comin' this afternoon, he said. We're goin' to make some policemen's bills out of the rake handle."

"You go' spoil new rake you pa bought?"

"What do we care? I and Rupe got to have bills, haven't we?"

"How you make 'em?"

"Melt lead and pour in a hole we're goin' to make in the end of 'em. Then we're goin' to carry 'em in our pockets, and if anybody says anything to us—oh, oh, look out! They won't get a crack on the head—oh, no!"

"When's Rupe Collins comin'?" Sam Williams inquired rather uneasily. He had heard a great deal too much of this personage, but as yet the pleasure of actual acquaintance had been denied him.

"He's habile to be here any time," answered Penrod. "You better look out. You'll be lucky if you get home alive if you stay till he comes."

"I ain't afraid of him," Sam returned conventionally.

"You are too." There was some truth in the retort. "There ain't any boy in this part of town but me that wouldn't be afraid of him. You'd be afraid to talk to him. You wouldn't get a word out of your mouth before old Rupe'd have you where you'd wished you never come around him, lettin' on like you was so much. You wouldn't run home yellin' 'mom-muh' or nothin'. Oh, no!"

"Who Rupe Collins?" asked Herman. "Who Rupe Collins?" Penrod mocked and used his rasping laugh, but instead of showing fight Herman appeared to think he was meant to laugh, too, and so he did, echoed by Verman. "You just hang around here a little while longer," Penrod added grimly, "and you'll find out who Rupe Collins is and I pify you when you do."

"What he go' do?"

"You'll see; that's all. You just wait and see."

At this moment a brown hound ran into the stable through the alley door, wagged a greeting to Penrod and fraternized with Duke. The fat faced boy appeared upon the threshold and gazed coldly about the little company in the carriage house, whereupon the colored brethren, ceasing from merriment, were instantly impassive, and

The Fat Faced Boy Appeared Upon the Threshold and Gazed Coldly About.

Sam Williams moved a little nearer the door leading into the yard.

Obviously Sam regarded the newcomer as a redoubtable if not ominous figure. He was a head taller than either Sam or Penrod, head and shoulders taller than Herman, who was short for his age, and Verman could hardly be used for purposes of comparison at all, being a mere squat brown spot, not yet quite nine years on this planet. And to Sam's mind the aspect of Mr. Collins realized Penrod's portentous foreshadowings. Upon the fat face there was an expression of truculent intolerance which had been cultivated by careful habit to such perfection that Sam's heart sank at sight of it. A somewhat enfeebled twin to this expression had of late often decorated the visage of Penrod and appeared upon that incognituous surface now as he advanced to welcome the eminent visitor.

The host swaggered toward the door with a great deal of shoulder movement, carelessly feinting a slap at Verman in passing and creating by various means the atmosphere of a man who has contemptuously amused himself with underlings while awaiting an equal.

"Hello, 'bo!" Penrod said in the deepest voice possible to him.

"Who you callin' 'bo?" was the ungracious response, accompanied by immediate action of a similar nature. Rupe held Penrod's head in the crook of an elbow and massaged his temples with a hard pressing knuckle.

"I was only in fun, Rupe," pleaded the sufferer, and then, being set free, "Come here, Sam," he said.

"What for?"

Penrod laughed pityingly. "Pshaw, I ain't goin' to hurt you. Come on, Sam, maintainin' his position near the other door, Penrod went to him and caught him round the neck.

"Watch me, Rupe," Penrod called, and performed upon Sam the knuckle operation which he had himself just undergone. Sam submitting mechanically, his eyes fixed with increasing uneasiness upon Rupe Collins. Sam had a premonition that something even more painful than Penrod's knuckle was going to be inflicted upon him.

"That don't hurt," said Penrod, pushing him away.

"Yes, it does, too!" Sam rubbed his temple.

"Fuh! It didn't hurt me, did it, Rupe? Come on in, Rupe; show this baby where he's got a wart on his finger."

"You showed me that trick," Sam objected. "You already did that to me. You tried it twice this afternoon and I don't know how many times before, only you weren't strong enough after the first time. Anyway, I know what it is, and I don't."

"Come on, Rupe," said Penrod. "Make the baby lick dirt."

At this bidding, Rupe approached, while Sam, still protesting, moved to the threshold of the outer door, but Penrod seized him by the shoulders and swung him indoors with a shout.

