RETURN FROM TRIP.

W. F. Dutton and Family Make Extensive Visit.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dutton and son, Georgie, returned last Friday from an extensive trip and visit to Southwestern Texas and Old Mexico. Primarily they went to visit the Davis' Bros. ranch near Del Rio. The Davis boys, Emery and Lynn, have been out in that section for the past eight years, have a splendid 24-section ranch, and are successfully devoting their endeavors to sheep and goat raising. The brothers have just disposed of their wool and mohair—$26,000 worth. Their brothers, Johnnie, Van and Bea Davis are employed with them on the ranch. Mr. Dutton says the two or three days they spent on the ranch were thoroughly enjoyed and many wonderful sights greeted their eyes. Most vivid in his recollection are the wild musk hogs, which abound in that country.

From the Davis ranch the party went to Del Rio, to spend the 4th of July, and where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Galoway, a prominent ranchman of that country, and father-in-law of Emery L. Davis. The Galoway home in Del Rio is one of the finest and most comfortable in all that country, and fully matched the hospitality extended the visitors, who were royally entertained by Miss Victoria Galoway, Johnnie and Huse Galoway and Little Huse Miers, a grandson. While in Del Rio, they had the pleasure of meeting several prominent ranchmen—Bob Miers, Will Gurvey, Frank Galoway and family and others.

A fishing trip into Old Mexico was planned and a party made up of the following: J. B. Lane, a ranchman of Old Mexico, better known as "Buck, the Pilot;" "Pizen Pete," the cook; John Galoway, Mr. and Mrs. Emery Davis, Little Beatrice Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Davis, Little Dora, Violet and Edith Davis; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dutton and son, Georgie. Just before driving their cars on the ferry to cross the Rio Grande, the members of the party were searched by Uncle Sam's guards, and after crossing they were again searched by the Mexican soldiers. The Mexicans treated them with the highest respect. A few hours were spent in Las Vacas, on the Rio Grande, shopping and getting acquainted with the natives. There permits were obtained for the party to remain in Mexico during their trip.

On leaving Las Vacas, the party passed through a farming district under irrigation, and crops looking fine. About 25 miles out on Las Vacas creek, camp was sent up, and while "Pizen Pete" arranged for supper, "Buck" Lane, the pilot, caught fish enough for the whole party for supper and breakfast, and some to throw to the hogs.

On the return, the party stopped at No Vejas lake, which furnishes water to irrigate a large tract of land.

Mr. Dutton says the trip was one long to be remembered, and the hospitality and courtesies of the people with whom he met and associated will linger long in his memory.

ALL SELECTIVE
DRAWING AT ONCE

Entire Number Registered Will Know When Wanted—Drawing by Secretary Baker.

Washington, July 12.—Secretary Baker announced today that in drawing to select men for draft into the war army numbers will be drawn representing every one of the nearly 10,000,000 registered so that each man know the order in which he is liable to be called for service.

Liability will be fixed by the order in which the names come out. There are some 6,000 districts with numbered registration cards, so that the first number drawn will represent first 6,000 to appear before the exemption boards.

It is estimated that 50 per cent of the men examined will be exempted or fail to pass the physical examination, so that more than a million men probably will appear before the boards before the 687,000 or more wanted on the first call are obtained.

The ceremony of the drawing will begin with prayer. Either the chaplain of the senate or the chief army chaplain will officiate. Then blindfolded, Secretary Baker or his representative, will draw the first number.

The numbers will be in a large receptacle, each enclosed in a glass globe. The numerals themselves will be written in red ink on white paper and carefully rolled up and placed within the black glass capsule. The first drawing will be made for Alabama and the drafting will continue through the alphabetical number of the states, concluding with Wyoming.

Alabama Will Be First.
In the receptacle will be placed globules containing numbers to correspond to the number of registered men in the list containing the greatest number. That is, if there are fifty districts in Alabama and the sixteenth district has the greatest number of registrants, say 500, there will be 500 numbers in the bowl, Alabama, say, is called upon to furnish 50,000 men. On the first drawing to carry out the example, say No. 2 is drawn. That would mean that the man whose card bore the No. 2 in all the fifty districts would be drawn. Suppose No. 500 was drawn. It might be that only one district would have 500 registrants. So only one man would be selected on that draw, while fifty were on the other.

