status, which will allow contributions to the fund to be tax deductible.

"Where Have You Been And Where Are You Going?"

United States Postal Service employees here will soon be asking every tenth customer that question to determine where its postal facilities might be better located.

In announcing the survey, Postmaster H. M. (Jiggs) Nichols said that postal units are often the secondary stop for postal customers, and "we want to make sure that our post offices are not off the beath path. In the past, the major consideration in locating postal facilities was where we could get the cheapest land. This is the first time the Postal Service has asked out customers for their input," said Postmaster Nichols.

The customer survey will begin Oct. 29, and should be concluded by Nov. 10. The survey will result in more convenient locations for new post office outlets in the future.

Results from the survey will be computerized. The computer will then analyze the shopping patterns of customers who use postal facilities and project the demand areas for the location of those facilities.

One More Week For Absentee Voting

Qualified voters who plan to vote absentee in the Nov. 6 constitutional amendment election have until Nov. 2 to do their voting. The absentee voting period ends Nov. 2.

Voters who expect to be absent from their respective areas on election day, and those over 65, are eligible to vote absentee prior to election day.

Voters are reminded to present their voter's registration card when applying for absentee voting at the county clerk's office in the Runnels County courthouse.

Reading Hour

The Junior Culture Club will sponsor a Halloween Reading Hour at the Winters Public Library, Saturday, Oct. 27, from 10 to 11 a.m.

All children 3 to 8 years of age have been invited.

Blizzards Host Wylie Friday

The Winters Blizzards Friday night will meet probably the strongest team in District 6-AA, as they host the Wylie Bulldogs, but indications are that the Blue team will be "up" for this game following their tight 14-6 contest with Coahoma last Friday night. And the Blizzards will be playing on their home grass.

Kickoff will be at 7:30. The Bulldogs have gone undefeated this season, and possess a 6-0 record in and out of conference. They hit Colorado City 41-8 last Friday night to hold their top-of-the-rail position.

Wylie is a big team, with an outstanding quarterback in left-handed Kregg Conder, a 190-pound senior. Conder likes to throw the ball and has good range for effectiveness. He also can run power plays for yardage.

The Wylie offensive line is big and strong, and the team is able to use a number of different types of blocking to blow people off the line. The Bulldogs are close to being the defensive leader in the district, too. Offensively, they are able to run from multiple sets and execute exceptionally well.

The Blizzards, after their strong showing at Coahoma Friday night, are improving game after game, and stand to give Wylie worried moments this week. The Blizzard coaching staff is aiming the Blue in that direction, and working to meet the Bulldogs directly.

In last week's encounter with those other Bulldogs—Coahoma—the Blizzards suffered some mistakes which could have meant a difference in the outcome. Two passes were dropped—one in the open and one in the end zone—and one interception which meant a big difference in the game. The Winters-Coahoma game was a defensive contest throughout the second half. In the game, Coahoma marked 20 first downs to Winters' 13. Winters had three penetrations to Coahoma's four. All the scoring came in the second quarter Friday, with most of the play mid-field.

Toby Gerhart, Pat Salas and Mark Whitlow received the highest grades for offensive action Friday night. Scott Billups and Gene Bowden, in the defensive secondary, scored highest in defensive play.

Coach Les Fisher said the Blizzards came out of the Coahoma game in fair shape, with few showing hurts, and bid to be in top form by Friday night when they go against Wylie.

Arts & Crafts Show Now In Planning Stage

Plans are now in the making for the annual Arts & Crafts Show, to be staged in the Winters Community Center Nov. 16-17. The show this year will be a memorial to the late Blanche (Mrs. W. C.) Davis, who spearheaded the start of the annual affair several years ago, and who worked each year for its success.

Mrs. Bill Griffin, heading the publicity committee for the show, said there still are plenty of booths available and those wishing to reserve booths should contact Edna England at the Chamber of Commerce office as early as possible so plans can be completed.

Club To Serve Annual Turkey Dinner Nov. 2

The Literary and Service Club will serve the annual turkey dinner in the school cafeteria before the Winters-Anson football game Friday, Nov. 2.

The meal will be prepared and served by members of the club. Serving will be from 5 to 7:30 p.m., and those attending will have time to eat before going to the football game.

Tickets may be obtained from any club member, or at the door.

