COOLIDGE 30TH PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES

In succeeding to the presidency of the United States upon the death of Warren G. Harding, Calvin Coolidge becomes the thirtieth citizen of the United States to be so honored. In reality, he is the 29th, for Grover Cleveland served as both the 22nd and the 24th president of the United States. Of those who were elected president, but ten were re-elected for a second term, and of the ten, eight served out the full two terms. Presidents elected for a second term were George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, Woodrow Wilson. Lincoln and McKinley were both assassinated shortly after their re-election for the second term.

Theodore Roosevelt occupies the unique position among the presidents as being the only vice-president who was ever elected to the presidency, after succeeding to the office upon the death of his chief.

To Mrs. W. N. White The Standard is indebted for the chronology showing the terms of office of each of the thirty presidents of the United States, and also the vice-presidents who served with them. As a rule, the vice-president's office is completely overshadowed by that of the president, and the vice-president is little known and less heard of. This is evidenced by the fact that Calvin Coolidge, although a strong man and an able political leader, was comparatively unknown to the great mass of citizens of the U. S. until he was suddenly thrust into the limelight through the death of the nation's chief, Warren G. Harding. Just what political fortune confronts Mr. Coolidge, the future alone can reveal. Should he be able to harmonize party leaders, it may be possible that he will follow in the footsteps of Roosevelt and be elected to the high office, to which he has just succeeded.

The following is the list prepared by Mrs. White:

1. George Washington, President 1789-1797. John Adams, Vice-President.
2. John Adams, President 1797-1801. Thomas Jefferson, Vice-President.
3. Thomas Jefferson, President 1801-1809. Aaron Burr, Vice-President 1st term; George Clinton, Vice-President, 2nd term.
4. James Madison, President 1809-1817. George Clinton, Vice-President 1st term; Elbridge Gerry, Vice-President 2nd term.
5. James Monroe, President 1817-1825. Daniel Tompkins, Vice-President.
6. John Quincy Adams, President 1825-1829. John C. Calhoun, Vice-President.
7. Andrew Jackson, President 1829-1837. John C. Calhoun, Vice-President, 1st term; Martin Van Buren, Vice-President, 2nd term.
8. Martin Van Buren, President 1837-1841. Richard Johnson, Vice-President.
9. William Henry Harrison, President 1841. John Tyler, Vice-President. President Harrison died April 14, 1841.
10. John Tyler, President 1841-45.
11. James K. Polk, President 1845-1849. George M. Dallas, Vice-President.
12. Zachary Taylor, President 1849-1850. Willard Fillmore, Vice-President. President Taylor died July 9, 1850.
13. Willard Fillmore, President 1850-53.
14. Franklin Pierce, President 1853-57. William R. King, Vice-President.
15. James Buchanan, President 1857-61. John C. Breckenridge, Vice-President.
16. Abraham Lincoln, President 1861-65. Hannibal Hamlin, Vice-President, 1st term; Andrew Johnson, Vice-President, 2nd term. Lincoln was assassinated April 14, 1865, by John Wilkes Booth.

LOCATING BOARD NAMES LUBBOCK AS "TECH" SITE

Lubbock, the county seat of Lubbock County, and on the South Plains of Texas, was chosen as the location for the Texas Technological College Wednesday by the locating board.

The decision was made following a six months' study of the briefs of the 36 applicant towns, and a three weeks' tour of inspection over the territory. The locating board was in session five hours at the Texas Hotel, Fort Worth. The announcement was made by Secretary Nabours of the locating board Wednesday afternoon.

Lubbock was the unanimous choice of the six men on the board. It was selected on the first and only ballot taken which occurred at 1:42 o'clock. An unnamed member of the board moved at that time that a ballot be taken, and that motion prevailed. He then moved that Lubbock be chosen. The roll was called, and every member voted for Lubbock. The board had been in practically continuous session during the morning beginning at 9 o'clock, and during that time various other towns were discussed. It was apparent at noon recess, however, that Lubbock would be chosen, and the balloting at 1:42, or 12 minutes after the afternoon session convened was perfunctory.

Crowd Awaits Decision.
Secretary Nabours left the Cactus Room on the roof at about 2 o'clock, and went to the first floor. When he alighted from the elevator the crowd in the lobby surged about him. He declined to make any indication as to the successful town. The scene was similar to the floor of a metropolitan stock exchange. As he moved toward the public stenographer men followed after him and excitedly asked questions. He went to the room of a newspaper man in the hotel and made copies of the report, and returned to the conference room where the statement was signed. The crowd of observers by that time had gone to the roof, and heard the report finally read.

The report follows:
"We, the members of the locating board for the Texas Technological College, in conformity with the law creating said college, having made a careful study of the original and supplementary briefs, having visited and inspected the sites offered by the 36 applicant towns, and having given consideration to the relative merits of the propositions submitted by the several towns, do hereby unanimously select and designate Lubbock in Lubbock County, Texas, as the official location of the Texas Technological College."

LEGION TO HOLD DISTRICT MEET HERE SUNDAY

The Elijah F. Allin Post of the American Legion will on next Sunday be host to the district meeting of the American Legion, and at which some one hundred or more delegates are anticipated. The delegates will come here from the various counties embraced in the 17th Congressional district. A meeting of the local Post will be held tonight and at which final arrangements for the program and entertainment will be made.

Present plans are to entertain the visiting delegations at the Tourist park, where the Legion Auxiliary has arranged to serve dinner. The Brady Municipal band will be on hand to entertain the visitors with concerts during the day.

One of the important matters to be brought before the meeting is the sending of the Brady Municipal band to Galveston as the official representatives of the Legion Posts of this district.

Church Dinner.
The ladies of the Baptist church will serve dinner in the old Hub store building Wednesday, Sept. 5th—the first day of the McCulloch County Exhibit.

MUSICAL REVUE LAST NIGHT IS GREAT SUCCESS

The Musical Revue staged last night at the Dutton City park by the Brady Municipal band, proved a great success, not only as an entertainment of high order, but from the standpoint of attendance and appreciation as well. The grandstand was comfortably filled, and a long line of autos encircled the stage, set well out in front of the band stand.

