PLAN LIVE STOCK FINANCE CO. TO AID STOCKMEN

A meeting of great importance to the stockmen and live stock interests of this section is to be held tomorrow (Wednesday) October 12th, at the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, the object of which is to arrange the organization of a live stock company, which will make direct loans to stockmen, and which will function through the aid of the War Finance Corporation. This is the word brought back to Brady by W. D. Crothers, who was in Fort Worth last week on business. This new organization will obviate the necessity of the banks continuing to carry their present heavy loans, and also will take care of excessive loans, allowing the live stock men and farmers to make direct loans.

The following article concerning the proposed new organization is reprinted from the Fort Worth Record of Friday, October 7th:

Call was issued today by Marion Sansom, manager of the agricultural and live stock agency of the War Finance Corporation of Southern Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico, for a meeting of business men and bankers throughout this territory at the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, Oct. 12. The purpose of the meeting announced by Mr. Sansom is the organization of a live stock loan company for financing stockmen in this district and to function through aid to be obtained from the War Finance Corporation. Notice was received today at headquarters of the agency here that such a company would be looked upon with favor by members of the executive board at Washington. The note in part is as follows:

Suggested by Board.
"The board considers it highly desirable for your committee to suggest a meeting to representative bankers and citizens interested in a public spirited way in the situation in the Southwest, covering Texas, Southern Oklahoma and New Mexico. It seems to be absolutely necessary that one or more additional live stock loan companies be formed in order to make our funds effective in a large way promptly. The committee can not take part in the organization of the company, but it is a problem for your territory as a whole. We will take the matter up with New York representatives of Texas interests with a view of backing up any company that may be favored by your suggestion. Please wire us so that we may stimulate co-operation from the cotton industry and oil interests, as well as others."

The telegram was signed by Eugene Meyer, manager-director of the corporation.

PROHIBITION RATTLE. SNAKES INVADE DEPOT—PROBABLY LOOK FOR BOOZE

In this good Prohibition year Anno Domini 1921, rattlesnakes have invaded the sacred precincts of our railway station. Just why is hard to say—unless they expect to look through passenger's grips for contraband booze, thereby giving the possessor a chance to see snakes as of yore.

Last night, M. P. Wegner, ticket agent, heard the ominous rattle of a genuine rattler, and looking about he discovered his Snakeship in the negro waiting room and within three feet of a negro waiter. The colored gent gave one look and one leap and vanished—where to no one knows—probably down the sewer pipe.

No weapons of offense being at hand, the snake played with his rattle until one of the carnival bunch, waiting for the belated Eden train, unlimbered an automatic, and after three tries, the snake was heard singing his own death rattle.

This makes the third depot snake of the season, Jim Anderson having killed one recently in the depot park, and Geo. Bundren another at the ice plant adjoining the park.

OFFICERS MAKE QUICK CAPTURE OF PARTY STEALING FROM CARNIVAL COMPANY

Jack Bennett, hailing here the past week from New Mexico, but who says his folks live in San Antonio, paid a high price for abstracting some doll rack covers, khaki cloth, a bridle, clothing, etc., from among the effects of the carnival company which showed in Brady last week. Bennett had been employed with the carnival for several days, and took French leave between 5:00 and 6:00 o'clock Sunday morning, the goods above mentioned disappearing simultaneously. As soon as the officers were notified, they got on the trail of the man, and Sheriff Chas. Leslie of Mason effected his capture at Fredonia, bringing him back to V. and Sheriff J. C. Wall and Deputy Sheriff Hibdon took the prisoner in charge.

A search uncovered the stolen goods hidden in the barn of Jim Stiles at Voca. In county court Monday Bennett pleaded guilty to stealing the articles and drew a fine of $5.00 and costs, amounting to $31.40. In default of this sum, he has been placed in jail. According to the facts developed in the case, Bennett rode out of Brady horse back, having hired Henry Stucke to haul out his plunder for him.

We are now located on the West Side of the Square, where we will be glad to welcome you. We are still rendering the best of service in our repair department; also carry a line of the best in jewelry. A. F. GRANT, Jeweler.

McCULLOCH COUNTY RED CROSS IN MONTHLY MEETING AT COURT HOUSE FRI.

The regular monthly meeting of the McCulloch County Red Cross was held last Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock at the court house, Jas. T. Mann, chairman, presiding, and Mrs. J. A. Holton being secretary.

Among other business transacted at the meeting, Mrs. Chas. Gray was appointed local chairman of the 1921 Roll Call. The local organization also named two representatives to the Regional Red Cross meeting to be held at San Antonio October 17th, Mrs. W. D. Jordan of Brady and Mrs. D. S. Pumphrey of Mercury were named.

