BRADY'S "WHITE WAY" NOW ASSURED ALSO LIGHTS IN RESIDENTIAL SECTION

BOARD OF WATER COMMISSIONERS WILL INSTALL LIGHTING STANDARDS ABOUT DOWN-TOWN, AND POLE BRACKET LIGHTS IN RESIDENTIAL PART.

Brady's forward march took another big stride this week with the letting of a contract by the board of commissioners of the Brady Water & Light Works for a street lighting system to embrace not only the entire business district, but a large portion of the residential district, as well. The contract calls for twelve turning posts, with cast lighting standards, which will be used in the centers of the downtown street intersections, and thirty street hoods, which will be placed on Blackburn, Bridge and West Commerce street. Underground cable will be used throughout the down-town section, and all the lights will be controlled by the engineer at the light plant. Installation will be effected within thirty to sixty days.

Contract for the complete lighting outfit was signed yesterday morning by the Board of Water Commissioners with the Western Electric Co., represented by Mr. Franks of Dallas, and is the result of splendid co-operation between members of the water board and the city council, the former bearing the burden of installation, and the city council agreeing to pay for the power consumed in operating the lights at a special rate of 5c per kilowatt. Incidentally, the proposition had the strong endorsement and encouragement of the local Rotary club and other civic organizations.

Financing of the proposition was accomplished through a loan made to the water board, the due date of which will be five years hence, or after all the present indebtedness of the water and light plant has been entirely wiped out, at the present rate of payment.

The equipment will include twelve cast lighting standards, eleven ft. in height, which will be set in a concrete base of about 8 1/2 ft. diameter, thereby furnishing a substantial and practically indestructible turning post. The lighting standards will be surmounted by ornamental lights of 300 candle-power, or better. Six of these standards will be placed at the intersections on the public square, while the remaining six will be placed about the business district—one at the Mann-Ricks corner, one at the Radford Grocery corner. The remaining four will be placed along North Bridge street at the intersections by the Brady Auto Co., the old light plant, the street leading from the ice plant and the street intersection at the Walker-Smith Company building.

The 30 hooded street lights for the residential district will be placed at every street intersection on Blackburn extending south from the square to South Eighth street or the O. S. Macy corner; also at every intersection on North Bridge street from H. H. Sessions corner to the city limits, and at all intersections on West Commerce street leading to the City Tourist park. These lights will be probably of 80 candle power. The pole brackets at present used will also be replaced by the new pole bracket lights in order that all lighting equipment may be uniform.

The present equipment at the power plant will enable the carrying of 140 100-candlepower street lamps, so that nearly 100 additional lights may be added in the future, should the occasion warrant or circumstances demand. Thus, it will be readily seen that the city will be in position to illuminate the tourist park, or any portion of the residential district where lights may be used to advantage.

With the twelve ornamental lights to be installed by the county about the court yard, Brady will be able to boast of one of the best-lighted and most attractive business districts in West Texas.

BRADY'S $40,000 SCHOOL BONDS SELL TUESDAY AT PAR AND PREMIUM OF $150

The $40,000 school bonds recently voted by Brady Independent School district, Tuesday found ready sale, with something like a dozen bidders for the issue. The Branch-Middlekauf Company of Wichita, Kans., were the successful bidders, their offer being to take the bonds at par with accrued interest, pay the expense of having them printed and registered, and in addition to pay a cash premium of $150.

All that now stands between receiving the cash on the issue is the printing and registering of the bonds, so it may safely be anticipated that erection of Brady's new school building will shortly be under way. Architects are now preparing plans for the building, and the school board will decide the location within the next few days.

CENTRAL COMMITTEES NAMED FOR McCULLOCH COUNTY EXHIBIT SEPT. 25-26

EXHIBIT PLAN TO BE PATTERNED AFTER SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR HELD IN 1920—TEN CASH PRIZES OFFERED FOR BEST COMMUNITY EXHIBITS.

The McCulloch County Exhibit, scheduled to be held in Brady Monday and Tuesday, September 25-26th, will adhere closely to the highly successful plan adopted at the time of holding the initial exhibit in Brady two years ago, and which was accounted one of the greatest and most successful affairs ever staged in this section of Texas. All exhibits are to be entered by school communities, and cash prizes, ten in number, ranging from $100 down to $10 will be offered for the ten best community exhibits. Individual exhibits, which are included in community exhibits, will also be judged, and ribbon awards made. This plan of operation makes for substantial prizes to the various schools winning awards and at the same time gives the individual exhibitors the pride and satisfaction of knowing they are in the class with the winners. Every school community is expected to pep into the exhibit on their own accord and without solicitation upon the part of the Central communities, as the plan of operation has been thoroughly tried out, and is universally understood.

At the meeting of the 1922 McCulloch County Co-Operative Exhibit, held at the courthouse Friday morning, August 11th, the following Central committees for the Exhibit were appointed. The Executive committee had been previously appointed at a meeting of the Brady Chamber of Commerce:

Executive Committee—Jas. T. Mann, Frank A. Knox, E. B. Newman, W. M. Bryson, Geo. E. Ehlinger.

Central Finance Committee—A. Howard Broad, chairman; W. R. (Bill) Davidson, vice-chairman; Duke Mann.

Central Arrangement Committee—Edd Broad, chairman; B. Simpson, vice-chairman. E. L. Ogden.

Central Exhibit Committees. Live Stock Department—G. R. White, general superintendent. Beef Cattle, All Breeds—F. M. Richards, director in charge. Dairy Cattle, All Breeds—G. B. Awalt, director in charge.

Sheep, All Breeds—P. C. Dutton, director in charge. Goats, All Breeds—Ed. Bryson, director in charge. Horses, Jacks, Jennetts and Mules—W. F. Dutton, director in charge.

Swine, All Breeds—W. M. Bryson, director in charge. Poultry, All Breeds—S. J. Striegler, director in charge.

Agricultural Department. G. V. Gansel—general superintendent. Grains and Seeds—Edd Broad, director in charge.

Grass and Forage—Arthur Wood, director in charge. Garden Products—C. A. Anderson, director in charge.

Cotton—Bill Hampton, director in charge. Wool and Mohair—W. F. Spiller, director in charge.

Apiary and Horticultural Dept. R. V. Stearns, general superintendent. Flowers—Mrs. Aug. F. Behrens, director in charge.

Fruit—June Coopender, director in charge. Fine Arts Department. Mrs. J. D. Branscum, general superintendent.

Culinary Department. Mrs. Edd Broad, director in charge. Textile Department. Mrs. Henry Hodges, director in charge.

Domestic Science Department. Miss Elenor Hensley, director in charge. Better Baby Show. Mrs. F. M. Richards, director in charge.

Industrial and Commercial Dept. Bailey Jones, general superintendent. Dry Goods and Millinery—H. C. Samuel, director in charge.