"Little baby wants to run home to its mom-muh! Here he is, Rupe."

Thereupon was Penrod's treachery to an old comrade properly rewarded, for as the two struggled, Rupe caught each by the back of the neck, simultaneously, and, with creditable impartiality, forced both boys to their knees.

"Lick dirt!" he commanded, forcing them still forward, until their faces were close to the stable floor.

At this moment he received a real surprise. With a loud whack something struck the back of his head, and, turning, he beheld Verman in the act of lifting a piece of lath to strike again.

"E'm moys ome!" said Verman, the giant killer.

"He tongue tie," Herman explained.

"He say, let 'em boys alone."

Rupe addressed his host briefly: "Chase them nigs out o' here!"

"Don't call me nig," said Herman. "I mine my own bizness. You let 'em boys alone."

Rupe strode across the still prostrate Sam, stepped upon Penrod and, equipping his countenance with the terrifying scowl and protruded jaw, lowered his head to the level of Herman's.

"Nig, you'll be lucky if you leave here alive!" And he leaned forward till his nose was within less than an inch of Herman's nose.

It could be felt that something awful was about to happen, and Penrod as he rose from the floor suffered an unexpected twinge of apprehension and remorse. He hoped that Rupe wouldn't really hurt Herman. A sudden dislike of Rupe and Rupe's ways rose within him as he looked at the big boy overwhelming the little darky with that ferocious scowl. Penrod all at once felt sorry about something indefinable, and with equal vagueness he felt foolish. "Come on, Rupe," he suggested feebly. "Let Herman go, and let's us make our bills out of the rake handle."

The rake handle, however, was not available if Rupe had inclined to favor the suggestion. Verman had discarded his lath for the rake, which he was at this moment lifting in the air.

"You ole black nigger," the fat faced boy said venomously to Herman. "I'm a-goin' to—"

But he had allowed his nose to remain too long near Herman's. Penrod's familiar nose had been as close with only a ticklish spinal effect upon the not very remote descendant of Kong as man enters. The result produced by the glare of Rupe's unfamiliar eyes and by the dreadfully suggestive proximity of Rupe's unfamiliar nose was altogether different. Herman's and Verman's Bangala great-grandfathers never considered people of their own jungle neighborhood proper material for a meal, but they looked upon strangers, especially truculent strangers, as distinctly edible.

Penrod and Sam heard Rupe suddenly squawk and bellow, saw him writhe and twist and fling out his arms like flails, though without removing his face from its juxtaposition. Indeed, for a moment the two heads seemed even closer.

Then they separated, and the battle was on!

THE AUTO IN WAR.

Dodge Car Performs Prodigies in Demonstration Test.

A picture of unusual interest and educational value was that shown at the Lyric theatre on Wednesday and Thursday night of last week, in which the Dodge car was theoretically placed in the service of the U. S. government during an invasion.

The car shown was a stock model and was the first car ever sold in Boston. At that time the "Preparedness" campaign was sweeping the country—and the owner of the Dodge saw an opportunity to demonstrate what a wonderful and sturdy car he had. The car was placed in secret service and given the mission of carrying a message to each of the governors of the New England states under every manner of difficulties and all sorts of weather conditions. Huge snow drifts proved no serious obstacle to the sturdy car; it climbed over roads that should be considered impassable, slid down steep bluffs; butted right through rock wall fences; forded streams and swamps, and as a grand climax walked right along carrying 39 soldiers of Uncle Sam perched upon it wherever they could find room to sit or stand.

Despite all the hard knocks, and the extraordinary hard usage, the car is still giving good service, being at present in daily use in one of the army corps, and looking little the worse for its strenuous life.

The pictures has been shown in a number of Texas cities, and everywhere has occasioned wide-spread comment. It was shown in Brady through the enterprise of F. R. Wulff, local agent for the Dodge car, and as an advertisement of more than ordinary merit it has probably few equals.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Another Recruit.

A. H. Kern, of the Navy Recruiting Station at Dalles, was in the city last week, getting recruits for Uncle Sam, and Saturday night left for Dallas accompanied by John Campbell, who passed the examination successfully Sunday. On account of the crowded condition of the naval training camp at Great Lakes, Ill., and also at the other training camps, young Campbell was placed on the reserve list and returned Monday to Brady to await call.