The annual Roll Call in McCulloch county will be held beginning on Armistice Day, November 11th, and continuing until Thanksgiving, November 25th. This roll call will be inaugurated, primarily, to get the McCulloch county membership up to its full strength, and incidentally for the purpose of providing funds for another public health nurse who is to be secured at an early date. It was decided to have each county branch of the Red Cross give an entertainment the week before the Roll Call drive starts, at which the Peace Time program of the Red Cross is to be set forth, and the wonderful work of this great organization in times of peace fully explained to the citizenship. With this program fully understood by the citizenship, there can be no doubt but what the response to the Roll Call will be unparalleled.

McCULLOCH COUNTY BOYS OFF TO DALLAS FAIR AS GUESTS OF EXHIBIT COM.

Nine McCulloch county agricultural club boys, all smiles and happy as larks, boarded the Frisco train last night enroute to the Dallas Fair as complimentary guests of the McCulloch County Exhibit committee. To be exact, eight of the boys had their transportation paid by the committee, while the Mercury State Bank paid the expenses of the ninth member of the party. Six of the boys boarded the train at Brady and three at Mercury, all going in charge of T. L. Sansom of Mercury.

The year's records of work accomplished, together with the best grades made in the examination held by County Agent Geo. H. Ehlinger Saturday won the trip for the following boys:

- Joe Tucker, Calf Creek, "Chard" Riley, Voca, Joe Ben Williams, Route, 2, Brady, J. B. Tucker, Brady, C. M. Tucker, Brady, Richard Davis, Brady, Tom Penn, Mercury, Elden Sansom, Mercury.

Theron Sansom of Mercury went as a guest of the Mercury State Bank.

Mr. Ehlinger states that he expects to make up a party of girl members of the agricultural clubs, who will go to the State Fair next Sunday night.

Dr. G. F. Stevenson, Osteopathic Masseuse will be in Brady for a while. Phone 161, or call on me at J. S. Abernathy's.

BRADY HIGH WINS THIRD STRAIGHT GAME OF SEASON BY SCORE OF 13 TO 6 SAT.

The Brady and Richland Springs high school elevens met on the local gridiron last Saturday afternoon in one of the most interesting games of the season. The teams were well-matched, both completing an unusual number of forward passes, and putting pep into every minute of the playing. Brady appeared a little to the advantage by reason of better training.

Brady made the first touch-down in the first few minutes of the second quarter, having advanced the ball in the first quarter by a series of end runs, and through a splendid punt by Gerald Adkins. With but a couple yards to go, a couple of line bucks scored a touch-down, and Captain Royston Taylor kicked a perfect goal. The first half ended 7 to 0 in Brady's favor.

In the third quarter, Brady scored a safety, swelling her score to 10, and Richland Springs, by a succession of off-tackle plays, scored a touch-down, but failed to kick goal. Score 10 to 6.

In the last quarter, Brady scored another safety, making the final score read 13 to 6.

Gerald Adkins came in for commendation by reason of his splendid and timely punting, while Brown Strickland won favor by his wonderful line-bucking and tackles. Captain Taylor also acquitted himself splendidly in the line bucks and tackles.

The local eleven goes to Coleman next Saturday for a game with the Coleman high.

Mrs. J. F. Craig Dead.

McCulloch county citizens will learn with regret of the death of Mrs. J. F. Craig at San Angelo Friday a week ago. Mrs. Craig formerly lived with her husband in the Salt Gap community, but in recent years had made her home at Eldorado. The following account of the sad event was carried in the Eldorado Success the past week:

Eldorado was shocked early Friday morning when the sad news of the death of Mrs. J. F. Craig, wife of Jim Craig of Eldorado, came over the phone from San Angelo, where Mrs. Craig had been carried on Monday for medical treatment. She was taken to the St. Johns sanitarium and her 13-year old daughter, Floyd, remained with her. Mr. Craig had returned to the ranch on Wednesday. He was notified Thursday night that his wife was not doing well and to return to San Angelo, he and his two sons, Jones and Pat, came in from the ranch early Friday morning to go to San Angelo when he received a second message that Mrs. Craig was dead. They were driven to San Angelo by Ben Hext.

The body was brought out Saturday afternoon accompanied by eight cars of relatives and friends, and carried to the Christian church, where a short service was held conducted by Prof. W. I. Wilkins.

Many friends attended the funeral services, to pay their last respect to this beloved wife and mother.

