Federal law changes — butter, cheese cancelled

There will be no more cheese or butter from the United States Department of Agriculture distributed in Winters due to new federal regulations, according to Rosemary Bennie at the Senior Citizens Activity Center and Jim Chilton, manager of the Commodities Office of the Texas Department of Human Resources in Lubbock.

Mrs. Bennie said that she received a letter last week notifying her of the cancellation of the contract to receive the cheese and butter due to a change in the federal law.

Chilton said the law, Public Law 98-8, Title I, Title II, the emergency jobs bill is what caused the termination of the cheese and butter program here.

"It was great while it lasted," Mrs. Bennie said, "but all good things must come to an end sooner or later I guess." Under the new ruling, there are two ways that the program could be continued, she said. One way is for the Activity Center to provide meals only for indigent persons, and the other way is to serve only persons who are certified by the Department of Public Welfare as being poverty stricken.

Both Chilton and Mrs. Bennie agreed that to become involved in either of these programs would create a heavy burden of paper work for the government. Mrs. Bennie also said that if the local center were to enter into the new program, the present program for senior citizens would have to stop.

Chilton, who talked with The Enterprise from his Lubbock office said that one of the reasons the program was terminated was due to pressure on the United States Department of Agriculture from merchants from across the country who complained about their cheese sales being down. "The government's just phased out the program, that's what they've done," Chilton said.

In Winters, Mrs. Bennie said that support from merchants had been tremendous, that assistance in paying the freight for getting the cheese to Winters was covered by donations from merchants and individuals, and that cold storage space was offered by the local supermarkets. She expressed her appreciation to all those who have supported the program since it began a number of months ago.

The DHR spokesman said that the USDA is going to cut back on quantities and see that it gets to the "right people". The goal of that portion of the emergency jobs bill would aim the surplus foods at areas with high levels of poverty and unemployment.

Both state and local officials said that both Winters and Runnels County were a long way down the list in areas of high unemployment and poverty.

Jim Chilton said that one of the plans of the federal government for the distribution of surplus foods, which should get underway in some areas in the next few months would be very similar to the commodities distribution program that

Tops in state

The Women's 3-lady Racing Team from Winters took first place honors at the State Firemen's Convention Pumper Races in Beaumont last week. Jo Miller, Janice Merrill, and Teresa Davis won the event over 14 other teams with a time of 10.57 seconds. This marked the first time for Winters to have a women's racing team at the state meet.

Cameron finished second with a time of 11.11 seconds and Rosenberb was third with a time of 11.65 seconds.

The Winters ladies were presented with medals, a first place trophy, and a traveling trophy for turning in the fastest time.

Attending the State Firemen's Convention were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis Sr., Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Hodnett, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Merrill, and Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Miller.

Final inspection

Only a few minor touch-up items remain before final acceptance of the Winters-Elm Creek Reservoir. The inspection tour was made last week by representatives of the City of Winters, the engineering firm of HDR of Austin, The contractor and others involved in the construction of the new water reservoir for the City of Winters.

Following the tour, that included stops at the park and boat ramp, the pump station atop the dam, the transfer pump at the old lake dam, the outlet works, the spillway, and the dam itself, City Administrator Glenn Brown said that there were only a few things that needed to be smoothed up before the final papers are signed to make the lake officially the property of the city.

Weekend festivities provide entertainment for area residents

Saturday night marked the ending of another rodeo in Winters, complete with parade, rodeo queen, and lots of rodeo contestants.

The parade, held Saturday afternoon was the largest in the history of the Winters Rodeo. Featured in the parade were the 1983 Winters Rodeo Queen, past Rodeo Queens, and 1983 Winters Rodeo Queen contestants.

Also participating in the parade were numerous floats, some containing the rodeo queen, queen contestants, Miss Sno-Queen, Runnels County Ideal Miss Finalists, and the Big Spring Area Ideal Miss. Other entries from the Winters area were antique and classic cars, horse and donkey drawn vehicles, horsemen, fire trucks and farm equipment.

Also entered were the Abilene Antique and Classic Car Club, the San Angelo Saddle Club, the Rainbow Riding Club of San Angelo, the Callahan County Sheriff's Posse, the Scurry County Sheriff's Posse, the Ethnic Flag Bearers for the Ballinger Ethnic Festival and the West Texas Fair and Rodeo Queen.