Aside from the concert numbers by the band, special features which won merited applause, and which were responded to with encores, included the clarinet duet by Hardin Jones and Bob Rose, with accompaniment by the band; the ukelele quartette, composed of Mrs. Jack Ragsdale and Misses Norma Samuel, Rebecca Francis and Edythe McShan, led by Dr. Ragsdale on the clarinet; Harold Deaton's rendition of that great hit, "Yes, We Have No Bananas;" and the "Musician's Strike." The latter was most cleverly portrayed, the band starting out in perfect attire; then, one by one, the players became aggrieved, tore up their music, shook their fists in the leaders face, threw their chairs off the stage, and retired in disgust. Despite all these misfortunes, Leader Callaway stuck faithfully on the job, finally finishing the piece with only the base and trap drums remaining faithful. The audience voiced approval in shouts of encouragement and vociferous applause.

The "Strike" cleared the stage for the appearance of Little Miss Betty Brannum in her interpretive dancing, in which she was all grace and litheness. As always, little Miss Brannum won great favor with the audience and graciously responded with an encore. Miss Hilma Jordan played the piano accompaniment.

The concluding feature of the evening, was the wonderful cornet duet by Leader Callaway and Cecil Striegler, with piano accompaniment by Miss Jordan, and which was given full measure of approval.

The band boys express hearty appreciation of the response by Brady citizens, and promise to use the funds derived towards advertising and boosting Brady in every manner possible.

A TALK WITH A BRADY MAN.
Mr. Bodenhamer of Brady Tells of His Experience.
There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Brady man:
"Some years ago my back began to ache and often I got right down with it," says Mr. Bodenhamer. "My feet and ankles became swollen and my kidneys did not act as they should. These troubles came on in spells and every time I used Doan's Kidney Pills they relieved me. I always have Doan's Kidney Pills in the house."
FOUR YEARS LATER. Mr. Bodenhamer said: "I still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as highly as when I first endorsed them."

And Now The Leaf Worm—Work on Gin Being Pushed.
Fife, Texas, August 7, 1923.
Editor Brady Standard:
If it isn't one thing its something else, and now its leaf worms. They hit us about Thursday of last week and are stripping the cotton of its leaves in a hurry, and while we thought last week the crop would be good if something dont happen to the worms we are blowed up again. Farmers are busy poisoning them, but can't tell yet whether it is doing any good or not. If it does we may still have a chance with some other pest.
Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Finlay of Brady visited relatives here Sunday. The Baptist meeting being conducted by Rev. Rumbo of Brownwood is progressing nicely with good interest and large crowds.

Large Crowds Attending Meeting by S. W. Alford Christian Evangelist.
Voca, Texas, August 7, 1923.
Editor Brady Standard:
Large crowds are attending the meeting conducted by Elder S. W. Alford, Christian Evangelist. The meeting will hold over next Sunday.

Nothing but the Bible is being preached. He tells the folks that the Gospel is God's power to save and that is enough for him. He is preaching it with power, but in love. Hear him, it will do you good.
On the meeting grounds a long table had been prepared and last Sunday everybody brought full baskets and that table was simply loaded down with more good eats than one ever saw. The results were that night and the next day the doctor had several patients. It was that first that they had ptomaine poison, but the Dr. pronounced it too much good eats for the day. Be a little more temperate next time, but come back next Sunday and we will have it over.
Miss Pricy Holloway was attacked with appendicitis Sunday night and was taken to the Brady Sanitarium Monday and was operated on. At this writing she is reported as doing nicely.

I have noticed that so many papers of late have spoken so complimentary of the Standard Editor on his special edition that he put out recently. The facts are Editor Schwenker is an Editor and we need not be surprised at anything; not even at the Standard being turned into a big daily. In fact it is just what I am looking for in a short time. I am not flattering him either, for I find when he decides on anything in the paper line he puts it over, and puts it over good.

A small boy, visiting his indulgent aunt, partook heartily of cake and cream. When asked if he hadn't had all that was good for him, he replied that he didn't know.
"Well, you're a funny boy," said his aunt. "When will you know?"

"In half an hour."

"And how will you know?"
"Well, that's easy. If I'm not ill in half an hour, I'll be sorry I didn't take more; and if I'm ill I'll be sorry I took so much. That's the only way to tell, that I know of."

DODGE BROTHERS PLAN LARGER PRODUCTION—$5,000,000 FACTORY ADDITION

An immense new assembly building, duplicating the present structure in size, is announced by Dodge Brothers as the principal unit of the 1923 expansion program.

The building is six stories high, 1,000 feet long and 75 feet wide, with more than one-half million square feet of floor space. Construction work which started some months ago is now nearly completed. The new assembly building, paralleling the old structure is just across the street which formerly marked the boundary line of the great Dodge Brothers factories.

Factory executives would not comment on the number of additional cars contemplated in this extensive addition, but it is believed that the immediate aim is a capacity of 1,000 cars a day. In the face of the greatly oversold condition which prevailed throughout the entire year just past, it is not unreasonable to assume that this number mentioned could be absorbed easily by Dodge Brothers dealers.

Other units of the expansion program are the new cyanide building, a million dollar addition to the power house, and a mammoth new closed body building. The latter is completed, several floors having been occupied for some time. It is estimated that the total investment represented by these additions, in buildings alone, will reach $5,000,000.

The erection of the body building in the short space of four months established a record. Considering the fact that it is an eight story building 400x200 feet in dimension, with a total floor space of 500,000 square feet, the time is exceptionally short. It is a striking tribute to the efficiency and financial independence of Dodge Brothers, as all the work was done under the supervision of the factory's own construction department.

Some idea of the magnitude of the undertaking may be gleaned from the fact that 30,000 barrels of cement and 16,000 cubic yards of concrete were used in the building, as well as 4,000 tons of construction steel; 1,464 tons of reinforcing steel; 38,000 window lights; 500,000 feet of maple flooring, and 600,000 bricks. There are seven traveling cranes ranging from five tons to twenty tons in capacity, and four 10-ton high speed elevators, capable of traveling 400 feet a minute loaded. The building is heated by the indirect system, fans forcing the washed air down various ducts after it is heated by steam pipes on the roof. Fire protection is insured by 10,000 sprinkler heads. All stairways are safety treaded.