A Policy To Protect Texas' Natural Resources

Americans have become quite familiar with the repeated shock and resulting discomfort of one shortage after another. As a nation we are learning there are limits to each of our finite resources.

What the current energy crisis means to consumers in terms of the economy, personal lifestyles and doubts about the future, could well be true about food and fiber in the decades to come. In fact, a food crisis could conceivably cause more havoc than an energy shortage.

Proposition 3 which appears on a statewide ballot November 5, would allow our state to implement a policy to protect one of our most precious natural resources and its use in the future: our land. It is an opportunity for voters to protect and promote the future of the family farm.

Prime agricultural land is a finite resource. There is only so much soil in Texas that will grow food and fiber. And as cities continue to expand, as water supplies are depleted, as developers use arable land for non-farm uses, there is a constant disappearance of acres used for agriculture. As farm land disappears, the capability of our states' farmers and ranchers to produce diminishes. Furthermore, when prime farm land becomes a target for investment and speculation rather than production, our bountiful supplies of food and fiber could someday shrink to a point of scarcity and shortage.

The 66th Legislature overwhelmingly adopted a policy which, if approved by voters, would protect the use of farm land for the production of food and fiber. It is a program that allows the state to guarantee loans to young, qualified farmers who would use Texas farm land not only for production, but who would also protect and preserve those resources for the future.

For the sake of our economy, for the sake of international trade, for the sake of adequate domestic food supplies, we must act now to protect the future of the family farm. Farming and ranching in Texas is one of the last free enterprise systems that provides a competitive, efficient system of food production. Seeing to it that we keep our finite land resources in the hands of producers is a worthwhile cause for every Texan.

When small children are at the table, set examples you want them to follow; they'll imitate your food choices and table manners.

Why the Stampede to Gold?

During several recent town meetings in the District, the subject of gold speculation and its skyrocketing price was cause for serious concern and numerous questions.

Since this is such a complicated subject, I plan to devote both this column and one more to a discussion of the causes of our current problems and some solutions.

Since World War II, the American dollar has been the basic world currency. The price of gold is closely related to the strength — or weakness — of the dollar, especially in the world market. As the dollar gains strength in relation to other currencies such as the German Mark or the Japanese Yen, the price of gold generally goes down. Conversely, as the dollar weakens abroad, the price of gold goes up.

This is exactly what we have seen happening in recent weeks. The obvious culprit is inflation in the United States, which is seriously weakening the buying power of the dollar, both here and abroad. But of course, at the bottom of the problem of inflation is the Carter Administration's economic policies which have allowed inflation to leap to unprecedented peacetime double-digit rates. On foreign currency markets, our continuing inflation has prompted other countries to seek some form of currency which is much more stable than the declining American dollar — and gold is the most obvious choice.

The OPEC countries in particular, which have large amounts of dollars on hand due to our continuing purchases of oil, are very worried about the decline of the dollar, and foresee the possibility of their deposits of dollars dwindling to practically no value; and they, too, have joined in the rush to buy gold. The effect of this has been to create such a huge demand for gold that the amount of gold available has begun to dry up, which also has contributed to the increase in the amount of dollars people are willing to pay for an ounce of gold.

At one point in the last week of September, gold topped $440 an ounce — ten times its price only a few years ago, and the value of the dollar reached frightening lows. Hysteria began to creep into the world money market, and we tetered on the brink of seeing the U.S. dollar being rejected as the primary world currency in favor of gold or other currencies. Something drastic had to be done.

The U.S. Federal Reserve (the nation's chief banking authority) took an unprecedented step in raising the interest rate it charges to major banks to 12 percent, and took other steps to curtail availability of loan money in the United States. These harsh and drastic measures were designed to frontally attack inflation, and to bring it under control.

The problem with such an approach is that it may be too harsh a step, and could prompt a serious recession. If interest rates remain at these exceptionally high levels for an extended period of time, business spending will certainly decline, layoffs will occur, home mortgage money interest rates will cause the cost of buying a home to skyrocket beyond the means of most people, and economic chaos could result.

While stern economic steps obviously must be taken at this point, it remains unclear if this is the proper approach. The problem that we are experiencing is yet another example of a last minute Administration lurch at solving a problem which has been building for a long time. This pattern of muddling through one crisis after another, instead of forecasting potential problems and dealing with them on a sensible, non-crisis basis, must soon end, or we will find ourselves in very serious trouble, indeed.