Judges for parade entries were Mary Bauer, Jana Hogg and Randy Springer, with divisions judged: floats, youth, riding clubs and most unique. First place awards were given in each division except the riding clubs which had first, second and third places. The Winters Chamber of Commerce took first place plaque in the float division; Tandy and Chane Reagan of Winters received the first place plaque in the youth division. Plaque for the most unique entry was awarded to the Joni-Lyn Factory and Outlet of Winters. Winners in the riding club divisions were: first place, the San Angelo Saddle Club; second place, Hawley Riding Club; and third place, Rainbow Riding Club. Apologies were made to the Callahan County Sheriff's Posse, who were not judged.

A "Summertime Sidewalk Sale" held during the weekend proved to be successful for Winters merchants, and Saturday evening drawings for gifts certificates were held at the Chamber of Commerce office. First place winner of $125.00 gift certificate was Frances Meyer of Winters; second place winner of $75.00 was Kay Guy, also of Winters; and third place winner of $50.00 was Renee Poe of San Angelo.

Wait A Minute —

By Kerry Craig

Well, I am still waiting to hear from those guys in Austin at that bureau with a foot-long name that controls the disposal of radio active waste material. Remember, they told me a couple of weeks ago they would send us maps and all the information concerning their search for a place to throw away what they termed "low-level, nuclear waste materials."

It was mentioned that a large area of this end of Texas was being considered as a site for the dump. Those folks said that wherever they located their disposal site, they would want to be part of the community, to work with the residents, and to create jobs.

If the past two weeks are any kind of indication, we probably don't need their dump site any where near here. Hate to pass them off on some other area, but... Does seem strange though, there was a period of about a week that the idea was the talk of the news media and then you hear no mention of the scheme.

They even went so far as to say they would welcome a chance to meet with a community and explain their project and how it would benefit a community (?) along with the other good (?) things a radio active dump site would do.

Now if this bureaucratic department cannot even send us information about what they want to do in our backyard, how in the world would they even hope to be able to get here to attend a meeting to explain their position or something.

Since the weather guys found us

19-county West Texas area eligible to receive SBA assistance

Small business in a 19-county area of West Texas will be eligible to receive financial help through the newly created Big Country Development Corporation, according to an announcement made earlier by U.S. Senator John Tower, Texas Republican.

The corporation has been certified by the Small Business Administration and will be authorized to lend up to $500,000 per qualifying business for fixed assets. To qualify, the borrower must provide 10 percent of the investment package and obtain financing for another 50 percent from a commercial lending institution. The remaining 40 percent would come from the Development Corporation, Tower explained. The Certified Development Corporation portion of the loan can be for up to 25 years, although the commercial loan must be for at least half the period of that loan.

Counties covered by the Big Country Development Corporation, along with Runnels, include Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Kent, Mitchell, Knox, Nolan, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall, Taylor and Throckmorton.

"The availability of long-term financing from the Development Corporation should make it easier for businesses to get the required

Manslaughter indictment reissued against Winters man

A 42nd District Court Grand Jury in Taylor County last week reindicted Wendell Clayton Conway, 27, of Winters for manslaughter in the September, 1980, fatal shooting of Daniel Ochoa.

The indictment, returned last Friday, replaced an indictment that had been handed down only two weeks ago, only to be dismissed after a prosecutor discovered loan from a commercial institution," Tower explained.

"This Small Business Administration program establishes a partnership between private and public resources. It is particularly valuable because it will spur economic development in the region, and is an excellent example of federal funds being used in the most effective manner possible," Tower concluded.

that the wrong man was named as the victim of the shooting.

Conway was in court awaiting the selection of a jury for his trial when assistant District Attorney Randy Dale noticed that the indictment listed David, not Daniel Ochoa, as the victim.

Conway's trial on the manslaughter charge has been rescheduled for July 11 by District Judge Don Lane in Abilene.

Out on the sidewalk

There were a lot of people on the streets in Winters this past Saturday as local merchants conducted a sidewalk sale in conjunction with the annual rodeo parade.

Along with the bargains that were offered by the merchants, those who came to town got the opportunity to watch the parade and to visit with friends — like it used to be in town on Saturday afternoons.

A thunderstorm threatened to dampen the sales and the parade, though it only provided some cloud cover and cooled the temperatures slightly, and did little to dampen the spirits of those who came to town for the parade, the sidewalk sale, to visit with friends, or, more likely, to watch people.

