Open House Planned At Citizens Center

Open house and grand opening of the Senior Citizens Center on Wood Street will be held Friday, Oct. 14, at 10:30 a.m., following complete remodeling of the building which has been known as the Humble Building.

Final work on the remodeling project is expected to be completed this week, including painting, installation of drapes, and erection of signs.

The building, which is the property of the City of Winters, will be used exclusively for persons 55 and over. Funds for remodeling were provided by the Area Aging Agency, under WCTCOG in Abilene.

Many activities for senior citizens are being planned, including appearances of the Winters String Band, and an exercise program.

Linda Blackwell, who works with the food stamp program, will continue to use the building every Thursday.

Senior citizens, clubs and organizations may use the building when it is available. However, rules set by the City of Winters prohibit use of the building for religious or political organizations or family reunions.

Offices of Rosemary Bennie, director of the Winters Senior Citizens program, will remain in the Winters Housing Authority building.

WHS ROYALTY—These high school students last week were chosen Glacier King and Queen for 1977-78. Glacier King is Reggie Boles, a junior, and Glacier Queen, Becky McKnight.

Boles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Boles, and is a member of the student council, plays football, is in the band, and a member of the FFA. Miss McKnight, also a junior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy McKnight, is a member of the band, is secretary of the junior class, and is a twirler.

Krueger To Speak At Soil Meeting

Congressman Bob Krueger (21st Texas Dist.) will give a brief talk at a barbecue lunch in the Wingate Lions Club building Saturday, during the annual tour and election of directors for Zone 4 of Runnels Soil Conservation District.

A tour of the district will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, following registration and coffee at the Lions Club building at 9 a.m.

Those making the tour will return to Wingate for a Dutch treat barbecue luncheon at 12 noon. Election of directors will be held at 12:30 p.m.

Stops on the tour will include Bermuda grass pasture that has been overseeded with winter forage crops; a pest management program conducted by the Extension Service; a good example of combining grazing management and range improvement; alfalfa hayland utilizing seep waters; and a structure on the Valley Creek Watershed Project.

At the 12:30 election, a director for Zone 4 of RSWCD will be named. Douglas Cole of Winters is presently serving as director for the zone.

To be eligible to vote in a soil and water conservation district directors election, a person must own agricultural land within the subdivision where the election is being held. The person must also live in a county all or any part of which is in the district, and the voter must be 21 years old. A candidate for the office of director must own land in the zone he represents, be 21 years of age and be actively engaged in farming or ranching.

Current members of the board of directors of Runnels SWCD are Douglas Cole, Winters, chairman; Sam Faubion, Crews, vice chairman; Otto Gottschalk, Ballinger, secretary; David Ocker of Rowena and Cone J. Robinson Sr., of Norton.

Purpose of the Runnels SWCD is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs

Continuing Search For Water

Following the announcement several weeks ago that the Farmers Home Administration had turned down the request for loans and grants to build a joint municipal water supply reservoir for Winters and Ballinger, Winters city fathers have continued in their search for additional water sources.

Winters City Council Monday night met with two representatives of an engineering firm, Henningson, Durham & Richardson, Inc., to discuss ways and means of obtaining additional water supplies.

Robert E. Hogan and Donald G. Rauscher, representing HD & R, explained some of the methods the city could continue searching for a water supply source. They pointed out that a dam built below the present Winters Lake dam on Elm Creek would store enough water for Winters and also North Runnels Rural Water Supply Corp. They recommended continued efforts on the part of the city in working with the Soil Conservation Service in obtaining funds and constructing a multi-purpose dam on Elm Creek.

It is also understood that the SCS is looking with favor toward a multi-purpose structure below the present dam, for which the SCS would be responsible for a part of construction costs and the city responsible for the municipal storage portion of a reservoir.

The City Council will study the proposition and contact the engineering firm within the next few days, Mayor Homer Hodge said. These engineers would use information and material already assembled to draw up plans for presentation to the SCS and the state Water Development Board. Mayor Hodge said the approval of the state agency some months ago to assist in underwriting the cost of such a project is "still alive," and that agency would be a source of financial assistance. If the council approves employment of HD & R, work will commence at once to make an application for the necessary water permit, the mayor said.