Hardware and Implements—A. Howard Broad, director in charge. Furniture—Roy Wilkerson, director in charge.

Groceries—John Moffatt, director in charge. Leather Goods—H. P. C. Evers, director in charge.

Jewelry and Optical Goods—B. L. Malone, director in charge. Automobiles—Burl Wiley, director in charge.

Musical Instruments—T. E. Davis, director in charge. Stationery, Toilet Goods and Confectionery—C. A. Trigg, director in charge.

Photography—L. W. St. Clair, director in charge. Cotton Seed Products—A. B. Cox, director in charge.

Building Materials—Lee Jones, director in charge. Central Program and Entertainment Committee.

H. F. Schwenker, chairman; Hubert Adkins, F. R. Wulff, Mrs. F. M. Newman, Mrs. V. B. Denton. Boys' and Girls' Club Work (Agricultural)—Geo. E. Ehlinger, director in charge.

Boy Scouts Work—Clarence Snider, director in charge. Central Publicity Committee—C. H. Vincent, general superintendent; G. C. Kirk, J. A. Holton.

In addition to the above Central committees the chairman of each Central committee is instructed to appoint or require to be appointed or elected similar committees and officers in each school district, and it will be the duty of each of these sub-committees to work through and with the Central committees.

The Central Executive committee has adopted the same plan for getting up this exhibit as was so effectively used in getting up the Exhibit in 1920, and since the people of the county are generally familiar with the plan, the appointment of the various committees hereby puts them on notice that they are to get busy without further delay. Each and every school district in the county is expected to appoint similar sub-committees in their district and have these committees begin work at once thru and with the various Central committees.

The success or failure of this Exhibit lies in the hands of the various school districts and the degree of its success depends upon the faithful efforts put forth by the leaders of each of these districts. All exhibits, whether agricultural, livestock, poultry, or other products exhibited from a community will be exhibited as from such community and the prizes will be awarded to the schools of these communities upon the merits of the community's exhibit. Therefore it is up to each school district as to what kind of showing it will make for itself in this competitive exhibit, and necessarily the progressiveness of each district in the county must be judged by the effort put forth in making their entry the very best. Since this plan was worked two years ago and since most of us are familiar with the workings of the plan the Central committees will not go about the county holding meetings and making speeches to interest the different communities in the work but will leave it squarely up to the communities to hold their meetings and bring up their part of the program.

As stated before the prizes will be awarded upon school district exhibits, as a whole, for it is felt that by awarding the prize money in this way more substantial premiums can be offered and since the premium goes to the school each member of the community will derive a benefit.

INDIAN STORIES; EARLY-DAY REMINISCENCES.

Wonder, Or., Aug. 5th.
 Editor Brady Standard:
 (Chapter 4)

I promised to describe those Indian relics I saw at San Saba in the Autumn of 1871, when I, only a lad of 14 summers, was with my father looking for a homestead or pre-emption. I will attempt to describe the shield of the Chief first.

The under side of the shield—the side kept towards the chief's body—was made of the skin off the neck of an old buffalo bull, made in the shape of a funnel, coming to a sharp point. As well as I can remember, it was about 30 inches wide, and the skin was as thick as your hand and hard as flint. On the outside of this was a covering of well dressed buckskin, very heavy and very soft. Between the two skins was a padding of feather bouquets most artistically fashioned. Each bouquet of feathers contained many brilliant and variegated colors and tied together with the sinews of a deers leg. It is highly probable that each of these bouquets of feathers or plumes represented a souvenir of some Indian damsel or squaw. If so, then the brave chief had many ardent admirers and was undoubtedly very popular as a warrior; for there was enough of these bunches of feathers to make a soft padding of two inches in thickness between the two skins and about as many more in the trimmings. There were three holes in the buckskin. Two of them made by bullets from an ordinary gun or revolver about .44 calibre. These two bullets had passed through the buckskin only. But when they reached the diverging sides of the thick, hard buffalo skin they had glanced off. But the third ball or bullet was from a more powerful gun and larger—called in those days "a buffalo gun." This one had penetrated both skins and was probably the one that killed the chief. There is no telling how many other bullets had struck the cushioned buckskin and had glanced off. Of course there was a hand hold on the inside of the shield for the Indian to be enabled to keep it between himself and the enemy. And dangling from the lower edge of the shield were long strings of artificial feathers tied in bunches like those I already described. These would just about reach the ground if the man was dismounted; and served as a camouflage to seclude the man's legs when on foot or his horse when mounted. I believe there were two or three holes in the buckskin outer cover of the shield which had been made in previous battles and had been sewed up.

In my next chapter I will describe the Indian Chief's moccasins and scalp, and make applicable comments upon his mode of warfare compared to that of the so-called civilized races of people. And continue my early-day reminiscences.

"O. I. C. U. R. RIGHT."

Editor Brady Standard:

Having described in my last epistle the Comanche Chief's shield which I saw in San Saba in the fall of 1871, with the exception of one point that I omitted, and that was the apex to the trappings which adorned the shield, and that was the last joint of a large hawk's wing. The raven black hair of the chief's scalp was braided in one large three plat, to hang down the back. It was also adorned with many beads, both artificial and natural, which loomed up conspicuously on the jet black contrast. The artificial beads were of many colors, while the natural ones were all small, oblong, white ones, and deposited there by the vermin, which once inhabited the primeval human forest, and were wont to be called by the old-time country schoolboy: "nits." And their number was legion. Attached to the lower end of this cue was a silver plate about as thick as a silver dollar and about two inches wide by four in length, with a hole in the center for fastening it on. And it was bent in a double or cupping shape presumably to prevent its catching onto limbs of trees. There was also attached a piece of cedar wood about a foot in length and two inches wide and one fourth of an inch thick, which had the image of an arrow carved full length of the piece of wood, and painted in the groove with red paint.

The moccasins were also an artistic piece of workmanship, being profusely adorned with beads of many colors. Perhaps this Indian brave felt a more exultant pride in leading his warriors on to victory than did Teddy Roosevelt in his famous charge up San Juan Hill. Tho' I was told by a Mr. Diamond who claimed to have been in that battle, that the colonel himself stayed in the back ground and did not subject himself to exposure and fire of the enemy, but did as other so-called great civilized leaders do: urge their men on to the slaughter. From a natural standpoint it would seem that the Indian brave is more deserving of honor than the white commander. And talk about patriotism! He fought for his country until his race was almost exterminated before he gave it up to us. In those days people only had black powder. With the high-power guns we have nowadays, the Indian's shield would be no more than a leaf in a whirlwind. Neither would Jackson's breastworks of cotton bales have lasted as long as it took his men to build it.

Well, my father and I went back to Bell county and decided that it was a little bit too soon for a crippled man who had a wife and small children to move out on the frontier.

When the average man goes to see a dentist it is not usually for the sake of mere sociability.

"Did that man complain when you charged him for a broken appointment?" asked a friend of one tooth-yanker—oh, yes, dentists do have friends.