Mrs. Florence Craig was 40 years old and was a Miss Gaines before her marriage to James F. Craig, October 27, 1904. To this union three children were born, and with the husband, mourn her loss. She moved to Schleicher county from McCulloch in 1905, and made this her home since. Here she built up a circle of friends who bow in submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, and extend sympathy to the bereft in their sad hour.

COMMISSIONERS COURT VOTES TO RETAIN SERVICES OF DEMONSTRATOR

The McCulloch County Commissioners court, in session this week, voted to retain the services of Geo. H. Ehlinger as County Demonstration Agent for another year. The court took this action after due consideration of the services to be expected and the good work that should be accomplished through the demonstration work in this county. With county agents employed in all the neighboring counties, McCulloch county could not afford to dispense with this service. The county pays $1,000 of the salary of the demonstrator, while the U. S. government pays the balance. In this way, the county is taxed by the federal government for this service, and receives returns only through the employment of an agent.

Geo. H. Ehlinger, who succeeded B. D. Black as county agent, will be continued as demonstrator for McCulloch county. Mr. Ehlinger is a splendid gentleman, is efficient and capable in his work, and his retention here will doubtless meet with general approval.

M'CULLOCH CO. PROSPECTS GOOD ---W. D. CROTHERS

The Fort Worth Record last Friday published the following glowing report upon McCulloch county crop and financial conditions, following a Record reporter's interview with W. D. Crothers, cashier of the Commercial National bank:

"Everything looks brighter out in McCulloch," said W. D. Crothers, cashier of the Commercial National bank at Brady. Mr. Crothers was here to attend the meeting of the board of directors of the Frisco lines in Texas and call on his old friend, Marion Sansom, head of the new finance corporation, which is in course of formation and which promises to relieve the situation for the cowman. Besides being interested in railroads, banking and other civic enterprises in the biggest town in McCulloch county, Mr. Crothers is a cowman of no mean proportion and his sympathies are with his brother cowmen.

Like Mr. Sansom and other large livestock producers of the country, Mr. Crothers sees the panacea for the ills of the cowman in the successful fruition and organization of the million dollar corporation that is being formed in connection with the finance body. A meeting to the organization will be held Chamber of Commerce and next Wednesday, when representatives from all over Texas will be in attendance.

According to Mr. Crothers banks of the state have done a possibly could do to help the nation, but under the national laws no institution can make a loan exceeding 10 per cent of its capital stock and surplus. The action planned by Mr. Sansom handle any kind of a loan for any amount without the least handicap. For instance, a cowman can apply for a loan of $50,000, the question will be referred to the national bank in the community from which the application came, and if the bank stamps its approval on it it is made by the corporation without any necessity of the bank going on the paper, as is necessary now.

It is the purpose of Mr. Sansom to organize other corporations over Texas if the Fort Worth proposition proves a success. The national banks of Texas cannot take care of the business, while this concern with the Federal Reserve banking system fostering it can take care of the cowman and tide him over a hard season.

In McCulloch cotton will yield on an average a half bale to the acre, and at the present price will put money in circulation. However, besides cotton, good rains have fallen over the area and the stock raiser is assured good pasturage and plenty of water. Conditions are rapidly returning to normal, according to Mr. Crothers.

FIRE PREVENTION.

This is Fire Prevention week, and if any Brady merchant had occasion to forget or to neglect this fact, then the notice sent out in Monday's mail by City Fire Marshal M. P. Wegner, no doubt, served to recall the fact very forcibly. The notice sent by the fire marshal directed attention, and requested compliance with the city ordinance on fire prevention, which reads as follows:

Art. 98. It shall be unlawful for any owner or occupant of any building or premises or any vacant lot or area in the city of Brady to leave use to be left in any building or any premises in any receptacle than iron with a suitable cover same, any paper, rags, ashes, shavings, hay or any combustible material liable to cause a fire that would be instrumental in adding fire; provided, that the same shall not be construed so as to prevent storing of hay and other combustible feed-stuffs in stores or

Art. 109. Any person who shall be guilty of any of the foregoing provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction, shall be fined not less than five nor more than one hundred dollars.

As stated in these columns last week, the citizenship should remember that these fire precautions are not placed as a burden upon anyone; rather they are enacted to protect the citizenship from their own and their neighbor's carelessness. Rigid and conscientious observance of these ordinances will do much to eliminate fire risks and to lower the fire loss, with resultant benefit to every citizen of the community. Let's make Brady fire proof insofar as careful observance of insurance regulations make possible.

MORE FAVORABLE THAN EVER.