While this unit is an enormous building in itself, it is in reality only half a building. The other half was completed two years ago. Taken as a whole, the building is one of the largest single factory units in the world, with a floor area of a million square feet. It will be devoted entirely to the production of all steel bodies—a type of construction originated by and for Dodge Brothers.

Mystery of Easter Island

Statues on Rano Raraku Volcano, Easter Island.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Easter Island, rumored to have disappeared beneath the Pacific ocean last autumn when tremendous earthquake shocks and tidal waves devastated parts of the shore of Chile, has only just been definitely proved to still exist, by the return of a ship sent to its far away possession by the Chilean government. Situated more than 2,000 miles west of South America and almost as far from other inhabited Pacific Islands, Easter Island is one of the most isolated inhabited regions of the globe. It is remote even from steamer lanes, and often a year or more passes without its handful of inhabitants sighting a ship.

If Easter Island had sunk beneath the ocean as it was rumored to have done, this final dropping of the curtain on the island might have gone some way toward solving its mystery; for this tiny bit of land with its unique gigantic statues is shrouded in mystery and has remained since its discovery one of the world's unsolved riddles. One theory, once popular but now about discarded, was that it represents the last pinnacle of an ancient Pacific "Atlantis" which disappeared beneath the waters many centuries ago—a theory to which a disappearance of the island might obviously have lent support.

The island's greatest length is less than 15 miles and its greatest width about seven, and its triangular shape gives it an area of only 50 square miles. Many an island as small has gone practically unnoticed; but former inhabitants unwittingly "advertised" Easter Island by setting up the huge images along its beaches; and to geographers and students of human institutions and activities it is as famous as any island of the Seven seas.

Gigantic Stone Figures. The mystery of Easter Island became recognized when Dutch navigators discovered it on Easter morning, 1722, and reported that hundreds of strange stone figures of men more than 30 feet high stood everywhere about its margins, their backs to the sea. The natives had only the crudest of tales to account for these images, which evidently had been fashioned ages before.

Recent study seems to show that the images were mounted on terraces below which the bodies of the dead were exposed and often buried. But whence came the idea for such statues on this isolated island, and how some of them weighing many tons were moved and set in place by the natives, have proved baffling enigmas.

The statues were carved from volcanic lava on the slopes of an extinct volcano. Scores of them remain still in and near the quarries. Others have been moved various distances, some remaining horizontal, others placed in an upright position. Some were moved—the natives say they were floated through the air by magic—for miles across the island. Altogether nearly 200 of the huge figures are now visible, and others are believed to have been buried in landslides. The largest standing statues are 32 feet high, but one still reeling in its quarry measures 64 feet in length.

The mystery of Easter Island is deepened by the fact that no statues of the sort have been found on other Pacific Islands, though here the landscape is literally strewn with them. The workmanship shows a considerable degree of skill. They are almost exactly alike, showing that a definite form or pattern had been worked out, and was accepted by the workmen of new generations as traditionally correct. All, too, were shaped in such a way that they were perfectly balanced and would maintain their upright position. Hammer-like and chisel-like tools of hard stone have been found in the quarries, and with these the softer volcanic stone was worked into the desired shape.

Crude But Impressive. To the eye of the civilized artist the statues of Easter Island are rather crude, with their huge, coarse profiles and conventional features. Especially is this impression gained from viewing the towering specimens in the National museum at Washington or in the British museum in London. But it must be kept in mind that they were not constructed for close scrutiny. Those that stand on the mountain slopes of Easter Island gazing off to sea, seen from a little distance, have something of the impressiveness of the Sphinx of Gizeh. And like the better known giant, they awaken a feeling of deep mystery.

The statues which stood on stone terraces, their backs to the sea, when the first Europeans saw the island, must have constituted even a weirder sight than those standing on the mountain slopes today. For those specially placed images had balanced on their heads great "hats" of reddish stone 5 to 8 feet in diameter and 3 to 6 feet thick. On the top of each was a smaller crown or knob, the whole suggesting in appearance an excessively thick-brimmed straw hat of today.

How tiny Easter Island, a mere pinpoint in the vast Pacific—a thousand miles from even its smallest inhabited neighbor, and 1,500 miles from the nearest archipelago—could have been peopled, is something of a problem. The landing of canoes of islanders from so far westward must have been by the merest chance and must have involved as well the loss of many unsuccessful voyagers. Recent investigations in the Gambler Islands, 1,500 miles west of Easter Island, disclosed folk lore referring to three migrations to an island far to the east, presumably the Easter Island of today; but none of the folk records refer to the mysterious statues, and no images similar to them were found on the Gambler Islands. In many of the Pacific islands small images of wood are carved; and such carvings were also made by the Easter Islanders. It has been suggested that the newcomers to Easter Island, finding the rather soft volcanic ash-stone that could be worked relatively easy, used this hitherto unknown material for carving instead of stone, and because of the practically unlimited amount of the stuff, increased many times over the size of the figures. Measurements of the skulls of the old Easter Islanders show shapes and brain capacity suggestive of a considerable degree of intelligence, and it is thought that they might easily have possessed much artistic instinct.

Island Belongs to Chile.

The island, discovered by the Dutch and for a while possessed by the Spanish, now belongs to Chile, but for long periods there has been no civil Chilean representative in residence. A Chilean company operates a cattle and sheep ranch on the island which supports a luxuriant growth of grasses. About once a year a ship sails, leaves supplies and takes away wool and hides. The cattle are killed for their hides alone, and the surplus meat is thrown away.

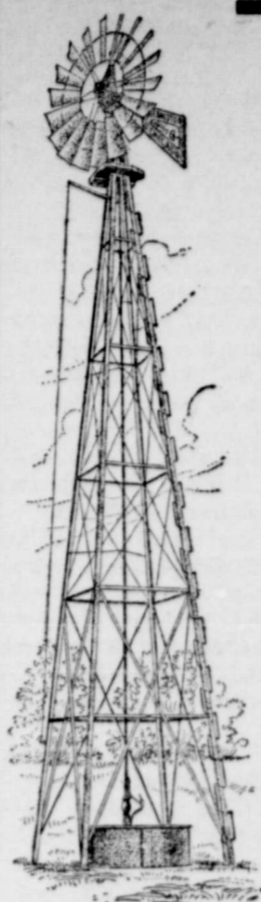

There are no harbors, no trees except a few figs and bananas, and no running water. But the population of perhaps 2,000 which the island supported in its palmiest days before the advent of Europeans had little difficulty in obtaining the water which they needed from lakes in the extinct volcanoes and from springs on the beach, exposed at low tide, fed from the lakes.

