Manufacturing Company Changes Hands

Although the physical plant of Winters Manufacturing Co., and most of the machinery, originally was intended to manufacture evaporative air conditioners when it was built a good many years ago, during the past few years, more and more emphasis has been placed on manufacture of other types of metal products, such as metal store fixtures.

However, in light of a recent SeeCOMPANYPage 8

Chamber Sponsors Industrial Show

Texas will observe "Texas Industrial Week" April 1-8, but Winters will get the jump on the statewide observance with a two-day Industrial Show March 28-29, sponsored by the Winters Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Industrial Show will be held at the Winters Community Center, and will be open to all industries who produce or sell in Winters and Runnels County.

In a letter to industrial companies in Winters and the county,

Sullivan said, "The year 1980 will be a big year in Winters. It will be our 90th anniversary and Runnels County's 100th anniversary. We would like the Industrial Show to be a big part of the celebration and we earnestly solicit your participation."

Sullivan invited the companies to "exhibit the products you manufacture. There is plenty of room inside and outside the building for all. There will be no charge and space will be allocated on a first come, first served basis."

Show time will be from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day.

Poe's Corner
 BY CHARLIE POE

A History Roundup

The Clyde Burtons were determined to return to Winters after retirement which they did in 1972. But it isn't always easy to get located. After living in six different homes they think they have found just the right one.

While renovating the house they recently bought on the corner of Church and Parsonage, they found the initials and date "W. T. S.-1918" carved in the cement under the grape arbor by the back door.

Since the Sudberry's had lived there a long time, I was sure he had built the house and promised to try to learn more about the circumstances.

Clyde should have known since he came to Winters in 1904, when he was two years old, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Burton, and grew up here. He did recall many events of those early days.

Mr. Burton was a postmaster in Gadsden, Ala., and moved to Winters because his wife wanted to be near her parents, the J. D. Dunns, who came to Wingate in 1900. J. D. and W. I. (Uncle Billy) Dunn, the Baptist preacher, were brothers. The two men married sisters.

The Burtons found no jobs in Winters—nothing but heartbreak. They lost three of their children, Bennie, Marie and Roy, leaving only Clyde, Robert and Louise were born later.

Clyde remembers his dad killing a horned toad while he was chopping weeds in the yard. He had never seen one and carried it to a neighbor to ask what kind of a varmint it was.

Mr. Burton walked and rode a bicycle to get up the first rural mail route that went West from Winters. It was the No. 1 route for many years, now known as No. 3. He carried the mail for 30 years until he retired at 65. For a long time, he rode in a horse and buggy but later bought a motorcycle. While learning to ride it he rounded a corner and ran into a fence. A patron heard him saying "Whoa! Whoa!"

The Burtons lived in a house east of the Rock Hotel until he got a job, then they built a house on Wood St. Misfortune struck again when the house burned and the only thing saved was the family Bible. They built again on Tinkle St., now the Arch Hood home.

"Papa owned the land east of Tinkle Park which was planted in feed and cotton and I farmed it," said

Clyde. "Papa could have bought all the land in the Dale Community for a dollar, but he didn't have the dollar," he added.

With nothing but dirt roads and little entertainment in those early days, Mr. Burton played the fiddle and he was always in demand for social gatherings. Mrs. Burton was a popular saleslady, employed at Krause Dept. store for years. She later worked for Heidenheimers and others.

"The men sat on the curb at the bank corner and swapped yarns for pastime," said Clyde. "Once when someone asked about a man who lived at Moro Mountain and no one knew him, Fred Bedford, who rode a spotted horse, said, 'That's a good recommendation. If he were sorry, we'd all know him.'"

Clyde and Billie Burke, a Runnels County girl, was married in 1923. The popular game by this time was croquet. Clyde carried the mail here for 16 years. The family then moved to Carrizo Springs where he bought a Texaco Station and ran it 15 years before moving to San Antonio, for 21 years. Billie was employed by the government for 31 years. Clyde was captain of a fire department for five years and active in the Lions Club for a decade but he now devotes his time to golf.

