COLEMAN YIELDS CHAMPIONSHIP IN BRADY SERIES

Two successive defeats administered on the Brady diamonds to Coleman's all-star, all-salaried ball club, by the Brady base ball team, which boasts of but three salaried players, wrote finis on Coleman's championship aspirations. While the seventh game of the Brady-Coleman series was to be played on the loser's home diamonds, the Coleman players and fans refused to even grasp this last straw. On the contrary, they declined to finish out the series, and after a couple games with the Winters team, will disband Saturday. Out of the season's series of 17 games between Brady and Coleman, Brady won nine and Coleman eight.

Tuesday's Game.

Pepped up by the winning of two out of three games played on the Coleman lot, and the further winning of the opener on the Brady diamonds by a score of 6 to 3, Coleman fans figured they had a lead-pipe cinch on the championship, and went into Tuesday's game determined to "Pour it on" old Brady. For a time it appeared they would realize their aspirations, for in the fourth game Blevins connected with a three-base hit, and then squeezed in a well-earned run on L. Craig's bunt. O. Craig, Coleman's mound artist, pitched only average ball, but nevertheless held the locals scoreless until the 8th, when Bailey hit for two bases, advanced to third on Fuller's bunt and scored on Adkins bunt. Fuller stole second and scored on Robertson's clean hit, and Adkins scored on a bad throw by Catcher Craig who was trying to keep Robertson from stealing second. The game was a splendid exhibition, and the sensational rally staged by Brady in the 8th, of course, made it all the better.

Wednesday's Game.

Wednesday afternoon's game gave the Brady team every opportunity to "pour it back on" old Coleman, and the "pouring on" process was perfectly performed. Steadman, Coleman's crack mound artist, and who usually plays all nine positions during the game he pitches, lacked considerable of his terror for the local batsmen, who landed on his offerings opportunely and for a total of ten hits. In fact, the locals got a hit off Steadman in every inning played, except the sixth and the eighth. On the other hand, Bungar, Brady's big twirler, had the visitors eating out of his hand, and for seven innings held them hitless and scoreless. In the eighth, Coleman hoped for two hits off him, but their hopes died a-borning when Green was out trying to steal third.

MISS PINKIE JONES BUYS LOT OPPOSITE CENTRAL SCHOOL—TO BUILD STUDIO

Miss Pinkie Jones has purchased a lot just across the street east from the Central school building, and located between the J. S. Abernathy residence and the Catholic church, on which she plans to build quite an attractive and commodious bungalow studio, which will be in readiness for her music class by the opening of school in September. The new studio will provide a splendid place for teaching, and its accessibility to the school will prove most advantageous to Miss Jones' pupils.

CONFEDERATE BRIGADE CAMPS AT CHRISTOVALE

San Angelo, Aug. 2.—Between 75 and 100 members of the Mountain Remnant Brigade, United Confederate Veterans, are in annual encampment Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Christoval, 21 miles south of San Angelo on the South Concho River. John O. Frink, justice of the peace here, is commander of the brigade. He was a member of the Eighteenth North Carolina Infantry in General Stonewall Jackson's corps and was with the company which through mistake fired on the South's peerless leader, causing his death.

The San Angelo Concert Band is furnishing music at the encampment and the citizens of Christoval are providing all entertainment, as well as food and quarters.

ANNUAL PARK FUND SET ASIDE BY CITY COUNCIL

Another progressive step taken by the city council has been the setting aside of $2,000.00 annually as a park fund. The purpose of this move is to enable improvement of the city park and the providing of entertainment for the citizenship. In the establishment of the Brady Tourist park by joint action of the city council and the water board, assisted by the Brady Chamber of Commerce, the city provided what is unquestionably one of the best and most attractive tourist camps in the state, and visitors here have done much to broadcast the fame of Brady's camp and hospitality. However, it is equally important that Brady citizens, as well as the tourists, derive benefit from the park, and the action of the council is in furtherance of this move.

THE GREAT LESSON OF CO-OPERATION IS ESSENTIAL FOR FUTURE PROGRESS

There is a story in the August number of the American Magazine that every person should read and think about. It is a demonstration of what can be accomplished by co-operation, the elimination of the foolish things that we practice in our daily lives, the extravagant things that are costing much money and little accomplishments. The name of the story is "Seven Doctors of Union City, Indiana."

Although the above mentioned story has to do with doctors, it can be applied to any branch of industry or profession in a small town; just think over the happenings of the day—what you have said and done. Will your actions build anything? Are you working for yourself only, or are you broad enough to wish the other fellow a little success also.

Now let us take a broad view of everything that concerns our country. What is the one thing more than anything else that our county needs? Take this seriously, think of it from every angle! After you have made up your mind just what you think the one thing we need more than anything else is, come to the Chamber of Commerce with it and it will get consideration.

Mr. Farmer. Are you satisfied with everything? Is there nothing that can be done to help you? Perhaps you want better stock, more stock, a home, a church, or any number of things or possibly you want something that has not been mentioned. Well the Chamber of Commerce can help you to get anything you want if you are willing to help the Chamber of Commerce to help you.

The second Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. the Board of Directors meet for business. Have you an idea you wish to submit for the benefit of your community? If you have, don't hesitate to come in with it; just remember that it is the thinking men who are building the world today. Surely you can think of something that will help McCulloch county. Submit your ideas in writing to the Secretary or call on him at the office and talk over your proposition.

The train of progress is moving! Are you going to ride or walk? Are you going to criticize the Chamber of Commerce for not doing anything, or are you going to get in it and help? Remember the slogan that won the war, "Everybody Do His Bit." What can the Chamber of Commerce do if you do your bit, and your neighbor does the same? Come on—let's try it! Individual membership fifty cents per month. Come on, everybody! Let's make McCulloch County the GREATEST in Texas.
H. C. SAMUEL, President.

YOUNG MAN EXPERIENCES UNUSUAL ACCIDENT WHEN STUNG WHILE DRINKING OUT OF JUG

The 16-year old son of C. F. Barker had an unusual experience last Saturday, and quite a painful one at that. While taking a drink of water out of a jug, he was stung of the inside of the lip by a wasp, causing immediate swelling of the lower part of his face and throat to such extent that he was threatening with choking to death. He was hurriedly brought to town for treatment, prompt and effective relief being had by the applying an ice bag to the injury.

Mrs. Jas. Bushyhead Dies.

A message received here yesterday brought the sad news of the death in St. Louis of Mrs. Jas. Bushyhead of Pleasant Green, Mo. Mrs. Bushyhead is remembered here as Miss Nina Walker, who was a guest of her former schoolmate, Mrs. F. R. Wulff, some eight years or so ago. Mr. Bushyhead also visited here at that time, and the couple formed a large circle of admiring friends during their stay. No further particulars of her demise have been had.

Mother Dies in Houston.

Mrs. Chas. Williams has the sympathy of all in the death of her mother, Mrs. J. C. Knight which occurred Wednesday, following a stroke of paralysis. Mrs. Knight had been ill for some time, and Mrs. Williams was called home about two months ago to attend her. The patient appeared much improved at the time of Mrs. Williams' return to Brady a week or so ago. The first of the week, the mother took a turn for the worse, and Mrs. Williams was again summoned to her bedside.

EXACT CENTER OF TEXAS LOCATED IN McCULLOCH CO. SAYS GEOLOGIC SURVEY

Washington, July 28.—Way out in McCulloch county, 20 miles northeast of Brady, is the center of Texas. The particular spot is no center of art or learning. But is the geographic center of the Lone Star State, the geologic survey announced today.

Washington is more than 1,000 miles from the geographic center of the United States, and the question of establishing the capital in a more central location has heretofore been brought up from time to time. St. Louis, Denver and other places have been proposed as new sites.

The position of the geographic center of the United States has been determined by the United States coast and geodetic survey, and falls in Smith county, in Northern Kansas, in latitude 39 degrees and 50 minutes, longitude 98 degrees and 35 minutes.

ITALIAN ASP MAKES ANNUAL APPEARANCE—ABNER TRIGG IS FIRST VICTIM

The Italian asp, that fuzzy-haired white, caterpillar-looking pest, has again made his appearance in Brady, Abner Trigg, small son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Trigg falling victim to its painful sting Wednesday noon. The lad was stung on the foot and within a few minutes, the poison had taken such effect that he had to be placed in bed. Besides the excruciating pain throughout his leg, he experienced cramping.

A local physician recommends as the most effective antidote for the asp sting, or for stings of various kinds, the placing of an ice bag on the injured spot, as well as placing ice-cold cloths on parts of the body affected by the sting.

While not apparently fatal, the sting of the asp is excruciatingly painful.

BRADY PLAYS WEATHERFORD FRIDAY AND SATURDAY ON DUTTON CITY PARK GROUNDS

The Brady ball team will play two match games with the Weatherford ball team, which is touring this section, and which is touted as a strong aggregation of ball tossers. The first game will be called this (Friday) afternoon and the second tomorrow afternoon, each game being called at 5:00 sharp. Brady has beaten the Sox off of practically all the teams with which it has been matched this year, and the two games this afternoon and tomorrow will give local fans a chance to compare their style of ball with that of an aggregation which has been playing winning ball in other sections of the state.

Come out prepared to see two real games of the great National sport.

RESOLUTIONS OF COUNTY CONVENTION SATURDAY

Full and enthusiastic endorsement of the Farm Loan act was voiced in resolutions passed by the County Democratic convention, which met at the court house in Brady last Saturday afternoon. Opposition to any change in the Volstead act, and to any candidate or platform looking to the introduction of light wines and beer was also registered, and a motion to instruct delegates to the district convention to that effect was offered and passed.

The resolution endorsing and pledging support to the Farm Loan act read as follows: "Resolved that the delegates sent by this convention to the Congressional convention, 17th Texas district, be instructed to use every lawful means to have our Congressman pledged to the perpetuation of the Farm Loan Act."

The convention was attended by a fair representation of delegates chosen at the various precinct conventions, and the meeting was called to order by Sam McCollum, acting in the place of County Chairman Wm. R. Davidson, who was unable to be present. Dr. J. P. Barton of Lohn was elected chairman of the meeting, following which credentials were examined and qualified delegates seated.

A resolution was offered seeking to request our state representative to favor a State Farm Loan act similar to the Federal act, but the resolution was tabled.

Following were the delegates elected to the various state conventions:

State Delegates—J. P. Barton, Jno. Savage, Duke Mann, B. A. Jones, J. F. Quicksall, F. M. Newman, J. E. Shropshire, T. J. Beasley, N. J. Huie, E. H. Beakley, E. T. Jordan.

Senatorial Delegates—Duke Mann, B. A. Jones.

Congressional Delegates—Henry Miller, Sam McCollum, S. W. Hughes. Representative Delegates—E. H. Beakley, O. W. Carroll, E. B. Baldrige.

TOWN OF SAN SABA PUTS DOWN ANOTHER BLOCK OF CONCRETE STREET PAVING

D. Chadwick, city marshal, has a force of hands at work this week putting down the concrete pavement across the block from the San Saba National bank west. The first block west from the public square is already concreted and this will complete two blocks.

This enterprise is the result of patient effort on the part of the Chamber of Commerce to pool the interests of the property owners and business firms on each side of the block to join the city council in laying this concrete.

It is understood to be the policy of the Council to complete at least one block a year with concrete until all the business blocks inside the fire limits are a concrete driveway. The advantage of this work is already being appreciated and about next year one of the blocks on the public square will be undertaken and the commissioners' court will be asked to concrete that portion of the square. In this way the streets may be soon materially benefited.—San Saba News.