Climatically, this remote island is a paradise. It is reasonably moist and temperate with the southeast trade-wind blowing most of the year. In the small fields or plots of the natives are grown bananas, sweet potatoes, melons, corn, pumpkins, pineapples, tomatoes, cotton and tobacco. More than three-fourths of the island is pasture land. Most of the remainder is covered with broken lava.

Only about 200 natives, Kanakas of mixed blood, now live on the island. Peruvian slave traders kidnapped close to 1,000 of the natives at one time during the past century, a blow which struck doubly at the unfortunate natives, for some were returned after a protest by France, and carried smallpox with them. Many of the inhabitants who had survived the raid perished from the disease. Since that time there has been practically no tribal organization.

Easter Island played its part in the World war and evidently had figured for years in German naval plans over against "der Tag." German vessels from all parts of the Pacific quietly assembled there in the summer of 1914 preparatory to united action under Admiral von Spee. But it was a rendezvous with death. From there the assembled fleet sailed to its destruction by a British squadron of the Falklands.

A. & M. SPECIALIST EX-PLAINS MULBERRY COTTON—CORRECTS IMPRESSION.

La Marque, Texas, July 30.—Much confusion and many erroneous impressions have been created following the publication of the writers' account of a "mulberry cotton" originated by P. Dan George of this place. Exaggerated notions of cotton would be picked from trees bearing from year to year and other impractical ideas have taken shape which are at variance with the facts.

Later investigation made of Mr. George's cotton by Dr. E. P. Humbert, geneticist and cotton breeder of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station throws new light on the subject. There has been much doubt and some ridicule as to the union of the mulberry and the cotton, this being considered impossible by many scientific men. The facts as brought out by the inspection of Mr. George's cotton by Dr. Humbert were as follows:

There is a graft or union between the cotton plant and the mulberry root. Its exact character can not be made public because Mr. George pledged the investigators to secrecy as to the technical method he employed. The cotton plant which has been grafted to the mulberry root still has its own roots, which are alive, while the mulberry tree growing some twenty feet away. The cotton plant has been attached to the mulberry root in an ingenious manner by Mr. George, probably unlike anything attempted with cotton before. This fact was established after the soil was removed from the cotton plant and the "graft" or union carefully inspected.

Dr. Humbert states that he did not detect any characteristics of the mulberry tree in the attached cotton plant, but Mr. George is of opinion that there are evidences of mulberry influence in the red color of the cotton stalks and in the character of the leaves.

Mr. George has had difficulty in getting seeds from the "mulberry cotton" plant to germinate. To date he has only two living plants of this "graft," one accidentally dropping to the ground near the mother plant and sprouting this season. Another is growing separately. This progress will be noted. These comprise all the offspring of the "mulberry" cotton to date, the examination disclosed.

Furthermore, the "mulberry cotton" plant has nothing to do with the 900 cotton plants now growing on Mr. George's farm at La Marque, nor with the ten acres of cotton growing near Hitchcock. These two cotton fields are not derived from the mulberry cotton. The confusion on this point resulted from the fact that Mr. George carried on two entirely separate and distinct cotton experiments at one and the same time, one dealing with attempts to graft cotton to mulberry roots and the other with cross-breeding of established varieties of cotton.—Dallas News.

WONDER WORDS

Sunday Law Enforcement Is Decided As Class Legislation.

Wonder, Or., July 20, 1923. Editor Brady Standard: Here and there, now and then, pro and con.

The most optimistic word I know of is C-A-O-U-E-I-S-M, and the most pessimistic is Ku-ism. It catches my kid how one can imagine he is going to live here always when he positively knows that "day by day, in every way," we are passing, passing, passing away. N. B.—I put in an extra vowel in Caeuism, so as to have five consecutive vowels and only three consonants. It might as well have five as four. Oregon is quite a place for secret organizations as well as business organizations representing almost every sort of business enterprise extant. It would appear that one class of business has to organize to protect itself against some other class. Then there are other organizations which appear to be educational in purpose, while still others are manifestly purely and strictly social. Some of the secret orders seem to represent invisible Americanism while others appear to portray visible unAmericanism. But these organizations are "day by day, in every way" becoming more and more unpopular with thinking people.

I noticed in The Brady Standard of recent date that one of your neighboring towns is going to enforce the Sunday law. We tried that here a few years ago and they made a test case of it and the courts decided that it was class legislation and consequently unconstitutional. For instance the hotel and restaurant were allowed to carry on business; also the doctor and the druggist and the livery stable—for there were no automobiles then. Every business concern that was an absolute necessity to the public was allowed to carry on business. So under our democratic form of government we are not supposed to show partiality or favoritism to any individual or class of individuals. In the Oregon Caves the temperature is forty-eight degrees all the time: both winter and summer. Do you realize how cold that is? Cold enough to be uncomfortable! But the grandeur of the scenes in the marble halls is well worth it. It is cold enough here at night to sleep under a blanket and two quilts; while the hottest day at Wonder this summer, so far, was ninety-five.

BRADY, TEXAS, Aug. 10, 1923

GRACEFUL ACQUIESCENCE

The race for Texas Technological college is over and it was won—not by Brady—but by Lubbock. There must have been some strong influence which governed the selection of a city in the upper plains for the site of the new "Tech" school, for Lubbock is located within 75 miles of the New Mexico border; within 150 miles of the Oklahoma border and within 200 miles of the Kansas border. If the selection was not made in deference to the demands of West Texas for a state school to be located in West Texas, then we can offer no solution of the decision as to the "Tech" location. If such were the case, then all towns south of the T. & P. might as well have been barred in the bill which created the "Tech" school.