The couple has three daughters, Joyce Bradshaw of Carrizo Springs, Barbara Eckert of San Antonio and Nancy Bockor of Brazoria. There are eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Wilen Hinds a resident of 208 N. Church St. for as long as I can remember, gave me the following account of the Sudberry house.

"I've known the Sudberry's since 1914. They were living in this house when we bought it and we had to wait two months until he could get possession of one he had bought on the corner. He later moved that house and built one himself at the same location.

"His wife was the former Vera Stokes and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Stokes, lived next door where Mrs. Stokes had roomers. She had operated the Cottage Hotel until it burned. When Mr. Stokes died the Sudberrys moved in that house and sold theirs on the corner. Sometime after Mr. Sudberry's death, Mrs. Sudberry sold her home and went to live near her only son, Weldon, and his wife. She would never return to this street again after she sold her home. Weldon now lives in Abilene. He has one son."

Mrs. Hinds has quite a history herself. She can look across to the Methodist Church on the corner where she has been a member since 1903. "I've seen five different houses of worship erected at that location," she says.

She came here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Brock, two brothers and four sisters in 1903 from Granbury. She and Wiley Hinds were married the following year and they farmed for ten years. "While on the farm I plowed, hoed, picked cotton, helped build fence and worked with the combine."

Mr. Hinds worked in a gin north of town and later bought it. It was known as the Hinds & Carlsisle Gin. Mr. Hinds died in 1961.

"We moved to town in March and a couple walked up to me on the street and asked me to board them. I told them I'd never kept boarders but they asked me to try it for a month. I kept boarders for almost 15 years. Four of them lived here, some next door and some with Mother Hinds across the street. Cotton had gone to 45 cents a pound and we thought we had it made. I remember it was all mesquites between here and the Baptist Church and just two or three houses across the street."

Mrs. Hinds is now 94 years old and says she feels fine except she can't walk. She guesses she has used her feet too much.

Home Insulation May Present Hazards

Danger, your insulation may pose a health hazard—if it's urea formaldehyde insulation, and if it's not installed properly, warns a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Though urea formaldehyde is an excellent insulative material, improper installation of it may cause the release of formaldehyde gas into living areas which, in turn, can cause adverse health effects, Sue Young explains.

Mrs. Young is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

To reduce the chances of potentially hazardous installation, consumers should take these steps before hiring professional installers:

Ask the insulation contractor or his representative if the installer has received factory training in correct application procedures.

Request to see the installer's certificate or identification card verifying that he has received such instruction.

Insist on a written statement which explains what action the insulation company will take if health problems arise from the product.

Continued exposure to formaldehyde gas can cause nausea and vomiting, respiratory difficulties, headaches, eye irritation and allergies.

Such symptoms may develop anywhere from a few days to more than six months after the gas is released.

At the very least, make sure you get conscientious workmanship, use of appropriate chemicals and the use of machinery in good repair.

There are about 300 species of holly shrubs and trees throughout the world.

PROCLAMATION

Greetings:

An adequate supply of food and natural fibers is essential to our Nation. Many of the citizens of Runnels County are directly or indirectly dependent upon agriculture for their livelihood. All of our citizens benefit from the continuing advancements in agriculture.

Farmers and ranchers have learned the value of improving agriculture and rural life in America through organization. Four out of five agricultural producers in this Nation are voluntary members of Farm Bureau, an independent farm organization striving to build a better social and economic life for farm and ranch families and all Americans.

Therefore, I, Bill B. Stultz, County Judge of Runnels County, do hereby designate February 11-16, 1980, as FARM BUREAU WEEK in Runnels County, and urge our citizens to give due recognition to this observance honoring the Runnels County Farm Bureau.

In official recognition thereof, I hereby affix my signature this 8th day of February, 1980.

County Judge Designates "Farm Bureau Week"

The week of Feb. 11-16 has been designated "Farm Bureau Week in Runnels County" by County Judge Bill B. Stultz. Governor Bill Clements has also designated the same week as a statewide observance, according to Doyle Condra, president of the Runnels County Farm Bureau.