Following the announcement several weeks ago that the application by Winters and Ballinger had been turned down, there was announcement that Winters might approach Sweetwater on the possibilities of obtaining water from Oak Creek Lake. Several days ago, a delegation of Winters citizens met with the City Council, and the consensus at that time was that Winters should seek ways to obtain water other than purchasing and piping from Oak Creek.

secretary-treasurer; Terry Gerhart, reporter; and Janet Jacob, member of activity planning committee.

Blizzard Band To Conduct Subscription Campaign

Beginning Thursday, Oct. 13, and continuing through Monday, Oct. 17, members of the Winters High School Blizzard Band will conduct a subscription campaign for The Winters Enterprise.

Band members will sell subscription renewals and new subscriptions to The Enterprise, and will be paid a substantial commission for each sale. Funds earned by the band members in this campaign will be used to help defray expenses of the band to the Sun Bowl football game in El Paso, and to add to the special band fund.

The high school band will be divided into teams of not more than three members each, and there will be special bonus prizes for teams with the most sales. Mike Ford, band director, will coordinate the campaign.

Band students will canvass Winters and the entire trade area. They will be authorized to take renewal payments for The Enterprise, for one year only, and to sell new subscriptions, for one year only. Publishers of The Enterprise explained that subscribers may renew their subscriptions with the band members, no matter when their current subscriptions expire. For example, if a subscription does not expire until April of 1978, the subscriber may renew until April of 1979. Renewals and new subscriptions for more than one year will not earn band members additional commissions. The special band subscription campaign will end Monday, Oct. 17.

All band members working in this subscription campaign will carry proper credentials. No one without credentials will be authorized to sell subscriptions, the publishers said.

HILL COUNTRY FIREMEN—Johnny Merrill, left, of Winters, has been president of the Hill Country Country Firemen's Association for the past year. He is succeeded by Troy Templin of Sterling City. Buddy Miller, third from left, was installed as second vice president, and James

Blizzards To Stamford

Following a week's layoff, the Winters Blizzards will go to Stamford Friday night to meet the Bulldogs in the first District 6-AA football game for the Winters team. Stamford already has played one district game. Kickoff time will be 7:30 p.m.

Winters and Stamford have an about even record for the season. The Blizzards are 2-2, for four games, and the Bulldogs have a 2-3 for five games.

Stamford lost 14-12 to Hamlin in the first game of the season; then defeated Anson 15-0; lost to Sweetwater 27-21; beat Haskell 7-3; and then dropped their first district game

4-0 to Ballinger last week. Winters lost to Clyde 33-0 in the first game of the season; defeated Junction 13-12; lost to Coleman 14-0 and then came back to defeat Eldorado 6-0 in the last pre-conference game, before taking a week off before entering district competition.

PUMPER RACE—Buddy Miller, member of the Winters Volunteer Firemen, streaks from the pumper truck to a designated spot about 75 feet away, where he was to screw a nozzle on a fire hose, in the men's pumper race during the firemen's convention Saturday. Johnny Merrill, another member of the Winters team, is at the plug to turn on the water, and Raymond Lindsey heads for the other side of the truck to perform some duty in the race. The Winters team did not compete in the firemen's races, but set the pace.

Grandson of Local Woman Wreck Victim

Billy Lee Krempin, 22, of Abilene, who was burned to death when the truck he was driving went off the highway and caught fire near Sweetwater Tuesday of last week, was the grandson of Mrs. Lillie Krempin of Winters. He also was the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wallar and Mrs. Ola Heard of Winters.

According to reports, Krempin was traveling west on Interstate Highway 20 when the truck went out of control and off the highway about six miles east of Sweetwater. The truck hit a culvert, turned over and began to burn.

He was employed by Halliburton Co., an oil service in Abilene.

Survivors are his wife; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Krempin of Abilene; two brothers, Charles of Hamilton and Donald Lee of Abilene; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Fornes of Abilene.

AROUND THE 6-AA FOOTBALL LOOP

Teams of District 6-AA flexed their muscles, experimented with game tactics, planned season strategy, met out-of-district competition, for about four weeks . . . then last Friday night, six of the seven member teams knocked heads in the first conference contests.

Pre-conference results raised a few eyebrows around the district, but only among observers who failed to reckon with the makeup of the opposition. The real nitty gritty began surfacing movements Friday night.

Winters, with a week off, was the only team not playing last Friday night. The Blizzards will get a crack at conference competitors this week when they travel to Stamford to meet the Bulldogs.