A Texan in Alaska

(When I received an order from Alaska for my book, 'Runnels Is My County', I immediately wrote Peri Schell and asked her how she heard of me - I should have known - she was a native Texan and her ancestors came from Runnels County. Her letter follows - Charlsie Poe)

Dear Charlsie

Thank you for sending the book so quickly. My interest in it came from my family. I am from Texas. I moved to Alaska from Abilene in 1971. I was born in San Angelo in 1958. Both my parents were also born in San Angelo. My ancestors came from Runnels, Mason and San Saba counties. I am interested in the Guest and Davis names in Runnels. They are my father's family. His grandmother was a Guest. My maiden name is Lane. I am also interested in the Reid, Alexander and Perry names. I see from information given in the book that you have a grandchild named Perry. I was named after my great-grandfather, Ruby Monroe Perry. He was born in Pontotoc, Texas in 1888.

I came to Alaska with my mother and step-father (Charles and Alma Pratt) and my brother, Buddy and three step-sisters, Marie, Nada and Cheri. We came to Alaska because my step-father had been here during the service and liked it. I didn't like it at first because I had to leave all my friends and family behind in Texas. But as I made friends, it became easier to enjoy Alaska's beauty. Summer's here are my favorite. Daylight 24 hours a day means you can work in your garden at midnight if you want. And vegetables grow to large sizes because of so much sun. The scenery here is beautiful. Mountains, trees, lakes, and lots of wildlife. The people here are a special breed - very friendly, and always willing to lend a helping hand. In the winter when it is -50 degrees, that is nice. If your car breaks down someone will help.

I was married last August to a man from Oregon. He came to Alaska for the hunting and fishing. The state has a land lottery up here, and we just won 6.27 acres. It is a homesite and we must build on it within 5 years. It is 28 miles from Fairbanks. There is no electricity and no water. The wells are about 250 feet deep. So I will be doing as my ancestors did - hauling water and using a lantern. We want to build a log home. It will be about 7 years before we have a phone or electricity! But the cost for the land is only $4,025.00. We only pay the survey cost.

I love Alaska now and though I get a little homesick for Texas once in awhile, I know we will make this our home now. I still visit Texas when I can afford it. And most of my family research is done in Texas (Also Arkansas, Georgia and Alabama).

I will close for now. If you know of anyone who might know of my family names, please give them my address.

Sincerely,

Peri Schell

(Her address is: 321 Gloria, Fairbanks, Alaska 99701 - If you have any information about the names mentioned, she would like to hear from you. - C. Poe.)

Extra sunlight -

Because of the 24-hour sunlight in Alaska, Peri Schell and others are able to grow much larger vegetables than we here in Texas are accustomed to. Here is Peri with a 48-lb. cabbage.

Clearing land...

Peri Schell and her husband are now busy clearing their land to build a log home. 28 miles from Fairbanks. It will be approximately 7 years before they will have electricity or phones.

Landscape irrigation tips offered by county agent

Texas summers are usually hot and dry, and that means homeowners must give careful attention to watering their yards and gardens. Allen Turner, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, offers some tips on getting the most from irrigation water so as to keep plants and lawns healthy while keeping water costs down:

1. Practice slow, deep watering to allow roots to penetrate deeper so that plants become more stress-resistant.
2. Soaker hoses and drip irrigation systems work well on trees and shrubs. It's more efficient to water at night or early in the morning because evaporation is less. However, night-time watering can promote more disease problems.
3. Too much water can be as detrimental or even worse than not enough. The rate at which water is applied should be no more rapid than the rate at which the soil can absorb it. Never fertilize landscape plants when soil is dry. It's best to water the area one day, apply fertilizer the next day, and then water again. Fertilizer will do no good unless it is dissolved and moved down into the soil.

4. Shrubs and trees near foundations, under eaves or on southern and western exposures need frequent watering because they often get less benefit from rainfall and have to deal with heat reflected from walls.
5. Plants on mounds or slopes suffer from drought stress more easily than those on level areas, so these require more frequent watering.
6. Use an organic mulch of pine bark, chopped straw, hay or similar material to reduce irrigation needs.
7. Treat water as a valuable resource. Use it to water plants when needed but do not waste water. Although considered a renewable resource, good water supplies are becoming scarce in Texas.

Open letter to Winters' citizens -

Dear Citizens of Winters. In reference to your public library: The Winters Public Library has served the citizens of this area since its founding, by Myra Glover, in 1954. It was located in the old VFW building until 1963, when it was moved to its present location on N. Main.