John Campbell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Campbell of the Waldrip community. He is 17 years old, and because of his youth, he would not be obliged to serve the full four years term, but would complete his enlistment in three years and five months. He is anxious to see the world, and at the same time serve his country, and for this reason, and with the consent of his parents, sought enlistment.

Added to Officers' Reserve.

Hubert Adkins, who passed the examination for entrance in the Officers Reserve training camp at Leon Springs, but who was later notified not to come because the crowded conditions made it necessary to reduce the number in the training camp, left last week to join the corps. New arrangements permitted the addition of 400 more men, and Adkins was notified to report for enrollment. This makes four Brady men now at the training camp, viz: T. P. Grant, Evans Adkins, C. W. Carter, Hubert Adkins.

CHAUTAUQUA HAS SPLENDID START

Great Crowd Throngs Tabernacle on Opening Day—Hear Castellucci and Powell

The Brady chautauqua opened auspiciously in Brady on yesterday afternoon, with a concert program by Castellucci's famous band of Italian serenaders. There was a great attendance, the big tabernacle being filled almost to capacity. The program rendered by the band was exquisitely harmonious and tuneful and met with hearty applause and popular approval. Each member of the band is individually an artist, and each demonstrates his wonderful talent in solo performance. As a composite body they blend as one into the most wonderful harmony. The evening program was likewise enjoyable, ranging from the classic to the popular and from quick-step to sacred and patriotic music.

Concluding the performance last night was Ernest J. Powell, community lecturer, a wonderful and forceful speaker, in whose address was intermingled food for serious reflection with tales that brought laughter and applause and incidentally which drove his point home. Mr. Powell is a strong and firm believer in the home town, and in the homology of interests of those who make up the home town. His doctrine is to build your home town by patronizing your financial and moral support to the institutions of the city in which you make your home. If all of us practiced this policy, what a wonderful town would we have.

Not to be overlooked was the pretty compliment paid Mrs. W. N. White by Mr. Powell for the most attractive and prettiest decorated platform he had been on since starting on the chautauqua course. His compliment brought a roar of applause that fairly shook the auditorium, and demonstrated merited appreciation of Mrs. White's efforts. Not only is credit due Mrs. White in this behalf, but both she and Mrs. F. W. Henderson and Mr. N. T. Cook as well, have been tireless in advocating the chautauqua, in the sale of tickets and in the completing of every arrangement for its success.

Actively assisting them and devoting all of his spare time in the matter has been Mr. Ben Moffatt, representing the fire boys. And while both members of the fire department and several of the ten citizens who signed the guarantee have also lent their assistance, without the special effort put forth by the ladies and gentlemen above-named, the Brady chautauqua would have been doomed to certain failure instead of the certain success which is now assured.

The following is the program for the balance of the chautauqua:
Wednesday afternoon—Hungarian Ladies' Quartet; Dr. D. T. Robertson. Wednesday night—Hungarian Ladies' Quartet; Dr. H. V. Adams. Thursday afternoon—The Berkeley Sextet; Pearl O'Neil. Thursday night—The Berkeley Sextet; Pearl O'Neil. Friday afternoon—The Kilties Band; Popular Concert. Friday night—The Kilties Band; Full Grand Concert.

To Cure a Cold in One Day
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine. It stops the Cough and Headache and works off the Cold. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature on each box. 25c.

How about your watch? Is it keeping correct time? If not, let us remedy the trouble for you. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Grant, jeweler, east side square.

Resolutions of Respect.
Whereas, the Unseen Hand has stolen in and taken one of our Field Flowers, District Deputy J. H. Martin, Thursday morning, May 3rd, he was called to join the innumerable throng, therefore be it

Resolved, that this district has lost a loyal and active deputy; this council a faithful and vigilant member; this community a true and noble Christian character and the home bereft of a tender and affectionate husband and father.

Resolved, that we extend to them our heartiest sympathy and love in this the hour of their deepest bereavement. We can only present our supplication to Him who can speak peace to the troubled soul. It is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory." "Death, where is thy sting?" "O, Grave, where is thy victory?"

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be printed in our city papers; sent to the Praetorian Guard and to Sister J. H. Martin, and be spread on the minutes of the Brady Council.

Respectfully,
MRS. C. W. BASHAW,
A. W. WALKER,
PEARL WALTERS,
Committee.

"A SPLENDID TONIC"

Says Hixson Lady Who, On Doctor's Advice, Took Cardui And Is Now Well.