The editor's attention has been called to an error made in our editorial last week, in which it was stated that six-inch mains were laid from the Brady square up to the standpipe. As a matter of fact, there are but six blocks of this 6-inch pipe—from the square to the top of Blackburn street, at the McKnight residence. From this point to the standpipe, eight-inch mains were laid when the new standpipe was built to replace the one formerly located on the lot adjoining the McKnight residence.

As stated in our last week's editorial, this choke main—six blocks in length—is costing Brady a pretty penny. It adds just 10c to our key rate. The replacing of this main with eight-inch main would result in a reduction of the key rate from 42c to 32c. Can we afford longer to remain inactive in the manner? What business man wants to penalize himself in this fashion?

Let's set the ball rolling and replace this six-inch main with the regulation eight-inch; we will still be six blocks of six-inch main to the good, and this is greatly needed to extend the fire mains in other sections of the city. The Standard has talked the matter; now let the citizenship get action on the same!

Contentment in the face of adversity is a virtue. The editor of the Ballinger Ledger has that virtue. He says: "Loss from drouth in West Texas at no time has ever cost the people as much as floods in Central and South Texas. We prefer the drouths."

Men are qualified for civil liberty in exact proportion to their disposition to put chains upon their own appetites—in proportion as their love of justice is above their rapacity—in proportion as they are most disposed to listen to the counsels of the wise and good, in preference to the flattery of knaves. Society can not exist unless a controlling power of will and appetite be placed somewhere; and the less of it there is within, the more there must be without. It is ordained in the eternal constitution of things that men of intemperate minds can not be free.—Burke.

What A Baby Costs.

"How much do babies cost?" said he The other night upon my knee; And then I said: "they cost a lot; A lot of watching by a cot, A lot of sleepless hours and care, A lot of heart-ache and despair, A lot of fear and trying dread, And sometimes many tears are shed In payment for our babies' smiles, But every one is worth it all.

"For babies people have to pay A heavy price from day to day— There is no way to get one cheap. Why, sometimes when they're fast asleep You have to get up in the night And go and see that they're alright. But what they cost in constant care And worry, does not half compare With what they bring of joy and bliss— You'd pay much more for just a kiss.

Who buys a baby has to pay A portion of the bill each day; He has to give his time and thought Unto the little one he's bought. He has to stand a lot of pain Inside his heart and not complain; And pay with lonely days and sad For the happy hours he's had. All this a baby costs, and yet His smile is worth it all, you bet." —EDGAR A. GUEST.

Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. At times the noted eyes of Atwater Rooter were gentle o'er with the soft cast of enchantment, especially when Patty felt called upon to reprove the two with little coquetries of slaps and pushes.

The two boys sat in mind to go with Patty as far as her own gate. "That's a pretty way to speak to company!" Herbert addressed his cousin with heavily marked severity.

Florence still swung her foot and looked dreamily away. She sang, to the air of "Rock of Ages": "Henry Rooter—Herbert, too—they make me sick—that's what they do!"

However, they were only too well prepared with their annihilating response. "Oh, say not so! Florence, say not so! Florence, say not so!"

They even sent this same, odious refrain back to her from the street, as they departed with their lovely companion; and, so tenuous is feminine loyalty, sometimes, under these stresses, Miss Fairchild mingled her sweet, tantalizing young soprano with their changing and cackling falsetto.

PART TWO

"All right," said Henry Rooter. "I'll be the one to ask you a question, Patty." "No," Herbert said promptly. "I ought to be the one to ask Patty."

They went satirically down the street, their chumminess with one another bountifully increased by their common derision of the outsider on the porch; and even at a distance they still contrived to make themselves intolerable; looking back over their shoulders, at intervals, with say-not-so expressions on their faces.

Now a northern breeze chilled the air, as the hateful three became indistinguishable in the haze of autumn dusk. Florence stopped swinging her foot, left the raving, and went more into the house. And here it was her fortune to make two discoveries vital to her present career; the arising out of a conversation between her father and mother in the library.

"No! I ought to have her whisper me first," Henry Rooter objected. "I'll write the answer to any question; I don't care w'at it's about."

"Well, it's got to be the truth, you know," Patty warned them. "We all haf to write down just exactly the truth on 'word of honor and sign our name." "Mise?"

"All right," said Patty. "Now I'll whisper her a question first, and then you can whisper yours to me first, Herbert."

This seemed to fill all needs happily, and the whispering and writing began, and continued with a coziness little to the taste of the piously singing Florence. She altered all previous opinions of her friend Patty, and when the latter finally closed the session on the steps and announced that she must go home, the hostess declined to accompany her into the house to help her find where she had left her hat and wrap.