"No," replied the latter. "He said breaking an appointment with me is worth every cent it costs."

EDISON PHONOGRAPH OWNERS BENEFIT BY NEWEST EDISON SERVICE ENTERPRISE

Owners of Edison phonographs are privileged to avail themselves of Thomas A. Edison's newest phonograph enterprise, known as the "Home Service clubs," according to E. W. Meyers of the Edison Laboratories at West Orange, N. J. Mr. Meyers was here yesterday in company with B. A. Ward, district manager of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co. of Dallas, conferring with Malone & Ragsdale, local Edison dealers, upon the new plan and service.

In brief, Mr. Meyers object was to form six clubs of ten members each among owners of Edison phonographs. Each month the different groups will be entitled to receive 20 records, or 240 records in the course of a year's time, through which they will be privileged to hear carefully selected records representing all the better types of music. There is no obligation whatever attached to this offer, except to call for the records and to return them promptly on the date specified by the dealer.

The plan evolved is much on the order of a circulating library. The records will be grouped in the Edison laboratories, rather than with the local dealers. None of the records included in the club groups will be for sale, but orders for duplicate records may be placed through Malone & Ragsdale, the local dealers, if the member so desires.

Still another feature of the club plan is that every member is presented with a ticket to Edison recitals, which will be held each month starting in the Fall at which the new recitals will be presented two weeks before they are officially published.

The entire plan is to help create growing interest in the better class of music, and as well to give Edison owners opportunity to be advised upon the newest and popular music best suited to their tastes, in which effort the plan should meet with unqualified success.

BRADY, TEXAS, Aug. 15, 1922

HONEST INJUN.

Just now we appear to be blessed with just a little bit too much aridity—agriculturally speaking, y'understand.

CENTRAL.

Brady has, time and again, asserted her claim to being the geographical center of Texas, former geographical surveys having established the point nine miles west of this city. Of course this claim was difficult of absorption by our eastern neighbors, because Brady and McCulloch county had come to be looked upon as essentially a part of West Texas, and Brady and McCulloch county have always considered themselves part and parcel of that greatest section of the great State of Texas—West Texas. But the fact nevertheless remains that we are really Central Texas, for the geographical center of Texas lies, as we have always maintained, within the boundaries of Grand Old McCulloch county—Brady Standard. That's fine. But there is one thing that any place which claims to be the geographical center of Texas ought to remember—and be humble—and that point is that the Lord did it. Take a man with a bull o' Bashan voice that never did any more to acquire it or train it, than merely to call hogs during his teens, and it's a wonder of a spare fire to a sparrow that he's prouder of it than he would be of his wife's good opinion of him after thirty years of married life. Now Brady is a nice town and, in course of progress, is going to be a nicer town. But geographical centrality won't bring Brady much except possibly a line, in very fine type, in an encyclopedia, maybe, and a few lines in some musty records at Washington. But as a reminder that real Texans live in every direction, north, south, east and west, the geographical center can be made as north while to Brady as if it were the North pole or a national park. The geographical center is not a dividing point—it is a connecting point. Come to Texas.—State Press, in Dallas News

Brady—the connecting point—is good. Brady's highways form a pivot here, the roads leading east, west, north, south—to the Gulf coast; the Mexican border, the Pacific coast; the scenic wonders of Colorado, Arizona, Utah and Nevada—to the Great Lakes and the Atlantic border. That's how near Brady is to the center of the universe.

CENTRAL COMMITTEE NAMED FOR McCULLOCH COUNTY EXHIBIT SEPTEMBER 25TH-26TH

from the effort they have put forth in helping their school to win a premium. As planned, at present, the first premium will be $100.00 to the school district having the best exhibit and the premiums will be ten in number ranging down to $10.00, for the school winning the tenth premium. There is a possibility that a change in the awarding of the premiums may be made, but such change, if made, will be in decreasing the number of premiums and increasing the amount of the last premiums.

It is not intended that the awarding of community prizes shall interfere with individual winners, and all individual exhibits in the community exhibits will be judged accordingly. For instance, if you exhibit your cattle, hogs, chickens, etc. in a community exhibit you will also be entitled to win ribbons on them as individual entries.

Now then, the thing for each school district to do is to call a meeting of that district immediately; appoint your various committees corresponding to the Central committees and then have the chairman of each committee get in touch with the chairman of the Central committee for any information or instruction they may desire. The idea is to get busy at once and get your committees to work. On Monday afternoon, Aug. 28th, there will be a meeting of all the Central committees and the various District committees, at the court house in Brady, at 2:00 o'clock for the purpose of working out the plans in detail and then we have not quite a month left in which to put the thing over. This will give us sufficient time if we get down to work; and if we do not get down to work and business, no amount of time will do any good. It isn't a question of time limit, as we have plenty of time, but it is a question of everyone entrusted with getting this Exhibit up, putting their shoulder to the wheel and pushing and getting that shoulder there before the pushing is too much uphill. The praises of the last Exhibit held in McCulloch county are still heard on all hands, not only here, but outside the county as well. We want to build up McCulloch county and keep pace with the counties around us and one of the best ways to do this is to advertise and show the people not only on the outside but those at home just what the county is doing in the way of development. Necessarily an exhibit of this nature will feature our agriculture and we all realize that upon the prosperity of our agriculture, is founded the prosperity of our other enterprises. Call your community meetings at once; get your committees to work; have them at the meeting in Brady on the 21st, and with your co-operation we will have a better Exhibit than we had two years ago. We have had the benefit of the experience of that Exhibit, and therefore, should do as well or better this time. Remember the dates, September 25th and 26th, 1922.

AXEL YOUNGQUIST, PROMINENT MELVIN CITIZEN, MET DEATH MONDAY AT HIS OWN HANDS

Axel Youngquist, prominent and widely known citizen of Melvin, met death in horrible fashion Monday from self-inflicted wounds. Without question, the horrible deed was committed while the unfortunate man was temporarily deranged. At the time, he was at the house of Mrs. Josephine Gustafson, south of Melvin, where he was visiting. He complained of a headache, and was given some medicine to relieve him, and sometime later reported feeling much better. Shortly after, one of the Gustafson children saw him lying prone upon the floor of a cowshed, stabbing himself repeatedly with the sharp point of a 12-inch file. The windpipe was severed, and a jagged hole was made in the throat, which bled profusely. The injured man was brought to the local sanitarium Monday afternoon, where he lingered until 11:25 that night, when death brought merciful relief.

Axel Frithof Youngquist was born in Byarums, Jonkoping lan Sweden in 1868. He came to America in 1890, and moved to McCulloch from near Manor, in Travis county, locating near Melvin in 1909. He was a man of splendid habits and disposition, and was held in highest esteem by all. A devout Christian, he had for many years been a member of the Swedish Free Mission church.

