Choirs Will Present Cantatas On Sunday

United Methodist First Baptist

The cantata, "God In A Star," will be presented by the combined choirs of the First United Methodist Church and the First Baptist Church, and other church choirs, in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church, Sunday, Dec. 17, at 6 p.m.

This year's cantata was written by James Denton, with the lyrics by Frank Cross. Theme of the cantata is based on the opening selection, "God In A Star," which tells of the Christ coming and turning darkness to light.

Other selections in the cantata are "The Star of Jacob Cometh," "Above the Plain," a trio for women's voices; "This is God's Own Son," "Star of Judea," "We Saw God In A Star," "How Wonderful," "When They Saw the Star," men's chorus, and the finale, "This Is the Day."

Soloists for the program will be Mrs. Nancy Evans, soprano; Mrs. Darlene Sims, soprano; Mrs. Ann McDorman, alto; and David Evans.

The combined choir will be accompanied at the organ by Donald Glover of Abilene. Choir director will be Thomas Fogelman. Narrator will be Dr. Thomas Tribble, pastor of the First United Methodist Church.

A fellowship hour in the Fellowship Hall of the church will follow the cantata.

The public is invited to attend.

St. John's Lutheran

The choir of St. John's Lutheran Church will present the annual Christmas Cantata Sunday, Dec. 17, at 10:40 a.m., as part of the regular morning worship service in the church.

Miss Emma Henniger will be at the organ, and Erwin Henniger will be choir director.

The public is invited to attend this Christmas cantata.

Assembly of God

The Assembly of God Church will have their annual Christmas program Sunday, Dec. 17, at 7 p.m., at the church.

The children of the church—ages 3-9—will open the program with several Christmas songs.

A three-act play, "The Christmas Bible," will be presented by the Christ's Ambassadors, a youth group of the church.

The public is invited to attend this special Christmas program.

No Money Returned To State, Say Officials

Contrary to reports heard within the past few days, according to city officials, there has been no state-grant money earmarked for Winters' proposed park development project "returned to the state." To the contrary, it was explained, no money has been received from the state for this project.

According to the reports heard, the official said, the State Parks & Wildlife Department had granted money to the City of Winters to be used for development of the city's parks, but the council had decided last Monday night that the city did not want the money and had returned it to the state agency. Since that report was made, the officials said, they have been "deluged" with calls from interested citizens regarding the so-called "return" of the state funds, which in reality had never been received. The Winters Enterprise did not run a story on this project following last week's council meeting because, it was explained, there was no definite action taken following a discussion of the proposed parks project.

To summarize, city officials said, the parks development program was proposed a good many months ago, and the city had applied for in-kind grants from the Parks & Wildlife Dept. Application was for approximately $30,000, with the City of Winters to provide a like amount, in the manner of labor, materials, or money. Plans for the development project were started, ready for submission to the state agency for approval prior to approving the grant, it was stated. No plans were completed, it was stated, because the council became deeply involved with another more important program, the development of additional and adequate water sources for the community. Also, shortage of local funds and difficulty in providing the state agency with acceptable planning caused delays in getting the project off the ground. The cost, in order to meet the state agency's stringent requirements, skyrocketed, in the meantime, it was explained, causing the situation to become almost hopeless, in the opinion of at least one city official.

In recent weeks, the state agency notified the City of Winters that a deadline of June, 1979, had been set to complete planning and to meet other requirements in order to receive the grant which would amount to about $30,000. At the council meeting last week, even in face of the temptation to drop the whole program, the council decided to take another look at the proposed project, with the idea to go ahead if at all possible. The project was not dropped, as reported, according to city officials, and the city has several months before the cutoff date.

City officials have expressed deep concern over the outcome of this proposed parks development project, because of the need. Some of the groundwork already had been done some time ago, in the way of dirt filling work for proposed tennis courts at the park. However, because of the high cost of searching for water for the community, there will be little money available for use on the parks program, it was pointed out.

The city council has definitely not dropped the program, it was stressed, but will take another look at the overall picture. In view of that, Mayor Homer Hodge at the council meeting last week appointed Aldermen Randy Springer and Jim Hatler as a special committee to make a thorough study of the project, and report back to the council with recommendations.

MISS SNO QUEEN '78—Dena Danford, center, was crowned Miss Sno Queen '78, during the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Christmas pro-

School senior girls were in the competition.