"I haven't the least idea where I took 'em off," Patty declared in the strictest manner. "If you won't come with me, Florrie, s'pose you just call 'em."

"Well, of course, it is her own affair, Mollie," Mr. Atwater said, mildly. "She couldn't be expected to consult the whole Atwater family connection before."

"Oh, no," she agreed. "I don't say she could. Still, it is rather upsetting, coming so suddenly like this, when not one of the family have ever seen him—never even heard his very name before."

"Well, that part of it isn't especially strange, Mollie—when he was born and brought up in a town three hundred miles from here, I don't see just how we could have heard his name—unless he visited here, or got into the papers in some way."

Mrs. Atwater seemed unwilling to yield a mysterious point. She rocked decorously in her chair, shook her head, and after setting her lips rigidly, opened them to insist that she could never change her mind; Julia had acted very abruptly. "Why couldn't she have let her poor father know, at least a few days before she did?"

Mr. Atwater sighed. "Why, she explains in her letter that she only knew it, herself, an hour before she wrote."

"Her poor father!" his wife repeated, commiseratingly. "Why, Mollie, I don't see that father's especially to be pitied."

"Don't you?" said Mrs. Atwater. "That old man, to have to live in that big house all alone, except a few negro servants?"

"Why, no! About half the houses in the neighborhood, up and down the street, are fully occupied by close relatives of his; I doubt if he'll be really as lonely as he'd like to be. And he's often said he'd give a great deal if Julia had been a plain, unpopular girl. I'm strongly of the opinion, myself, that he'll be pleased about this. Of course it may upset him a little, just at first."

"Yes; I think it will!" Mrs. Atwater shook her head forebodingly. "And he isn't the only one it's going to upset."

"No, he isn't," her husband admitted, seriously. "That's always been the trouble with Julia; she never could bear to seem disappointing; and so, of course, I suppose every one of 'em had a special idea that he was really about the top of the list with her."

"Every last one of 'em was positive of it," said Mrs. Atwater. "That was Julia's way with 'em!"

"Yes, Julia's always been much too kind-hearted for other people's good!" Thus Mr. Atwater summed up—and he was this Julia's brother. Additionally, since he was the older, he had known her since her birth.

"If you ask me," said his wife, "I'll really be surprised if it all goes through without a suicide."

"Oh, not quite suicide, perhaps," Mr. Atwater protested. "I'm glad it's a dry state, though!"

She failed to fathom his simple meaning. "Why?"

"Well, some of 'em might feel that desperate at least," he explained. "Prohibition's a safeguard for the disappointed in love."

This phrase and a previous one stirred Florence, who had been sitting quietly, according to request, and "resting"; but not resting her curiosity. "Who's disappointed in love, papa?" she inquired with an explosive eagerness which slightly startled her preoccupied parents. "What is all this about Aunt Julia, and Grandpa going to live alone, and people committing suicide and prohibition and every thing? What is all this, mamma?"

"Nothing, Florence."

"Nothing! That's what you always say about the very most interesting things that happen in the whole family! What is all this, papa?"

"It's nothing that would be interesting to little girls, Florence. Merely some family matters."

"My goodness!" Florence exclaimed. "I'm not a 'little girl' any more, papa! You're always forgetting my age! And it's a family matter I belong to the family, I guess, about as much as anybody else, don't I? Grandpa himself isn't any more one of the family than I am. I don't care how old he is!"

This was undeniable, and her father laughed. "It's really nothing you'd care about one way or the other," he said.

"Well, I'd care about it if it's a secret," Florence insisted. "If it's a secret I'd want to know it whatever it's about."

"Oh, it isn't a secret, particularly, I suppose. At least, it's not to be made public for a time; it's only to be 'known in the family.'"

"Well, didn't I just prove I'm as 'one of the family' as—"

"Never mind," her father said soothingly. "I don't suppose there's any harm in your knowing it—if you don't go telling everybody. Your aunt Julia has just written us that she's engaged."

Mrs. Atwater uttered an exclamation, but she was too late to check him.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "I'm afraid you oughtn't to have told Florence. She isn't just the most discreet—"

"Fshaw!" he laughed. "She certainly is one of the family, however, and Julia wrote that all of the family might be told. You'll not speak of it outside the family, will you, Florence?"

But Florence was not yet able to speak of it, even inside the family—so surprising, sometimes, are parents' theories of what will not interest their children. She sat staring, her mouth open, her throat closed; and in the uncertain illumination of the room these symptoms of her emotional condition went unobserved.