During this week, the local county Farm Bureau will have a special effort to enroll new members in the organization, according to J. B. Estes Jr., of Ballinger, membership chairman. Other members of the membership committee are James Egge-meyer and David Bradley.

Part of the "Farm Bureau Week" proclamation, signed by Judge Stultz, reads:

"An adequate supply of food and natural fibers is essential to our nation. Many of our citizens of Runnels County are directly or indirectly dependent upon agriculture for their livelihood. All of our citizens benefit from the advancements made in the agricultural industry.

"Our farmers and ranchers have learned the value of promoting their industry through organization. Four out of five agricultural producers in the nation are voluntary members of the Farm Bureau."

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
 By Lyndell Williams
 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Last Monday marked the official opening of the political campaign season—it was the filing deadline for all candidates seeking office.

Already the 1980 election year seems one destined to stand out in history. Determined to end Texas' tradition as a one-party state, Republicans have fielded candidates for as many offices as possible and party leaders act confident of gaining more seats in the Legislature and on state courts.

In no small way are Republican hopes resting on their governor's promise to call a special session of the Legislature at the "most inopportune time" for incumbent Democrats. Governor Clements has long promised to bring the lawmakers to Austin to tackle initiative and referendum, wire-tapping authority and tax relief.

Last week he partly fulfilled his promise by saying he will hold the special session in August at a specific date to be announced later.

Why August? Clements said September bumps into too many deadlines before the Nov. 4 general election.

August is also the month the Democrats will hold their national convention, and the special session will surely disrupt their participation.

The Governor has come under hot criticism for his intentions of calling the session. Most Democrats are of the opinion Clements is trying to burn their party at taxpayers expense ($1 million, at least). There is no emergency need for the special session since the regular session would be only four months away, they believe, and Clements is simply trying to put the pressure on them shortly before the election.

Clements, of course, has his defense for spending that much tax money; he thinks he can force the Legislature to reduce taxes by any amount more than the special session will cost. His public opinion poll shows voters are split 50-50 on the necessity of a special session.