Inflation, the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar and the subsequent rise in the price of gold is but half the story. Next week, I will discuss the United States' sale of gold as another last-minute attempt to correct the situation.

Thanks To Firemen

We are grateful to those that helped put out the grass fire Sunday night, Oct. 14. Especially do we thank Calvin Helms, a neighbor in the Draego Community, who reported the fire and kept the blaze from the house.

We are especially grateful to the Winters Volunteer Fire Department and others who helped. —Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Hill.

Buried Treasure?

While watching a recent episode on "Rockford Files", where everyone was racing in search of buried gold, I remembered a letter that had reached me in 1973 concerning hidden treasure in Runnels County.

The letter was first sent to the Land Commissioner in Austin for verification and then referred to Winters, since it was in this vicinity. As far as I know, nothing ever came of it, but I will omit all names, for the writer wished to keep it a secret.

A certain man of Cameron, Texas, said that a treasure chest was discovered on a ranch 18 miles from Winters, in 1961 or '62. He said that he did not personally discover the treasure, but the man who did brought it to him at Cameron and asked him and his cousin to go back to the ranch and dig for more.

The finder gave the amn a large turtle fossil, which he said had been on top of the ground the treasure was under, and a brooch, which the man said came from inside the chest. The man went to the site and found a number of legible markings on a long rock. According to the man from Cameron, the rock is in the bottom of a creek bed and can only be seen during dry weather. He had pictures that looked authentic.

He described the brooch as being a gold oval with 12 pearls around the sides of the oval. The center is said to have an English crown on one side, an English coat-of-arms on the other, and a tiny lamb with one leg behind it in the center. He and his cousin gave the finder $35 for the fossil and brooch. He said the chest also contained a crown weighing 6 lbs. 9 oz.

The man from Cameron said he was contacted because he assays rocks. He went to the ranch with the finder and located the place and took pictures.

Within the last five years, the owner of the ranch had been contacted and asked for permission to dig for three treasure chests, which according to the symbols on the rocks, are in the same vicinity as the first chest. The rancher was not interested in the possibility of treasure because he said "I've got more money than I can pay taxes on now." So the men were not taken to the site of the supposed treasure chest.

The Cameron man said that the finder of the treasure is now dead, but his brother is still living. The rancher is also dead. He said they wanted to keep the treasure a secret because they wanted to dig for the other chests supposedly buried there and also because of the Treasure Trove Law.

The Cameron man said he thought the treasure chest belonged to an illegitimate child of Queen Elizabeth who was living in Mexico. She returned to England, got her chests and was returning to Mexico, when she was forced to bury the treasure. The Mexicans would not let her back into Mexico with the treasure because they wanted no trouble with England.

The writer of the letter could find no verification for the historical account, however, she felt that the rock with the markings did exist. She knew the informant and his family and did not think he could make up a story so involved, remember it, and tell it the same way to more than one person, which he had done. "I feel there is some truth in it. I am interested not in the digging, but in a story for my newspaper," and she was seeking verification.

A reporter never loses that "nose for news" and I undertook to help. Also hoping to find a story for myself.

My historian friend, Elton T. Mims, of Water Valley did some research on the subject. He said that the check of an ownership map shows that the rancher mentioned once owned two or three parcels of land roughly five miles south and west of Blackwell along the extreme north line of Coke County with the possibility of overlapping into Nolan County. And Mims was hoping to talk to a man who had referred to it as near Maryneal. It might be that the location of the property in question might be 18 miles from Maryneal, rather than Winters.

Perhaps the rancher had more than one ranch. I can't believe that the treasure hunters would be that far off base.

While still interested in the subject, there was a story in the Abilene-Reporter News on Friday evening, July 6, 1973, which said that Maximillian, about to be overthrown as emperor of Mexico, was carrying a fortune out of Mexico enroute to New Orleans, when he was attacked by thieves, and it was deposited somewhere near Castle Gap.

Is there gold in Runnels County? If so, where?

Know Garment, Fabric 'Finishes'

Know about garment or fabric "finishes"—since they affect performance and appearance, says a clothing specialist.

Finishes can make a fabric flame-resistant or wrinkle-resistant, along with other performance or appearance benefits.

However, each finish may have drawbacks, too, says Becky Culp. Mrs. Culp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Before shopping for garments or fabrics, know some basics about finishes, she advises.