As the globe is drawn by the blindfolded man, he hands it to another official beside him who opens it, draws out the printed slip bearing the number and holding it up so that all around can see reads it aloud. A third official in charge of the registration lists marks off immediately the men drawn.

This process will continue all the way through the states. The bowl will be refilled for each state. It is estimated that the entire draft will be completed within a day.

Notification will immediately be sent to the local boards of the men drafted and they will make the names public from their own lists. The names also will be made public here from the duplicate lists in possession of the war department.

The first call to the colors will be for 687,000 but the entire draft will be completed at one time and the 687,000 will be selected from those who were first to be drawn. Others will be held in reserve for later call if needed.

SOLICITING FUNDS.

Brady Citizens Subscribe for Odd Fellows Entertainment.

Messrs. Henry Hodges and W. D. Crothers formed a committee yesterday who were soliciting subscriptions to a fund for the entertainment of the West Texas Odd Fellows and Rebekahs association, which meets in Brady July 25 and 26 and met with quite liberal response from the citizens.

Among the features of entertainment so far planned is a barbecue on Wednesday, the 25th. Quite a number of well-fattened goats have been contracted for, and the barbecue is to be supplemented with great quantities of bread, pickles, coffee and other requisites while the Rebekahs will provide pies, cakes and pastries for the occasion. This event is being arranged for the Odd Fellows and their families as well as for the visitors in attendance upon the convention.

Arrangements have been made for the holding of the meetings in the Methodist tabernacle.

SHOWERS AROUND.

Local in Nature, but Serve to Cool Atmosphere.

The intensely humid atmosphere the past three days, has been followed by a shower each afternoon. Tuesday and Wednesday the shower was but a mere spatter, while yesterday afternoon about 3-20 of an inch fell—sufficient to lay the dust and to cool the atmosphere considerably. Wednesday it is reported a good rain fell over a small territory in both the Pear Valley and Melvin communities. Yesterday the rain appeared as quite a heavy shower northeast of here and also northwest, the rain going around to the west, and latter it appeared that a heavy rain was being had to the south and southwest. About four miles out on the Brownwood road a heavy rain, extending to Rochelle, was had, but just west on the Santa Anna road no rain fell at all. Hopes are still entertained for a good general rain, and the showers, light as they are, serve largely to keep this hope alive.

If you need furniture we want to figure with you. We will either sell you or see that you get it at the right price. O. D. Mann & Sons.

BARNUM & BAILEY.

Perhaps many of our readers are familiar with the tale—others may not be. Anyway it is a tale worth repeating.

T. P. Barnum and Mr. Bailey at one time conducted separate shows. Barnum's was by far the larger and better show, but Bailey was by far the better advertiser. Bailey had as his chief attraction "Jumbo," which was, and which he advertised as the biggest elephant in the world. Barnum said to make his show complete he must have Jumbo, and he sent his agents to buy Jumbo. Bailey wouldn't sell. Barnum repeated his offers, raising them a little at a time. Finally Barnum sent Bailey a telegram making an unheard of offer for Jumbo. Barnum received no answer, but what was his surprise a day or two later when he entered one of the towns on his scudde to find Bailey's big show bills pasted all over the dead walls of the town, advertising "Jumbo, the Biggest Elephant in the World," and alongside the show bills a huge reproduction of Barnum's telegram offering the fabulous sum for Jumbo.

Barnum said, "Hell, we don't Jumbo; we want Bailey," and he forthwith formed the partnership of Barnum & Bailey, whose name is a household word wherever the big-topped tents have been erected. And Bailey, with his little show and one big attraction, secured a partnership with the biggest showman of the times simply because he knew how to advertise, and DID ADVERTISE.

A PRINTER'S ROCKY PATH.

Printing the news is like printing photographs. The photographer has a world of retouching to do to make the finished picture fit to grace our albums and library tables. Should he deliver them to his customer as the camera made them they would be hurled back in his face while he soon would be begging aims or selling pencils for a living. So it is with the everyday happenings of life that go to make up the sum total of the news of the day or the week. The news gatherer, too, must do some retouching, otherwise either the surgeon or the undertaker would be called to attend him. Telling the truth is commendable; the unvarnished truth, hazardous.—Leonard Graphic.