Students Hear Drug Abuse Program

Students of Winters Junior High and High School attended a presentation of a program on alcohol and drug abuse, Monday, presented by Tom Watson, project director of the Runnels-Nolan-Coke Alcoholism and Drug Programs.

Doug McCain, drug counselor for the tri-county program, spoke on the abuse of drugs and the physical and mental harm resulting.

Watson and McCain illustrated to the students the effects of "peer group pressure" upon young adults, especially those preparing for college.

Mrs. Stevens will have offices in the city building on East Broadway and S. Grant St.

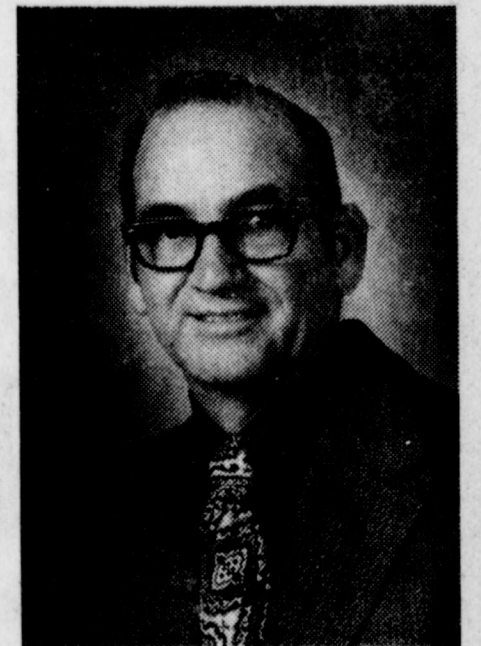

Walker Tatum, Store Manager, Receives 35-Year Service Pin

Walker Tatum, manager of the Winters Piggly Wiggly food store, was presented a 35-year pin during a company Christmas party for J. M. Lawrence Piggly Wiggly Stores managers and personnel in Snyder Sunday.

Tatum has been associated with Piggly Wiggly stores for some 37 years. He began his grocery career in 1935 at the age of 15, and worked in rural general merchandise in the southern part of Coleman County at Shields. His hours of work were after school and Saturdays.

In 1939, he began his years with Piggly Wiggly. He was employed by W. H. Thate and Neal R. Oakes, as a stock clerk at Santa Anna. He was employed there until 1941 when he left to serve in the 13th Airborne Division during World War II. Tatum returned to Santa Anna in 1945 as a Staff Sergeant and resumed his career at the Piggly Wiggly store as assistant manager. In 1951 he became manager of that store.

In 1958, Tatum moved to Winters to become manager of the Piggly Wiggly store operated by Neal R. Oakes. When Oakes sold the store in 1967 to J. M. Lawrence and Son of Sweetwater, Tatum acquired an interest in the business and remained as manager.

WALKER TATUM

Tatum has been active in community activities in Winters. He is a past president of the Winters Lions Club, and was selected as employer of the year by the Winters DECA Club in 1976. He is a deacon in the First Baptist Church. He also is a fisherman, and a Dallas Cowboys fan. He and his wife, Bonnie, who is employed by the City of Winters, have one daughter, Mrs. Joe (Babs) Lombard, who is a teacher and girls basketball coach at Hale Center.

WINNER—Terry Gerhart, center, was presented first place award in the VFW-sponsored Voice of Democracy essay and radio script contest. A tape of his essay will be in competition in the district contest in San Angelo this week. Mrs. R. C. Kurtz, left, representing the VFW and the VFW Ladies Auxiliary, made the presentation of awards. Kathryn Bredemeyer also was a winner, along with Ruben Esquivel.

FRIENDS IN ALASKA

I have such interesting friends but some are unpredictable such as Betty Thomason for instance. Betty and I belong to the Writer's Guild in Abilene and are supposed to be writing partners, getting together for encouragement. But before we had a chance to meet she told me that she had taken a leave of absence from her work at the hospital and was going to Alaska for the summer where her husband was to teach school and she would return in the fall.

Thinking it was time for Betty to come home, I kept waiting to hear from her but instead I received a letter on Oct. 10 saying she was back in Alaska and lived at Mt. Edgecumbe. She was working for Public Health Service, a hospital that serves retired military, Coast Guard and Indian population, plus natives from the Southeastern Alaskan village.