ANTISTATIC finishes reduce clinging, and they are lost after repeated laundering. They are mainly used on lingerie and sleepwear.

ANTISEPTIC finishes resist bacteria and prevent damage and decay from perspiration.

They are permanent and often are found on socks, underwear, shoes—and luggage.

FLAME-RESISTANT finishes reduce flammability—but they don't prevent dangers and risks of fire completely.

Most are on children's clothing and sleepwear.

Drawbacks include stiffening fabric, and a reduction of the fabric's strength, absorbency and abrasion resistance.

Also, repeated laundering can weaken the flame-resistant finish.

Instead, consumers might prefer to buy garments or fabrics with inherently flame-resistant fibers. Examples include SEF modacrylic, Nomex aramid, Cordelan, Kynol novoloid and Valren, Leavil and Tevtron vinyons. Wool and silk are moderately flame resistant.

Citing Cost, Loeffler Seeks To Limit Use Of Congressional Record

Calling on Congress to lead the way in reducing government's cost to the taxpayer, Congressman Tom Loeffler has introduced legislation restricting to four pages per year a Member's printing privileges for additional remarks in the daily Congressional Record at a potential savings to taxpayers of some $1,688,000 a year.

Loeffler told his colleagues in introducing his bill that the responsibility to cut back on excessive government spending is the responsibility of everyone in government. "But we can begin by putting this House in order," Loeffler said of the body in which he serves.

"My bill would limit the number of pages any Member could insert in the Extension of Remarks section of the Congressional Record to four pages per Session of Congress. In 1978, the cost to the taxpayer for the printing of such extraneous material in the Congressional Record amounted to some $4,814 per Member or about $347 per page. In 1980, conservative estimates project that the cost to taxpayers may total $5,452 per Member or about $393 per page.

"I doubt taxpayers would approve of each Member of Congress spending $5,452 to print extraneous material in the Record when that money represents real dollars that could be cut from the budget and cut from the tax bite all individuals feel every year when April 15 rolls around."

Loeffler, also the sponsor of legislation reducing Federal civilian employment levels two percent per year for five years, has consistently supported reductions in both the size of Federal spending and the size of the Federal bureaucracy.

"It is a small wonder," Loeffler said, "that opinion polls reveal that less than 15% of the public expresses confidence in the Congress when we may well be remembered as the first 'Billion Dollar Congress.' If we are serious about cutting down, spending, we can start by cutting back on unlimited and unnecessary printing in the Congressional Record."

SOIL-RELEASE

finishes aid in the removal of oil soils. They are used with permanent-press finishes.

They also provide greater absorbency and comfort for synthetic fibers, and they improve the fabric's "drape" and antistatic qualities.

However, repeated launderings will reduce their effectiveness.

WATER-REPELLENT finishes shed water while allowing air flow for comfort.

Fabrics can become wet, however, if subjected to unusual amounts of water.

These finishes are most effective on tightly woven fabrics, and they may be permanent or temporary. Usually they're used on outdoor wear.

Effectiveness of these finishes lowers where wrinkles and creases occur—and soil reduces their water-repellent feature.

Blackwell

The Women's Missionary Union of the Blackwell First Baptist Church met at the church Thursday afternoon, Oct. 18, at 2:30 p.m. with nine ladies attending.

Mrs. Buddy Trull, president, presided for the meeting.

The calendar of prayer was read by Mrs. Olin Corley.

The prayer for the missionaries was voiced by Mrs. Gordon Montgomery.

Mrs. Eula Nabors gave the Bible study. Mrs. Olin Corley voiced the dismissal prayer.

Those attending were Mmes. Trull, Olin Corley, Montgomery, Nabors, Thelma Smith, Willie Burwick, Velos Douglas, Kay Corley and Cecil Lewis Smith.

Mrs. Lula Palmer underwent emergency surgery at the Shannon Memorial Hospital in San Angelo last Tuesday night and is reported to be in a critical condition.

A. G. White was taken to the Veteran Hospital in Big Spring last Thursday.

Billy Burl Holland came home last Thursday after spending 4 days in the St. John's Hospital in San Angelo and is reported to be better.

Mrs. Taylor (Pat) Douglas is a patient in the St. John's Hospital in San Angelo and underwent surgery last Thursday, where she was taken after she was in a car wreck last week. She is reported to be improved but will be in the hospital a long time.