Teachers Collective Bargaining

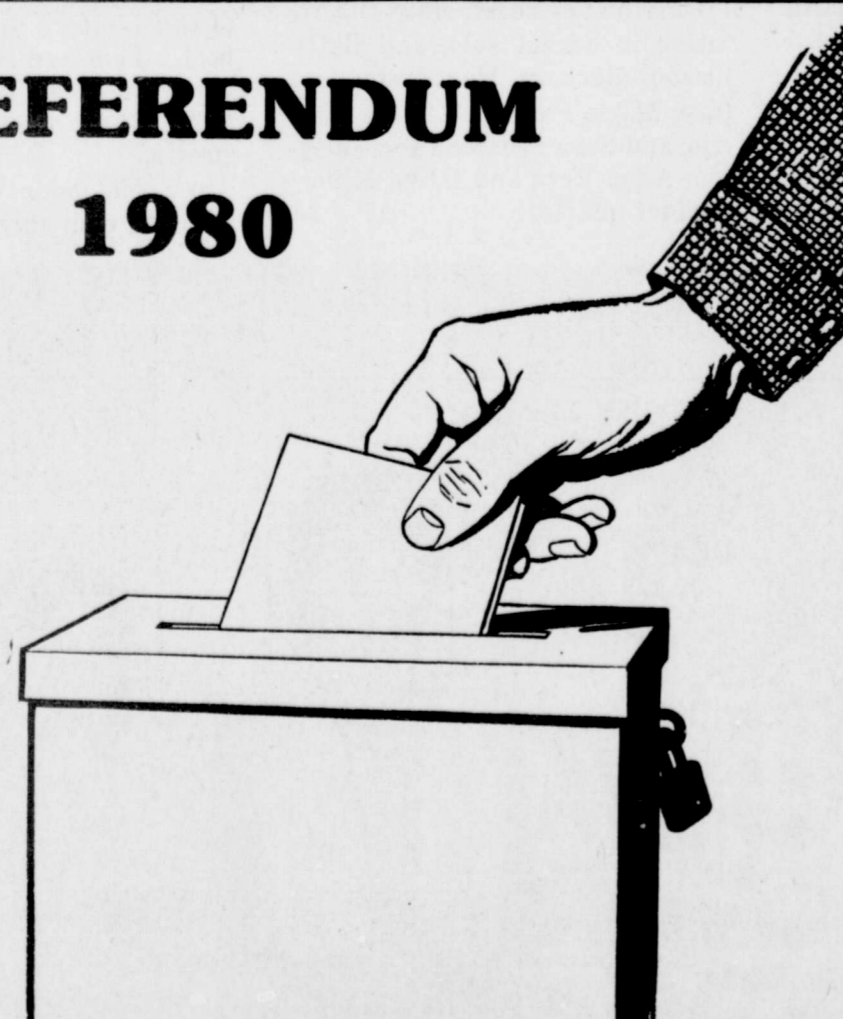

The state's largest teacher organization will seek passage of a collective bargaining bill that will give teachers the right to strike during labor disputes.

Texas State Teachers Association director Cecile Russell called the legislation one of their top priorities for 1981 session.

A similar bill, though weaker, died in committee during the 1979 session. The new bill will give teachers the right to select a labor organization to represent them in contract negotiations with school boards.

Clements promptly promised to veto the bill if it passed the Legislature.

Men, Women—Earnings Gap

Why do women earn less money than men?

Men's salaries have outstripped women's salaries by 70 percent since 1961.

This is an important issue to employed women, since most work out of financial necessity, says Cindy Wilson, a family life education specialist.

"Many factors contribute to the earnings gap between men and women, and though strides have been made, many changes are still needed to narrow the earnings gap," she says.

Mrs. Wilson is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Understanding some of the reasons for the gap may further encourage efforts to narrow it, she says.

Here are a few factors responsible for the earnings gap:

1. With increasing numbers of women in the work force, many women are accepting low-paying jobs.

2. Many women are employed in traditionally low-paying occupations, such as clerical work or elementary and secondary education—compared to men who are more often employed in managerial, administrative and professional occupations.

3. Although many women receive the same amount of education as men, differences are seen

Spilled Cotton

Glenn Maurice Rogers, of Houston, received only minor injuries when this truck load of cotton overturned on the curve of FM53 at Poe's Corner six miles west of Winters last Friday morning. He said he had come from Slaton, and had encountered ice on the highway much of the time, but had had no trouble until the high wind hit the truck and trailer as he rounded the curve. He said there was no ice on the curve at the time, but that the wind simply "simply blew the truck off the road and turned it over." He was hospitalized in North Runnels Hospital overnight and released. Runnels County Emergency Service took him from the scene of the accident to the hospital.

Winters Grad Won GT Safety Slogan Contest

A San Angelo employee of General Telephone, and a Winters High School graduate, recently took home $100 for thinking about safety.

Cindy Wolford, administrative clerk in the company's marketing department in the four-state headquarters, won the prize by penning the company's new safety slogan, "We Keep You Talking—Safely."

Miss Wolford is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Wolford of Winters and the late Thomas Wolford, and granddaughter of the late H.F. Lehman, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lehman, all of Winters.

Bill F. Vann, safety director, said the winning slogan was selected out of more than 2,100 entries submitted by employees. Vann says the contest has two benefits.

"Obviously, we expected to select a slogan which will help encourage safe working practices among our employees," he said, "but there is an additional plus. Employees must give some thought to what safety means when preparing an entry. It reminds them of how important safety is to the company and the individual."

The slogan will be used in a variety of ways in the coming months, the first being a bumper sticker for company vehicles in Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Texas.

along with the store fixtures. Hinds also said that the company probably would, within a short time, begin to employ more and more people, and that by the beginning of fall, at least 50 people would be employed. There still are a few details to be worked out, he said, but he was confident that within a few months, the labor force at the plant would be greatly increased, thus beginning of the secure economy of the area.