Another letter on Nov. 10 said "The weather here is mostly rain. There is a saying in Southeast Alaska 'there are two kinds of weather—raining and raining hard.' We had 39 inches in October. November 1 brought snow, but it melted due to the rain. For two days now we've had frost, ice and cold, dry weather for a change. Temperatures in the 20's, 30's and 40's."

"My work here is quite interesting. We work with Indians who come to Mt. Edgecumbe by ferry or airplane, as there are no connecting roads to the outlying villages due to the mountainous terrain or water. We get a lot of alcohol abuse patients as alcohol is the Indians No. 1 health problem here."

"We plan to come back to Winters in the summer and I may stay there next winter while Keith finishes his school term."

"Also I will be back Dec. 28 to Jan. 4 for a visit. I'll try to see you. I hope to get a story into Writer's Guild contest this year." (Betty has been successful with her stories including one about "Tad Richards, Rancher" published in True West Magazine.) "We can still be writing partners and encourage each other."

What do you think my chances are?

Betty included a brochure in her letter that was marked to show their location. The map shows the main town of Sitka and the bridge which connects Japonski Island and Baranof Island.

The Thomasons live on Japonski Island and a picture of Keith's school is included. It is a modern building and grounds, also a fine landing strip nearby.

Keith's mother, Mable Thomason, says that among other things Keith is teaching drivers education to the Indians. Some who come for lessons have never seen a car.

On my trip to Alaska in 1976, I went by ship to Ketchikan, to Juneau and Skagway where we debarked and took an inland tour of Fairbanks and Anchorage before boarding a plane for home. And we didn't see Sitka which is south of Fairbanks.

Everyone should see Sitka for this is where many of Alaska's most historic events were recorded. Sitka was the site of the discovery of Alaska by Russia in 1741, was the headquarters for the Russian American Company, the site of the historic transfer of Alaska from Russia to the United States, and the location of the first capital of Alaska in 1884 remaining the seat of government until 1912 when it was transferred to the Gold Rush town of Juneau.

The Russian merchant prince, Gregor Shelikof, organized the Russian American Company, seeking the fur wealth of the sea otter. Alexander Baranof, "Lord of Alaska", managed the company. He established Fort Archangel Michael in 1799, now known as "old Sitka." Two years later the hostile Flingit Indian warriors burned this fort and slaughtered most of the Russian settlers when Baranof was away. In 1804 Baranof returned with an armed armada of ships and attacked Sitka. So important in American history was the "Battle of Alaska," the site was named a National Monument. The park protects the Indian fort site and a magnificent collec-

Sub Deb Club Meeting Monday

The Sub Deb Club met in the home of Mrs. Joyce Krause Monday with Cherie school who visited Scott, both in the hospital and at home, sent flowers and cards and called him. This probably did more to help him recover than any one thing. We were not surprised at the deep concern shown by these young people but we think the community should be made aware of how much they cared and we also think the parents and people of this town should be very proud of our high school youth. God bless you. —Billy, Shirley, Scott and Leigh Ann Hall. 41-1tp.

New Books--New Learning For Children

Books get a child ready for learning, exploring and sharing—especially when parents share the adventure, says a family life education specialist.

Different ages have different needs, and they start before age one, Dorothy Taylor says.

Miss Taylor is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Needs Before Age One
When a child is eight- or nine-months old, parents can start a "reading readiness" program for him.

He is ready for the non-destructible, heavy cardboard books.

He is ready for large, uncluttered pictures, bright colors—and few words.

He is also ready for a "special time" with parents that reading books together can provide—but he is not ready for more than five or 10 minutes of this.

Hold him in your lap and turn through the book "reading" it together.

"Reading" here means holding him and talking about the story.

This is when he begins to learn about being together, sharing, humor, laughing out loud and other feelings.

He will also start learning how to turn the pages—to find new adventures with this new skill—if the pages are thick enough for his chunky fingers.

Needs At Age Two
A two-year old can handle cloth or thick-paged books with lots of color and fun, Miss Taylor says.

"Fun" is having a parent to share all the adventures with, she stresses.

Nursery rhymes and a variety of stories about other people, jobs and community workers help pre-school children learn about other people, places and work.

Again, remember: five or 10 minutes is as long as he can sit usually.

Needs At Ages Four-Six
When a child is age four, he's ready to go with you to the library and choose books for himself.

Children ages four to six still want to see colors. They want to hear new sounds and say new words.