Last year, Mr. Youngquist appeared to have become mentally unbalanced, and he was sent to Austin for treatment, where it was thought he had been restored to complete health, and he was returned home. It appears that he had recurring attacks of the affliction, however, and sometimes expressed the desire to return to Austin, fearing he might do someone harm while he was not at himself.

Deceased is survived by a wife and five children, the oldest of whom is 19 years. Also one brother and one sister, living in Travis county, are left to mourn his passing.

Funeral services were held Tuesday evening at 6:00 o'clock at Melvin, the Rev. Axel Cling, pastor of the Swedish Free Mission church, conducting, and interment was made in the Melvin cemetery. A large crowd of old-time friends from all points in the county were gathered to pay their last respects to the dead, and to extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

Our stock of Furniture is complete; you will find we are priced right. BROAD MERCANTILE CO.

HON. JAS. L. SLAYDEN, FORMER CONGRESSMAN THIS DISTRICT, SPEAKS FOR CALLAWAY

Hon. Jas. L. Slayden, who served as congressman for many years while McCulloch county was in the same congressional district with Bexar county, and who was justly popular throughout the entire district he served, was in Brady again Wednesday after a number of years, greeting his many friends here, while on a speaking itinerary in behalf of Oscar Callaway for Congress.

The audience that heard Mr. Slayden's address was not large, but it made up in appreciative demonstration what it lacked in numbers. The speaker was introduced by Prof. M. L. Stallings in his usual happy and pleasing fashion.

Mr. Slayden, whose voice showed the effects of numerous speaking engagements already filled, was forced to speak in a moderate tone, but he spoke, nevertheless with emphasis and conviction.

Mr. Slayden stated that in all the twenty-two years he served in Congress there was no abler, nor sounder member of Congress than Oscar Callaway. In everything he was honest and sincere. He stated further that Mr. Callaway had been accused of voting against Wilson's war resolutions, when, as a matter of fact, Mr. Callaway had not been a member of congress since 1916. He stated further, that while a number of congressmen, including Mr. Callaway and himself, had opposed the U. S. entering the war, believing that the people of this great commonwealth did not want war, and feeling that all our difficulties might be settled through arbitration rather than thru the sacrificing of the flower of our manhood, yet when war was declared, none were more loyal to the U. S. than were Mr. Callaway and himself. He pointed further to the fact that the slogan that won for Woodrow Wilson his second term as president was, "He kept us out of the war," which was in harmony with the ideas advocated by Mr. Callaway and Mr. Slayden.

Regarding Mr. Blanton, Mr. Slayden characterized him as a man without friends and without influence in congress today, and that it was impossible of belief by anyone that one man out of over 430 congressmen could accomplish any good thru his individual efforts alone. In fact, Mr. Slayden declared that there was not a more honest nor courageous legislative body in the world than our American congress, and that all of Mr. Blanton's accusations to the contrary were untrue.

Mr. Slayden stated that a congressman must do more than represent his district; he is a representative of the entire state, and the entire nation. For this reason, he felt a great interest in seeing that the 17th district, which was a neighbor to the district he now lives in, was ably represented, and by a man who could really be of service to the people. Such a man, said Mr. Slayden, was Oscar Callaway.

Hall-Marshall.
A marriage of interest to a host of Brady and McCulloch county friends was celebrated on Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock, when Miss Bernice Hall became the bride of Mr. Herbert Marshall. The ceremony was quietly performed in the study at the Methodist church, the Rev. S. C. Dunn officiating, and only a few intimate friends being in attendance. Immediately following the ceremony the happy couple left amidst congratulations and good wishes on the night train for Schenectady, N. Y.

Mr. Marshall is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Marshall of Brady, and is one of our many young men who have gone out into the world and who have in short while attained a remarkable measure of success thru sheer ability and strictly upon their own merits. Following his graduation from the Brady high school, Mr. Marshall completed the regular course at State University and then took a post graduate course at the university. Something like a year ago he accepted a position with the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, where he has since been located. His success, and the appreciation of his services by the company is shown by the fact that as soon as he can wind up his affairs there, he and his bride will leave for Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to which point he has been transferred by his company, and where he will have a most responsible position.

His bride is one of Brady's most charming and popular young ladies. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hall, she is also a Brady product, and is possessed of charm and grace

The Miracle Girl

By LILY WANDEL

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"After all," he thought bitterly, "who would blame her? A girl won't wait forever. Only, somehow I thought Dorine was different. Three months ago I would have punched anybody who even would have hinted such a thing—I thought, foolishly, that I knew Dorine as I did myself. Moodily he dug his cane in the gravel. The long-sought chance had come—she sat next to him, a picture in lavender organdie, a drooping hat shading her seal brown eyes, but they sat in silence, past all understanding.

She opened a silver mesh bag—not his present—and glanced in a little mirror. "Did it never strike you that in all these years I was getting older? One can wait too long, you know. I was very, very patient, Mack, you must admit that."

"Oh, I'm not blaming you," he flung back, "anybody would get tired of waiting—as we did. I don't blame you for taking your chance when it came. I'm sorry if you wasted your best years for me—waiting."

"Don't speak so bitterly, Mack. It wasn't your fault, dear boy; we simply were handicapped from the start. My mother, of the selfish, clinging type, wanting me with a feverishness that cannot be classed as love. That I have nobody-but-you-in-the-world, morning, noon and night! And your uncle promising year after year to establish you in business, if you would study just one more winter, disappointing us again and again until I lost all hope."

"I shouldn't have listened to him—hang it! Should have stopped the blame studying and taken a job anywhere."

"Oh, no, no! Who would carelessly toss a millionaire uncle aside? No, I never would have given my consent to that, especially when mother and I have a little."

He gave a bitter snort. "I wish that blamed old uncle of mine had never come East! I hate him—he has—"

"Oh, I'm Not Blaming You."

"Mack!" quite horrified. "You mustn't really. Why, I found him so nice; he just needed a little, what shall I call it—rejuvenating, perhaps!" "Oh, I know you found him nice enough! Little I thought how things would go when I got him from the station." His voice vibrated with long pent-up anger and suffering. "I never thought that you, of all girls, would take a fancy to this old, cranky man and completely turn his head. But after you had neglected me for weeks, the truth dawned upon me. I knew it was not simply to make my uncle like you so that he would help me, because, after his first week here, he made all arrangements for my entry into a law firm. Then I thought Dorine's mission is finished. I didn't dream of what was doing."

"Oh, Mack! I'm so sorry I made you suffer, but wasn't it better to suffer a few weeks and then be free? You see, mother approved of him from the start—"

"Oh, your mother," he interrupted with a smile. "I've had enough of her while you were going around with my uncle."

"Dear Mack," she said, and laid her cool fingers on his hot hand, but he brushed them angrily away.

"Mack! What has come over you? When happiness at last has come to me in such a great big portion and then you, of all persons, suddenly spoil it all."