Mrs. George (Mae) Russell, a former Blackwell resident, now a patient in the Bronte Nursing Home is in the Robert Lee Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lee visited his sister Carrie Lee at Drasco last Thursday afternoon.

Fall '79 Accessories

Accessories for fall '79 reveal excitement.

Belts, small bags, pumps and boots make the headlines, says Beverly Rhoades, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

BELTS
Belts are a must for fall '79 to give emphasis at the waistline, she says.

Varying in width from skinny to five inches, belts may be leather, shiny patent, reptile skin, fabric or rope. Soft crushable leathers as cummerbunds or sashes and wide elasticized fabric cinch the waist.

Accent is on the buckle, the specialist points out.

HANDBAGS
Handbags are slimmer, trimmer and more structured. Clutches that convert to shoulder bags are destined to be the favorite.

FOOTWEAR
The big change in fashion is in footwear, Miss Rhoades continues.

Watch for the pump in many variations—high-heel spectator, closed or open toe, ankle-strap, low shaped heel and the flat ballet pump.

Always a fall favorite are boots. Look for them in styles ranging from the calf-height, to ankle-height, to shoe boot.

For extra warmth, fur lining is available.

With fashion emphasis on the leg, colored, textured hosiery provides interest.

For the more daring, knit leggings team with boots and pumps.

JEWELRY
Jewelry is simple, yet essential, she explains.

Jeweled pins, clips, and brooches are perfect accents for suit jackets or shirt collars. Go wild with bead necklaces, short or long, in rich, full colors.

Or, try pearl chokers and ropes.

Big geometric earrings complement the small, neat head and bangles band the wrist.

HATS, HAIR ORNAMENTS
With the retrospective look of the 50's comes a strong fashion statement for hats and hair ornaments, the specialist adds.

Teamed with the suit, the pillbox, brim or fedora looks fantastic.

Feathers, flowers, veils, bows and bands add the final touch.

Advantages In Fall Fertilization

Fall application of fertilizers for next year's crop has some real advantages over waiting until next spring. Turner identifies some of the factors in favor of the practice.

Of first importance, it is a scientifically proven fact that phosphorus, potassium and other plant nutrients are relatively immobile in the soil. When fall applied, they stay there ready for plant use next year. Except on sandy soils, fall-applied nitrogen loss is negligible. Research with grain sorghum shows equal yield response from fall and spring application on the heavier soils.

Anytime after sorghum or cotton harvest is a good time to fertilize. Generally, soil moisture conditions are favorable for ammonia application retention. If you are concerned about residue decomposition, the combination of warm soil, moisture and the addition of nitrogen are in your favor.

Now that much of the fertilizer is custom applied in bulk with heavy equipment, there is less danger of compaction in the fall. Good weather generally prevails making the job easier for all con-

Listening—A Key To Communication, Leadership

Communication is one of the keys to effective leadership. And communication relies heavily on good listening.

"Yet, effective listening is difficult," points out Dr. David Ruesink with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Why?

The average person speaks at a rate of 125 to 150 words per minute. And the human mind is capable of conscious thought at a rate much faster than that—at least four or five times faster than is normally spoken. The problem is that 75 percent of the average person's mind is not occupied by the speaker's words.

"The average person, then, listens with only about 25 percent effectiveness," notes Ruesink, a sociologist. "The mind is continually groping for something to fill the gaps. This time differential offers the listener the opportunity to make periodic mental summaries to tie main ideas together, or to wander off on mental tangents."

How can we train ourselves to become more effective and efficient listeners? Ruesink offers these suggestions:

—Be interested in the speaker. In his mind he is the most important person on earth and what he has to say is the most important topic at the time.

—Accept the person as he is. To permit a person's mannerism, speech, habits or dress to distract from what he is saying is essentially your loss.

—Hear the person out before judging his ideas. When he uses emotionally laden words or when he tramples on some of your pet convictions, remember that he is using only those words he understands.

—Listen to learn. When a person uses words and presents ideas that you do not understand, draw the person out by saying, "That's interesting." "I didn't know that." "That is something I have often wondered about," or "Would you explain?"

—Extract the main idea. Facts make sense only if they support a main idea.

Isolated facts are like the works of a clock without the case: you know what they are, but you can't use them.