Reference required. Address J. M. Kirkpatrick, President, Topeka, Kansas.

A PATRIOTIC COMMUNITY.

Our neighboring city, Granger, deserves special mention in the matter of showing patriotism, and when the returns are all in will probably head the list of Texas towns in sending soldiers to the front. Granger's population is 2,000, and to date she has sent 12 per cent of her population to the war. Not only that, but her citizens bought $21,000 worth of Liberty Bonds, and contributed over $10,000 in cash to the Red Cross fund last week. All honor to Granger—Rockdale Reporter.

As the champion patriotic community, Granger should win hands down, and while Brady and many other places have reason to be proud of their own record, they still take off their hats to this city. At that, Granger's population is not wholly American, as might be supposed, but is largely Bohemian. But they seem to be red-blooded and Americans above everything else.

That the newspapers have been and are still doing their bit—giving publicity to all sorts of government propositions in the present crisis, cannot be denied by anyone and all this work without money and without price. Had it not been for the wide publicity donated by the newspapers no such success could have been attained in the recent Liberty Loan Bond proposition. Still the government persists in unmercifully taxing the newspapers in postage rates, besides inflicting numerous other restrictions that tend to render existence almost impossible. We often wonder how much gratis assistance has been rendered the government by that big Dayton, Ohio, concern that prints government envelopes in competition with local printers.—Hamilton Record.

A Little Advertising Talk.

(By J. R. Hamilton, Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia.)

It is an ordinary thing these days to pick up the paper and see the manufacturer of some well-known automobile, for example, asking you for any suggestion toward the improvement of his car; or to find a clothing manufacturer asking you to suggest a name for a standard suit that he is putting out; or even to see some maker of a staple product offering to have you try his goods at his expense.

A short time ago the whole of New York city was treated to a can of milk for breakfast. A little bit later another city was invited to a dinner of pork and beans absolutely free.

There is hardly a product today that you cannot buy and send back again if it does not live up to the statements that were made about it in the advertisements.

You go to a store for a suit of clothes and later on you find the color fades. You take it back without the slightest hesitation. The storekeeper thanks you for helping him catch the error. He sends it back to the manufacturer and the chances are the maker in turn will thank the storekeeper for helping him locate the trouble in time and so saving his commercial neck.

Now, with a condition like this—with every effort possible being made to serve you, the buying public, does it seem fair on your part to overlook this most important feature of trade—the advertising?

If it were not for the advertising and for the effort of every manufacturer and every distributor to live up to what he says in the advertising, you would be robbed forty times a day and nobody would care two straws.

The point is that the thing that protects you most, you pay attention least. It is absolute carelessness on your part to spend your money with any concern of any kind that does not place itself on record behind its merchandise. And not only is it careless to do so, but it works a positive harm to the men who are trying to uphold the standard of their goods and protect your interests.

Now, suppose you lend your aid to the general cause and maintenance of good goods.

Whatever you are going to buy, make up your mind to buy through advertising. Give these makers and merchants the benefit of your trade. Turn to the advertising in this paper and see what they have to sell. Patronize them with your pocketbook. You will get better service, better goods, better prices, and, best of all, you will get more security than has ever been known before in the history of trade, and far more than ever would have been known if it hadn't been for this great publicity plan.

The constant reading of advertising is the price of commercial liberty for all of us.

This may sound a little unreasonable perhaps, but you have only to see our buggies and talk to users of them to be convinced. To many families we are selling the second and third buggy; one for each boy as he grows old enough.

The Hercules people are the largest builders of light pleasure and business vehicles in the world, in fact they compare favorably that way with Henry Ford, and that, together with the fact that they sell strictly for cash is the secret of why they can make buggies and sell them to us so we can sell them at about the price we would have to pay other manufacturers.

GLAD TO TESTIFY

Says Watoga Lady, "As To What Cardui Has Done For Me, So As To Help Others."