"Dorine—" he choked—"I'm a cad—I want you to be happy—I— Oh, I am just beastly selfish, that's all, I've lost you—and life is over for me."

"Lost me!" she echoed incredulously. "Mack! Haven't you been engaged for seven years—"

"Be truthful at least, Dorine. My uncle told me himself, yesterday he was going to marry Dorine, and he hinted at it before," Mack got up.

Dorine, too, jumped up. "Mack, didn't mother tell you a thing? I told her to, though she said it seemed indelicate. I thought you knew. I told her to tell you that I wanted your uncle to love me—I wanted to awaken the man in him—not just me personally, but what I stood for—the eternal feminine. I wanted to arouse a woman interest in him, to forget himself and his money. Oh, don't you see? I wanted him to feel that he couldn't do without a woman's companionship. And he did love me—but in an older edition. Poor mother couldn't have done it, Mack. Your uncle would have gotten entirely the wrong impression. She never would have come out of her shell enough to show him one good point, and I had to show them to him by proxy. If you only knew how I worried and planned all these years—I didn't want to start our married life handicapped by mother.

"She has many fine points, but you know that she is the type that must monopolize somebody's attention all the time, and if it had not been you it would have been I, and no matter how patient you would have been I know there would have been friction. Wasn't your uncle a little that way, too—trying indirectly to postpone your marriage, so he could selfishly have you at his beck and call?"

Mack already had crushed the crisp organdie ruffles in his close embrace. "Dorine, you precious miracle girl, do you mean to tell me that this old uncle of mine is going to marry Dorine, the mother of my little Dorine? And that we are free from all shackles at last—free to make this our wedding day?"

ORIGIN OF INDIANS UNKNOWN

Controversy Over the Source of Aboriginal Americans Apparently Is Never Ending.

There has been a great deal of controversy connecting the origin of aboriginal races of America known to us as Indians—so misnamed by Christopher Columbus (1492-1506) and his contemporaries because they were taken to be natives of India. The Indians are now generally believed by the best authorities to be descended from the races of Asia. One authority says of them: "They are now generally believed to be a Mongolian people separated from Asia by the comparatively recent subsidence of the Pacific continent." Another authority says: "By some ethnologists the American Indians are considered an aboriginal or single stock; by others a mixture of Mongolian, Polynesian and Caucasian types; and by others as derived from the grafting of old world races on a true American race." Some authorities think the ancestors of the Indians may have drifted across the Pacific from Asia, or entered this continent by way of Behring strait.

Regular Rules for Family Battles. In the early days in Wales domestic battles were not frowned upon so long as the participants followed the regular, recognized rules of combat. For example, if a wife should strike her husband with a poker, she was not believed to have committed any public offense. If, however, she used so unaccustomed a weapon as a pair of tongs, the authorities at once took steps.

A trial was held, usually in the town hall, and the husband and wife were represented by attorneys, their personal appearance being forbidden. When a verdict of guilty was rendered, the judge solemnly passed the sentence of death. An effigy of the woman was then taken to a conspicuous place in the town and hanged, after which it was abused by the crowd until completely destroyed. The custom is said to have done much to prevent family quarrels.

First President Had Enemies.

When Washington retired to private life, the Aurora, an opposition paper published in Philadelphia, printed a communication which is supposed to have been written by a member of the Pennsylvania assembly, and which opened as follows: "The man who is the cause of all the misfortunes of our country is this day reduced to a level with his fellow citizens, and is no longer possessed of power to multiply evils upon the United States. If ever there was a period of rejoicing, this is the moment. Every heart in uniform with the freedom and happiness of the people ought to beat high with exultation that the name of Washington from this day ceases to give currency to political iniquity, and to legalize corruption. A new era is now opening upon us, an era which promises much to the people; for public measures must now stand upon their own merits, and nefarious projects can no longer be supported by a name."

Sea-Gull Good Provider.

As an illustration of how nature furnishes even birds with the food-getting instinct, consider the sea-gull and sea urchin. The sea urchin is a species of shellfish, found in the waters of the South, with a shell that is covered by a forest of sharp protection against natural enemies. But the sea-gull in some way found out that the little shellfish with the sharp points was a tender morsel, once the shell could be penetrated. Unable to crack the shell with its bill, the bird has a method that is as ingenious as it is effective. It picks up the urchin by one of the spines and carries it to a height of 50 or more feet over a hard beach or ledge, then drops the burden. The fall usually smashes the shell of the urchin, and the gull's next meal is thus assured.

The Age of Julia

By CLARISSA MACKIE

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Miss Marsh of the trimming counter touched her beautifully waved hair with a polished finger tip, then she tilted the tiny mirror so that she could see her wistful brown eyes and hunt out a suspected line near her mouth. Suddenly she closed the vanity case with a little snap and regarded its gold and pink enamel beauty with cold disfavor.

"That," she said bitterly, "would have bought a whole set of aluminum cooking utensils."

"What are you talking about?" panted stout Mrs. Cadge, buyer for the corset department. "Cooking utensils are of no use to you in your eight-by-ten room at the boarding house, and believe me, Julia, at your age, you should be glad to have such fine prospect as marrying Herbert Lindsay—I suppose it will be soon—"

"How long have we been engaged?" demanded Julia.

"I don't know—a few years—"

"Ten?" interrupted Julia.

"That's better than nothing—plenty of girls here in Spinnakers would be glad of your chance."

"I suppose so," murmured Julia as they returned to their respective departments.

Mr. Herbert Lindsay, who had sold men's clothing for 20 years in the front of the big store, gloomed at the handsome sapphire pin he was thrusting into his scarf. "If I had all the money that Julia invested in scarfpins," he thought, "I could have built a model chicken house and the runs tired of being dressed up all day and just selling things. I've had to be dressed up every day for years and years—and I want a chance to have a little house of my own, and wear cotton house dresses, and go to the butcher's and grocer's, and have some chickens, and belong to the Ladies' Aid society and go to church every Sunday, and wash every Monday morning and iron Tuesday—and never eat in a boarding house or restaurant again. So—if you want to give me anything for Christmas—just let me pick it out—I don't want a silver mesh bag, or a bracelet or anything like that—just a whole lot of kitchen utensils—"

Herbert put his hand on hers as the waiter hovered over them. "Will you have nesselrode pudding?" he asked.

"Plain ice cream—the plainest kind they have," she insisted as if intending to throw away even the suggestion of luxury.

And when they were alone Herbert put his hand on hers again and told her about the man, Peters, who wanted to sell his little shop and home.

"Ah, why didn't you buy it, Herbert?" she exclaimed.

"I did," he said calmly, "and I thought, say in March, when the frost is out of the ground, we might be married and go there."

"Hurry," urged Julia, "for we are not growing any younger—and I want to get home and look at that catalogue of kitchen things once more."

"And I," said Herbert, doomed to be a small-town shopkeeper, and happy as a schoolboy for this cherished ambition, "must make out a list of garden seeds."