—Get interested and stay interested in what the person is saying. Faking attention is disrespectful and can be embarrassing.

—Our effectiveness as individuals, in whatever situation we may find ourselves, depends not so much on how we talk as on 'how well we listen,' contends Ruesink.

About 35 percent of all food shoppers begin sets—such as china or encyclopedias—at supermarkets, reports a family resource management specialist, Lillian Chenoweth, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Only one in three who start buying ever complete the set, she adds.

Take along a small garbage bag for food scraps and leftovers at picnic sites to keep rodents and insects from spoiling the fun for other picnickers, suggests Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The U.S. yearly average of household TV set usage per day increased from five hours and 30 minutes in 1965 to six hours and ten minutes in 1977.

Reddy's tips on electric safety

- ★ When disconnecting an appliance, don't pull cord; pull plug.
- ★ Be sure each appliance has the type of cord suited to the job it does— heavy duty extension cords for power tools; moisture resistant cords and plugs for outdoor equipment.

- ★ Have frayed cords replaced promptly.
- ★ Water conducts electricity; never handle electric appliances or switches with wet hands or when standing on a wet surface.
- ★ If an appliance has a separate cord, attach cord to appliance before plugging it into an outlet; disconnect cord from outlet before disconnecting it from appliance. Store cords away from cutlery, heat and dampness.

- ★ Don't place cords where they'll be tripped over or be subject to wear (under a well-travelled rug, through doorways).
- ★ Teach children not to play with or around electric sockets or equipment.
- ★ Don't use an electric lawn mower or hedge clippers when barefoot, or on wet grass or hedges.

Hazards Haunt Halloween

In recent years Halloween has been scarier for adults than children. Children can imagine a world of spooks and goblins. Adults must face the very real threats of poisoned candy, vehicle accidents, dangerous costumes and other hazards endangering children. Seeking to avoid these problems and decrease vandalism, parents increasingly are steering their children toward organized activities such as school carnivals and parties.

Such efforts have been at least partially successful, or maybe children simply are forbidden to go out on Halloween. In any case, the number of trick-or-treaters in many places has declined dramatically. Yet Halloween is too well established to die out completely. Since people probably will continue celebrating it in some form or other, here are some tips from the Texas Medical Association (TMA) to cut down on Halloween hazards.

Giving balloons, pencils, coins, or other small, inexpensive items probably will please children as much as receiving candy. Some inedible treats may even be cheaper than candy and will not be wasted by parents who have to throw away treats that might be poisoned. Adults can decrease the possibility of poisoning by giving only treats in their original wrappers that could not be poisoned and then re-wrapped. Parents should use the same standards when inspecting treats. Parents should also throw away fruit and other treats that could be injected with dangerous substances because they could easily overlook the pinhole a needle would make.

Costumes are another responsibility parents have. They should avoid costumes masks that could slip and block a child's vision or breathing. Painting a child's face with cosmetics, grease paint or burned cork can be a good substitute.

The costume itself should be light-colored to help motorists spot children, flame resistant and not so loose or long it could trip a child or catch on obstacles. Costumes also should not include sharp objects, torches or candles. Adults can improve safety by putting reflective tape or luminous paint on costumes and objects children carry.

People can make their property safer and cut down on vandalism several ways. For instance, keep the property well lighted and put away hoses, lawn furniture, and garbage cans. If possible, put cars in the garage and lock them. Bring pets inside to protect them and children from each other. Simple preparations such as these can help both children and adults survive the season. TMA says.

Deep Basins:

AMERICA'S NEXT GREAT SOURCE OF NATURAL GAS?

Producers are finding a lot of "super" gas wells in Oklahoma's and Texas' deep basins. A super well produces enough gas in a year to equal the energy in a million barrels of oil. This is enough gas to heat 1,000 homes for almost 56 years!

Exploration of these ultra-deep basins is gaining momentum now that producers have the technology to drill below 20,000 feet. In fact, many industry experts believe the deep basins will be America's next great source of gas.

The average gas well costs about $300,000 to complete. A deep well can cost up to $10 million, which explains why it's often necessary to pay higher prices for the gas we buy.

Lone Star has been buying gas from shallower production in the deep-basin areas for years. Our pipeline network will help us buy new gas selectively, negotiate hard for terms favorable to you, and deliver the gas efficiently and economically.