Also, they are ready to start naming shapes and reasoning out story plots.

They are ready to identify with other children in the story.

And they are ready to tell stories—and follow in your footsteps, because you like reading books, too.

However, remember that 10-12 minutes is their limit, generally.

Of course, reading time increases as children grow older—and for some it will increase earlier. Let children be the guide, but do "test" extra time occasionally.

Remember, too, that the more often parents read with children, the more ready they will be to increase reading time, their own skills and their knowledge storehouse.

New-Book List
As you and your child are looking for new books, ask the libraries about these:

• "Noah's Ark," by Peter Spier, Doubleday, Inc.

Children tell the story. This is a book of illustrations about Noah and his ark experiences. It is the 1977 Caldecott Medal winner for children's illustrations.

• "A Time To Keep," by Tasha Tudor, Rand McNally and Co.

A month-by-month experience about seasons and holidays. Recommended illustrations.

• "The Star-Spangled Banner," by Peter Spier, Doubleday, Inc.

A line-by-line illustration of the national anthem. Teaches lots of American heritage. Concludes with music and words to "The Star-Spangled Banner."

• "Carrie's Gift," by Efner Tudor Holmes, Collins and World Publication.

Children are curious about an older neighbor and attempt to break through his gruff manner.

• "Super Vroomer," by Northern J. Calloway, Doubleday and Co., Inc. "David" from "Sesame Street" is the author.

He writes about a black boy interested in homemade cars, racing and being a winner.

• "Grandpa Had a Windmill, Grandma Had a Churn," by Louise A. Jackson, Parent's Magazine Press.

A wonderful experience in growing up in rural Texas in the 1940's.

This is a collector's must.

• "The Most Welcome Visitor," by Robert Quackenbush, Windmill Book and E. P. Dutton.

A horned toad's story—and how he celebrated holidays through the year.

• "The Year at Maple Hill Farm," by Alice and Martin Provensen, Atheneum.

A book about all the chores, responsibilities and rewards of living on a farm.

Parents and children alike will enjoy this one.

• Check tree lights and outdoor lights each year before using.

Look for frayed wires, loose connections, broken or cracked sockets and spots where bare wire is exposed. Repair them or throw them away.

• Place the tree so that its lights turn on and off with a switch located away from the tree.

• Don't leave tree lights burning while away from home.

• Don't overload electrical outlets.

Don't put more than three sets of lights on any extension cord.

• Never use wax candles on a tree, near it or near other flammable items, such as pine boughs.

• Teach children the importance of these safety steps.

Holiday Safety

Prevent holiday fires with simple safety steps, says Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

• Keep the Christmas tree away from fireplaces, radiators and heaters.

Place it in a water stand and water it daily.

Dispose of the tree when needles begin to fall off in large quantities—a sign it is dangerously dry.

• Use only flameproof decorations.

• Don't set up electric trains—or similar equipment—near the tree.

More Efficient Fireplaces

More efficient fireplaces are possible with three basic steps, says a housing and home furnishings specialist. Although much fireplace heat goes directly up the chimney, three steps will make a fireplace more efficient, says Sue Young. Mrs. Young is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Source Of Air Start by providing a source of air for the fireplace that will not draw heated air out of the house. An underfloor air inlet with a grill and damper control on the hearth can draw air from outside the house—rather than through the room.

Also, a slightly open window by the fireplace can provide air.

Damper Controls Draft
A damper regulates the fireplace draft.

Close the damper when a fire is not burning to prevent heated-air loss.

Adjust the damper on the fireplace according to the type of fire.

For example, a roaring pine fire may need a full-throat opening, but a slow-burning hardwood log fire may need only a one- or two-inch opening.

Set the damper so that no smoke enters the room.

Glass Screen Saves Energy
A glass screen—or glass enclosure—with an adjustable damper can save energy by increasing fireplace efficiency.

It permits heat to radiate into the room when the fire is burning.

Leave the damper in the fireplace itself open to provide air for draft and combustion.

Also, the glass screen can prevent a down draft from kitchen or bath ventilating fans.

In addition, at night, simply close the glass screen damper—leaving the fireplace damper open. There is no need to wait for the fire to die down.

Accent on Health

Few health problems get more attention from more types of people than maintaining the right body weight. Whether the motivation is health-oriented, cosmetic, or required for some special athletic endeavor, keeping oneself the proper weight has at one time or another been a concern of nearly all of us. There are two sides to this story—too much weight and too little weight. First, we will deal with the more common problem.