Crowd Attends Singing at Rockwood Sunday—Personal Mention.
Brady, Texas, July 29.

Editor Brady Standard:
The crops in this community are suffering for want of rain, although a light shower fell Friday afternoon to refreshen things a bit, but not very promising for the crops.

Irene Rice of Brady is a visitor at the Walker ranch this week.

Eula Mae and Lola Butler were visitors at the McMullen home last Wednesday afternoon.

Carl Lohn baled oats for Wiley Walker at the Walker ranch last Wednesday and Thursday. Helping him were Lincoln Lohn, Tom Marshall, W. E. Lohn, Tom Ramsey, including the two Walker boys.

Mrs. W. W. Butler has been with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Lou Hall a couple nights the past week, while Mr. Butler went to Mercury after peaches.

W. D. Walker and wife, H. D. Bradley and family, Irene Rice and Opal Duke were visitors at the Winstead home at Waldrip Sunday afternoon.

Quite a crowd from this community attended the singing at Rockwood Sunday.

Mr. Ed Campbell and wife were in Pear Valley last Friday.

The famous Ferris wheel of Paris is being torn down to make a way for a more profitable investment. The locomotive can be operated under its own power by the use of compressed air. The iron was not heated in the making but was worked cold. A small coal tender and passenger coach were made at the same time and the whole thing is a little more than six feet in length and weighs 170 pounds. More than 1,300 screws and 2,000 rivets were used in the work. The train is complete to the last tiny detail and is built on the model of the equipment used on the British railroads of that country.

FIFE FINDINGS.

Brother of L. M. Farmer Passed Away Last Week at Dallas.
Fife Texas, Aug. 2.

Editor Brady Standard:
The hot winds of last week have caused crops to deteriorate rapidly and unless we get rain or cooler weather soon the cotton crop is going to be cut short.

L. M. Farmer returned Sunday from Dallas where he was called to attend the funeral of his brother, who passed away Friday after a long illness. We extend the sympathy of the community to him in his loss.

Wonder, Or., July 25.
Editor Brady Standard:

In my article of July 1st, I desire to correct an error. Instead of my brother-in-law, Geo. Allen being the party who gave the Christmas dinner and invited the negroes of the Durant plantation, it was the Capt. Evans' darkies who gave the dinner and invited the Durant darkies. Geo. himself, of course, being a white man, had nothing to do with it except being a looker on by happening along just at the right time to hear the Evans darkey man say "Miss Durant let me help yo' plate to another piece o' dis turkey gobbler," and she replied, "No, thank yo' Mistah Ivins; I've eat so much dese Christmas holidays mah stummick is puffedekly fisticated!" COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE

ROCHELLE RUMBLINGS.

Mr. Wayman Lord and Miss Ruby Griffay Are Quietly Married.
Rochella, Texas, Aug. 31.

Editor Brady Standard:

Oh, such hot, dry weather! It is such a miserable existence, but we are still hoping for rain, which would fill a two-fold need—that of furnishing moisture for the crops and also cooling the dry atmosphere. We have had such hot winds several days in the past two weeks. Everything is on a standstill, no garden, no roasting ears, nor anything else, but pinto or red beans, the old reliable. Farmers are hard at work trying to save the feed crop, which is very good in this section of the country. Cotton is suffering for a drink and unless it gets it soon the crop will be cut very short.

I certainly enjoyed the write-up sent in by a subscriber a short time back and want to say to her, or she, as the case might be, that they spoke my sentiments exactly in this matter of the court house improvements. It seems that the court house had this fund and it could be used only on the court house and its grounds, so I for one, think it was the thing to do, to give the out-of-town ladies such a nice place for rest and recreation and I feel like everyone should be proud of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Sellman, accompanied by the lady's sister, Miss Mellie Conley, leave today for quite an extended trip through the western country first to her brother, Mr. Conley of Ballinger, who owns and runs a nice bakery at that place, but from here they were hardly decided as to which direction they would take but will be out for something like a month and we wish for them a pleasant trip.

Miss Amy Sellman is in Colorado visiting with her sister, Mrs. Julia Condon.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Waters of Ozona made a flying visit to relatives and friends of this place last week, but spent only a few days here and Miss Ruth Sellman, sister to Mrs. Waters, returned with them for a few days' visit.

Mrs. Leila Hardin and children, Louise and H. V., are spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Waddill.

Mrs. Jewel Gage and little daughter Jewel Lee, went out on the north bound Frisco for her home at Fort Worth, on last Wednesday night, after spending three weeks with her friend, Mrs. Hardin, in the Waddill home.

Miss Vivian Samuelson of East Sweden is spending the week-end with her cousin, Miss Lois Templeton of this place.

Otis Waddill and sister, Mrs. Hardin and two children, went to Richland Springs today to visit in the McNatt and Coughran homes.

Mr. Wayman Lord and Miss Ruby Griffay were quietly married last night to the surprise of the writer and many others. But we wish for them abundant success and happiness.

His Neighbor's Wife

By DOROTHY WHITCOMB

Elmer held Watson guiltless of his innumerable offenses against him because of Watson's wife.

In the southwest, where men are quick to avenge insult, Watson dwelled unharmed, mousing imprecations against Elmer, holding him up to the scorn of the township.

The men were neighbors. Elmer, on his arrival at Westwood, had gone to call upon his neighbor to talk over their boundaries. But he found Watson in a drunken stupor and a sad-eyed girl of twenty-two cooking in the wretched cabin.

"Mrs. Watson?" asked Elmer, doffing his hat. "I am Elmer; I have taken the neighboring range. I came to talk over—" Then he paused in embarrassment and saw the wounded pride on her face.

"Mr. Watson shall see you tomorrow," said the girl quietly, and Elmer withdrew, wondering and dismayed that such a girl should be bound to such a man.

He halted at the back of the cabin to fix his boot. Watson, thinking that he had gone, sat up on the couch.

"You—" he yelled, uttering a vile oath. "I've trapped you at last. You thought I was sleeping, didn't you, and that you could bring that man into my home! I know that you've been meeting him while I was tending sheep on the range. I'll—I'll—" He staggered across the cabin toward the girl. Elmer strode back into the cabin. Watson was standing over his wife in an attitude of impending assault. Elmer took him by the shoulders and ran him back across the room.

"I don't believe in interfering between a man and his wife—ordinarily," he said. "But if you ever lay a finger upon this lady I'll shake your teeth down your rum-soaked throat, you bound. Savee?"

Watson fell back with a groan and Elmer, releasing him, departed.

He met Mrs. Watson in town next day and was relieved to see that she bore no marks of violence. She nodded very slightly as she passed him.

He learned something of her story a few days later from some of the townpeople. Emmeline Watson had been married to her husband six months before they moved west from St. Louis. She was the orphan daughter of a famous architect who had killed himself in shame at his impending bankruptcy. Ignorant of the world, she had fallen a victim to the coarse, good-looking traveling man who had told her he loved her. They were married; six weeks later she learned that Watson was a drunkard and an ex-convict. She had prevailed on him to go west, to make a new start.

At night, lying in his lonely cabin, Elmer thought of Emmeline. His passion drove him forth to mount his horse and gallop furiously across the ranges. He turned his horse toward Watson's cabin and then, irresolute, reined in upon the top of an acclivity. In the south a thin column of smoke was rising. It was the first onset of a forest fire. He galloped hastily toward the place.

The sun rose as he rode, and long before he reached the spot the smoke had become a hell of flame. Already the tree-tops were leaping wires of flame when Elmer drew bridle at Watson's home.

It was empty. Elmer shouted with joy. Doubtless the fugitives had been warned in time. They must have fled north along the open range toward Westwood. He turned his tired nag's head and spurred him relentlessly.

The animal sniffed the breeze, laden with smoke and flying sparks, and galloped madly for safety.

Then out of the blind smoke came a cry. It was Emmeline's voice. It seemed to come out of the smoke wrack like the cry of a child that seeks its mother—desperate, hopeless, and weary. He shouted.

"Emmeline! Emmeline!"

An instinct had guided him aright, for, though she did not call in answer, he found her.

She was bending over a flame-blackened thing that lay in a little hollow among the pastures. Elmer saw at once that Watson was dead.

Emmeline Watson looked up. She seemed to come to her senses.

"My husband is dead," she said slowly. "It is judgment. He tried to set fire to your cabin last night and burn you to death. He fired the cabin and the forests. But God saved you."

He ran back for his horse and led it to where Emmeline stood. He swung her to the horse's withers and mounted behind her. A few minutes later and they had left the flames behind them. Elmer bent over Emmeline.

"We are safe now," he said. "Emmeline!"

But though she lay impassive in his arms he knew that the chain was broken and that life would be fair for them thenceforward.

Clear on That Score.

"So you played golf on earth?" asked St. Peter of the applicant for a harp and a halo.

"Yes."

"Hum, I'll have to look into your record a little more closely."

"I think I know what is in your mind," said the applicant, "and I can truthfully say I was no good at the language."

THREE-HORNED GIRAFFES

"I am known as Mr. Three-Horned Giraffe, though sometimes I am called a Nubian Giraffe," said Mr. Giraffe. "It all means the same thing," said Mrs. Giraffe. "I am your mate and I am the same as you are. That is, I belong to exactly the same family and I am like you in many ways."

"There are many of us who are somewhat different. That is, I do not mean that there are many of us who are somewhat different, but there are giraffes who belong to the great giraffe family and who are like us in many ways and yet not in all ways. They're all cousins though."

"There are the Two-Horned Giraffes or the Southern ones, the Small Giraffes and there are Five-Horned Giraffes of Western Uganda, many, many, many, many miles away from here."

"Now, we came from East Africa," "Yes," said Mr. Three-Horned Giraffe, "but that was some time ago. Yes, some time ago. Still, we did come from there; you are right about that."

"And we came together, too. And we've grown since we've been here. We're about thirteen years old now, aren't we?"

"Just about," said Mrs. Three-Horned Giraffe.

"Have I ever heard," Mr. Three-Horned Giraffe asked, "that thirteen was an unlucky number?"

"You may have heard it," said Mrs. Three-Horned Giraffe.

"And do you suppose it is true? Do you suppose that now I am thirteen and now that you are thirteen we'll get those dreadfully dreadful sore throats that everyone is thinking we'll get sooner or later?"

"I've heard they were always drawing pictures of us with great bandages around our throats or long necks."

"Don't pay attention to all you hear," said Mrs. Giraffe. "It's such a waste of time. Besides, I heard a girl say who was walking through the zoo that she was just fourteen years old and that her thirteenth year had been the luckiest year she had ever had. She had won more prizes and had more nice things happen."

"You just told me," said Mr. Giraffe, "not to pay any attention to what I heard."

"I did," Mrs. Giraffe answered. "But then you paid attention to what you had heard."

"I heard it said," Mrs. Giraffe replied, "and I am telling it to you to show you that everyone doesn't think that thirteen is an unlucky number."

"And I also tell it to you to let you know that I don't think much of either considering it a lucky number or an unlucky number, or a lucky year or an unlucky year, or a lucky birthday or an unlucky birthday.

"I think it depends on what happens that year or on that day of the month or whatever it may happen to be that makes folks think it is either lucky or unlucky."

"Probably a lot of unlucky things happened on that day to someone once and they started the story about and now if anything unlucky does happen on a thirteenth people all say:

"Oh, the thirteenth."

"But I don't believe that the number or the date itself has anything to do with it."