Watoga, W. Va.—Mrs. S. W. Gladwell, of this town, says: "When about 15 years of age, I suffered greatly... Sometimes would go a month or two, and I had terrible headache, backache, and bearing-down pains, and would just drag and had no appetite. Then... it would last... two weeks, and was so weakening, and my health was awful.

My mother bought me a bottle of Cardui, and I began to improve after taking the first bottle, so kept it up till I took three... I gained, and was well and strong, and I owe it all to Cardui. I am married now and have 3 children... Have never had to have a doctor for female trouble, and just resort to Cardui if I need a tonic. I am glad to testify to what it has done for me, so as to help others."

If you are nervous or weak, have headaches, backaches, or any of the other ailments so common to women, why not give Cardui a trial? Recommended by many physicians. In use over 40 years. Begin taking Cardui today. It may be the very medicine you need.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

The many friends of Mrs. Holmes Doole of Eden will be pleased to learn that she is recovering nicely from an operation at a local sanitarium. Mrs. Doole's condition has been very serious, and her improvement is very gratifying.

Add J. Q. Lankford to the list of home owners in Brady. Mr. Lankford has purchased the J. U. Silvers home in the southeast part of the city, and is having the same remodeled and improved to suit his fancy for occupancy by himself.

The many friends of Mrs. Owen Hornburg are very much concerned over her condition, which shows no sign of improvement in spite of the operation which she underwent a couple months ago. Rev. Hornburg expects to carry her to Temple, possibly the first of next week, for another operation.

J. T. Freeman returned last Saturday from Dallas, accompanied by Mrs. Freeman, who had been at the Baptist sanitarium there several weeks for an operation and treatment, and their many friends are pleased to learn of her greatly improved condition, while hopes are entertained for full restoration to health within a short while.

Deputy Sheriff Ed Lindeman is getting about on crutches this week in consequence of a badly injured leg. While bathing in the San Saba river, Mr. Lindeman attempted a fancy dive, and came in contact with a sharp jutting rock which laid open his leg and shivered the bone. The injury has caused him considerable pain and no little inconvenience.

J. D. Holmes was in Brady Wednesday from Route 1 out of Rochelle. Mr. Holmes reports some rain Tuesday in the Cow Creek community, and a wind-storm accompanying it that blew down part of the Cow Creek school house. He says all old maize and corn is burnt up, but is still in hopes of a rain to save his cotton and late feed. Mr. Holmes has a son in New Mexico who writes that it is also mighty dry out there. Fortunately his son has the position of mail carrier and does not have to depend entirely on his agricultural endeavors for a living and hopes to be able to remain there long enough to prove up the land on which he has filed.

John P. Duke, who is located in Tulsa, Okla., still thinks of his old home and will read all about the happenings here thru The Standard the coming year.

RED BILL.

Are You One of Them?

There are a great many people who would be very much benefited by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a weak or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Searl, Baldwinville, N. W., relates her experience in the use of these tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago, and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Our druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home, and the first dose relieved me wonderfully, and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve pain, but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence.

Resolutions.

Whereas, departed this life, June the 25th, 1917, Mrs. Maggie Henderson, wife of F. W. Henderson, both charter members of the First Presbyterian church of Brady, Texas.

Resolved: That in considering the life of our sister in Christ, and our friend and neighbor, language is wholly inadequate to express the emotions of our hearts, and these resolutions are not intended to bring any honor to the name of our beloved sister but to so raise to view those characteristics manifest in her life, that they may serve as a stimulus to others to emulate her life. She was an ideal Christian under all circumstances and in all places subject to her Lord's call; in her prayers in the Sabbath school and other places, her voice and language manifested her conscious feeling of the presence of God, and a deep assurance of God's love for his chosen ones; her life was indeed a "shining light and a living epistle of her Lord," and we here commend to all others her life, clean, holy, and full of good works; her life, so lived could end only in the admiration of all who knew her and in eternal joys at her Father's right hand.

Resolved: That these resolutions be recorded in the records of the session of this church and a copy furnished each of the editors of the papers of our city, and one copy be given to our brother, F. W. Henderson, and one to her sister, Mrs. Lucie Wooten.

That we extend to them our deepest sympathy.