Brady and Brady citizens do not bemoan the result. Brady put up a strong fight, a clean fight, and made a presentation strictly upon her merits such as won her admiration and favorable comment from everyone. Brady is not envious of Lubbock—on the contrary, if the school was to be located in the Far West of Texas, then, along with the other contesting cities, we are glad Lubbock was chosen, for it is a live town; it offers many possibilities, and it has a citizenship who will always aid and foster the new school in its growth and development.

Like the good loser she always is, Brady gracefully acquiesces in the decision of the "Tech" Locating Board. This spirit was exemplified in the message of congratulations wired the "Tech" Locating committee at Lubbock by the Brady Locating committee on the morning following announcements of the Locating Board's decision, and which read as follows:

"Secretary 'Tech' Committee,
"Lubbock, Texas.

"We bow gracefully to a logical decision, and extend congratulations.
"Brady Citizens."

THE UNIQUE PRESIDENT

In this respect, at least, Calvin Coolidge stands unique among the Presidents. There are no "original Coolidge men" to demand favor for favor.

His nomination for Vice President at the last Republican convention was near enough by common consent to make unnecessary active partisanship in his favor from any source. Among the dozens of prominent Republicans whose names were before the convention, it was a matter of the Presidency or nothing. The quiet Governor of Massachusetts, already solidly in the public eye as a man of strength and determination, gravitated into the second fiddle role without a struggle.

Thus, President Coolidge's fortunes are in his own hands, his to make or mar. If his brief administration develops vote-getting qualities in the estimation of the Republican organization, he will be the next nominee. If he fails, or if his rock-ribbed conservatism serves to widen the party breach, it will be an open field. "Watchful waiting" is the password and the counter-sign, and Republicans, "radicals," Democrats and Third Party men are ready to give it at the challenge.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The road hog is not a new creation—for in the beginning God created man—but the road hog has been magnified since the advent of the automobile.

The road hog lives in the city and in the country; he is found in the city streets and on the country roads and is of both the male and female species.

The city road hog, running in high, apparently secures a great deal of satisfaction in holding the center of the road and forcing an oncoming driver to take to the ditch in order to pass him.

The country road hog, driving a team, tenaciously sticks to the middle of the road and ignores the sounding horn of the motorist who desires to pass.

Such persons are met on every road and the fact of it is exasperating and sometimes causes a killing. Both kinds of road hogs should be in jail.

But happily, all persons are not road hogs; the road hog is perhaps the exception. Most motorists and others using the public highways observe the common law of courtesy—they divide the road with others, and sometimes give up a greater share of it when passing conditions are bad on the other side. There is a reward in Heaven for those who observe the law of courtesy of the road.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

Every day in every way politics appears something other than red-blooded sport. This district (and the whole nation, for that matter) last year was treated to the spectacle of two candidates for a seat in congress, villifying and bemoaning one another. The sequel was the instituting of libel proceedings by Oscar Calloway, defeated candidate, against Thomas L. Blanton, successful candidate. Blanton, incidentally, also filed suit against Calloway. In speaking of the case, Blanton referred to his difference with Calloway as a "dog fight" which was the correct designation for the race as it was run. He also said that under other circumstances he and Calloway would have been friends. Politics doesn't appear to make good bed-fellows always. But although the defense lost every motion, including disqualifying the trial judge, and although the jury commissioners and even the trial jury were admitted supporters of Calloway, Blanton was acquitted—which was some vindication from the charge. Now that that's settled, most folks would like to draw the mantle of charity over the entire matter, and forget the "dog fight."

OLD BUT EVER NEW

I ran across this clipping this week where it had been hidden in an old scrap-book some forty or fifty years old, and substitute it for anything that I might think of:

"Which Shall It Be?"

Which shall it be? Which shall it be? I looked at John, John looked at me—Dear, patient John, who loves me yet, As well as though my locks were jet; And when I find that I must speak, My voice sounds strangely low and weak.

"Tell me again what Robert said," And then I, listening, bowed my head. This is his letter: "I will give A house and lands while you shall live If in return, from out your seven, One child to me for aye is given." I looked at John's old garments worn, And thought of all that he had borne Of poverty and want and care, Which I, though willing, could not share; I thought of seven mouths to feed, Of seven little children's need; And then of this. "Come John" said I "We'll choose among them as they lie Asleep." So, hand in hand, Dear John and I survey our band, First to the cradle lightly stepped,

Where Lillian, the baby slept— Her glory 'gainst the pillow white Was shown up by the candle light. Softly her father stooped to lay His rough hand in a loving way, When dream or whisper made her stir And huskily he said: "Not her—not her."

We knelt beside the trundle bed And one long ray of lamplight shed Across the boyish faces there, In dreams so beautiful and fair; I saw on James' red cheek a tear Undried. "He's but a baby too," said I And kissed him as we hurried by. Pale, patient Bobby's angel face Looked up as pleading for our race; "Nay, for a thousand crowns not him," We whispered, while our eyes were dim.

Poor Dick, bad Dick, our wayward son, Turbulent, restless, idle one— Can he be spared? Nay, He who gave Bids us befriend him to the grave. Only a mother's love can be Patient enough for such as he. "And so," said John, "I would not dare To send him from her loving care." Then stole we swiftly up above And knelt by Mary, child of love— John quickly lifted a curl that lay Across her cheeks in wilful way, And shook his head—"Nay, love, not thee." Then, while my heart beat audibly, Only one more, our eldest lad, Trusty and truthful, good and glad, So like his father—"No! John, No! I cannot, will not let him go." So back we wrote in a courteous way, We could not give one child away; Happy in truth that not one face Is missed from its accustomed place Thankful to work for all the seven, Trusting the rest to One in heaven. —L. LOCAL BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. A. Holmberg, accompanied by Mrs. Holmberg's mother, Mrs. Anderson, and sister, Mrs. A. B. Hamann, were here Tuesday from Manor, having been called to Brady by the sad news of the death of the infant son, of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyckman. Mrs. Anderson is Mrs. Lyckman's mother, and the ladies are her sisters.

A wire was received Sunday morning from Port Arthur by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Strickland announcing the safe arrival of a fine son to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown. Mrs. Brown is remembered here as Miss Mabel Strickland. Needless to say, the proud grandparents are delighted at the good news, and Ben is wearing his new dignity with becoming gravity, although he responds to congratulations with one of his happiest smiles.

Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Abney, who have been spending the past two weeks at market, returned Monday and reported a splendid trip. Enroute to market they encountered a rain beyond Denison, and in Missouri they saw evidence of a heavy downpour, the roads being rutted and muddy and cars being stuck up, evidencing several days of rain. They found marketing conditions most favorable and report having purchased one of the largest and most extensive lines of goods ever to be received by the Abney store. Mrs. Abney devoted her efforts exclusively to the purchase of wearables for ladies, and reports an exquisite line of hats, and the most attractive of ready-to-wear. The new styles are even more becoming and attractive than those of the past season, and visitors at the Abney store are assured of a treat in the many new offerings of the Fall season.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Vincent returned Wednesday from their marketing trip, being accompanied on the return by Miss Mary Lyle Vincent, who spent several weeks as a guest of relatives at Denison. About three weeks were consumed on the marketing trip by Mr. and Mrs. Vincent, and the season's new offerings at Dallas, St. Louis, Chicago and New York were inspected, with the result that the purchases of new Fall and Winter goods for the Vincent store assure a showing of the chic new styles and bright new colors, such as few cities can surpass. Upon the whole, the Vincents were delighted with their entire trip, and while they encountered some hot weather, they thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Among places of interest visited by them were Pittsburg and Harrisburg, Pa., the former famous for its smelters and manufacturing enterprises and the latter, the almost unknown (to Texans, at least) capital of the Keystone state. Pittsburg, a city of 580,000 population, nestles alongside the mountains in picturesque fashion, and while the town is famous for the smoke from its factories, which beclouds the atmosphere, a view from the mountainside affords a most attractive sight. Mr. Vincent reported rain between St. Louis and Chicago, and also this side of St. Louis, which sections had long been dry, and believes the good rains will eventually reach Texas as well.

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. Parents will therefore give it to their children, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to taste. 25c per bottle.

The Casting Out of Jimmy Myers

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE

Copyright, 1922, by the Macmillan Co.

IT SEEMED a cruel thing to do, but we had to do it. For ours is ordinarily a quiet office. We have never had a libel suit. We have had fewer fights than most newspaper offices have, and while it hardly may be said that we strive to please, still in the main we try to get on with the people, and tell them as much truth as they are entitled to for ten cents a week. Naturally, we do our best to get up a sprightly paper, and in that the Myers boy had our idea exactly. He was industrious; more than that, he tried with all his might to exercise his best judgment, and no one could say that he was careless; yet everyone around the office admitted that he was unlucky.

We took him from the college at the edge of town. He had been running the college paper for a year, and knew the merchants around town fairly well; and, since he was equipped as far as education went, he seemed to be a likely sort of a boy for reporter and advertising solicitor.

One of the first things that happened to him was a mistake in an item about the opera house. He said that a syndicate had taken a lien on it. What he meant was a lease, and as he got the item from a man who didn't know the difference, and as the boy stuck to it that the man had said lien, and not lease, we did not charge that up to him. A few days later he wrote for a town photographer a paid local article, and some one who was going around the county peddling picture frames and taking orders for enlarged pictures. That was not so bad, but it turned out that the peddler was a woman, and she came with a rawhide and camped in the office for two days waiting for Jimmy, while he came in and out of the back door, stuck his copy on the hook by stealth, and traveled only in the alleys to get his news. One could hardly say that he was to blame for that, either, as the photographer who paid for the item didn't say the peddler was a woman, and the boy was not a clairvoyant.

One dull day he wrote a piece about a gang who played poker at night in Red Martin's room. Jimmy said he wasn't afraid of Red Martin, and he wasn't. The item was popular enough, and led to a raid on the place, which disclosed our best advertiser sitting in the game. To suppress his name meant our shame before the town; to print it meant his—at our expense. It was embarrassing, but it wasn't exactly the boy's fault. It was just one of those unfortunate circumstances that come up in life. However, the advertiser aforesaid began to hate the boy.

He must have been used to injustice all his life, for there was a vertical line between his eyes that marked trouble. The line deepened as he went further and further into the newspaper business; for, generally speaking, a person who is unlucky has less to fear handling dynamite than he has writing local items on a country paper.

A few days after the raid on the poker room Jimmy, who had acquired a particularly legible hand, wrote: "The hem of her skirt was trimmed with pink crushed roses," and he was in no way to blame for the fact that the printer accidentally put an "h" for a "k" in skirt, though the woman's husband chased Jimmy into a culvert under Main street and kept him there most of the afternoon, while the cheering crowd informed the injured husband whenever Jimmy tried to get out of either end of his prison.

The printer that made the mistake bought Jimmy a new suit of clothes, we managed to print an apology that cooled the husband's wrath, and for ten days or perhaps two weeks, the boy's life was one round of joy. Everything was done promptly, accurately and with remarkable intelligence. He whistled at his work and stacked up more copy than the printers could set up in type.

He told us in confidence that he never felt festive and gay that something didn't happen. He was not in the building that evening when the paper went to press, but after it was printed and the carriers had left the office he came in singing: "She's My Sweetheart, I'm Her Beau," and sat down to read the paper.

Suddenly the smile on his face withered as with frost, and he handed the paper across the table to the book-keeper, who read this item:

Died—Mrs. Lillian Gilsey.
Prepare for the hot weather, my good woman. There is only one way now; get a gasoline stove of Hurley & Co., and you need not fear any future heat.

And it wasn't Jimmy's fault. The foreman had merely misplaced a head line, but that explanation did not satisfy the bereaved family.

Jimmy was beginning to acquire a reputation as a joker. People refused to believe that such things just happened. They did not happen before Mr. James Myers came to the paper—why should they begin with his coming and continue during his engagement? This reasoned the comforters of the Gilseys, and those interested in our downfall. The next day the "Statesman" wrote a burning editorial denouncing us "for an utter lack of all sense of common decency" that permitted us "to violate the sacredest feeling known to the human heart for the sake of getting a ribald laugh from the unthinking." We were two weeks explaining that the error was not the boy's fault.