"Well," said Mr. Three-Horned Giraffe, "I'm glad you think that way."

"How well and happy we are. We've been well since we came and haven't known a day's sickness," Mrs. Three-Horned Giraffe said. "And our thirteenth year isn't going to change our luck."

"We have delicious food—clover hay biscuits, vegetables of different kinds, bran and rock salt and milk too!"

"You're more than fourteen feet in height and I'm almost as tall. And were friendly, too, even though we are so high up!"

Just then the keeper walked by the two giraffes who had been talking in the zoo and he said:

"They're the good old species of giraffes, and that pair in there are about fifteen years old."

"You see," said Mrs. Giraffe, "we are older than we think and we went through our thirteenth year without even knowing it!"

Where He Had His Collar. "Where do you think I got this collar?"

"I give up. Where?"

"Around my neck, of course."

HAIL TEN-CENT GOLF BALL

Innovation Looked To to Turn Cautious Playing Into the Merriest of Swatfests.

Would you believe the new ten-cent golf ball could arrive without affecting American outdoor life? Rather not! Did you fancy that with link pills available at a dime apiece golfing would remain the same coarse, crude, rather rough old pastime that it once was? Well hardly!

Persons who have entertained any such steadfast ideas are blocking the course. Fore! Let these fast ones play through.

In the first place, there need be no more mental hazards. A mental hazard, they say, is a form of moral cowardice—fear of losing the ball. Now, fear of losing the ball is logically the result of those traits of frugality which one unconsciously acquires the moment he undertakes to learn this ancient game of the canny Scot.

It is, therefore, not considered strange if a player, standing on the brink of a rather wide lake or seeking a foothold on the bushy bank of a tortuous stream, suddenly begins to quiver and to quake. He is battling with his mental hazard—the fear of losing his ball.

But with a ten-cent ball—why, who'll give a darn?

Another thing—there isn't going to be nearly so much profanity on the links with this ten-cent ball made of scrap rubber. Innocent youngsters who make an honest living caddyng need no longer be regarded with resounding oaths every time a ball is lost.

"Mister, I've lost it," the kid will chirp simply.

"Very well, sonny," will reply this new-style golfer, maintaining perfect composure. "Take this dime; run buy me a new one."

And besides all this, look what the ball will do for the husband. Now he'll be able to finance the wife to a game of golf every day during the summer, more than likely, and she can lose as many balls as she needs to without bringing the family to the brink of bankruptcy.—Exchange.

Pillings Now Made of Paper.

Piles for submarine supports are now being made of paper in California, the chief recommendation of which is the fact that they are not subject to attack by the teredo, which ruins wooden piles in a short time. On a long wooden cylinder a long roll of tarred paper with giped edges is wound and covered with cord. Over this another band of paper, much narrower, is wound diagonally like the bandage on a wounded arm. The cylinder is revolved while it is bound with more cord, hot glue being applied continuously. After three layers of paper have been put in place, the wooden cylinder is removed and the paper cylinder is reinforced with a coarse mesh.

A mixture of cement and sand is squirted all over the cylinder, and several cylinders are joined end to end with the same cement so as to make a pile 60 feet long and from 18 to 30 inches in diameter. A square steel head is fitted over the top to receive the shocks of the pilerdriver.

No Longer Dread White Hairs.

One by one, all our old ideas are being turned topsy-turvy. We used to dread white hairs. Now, at the bidding of Dame Fashion, we want them, a writer in London Answers asserts.

The white hair craze seems to have started in Paris, and it is spreading to this country, where well-preserved young women with impressive white locks are being admired.

Most of the hair comes from the south of France (for it is not all come by naturally), and the lighter the shade, the higher the price. A face will show its age under gray hair, but under white it may take on fresh youth—that is the secret of the matter.

Many villages in southern France are holding periodic "hair markets." Women with more hair than they need attend these markets with their superfluous locks, and white hair of good length and strength is worth many times its weight in gold. The best qualities are said to fetch $30 per ounce!

He Knew.

The old story about some one always being willing to give the bride away was beaten by a happening in Indianapolis the other day. A spinster in the early thirties who is soon to be married was completing arrangements for her wedding. She had selected her bridesmaids, and then she turned to her family and said: "I would be happy if I only could decide who would present me to the bridegroom."

No one made any suggestion, but her little nephew piped out: "Why I thought he was a present to you, auntie. The neighbors said he was something you had wanted for a long time."

And now none of the neighbors is included on the wedding invitation list. —Indianapolis News.

Glass That Won't Break.

According to recent reports, a Bohemian inventor, after 13 years of research, has succeeded in producing unbreakable glass. At a recent demonstration, it is said, plates and vessels of the material remained whole when thrown to the ground from a height of 12 feet. Meat was roasted on a thin glass plate over an open fire at a temperature of 750 degrees Fahrenheit. Tin was melted in a glass pot and nails were driven in a piece of hardwood, using a piece of glass for a hammer.

Why the No. 2070 Excels

Built by Shaw-Walker.
Has no nuts, bolts or screws.
It's rigid.
The drawers open and close easily and smoothly.
The slide is progressive. It's a well-made, durable slide.

The drawers are 25 1/2 inches deep. This gives you eight or ten more inches filing space per four drawers than you secure in other low-priced files.

So this case gives you the essentials—rigidity, big capacity, easy operating drawers.

Of course, it's not as good a case as the No. 1070. Have to sacrifice somewhere. Lighter gauge of steel, steel hardware, and a slip-in follower block save money, yet detract little from the file's actual usefulness.

May be had in olive green or mahogany, with or without locks.

HONEST INJUN.

The worst that can be wrote is about the road that cannot be rode.

THE PIVOT OF TEXAS.

For years there have been rival claims put forth as to the location of the geographical center of Texas. Waco has often laid claim to this distinction. Brownwood has always felt that she could safely establish proprietorship of the honor—in fact, various and sundry points east of her claim to being the geographical pivot was in their own environs. Brady has, time and again, asserted her claim to being the geographical center of Texas, former geographical surveys having established the point nine miles west of this city. Of course this claim was difficult of absorption by our eastern neighbors, because Brady and McCulloch county had come to be looked upon as essentially a part of West Texas, and Brady and McCulloch county have always considered themselves part and parcel of that greatest section of the great state of Texas—West Texas. But the fact, nevertheless, remains that we are really Central Texas, for the geographical center of Texas lies, as we have always maintained, within the boundaries of Grand Old McCulloch county.

Announcement just made by the geologic survey at Washington, D. C., establishes the point 20 miles northeast of Brady. That ought to settle the dispute, and leave McCulloch county to claim her just honors.

So let the world know that we are of Central West Texas—the pivot of the greatest state in the union—the point where all eyes in the state meet when they look at a common point—the place where the great highways of the state meet and part, bringing their travelers from distant points all over the U. S. and carrying them to all points along the Gulf Coast and the Mexican border.

Brady and McCulloch county are the Bull's Eye of Texas!

WHEN A TEXAS TOWN TAKES STOCK OF ITSELF.

How Snyder, Texas, Learned the Value of Co-Operation With the Farmers of Scurry County.

It does a town or county good to take stock of themselves occasionally and determine if the efforts of the citizenship generally are being directed in the proper channel. About two years ago the Snyder Chamber of Commerce did this and took note of the fact that there was something lacking and that results were not being obtained in the work that was being done. The outcome of this stock-taking was that the Snyder Chamber soon realized that there was a lack of harmony between town and country and that this lack of harmony was caused by a lack of co-operation on the part of the people in the country sections and the people in town. All around Snyder and in the outlying sections of Scurry county is a rich farming country and the towns of the county are dependent on the production of the farms and ranches; the farmers and ranchmen are likewise dependent on the towns for their markets, both selling and buying.

Singularly enough, this realization came somewhat in advance of the general movement that has later sprung up over a great area of the State and the old Chamber was reorganized under the name of the Scurry County Chamber of Commerce, with the entire county as its field of operation. A slogan of "Invest in 100 Hens, 4 Sows and 3 Cows On Every Farm They Pay Debts" was adopted and posted in every business house in the county and other public places. Since then this slogan has spread over the State, modified in different ways. Later a big two days' get-together picnic was held, which 15,000 people from over Scurry and adjoining counties attended. Then a county fair and late in the year Scurry County's first annual poultry show was held, with a judge of national repute to award the prizes.

Neighborly Feeling Aroused.

Results were almost magical, not so much in immediate financial returns, but the awakening of a feeling in the town and country people to a realization of how closely they were associated and interdependent and in arousing the good old neighborly feeling that had commenced to disappear in the community a few years beforehand. There is no class of people that appreciates a kindly well-meaning interest more than the man on the farm and ranch; the Chamber of Commerce realized that the man in the country did not have to be told what to do, as soon as he believed there was someone really unselfishly interested in the production from the great farm and ranch factory at the town's doors. A square deal for the man in country and town soon became a prevailing feeling and today the people of Scurry county are perhaps closer together than they have ever been. The merchants and cotton buyers made the local cotton markets the best in West Texas and cotton came from immense distances, Snyder buyers alone purchasing 13,500 bales for the season. The Chamber of Commerce bought the best seed they could find for that section and sold it to the planters on fall time. Long staple varieties were encouraged, with the result that some cotton sold at a premium of 5 cents per pound.

Making Heavy Shipments.
Two years ago Scurry county was shipping a few cases of eggs per week to market; during the spring of 1922 an average of more than a carload per week was shipped. Hardly two years ago the first cream station in Snyder was started; during the month of April one station alone stood third on the list of one of the largest creamery concerns in the Southwest.

Since January 1, 1922, about twenty cars of live poultry have left the county, at an average valuation of $5,000 per car. Only occasionally had a car of hogs been shipped, but in a like period forty cars have gone to market in prime condition at top prices and the hog business has just commenced. Hundreds of baby beavers were prepared for market, making wonderful gains on the plan of feeding very finely ground maize and Kafir corn with a certain percentage of cotton-seed meal, using finely ground sorghum stalks as roughage.

Results of Co-Operation.

To the close observer there could be noted cropping out in the man from the country a feeling of better things before him, along with a certain pride in his ability to handle himself through a period of great financial depression. There was a real joy to meet and shake hands with each other; a co-operative spirit was developing and talk ran toward bigger plans for the future. During 1922 Scurry county will practically make her own living over and above the cotton crop, a thing heretofore considered impossible. Merchants and bankers have been more than repaid for their co-operation, as both report a steady business even during the dull season of the spring months, with a very noticeable decrease in the request for credit. Bank deposits have held steady, with a considerable increase over 1921. Credits are gradually being narrowed down to the men who are diversifying with a view of encouraging the program.

At present the Chamber of Commerce is hammering away on the proposition of large feed crops and their proper storage as insurance against depressions and unfavorable crop conditions that come at some period to every section. A two years' feed supply in reserve is being urged and when it is marketed it shall be in the egg crate, the cream can, the chicken coop and the stock car.

A few years ago there were not over 1500 head of sheep in the county; this year 70,000 pounds of wool is being shorn from 10,000 head of sheep and it is estimated that both wool and sheep will be doubled in another year of time. Thousands of dollars' worth of turkeys were sold during the fall and winter of last year and there will be a marked increase for 1922. Where Scurry county once had an annual pay day, the egg and cream checks are now paying the weekly grocery bills; home gardens and home canning are making steady progress; more new farm homes and barns have been built in the past few months than in years; new country church buildings and added school taxes testify to a feeling of greater prosperity and, above all, the old friendly relationship between town and country is reawakening the spirit of co-operation—E. J. Anderson, in Farm & Ranch.