FENTON'S WAGER

By JOHN ELKINS

(Copyright, 1917, by W. G. Chapman.)

Bruce Fenton was walking briskly away from the barber's when a man blocked his way.

"Isn't this Bruce Fenton?" he asked.

"Why, Jack Forbush!" exclaimed the other with hand extended. "Where did you hail from?"

"Come and dine with me, and I'll tell you."

"Thanks, I can't. I've a special engagement."

"Oh come now," urged Forbush. "I haven't seen you in seven years. You've got to eat somewhere, and we'll hustle."

Fenton went somewhat under protest, but the delight of again seeing his old friend was too great a temptation to set aside. He was ushered into an apartment handsomely furnished in the oriental style. A subtle odor of exquisite perfume was everywhere.

"Well you must have been knocking around in the far East!" observed Fenton.

"I have."

Fenton looking about the room, discovered a slender thread of blue smoke rising from a cabinet in a corner.

"Where did you find that insense burner? It's wonderful!"

Forbush smiled a bit mysteriously. "I promised not to tell," he said.

Fenton looked questioningly at the other man. "Have you become a Parsee, a Rosicrucian, or a Brahmin?" he queried.

"Perhaps a little of all three," was the rather ambiguous answer.

The dinner was extremely good, and well served by an irreproachable waiter. After the second course Fenton nervously looked at his watch.

"I must be out of here in fifteen minutes," he said.

"What! You don't mean to slight my dinner that way!"

"I'm sorry—but I told you I had a pressing engagement."

"Pretty woman?" ventured Forbush a trifle sardonically.

"The loveliest in the world!"

"I thought so. To most men there are only two important engagements, business and women. That careful manœuvring seemed to point toward a lady. But am I not to have a peep at her?"

"Perhaps so, some day."

"After she is securely yours?"

"Exactly. After that."

Fenton beamed. It was his turn to become mysterious. His friend regarded him curiously. Friend meeting his eye became serious.

"Somehow, you don't seem to be the same man I used to know," he said.

"Perhaps I'm not," laughed Forbush.

"You know after seven years we may not have one atom of our old selves. I hope I haven't."

"Your eyes have changed," said the other man slowly and curiously. Then he looked at his watch. "Only ten minutes more." And he vigorously attacked his salad.

"I'll bet you stay half an hour," laughed his host.

"I'll bet I don't."

"How much?"

"Fifty dollars."

"Lord! you are hard hit, old chap."

"Put up your money," laughed Fenton. "I can use it just now."

Forbush hastily wrote a check which the other covered with bills.

"What did you mean about my eyes looking strange?" asked Forbush. "I wish you'd look carefully, and tell me."

Fenton looked searchingly into his host's eyes. They seemed to hold his gaze in some unaccountable way. He did not speak, but sat still as though fascinated. Presently his eyes closed, and he sank back in the chair. Forbush regarded the sleeping man with an amused smile. He took out his watch, laid it on the pile of bank notes, and carefully noted the time.

"I guess she'll forgive him if he's fifteen minutes late," he said to himself.

He picked up an evening paper and scanned the contents. After a time he again consulted his watch, and gave a slight start. "Oh, well, only eight minutes overtime for good measure," he thought, and going to the sleeping man, he began making passes over his face. But his subject did not respond as he had expected. He tried all the means of which he knew to bring the man out of his hypnotic sleep. The more nervous and terrified he became the less effect he knew he was having on the unconscious man. He dreaded calling in help for fear of the consequences to himself. After working over Fenton for nearly an hour, the young man opened his eyes, staring about in bewilderment.

"Hurry, Bruce, hurry!" cried Forbush, almost dragging him from the chair.

"What is the matter? Have I been asleep?" He clutched his watch, looked at the time, his face went ashy white, and he staggered back, catching at the table. "Devil! you drugged me!" He sprang to the other man, clutching at his throat.

Forbush held him off while he spoke. "No, no, Bruce, I mesmerized you, just to win the bet. I meant to wake you up on time, and—I couldn't."