In the years since its beginning, volunteers as well as several local organizations, including the Lions Club, Junior Culture Club, and Literary and Service Club, have done a fine job of making our library a pleasant and enlightening experience for all. But, they have had to do so on limited funds.

The Texas Farmers Union has been instrumental in acquiring Green Thumb funds which provide the librarian's salary. However, there is no state funding available which would assist in meeting the physical needs of operating the library. Some individuals and organizations have donated their time and money, in the past, for renovations and improvements. But the most pressing problems lie in the month to month maintenance of the library.

The amount of County and City assistance, $1,400.00 per year each, has not been increased in over two years. The Library must operate on a shoestring budget of approximately $300.00 per month. This is hardly an adequate income, when taking into consideration utilities and upkeep. Commercial rates are applied to the building on all utilities, and are on the rise. City utilities alone increased from $5.75 to $18.55 per month in less than eighteen months.

Last month a large plate glass window was broken at the hands of a vandal. Replacement cost was $395.00. The Junior Culture Club, whose main project is the support of the Library, and the City of Winters, will assist in the repairs. But other donations are needed to make up the difference.

Some immediate needs are ceiling fans, shelving frames and the time and talents of individuals, as well as cash donations. Many citizens have donated books as memorials, and the library is indeed grateful for these. However, cash memorials are also needed desperately. The average cash memorial is $5.00. At today's prices, it will take three or more memorial donations to purchase one book. Any donation is, of course, tax deductible.

Have you visited your public library recently? If not, we urge you to do so. You will find many interesting books, on a vast array of subjects, in a warm and pleasant atmosphere.

Summertime is an especially good time for children of the community to take advantage of the Library facilities. The Library is sponsoring a summer reading program for youngsters. A Children's Hour will be presented each week throughout the months of June, July and August, sponsored by the Junior Culture Club. Entertaining programs will be presented and the children will have an opportunity to become acquainted with the Library and to check out books of their choice.

We would like to urge all area citizens and businesses to remember the Winters Public Library and its contributions to our community over the past 29 years. We need the Library and the Library needs us. Donations may be made at the Library or through any Junior Culture Club member. "Reading maketh a wise man" - Alexander Pope Sincerely,

Members of the Junior Culture Club Winters, Texas

Members of Winters VFD attend State Convention

Several members of the Winters Volunteer Fire Department attended the 107th annual conference/convention of the State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association of Texas held June 18-22 in Beaumont.

Attending from Winters were: Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Hodnett, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Merrill, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis Sr.

Keynote speaker for the conference was Pike Powers, executive assistant to Governor Mark White. Powers is an attorney and former state representative from Beaumont.

Delegates attended business sessions and seminars on such topics as use of computers in the fire service, certification, budgeting, public relations, and legislation.

The SFFMA was established in 1876 and represents the majority of Texas' 1,500 fire departments, many of them rural, volunteer departments. The Association conducts a statewide certification program, sponsors the annual Texas A&M fire training school and the Fire Museum of Texas in Grand Prairie, publishes a monthly magazine, and represents the fire service in the Texas Legislature.

A bill sponsored by the Association in the last session of the Texas Legislature would have created a $20 million fund for the purchase of much-needed firefighting equipment. The bill was passed unanimously in the Texas House, but died in the Senate Economic Development Committee, largely because of the opposition of the fire insurance industry.

Monies for the fund would come from one percent of the fire insurance premiums collected in the state and would be allocated to individual departments through grants and low-interest loans.

Delegates to the Beaumont convention voted to support a petition drive asking Governor White to put the funding bill on the agenda for the upcoming special session of the Legislature.

Double-ring ceremony unites Jannette Diehl, David Caudle

Lena Jannette Diehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Diehl of Bronte, and John David Caudle, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Caudle of Bronte, were married at 6 p.m. June 10, in a double-ring ceremony performed in the Bronte First Baptist Church. Officiating minister was Rodger Croker of Llano.

with white icing and blue flowers, was accented with love birds. Punch was served in a crystal punch bowl. Servers were Mary Keele, Sheila Diehl and Molly Weathers.

The groom's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth with a basket of ivy as the centerpiece. A silver service adorned the table where a chocolate cake, decorated with a golf green was served by Pam Parker and Sheila Barrett.

Face-to-face interviews necessary by SS personnel

One of the concerns of the Social Security Administration is that while social security pays billions of dollars to millions of people each year, it continues to respond to people as individuals and not become impersonal. But, the program is so large, it often requires the use of the mail.