Forty-Two Club.

Mrs. C. Crawford entertained the Wednesday Forty-Two club this week, three tables being provided for Progressive "42." Members present were Mesdames J. B. Granville, N. A. Collier, Clyde Hall, W. D. Jordan, Bert Hughes, T. Gray, Edwin Broad, Marion Rice, Ira Mayhew; Miss Mozelle Glenn. Guests were Mesdames Gibbon Roberts, Williams of Oklahoma; Misses Lucille Barnes of Santa Anna, Irene Broad of Coleman.

Kitchen Shower.

Miss Ruby Coalson, bride-to-be, was honoree at a most enjoyable kitchen shower given by Miss Mildred Yantis on Monday afternoon from 4:00 o'clock to 6:00. Three tables of "42" furnished the afternoon's diversion. The presenting of the gifts was accomplished in novel fashion, Sam, Jr., and Yantis McCollum presenting a basket to the bride-elect, in which the gifts were arranged so as to resemble a large bouquet.

Announcement Party.

A very-cleverly planned announcement party was given on Friday afternoon, from 4:00 o'clock until 6:00 by Miss Mary Lyle Vincent. The Vincent home was prettily decorated for the occasion, ferns being used. Forty-two was played at four tables, high score being won by Miss Nola Meers. Refreshments of cream and cake were served. Place cards on the plates were covered by an old maid flower, which, upon being removed, disclosed the secret, tiny cards reading:

- Ruby Helen Coalson
  - Earl Robert Pate
  - August 2, 1922
- The bride-to-be was showered with congratulations and good wishes. Those present included Misses Hilma Jordan, Mary Campbell, Mildred Yantis, Lula Gay, Nola Meers, Frances Armstrong, Erin Yantis, Inez McShan, Rachael Wilkerson, Willie Florence Yantis, Julia Awalt, Johnnie Pate, Maurine Wolf, Eulalia Gavit, Mrs. J. M. Coalson, and honor guest, Miss Ruby Coalson.

Coalson-Pate.

A very pretty home wedding was celebrated at high noon Tuesday when Miss Ruby Coalson became the bride of Mr. Earl Pate. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Coalson, one mile east of Brady, the Rev. Buren Sparks, Baptist minister, officiating, and the ring ceremony being used.

A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the dining room, while pot plants and cut flowers were used in the other rooms.

Norred-White.

Mr. Odie B. White and Miss Fairy Ann Norred were married last Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock, the ceremony being performed in the study of the Coggins Avenue Baptist church of Brownwood, the pastor, the Rev. R. A. Scranton, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Jones and family have been guests of relatives in Brady this week. Mrs. Nona Montgomery accompanied them upon their return to their home at Mayer Wednesday.

Mrs. Rufus Adams and little son, who have been guests of her father, C. A. Anderson, and relatives here the past couple weeks, expect to return to their home at Fort Worth the end of the week.

Miss Georgia King arrived Monday from Mayer for a visit. She accompanied Mr. White is mill superintendent of the Brady Oil mill, which position he has held for a number of years past, coming here originally from Brownwood. He is a man of quiet, yet genial disposition, and enjoys the confidence and esteem of a large circle of friends. His bride has made her home in Saint Charles, Mo., where she was employed as saleslady in a large department store. Mr. White met her in Brownwood upon her arrival from Missouri, and the wedding was immediately carried out as they had planned.

The happy couple returned to Brady Saturday afternoon, and are at home to their friends in Mr. White's residence adjoining the oil mill.

Brady citizens join in welcoming Mrs. White to Brady and in extending congratulations to Mr. White, with every good wish for the future.

Card of Appreciation.

As it is impossible to personally see and thank the voters, I take this method of expressing my sincere and hearty appreciation of the very generous support and liberal vote given me in my race for Public Weigher of Precinct No. 1. I feel greatly indebted to the voters for this evidence of confidence in me, and want to assure all that my best efforts will be put forth to merit the same by fair, impartial and careful attention to the duties of my office.

WHOM DO YOU THINK OF WHEN YOU THINK OF A CAR?

When you are thinking about the new car you expect to buy, it's well worth while to think a little of the three people who are most interested in that car.

There is yourself who will pay the bills and drive the car. There is the man who made it. And there is the man who sells it to you.

After you get the car, the whole proposition is up to you and the man who sold the car to you. As long as you drive the car, his interest in your satisfaction should be constant and friendly. He should be always ready to supply whatever you and the car may require. He should be an ever-present guarantee of your satisfaction in ownership.

We run our business so that our patrons and their friends think of us in that light.

The ATHENS of SOUTH AMERICA

Primate Cathedral of Colombia in Bogota.

THE name with which Licenciado don Gonzalo Jimenez de Quesada and his warring hosts christened the Andean plateau was Santa Fe. To that nobleman nothing seemed more fitting than to give to the land he had discovered the name of his birthplace—that classic Santa Fe founded upon royal command of Ferdinand and Isabella opposite the opulent Granada, to vex the multitude of heretic Mohammedans who aroused the jealousy and resentment of the Spanish by their fiestas and tournaments, the valor of their sons, the Moorish beauty of their women, and the unequalled romance of their arched windows, stone lacework, and balconies adorned by expert goldsmiths.

And what a thrill the conquistador must have felt, yet what homesickness must have been awakened within him as he gazed upon a plain watched over by two somber hills, so like that of his own land, with the Moorish Granada guarding the Castilian city, writes W. F. Anzola Samper in the Bulletin of the Pan American Union. But the Valley of Castles (Valle de los Alcázares), the Teusaquillo or recreation spot of Zipa de Bacata, its rightful possessor, was renamed by the new lords in mail and gorget. Bacata fled, abandoning his dominion, to die in the heart of the forest, never knowing that after centuries justice should be paid him; that the "very noble and loyal city" should bear his name, slightly modified, as decreed by the Emperor Charles V in 1540. On December 3, 1548, it was given a coat of arms portraying a black eagle on a gold field, with an open pomegranate in each claw, and bordered by golden branches on a blue field.

Old and New Are Mingled.

Bogota, the intellectual and cultured capital city, molder of thought, home of savants and thinkers, is a metropolis which, while offering to the tourist no startling display of New York or Parisian skyscrapers, boulevards or Broadway, claims attention by reason of the gifts with which nature endowed it. Spring is there eternal; the climate is ideal; the fertility of the soil surrounding is extraordinary.

Bogota conserves vestiges of her colonial period. Over the portals of rambling old houses which defied the ages are to be seen coats of arms. The century-old churches, venerable relics of the past, guard beneath panels of gold and costly wood carvings of masterly paintings; Byzantine cornices of arabesque designs about the granite pilasters which support arches, and under dais of wrought gold and silver the choir lofts are to be seen; long spiral staircases, massive towers, and belfry spires stand out against the clear sky, just as they did centuries ago.

On the other hand, the tendency toward twentieth century building is irresistible, and the most up-to-date fact is displayed in the erection of luxurious homes or public buildings in Bogota today.

The national capital situated on the southern side of the Plaza de Bolivar, resembles the Church of the Madeleine in Paris, and is considered one of the best stone edifices in South America.

Along the entire western side of the plaza extends buildings uniformly of pure French style, and along the northern side modern buildings occupied by banks and commercial houses; the eastern side is occupied by the cathedral, a massive structure, the towers of which rise 30 meters, and some few old houses.

In the heart of the plaza there is a park which attracts notice particularly because of the statue of Bolivar the Liberator, which rises upon its marble pedestal in the center of the square, being one of the finest works of the Italian sculptor, Tenerani.

From the Plaza de Bolivar the main thoroughfares extend in every direction, almost all paved with asphalt and kept in excellent condition by the municipality. Calle Real, the principal business street, and Florian street are the most bustling of the city. The former, a wide thoroughfare, merges into Republic avenue (Avenida de la Republica), flanked by modern buildings and traversed by electric cars.

Called the Athens of the South.
The Colombian capital has long been the patron of science. The astronomical observatory, National Library, the academies, museums and universities form a group of institutions which maintain the right of Bogota to be considered the "Athens of the South," the name with which a European scholar christened her.

The observatory owes its existence to the efforts of the naturalist, Jose Celestino Mutiz. It is octagonal in form, 2,636 meters above sea level; hence, is one of the highest of the world and possesses a valuable set of instruments for taking observations. The academies were established by devotees of science and art. The Language academy recently took possession of a new building. The Museum of Bogota contains objects of beauty and considerable historic worth. A Museum of Natural History founded by the Christian Brotherhood (Hermanos Cristianos) possess exhaustive collections.

The universities happily own adequate buildings. Recently the building to be used for anatomic lecture halls was completed, equipped much like the corresponding building of the University of Paris. Public instruction is becoming constantly more widely diffused and Bogota is the center of secondary schools supported by the government.

Cultured and Prosperous.

Bogota, by the refinement of its inhabitants and the luxury in evidence, might be taken for a European city. Culture is marked; foreign news is received promptly; desirable features of Paris and London are imitated to stimulate progress. Unfortunately, owing to the extreme narrowness of the streets, many of the architectural features of the city cannot be appreciated; nevertheless, upon contemplating the constant progress of the capital and its development, one is forced to the conclusion that Bogota will become an imperial city in the western world, the heart of the plateau which extends 16 leagues from north to south and 8 from east to west.

Economically Bogota is on a sound footing, being a commercial and banking center of constantly growing importance. There are five banks of large capital, the American Mercantile bank (Banco Mercantil Americano) having been established last year, and at present the establishment of another is under consideration. Several insurance companies contribute to the success of financial enterprises. Large export houses have founded headquarters there and importation is conducted on a rather large scale. Foreign credit companies in the United States and Europe are added factors in Bogota's development. Industry also is being exploited. Thread and textile industries compete with foreign establishments in the production of fabrics and cloth. Stock raising is increasing considerably on the plain, the strains having been carefully selected from the market is plentiful.

The Movie Publicity Man

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Howard Cummings had been separated from his wife, Martha, for over a year when he one evening saw her on the screen in a neighborhood movie theater. She looked more beautiful than ever on the screen—she had always been a particularly pretty girl—and seeing her again after so many months, affected Howard deeply.

As Howard gazed at Martha's winsomeness and saw her familiar smile and piquant characteristics, he felt a sudden rush of his old affection for her. The quarrel which had precipitated their separation seemed small and petty; the time since her departure rolled up dull and lonesome and he was possessed of an intense desire to find Martha and make up at once.

But when Martha had left him a year ago she had said she was leaving him for good. And Martha meant what she said. Was there any possible chance of ever getting her back again?

All the longing for Martha which Howard had suppressed during the year of their separation now swept over him in a tidal wave with his candid acknowledgment that he wanted her back again. Everything else in his life now seemed trivial and unimportant. But behind his longing loomed the great fear that he might not be successful in winning her back. And in addition there was another fear—the fear that he might not be able to find her.

However, Howard was a level-headed, practical, successful business man. Though young in years, he had already rolled up quite a fortune, so he had plenty of money with which to push his quest.

The first step in finding his wife was undoubtedly to ascertain the name of the firm in which he had seen her and then try to locate her through the manufacturers.

Howard anticipated trouble in finding his wife. He knew that movie actresses are constantly changing companies, and that movie manufacturers themselves are also constantly coming and going. But, to his delight, his task proved to be surprisingly simple. The company making the film, in which he had seen his wife was still operating, and his wife was still employed by the company, according to a telegram he received from the publicity manager of the company in response to his wire. According to this telegram the company was operating at Fort Lee, N. J., a short distance from New York City.