First, Merkel, which had sailed through the first part of the season with a perfect record, even though they missed one scheduled game because officials failed to show, got a taste of what is to come in district play when they fell 49-14 before an onslaught of irate Colorado City Wolves, who had had a bad pre-conference start. The Wolves almost ran the Badgers off the field, as a look at the stats will indicate. C-City hadn't had a good night through the pre-conference period . . . but look who they had been playing!

Then Wylie, whose only loss in pre-district play was a 20-13 contest with Albany, got a taste of things to come as they visited Coahoma and returned with a 26-7 loss to that pack of Bulldogs.

Ballinger, with no luck for four non-district comeouts, met the Stamford Bulldogs, and eked out a 4-0 victory with two safeties. The Bearcats, as is their habit when the going gets real, outran the Stamford Bulldogs Friday night, as a look at the stat sheet will show.

Before the season even started, Colorado City had been picked as the team to beat this year's district competition. And really, the picture has not changed to a big extent.

From now until up into November, all 6-AA members will be going for conference records. Except that Coahoma, which had an off week, so far as the district is concerned, this week, but chose to go out of district for a game with Crane.

This week's schedule:
Coahoma vs. Crane (non-district)
Winters vs. Stamford
Colorado City vs. Wylie
Ballinger vs. Merkel

Poe's Corner

BY CHARLIE POE

"Time Changes Everything" is the title of a song and when I attended the retirement party for Mildred Gardner at the Chamber of Commerce Friday, I was reminded that there is nothing permanent in this world but change.

Some changes come quickly and startle us, such as the sale of Spill Brothers & Company Funeral Home which was sold to Ted Meyer. And the subsequent sale of the furniture store to the Bahlman brothers, which we are glad will continue to be called Spill's. Since Albert Spill bought out Ed Stone in 1905, we are accustomed to the name.

Some changes come so gradually that we are not aware of them until we look back and see, all of a sudden, that our life style is almost entirely different.

When Uncle Albert, as he was affectionately called, first bought the store people sometimes came in at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning to get a coffin. If the right size was not on hand one had to be built. The coffin would then be taken home and the loved one buried quickly, as was necessary.

Coffins were sold from the furniture store for many years and finally a storage building was erected behind the furniture store. The west side of the building was used for coffin storage and display and the east side had some chairs where a service could be held if the family wanted it. Practically all funerals were held from a church or home at that time.

When Albert Spill died in 1935, one person was heard to say, "Oh! No, not Uncle Albert. He has to bury me!"

Mildred began working in the store after her father's death. She recalled that when Albert Afflerbach's youngest son died in 1939, the services were held in her mother's home. It was in 1955 that the funeral home was remodeled for greater service, as we know it today.

Some things I recall from my father's experience of sitting-up with the deceased. He was in charge of this service rendered many years by the First Baptist Church for its members. In early years there were no screens and it was very necessary to sit with bodies kept in the home. Friends also dug the grave and took care of other needs. After embalming became possible, bodies were still returned home until funeral time. Gradually, this practice was discontinued. But people continued to sit with the deceased in the funeral home until recent years when this was taken over by an attendant.

Service and concern for the bereaved have always been the criteria for changes. As, is the practice of waiting until the mourners are gone to fill the grave.

The following interview that Tumbleweed Smith had with Mildred Gardner some time ago helps us to see how times change.

THIS IS TUMBLEWEED SMITH REPORTING THE SOUNDS OF TEXAS.

In Winters, there's a furniture store that sells caskets.

The oldest business in Winters is a furniture store. Mrs. John Gardner runs it now. Her father bought the store in 1905. Back then furniture stores sold coffins.

Mildred: It was the custom for them to carry one or two or possibly three coffins, as they were called in those days, on a shelf in the back of the store. And as the need came for someone who had passed away in the community, the family would come in, in their wagon, take the coffin, go back and bury their own. That's just the way that the funeral business started in as a combination business with our little firm here.

Smith: The furniture store provided a hearse?

Mildred: Well, there was a horse drawn hearse that evidently was bought, possibly, between 1905 and 1908.

Smith: Did the furniture store furnish the wagon hearse?

Mildred: Yes, that was a part of serving the family.

Smith: Would it be used to deliver the coffin, or as part of the procession?

Mildred: As part of the procession, most usually, because the people would take the coffin out ahead. The body would always lie in state at the family home and then they would have to go and have the services, if they went to a church, and that's when the horse drawn hearse came into its own, so to speak.

Smith: Some people were reluctant to take to embalming.