Occasionally, however, a situation arises in which direct contact between a beneficiary and social security personnel is felt to be of overriding importance. The continuing disability investigations (CDI's) comprise such a situation.

Social security disability beneficiaries whose cases are being reviewed to determine their continued eligibility for monthly payments will have a face-to-face interview at the start of the process. The purpose of these interviews is to give social security personnel an opportunity to explain why a periodic review is needed and how it will be conducted. Previously, beneficiaries had first learned of the review through letters sent out by the State Agency responsible for making the determination.

The Social Security Administration has always stressed the rights and responsibilities of people receiving benefits; these are two sides of the same coin. Beneficiaries should similarly be aware of their rights and responsibilities in regard to the CDI process.

For the review to accomplish its purpose, disability beneficiaries must cooperate by providing current medical evidence of their condition. This and other aspects of the CDI process will be discussed during the face-to-face interview.

The personal contact will also provide interviewers with an opportunity to observe the beneficiary's medical condition. If the beneficiary obviously is disabled, the case can be closed without the need for a time-consuming investigation.

For more information, contact the San Angelo Social Security Office at 2214 Sherwood Way, or call 949-4608. The office is open Monday through Friday, except holidays, between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

We've incorporated it into a 15 minute recipe simply by adding some favorite vegetables. Serve this easy "all-in-one" (pasta, vegetables and meat) recipe with some hand nibbles...there's plenty for Teddy too.

AMERICA'S HISTORY

Visit Philadelphia

The First Continental Congress met there in 1774. In 1775, the Second Continental Congress also convened in this famous city, and the next year, Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence there. Historic Philadelphia was also the site where the Founding Fathers of a new nation met to write the U.S. Constitution.

Today, millions of tourists from around the world come to visit what has been called "the most historic square mile in America"—Independence National Historical Park in Philadelphia, home to our nation's most hallowed symbols of liberty, the Liberty Bell and Independence Hall.

Beyond its world-renowned museums, attractions and historic sites, Philadelphia is an exciting blend of the old and the new. It's the home of the largest landscaped city park in the world—Fairmount Park. The city's restaurants have drawn rave reviews from around the globe. From nightclubs to spectator sports and trendy boutiques, there's so much to see and do, you'll appreciate the helpful information in the "1983 Official Visitors' Guide to Philadelphia."

All fireworks are dangerous warns Texas Society to Prevent Blindness

Fireworks and the Fourth are a patriotic combination. Yet too often the combination misfires and results in the tragic stories that can be found in the Independence Day files of the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness.

"These stories are of youngsters — and their parents — who learned too late "Don't play with fireworks; they're not toys," says John L. Mann, M.D., an ophthalmologist who is chairman of the Society's State Medical Advisory Committee.

"Fireworks belong at licensed public displays," said Dr. Mann. "There, their colorful patriotic skybursts can be enjoyed without endangering life or property. But when private individuals start playing with fireworks, trouble and tragedy are inevitable."

As proof Dr. Mann cited a survey Prevent Blindness conducted a year ago among Texas ophthalmologists that indicated that 23 Texans were blinded or lost most of their sight on July 4th because of fireworks. An additional 49 people suffered eye injuries ranging from second degree burns to corneal lacerations. He added that the Consumer Product Safety Commission also reported last year that, nationwide, over 11,000 were treated in hospital emergency rooms for fireworks-caused injuries; 1,600 of these were to the eyes.

"What these figures show is that there is no such thing as a safe firecracker," Dr. Mann emphasized. "Even seemingly harmless sparklers sizzle at 1500 degrees Fahrenheit and can give a burn that will quickly take the sparkle out of the eyes of any youngster who has been playing with one."

"But the most dangerous projectiles are bottle-rockets. Bottle-rockets caused almost all the cases of blindness reported in the Texas survey and over half of the other injuries."

"The majority of injuries were to teen-aged males who seem prone to 'horse play' when they get a hazardous projectile such as a bottle-rocket in their hands," he said. As examples, he told of two boys who jokingly 'waged war' with lighted bottle-rockets and of two others who competed with each other to create the biggest bottle-rocket blast. In each instance this "Fourth of July fun" resulted in a boy blinded and cosmetically disfigured.

To prevent such tragedies, Dr. Mann said that the Society would like to see fireworks strictly controlled throughout the state and is disappointed that all of the bills introduced recently in Austin to strengthen existing laws have apparently died in legislative committees.