Upon receiving this information Howard started at once for New York in the earliest possible train for that city.

The third afternoon found Howard anxiously toiling up the hill at Fort Lee toward a big, glass-covered building—the studio where his wife was employed. At the door of the studio a rather flashily dressed young man was waiting for him.

"You are Mr. Cummings, I presume?" queried this young man.

Howard nodded.

"I am the publicity manager for the Mammoth company," explained the young man. "Your wife is one of our most promising actresses. She will probably eventually be starred. Come this way, please."

With beating heart Howard followed his guide into the studio and out upon the huge floor, where furniture, lights and odds and ends were thrown about in apparent confusion. At first Howard was confused; ill at ease. He didn't like the odd glances cast at him by all the people who were standing around or rushing back and forth. He wanted only to see his wife.

Suddenly Howard's heart skipped a beat. His wife was coming toward him beautifully dressed in an evening gown. Howard looked at her hungrily. Never had she seemed prettier to him. In a moment their eyes met. He saw surprise, then an inscrutable look appear in his wife's eyes before she averted them for a minute or two. Then she came to him and held out her hand cordially.

"How are you, Howard?" she said.

"I—I—stammered Howard.

On the instant he stopped. A great burst of light blinded him for a moment. He heard some one—It sounded like the publicity manager—saying: "That was a bully flash," and then his eyes focused again on his wife to find her looking inscrutable and distant.

"I want to talk to you, Martha," said Howard. "Can't we go somewhere and talk?"

"Not now, Howard," said Martha rather coldly. "I'm due to rehearse some scenes now. But come back tomorrow. Perhaps we can talk tomorrow."

A feeling of resentment swept over Howard.

"I'm at the Consul hotel," he said briefly. "Suppose you phone me there tomorrow when you're not busy."

Without another word Howard turned and hurried from the studio. Rage and resentment swept over him. What a reception! What treatment when he had come such a distance for the purpose of trying to make up with his wife! He had half a mind to call the whole thing off and go back to his home without making any further attempt at a reconciliation.

Then again the thought of the loneliness of the past year, of his really great love for the wife who had never seemed prettier than now swept over him. He threw back his shoulders.

"Of course she couldn't be anything but distant and cold with all those people around her," he told himself. "It will be different tomorrow—I'm sure it will."

It was different on the following day, but not in the manner Howard thought.

At breakfast the next morning as Howard was casually glancing through his paper, his eyes suddenly focused in horror at a picture on the theatrical page. The picture was a photo taken in a studio. It showed a man eagerly shaking hands with a brilliantly-dressed, beautiful actress. The woman's face was cold and distant. Over the picture was this caption: "Prominent Midwestern Business Man Seeks Reconciliation With Wife Who Is Becoming Famous in the Movies." The woman was his wife, the man was himself. Now he knew the meaning of that photographic flash while he was at the studio.

Howard went fighting mad at seeing this picture and reading the accompanying paragraphs giving intimate details of his life.

"Of course, Martha was in on it," he told himself. "She's crazy for publicity. No doubt she put up that publicity manager to put the thing across. It's a rotten thing to do and I'm done with her forever!"

Howard packed his grip at once, determined to return to his home forthwith. But to his disgust, there was no train until late in the afternoon and this made it necessary for him to put in the day in New York.

Howard tramped back and forth on Fifth avenue and Broadway, trying to find interest in the glowing show windows and the never-ending crowds. But he couldn't get his mind off the dismal end of his expedition.

At last Howard turned his steps toward the hotel, as it was nearing train time. Not once did he think of going back to the studio or even of calling up his wife.

His heart was exceedingly heavy as he opened the door to his room.

Then, as he stepped into the room, he gave a startled glance toward the window. There, seated in an armchair, was his wife!

"How did you get in here?" Why did they let you in?" demanded Howard.

"I—I showed them that picture in the paper," said Martha. "They couldn't refuse me then."

Howard stepped in the room and closed the door behind him.

"That was a fine piece of publicity!" he answered, "I never thought—"

His wife rushed to him.

"Oh, don't, don't!" she cried. "I didn't know it was going to happen. It was awful! Horrid! I've had that publicity manager fired. There are mighty few film press agents who would do a thing like that. And, oh, Howard—"

Her eyes melted. She held her arms out to him. Suddenly Howard found himself holding her tightly in his arms. "Really," whispered Martha, "that horrid picture was a good thing!"

"Why?" Howard demanded.

"Because," said Martha, "when you first came I really wanted to make up, but I thought I'd be cold and distant and make you suffer a while. Then, when that picture came out I knew you'd never look me up again, so I rushed right over here. Perhaps we wouldn't have made up except for that picture."

"I'm glad—mighty glad," said Howard. "I was afraid— You know you said you'd left me for good."

"I know," smiled Martha. "But—I've resigned my job. I'm going home with you."

And she snuggled closer in his arms and kissed him.

APPEALED TO HIS DIGNITY

Uncle Jake's Particular Reason for Going Over to That "Yank Plantation" in Texas.

The Yankee invasion of Texas is making things difficult for the native plantation owner. After years of tenantry satisfactory on both sides, and particularly favorable to Uncle Jake, the old negro appeared before his landlord and announced his intention of leaving him.

"Why, what are you going to leave me for?" asked Mr. Harris, who looked upon Uncle Jake as a lifelong pensioner.

"How come? Why, jes' 'cause I is gwine w'k ovah on the Yank plantation yondah."

"Why, you old sinner you! Haven't I always treated you fair and square? Given you your own garden and a good bit left over from your share each year to send your boy to Tuskegee and to buy Aunt Viny's clothes?"

"You shuah nuff had did all which you say, Mistah Harris."

"Then why do you want to go over there when you can make more here farming my plantation on shares?"

"This away," confided Uncle Jake, half apologetically and half proudly, "I is gwine w'k ovah 'e'ah 'cause them Yanks they is call they niggers 'Mistah'."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Glimpsing the Future.

The next generation will be that of the eminent village. The son of the farmer will be no longer dazzled and destroyed by the fires of the metropolis. He will travel but only for what he can bring back. Just as his father sends half-way across the continent for good corn or melon-seed, so he will make his village famous by transplanting and growing this idea or that. He will make it known for its pottery or its processions, its philosophy or its peacocks, its music or its swans. . . . There are a thousand miscellaneous achievements within the scope of the great-hearted village. Our agricultural land today holds the plowboys who will bring these benefits.—Vachel Lindsay.

Maharajas and Their Jewels

Maharaja of Indore in the Peacock Turban.

ASKED to pluck the prettiest flowers of our Belgian folklore, I stand blinded and hesitate. What shall I choose in this bouquet, over rich in its mingling of brilliant colors and tender hues? Shall it be pearls of sacred mistletoe fallen beneath the Druid's knife; lilies grown in the shadow of convents and monasteries; roses reddened with the blood of tournaments and the carnage of battle; or, perchance, pale daisies of the fields sprung up unheeded amid the cow pasture? All equally are precious, writes Louis Lagasse de Loch in the London Times. Daughters of a fertile land seared in the course of ages by storms let loose from the four corners of the earth, are they not the expression, the poetry, the sap of love and hate, the very soul, in a word, of a people fashioned by martial blows and bathed in the sunshine of idealism?

Every Belgian is thrilled by the past. It is his staff and bread of life. Hence his love of cavalcades, joyous entries and processions, the ever recurring delight of most of our villages. Great taste is often displayed in the ordering of these parades, in the building of the triumph—to which Rubens and Jordans did not seem to devote their talent. And it is as if the figures of legend and history which pass through our streets had stepped down from the canvas of old masterpieces to be closer to the caresses of the crowds.

Sometimes the ceremony represents but an episode, a scene of chivalry or of mystery from the middle ages. In Bruges, suddenly awakened from its melancholy miracle of the holy blood, the triumphal escort of a prince consecrated to the conquest of the holy land moves in a rolling stream of glistening steel amid the glamor of rich silks and precious broderies, the clashing of arms and the embrazened peal of trumpets.

Supreme Drama of All Time.

At Furnes, on the last Sunday in July, the procession of "penitents" reenacts the supreme drama of all time. For weeks the city prepares for it. The actors' parts are more coveted than public honors; some are jealous guarded as hereditary rights. Through the dense crowd, pressing ever closer and closer, the revered figures pass in procession. And the Christ appears, weighted down by his cross, a living and staggering Christ, scourged till the blood runs from him. A shiver of religious fervor passes over the faithful. "Mercy!" a penitent cries aloud in pain. Every window is a garden of tapers, candles and lights whose flames flicker in the wind blowing from the sea. Sacred chants mingle with the piping of reeds, the noise of rattles and the winding of horns. The crowd sobs and sways and wrings its hands and falls into prayer as, following the Crucified one, the penitents pass. The men in sackcloth and the women closely veiled do penance, and their naked, torn feet bleed on the stones of the road. Perchance beneath their cloaks of burlap noble ladies, whose flaxen hair and white bodies are the love treasures of this sensuous and mystic Flanders, are paying the ransom of a kiss!

Mons, the home of the guardian saint of the British army, is the theater every year of the famous Lumecon display which ends the procession of Ste. Waudru. At midday to the tolling of the great bell, otherwise heard only as a war alarm, St. George gives battle to the dragon. After a deadly combat, the dragon, according to rite, crashes down in the dust, shot through the nostrils, and the devils are chastised by the brave followers of the victorious knight. Before entering the lists the fabled "beast" slays the crowd with mighty blows of his tail. The people of Mons believe that a blow from the tail brings good luck. What matter if it hurts! On occasion both municipal officials and clergy take part in the festivities, and frequently our ancient customs put them to uncounted tests. Each year a procession leaves Grammont and goes to the Oudenberg. Prayers are said in public, after which loaves and fishes are distributed to the crowd, and the burgomaster offers the priest a silver loving cup filled with white wine in which tiny minnows are swimming. A wry face, a grave gulp and the career of a little fish ends in the pastoral stomach. And so it goes till every notable and every minnow has faced the same ordeal. At nightfall huge bonfires upon the surrounding hills light up the countryside. 'Tis said that these customs date back to the worship of Ceres.

"Three Entwined Ladies."

The story of the warlike virtues and tragic deaths of the "three entwined ladies" is another jewel of Meuse folklore. In 1554 Bouvignes is furiously attacked by the king of France. The town is taken, but the valiant citadel of Crevecoeur still holds out. Assault after assault is repulsed. Alas, the defenders are now a bare hundred, including old men, women and children, then fifty, then ten—at last three young and beautiful women. "The Ladies of Crevecoeur" still hold out desperately. They are about to be taken. Rather than serve at a king's feast, they climb to the topmost ramparts and entwining their arms throw themselves into the Meuse, forevermore the gentle guardian of their womanly honor. Until this day the stream continues to weave its liquid blue shroud over their white bodies.

Doubtless the folklore of Flanders differs from the Walloon traditions and customs. The latter are light and gay, the former rich in color and full of quaint beliefs. The Flemish kerzesses begin by prayer and the solemn warnings of priests who thunder from their pulpits—"Hell, mind ye, opens beneath the feet of blond maidens who trip the merry dance; beware for misfortune will surely visit the stable and weigh upon the head of the brawny young man too easily tempted by foaming beer and the smiles of women." But the last words of the priestly warning have scarce died away before the festive board creaks beneath the good things of this earth, and ardent youth feels that it lives. As evening falls on the gay Sundays of August, ribald songs and old-time dances end these village fetes worthy of a Rubens or a Teniers.

