Council Intensifies Search For Water

Additional municipal water supplies for Winters-and to meet needs of rural water consumers in North Runnels-continues to be the No. 1 topic for discussion by the Winters City Council, and this topic was discussed at considerable length during the mid-month meeting of the city fathers Monday night. However, no definite conclusions were reached, except decisions to continue the years-long search for answers to the water problem.

An atmosphere of deep concern was noted as Mayor Homer Hodge gave a report on the present conditions at the Winters Lake. He said engineers had informed him that at the present time (readings were taken with the last few days) available water in the City Lake totaled only 885 acre feet. The water level in the lake had dropped four inches within three weeks, the mayor said. He also told the council that "without additional rains, there would be only 45 acre feet of water in the lake by August," with present consumption. He said that "hopefully we will get rains before drastic conservation measures" will have to

Discussing the status of the work of the engineers-Heningson, Durham & Richardson, Inc., of Texas, based in Dallas-employed by the city some months ago to come up with feasible solutions, Mayor Hodge said the engineers advised employment of legal counsel to work with them in preparing applications for permits to build another dam, at a suggested site below the present lake dam. Council agreed to employ the legal assistance.

It was noted that construction of another dam, and construction of pipelines to the city, along with updating of the water treatment plant, would cost in the neighborhood of $3 million. It was understood engineers would have approximate cost figures within a short time.

When questioned about means of financing such a project, Mayor Homer Hodge indicated that this would be no problem. He said the state Water Rights Commission already had been committed for part of the financing, and additional financing would be done through grants and loans from the Farm Home Administration. However, it was unclear how much the commission was committed for, and how much FmHA would approve, if any. No definite figures were released-and could not be until engineers reached a conclusion. Also, there was no evidence presented guaranteeing committments from any source.

Mayor Hodge said that when applications are made for permits to construct another dam, evidence of available financing must accompany such applications. The mayor said that if all applications-which have not as yet been made-are approved, construction could begin "within 18 months."

As an alternative to construction of another dam, engineers had suggested Winters discuss with the Coleman council possibilities surrounding purchase of water from Coleman's lake. This project would require construction of pipelines from the Coleman lake to Winters, in addition to other work on the Winters water system, and cost would be upwards of $3

Council Gives Go-Ahead On City Park

Winters City Council Monday night gave go-ahead approval on proposed work on the city park, which would provide overall improvement and updating of present facilities, and add other facilities.

A grant from the Parks & Wildlife Department will provide one half of the funds for the park project, which would cost a total of $67,000. The city would provide $33,500, which could be "in kind," or some cash and some

Plans are to build two more tennis courts, pave park roads and parking areas, and to change landscaping where needed. It has also been suggested that a chain link fence be erected around the park, with only one entrance and exit. This entrance would be kept locked at night, except when activities are planned in the community center or at the swimming elementary principal, at once. Beard said it is imperative that all children who will enter kindergarten or first grade the next school year be registered at once, so that planning can be completed. The school administration must know how many children will be enrolled.

Some fencing has been erected and some dirt work already has been done on this project.

First grade children, who attended Winters kindergarten this year, are pre-registered. Those who have not been registered, however, must do so immediately.

For first grade, children must be six years of age on Sept. 1, 1978, and children enrolled in kindergarten for next year must be five years of age on or before Sept. 1, 1978.

Beard said parents whose children have not been registered for the next school year are requested to call the elementary office, 754-4031, to set up appointment time and date for screening examination and health information conferences. These appointments will be scheduled on Wednesdays only during April and May. Also, enrollees must present a birth certificate and proof of required immunizations, Beard said.

Consumer Food News

Meat prices will be higher than earlier forecasts for the year at Texas grocery markets, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt.

Select meat according to intended use to get the most for each dollar, she advises.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This week's price trends show economy values on fresh vegetables, grapefruit, some canned fruits and vegetables and poultry products, she says.

FRESH VEGETABLES-New potatoes have relatively low prices. Other economical choices are collards, mustard greens, carrots, cabbage and turnips. Green peppers are worth considering.