"I say you won't speak of Julia's engagement outside the family, will you, Florence?"

"Papa!" she gasped. "Did Aunt Julia write she was engaged?"

"Yes."

"To get married?"

"It would seem so."

"To who?"

"To whom, Florence," her mother suggested primly.

"Mama!" the daughter cried. "Who's Aunt Julia engaged to get married to? Noble Dill?"

"Good gracious, no!" Mrs. Atwater exclaimed. "What an absurd idea! It's to a young man in the place she's visiting—a stranger to all of us. Julia only met him a few weeks ago. Here she forgot Florence, and turned again to her husband, wearing her former expression of experienced forbearance."

"It's just as I said. It's exactly like Julia to do such a reckless thing!"

"But we don't know anything at all about the young man," he remonstrated.

"How do you even know he's young?" Mrs. Atwater asked crisply. "All in the world she said about him was that he's a lawyer. He may be a widower, for all we know, or divorced, with seven or eight children."

"Oh, no, Mollie!"

"Why, he might!" she insisted. "For all we know, he may be a widower for the third or fourth time, or divorced, with any number of children. If such a person proposed to Julia, you know yourself she'd hate to be disappointed."

Her husband laughed. "I don't think she'd go so far as to actually accept such a person and write home to announce her engagement to the family. I suppose most of her swains here have been in the habit of proposing to her just as frequently as she was unable to prevent them from going that far; and while I don't think she's been as discouraging with them as she might have been, she's never really accepted any of 'em. She's never been engaged before."

"No," Mrs. Atwater admitted, "Not to this extent. She's never announced it to the family before."

"Well, I'd hate to have Julia's job when she comes back!" Julia's brother said ruefully.

"What's that?"

"Breaking it to her 'admirers.'"

"Oh, she isn't going to do that!"

"She'll have to, now," he said. "She'll either have to write the news to 'em, or else tell 'em, face to face, when she comes home."

At This, the Slender Form of Florence Underwent a Spasmodic Seizure, in Her Chair.

"She won't do either."

"Why, how could she get out of it?" His wife smiled pityingly. "She hasn't set a time for coming home, has she? Don't you know enough of Julia's ways to know she'll never in the world stand up to the music? She writes that all the family can be told, because she knows the news will leak out here and there, in confidence, little by little; so by the time she gets home they'll all have been through their first spasms, and after that she hopes they'll just send her some forgiving flowers and greet her with many handclaps—and get ready to usher at the wedding!"

"Well," said Mr. Atwater, "I'm afraid you're right. It does seem rather like Julia to stay away till the first of the worst is over. I'm really sorry for some of her love-lorners. I suppose it will get better about, and they'll hear it; and that might take it pretty hard."

"Take it pretty hard!" she echoed loudly. "There's one of 'em, at least, who will just merely lose his reason!"

"Which one?"

"Noble Dill."

At this, the slender form of Florence underwent a spasmodic seizure, in her chair, but as the fit was short, and also noiseless, it passed without being noticed.

"Yes," said Mr. Atwater, thoughtfully. "I suppose he will."

"He certainly will!" Mrs. Atwater declared. "Noble's mother told me last week that he'd gotten so he was just as liable to drop a fountain-pen in his coffee as a lump of sugar; and when any one speaks to him he either doesn't know it, or else jumps. When he says anything, himself, she says that he can scarcely ever make out what he's talking about. He was trying enough before Julia went away; but since she's been gone Mrs. Dill says he's like nothing in her experience. She says he doesn't inherit it; Mr. Dill wasn't anything like this about her."

Mr. Atwater smiled faintly. "Mrs. Dill wasn't anything like Julia."

"No," said his wife. "She was quite a sensible girl. I'd hate to be in her place, now, though, when she tells Noble about this!"

"How can Mrs. Dill tell him, since she doesn't know it herself?"

"Well—perhaps she ought to know it, so that she could tell him. Somebody ought to tell him, and it ought to be done with the greatest tact. It ought to be broken to him with the most delicate care and sympathy, or the consequences—"

"Nobody could foretell the consequences," her husband interrupted—"no matter how tactfully it's broken to Noble."

"No," she said, "I suppose that's true. I think he's likely to lose his reason unless it is done very tactfully, though."

"Do you think we really ought to tell Mrs. Dill, Mollie? I mean, seriously: Do you?"