Fenton dashed to the telephone. His hand trembled so he could scarcely hold the receiver. Finally he got his number. "It's Bruce Fenton. Yes—yes. Tell her I'll be there in half an hour." And he hung up the receiver. "My God!" he groaned. "What will she think of me? Do you know what you have done? It is nine o'clock. I was to have been married at half-past eight."

The face of the other man went almost as white as his.

"Oh, forgive me, old man! I didn't know."

"You must come with me now," said Bruce, and the two men rushed out, hailed a taxi and were soon on the way to Fenton's hotel. The clerk at the desk, frightened and anxious, met Fenton with a string of telephone calls and messages. The excitement at the home of the bride had penetrated the place, and curious groups stared at the two men. Fenton made the hustiest toilet of his life; but, in spite of it all, he found after he was in the taxi he would be nearer an hour than thirty minutes late.

"It's all of three miles to the house," he groaned. "My God, what can I say?"

"You will have to tell the truth," said Forbush, visibly wincing.

"They won't believe me."

Forbush was forced to acknowledge that probably they wouldn't. As they neared the house he begged to be allowed to remain outside and wait, as he was not in evening dress, but the distracted bridegroom would take no denial. Forbush effaced himself in a corner of the hall as his friend, rushing pell-mell past the curious guests, sought the presence of the bride-elect. She was white, tearless and unforgiving.

"Go in there and explain to the guests. I shall be behind these portieres listening. If I open them you may come and get me. If I do not, there will be no ceremony."

"But Ethel—"

"I advise you to do as she says," broke in her father sternly. "It has been all we could do to keep her from an entire collapse. She must have her way."

The chatter among the guests instantly lushed as Fenton appeared in the drawing room. He told his experience exactly as it had happened. It seemed to Fenton after he had finished as though the silence would crush him. He looked toward the portieres. They remained tightly closed. Just then a noise from an automobile enabled some of the men near the door to indulge in comment. The noise ceased so suddenly that the word "jag" came out unpleasantly distinct.

"That's a lie!" rang out a voice loud enough to be heard by all, and Forbush strode into the room and faced the astonished assembly.

"Jack Forbush!" cried two or three voices at once. He waved back the outstretched hands. "Wait!" he demanded. "I ought to be kicked instead of being spoken to. I am the one responsible for all this. But I want you to know I never dreamed it was his wedding night."

Bruce looked toward the portieres. They were tightly closed. He turned appealingly to Forbush, and his friend understood.

"Whoever said that word, 'jag' ought to apologize!" cried Forbush. "Mr. Fenton never touched either wine or cocktail. When I chaffed him about his total abstinence he—well, I think I must tell you what he said—if he will allow me—"

He looked at Fenton, who nodded his acquiescence. "Jack," he said, "I used to take too much. One year ago I promised to leave it alone. If I hadn't kept my promise, I wouldn't be fit to face the woman I love. That's the one thing she would not forgive. It's all due to her that I'm the decent fellow I am today."

"I can tell you I was pretty much ashamed at having urged him. But when I could not awaken him, I was so frightened and anxious that I forced a few drops of brandy into his mouth. I wouldn't think it necessary to tell all this but for that remark. It means too much to go unexplained."

"Jack! you rascal!" broke in one of the men. "I can believe you did it, since you played that sleep trick on me!"

"But I want it understood," he answered seriously, "this is the last time I play with hypnotism."

Bruce, watching with despairing eyes the closed portieres, saw them open. A woman in white raiment waited for him.

TO OBSERVE SAFETY FIRST DAY AT FAIR

Mothers' Congress Day Designated—President Knight Expects Full Attendance.

Recognizing the importance of the safety first movement, the State Fair of Texas has designated Monday, Oct. 15, as safety first day at the 1917 exposition and special observance of the day will be arranged. The annual meeting of the Texas Safety First organization will be held in Dallas Oct. 15 and 16 and it is expected that a large number of the members of this organization will be on hand for the meeting.

President R. E. L. Knight has also announced that Friday, Oct. 19, will be set aside as Mothers' Congress day at the 1917 fair. In conference with officers of the congress, President Knight was told that there would be a large attendance and that the meeting of the congress would be made one of the features of the fair.