The summer wore away and the dog days came. The Democratic state campaign was about to open in our town, and orators and statesmen assembled from all over the Missouri valley. There was a lack of flags at the dry goods stores. The Fourth of July celebration had taken all the stock. The only materials available were some red bunting, some white bunting, and some blue bunting with stars upon it. With this bunting the committee on reception covered the speakers' stand, wrapping the canopy under which the orators stood in the solid colors and the star-spangled blue. It was beautiful to see, and the pride of the window-dresser of the Golden Eagle Clothing store. But the old soldiers who walked by nudged one another and sniled.

About noon of the day of the speaking the city clerk, who wore the little bronze button of the G. A. R., asked Jimmy if he didn't want someone to take care of the Democratic meeting. Jimmy, who hated politics, was running his legs off to get the names of the visitors, and was glad to have the help. He turned in the contributed copy without reading it, as he had done with the city clerk's articles many times before, and this is what greeted his horrified eyes when he read the paper:

"Under the Stars and Bars" Democracy Opens Its State Campaign Under the Rebel Emblem Today

A Fitting Token
Treasonable Utterances Have a Proper Setting

And then followed half a column of most violent abuse of the Democrats who had charge of the affair. Jimmy did not appear on the street that night, but the next morning, when he came down, the office was crowded with indignant Democrats "stopping the paper."

Jimmy had a peculiar knack of getting up little stories of the town—not exactly news stories, but little odd bits that made people smile without rancor when they saw their names in the quaintly turned items. One day he wrote up a story of a little boy whose please—bought extra copies for their scrapbooks. We were proud of Jimmy, and assigned him to write up the funeral. That was to be a "day of triumph in Capua." There being no relatives to interfere, the lodges of the town—and the governor was known as a "Jner"—had vied with one another to make the funeral the greatest rooster-feather show ever given in the state. The whole town turned out, and the foreman of our office, and everyone in the back room who could be spared was at the governor's funeral. We put a tramp printer on to make up the paper, and told Jimmy to call by the undertaker's for a paid local which the undertaker had written for the paper that day.

Jimmy's face was beaming as he snuggled up to his desk at three o'clock that afternoon. He said he had a great story. Trusting the foreman to read the proof, Jimmy rushed out to get from a United States senator who was attending the funeral an interview on the sugar scandal, for the Kansas City Star.

The rest of us did not get back from the cemetery until the carriers had left the office, and this is what we found:

"The solemn moan of the organ had scarcely died away, like a quivering sob upon the fragrant air, when the mournful procession of citizens began filing past the flower-laden bier to view the calm face of their beloved friend and honored townsman. In the grief-stricken hush that followed might be heard the stifled grief of some old comrade as he paused for the last time before the coffin.

"At this particular time we desire to call the attention of our readers to the admirable work done by our bustling young undertaker, J. B. Morgan. He has been in the city but a short time, yet by his efficient work and careful attention to duty, he has built up an enviable reputation and an excellent custom among the best families of the city. All work done with neatness and dispatch. We strive to please.

"When the last sad mourner had filed out, the pall-bearers took up their sorrowful task, and slowly, as the band played the 'Dead March in Saul,' the great throng assembled in the street viewed the mortal remains mother asked him where he got a dollar that he was flourishing on his return with his father from a visit in Kansas City. The little boy's answer was that his father gave it to him for calling him uncle when any ladies were around. It was merrily spun, and knowing that it would not make John Luck, the boy's father, mad, we printed it, and Jimmy put at the head of it a foolish little verse of Kipling's. Miss Larrabee, at the bottom of her society column, announced the engagement of two prominent young people in town. The Saturday paper was unusually readable. But when Jimmy came in after the paper was out he found Miss Larrabee in tears, and the foreman leaning over the counter laughing so that he couldn't speak. It wasn't Jimmy's fault. The foreman had done it—the mere transposition of a little brass rule separating the society news from Jimmy's story with the Kipling verse at the head of it. The rule tacked the Kipling verse onto Miss Larrabee's article announcing the engagement. Here is the way it read:

"This marriage, which will take place at St. Andrew's church, will unite two of the most popular people in town and two of the best-known families in the state.
"And this is the sorrowful story
Told as the twilight falls,
While the monkeys are walking together,
Holding each other's tails!"

Now, Jimmy was no more to blame than Miss Larrabee, and many people thought, and think to this day, that Miss Larrabee did it—and did it on purpose. But for all that it cast clouds over the moon of Jimmy's countenance, and it was nearly a year before he regained his merry heart.

But as the months rolled by he became calm, and when Governor Antrobus died, Jimmy got up a remarkably good story of his life and achievements, and though there was no family left to the dear old man to buy extra copies, all the old settlers—who are the hardest people in the world to of Governor Antrobus start on their last journey."

Of course it wasn't Jimmy's fault. The "rising young undertaker" had paid the tramp printer, who made up the forms, five dollars to work his paid local into the funeral notice. But after that—Jimmy had to go. Public sentiment would no longer stand him as a reporter on the paper, and we gave him a good letter and sent him onward and upward. He took his dismissal decently enough. He realized that his luck was against him; he knew that we had borne with him in all patience.

The day that he left he was instructing the new man in the ways of the town. Rev. Frank Milligan came in with a church notice. Jimmy took the notice and began marking it for the printer. As the door behind him opened and closed, Jimmy, with his head still in his work, called across the room to the new man: "That was old Milligan that just went out—beware of him. He will load you up with truck about himself. He rings in sermons; trots around with church social notices that ought to be paid for, and tries to get them in free; likes to be referred to as doctor; slips in mean items about his congregation, if you don't watch him; and insists on talking religion Saturday morning when you are too busy to spit. More than that, he has an awful breath—but him out; he will make life a burden if you don't—and if you do he will go to the old man with it, and say you are not treating him right."

There was a rattling and a scratching on the wire partition between Jimmy and the door. Jimmy looked up from his work and saw the sprightly little figure of Parson Milligan coming over the railing like a monkey. He had not gone out of the door—a printer had come in when it opened and shut. And then Jimmy took his last flying trip out of the back door of the office, down the alley, "toward the sunset's purple rim." It was not his fault. He was only telling the truth—where it would do the most good.