FRESH FRUITS-Grapefruit is about the best choice, pricewise and qualitywise. Pineapples and strawberries generally have more attractive prices. Varying price levels appear on oranges, bananas, apples, grapes and

POULTRY-Eggs have low prices. Fryer chicken prices are slightly higher, but a few specials are available on whole birds and

GROCERY MARKET AISLES-Features include canned Clingstone peaches, pears, corn, tomatoes and tomato products. BEEF-Prices continue to go higher slowly. Most features are on chuck cuts. Scattered economy values appear on sirloin and T-bone steaks, round steaks and

PORK-"Feature" prices on fresh cuts are few. They can be found primarily on Boston butt, whole loins, rib and loin-end roasts, end chops and liver. Scattered specials appear on bacon and frankfurters. CONSUMER WATCH-WORDS: For economy, buy fish that gives several servings per pound. Whole fresh fish provides only about one serving per pound, "pan dressed" fish yields about two servings per pound, and fish steaks offer about three servings.

Dependable even in dry country!

Certified

for these certified varieties.

You can't control the weather. So, you need a hedge against drouth. . . . and that's where the Lankart variety LX571 fits in. It consistently produces top yields of high quality cotton . . . even under tough, dry conditions. And you don't have to give up anything to get this outstanding drouth tolerance, either.

LX571 produces fairly long, strong fiber . . . with micronaire normally in the premium range. And storm resistant bolls strip well in one pass through the field. Add up all the good things about LX571 . . . then it's easy to see why this is one of the most planted cotton varieties in the Rolling Plains, Central Texas and Southwestern Oklahoma.

*LX571 is a U.S. protected variety (Plant Variety Protection Certificate No. 7200018). Unauthorized propagation and unauthorized seed multiplication prohibited by law. LX571 cotton planting seed can be sold by variety name only as a class of certified seed. It is unlawful to sell non-certified seed of this variety.

Long-time favorite.

Cotton growers in Texas, Oklahoma and Eastern New Mexico have relied on certified Lankart 57 for consistently high yields for years. This variety has vigorous plants with short main stems and short fruiting branches. Leaves are large and dense. And this medium-early maturity cotton has storm-proof bolls. Lankart 57 is a good stripper cotton, too, ... well-adapted to Texas and Oklahoma dryland production.

Certified LANKART

Certified LANKART High yielding, early variety.

This cotton variety was developed for the early maturity needs of dryland farming . . . especially in the Blackland and Rolling Plains of Texas and Southwestern Oklahoma. Vigorous plants with short main stems and close fruiting branches produce large bolls of high quality lint. A good stripper cotton for the Southern High Plains on wilt-free soil.

Probably no other animal is less welcome in your home than the rat-and justifiably

The domestic rat feeds his family always at the expense of man and other animals.

Infected fleas spread both typhus fever and plague from rat to rat and from rat to man. Both diseases have been important historically and will continue to menace mankind so long as we allow rats to share our home, our food and our places of work.

Plague is present in wild rodent populations of the western United States and is already a threat to hunters and others coming in contact with wild rodents. Typhus fever is widespread in domestic rat populations of the southern United States and has been especially significant in Texas. Rat-bite fever is primarily a disease of infants and results from the bite of an infected rodent.

Helpless infants and defenseless adults such as invalids, unconscious patients and the elderly are particularly subject to attack by rats. "This is because the rats are after food left on their faces or hands. They may bite the victim and draw blood, and this is dangerous of course because rats are carnivorous," says Kenneth C. Lauderdale, Director of the General Sanitation Division, Texas Department of Health.

Occasionally rat-bite wounds cause death. All rodent bites should be promptly and carefully cleaned and disinfected. Tetanus immunization or a booster shot is often recommended.

Most experts agree that the domestic rat population in Texas probably equals the human population, says Lauderdale. It is also estimated that each rat costs in excess of $20 a year. This means in Texas rats annually cost more than $150,000,000.