Hixson, Tenn.—"About 10 years ago I was..." says Mrs. J. B. Gadd, of this place. "I suffered with a pain in my left side, could not sleep at night with this pain, always in the left side..."

My doctor told me to use Cardui. I took one bottle, which helped me and after my baby came, I was stronger and better, but the pain was still there.

I at first let it go, but began to get weak and in a run-down condition, so I decided to try some more Cardui, which I did.

This last Cardui which I took made me much better. In fact, cured me. It has been a number of years, still I have no return of this trouble.

I feel it was Cardui that cured me, and I recommend it as a splendid female tonic."

Don't allow yourself to become weak and run-down from womanly troubles. Take Cardui. It should surely help you, as it has so many thousands of other women in the past 40 years. Headache, backache, sideache, nervousness, sleeplessness, tired-out feeling, are all signs of womanly trouble. Other women get relief by taking Cardui. Why not you? All druggists.

AUXILIARY RED CROSS SOCIETY

Organization Formally Completed Saturday at Methodist Tabernacle.

Following the reception last week at the residence of Mrs. G. R. White for the purpose of raising funds for the Red Cross work, and also to inform the ladies of Brady as to the objects and purposes of such an organization, an enthusiastic meeting was held last Saturday afternoon at the Methodist tabernacle, and the local Red Cross society was formally organized and voted an auxiliary to the Brownwood lodge. The necessary blanks were filled and forwarded requesting recognition as such, and the local organization will be set to work as soon as instructions are received from the parent body at Brownwood.

Officers of the local society were named as follows: Mrs. G. R. White, chairman; Mrs. J. R. Stone, corresponding secretary; Miss Mary Brook, recording secretary; Mrs. Chas. T. White, treasurer.

The next meeting of the club is set for Wednesday afternoon of next week, May 30th, at 4:00 o'clock, and will be held in the club room of the Tuesday club at the Presbyterian church. Some 34 members were enrolled at the meeting last Saturday, and it is hoped to swell this number to nearly a hundred. Everyone interested in this patriotic service is urged to enroll their name as a member of the organization.

A CHILD HATES OIL, CALOMEL, PILLS FOR LIVER AND BOWELS.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" If Cross, Sick, Feverish, Constipated.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Store Burglarized.

During or immediately after the rain storm of early Monday morning, the store of Wilensky Bros. was burglarized. Entrance to the building was gained thru a rear window. A box of shirts and possibly some shoes are the only articles missed so far. A short while ago the same store was burglarized, a broken glass in the front show window having been carefully removed and several shirts, hats and other articles displayed in the window removed. No trace of the miscreants have so far been discovered. It is evident that the last-named burglary occurred after the rain, as the shoe prints were plainly visible in the soft earth.

MASONIC LODGE NOW AT MELVIN

Melvin Masonic lodge came into existence last Saturday night, at which time District Deputy W. B. McKenzie, assisted by members of the Brady lodge, went to Melvin and set the new order to work under a six months' dispensation. Accompanying Mr. McKenzie were S. H. Mayo, S. J. Striegler, M. S. Sellers, Ben Anderson, E. T. Jordan. Some 12 members detached from the Brady lodge, and members demitting from other lodges, brings the initial membership of the new lodge up to 22, with a number of applicants seeking membership. While the new lodge will not receive a charter until fall, it will, nevertheless, meet at stated intervals with three principal officers as follows: Oscar Sellers, Worshipful Master; E. T. Jordan, Senior Warden; W. L. Cain, Junior Warden.

WHAT IS LAX-FOS

LAX-FOS IS AN IMPROVED CASCARA
A DIGESTIVE LAXATIVE
CATHARTIC AND LIVER TONIC

LAX-FOS is not a Secret or Patent Medicine but is composed of the following old-fashioned roots and herbs:

CASCARA BARK
BLUE FLAG ROOT
RHUBARB ROOT
BLACK ROOT
MAY APPLE ROOT
SENNA LEAVES AND PEPSIN

In LAX-FOS the CASCARA is improved by the addition of these digestive ingredients making it better than ordinary CASCARA, and thus the combination acts not only as a stimulating laxative and cathartic but also as a digestive and liver tonic. Syrup laxatives are weak, but LAX-FOS combines strength with palatable, aromatic taste and does not grip or disturb the stomach. One bottle will prove LAX-FOS is invaluable for Constipation, Indigestion or Torpid Liver. Price 50c.