WHITTLING OUT OF FASHION

Decline of Ancient and Honorable Pastime So Marked as to Have Been Noted.

Come to think of it, there is some truth in the statement that whittling is a lazy or tired man's pastime, is going out of existence. A storekeeper says: "I used to set a box out in front of the store for the boys to set on, and the next day they'd be nothin' left of the box 'ceptin' a lot of whittlin' littered like around the sidewalk. But now a box will last jes' about all summer. . . . No, whittlin' ain't what it were!" At a railway station the agent remarked that whereas a waiting-room bench had a shorter life in the older days "they a two-bit harmonica," the present benches in the men's waiting room over which he had jurisdiction had lasted well on to 18 months. And at post office, blacksmith shop, livery stable; and elsewhere the crowd no longer amuses itself with knife and soft wood. Perhaps men are too busy. The storekeeper referred to above has another theory. He says: "They're too cussed lazy today to whet their jack knives."—Exchange.

CITY ORDINANCE.

City of Brady, Texas, June 20, 1922. The City Council of the City of Brady, Texas, was convened in regular session in the City hall, in the City of Brady, on the 20th day of June, 1922.

PRESENT: E. L. Jones Mayor; J. H. Ogden, W. F. Roberts, C. A. Trigg, B. Simpson, Aldermen, and E. G. Gilder, City Secretary, when among other proceedings, were had to-wit: It was moved by W. F. Roberts, Sr. and seconded by C. A. Trigg that, an ordinance entitled:

"An Ordinance Ordering a Special Election to be held in the City of Brady Under Provisions of Article 1016, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, to Determine Whether or Not said City Shall Accept the Benefits of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, Providing that Cities Accepting Its Benefits Shall Have Power to Improve Any Street, Avenue, Alley, Highway, Public Place or Square, or Any Portion Thereof, Within Their Limits, by Filling, Grading, Raising, Paving or Repaving the Same in a Permanent Manner, or by the Construction or Reconstruction of Sidewalks, Curbs and Gutters, or by Widening, Narrowing or Straightening the Same, and to Construct Necessary Appurtenances Thereto, Including Sewers and Drains Making Provision for the Holding of said Election, and Declaring an Emergency," to be placed on its first reading:

Ayes: 4.
 Nays: 0.
 Motion carried, and the ordinance was read in full by the Secretary. Moved by C. A. Trigg, and seconded by J. H. Ogden that the Ordinance pass its first reading.

Ayes: 4.
 Nays: 0.
 The motion carried.
 Moved by W. F. Roberts, Sr., and seconded by B. Simpson, that the rules 21 be suspended and that the ordinance be placed on its second reading by caption.

Ayes: 4.
 Nays: 0.
 The motion carried. The ordinance was read by caption.
 Moved by B. Simpson, and seconded by W. F. Roberts, Sr., that the ordinance be placed on its third reading and final passage by caption.

Ayes: 4.
 Nays: 0.
 The motion carried. The ordinance was read by caption.
 Moved by C. A. Trigg, and seconded by J. H. Ogden, that the ordinance be passed finally.

Ayes: 4.
 Nays: 0.
 The motion carried. The ordinance follows:

"An Ordinance Ordering a Special Election to be Held in the City of Brady, Texas, under Provisions of Article 1016, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, to Determine Whether or Not said City Shall Accept the Benefits of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, Providing that Cities Accepting Its Benefits Shall Have Power to Improve Any Street, Avenue, Highway, Public Place or Square, or Any Portion Thereof, Within Their Limits, by Filling, Grading, Raising, Paving or Repaving the Same in a Permanent Manner, or by the Construction or Reconstruction of Sidewalks, Curbs and Gutters, or by Widening, Narrowing or Straightening the Same, and to Construct Necessary Appurtenances Thereto, Including Sewers and Drains, Making Provision for the Holding of Said Election, and Declaring an Emergency."

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Brady, Texas, has determined the immediate advisability of holding an election to determine whether or not said City shall adopt the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas; and

WHEREAS, Article 1016, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, provides that in such instances a special election shall be called by said City for said purpose, and that said election shall be held as nearly as possible in compliance with the law with reference to regular city elections in said City, but empowering the governing body by resolution to order said election and prescribe the time and manner of holding the same;

Therefore, Be It Ordained by the City Council of the City of Brady, Texas, that a special election be held in the City of Brady, Texas, at the Court House, which is the regular polling place for said City, on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1922 to determine whether or not said city shall adopt or reject the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas.

All resident property taxpayers who are qualified voters of said City shall be entitled to vote at said election. Said election shall be held in accordance with the general laws of the State of Texas, the provisions of the charter of said City, and in accordance with ordinances which affect the manner of holding elections in said City.

The following officers are appointed to conduct said election in accordance with law:
 E. E. POLK, Presiding Judge.
 A. B. CARRITHERS, Judge.
 J. B. WHITEMAN, Clerk.
 W. H. BALLOU, Clerk.

At such election those favoring the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, shall have written or printed on their ballots: "For the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, governing street improvements," and those opposing the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, shall have written or printed on their ballots: "Against the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, governing street improvements."

Notice of such election shall be given by publication of this ordinance for not less than thirty (30) days immediately preceding such election in each issue of The Brady Standard, a weekly newspaper published in the City of Brady, and a copy of this Ordinance shall be posted at three (3) public places in said City, one of which shall be at the door of the Court House for not less than thirty (30) days prior to the date of said election.

The officers holding such election shall make returns thereof in the manner prescribed by law.

The fact that certain streets within the limits of the above mentioned city are in a deplorable condition and the laws of said city are at this time inadequate, creates an emergency and imperative public necessity that the rule requiring ordinances to be read at more than one meeting be suspended and that this ordinance takes effect from and after its passage, and it is so ordained.

PASSED, this the 20th day of June, 1922.

APPROVED, this the 20th day of June, 1922.

E. L. JONES, Mayor, City of Brady, Texas.
 Attest:—E. G. GILDER, Secretary, City of Brady, Texas.

STATE OF TEXAS,
 County of McCulloch, J. E. G. Gilder, City Secretary of the City of Brady, Texas, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true and correct copy of the Minutes of the City Council of said City in the passage of the ordinance therein mentioned as the same appears on record in Book A at page 5 et seq. of the Minutes of said City Council.

Witness my hand and the seal of the said City, this the 20th day of June, 1922.

E. G. GILDER,
 Secretary City of Brady, Texas.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A new way of checking fire in mines is by means of fine rock dust placed in boxes and suspended across the roof of the tunnel. Explosion shocks cause the boxes to break away from their support and the finely divided dust falls into the passage preventing the flames from spreading.

The average discharge of water of the Ohio River is about 300,000 cubic feet a second, the maximum flow approximately 1,500,000 cubic feet a second or 30 times the minimum flow.

An imperfect copy of the first edition of Robert Burns' "Poems," 1787, containing the three poems with his autograph, "On Scaring Waterfowl in Loch Twist," "Written at the Fall of Fyers," and "Written in the Hermitage at Taymouth," sold for more than $1,500. Seven hundred dollars was paid for the autograph song, "O Wat Ye Whas in Yon Town."

Abundant fossil flora found in rock beds in North Dakota shows that what is now a treeless plain was once covered with splendid forests of hardwoods, interspersed with conifers. Numerous and thick beds of lignite make it clear that in this region there were great swamps at one time. Fig trees and a fan palm with leaves six feet across indicate that the climate was as warm or warmer than that now prevailing on the South Atlantic slope of the United States.

Twenty women in 11 states have announced themselves candidates for the National House of Representatives. Four women in as many different states have become candidates for the Senate.

A moving pavement under the Paris boulevards may soon be installed. If the plan goes through, a circular moving subway will pass by the Palais Royal, the Bourse, the Opera and the Place de la Republique. Passengers can get off and on at any point on its route and by means of frequent staircases reach streets above. The traveling platform will consist of three bands moving at progressive speeds to enable passengers to step from one to another without danger of falling. Ten miles an hour would be the speed of the fastest band.

A TALK WITH A BRADY MAN.

Mr. Bodenhamer of Brady Tells of His Experience.

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Brady man: "Some years ago my back began to ache and often I got right down with it," says Mr. Bodenhamer. "My feet and ankles became swollen and my kidneys did not act as they should. These troubles came on in spells and every time I used Doan's Kidney Pills they relieved me. I always have Doan's Kidney Pills in the house."

FOUR YEARS LATER, Mr. Bodenhamer said: "I still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as highly as when I first endorsed them."

To Stop a Cough Quick

take HAYES' HEALING HONEY, a cough medicine which stops the cough by healing the inflamed and irritated tissues. A box of GROVES' O-PEN-TRATE SALVE for Chest Colds, Head Colds and Croup is enclosed with every bottle of HAYES' HEALING HONEY. The salve should be rubbed on the chest and throat of children suffering from a Cold or Croup. The healing effect of Hayes' Healing Honey inside the throat combined with the healing effect of Groves' O-Pen-Trate Salve through the pores of the skin soon stops a cough. Both remedies are packed in one carton and the cost of the combined treatment is 35c. Just ask your druggist for HAYES' HEALING HONEY.

A nest of six petrified eggs was discovered near Montezano, Washington, recently, when a workman blasted away part of a hillside. One egg, when broken, disclosed the color and formation of the yolk. The eggs are about the size of duck eggs.

The ATHENS of SOUTH AMERICA

Primate Cathedral of Colombia in Bogota.

THE name with which Licenciado don Gonzalo Jimenez de Quesada and his warring hosts christened the Andean plateau was Santa Fe. To that nobleman nothing seemed more fitting than to give to the land he had discovered the name of his birthplace—that classic Santa Fe founded upon royal command of Ferdinand and Isabella opposite the opulent Granada, to vex the multitude of heretic Mohammedans who aroused the jealousy and resentment of the Spanish by their fiestas and tournaments, the valor of their sons, the Moorish beauty of their women, and the unequalled romance of their arched windows, stone lacework, and balconies adorned by expert goldsmiths.

And what a thrill the conquistador must have felt, yet what homesickness must have awakened within him as he gazed upon a plain watched over by two somber hills, so like that of his own land, with the Moorish Granada guarding the Castilian city, writes W. F. Anzola Samper in the Bulletin of the Pan American Union. But the Valley of Castles (Valle de los Alcázares), the Teusaquillo or recreation spot of Zipa de Bacata, its rightful possessor, was renamed by the new lords in mail and gorget. Bacata fled, abandoning his dominion, to die in the heart of the forest, never knowing that after centuries justice should be paid him; that the "very noble and loyal city" should bear his name, slightly modified, as decreed by the Emperor Charles V in 1540. On December 3, 1548, it was given a coat of arms portraying a black eagle on a gold field, with an open pomegranate in each claw, and bordered by golden branches on a blue field.

Old and New Are Mingled.

Bogota, the intellectual and cultured capital city, molder of thought, home of savants and thinkers, is a metropolis which, while offering to the tourist no startling display of New York or Parisian skyscrapers, boulevards or Broadway, claims attention by reason of the gifts with which nature endowed it. Spring is there eternal; the climate is ideal; the fertility of the soil surrounding is extraordinary.

Bogota conserves vestiges of her colonial period. Over the portals of rambling old houses which defied the ages are to be seen coats of arms. The century-old churches, venerable relics of the past, guard beneath panels of gold and costly wood collections of masterly paintings; Byzantine cornices of arabesque designs about the granite pilasters which support arches, and under dais of wrought gold and silver the choir lofts are to be seen; long spiral staircases, massive towers, and helter skelter stand out against the clear sky, just as they did centuries ago.