SIXTEEN STORIES

That Touch the Heart and Tickle

the Ribs

By William Allen White

Will be Published Weekly in The Brady Standard, Beginning This Week. Each Story is Complete in Three Columns. They're Snappy

WHEN William Allen White has something to say the whole of America and a considerable portion of the remainder of the world sit up and listen. His name alone sells newspapers. You may not agree with all his views concerning politics, morals and economics, but you are bound to agree that he is a wonderful writer; and when he turns from reporting and editorials to stories, those inimitable tales of his, it makes no difference who you are or what your tastes, he will charm you.

Bill Allen White put the small town on the map and keeps one young city, Emporia, Kansas—not so very long ago it was a small town—in the headlines. His stories are of real people—home folks—and every man or woman who lives in a small town—as most Americans do—or has lived in one, will recognize himself or his neighbors in the characters who live and breathe in the witchery of Mr. White's pen.

It was this writer who discovered Main Street. Sinclair Lewis saw one side of the thoroughfare and a few of the backyards, and his observations made a book that has sold by the thousands. But William Allen White sees both sides of Main Street, and knows all the roads and lanes leading off it, and he writes about them in these stories. He is the one American author who can write the most delightful human-interest stories, and then turn right around and exercise the vision of a statesman in powerful articles on political, governmental and economic subjects. He reported the Peace Conference, which resulted in the Treaty of Versailles, for more than fifty American newspapers; his daily reports on the Armament Limitations Conference at Washington were read by millions; his articles from national political conventions have caused him to be styled "the greatest reporter in the world."

But although he has this reportorial and editorial ability, and is known the world over as one of the keenest observers of political events, it was stories of small-town life, such as this series, that made his name a household word in America and have made his books sell by the hundreds of thousands. Titles of a few of these books which are in constant demand at every public library in the country are: "Stratagems and Spoils," "In Our Town," "A Certain Rich Man," "The Old Order Changeth," "God's Puppets," "In the Heart of a Fool," "The Martial Adventures of Henry and Me" and "The Court of Boyville."

The greatest magazines in the United States vie with each other to obtain articles and stories from his pen, and when they get them, advertise them to the limit. Stories by him are to be seen regularly in Saturday Evening Post, Collier's and other national publications. Everyone is familiar with his recent action in withdrawing his contributions from a prominent periodical because he disagreed with its policy on a certain public issue; also his controversy with his life-long friend, the governor of Kansas, is a part of current history.

White's characters seem to have an actual existence—maybe they are taken from life. His boys and girls are the kind that are good for a reminiscent laugh a minute. His stories of a small-town newspaper office are veritable gems. And remember—newspaper readers want small-town stuff. And consider for a moment how the public, at this time, is demanding the small-town motif in its literature and plays. The big successes of recent years, such as "Main Street," "The Brimming Cup," "Seventeen," "Penrod" and, on the stage, "Lightnin'" (three years on Broadway), "The First Year" (two years on Broadway), and a dramatization of "Seventeen," all had this as their principal element. And furthermore, neither Booth Tarkington, Sinclair Lewis nor any one of the other authors who are meeting this public demand is equal to William Allen White in the production of small-town stuff. Not one of them has his understanding, sympathy and insight into small-town life in America.

First Yankee-Doodle President

President Calvin Coolidge

Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts is our first Yankee Doodle President, being born on the Fourth of July, fifty-one years ago—1872 at Plymouth, Vt. He is the third vice-president from that State—and it is a coincidence that one of the other two, Chester A. Arthur, became president upon the assassination of James A. Garfield. The third was Levi P. Morton, vice-president to President Harrison.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY MT. REMNANTS BRIG.

The following report of the proceedings and resolutions passed by the Mountain Remnants Fifth brigade, is reprinted from the Christoval Observer:

The Twenty-Third Annual Reunion of the Mountain Remnant Brigade, 5th Division, United Confederate Veterans, closed last Friday night after three days enjoyment of meeting old comrades, camping and resting in our shady park.

There were 83 who registered this year against 62 for last year.

The programs each day consisted of speeches, vocal and instrumental music and to the evening entertainments was added the old-time square dances to music furnished by H. B. Trotter and George Hill, violins, and Tom Blair, banjo. A. O. Allen and son, Millard, and Tom Blair, gave some selections that were much enjoyed. Many of the old veterans had partners in every set.

From 400 to 800 people were in attendance and the veterans praised the hospitality of our people in catering to their comfort and appetite.

An invitation has been extended to the old soldiers by our citizens to make Riverside Park their permanent reunion grounds. It will take time for them to decide on acceptance as a change in constitution of Brigade would be required to accept the offer but those present were almost unanimous for it.

At a business meeting held on the morning of the last day the following officers were elected:

J. O. Frink, Brevet Brig. General Commanding, San Angelo.

Z. I. Williams, Colonel 1st Regiment, San Angelo, succeeding Olfert Striegler, of Menard, who was very seriously ill at home.

J. M. McCall, Colonel of 2nd regiment, Brady.

J. H. McCormick, Colonel 3rd regiment, Brownwood.

J. C. Allcorn, Colonel 4th regiment, Bangs.

BRADY TAKES FOUR STRAIGHT DURING WEEK

The Brady ball team so far this week has made a record of four straight victories. At Mason Monday the score 1 to 0; Tuesday, 6 to 1; Wednesday at Pontotoc, 9 to 2, and yesterday on the local grounds, Mason was again defeated in an interesting and well-played game, 2 to 0. Koch pitched for Brady Monday's game; Chris in Tuesday's game, and McCarty in Wednesday's game. The game on the local grounds yesterday afternoon brought out a record crowd, all business houses closing from 4:00 o'clock until 6:00. Brady easily had the visiting team bested, although Mason put up a game contest, and twice had a chance of scoring.

No game will be played here this afternoon on account of the memorial services for President Harding, but the Mason team will play again on the local ground tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon.

Arvin Shell is now manager of the Brady team, succeeding J. M. Fuller, who expects to leave for South Texas immediately to buy cotton. Shell is not only a good second-baseman, and one of the heavy hitters on the team, but he is proving a splendid manager, and is putting renewed pep and enthusiasm into the games. Manager Shell has broadcasted his challenge to all amateur or semi-pro ball teams in the state and expects to be able to match some mighty good exhibition games.

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart.

"This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.