DECEIVED BY STABLE SCENT

Probably Green Will Never Know Why He Failed to Make a Firm Friend of Jones.

It was one night that Jones had given over to the whims of his wife and this particular evening she had picked out to visit the Greens on the hill. Now, Jones disliked Green for some reason, but Green insisted on cultivating his friendship for business reasons, so whenever they met Green would salam low and strive in every way to win the pleasure of his neighbor.

If Jones' lawn looked as if it needed a watering Green would suggest the use of his hose and go so far as to send his young son over to spray the plot, and if this or that was wrong on his car Jones was almost certain to receive some suggestions or assistance from Green.

When the Joneses arrived this evening, every attention was given them, according to a New York Sun writer. The mere allusion to any topic would send Green into spasms of eloquence, and for some reason or other Green picked on the discussion of horses. He ranged on the subject from colts to old mares and from pacers to trotters, and nags were delved into at great length. Histories were recited and the discourse fairly reeked with facts and figures.

Jones for his wife's sake made a good play at being extremely interested and listened intently for several hours. After they had gone Green told his wife, "I guess I got him going. I am certain to win him over now. And do you know how I did it? I recognized the odor of an equestrian about him as soon as he stepped through the door and I talked horses to him all the time. Pretty clever, eh?"

But on their way home Mrs. Jones remarked, "I wonder why Mr. Green persisted in talking horses? Evidently he does not know that you are not interested in animals of any kind."

"I wonder myself why he tried to talk me deaf on that fool subject," mused Jones, as he stepped on the accelerator and shot his car over a railroad crossing, swearing softly that Green never could interest him in any deal now. "Unless he happened to get a whiff of that stable-smelling mange cure I'm putting on my scalp to keep my hair in and thought I was a riding master, or something," he added.

JET IS AN OLD-TIME FAVORITE

Julius Caesar Alludes to the Abundance of Mineral in Britain.

No one knows when jet first came into use. It has been used since before historic times and was common in the bronze age, from which times have come jet beads, buttons, rings, armlets and other ornaments. Julius Caesar alludes to the abundance of jet in Britain, and jet ornaments are found with Roman relics in them. The monks used jet for rosary beads at Whitty abbey (England) and at Whittney, where it was found in the greatest abundance. It occurs in irregular masses in hard shale known as jet rock. Often microscopic examination discloses coniferous wood in the composition of jet. It is probable that jet was developed when masses of wood drifted down the river, rotted or became water-logged and sank out at sea, becoming gradually buried in a deposit of the mud, which hardened eventually into shale. Sometimes drops of bitumen are found in jet cavities, which seems to more or less confirm the suspicion of its wood origin.

Great Charity Day in England.

Throughout all England Maundy Thursday is a great public charity day, and baskets of food are given to the poor. Curiously exact and careful records of these benefactions have been kept. The kings took care to have the number of beggars served each year and the precise extent of the charity bestowed set down in detail.

It was the custom to have as many beggars come to the palace as the sovereign was years old. When their feet had been washed the king gave each a gift of money and meat and clothes.

Before the royal hands so much as touched the towels, however, the plebeian feet were well scrubbed by the yeomen of the laundry, perfumed, and turned over to the salubrious, who had charge of the gifts, and by him scrubbed again. The third pair of hands that went through the display of humility were those of the monarch himself.

Socrates Boosts Music.

The Greeks were wise in regard to the educative value of music. Socrates, for example, takes high ground in saying that music is a gift of the gods to men and women and was never intended, "as the many foolishly and blasphemously suppose," merely to give an idle pleasure. He also traces most suggestively the connection between license in music and anarchy in the state.

Musical training is a more potent instrument than any other, because rhythm and harmony find their way into the inward places of the soul, on which they mightily fasten, imparting grace and making the soul of him who is rightly educated graceful. While he praises it into his soul, and becomes noble and good, he will justly blame and hate the bad.

Bite of Gila Monster.

Authorities differ as to the deadliness of the bite of the Gila monster, says Natural History, but no really authentic case of human death from this source has been forthcoming. The poison is fatal, but it seems that the animal is unprovided with means of ejecting it; the glands are in the under side of the mouth, imperfectly connected with the teeth, and as Dr. Leo Loeb points out, liquids won't flow uphill. One Gila monster was adopted as a plaything by a five-year-old girl, and never offered to bite her; another, after being safely handled by a museum attendant for a year, inflicted the worst bite on record, but the man recovered. The poison seems generally to be wiped off before it can enter the wound.

True Detective Stories

THE SECRET OF HOLMEHURST

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE discovery of the body of B. F. Perry in his home at 1316 Cullowhill street, Philadelphia, by a man who had come in to see about securing a patent, did not cause any sensation at the time, for the coroner's jury gave a speedy verdict of "death from accidental causes."

There was clear evidence that some sort of an explosion had taken place. A shattered bottle which had manifestly contained some sort of inflammable material, a broken pipe filled with partly burned tobacco and a charred match, lay beside the body.

An autopsy showed that Perry had died from congestion of the lungs caused by the inhaling of flames or chloroform, the latter having presumably formed the contents of the broken bottle. So, as there were no claimants for the body and no estate, Perry's remains were interred in the Potter's field. There they would have remained undisturbed if it had not been for the evidence of a convict in the St. Louis prison.

Shortly after Perry's death, the Philadelphia branch of the Fidelity Insurance company received a letter from Jephtha D. Howe, an attorney in St. Louis, stating that "B. F. Perry" was really Benjamin F. Pitezal, who had carried a $10,000 life insurance with the Fidelity company. The only person who could be found to identify the body was a man named H. H. Holmes, of Wilmette, Ill., who willingly came to Philadelphia to superintend the exhuming of the body. Holmes and Howe met in the office of the company, presumably as strangers, and the former clearly identified the body of the dead man as that of his friend, Pitezal. Satisfied, the insurance company paid the insurance to Howe, Pitezal's attorney, and reimbursed Holmes for his expenses.

The details of the case were reported in the St. Louis newspapers, and a few days later, Marion Hedgspeth, a convict serving a sentence for train robbery, informed the governor of the prison that he would like to give him some information which he considered most important.

"If you will examine the records of the prison," said Hedgspeth, "you will find that there was a man here last summer by the name of H. H. Howard. He was in for fraud, I think, but was released on bail. While he was here, Howard asked me if I knew any lawyer whom I could recommend in connection with a swindling scheme which he had in mind—a plan which ought to net at least $10,000 without any trouble. He promised me $500 for my information and I gave him the lawyer's name, but I never got my five hundred."

"The name of the lawyer I recommended to 'Howard' was Jephtha D. Howe and 'Howard' is undoubtedly the man named Holmes who is mixed up with that insurance case in Philadelphia! The details of the case agree exactly with the scheme, as Howard outlined it to me last summer."