A rat eats 40 pounds of food annually. And it is estimated that for every dollar's worth of food a rat consumes, he destroys five to 10 times as much through hair, urine stains and droppings. Millions of pounds of food must be condemned by

"A given environment such as that around a feed mill or in a city block can only support a given number of rats. This capacity is related to the availability of food, water and harborage," he said. "Permanent reduction in any one or more of these vital factors will result in a permanent reduction in the rodent population."

Sanitary measures that discourage rats include the proper storage of garbage and rubbish. Garbage should be temporarily stored in metal, tightly covered containers and removed frequently for disposal. Also, stored food products should be placed on racks raised at least 12 inches from the floor to make cleaning easier and to prevent nesting places.

"If you have a cat, dog or other pet and overfeed it-leaving scraps aroundthe rat can survive quite well. You should also check your bird feeder. Is it constructed so that grain spills onto the ground or placed so that a rat can climb into it?" Lauderdale said.

Accumulations of lumber and other building materials should be placed on racks and never stored directly on the ground. Storerooms, attics, garages, basements and other often dark and cluttered places should be cleaned out because they are excellent rat nesting locations.

Lauderdale says he would rather put the emphasis for rat control on sanitary measures, instead of poisoning. "It is impossible to control rats with poisons since their rapid rate of reproduction permits almost instantaneous recovery when the poisoning is stopped. Each female may give birth to as many as 70 rats each year, out of which she will wean an average of 20."

The family Bible is the safest place that I know to hide your treasures, especially when it is a large one published in 1883.

C. R. Kendrick has such a Bible that belonged to his mother. His grandfather's Civil War papers and reminiscences are safely kept therein.

Chapley Ross Moreman, for whom C. R. was named. enlisted as a private in Co. F, 20th Regiment Mississippi Infantry on May 6, 1861, at Hillsboro, Miss.

Mr. Kendrick said that his grandparents lived at Hereford when he was a boy and he visited them every summer. Mr. Moreman took a magazine called the Confederate Veteran. He knew every battle and everything that happened and entertained a young boy with countless stories of the war.

Many people urged Mr. Moreman to write a book about his experiences, but he compromised by writing several pages of memoirs which have been handed down to his namesake.

Mr. Moreman relates that his first Captain was T. B. Graham, and he did not get his marching orders until after the first battle of Manassas on July 1, 1861.

The call was for troops to serve three years, or for the duration. Moreman's company enlisted under the three years call and left at once for Corinth, Miss., then on 15 miles to Juka, Miss., where they joined the 20th Miss. Reg't. Boarding the train for Richmond, Va., they stopped at Lynchburg and remained there drilling and training until the later part of October.

"We were ordered to West Virginia and went by rail out past Charleston, then took it on foot. Had to march as there was no more railroad," wrote Mr. Moreman.

"We went by White Sulphur Springs, Meadow Bluff, then to Big Sewell Mountain. We were after General Rosecrans of the federal army, but he was gone like 'wards ducks'."

After five weeks in camp at Bowling Green, they moved on down to Russellville, Ky. for ten days and then to Columbus on the Cumberland River. "That night they boarded us on a steamboat bound for Fort Donelson, arrived there about noon, commenced snowing. That was Feb. 14, 1862."

Barney Puckett, Chairman from the marketplace and Runnels Co. ASC Committee, tells about the benefits to farmers of the reserve

Farm programs have already helped farmers get higher grain prices and improve their cash flow position through the regular commodity loan programs and deficiency payments. In addition to deficiency payments and the loan program, farmers have two other marketing tools to help raise prices-set-aside and the grain reserve—a two pronged program. These two programs work hand-in-hand to relieve the market of excess grain. These programs can bring about

The reserve offers a systematic withdrawal of stocks from the marketplace, while the set-aside offers a way to reduce planted acres and to cut future supplieswith both working together to increase prices.

higher farm prices—but only if farmers will use them.

You are familiar with the set-aside concept, but the reserve program is a lot different from the old surplus removal programs of the past.