Secretary W. H. Stratton announced that plans have been completed for remodeling the dairy barns where the dairy cattle are exhibited and where the dairy demonstrations are held. The entrance to the building will be rebuilt to make the front much more attractive and the interior will be rearranged and improved, giving wider aisles and other conveniences, lack of which has heretofore proved somewhat of a handicap.

Interest in County Exhibits. Particular interest is being shown this year in the county exhibits and correspondence on file in the secretary's office indicates that a greater number of counties will exhibit than ever before. Bountiful crops throughout practically every section of the State have given almost every county wonderful products to display and large numbers of counties are taking advantage of these opportunities. This, coupled with the fact that free exhibit space is offered in a commodious, well-lighted and well-ventilated building, will undoubtedly make the county exhibit of great value, according to Secretary Stratton. One section of West Texas has signed up for more than twenty counties and others are expected to enter.

President Knight is particularly enthusiastic about the amusement program which has been arranged for the 1917 fair.

"We are looking forward to entertaining between 1,250,000 and 1,500,000 people at the 1917 fair," President Knight said, "and we want to be prepared to satisfy perfectly all of these folks. Last year, it will be remembered, the attendance at the State Fair was a little over a million. With the bountiful crops of the present season and these crops bringing higher prices than was ever before known, there is going to be a period of great prosperity throughout Texas. The people are going to have more money than ever before and they are going to have a good time on part of the surplus. This means, to my mind, that they are going to flock to the State Fair in numbers such as have never before been dreamed of and that attendance records of the past will be smashed to smithereens."

WAR SPECTACLE IS PROCURED FOR FAIR.

Advance notices of "The War of Nations," to be shown at the State Fair of Texas, Oct. 13 to 28, proclaim this the greatest pyrotechnical display ever created and one which may establish a standard for years to come. "Many thousands of dollars have been spent in building the settings for this gigantic fireworks display," R. E. L. Knight, president of the State Fair, said. "Patrons of the 1917 fair will witness a spectacle as beautiful as it is extraordinary."

"No thought is more uppermost in the minds of the American people today than the terrible struggle across the sea, and the entrance of the United States into the conflict brings us to a realization that our sons and loved ones may soon be in the very thick of the fighting. With this in mind the creators of "The War of Nations" has tried to bring to us in America a portrayal of the spectacular side of the combat."

"By the immense crowds which attended last year it was clearly demonstrated that patrons of the fair are highly in favor of high-class fireworks. Recognizing this, we adopted the time-honored principle of the fair management of looking only for the best to be procured and in "The War of Nations" it is our judgment that we have selected the greatest display of the kind that has ever been offered."

Interest in Encampments. In addition to the nightly display of fireworks, a program of events has been arranged to be given before the grand stand each afternoon and night during the fair. Feature acts from some of the largest theatres of the world and circus numbers that have pleased millions of people have been procured to make up a program of two hours.

The encampments for farm boys and girls are attracting much attention from rural districts and are expected by those in charge to prove big drawing cards for the 1917 exposition. Five hundred boys and 250 girls will be guests of the State Fair, and, in addition to receiving invaluable educational service, will be awarded prizes of material worth. The offer of free exhibit space and increases in prizes to be awarded are expected to bring to the 1917 fair the largest number of county exhibits yet listed. Correspondence ready on file with Secretary W. H. Stratton indicates that a number of counties which have never yet shown their products will be represented.

At the same time that the Woman's National Service league handles the Food Conservation business for Mr. Hoover it also wishes to present to every woman its regular work which is the continuous registration of women for every kind of service. It is a service the government wants and approves. The ladies who present the Hoover card will take advantage of the opportunity to present a volunteer Service Registration Blank. The signing of one has nothing to do with the other.

This volunteer Blank reads: "For God, for Country, for Home." There appears on this sheet a list of all the services a woman may do to aid her country. Please give it your consideration. Read it carefully. It explains itself. Be loyal enough to fill in the things you think yourself capable. There are many tasks for which you can sign and persue at home. As this awful war continues we will grow more anxious to do our part. This volunteer service blank is too large to be inserted in the paper but Mrs. White will keep copies on hand. If any one who is not reached with these will apply to her she will be glad to send one out for your consideration. This part of the work will not close on July 21, but will continue on and on.