"Preventing fireworks injuries is better than trying to cure them. Even with all the miracles of modern medicine, it is not always possible to save the sight of a child who bends over a firecracker, only to have it explode in his face. That is why Prevent Blindness urges all parents to insist that family fireworks be limited to public displays, and no exceptions permitted."

The Texas Society to Prevent Blindness is an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, now celebrating its 75th year of preventing blindness through programs, education and research.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

As the task of defending our national security has grown in complexity during the years since World War II, so has the Department of Defense. During both Republican and Democratic Administrations, its size and the complexity of its bureaucracy have grown dramatically. A number of issues have been raised repeatedly in recent years that make it necessary for us to question whether changes need to be made to improve the decision-making process.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, on which I serve as chairman, soon will begin a comprehensive study into these issues.

We will examine the organization of the Office of the Secretary of Defense to determine whether decisionmaking has become overcentralized, staffs are too large, duplicatory work is being done or military judgment and innovation are being stifled.

Secondly, we will look at the organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to see if it is organized in such a way as to be effective in performing its missions.

Additionally, we will look at the way in which the unified military commands function to see if interservice cooperation and planning are adequate. We also are interested in examining the way in which decisions are made in areas such as budget formulation, procurement of weapons systems and testing and evaluation of these systems. I am concerned about the amount of time these decisions take, with the process often stretching into years between the time a need is identified and the time a system to meet the need is operational.

Finally, the Committee intends to examine the relationship between the Department of Defense and other parts of the federal government which become involved in national security planning, such as the National Security Council, the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency, to see if the structure lends itself to formulation of a comprehensive national security strategy.

Let me emphasize that in beginning this inquiry I am not criticizing Secretary of Defense Casper Weinberger. In fact, I believe Secretary Weinberger has done an outstanding job considering the bureaucracy he inherited.

Further, I suspect that any weaknesses we may find in the Department of Defense organization also exist in other federal agencies, but as Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, my responsibilities lie in looking into the Department of Defense.

I plan for the committee to hear from a large number of witnesses who currently hold government office as well as many persons who have previously served in government or are otherwise knowledgeable about this subject.

It is essential that we determine what, if any, problems in the organization and structure of the Department of Defense keep the decision-making process from operating as smoothly as it could. Failure to do this leaves us with the possibility of incurring unnecessary costs or being unable to respond quickly to a potential crisis.

Anti-drug Abuse Law signed by governor

Two bills supported by the Texas Medical Association to crack down on drug abuse have been signed into law by Gov. Mark White.

One measure makes look-alike drugs illegal in Texas, and the other law in effect removes the much-abused drug methaqualone (Quaaludes) from the marketplace. The common street name is "ludes".

Attending the recent signing ceremony at the Capitol was Dr. Stuart Nemir Jr., of Austin, chairman of TMA's committee on alcoholism and drug abuse.

The first law prohibits the manufacture, sale, and delivery of look-alike drugs, also known as imitation controlled substances. They are made to resemble controlled substances such as amphetamines.

These imitations usually consist of some combination of phenylpropylamine, ephedrine and caffeine, all legal, over-the-counter drugs. But the combinations have not been tested and could cause serious side effects for users, often teenagers.

In addition, a particular danger exists for the person who has been taking look-alikes in modest amounts and then unknowingly takes the real thing. The Food and Drug Administration has confirmed 12 deaths associated with the use of look-alike drugs.

For all of these reasons, the 22,000-member TMA pushed for passage of this bill. The sponsors were Sen. Bob Glasgow (D-Stephenville) and Rep. Gary Thompson (D-Abilene).

The second law reclassifies methaqualone as a Schedule I drug, the most dangerous of the five categories under the state's Controlled Substance Act. The effect of classifying a drug under Schedule I is to make it unavailable for prescription by physicians. Heroin, codeine, and morphine are other Schedule I drugs.

Besides the problem with abuse by drug addicts, TMA supported the rescheduling of methaqualone because there are a number of less-abused, equally effective substitutes that doctors can prescribe.

Sponsors of the methaqualone bill were Sens. Glasgow and John Montford (D-Lubbock) and Rep. Thompson.

The Texas Medical Association is a non-profit, voluntary organization of physicians and medical students.

GSP Assn. opposes target price freeze

The Senate Agriculture Committee yielded on Tuesday, June 22, to pressure from USDA to recommend that agricultural commodity target prices be frozen at the 1983 level. This assures that the proposed freeze will be considered by the Senate. Last month the House Agriculture Committee postponed a vote on the issue until hearings could be held.