The grain in reserve cannot, without penalty, be removed from the reserve before wheat prices reach 140 percent and feed grain prices reach 125 percent of the current national loan

Even after the release level is reached, farmers can leave their grain in reserve and wait for prices to go even higher. This sends a very specific message to the marketplace: "You can't buy a bushel of wheat for less than $3.15." The reserve program can get this price and more.

The only time the Secretary of Agriculture can require you to settle your loan is after three years or TORNADO. after wheat has reached 175 percent of the current national loan level. That means that wheat would have to average $3.94 nationally at current loan rates. Even these upper levels will not put a ceiling over farm prices, because the decision to sell reserve grain will always be up to the individual producer.

The reserve program will do four things for farmers: -It will insulate substantial quantities of excess grain

Key Factors In Marital Satisfaction

Effective two-way communication, flexibility, enough maturity to give-andtake healthily and willingness to adapt are key factors to marital satisfaction.

Strong marriages are made of people who can tolerate each other's weaknesses and enjoy seeing each other as individuals, says Jenny Reinhardt, a family life education specialist.

Ms. Reinhardt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In a male-female relationship, it is naive for one to think that the other person can give him happiness, she continues. However, two people who are personally maintaining their own inner happiness and growing as individuals can do a lot to enhance each other's happiness.

This is not the case when one has a childish view that life together should be full of ecstasy.

The person holding this viewpoint will show instability as a mate, the specialist explains.

Too often a marriage partner may, perhaps unconsciously, feel that marriage gives one the right to boss, to tell the mate what to do, or to "Straighten her out" or "make him over."

In some instances, marriage could be more successful if couples behaved as though they were not married. Ms. Reinhardt adds.

Specialty fertilizers for use with specific plants are available but are usually

Scissors-Important Part Of Home Sewing

Scissors will do a lot to enhance a sewing project if they're the correct style, if they're sharp and if they're in good condition, says a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas

"For the cow-calf produc-Rev. and Mrs. J. H. er, the success of his operation depends on the reproductive ability of his cow herd which produces the calves he takes to market," points out Dr. John C. Spitzer contends by far the most important of these is age of the calf at weaning, and this is a direct result of the cow's reproductive performance.

> "It has been said that reproductive ability is five times more economically important than growth rate. So, the first place to increase profitability in a cow-calf operation is to improve reproductive performance," emphasizes the Texas A&M University System specialist. "There is plenty of technology available on ways to improve reproductive performance, but many producers have been unwilling to exert the management effort necessary to reap the Spitzer suggests that cattlemen take a critical look at improving their overall herd management to increase the reproductive ability of their cow herds. Practices such as short calving seasons, proper replacement heifer development, selection for reproductive efficiency, and bull breeding soundness evaluations can all increase pounds of calf weaned in the cow

"Each of these practices will initially increase costs and management intensity," says Spitzer, "but the returns will generally be far in excess of the investments in dollars and management abi-

The federal budget for fiscal year 1979 comes up for discussion in Congress next month and "cutting the budget" will be on everybody's mind.

I feel very strongly, however, that federal defense spending is not an area which should fall victim to the chopping block.

Unfortunately, however, our national defense has already been cut tremendously. Twenty years ago, defense spending accounted for 14 percent of our gross national product. Now, it accounts for only six percent. Federal defense spending has been cut significantly in Texas during the past twenty years. Nine bases have been closed since 1960 and federal dollars spent in Texas for defense have declined an average of $113 million per year.

Using the state's input/ output model of the economy, that $113 million per year direct loss has resulted in a $264 million spending reduction statewide per year and the loss of 7,257 Texas jobs annually.

Although Brooks, Kelley, Fort Sam Houston, Lackland and Randolph Air Force bases are not officially in my district, part of San Antonio is, and the welfare and economy of the city are integrally interwoven with growth and development.

Cotton voluntary diversion: previously announced is still in effect, according to W. R. Gray Jr., executive director of the county committee, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for 1978 for any or all of these Runnels County.