O. T. Hinds, owner of Winters Manufacturing Co., which was formerly Wintex Corp., said Monday that manufacture of evaporative air conditioners would be stepped up in the near future.

Clayton: "Not Necessary"
House Speaker Bill Clayton repeated his position last week: the added cost to the taxpayer will not be worth a special session. Legislators can consider Clement's three issues in the regular session beginning next Jan.

Jerry Lackey's Country Folk

Being a farm and ranch editor has many rewards and I have gained many of the pleasures along the trail the last 25 years plus now. However, like my boss, Shelley V. Smith of Abilene, says: "the greatest joy has to be the taste of a homecooked meal from the farmhouse kitchen."

That I have enjoyed many times over in those years in just about every county in West and Central Texas.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Bode Owens of Barnhart the other day recalled one of those delightful meals. I was working for oldtime cowboy editor Stanley Frank some 18 years ago. He sent me out to what I thought at the time must have been on the edge of the world—Barnhart, Texas.

I met the Irion County agent, Bill Sims, now executive secretary of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association, at a little cafe in Barnhart. We drove out to the Owens Ranch where Buck Owens (not the singer) showed us some club lambs that jumped hurdles. I photographed them jumping.

When we got back to the Bode Owens ranch home, Buck's mother had set one of the best meals on the table. It reminded me of my own mother's dinner table.

Another time when I was at the Sheep & Goat Raiser magazine, we had a visitor from Australia. It was my assignment to see that he saw as many of our sheep and goats as possible.

Mrs. Clinton Hodges of Sterling County served us one of the best meals anyone ever slapped a lip over. There was fresh vegetables from their garden, roast lamb and the works.

Always a delightful meal when I went to Marble Falls to work up advertising for the Hi-View Ranch was in the home of owner Pete Ebeling.

Recently at the annual Fling Ding Club party in Sonora, several thousand West and Central Texas folks representing just about every community one could mention danced to the music of The Mal Fitch Orchestra in the wool warehouse.

In visiting with country folks from Uvalde to Alpine and Marfa to Sterling City and Junction and so on, the thought occurred as to how many of their homes I had been in over the years . . . and how many good meals I enjoyed there.

The big blowout came a week after the Rehab '80 telethon, so this Rehab Public Relations man was resting at our Hill Country ranch for the first free moment following the successful show. But what a refreshing break to drive over to Sonora some 30 miles away. I visited with folks I had not seen for years.

There was our retired Congressman O. C. Fisher and retired English teacher Mrs. Pat Radland. Fisher stays on his Kimble County ranch most of the time. And believe it or not, it has been over 10 years since visiting with wool and mohair buyer Gilbert Dunstan, now of Uvalde.

Bill Shurley of Marfa was there, not to mention so many old friends from Sonora and surrounding territory.

I had visited at the Mohair Council of America's annual meeting just a few days before. So it seemed like I was seeing some folks every few days like Fred and Kay Campbell of Paint Rock and Glen Fisher of Sonora, Jack Groff of Kerrville, Jim Cusenbary, Robert Kensing, Robert Allison, Warren Hemphill, Joe David Ross, Corky Schweining and Mrs. J. P. Rieck.

The weekend before, we at Rehab (as I mentioned) with the help of Bob Hope, Shari Lewis, Rex Allen, Pedro Gonzalez Gonzalez, Pat Boone, Slim Pickens and some 20 other stars put on the largest regional telethon in the nation. We raised over $800,000 which will benefit the handicapped at West Texas Rehabilitation Centers. Thus, the Fling Ding was a time for Dee and I to celebrate.

Well, this article is beginning to sound like one of those Hollywood gossip columns, so I best call it "30" for this week. But it gives me the opportunity to say that my many friends in Texas rate right up there with Pickens and others in my book. The finest people are country folks, despite the fact they set the best dinner tables in the world!

A 1978 poll showed that 49 percent of American women get most of their news from newspapers; 22 percent, from television; and 13 percent, from radio.