The Agricultural Act of 1981 set annual increase for target prices to offset the increases in the cost of production. Target prices for grain sorghum were set at $4.85 per cwt. ($2.72 per bu.) for 1983; $5.14 per cwt. ($2.88 per bu.) for 1984; and $5.40 per cwt. ($3.02 per bu.) in 1985. The freeze, if passed, will reduce '84 targets by 29 cents per cwt and '85 targets by 65 cents per cwt.

Grain Sorghum Producers Association has expressed opposition to the proposed freeze. In a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture John Block, GSPA Executive Director Elbert Harp said, "Freezing target prices will counteract the surplus reduction benefits of the PIK program by decreasing program participation and increasing production and surplus."

Harp pointed out that the 1984 sorghum target prices, as they now stand, are still 22% below the cost of production. "Target prices are the only real price protection farmers have under the present program," he stated.

Fleas, ticks plague area homeowners

Allen Turner, County Extension Agent, advises that the Extension office has had many calls recently on fleas and ticks. Dr. Tom Fuch, Extension Entomologist, offers these comments:

Raid "Household Insect Control", or other formulations of Dursban or Diazinon (Spectracide).

4. Wash pet bedding and dust bedding with 5% Sevin dust.

5. Treat yard, including shrubs around foundation of house and places where pets frequent with Diazinon, Dursban or Baygon.

6. Treat pet with 5% Sevin dust or with tick and flea shampoo, powder or dip. Apply a long lasting flea and tick collar.

7. Do not vacuum home for 7 to 10 days after treatment (vacuuming reduces the insecticide residue).

8. Repeat treatments of home and yard every 14-21 days and keep pet treated until control is achieved.

Always read all pesticide labels and do not over-treat pets to avoid pesticide poisoning. When in doubt about treating small dogs, pregnant dogs or cats, consult your veterinarian.

Many area homeowners are having problems with those perennial pests, fleas and ticks. But don't despair - they can be controlled. It's not easy and not a one-shot treatment, but it can be done. Count on 2 to 3 treatments at 10-14 day intervals.

Recommended procedure (assuming you have a pet that spends time indoors and outdoors) is:

1. Thoroughly clean and vacuum your home. Destroy the vacuum bag so it does not become a flea or tick factory due to the immatures it picks up.
2. Treat your home, the pet and the yard (if the pet goes outside) all at the same time.
3. Treat carpets, upholstery and baseboards where ticks or fleas occur with Kenco "Rid-a-Bug".

CAPITOL UPDATE

by Jim Parker

In the encounters I have had with many of you since the end of the 68th Legislative session, I have noted a good deal of misunderstanding as to pay and benefits afforded a State Representative.

I think each of you should know how much money I am paid and why I am paid the money. As I stated in an earlier article, the first order of business for the 68th session was to give ourselves, as state representatives, a $1,000 per month increase in expenditure monies. I voted against the measure because 1) I felt I could run my office at least as cheaply as my predecessor and 2) I thought it a little hypocritical to give ourselves a 20% office expense increase at a time when we did not have the funds available for many meritorious projects that were inadequately funded.

Specifically, each state representative is allowed $7,500 for the first month of the session; $6,500 per month for the remaining months of the session; and $5,500 per month during the interim. These funds are used to pay staff, telephone expenses, postage, and general office costs for both my Austin and District offices, if I choose to spend state funds to actually set up a district office. Most of the rural representatives and some of the more conservative urban representatives habitually turn back in fairly large amounts of money to the state that they have not used. At this writing I have $11,000 in unused state funds and would anticipate I would at least be able to turn in around $20,000 at the end of my two-year term. The unfortunate part of this is that too many state representatives feel if they have it, they ought to spend it. Obviously, if everyone attempted to operate as frugally as I am, the state would be $3M better off at the end of my term. Relatively speaking, that is not a lot of money, but "every little bit counts."

My salary is a flat rate of $600 per month for 24 months and I am paid while the Legislature is in session, for a 140-day session, the sum of $30 per day for expenses. Additionally, I receive mileage, during the session, at the rate of 23¢ per mile for a round trip home and back per week. That is the total pay package and I cannot use any of the "office expense funds" for my personal use. There will be a referendum on the November, 1984 ballot whereby you, the voter, can increase the amount we receive daily for expenses to roughly $75 per day. While the cheapest hotel room I could find was $35 a day (within reasonable distance to the Capitol), and while I would at least like to have my expenses covered, I would urge you not to vote "yes" on that referendum issue on my account because I knew what the job paid when I asked for it.