Mildred: At the beginning, in the early years, I would say it was in the early 1900's, there was no method of preparation or embalming, and that was the reason that services for the dead were carried out very quickly. They just laid them out, so to speak, in their home on what we used to call a cooling board. And it took families a number of years before they were willing to let us go to a home and bring the remains to the preparation room.

Smith: When funeral homes came into being most furniture stores go out of the coffin business.

Mildred: Well, in this instance we didn't, and you can still find some combination furniture and funeral homes, particularly in small towns. That's still the trend. Now, I would say that there are more funeral homes that have separated from the furniture store. Ours is still run by the same personnel, because the funeral home is right back of the store.

Smith: You still sell coffins?

Mildred: We sell coffins, only they are caskets.

Smith: Mildred Gardner, who owns and operates a combination funeral home and furniture business in Winters.

Since this interview, both businesses are under different ownership.

Other changes will come to our little community, for there is nothing permanent but change.

More songs were written about Abraham Lincoln than any other secular individual.

PP&K Contests Here Saturday, October 8

The Punt, Pass & Kick contests, annually sponsored by Ford dealers throughout the nation, will be held locally Saturday, October 8, on the Winters football field, beginning at 9 a.m.

"A total of 18 trophies in our local PP&K competition will be awarded to youngsters who participate in the contests Saturday," John E. McAdoo, manager of Bishop Boys Ford, local sponsors, said. "From our contest, winners could go on to win in the zone, district, area and divisions."

After that, top competitors in each age group will go to the national finals at Super Bowl XII. Each youngster upon registration received a free PP&K Tips Book.

This is the 17th anniversary year for PP&K, McAdoo said. From its inception, the youth activity has been sponsored by the Ford Dealers of America in cooperation with the National Football League. In that time, more than 14 million youngsters have taken part in PP&K, making it one of the largest and fastest growing activities of its kind in America, McAdoo said.

Cystic fibrosis, the number one genetic killer of children, affects one out of every 1500 babies born each year, Mrs.

$556 Collected In Salvation Army Drive

Only $556.10 has been turned in by workers in the current Salvation Army drive, Joe Eckols, drive chairman, has announced.

Eckols has reminded workers and team captains that funds collected should be turned in to W. M. Hays as soon as possible so an accurate record and report can be made.

"I have supported efforts to reach new accord with Panama on the canal, and our basic commitment to fairness and openness in dealing with other nations requires us to seek a more reasonable and fair treaty than that now in force.

"I look upon the tentative agreement signed by the President and Gen. Torrijos as a starting point, not as an end product."

Krueger said he is formalizing his opposition now, although the House of Representatives does not rule on ratification.

Krueger Announces Opposition To Treaty

U.S. Cong. Bob Krueger of Texas has announced his formal opposition to ratification of the Panama Canal Treaty recently agreed to by the Carter administration.

Voicing a position independent of that taken by many public figures, Krueger indicated he would consider support of the treaty should certain provisions be altered, provisions which, Krueger says, "are

Local Cancer Unit Received Award At Meet

The North Runnels Unit of the American Cancer Society received a "Golden Achievement" award at the state cancer meeting in Houston recently, for "bettering their best," in the Cancer Crusade last Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hodge attended the state meeting, and reported to the local cancer unit at a meeting last week in the office of the Winters Chamber of Commerce. They accepted the award on behalf of the North Runnels Unit.

Chuck Steward, American Cancer Society field representative of San Angelo, presented the local unit with a kit of film to be used in the first three grades of the public school, to help in early instructions to the pupils on the hazards of cancer.

not in the best interests of the U.S. and of U.S. citizens living in the Canal Zone.

"I cannot, in clear conscience, support an agreement that relinquishes military sovereignty of the canal," Krueger said in a statement released by his Washington D.C. office.

"Yielding military control of the canal potentially leaves unprotected not only the canal but leaves unprotected the many Americans who reside in the Canal Zone.

"Terms that dictate those concessions are unacceptable to me," he said.

"I've talked with a number of people, including Americans who have served in the zone, and they have indicated that over the years the U.S. has tended to reserve positions of major and intermediate responsibility for American citizens and we have in no way encouraged the Panamanians to take on enlarged responsibility.

"I have withstood taking a definite position until I and members of my staff could thoroughly study the treaty and talk to people on both sides.

"But what many people may not understand is that even the Senate might not vote a simple yes or no, that it might vote it out with reservations, which means major provisions would have to be altered, and I would have to see such alterations before I could support the