However, there are some new voluntary options farmers may elect, Gray said. Options include:

Wheat grazing and hay provisions: Producers may receive payment for wheat planted for harvest as grain. which they elect to graze or cut for hay. The payment will be the higher of the 1978 Wheat Deficiency rate or 50 cents times the established wheat yield times the acres. Acres for payment are limited to the larger of 50 acres or 40% of the total acreage for corn, grain sorghum, cotton and wheat intended for harvest in 1978, not to exceed the acreage for wheat. Acres earning this payment are included in NCA crops but do not require a set-aside acreage. Acres hayed or grazed under this program are not eligible for disaster or deficiency payment. Acres are also excluded from wheat classification. This could have an effect on acres eligible for program benefits in 1979. 1978 Feed Grain and

New Labor Regulation To Affect Ag Youth

Agricultural producers who rely on hand harvesting of short season crops should from the Data Processing know about a proposed federal regulation that would allow the hiring of 10-and 11-year old youth for this work, announces Dr. Gary S.

zardous work with written parental consent and only on farms where the employees do not come under federal minimum wage provisions. This means a farm having less than 500 mandays of agricultural labor during any quarter during the preceding calendar year.

The proposed regulation provides for a waiver to permit the employment of 10-and 11-year-old youth in agriculture as hand-harvesters of short season crops on larger farms under certain conditions, points out Nelson. Youth hired under the waiver must be employed during non-school hours and must commute daily from their permanent residence.

Any employer or group of employers may apply for a waiver to cover not more than an eight-week period between June 1 and October 15 of any calendar year, notes the engineer.

Each waiver application must include signed statements by the employer, employees, county Extension agents, officials of the state employment service, and other knowledgeable individuals regarding substantiation of the following provisions of the waiver applica-

1. Such agricultural operation "is customarily and generally recognized being paid on a piece rate basis in the region in which such individuals would be employed."

2. The "industry of such employer has (prior to the 1974 restrictions) traditionally and substantially employed individuals under 12 years of age without displacing substantial job opportunities for individuals over 16 years of age."

3. The crop to be harvested is one with a "particularly short harvesting season," normally within a four-week period, in the particular region in which the waiver will be applicable.

4. The 12-year minimum age prescribed since 1974 has and would cause "severe economic disruption in the industry of the employer applying for the waiver."

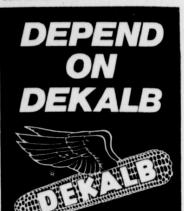

5. Neither the type of "employment" nor the "level and type of pesticides and other chemicals used" would have a harmful effect on the health and well-being of the employed minors.

6. Individuals age 12 and above are not available for such employment.

Nelson cautions that this regulation is only a proposed regulation at this time. Comments, pro or con, regarding the proposal are invited from producers and other interested persons and should be mailed by May 4 to Lucille C. Pinkett, Wage and Hour Division, Room S-3022,

WHERE I STAND

Small businesses are hit hardest by the senseless regulations imposed on them by federal bureaucracies such as OSHA and others. This is akin to the killing of the goose that laid the golden egg when you consider that these businesses, including family-owned farms and ranches, make up the most important single segment of the nation's economy. Let's look at some figures.

It costs $65 billion a year to comply with federal regulations imposed on small businesses alone. This is $300 per person for each citizen of the nation. Of course, that $300 comes out

In an attempt to provide some relief, well-meaning congressmen have introduced H.R. 7739, the Small Business Impact Statement Act. This legislation will require federal agencies to issue impact statements, such as: Detailed information on the number of small businesses affected, type of businesses and activities affected, approximate average cost to small businesses and comparison of these costs with approximate benefits to small businesses each time a new regulation is issued. The legislation also will require each agency responsible to take steps to minimize the amount of paperwork required by a new rule.

I support the thought behind this proposed regulation, yet I question the capability of the bureau that will enforce it, to objectively study and issue an impact statement. Secondly, I oppose the cloning of more bureaucrats to do the job.

The final answer I believe is to reduce the regulatory power of the ivory tower bureaucrats who have never met a payroll or responded to a government questionnaire. Congress has the vested