On the other hand, the tendency toward twentieth century building is irresistible, and the most up-to-date talent is displayed in the erection of luxurious homes or public buildings in Bogota today.

The national capital situated on the southern side of the Plaza de Bolivar, resembles the Church of the Madeleine in Paris, and is considered one of the best stone edifices in South America.

Along the entire western side of the plaza extends buildings uniformly of pure French style, and along the eastern side modern buildings occupied by banks and commercial houses; the eastern side is occupied by the cathedral, a massive structure, the towers of which rise 30 meters, and some few old houses.

In the heart of the plaza there is a park which attracts notice primarily because of the statue of Bolivar the Liberator, which rises upon its marble pedestal in the center of the square, being one of the finest works of the Italian sculptor, Tenerani.

From the Plaza de Bolivar the main thoroughfares extend in every direction, almost all paved with asphalt and kept in excellent condition by the municipality. Calle Real, the principal business street, and Florian street are the most bustling of the city. The former, a wide thoroughfare, merges into Republic avenue (Avenida de la Republica), flanked by modern buildings and traversed by electric cars.

Called the Athens of the South.

The Colombian capital has long been the patron of science. The astronomical observatory, National Library, the academies, museums and universities form a group of institutions which maintain the right of Bogota to be considered the "Athens of the South," the name with which a European scholar christened her.

The observatory owes its existence to the efforts of the naturalist, Jose Celestino Mutiz. It is octagonal in form, 2,636 meters above sea level; hence, is one of the highest of the world and possesses a valuable set of instruments for taking observations.

The academies were established by devotees of science and art. The Language academy recently took possession of a new building. The Museum of Bogota contains objects of beauty and considerable historic worth. A Museum of Natural History founded by the Christian Brotherhood (Hermanos Christianos) possess exhaustive collections.

The universities happily own adequate buildings. Recently the building to be used for anatomic lecture halls was completed, equipped much like the corresponding building of the University of Paris. Public instruction is becoming constantly more widely diffused and Bogota is the center of secondary schools supported by the government.

Cultured and Prosperous.

Bogota, by the refinement of its inhabitants and the luxury in evidence, might be taken for a European city. Culture is marked; foreign news is received promptly; desirable features of Paris and London are imitated to stimulate progress. Unfortunately, owing to the extreme narrowness of the streets, many of the architectural features of the city cannot be appreciated; nevertheless, upon contemplating the constant progress of the capital and its development, one is forced to the conclusion that Bogota will become an imperial city in the western world, the heart of the plateau which extends 16 leagues from north to south and 8 from east to west.

Economically Bogota is on a sound footing, being a commercial and banking center of constantly growing importance. There are five banks of large capital, the American Mercantile bank (Banco Mercantil Americano) having been established last year, and at present the establishment of another is under consideration. Several insurance companies contribute to the success of financial enterprises. Large export houses have founded headquarters there and importation is conducted on rather a large scale. Foreign credit companies in the United States and Europe are added factors in Bogota's development. Industry also is being exploited. Thread and textile industries compete with foreign establishments in the production of fabrics and cloth. Stock raising is increasing considerably on the plain, the strains having been carefully selected from those brought from England, and the market is plentiful.

The Movie Publicity Man

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

Howard Cummings had been separated from his wife, Martha, for over a year when he one evening saw her on the screen in a neighborhood movie theater. She looked more beautiful than ever on the screen—she had always been a particularly pretty girl—and seeing her again after so many months, affected Howard deeply.

As Howard gazed at Martha's winsomeness and saw her familiar smile and piquant characteristics, he felt a sudden rush of his old affection for her. The quarrel which had precipitated their separation seemed small and petty; the time since her departure rolled off dull and lonesome and he was possessed of an intense desire to find Martha and make up at once.

But when Martha had left him a year ago she had said she was leaving him for good. And Martha meant what she said. Was there any possible chance of ever getting her back again? All the longing for Martha which Howard had suppressed during the year of their separation now swept over him in a tidal wave with his candid acknowledgment that he wanted her back again. Everything else in his life now seemed trivial and unimportant. But behind his longing loomed the great fear that he might not be successful in winning her back. And in addition there was another fear—the fear that he might not be able to find her.

However, Howard was a level-headed, practical, successful business man. Though young in years, he had already rolled up quite a fortune, so he had plenty of money with which to push his quest.

The first step in finding his wife was undoubtedly to ascertain the name of the film in which he had seen her and then try to locate her through the manufacturers.

Howard anticipated trouble in finding his wife. He knew that movie actresses are constantly changing companies, and that movie manufacturers themselves are also constantly coming and going. But, to his delight, his task proved to be surprisingly simple. The company making the film, in which he had seen his wife was still operating, and his wife was still employed by the company, according to a telegram he received from the publicity manager of the company in response to his wire.

According to this telegram the company was operating at Fort Lee, N. J., a short distance from New York City. Upon receiving this information Howard started at once for New York in the earliest possible train for that city.

The third afternoon found Howard anxiously toiling up the hill at Fort Lee toward a big, glass-covered building—the studio where his wife was employed. At the door of the studio a rather flashily dressed young man was waiting for him.

"You are Mr. Cummings, I presume?" queried this young man.

Howard nodded. "I am the publicity manager for the Mammoth company," explained the young man. "Your wife is one of our most promising actresses. She will probably eventually be starred. Come this way, please."

With beating heart Howard followed his guide into the studio and out upon the huge floor, where furniture, lights and odds and ends were thrown about in apparent confusion. At first Howard was confused; ill at ease. He didn't like the odd glances cast at him by all the people who were standing around or rushing back and forth. He wanted only to see his wife.

Suddenly Howard's heart skipped a beat. His wife was coming toward him beautifully dressed in an evening gown. Howard looked at her hungrily. Never had she seemed prettier to him. In a moment their eyes met. He saw surprise, then an inscrutable look appear in his wife's eyes before she averted them for a minute or two. Then she came to him and held out her hand cordially.

"How are you, Howard?" she said.

"I—I—" stammered Howard. On the instant he stopped. A great burst of light blinded him for a moment. He heard some one—it sounded like the publicity manager—saying: "That was a bully flash," and then his eyes focused again on his wife to find her looking inscrutable and distant.

"I want to talk to you, Martha," said Howard. "Can't we go somewhere and talk?"

"Not now, Howard," said Martha rather coldly. "I'm due to rehearse some scenes now. But come back tomorrow. Perhaps we can talk tomorrow."

A feeling of resentment swept over Howard.

"I'm at the Consul hotel," he said briefly. "Suppose you phone me there tomorrow when you're not busy."

Without another word Howard turned and hurried from the studio. Rage and resentment swept over him. What a reception! What treatment when he had come such a distance for the purpose of trying to make up with his wife! He had had a mind to call the whole thing off and go back to his home without making any further attempt at a reconciliation.

Then again the thought of the loneliness of the past year, of his really great love for the wife who had never seemed prettier than now swept over him. He threw back his shoulders. "Of course she couldn't be anything but distant and cold with all those

It was different on the following day, but not in the manner Howard thought.

At breakfast the next morning as Howard was usually glancing through his paper, his eyes suddenly focused in horror at a picture on the theatrical page. The picture was a photo taken in a studio. It showed a man eagerly shaking hands with a brilliantly-dressed, beautiful actress. The woman's face was cold and distant. Over the picture was this caption: "Prominent Midwestern Business Man Seeks Reconciliation With Wife Who Is Becoming Famous in the Movies." The woman was his wife, the man was himself. Now he knew the meaning of that photographic flash while he was at the studio.

Howard went fighting mad at seeing this picture and reading the accompanying paragraphs giving intimate details of his life.

"Of course, Martha was in on it," he told himself. "She's crazy for publicity. No doubt she put up that publicity manager to put the thing across. It's a rotten thing to do and I'm done with her forever!"

Howard packed his grip at once, determined to return to his home forthwith. But to his disgust, there was no train until late in the afternoon and this made it necessary for him to put in the day in New York.

Howard tramped back and forth on Fifth avenue and Broadway, trying to find interest in the glowing show windows and the never-ending crowds. But he couldn't get his mind off the dismal end of his expedition.

At last Howard turned his steps toward the hotel, as it was nearing train time. Not once did he think of going back to the studio or even of calling up his wife.

His heart was exceedingly heavy as he opened the door to his room.

Then, as he stepped into the room, he gave a startled glance toward the window. There, seated in an armchair, was his wife!

"How did you get in here?" "Why did they let you in?" demanded Howard.

"I—I showed them that picture in the paper," said Martha. "They couldn't refuse me then."

Howard stepped in the room and closed the door behind him.

"That was a fine piece of publicity!" he answered. "I never thought—"

His wife rushed to him.

"Oh, don't, don't!" she cried. "I didn't know it was going to happen. It was awful! Horrid! I've had that publicity manager fired. There are mighty few film press agents who would do a thing like that. And, oh, Howard—"

Her eyes melted. She held her arms out to him. Suddenly Howard found himself holding her tightly in his arms. "Really," whispered Martha, "that horrid picture was a good thing!"

"Why?" Howard demanded.

"Because," said Martha, "when you first came I really wanted to make up, but I thought I'd be cold and distant and make you suffer a while. Then, when that picture came out I knew you'd never look me up again, so I rushed right over here. Perhaps we wouldn't have made up except for that picture."

"I'm glad—mighty glad," said Howard. "I was afraid—I know you said you'd left me for good."

"I know," smiled Martha. "But—I've resigned my job. I'm going home with you."

And she snuggled closer in his arms and kissed him.

APPEALED TO HIS DIGNITY

Uncle Jake's Particular Reason for Going Over to That "Yank Plantation" in Texas.

The Yankee invasion of Texas is making things difficult for the native plantation owner. After years of tenantry satisfactory on both sides, and particularly favorable to Uncle Jake, the old negro appeared before his landlord and announced his intention of leaving him.

"Why, what are you going to leave me for?" asked Mr. Harris, who looked upon Uncle Jake as a lifelong pensioner.

"How come? Why, jes' 'cause I is gwine wo'k ovah on the Yank plantation yondah."

"Why, you old sinner you! Haven't I always treated you fair and square? Given you your own garden and a good bit left over from your share each year to send your boy to Tuskegee and to buy Aunt Viny's clothes?"

"You shuah nuff hab did all which you say, Mistah Harris."

"Then why do you want to go over there when you can make more here farming my plantation on shares?"

"The answer," concluded Uncle Jake, half apologetically and half proudly, "I is gwine wo'k ovah the 'ah 'cause them Yanks they is callin' niggers 'Mistah'."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Glimpsing the Future.

The next generation will be that of the eminent village. The son of the farmer will be no longer dazzled and destroyed by the fires of the metropolis. He will travel but only for what he can bring back. Just as his father sends half-way across the continent for good corn or melon-seed, so he will make his village famous by transplanting and growing this idea or that. He will make it known for its pottery or its peacocks, its music or its swans. . . . There are a thousand miscellaneous achievements within the scope of the great-hearted village. Our agricultural land today holds the plowboys who will bring these benefits.—Vachel Lindsay.

Maharajas and Their Jewels

Maharaja of Indore in the Peacock Turban.