Whether we speak of persons who need to lose a few pounds or persons who are obese, being overweight is a common problem.

"It can be more perplexing to those who need to lose just a few pounds," says Barbara L. Taylor, Director of Nutrition Services at the Texas Department of Health. "Such persons are likely to be very weight conscious and have a strong desire to control their weight."

In contrast, a person who is extremely overweight has had poor eating habits for a considerable period of time, and may even begin to adapt to the heavier condition. Any attempt to lose weight would require a rigorous effort.

How much is too much? Ideal body weight can be determined by the following formula: for men, 106 pounds for the first five feet in height and six pounds for each inch over that; for women, 100 pounds for the first five feet, and five pounds for each inch after that. For a large frame, add 10 percent; for a small frame, subtract 10 percent. A person is overweight if 10 pounds above the ideal weight. Twenty percent above the ideal weight is considered obese.

There are two keys to losing weight and keeping it off—patience and balance. An effective diet covers a long period of time and may involve a lifestyle change. While making gradual cuts in the quantity of food eaten, one must be sure not to slight one food group over another. The body functions best when foods from the four basic groups can act together. These four groups are the meat and fish group, the milk and cheese group, the fruit and vegetable group, and the bread and cereal group. Balance in one's eating will assure ample vitamin intake without the need for vitamin supplements.

"Diets often fail because dieters try to do too much too fast," reports Mrs. Taylor.

"Long range plans to control weight and small, manageable changes in eating habits will spell success."

Often, fad diets strictly limit the intake of one of the four basic food groups. Though adverse effects of an unbalancing diet may not show up for 10 or 15 years, nutritional problems will inevitably result from any inadequate diet followed for a considerable period of time.

On the other side of the fence, the problem is less obvious. Particularly in our culture, we tend to think of thin people as healthy, trim or even chic. But underweight is fairly common. The danger arises because underweight people do not have any physiological reserves to draw on in an emergency. Fever, for example, could present a serious situation to an extremely underweight person.

Most underweight people have a more sensitive "hunger thermostat" than the average person. Their appetites are more quickly satisfied than the rest of us. To

Junior Class Completes Sales Drive

The junior class of Winters High School completed the annual magazine sale campaign recently, earning $1,018.22 in commissions.

The class was divided into four teams, with Debbie Austin, Jeannie Walker, Gene Bowden and John Krause as captains.

Hank Bradshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bradshaw, was top salesman, with 30 sales and three records for a total of $252.46.

Proceeds from the campaign will be used for various class activities. The class members expressed thanks to everyone for their support.

Won Ribbons At Poultry Show Recently

Paul C. Gerhardt and Stanley Bolden of Odessa, formerly of Winters, attended the national Alamo Poultry Show in San Antonio last Friday and Saturday, and brought back several blue ribbons on Bantams they exhibited. They also bought several Bantams to add to their purebred flocks.

They were accompanied by Ricky Brown of Kermit and Bobby Simmons of Odessa. This was the first time for the national poultry show in Texas in 28 years, they said.

gain weight, the underweight person must therefore increase the number of calories in the quantity of food already being eaten. For example, adding powdered breakfasts, powdered whole or skim milk or blended fruit to a glass of milk will increase the caloric content, but the volume of milk does not increase.

Most importantly, weight should be gained slowly. Eating too many high-calorie foods can cause nausea. Also, metabolic changes caused by aging may correct the underweight condition, particularly if the person's activity level decreases slightly. For chronic underweight people, there is little danger of going overboard in the weight gaining process and not being able to stop. Once the desired weight is reached, the same "hunger thermostat" which helped to cause the underweight condition will again function to stop the weight gaining process.

Obesity and its relation to nutrition problems throughout the life cycle will be among the points discussed at a statewide nutrition conference January 30-February 1, 1979 in Austin. The theme, "Food and Fitness-Nutrition Throughout the Life Cycle: Phase II" complements the first statewide nutrition conference held in Austin in September, 1977. Among those scheduled to speak are Dr. Kenneth Cooper, Director of the Aerobic Center in Dallas, Dr. William Darby, President of the Nutrition Foundation in New York City, Irma Vyhmeister, Loma Linda University School of Allied Medicine, Lt. Governor William P. Hobby, and Dr. William J. McGanity, Chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston. Nutrition problems in Texas will be focus of the conference, sponsored by the Texas Department of Health and the Texas Public Health Association.