For some moments she considered his question; then answered, "No. It's possible we'd be following a Christian course in doing it; but still we're rather bound not to speak of it outside the family, and when it does get outside the family I think we'd better not be the ones responsible—especially since it might easily be traced to us. I think it's usually better to keep out of things when there's any doubt."

"Yes," he said, meditating. "I never knew any harm to come of people's sticking to their own affairs."

FARMER'S WIFE SAYS SHE CAME NEAR STARVING

Declaring she was actually starving to keep from suffering awful misery, Mrs. Amy Peterson, wife of a prosperous farmer of Lakeville, Mass., gave out a remarkable statement, recently, in connection with her relief through the use of Tanlac.

"Sometimes I wonder how I lived through it all, she said. "I would have attacks of acute indigestion nearly every time I ate anything. Those terrible cramping pains and the distress from gas and bloating were almost unbearable and I just thought there was no hope for me."

"But now I'm eating anything and I feel as strong and well as I ever felt in my life. I've gained back all the weight I lost and six pounds besides and I know from my experience what Tanlac will do. It's the best medicine in the world."

Tanlac is sold in Brady by Trig Drug Co., in Mercury by J. T. Matlock, in Rochelle by C. W. Carr, and by leading druggists everywhere.

WEDDING BELLS

Penn-Strickland.

A wedding of interest to a host of Brady friends and admirers was quietly celebrated last Friday night when Miss Mammie Penn became the bride of Mr. Doc Strickland. The wedding ceremony took place at the residence of Mr. Strickland's father, William Strickland, in the southeast part of town, at 8:00 o'clock, the Rev. J. H. Taylor officiating at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Townsend and Mr. William Strickland were the only attendants.

Mr. Strickland is one of Knox-Johnson's most popular traveling salesmen, and in addition to holding the esteem of the large clientele of this firm, he is highly regarded by the entire citizenship of Brady, who have known him since early youth. His bride is a most charming and lovable young woman, and during the several years she has made her home in Brady she has endeared herself to all by her sincerity of manner and many sweet womanly qualities.

Mr. and Mrs. Strickland are at home to their friends in their cottage in the southeast part of town, which Mr. Strickland had already furnished in anticipation of the home-coming of his bride.

To them is extended every wish for happiness from their host of admiring friends.

Irvine-Sessions.

The marriage of Mr. Tom Sessions and Miss Ethel Inez Irvine took place at the Presbyterian parsonage Saturday evening at 7:00 o'clock, the Rev. S. H. Jones officiating at the ceremony. Attending the bridal couple were Mr. Virgil Lee Sessions and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wigginton, brothers and sister of the bridegroom and Miss Mildred Irvine, sister of the bride.

Mr. Sessions is the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Sessions, and is one of Brady's most highly esteemed young men, having spent practically all his life here. In winning for his bride so charming and attractive a young woman, he is to be sincerely congratulated. Mrs. Sessions has made her home with her grandfather, Mr. W. E. Simpson, practically all her life, attending the Brady schools and growing into sweet young womanhood in our midst. She is a popular member of younger social circles and is a favorite with old and young alike.

Mr. and Mrs. Sessions have taken up their residence at the Burns' Gardner homestead, a couple miles east of Brady, where Mr. Sessions will engage in stock raising. Their host of friends join in extending congratulations and best wishes to the newly-weds.

Callan-Crothers.

A beautiful home wedding was celebrated at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Crothers Sunday night, when their son, William French, was united in marriage to Miss Marie Lee Callan. Only members of the family were in attendance and witnessed the solemn rites of marriage as performed by the Rev. Francis Hudon. Cut flowers added to the attractiveness of the Crothers home upon the occasion. The bride never looked more charming, her beauty and grace being accentuated by her wedding gown of blue Canton crepe, embroidered in iridescent beads.

Following the wedding ceremony, light refreshments were served. Owing to the lateness of the arrival of the minister, the planned wedding tour of Mr. and Mrs. Crothers was postponed, and amidst a shower of congratulations the happy bride and bridegroom left for the Crothers-White ranch at Sonora, where they will make their home.

Mr. Crothers is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Crothers, and following his education in the Brady schools and at A. & M. college, he has been engaged for the past several years in ranching, in which endeavor he has already met with splendid success. His bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Callan of San Antonio, and is a young lady of charm and talent, and a popular member of the younger society in her home.

In the happy culmination of their romance, Mr. and Mrs. Crothers are to be congratulated, and all their hosts of friends will join in extending best wishes for every joy and success that life may hold.