As soon as this information reached Philadelphia, the insurance company, detailed an experienced detective named Geyer to arrest Holmes and to investigate his antecedents, for it was clear that Pitezal had not met his death through accident, but had been deliberately murdered. After a month's search, Holmes was traced to New England and finally arrested.

This, however, proved to be practically the beginning of the case, for the further back Geyer went into Holmes' history, the more gruesome details he discovered. In endeavoring to find out what had become of Mrs. Pitezal and her five children, Geyer found in the cellar of a house in Toronto—a house rented by Holmes under the name of Canning—the bodies of two children later identified as Alice and Etta Pitezal. From Toronto the trail led to Indianapolis, by way of Detroit and Cincinnati, and it was in Indianapolis that Geyer discovered the body of Howard Pitezal, aged ten, jammed into the chimney of the furnace in a house which had been rented some time before by a man who answered to the description of Holmes.

It was in the course of his search through Indiana and Illinois that Geyer came upon the most startling discovery of the entire case—the mysterious building in Chicago known as "Holmes' Castle" or "Holmehurst." The prisoner had personally superintended the erection of this structure and investigation proved that it contained an air-proof, sound-proof vault, communicating with the cellar by means of a secret staircase. Buried in the cellar floor and half-consumed by quicklime were found the remains of at least five persons who had been lured to Holmehurst and there murdered.

All of these crimes had been committed some time before the Pitezal affair, and had it not been for the fact that Holmes overlooked the premise which he had made to a convict in the St. Louis prison, it is quite possible that he would have remained at liberty, a constant and deadly peril to everyone with whom he came in contact.

But Detective Geyer returned to Philadelphia with more than enough evidence to secure conviction, and Holmes paid the penalty for his crimes on the gallows.

COGDELLS CONVICT CALLAWAY.

To the Voters 17th Congressional District:

The undersigned are six brothers. Four of us are ex-Service men, who wore our country's uniform in the late war, three of us serving overseas. One of us was gassed. One was mutilated by shrapnel and machine guns. At least four of us have the right to speak.

On August 25, 1917, while we were engaged in deadly war, and a million of our soldiers were entering the trenches of France, Oscar Callaway spoke in Comanche. That he would speak against the war had been widely advertised. Our Government had secret service officers there to watch him. The Attorney General of the United States sent Reporter W. H. Graham, of Dallas, to take down his speech. We have inspected the original report of such speech, which Mr. Graham filed with the Department of Justice in Washington, certified by him as correctly transcribed from his short-hand notes, and we now correctly quote word for word the following excerpts from the official record showing that among many other improper things Oscar Callaway said:

"They are taking me down here today. Do you suppose these men weren't sent here by somebody to take my speech for the purpose of getting me if they could? They want to take me up. * * * Haven't we got a right to discuss this thing?"

"You people can determine whether or not you want to carry his war on or don't want to carry it on. * * * Do you know what the president says we are in it for?—To make the world safe for democracy. * * * The world for democracy. You all cannot know how contemptibly fraudulent that sounds to me. * * * Oh, but they say it is treason to talk now. * * * We know the difference between violating a law and opposing it. * * * You can determine for yourselves. * * * Every citizen in this country has been pinched. Everybody in this land knows whether he wants this or don't want it. * * * If you don't act in unison in this country, you will be divided and hung."

"Let us see what this means to us, this going out to make the world safe for democracy. (A voice: Hurrah for Wilson). This going into this thing for no particular reason of our own, or grievance of our own. * * * Then talk to us about economizing at the table. Haven't they been sending somebody around to tell you that? (A voice: "Eat twice a day." Another voice: "Yes, but they don't have much luck at it at my house.") Well you determine whether you want to do it or not. * * * Be cautious that you do not come in contact with Federal officials. * * * Determine what you are going to do and then reach for a lignumvitae club for these officers, loaded to scatter, get every one of them from constable to president of the United States."

Thus in deadly war time Oscar Callaway was hamstringing his Government, with our soldiers facing "No Man's Land," and all patriotic Americans were making sacrifices to win the war speedily.

The Brownwood Semi-Weekly News, June 11, 1918, said editorially:

"Oscar Callaway has announced for Congress. Since the beginning of the war, Callaway has enjoyed a monopoly of caustic criticism aimed at President Wilson and the Administration. Even in a late speech Callaway is quoted as referring to President Wilson's slogan, 'To make the world safe for democracy,' as sounding contemptibly fraudulent to him." To be abrupt in our conclusion, Oscar Callaway is hardly a fit subject to be elected as a candidate for any public office, save that of chief bottle washer for a German baby-killing corps. His disloyalty, or tendency to Bolshevism has reached a degree that should forfeit for him the privilege of having his name placed on a Democratic ballot. It does not belong there, and we believe that a good all-around dyed-in-the-wool American county executive committee will refuse to place it there."

And from a float in Gorman, Texas, in July, 1918, Oscar Callaway attempted to make another such speech when loyal citizens informed him that he couldn't attack the Government there in war time. And Judge P. Day then mounted the float and vigorously denounced him.

Oscar Callaway's people had already repudiated him in 1916 and put him out of Congress.

And in the Primary, July 27, 1918, his people again repudiated Oscar Callaway. His home county of Comanche gave Callaway 1,394 votes and Blanton 2,585 votes. While Blanton's home county of Taylor then gave Callaway 177 votes and Blanton 3,392 votes. And Blanton's old home county of Shackelford gave Callaway 37 votes and Blanton 882 votes.

Thus Callaway's repudiation by the people was then decisive.

Dr. I. Z. Brown and other leading citizens of Lueders swear that in his recent speech there Oscar Callaway said:

"Gentlemen, if you will allow the soldier boys to get their fingers in the United States Treasury, it will be only a short time until they have their arms in it up to their shoulders."

Thus Callaway insults every ex-Service man in the United States. Our Nation trusted us not only with its wealth, but also with its life and honor. And did we fail? When Callaway designates soldiers as "pilferers" he insults their fathers and mothers. Blanton has unselfishly helped thousands of deserving ex-Service men all over the United States. Callaway has only insulted them.

And the people have again repudiated Oscar Callaway. In the recent Primary, July 22, 1922, Callaway lacked 251 votes of carrying his home county of Comanche by a majority. While with a strong home man, Cunningham, running from Abilene, Blanton carried both his home county of Taylor, and his old home county of Shackelford, by substantial majorities over all opponents. Callaway received only 233 votes in Taylor county, while Blanton received 1,258 votes in Comanche county. Callaway received only 56 votes in Shackelford county as against 743 votes there for Blanton. While the district gave Blanton 24,895 votes, and gave Callaway only 10,447 votes. And Blanton lacks only 85 votes of having a clear majority over all opponents, yet Callaway forced him to run it off in the second primary.

Oscar Callaway's home people again repudiated him, when the other day Comanche County Democrats refused to send him as one of her delegates to the State Convention.