Producers now have the technology to tap enormous, previously unreachable gas reserves in this area's ultra-deep basins.

Gas. It's plentiful, efficient and right for the times.

Lone Star Gas Company

Jerry Lackey's Country Folk

Jim Hadley of San Angelo and this writer drove into Christoval about daybreak this week and suddenly noticed all the pecan and liveoak tree leaves on the ground and pavement.

Looking to the bar-ditch and hillsides, the terrain was covered with fine-hail appearing more like a fresh snow. Inquiring at the coffee shop, we found out that the little half inch rain we had received in San Angelo the night before turned into a full sized storm in the little community 20 miles south.

A twister had relocated a trailer house in a liveoak tree on the South Concho River and a number of trees were delimbbed.

It was, however, the first moisture of any kind coming to the Country Folk in Central West Texas since early August.

Walter Pfluger III, ranching his grandfather's headquarters ranch at Eden and over-seeing the Pfluger Ranches in Kimble and Edwards counties, said: "The moisture settled the dust at Eden and near Junction but there was not much measurement."

Thomas Morriss, Sutton County ranchman, estimated the mid-October rain at .10 of an inch.

Over in Sterling County, Johnny Hughes gauged .60 of an inch and weighed for a "slow soaking rain that would start now and stop about the first of November."

E. S. Herring, Cleo community, said the shower which hit there settled the dust "but that is about all our rains did all summer. We received good summer showers on Bear Creek all summer which kept grass green well into August but we have not received any deep moisture in a long time."

Grass in much of West Texas where I have been in recent weeks appears good at a distance, however when one gets close to it, steps on it, it falls apart. Certainly the old grass left on rangeland will not be cured for winter grazing this year.

Otto Fisher says it is dry near London, Texas. And his brother, former 21st District Congressman O. C. Fisher, just returning from property he owns in Old Mexico says it is dry all the way to the Pacific Ocean.

Carlton Bierschwale, at the Junction auction sale the other day, described his grass as "blistered... no life to it."

So, it seems that farm and ranch country across the whole Southwest is looking for a good rain to break another drought. Too many of us remember the seven dry years in the 1950s "when beautiful sunshine days turned into weeks and years and bankrupted the agriculture community."

Doctors Push Stretcher Use

In an effort to prevent injuries to high school football players, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) has recommended that stretchers be used more often to carry injured athletes off the field.

The TMA Committee on Athletics said a player might make an injury worse by walking. Ankle, leg and knee injuries, which are some of the more common problems, especially might be aggravated because players would be using the injured part to get off the field.

In order to avoid such injuries, TMA urges coaches, booster clubs and other fans to provide the approximately $50-$100 needed to buy a quality stretcher. This amount is relatively small in relation to the extra expense that might be caused by complications resulting from walking off the field.

Bill Farney, University Interscholastic League (UIL) director, said the UIL does not require stretchers yet but does encourage safety practices such as having ambulance, doctors and stretchers at games. Some schools are unable to have all these safety features but they often can provide some equipment or acceptable substitutes.

TMA's stretcher policy is part of a growing move to increase football safety. Just this year the UIL passed a rule designed to decrease knee injuries by further regulating blocking below the waist.

Other TMA athletic committee efforts include encouraging doctors to give pre-season physicals and be present at games.

White-Tails Most Numerous Game Animal In America

With deer season rapidly approaching now is the time to take a look at what it takes to produce that trophy buck. The white-tailed deer is the most numerous big game animal in North America. Much research has been done on the ability of this animal to change with man and the environment. It is generally agreed by experts in the wildlife management field that the greatest danger facing deer populations is the destruction of suitable habitat.

The white-tailed deer is considered an edge animal by many experts and requires cover in the form of brush to exist. Brush provides escape from predators and food. White-tailed are known primarily as browsing animals acquiring much of their food from (mast) or the tender ends of twigs and leaves of woody plants. It is also suspected that they consume large amounts of forbs during seasons when mast is limited. Deer are generally not known to consume large amounts of grass except in times of drought or when young kleingrass has been seeded.

Nutrition is important to the deer as development of the body size and antler size is directly related to the food supply. Researchers have studied and are studying effects of the diet in deer on antler development, as well as age of the animals at harvest. They have noted that peak antler development occurs at about 4-5 years. Thus the age of the animals also plays an important part in trophy buck development.