ASKED to pluck the prettiest flowers of our Belgian folklore, I stand blinded and hesitate. What shall I choose in this bouquet, over rich in its mingling of brilliant colors and tender hues? Shall it be pearls of sacred mistletoe fallen beneath the Druid's knife; lilies grown in the shadow of convents and monasteries; roses reddened with the blood of tournaments and the carnage of battle; or, perchance, pale daisies of the fields sprung up unheeded amid the cow pasture? All equally are precious, writes Louis Lagasse de Lecht in the London Times. Daughters of a fertile land sated in the course of ages by storms let loose from the four corners of the earth, are they not the expression, the poetry, the sap of love and hate, the very soul, in a word, of a people fashioned by martial blows and bathed in the sunshine of idealism?

Every Belgian is thrilled by the past. It is his staff and bread of life. Hence his love of cavalades, joyous entries and processions, the ever recurring delight of most of our villages. Great taste is often displayed in the ordering of these parades, in the building of the triumph—to which Rubens and Jordans did not scorn to devote their talent. And it is as if the figures of legend and history which pass through our streets had stepped down from the canvas of old masterpieces to be closer to the caresses of the crowds.

Sometimes the ceremony represents but an episode, a scene of chivalry or of mystery from the middle ages. In Bruges, suddenly awakened from its melancholy miracle of the holy blood, the triumphal escort of a prince consecrated to the conquest of the holy land moves in a rolling stream of glistening steel amid the glamor of rich silks and precious brocades, the clashing of arms and the embrazened peal of trumpets.

Supreme Drama of All Time.

At Furnes, on the last Sunday in July, the procession of "penitents" reenacts the supreme drama of all time. For weeks the city prepares for it. The actors' parts are more coveted than public honors; some are jealously guarded as hereditary rights. Through the dense crowd, pressing ever closer and closer, the revered figures pass in procession. And the Christ appears, weighted down by his cross, a living and staggering Christ, scourged till the blood runs from him. A shiver of religious fervor passes over the faithful. "Mercy!" a penitent cries aloud in pain. Every window is a garden of tapers, candles and lights whose flames flicker in the wind blowing from the sea. Sacred chants mingle with the piping of reeds, the noise of rattles and the winding of horns. The crowd sobs and sways and wrings its hands and falls into prayer as, following the Crucified one, the penitents pass. The men in sackcloth and the women closely veiled do penance, and their naked, torn feet bleed on the stones of the road. Perchance beneath their cloaks of burly noble ladies, whose flaxen hair and white bodies are the love treasures of this sensuous and mystic Flanders, are paying the ransom of a kiss!

Mons, the home of the guardian saint of the British army, is the theater every year of the famous Lumecon display which ends the procession of Ste. Waudru. At midday to the tolling of the great bell, otherwise heard only as a war alarm, St. George gives battle to the dragon. After a deadly combat, the dragon, according to rite, crashes down in the dust, shot through the nostrils, and the devils are chastised by the brave followers of the victorious knight. Before entering the lists the fabled "beast" lays the crowd with mighty blows of his tail. The people of Mons believe that a blow from the tail brings good luck. What matter if it hurts? On occasion both municipal officials and clergy take part in the festivities, and frequently our ancient customs put them to uncouth tests. Each year a procession leaves Grammont and goes to the Oudenberg. Prayers are said in public, after which loaves and fishes are distributed to the crowd, and the burgo-master offers the priest a silver loving cup filled with white wine in which tiny minnows are swimming. A wry face, a grave gulp and the career of a little fish ends in the pastoral stomach. And so it goes till every notable and every minnow has faced the same ordeal. At nightfall huge bonfires upon the surrounding hillsides light up the countryside. 'Tis said that these customs date back to the worship of Ceres.

"Three Entwined Ladies."

The story of the warlike virtues and tragic deaths of the "three entwined ladies" is another jewel of Meuse folklore. In 1554 Bouvignes is furiously attacked by the king of France. The town is taken, but the valiant citadel of Crevecoeur still holds out. Assault after assault is repulsed. At last, the defenders are now a bare hundred, including old men, women and children, then fifty, then ten—at last three young and beautiful women. "The Ladies of Crevecoeur" still hold out desperately. They are about to be taken. Rather than serve at a king's feast, they climb to the topmost ramparts and entwining their arms throw themselves into the Meuse, forever the gentle guardian of their womanly honor. Until this day the stream continues to weave its liquid blue shroud over their white bodies.

Doubtless the folklore of Flanders differs from the Walloon traditions and customs. The latter are light and gay, the former rich in color and full of quaint beliefs. The Flemish ceremonies begin by prayer and the solemn warnings of priests who thunder from their pulpits—"Hell, mind ye, opens beneath the feet of blond maidens who trip the merry dance; beware for misfortune will surely visit the stable and weigh upon the head of the brassy yeoman too easily tempted by foaming beer and the smiles of women." But the last words of the priestly warning have scarce died away before the festive board creaks beneath the good things of this earth, and ardent youth feels that it lives. As evening falls on the gay Sundays of August, ribald songs and old-time dances end these village fetes worthy of a Rubens or a Teniers.

WHITTLING OUT OF FASHION

Decline of Ancient and Honorable Pastime So Marked as to Have Been Noted.

Come to think of it, there is some truth in the statement that whittling is a lazy or tired man's pastime, is going out of existence. A storekeeper says: "I used to set a box out in front of the store for the boys to set on, and the next day there'd be nothin' left of the box 'ceptin' a lot of whittlin' littered like around the sidewalk. But now a box will last jes' about all summer. . . . No, whittlin' ain't what it were!" At a railway station the agent remarked that whereas a waiting-room bench had a shorter life in the older days "than a two-bit harmonica," the present benches in the men's waiting room over which he had jurisdiction had lasted well on to 18 months. And at post office, blacksmith shop, livery stable and elsewhere the crowd no longer amuses itself with knife and soft wood. Perhaps men are too busy. The storekeeper referred to above has another theory. He says: "They're too cussed lazy today to whet their jack knives."—Exchange.

CITY ORDINANCE.

Ayes: 4.
Nays: 0.
The motion carried. Moved by C. A. Trigg, and seconded by J. H. Ogden, that the ordinance be passed finally.

Ayes: 4.
Nays: 0.
The motion carried. The ordinance follows:

"An Ordinance Ordering a Special Election to be held in the City of Brady, Texas, under Provisions of Article 1016, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, to Determine Whether or Not said City Shall Accept the Benefits of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, Providing that Cities Accepting Its Benefits Shall Have Power to Improve Any Street, Avenue, Highway, Public Place or Square, or Any Portion Thereof, Within Their Limits, by Filling, Grading, Raising, Paving or Repaving the Same in a Permanent Manner, or by the Construction or Reconstruction of Sidewalks, Curbs and Gutters, or by Widening, Narrowing or Straightening the Same, and to Construct Necessary Appurtenances Thereto, Including Sewers and Drains Making Provision for the Holding of Said Election, and Declaring an Emergency."

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Brady, Texas, has determined the immediate advisability of holding an election to determine whether or not said City shall adopt the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas; and WHEREAS, Article 1016, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, provides that in such instances a special election shall be called by said City for said purpose, and that said election shall be held as nearly as possible in compliance with the law with reference to regular city elections in said City, but empowering the governing body by resolution to order said election and prescribe the time and manner of holding the same;

Therefore, Be It Ordained by the City Council of the City of Brady, Texas, that a special election be held in the City of Brady, Texas, at the Court House, which is the regular polling place for said City, on the 5th day of September, A. D., 1922 to determine whether or not said city shall adopt or reject the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas.

All resident property taxpayers who are qualified voters of said City shall be entitled to vote at said election. Said election shall be held in accordance with the general laws of the State of Texas, the provisions of the charter of said City, and in accordance with ordinances which affect the manner of holding elections in said City.

The following officers are appointed to conduct said election in accordance with law: E. E. POLK, Presiding Judge. A. B. CARRITHERS, Judge. J. B. WHITEMAN, Clerk. W. H. BALLOU, Clerk.

At such election those favoring the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, shall have written or printed on their ballots: "For the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, governing street improvements," and those opposing the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, shall have written or printed on their ballots: "Against the adoption of the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, governing street improvements."

Notice of such election shall be given by publication of this ordinance for not less than thirty (30) days immediately preceding such election in each issue of The Brady Standard, a weekly newspaper published in the City of Brady, and a copy of this Ordinance shall be posted at three (3) public places in said City, one of which shall be at the door of the Court House for not less than thirty (30) days prior to the date of said election.

The officers holding such election shall make returns thereof in the manner prescribed by law. The fact that certain streets within the limits of the above mentioned city are in a deplorable condition and the laws of said city are at this time inadequate, creates an emergency and imperative public necessity that the rule requiring ordinances to be read at more than one meeting be suspended and that this ordinance take effect from and after its passage, and it is so ordained.

PASSED, this the 20th day of June, 1922.

APPROVED, this 20th day of June, 1922.

E. L. JONES, Mayor, City of Brady, Texas.
Attest:—E. G. GILDER, Secretary, City of Brady, Texas.

STATE OF TEXAS,
County of McCulloch. I, E. G. Gilder, City Secretary of the City of Brady, Texas, do hereby certify that the "love and foregoing is a true and correct copy of the Minutes of the City Council of said City in the passage of the ordinance, therein mentioned as the same appears on record in Book A at page 5 et seq. of the Minutes of said City Council.

Witness my hand and the seal of the said City, this the 20th day of June, 1922.

E. G. GILDER, Secretary City of Brady, Texas.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A new way of checking fire in mines is by means of fine rock dust placed in boxes and suspended across the roof of the tunnel. Explosion shocks cause the boxes to break away from their support and the finely divided dust falls into the passage preventing the flames from spreading.

The average discharge of water of the Ohio River is about 300,000 cubic feet a second, the maximum flow approximately 1,500,000 cubic feet a second or 20 times the minimum flow.

An imperfect copy of the first edition of Robert Burns' "Poems," 1787, containing the three poems with his autograph, "On Scaring Waterfowl in Loch Twist," "Written at the Fall of Fyers," and "Written in the Hermitage at Taymouth," sold for more than $1,500. Seven hundred dollars was paid for the autograph song, "O Wat Ye Whas in Yon Town."

Abundant fossil flora found in rock beds in North Dakota shows that what is now a treeless plain was once covered with splendid forests of hardwoods, interspersed with conifers. Numerous and thick beds of lignite make it clear that in this region there were great swamps at one time. Fig trees and a fan palm with leaves six feet across indicate that the climate was as warm or warmer than that now prevailing on the South Atlantic slope of the United States.

Twenty women in 11 states have announced themselves candidates for the National House of Representatives. Four women in as many different states have become candidates for the Senate.

A moving pavement under the Paris boulevards may soon be installed. If the plan goes through, a circular moving subway will pass by the Palais Royal, the Bourse, the Opera and the Place de la Republique. Passengers can get off and on at any point on its route and by means of frequent staircases reach streets above. The traveling platform will consist of three bands moving at progressive speeds to enable passengers to step from one to another without danger of falling. Ten miles an hour would be the speed of the fastest band.

A TALK WITH A BRADY MAN.

Mr. Bodenhamer of Brady Tells of His Experience.

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Brady man:

"Some years ago my back began to ache and often I got right down with it," says Mr. Bodenhamer. "My feet and ankles became swollen and my kidneys did not act as they should. These troubles came on in spells and every time I used Doan's Kidney Pills they relieved me. I always have Doan's Kidney Pills in the house."

FOUR YEARS LATER, Mr. Bodenhamer said: "I still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as highly as when I first endorsed them."