Oscar Callaway has just flooded the district with mimeographed letters urging his supporters to organize, and stating:

"I have been assured by Mr. Dibrrell and Mr. Cunningham and their supporters that they will vigorously oppose Mr. Blanton in the run off and support me."

Is the above true? When did all "their supporters" so assure Callaway? "Supporters" are not voted like sheep, but select their own candidates.

In the name of 100 percent Americanism, and loyalty to our beloved country, and the sacred memory of our brave comrades left in France, we implore all good Americans, men and woman, to organize in each voting precinct, and urge all to get out a 100 percent vote for the second primary on August 25th, and put upon Oscar Callaway our final repudiation.

HOWARD PAYNE COLLEGE BEGINS SEPTEMBER 11th.

Howard Payne College is just completing the most successful summer term in its history. Dr. J. B. Holt of Kerrville delivered the commencement address on August 11th to a College Class of 12 graduates and an Academy class of 30.

Howard Payne College has grown steadily since it became a standard college in 1915. Its college enrollment annually is about four hundred and its sub-college enrollment about four hundred. Quite a large number of the teachers through Central Texas received their diplomas and teachers' certificates through this institution. The college is classed first class by the State Department of Education and by the Texas Association of Colleges. Freshman receive two year high school and four year elementary certificates. Sophomores receive four year high school and six year elementary certificates. Those holding the elementary certificates receive permanent elementary certificates and Seniors receive permanent certificates. Graduates of the college complete their master's degrees in one year.

The Fall term will begin on September 11th. Four year College and Academy courses will be offered. The academy will begin its work for the first time in the building recently purchased from the city high school, with a separate organization and discipline. A strong faculty will offer courses in the various branches of Fine Arts. The business college is equipped with the latest mechanical and electrical contrivances for teaching.

Why the No. 2070 Excels

Built by Shaw-Walker. Has no nuts, bolts or screws. It's rigid. The drawers open and close easily and smoothly. The slide is progressive. It's a well-made, durable slide.

The drawers are 25 1-2 inches deep. This gives you eight or ten more inches filing space per four drawers than you secure in other low-priced files.

So this case gives you the essentials—rigidity, big capacity, easy operating drawers.

Of course, it's not as good a case as the No. 1070. Have to sacrifice somewhere. Lighter gauge of steel, steel hardware, and a slip-in follower block save money, yet detract little from the file's actual usefulness.

May be had in olive green or mahogany, with or without locks.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton made a hurried visit in Brady Monday. While enroute from Abilene upon his return to Washington, Mr. Blanton was taking a swing around the 17th district, greeting his friends in the various counties.

While helping unload a well drilling machine at the local freight depot Sunday, Bill Tabor was painfully injured, when his right arm was caught underneath a large timber, and a protruding spike penetrated the fleshy part of the arm, making an ugly wound.

J. A. Tibbetts was here Wednesday from Grandview getting acquainted with the citizenship. Mr. Tibbetts will be a member of the Brady school faculty the coming year, having charge of mathematics. For the past number of years he has been superintendent of the Grandview schools.

Some folks say a snake won't bite a person while he is in the water, but Hubert Adkins can vouch for this theory not working out in practice. While on the Llano river last Friday, Hubert was standing about knee deep in water, wearing wading boots at the time. A water moccasin struck him, biting his foot through the leather toe. The injury proved very painful, the foot swelling badly, and Hubert has been forced to go about on crutches, as a result.

Wm. Collins, Jr., was in the city Monday while on his return to Llano from a visit and outing with relatives at Llano. Mr. Collins, in company with his father, edits and publishes the Llano News, one of the best and most readable weekly newspapers in this section. After running the News for many years, the Collins sold out and left Llano county, but about two years ago the lure of the game proved too strong, and they returned, bought the News again and now are presumably located for life.

Linn Davis and family, accompanied by A. M. Coalson and family, came up Monday from Del Rio for a visit with Mrs. Davis' and Mr. Coalson's father, C. M. Coalson, and family at Pear Valley, as well as relatives and friends over the county. While here, they were also guests of W. F. Dutton and family. Mr. Dutton is an annual visitor to the Linn and Emery Davis ranches, and returned only a week ago from his 1922 outing there. Joined by the Davis boys, he spent about ten days in Old Mexico in the Villa Acuna and Piedras Negras section, and reports a most enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pate returned Monday from their wedding trip, during which they visited Waco, Hamilton, Brownwood and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cantwell and little son returned Tuesday from Groesbeck, where they had been located this summer, and where Mr. Cantwell operated a mattress factory. Earl says he is mighty glad to get back here, and he expects to re-open his factory September 1st. In the meantime, he is returning to Groesbeck to move all his equipment back to Brady. Earl finds orders already accumulated for him here, and is looking forward to a mighty busy season.

Arthur Zimmerman, son of Dan Zimmerman of Dodge community, very generously consented to represent the Brady Chamber of Commerce at the meeting held the first of the week in Waco looking to the forming of an organization for the purpose of Water Conservation and Flood Control and to which endeavor the Brady Chamber had pledged its support. Mr. Zimmerman reports that an organization was formed to promote public interest in the launching of this big project and to prevail upon the state legislature for the necessary appropriations for making the surveys in connection with the work. The local organization feels greatly indebted to Mr. Zimmerman for his representation at the meeting.

BRADY BUILDING & LOAN ASS'N NOW IS FUNCTIONING

The Brady Building & Loan association is now an active Brady institution, having begun to function Wednesday, when the directors passed upon and approved a loan of $3,000 to Dr. J. W. Ragsdale, who will immediately let the contract for a modern and attractive bungalow home to be built upon the old T. J. Bradley lot in South Brady. Incidentally, the directors announced funds on hand sufficient to make the second loan, which will, in all likelihood, be completed within the next few days.

Committees appointed earlier in the week made a thorough and active canvass of all stock subscribers, selling additional stock to a number, adding new members, and collecting the first two months' payments. With the exception of a few subscribers who were out of town and could not be reached, the collections were nearly 100%, only three subscribers withdrawing on account of being unable to meet their initial payments.

The Brady Building & Loan association is another institution which has been fostered and encouraged by the local Rotarians, and they, as well as all Brady citizens, view with satisfaction its functioning, inasmuch as it will aid in the building of new homes in Brady, and the making of a more permanent and desirable citizenship.

Had His Job.

Roy Simpson, negro laborer, was putting in his first day with a construction gang under a foreman who was known for getting the maximum amount of labor out of his men. Simpson was helping in the task of moving the right-of-way and all day long he carried heavy timbers and ties until at the close of the day he was completely tired out. Came quitting time. Before he went, he approached the boss and said: "Mister, you sure you got me down on the payroll."

The foreman looked over the list of names he held.

"Yes," he said, finally, "here you are. Simpson, Roy Simpson. That's right, isn't it?"

"Yass, suh, boss," said the negro, "dass right. I thought mebbe you had me down as Samson"