The ratios of numbers of does to number of bucks are also important. Too many does may result in decreased numbers of bucks in the population especially if only bucks are harvested. This trend can continue until a die off occurs to bring the population back into balance with the food supply. Hence habitat is very important in furnishing the deer with food and cover to maintain their population.

Some methods which may aid in wildlife management are:

- (a) Brush Strips left during rootplowing or brush removal operations.
- (b) Wildlife access to watering facilities.
- (c) Including forbs in seeding of mixtures.
- (d) Supplemental planting of small grains.
- (e) Grain strips left around cropland fields.

These are just some of the many methods which can be used in providing food and cover for wildlife on farms and ranches. For further information concerning wildlife management techniques which may aid in the development of wildlife as a resource on farms and ranches contact your local Soil Conservation Service Field Office.

In the second quarter, Coahoma scored first on a one-yard run by the quarterback. The extra point was good.

Three minutes later, the Blizzards scored on a play that was set up by a pass from quarterback Toby Gerhart to Robert Johnson. The score was by Pat Salas on a one-yard plunge. The extra point try failed.

Near the end of the half, Coahoma scored the final score of the game on a 12-yard run. The extra point try was good. The score at the end of the first half was 14-6.

In the second half, the Blizzards and Bulldogs fought a defensive battle up and down the field but were unable to score any more. The game ended with the score 14-6.

'Working Mothers' Are 'Real Mothers,' Too

"Working mothers" are "real mothers," too, says a family life education specialist, Diane Welch.

Families often benefit from a mother's outside employment, she says.

Mrs. Welch is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

According to recent studies, a "working mother" provides her family with several major benefits directly related to her outside employment.

In addition to material benefits, families in many cases become closer as they share responsibilities.

Also, family members' abilities to think through and make independent decisions often increase.

Researchers found other facts that seem to dispel "myths" about "working mothers." Here are a few:

1) The divorce rate is no higher among "working-mother" families than in other families.

2) When women are working by choice, both spouses report significantly fewer marital tensions—and greater levels of marital satisfaction.

3) Amounts of "quality time" or "attentive time" spent with children is about the same for "working mothers" as it is for full-time-homemaker mothers.

4) No constant differences appear in children of "working-mother" families or other families—concerning

County Weevil Suppression Program Said Encouraging

The response to the Runnels County boll weevil suppression program backed by the County Crops Subcommittee has been encouraging, according to Allen Turner, County Extension Agent. This program involves adding an insecticide to the Area Entomologist. Methyl parathion is also effective at the rate of 0.5 pounds per acre. Both of these insecticides are highly toxic to humans also, according to Fuchs, and care should be used when applying them.

"Weevils entering overwintering habitat during this time of the year have much better chances of survival than those going into diapause earlier in the season. We are much more likely to have to contend with this group of weevils next year," added Mandie Armstrong, County Entomologist.

Most cotton producers have been using a pint of Guthion per acre, especially if it is being applied by ground sprayers, according to Tom Fuchs.

school grades, peer relationships, social adjustment, intellectual achievement or delinquency.

However, there are several factors which do influence the ability of the family unit or of individual members to adjust and adapt to outside employment of the mother.

Among these are the attitudes of the mother and other family members regarding her outside employment, the quality of child care during the mother's absence, management of household responsibilities and the character of time spent in family interaction.

In general, the studies conclude that "real mothers" are found at home and in the work force, Mrs. Welch says.

Their presence in either place is not the key to their effectiveness as a parent, she adds.

To soothe feet, consider changing shoes during the day and evening, suggests Becky Culp, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Pork is high in nutritive value, especially thiamin (B1), reports a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Pork supplies other B vitamins, iron and protein, Mary K. Sweeten continues.

Serve either fresh or cured pork to add variety to meals, the specialist adds.

Keep a card file of fabric bought as a quick inventory reference for color, fiber content, yardage, care and other information, suggests Becky Culp, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Use absorbent powder carpet cleaners at intervals to prolong the periods between wet cleanings, suggests a housing and home furnishings specialist.

This method will brighten and remove dull, dingy, oily deposits with a minimum texture change, explains Sue Young, with the Texas

Driving at 55 mph gives 20 percent more miles per gallon than driving at 70 mph—for most cars, reports Bonnie Piernot, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.