For registration information, write to: TPHA Nutrition Conference, P.O. Box 4635, Austin, Texas 78765.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Price-quality trends this week are the following:

POULTRY—Whole fryer chickens and parts have attractive prices. Compare prices on chicken hens, too, since some stores may offer bargains. Egg prices may drop due to an unsettled-market situation.

FRESH FRUITS—Grapefruit and apples are budget buys. Most economical grapefruit is medium-size fruit "by-the-bag." Other values are bananas, pears, red grapes and avocados. Compare prices on oranges, tangerines, tangelos and Cranberry prices may rise due to tight supplies.

FRESH VEGETABLES—Best buys include potatoes, onions, sweet potatoes, rutabagas and hard-shell squash. Also, cabbage, carrots, cooking greens, escarole and endive.

Prices are steady on cucumbers, eggplant and peppers.

DAIRY—Features include cheeses, low-fat milk, half-and-half, sour cream and whipping cream. Chill bowl and beaters as well as the cream before whipping it.

FISH—Nutritious, protein-rich fish offers economical, convenient menu choices.

GROCERY MARKET AISLES—"Holiday features" are numerous, applesauce supplies adequate, but there are smaller supplies of canned peaches, pears and fruit cocktail.

FROZEN FOODS—More features now than last week include vegetables, pumpkin and mince pies and ice cream.

BEEF—Most often advertised features include chuck roasts and steaks, ground beef, round steak, standing ribs and liver.

PORK—Occasional features include Boston butt roasts, end chops, rib- and loin-end roasts and liver. Some smoked hams and bacon also are on special.

HOLIDAY WATCHWORDS: In buying mixed nuts and dried fruits, remember several guidelines about packaging and prices.

Mixed Nuts
Mixed nuts that carry the U.S. "Extra Fancy" or "Fancy" grade must have at least 10 percent—and no more than 40 percent—of each kind of nut in the mixture.

When buying nuts with no "grade" follow these buying rules:

- Make sure they have been inspected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

- For in-the-shell nuts, choose clean nuts that are free from splits, cracks or holes. Don't buy nuts with moldy or oil-stained shells.

- For already-shelled nuts, select nutmeats that are plump and fairly uniform in size and color.

Dried Fruits
"Shop around" for dried fruits, since prices vary from store to store.

If mixed dried fruits are especially low-priced, check the ratio of prunes in the package. Since prunes are less expensive than other dried fruits, a mostly prunes mixture might not be such a bargain.

In buying prunes, prices rise with size, although flavors are all similar.

In buying raisins, dark ones are usually more economical, although the raisin crop is down this year, so prices are high. In buying dates, the more sticky fingers) or cost is more important.

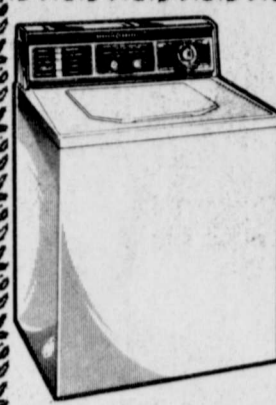

they are "prepared," the higher their price. Decide whether convenience (and no stickiness) or cost is more important.

Legend of The Lamb

There is a beautiful legend concerning one of the creatures in the stable where the Infant Jesus was born. It seems that there was a little lamb sharing the Blessed Child's first abode. As the animals all gazed in silent adoration upon the Holy Babe, this little lamb felt badly because it had no gift to offer the Newborn King. Suddenly the lamb noticed how thin the Babe's blanket was . . . surely the Infant must be cold! The straw upon which He rested offered very little warmth. The little lamb knew then that there was indeed something it could offer to this Holy Child. Quickly, the lamb nestled by the Child, sheltering Him from the cold.

Warmed by the animal's shaggy coat, the Christ Child smiled and touched the little lamb. According to the legend, the lamb's coat was suddenly transformed into soft, curly wool. And that is why, the legend says, all sheep now bear a warm and woolly coat . . . as a symbol of a special gift offered by that little lamb on the first Christmas night.

R. Q. Marks has been appointed general superintendent of the show, with E. B. Hope as assistant. Steer division superintendent will be Billy J.