FIRE BOYS ENJOY BAN- QUET TENDERED THEM BY CITY CAFE FRIDAY NIGHT

Members of the Brady Fire Department, some thirty-five in number, enjoyed the hospitality of Mr.
and Mrs. G. L. Hollon at an oyster supper tendered them at the Hollon restaurant last Friday night, and with one accord the event was voted a most enjoyable and long-to-be-remembered occasion.

The crispy-cool night made the occasion ideal, and the deliciously browned oysters, appetizingly garnished, and topped off with steaming hot coffee, were universally relished.

M. P. (Bully) Wegner officiated as toastmaster at the occasion in his usual happy manner, and quite a number of the guests responded to toasts in which the work of the fire department, its past achievements and its future aims were set forth.
Mr. and Mrs. Hollon also came in for much deserved praise for their thoughtfulness in providing such a feast and such an enjoyable occasion for the boys. Among others responding to toasts were M. S. Sellers, Mrs. V. B. Deaton, sponsor for the organization, Frank Hurd, chief, P.
B. Melton, N. T. Cook and H. F.
Schwenker.

Mrs. Deaton's talk was especially enjoyed and in the following bit of verse she aptly expressed the sentiments of all, as well as illustrating the spirit of co-operation that should exist between the citizens and the fire boys. Mrs. Deaton's toast was as follows:

"Here's to the Fire Boys, so brave and true,
'Tis always a pleasure, their duty to do.

When that big whistle blows, in day or at night—

These boys are there first, to put up a hard fight;

And the citizens are fast coming to a fuller realization

That they cannot get by, without this organization.

So here's to my Fireboys—long may they live

And the citizens will continue to give! give! give!"

The banquet was brought to a close,
when all the guests gave a rising vote of thanks to their host and hostess for the pleasant evening, and, in the words of Toastmaster Wegner, promised to accept any future invitations that might be extended the fire boys.

Making Extraordinary Mileage a Certainty

Car Owners want more rubber on the tread where the wear is hardest; more gum between cord plies to perfect a resilient and powerful carcass. And they want a scientifically constructed Non Skid tread with all angles and contacts to resist skidding and give sure traction. Firestone Cord Tires have met these demands of the car owners.

Read Letters Below—
Records from 29,000 to 57,000 Miles

Cord Tires built the Firestone way could not fail to produce mileage. Every day, from all over the country, comes the word that 10,000, 20,000 or 30,000 miles are frequent and consistent records.

Now and then they are emphasized by unusual instances, such as quoted below. Performance like these demonstrate the ultimate possibilities of Firestone Cords under careful driving.

Gentlemen—
I submit herewith the history of a 34x4 Firestone Cord tire. This tire has run 57,000 miles.
I have retreaded it seven times. The average mileage to each retreading was about 7,500.
I think you will agree this is a remarkable record.
It is especially unusual as I know the owner to be a severe driver. However, he gives his tires proper inflation. The tire in question is not yet out of service and has every indication of being sufficiently strong for another record. I am

Gentlemen—
It occurs to me that you might be interested in the mileage that I obtained from the set of Firestone Cord tires on my Dodge coupe. The first tire went over 29-000 miles. The second tire raked up a mileage of between 34,000 and 35,000. These were both rear tires and had been cut considerably by chairs. The two front tires have gone better than 35,000 miles and are still in good condition. I expect to get at least 40,000 miles from each of them. I need scarcely say that the Firestone Cord will be my tire choice for the future.

Mother had promised little Clara a doll, and Clara was allowed to accompany her to purchase one. They entered the store where a large assortment awaited them.

"This doll," said the saleswoman,
"can say 'mamma' and 'papa,' this one can say 'Oh!' when you put a new dress on it."

"Have you one that cries when you don't put a new dress on it?" asked little Clara.—Fort Worth Record.

County Superintendent W. M.
Deans and all the teachers of the Mc-Culloch county schools are this week in Brownwood, in attendance upon the Mid-Texas Teachers Institute, which will be in session there until Friday afternoon. Five counties are participating in the institute, viz; Coleman, McCulloch, Brown, San Saba and Menard, and something like six hundred teachers are reported in attendance.
Public, or open, sessions are being held each morning at the First Baptist church, while each county holds its sectional meetings to itself, the McCulloch county teachers being assigned to the First Christian church.

Unanimous.
The feminist orator was wound up as she addressed the gathering of mere men.

"Women," she shouted, "have in all times and in all countries been the mainspring of national existence.
Who was the world's greatest hero?
Helen of Troy! Who was the world's greatest ruler? Queen Victoria! Who was the world's greatest martyr?"

And with one voice the immense crowd of men arose and cried:
"My wife!"—Fort Worth Record.