I would like to be paid a much, much better salary, but one of the things that has made the Texas state government one that works is, I believe, the fact we are not full-time paid politicians, but "plain vanilla" people, just like you, who are compelled by economics to get down here, tend to the business at hand, and get back home to try to make a living.

It is a public service job in the strictest sense of the word, and I think it should remain so.

Poor old Granddad

This stringer of fish, which included two catfish among the stripers, was caught in about two hours on the new lake by Gene Shields of Winters and his grandson, Mike Owens, who is visiting from Columbia, South Carolina.

After that fishing trip, young Mike decided to extend his summer vacation to Winters to do some more fishing and sent his parents home.

Granddad Gene called himself "Poor old granddad", but it was easy to see that Gene wasted no time in getting his boat trailer to the shop to get the broken axle welded.

Seems "poor old granddad" was somewhat anxious to get back to the fishing, also. And wouldn't you know it, when asked where the fish were caught, Shields and Mike both just smiled and said, "at the new Winters Lake."

was used some ten years ago. He said that along with the cheese and butter the food-stuffs would include possibly dried milk, corn meal, rice, and maybe even honey.

For such a program to be initiated in Runnels County, some agency would have to apply for the program and take care of the mountains of paperwork. The official said that there would be some funding available from the federal level to help offset the cost of shipping the food and to pay for the additional help needed to handle the distribution and paperwork.

Local official, at this time, do not anticipate such a distribution of the commodity foods here.

Boulder Dam is as thick at its base as a city block is long.

State FFA Convention scheduled July 13-15

Six thousand Texas FFA members and guests are expected to attend the 55th Annual Convention of the Texas Association of Future Farmers of America, July 13-15, at the San Antonio Convention Center.

The FFA is composed of students who are studying vocational agriculture in the public schools in preparation for a variety of careers in Agriculture and Agribusiness. Vocational Agriculture is well known for "Educating Through Experience" — a "Learning By Doing" process which uses the FFA to give students experience. The ultimate objective is to produce future leaders for American agriculture with it vital role of producing food and fiber. Texas now has more than 900 FFA chapters with over 60,000 active members and more than 500,000 former members.

During the convention, over 2,000 award winners will be recognized with more than 1,700 members receiving the Lone Star Farmer Degree, the highest level of recognition by the state association. Educational scholarships totalling more than $450,000 will be presented to many of the members in attendance.

Outstanding speakers scheduled during the three-day convention include Michael Broome, nationally renowned speaker and humorist, Charlotte, N. Carolina; Grant Teaff, head football coach, Baylor University, Waco; and Jan Eberly, National FFA President, Fallbrook, California.

Recreational activities will include the Fun Night and Talent Contest where the delegates will select the Outstanding Talent Team from 10 area nominees.

Convention participants will have the opportunity to visit with approximately 60 commercial exhibitors to observe new methods, products, and equipment in the agribusiness industry.

Delay of hay harvest leads to protein, digestibility losses

The hay producer who believes a delay of a few days in cutting would be of little consequence in hay production should give the matter additional thought. Considerable feed value could be lost.

Research has shown that delaying harvest results in both protein and digestibility losses in the hay, says Allen Turner, County Extension agent.

In southern perennial grasses, digestibility drops about 0.1 to 0.2 percentage units per day between four and eight weeks of age.

Coastal bermudagrass has been shown to lose 25 percent of its crude protein by delaying cutting from the fourth week to the sixth week of growth. A further delay to the eighth week reduces crude protein by an additional 8 percent.

While producers can increase their total volume or number of bales of hay by delaying harvest until the sixth week of growth, hay quality will suffer, points out the agent.

With bermudagrasses, there is little value in delaying harvest past six weeks of growth because dry matter yields do not increase after six weeks. Considering the loss of protein and digestibility, a maximum amount of quality hay can be produced by harvesting every four to five weeks.

While many factors affect maximum yield of digestible nutrients per acre, the most important factor is the stage of plant maturity at harvest, explains Turner. All forage plants, grasses and legumes, become lower in protein, digestibility and acceptability to livestock as they progress from the vegetative stage to the reproductive stage of growth.

Cutting and baling hay while grass is in the vegetative stage preserves the hay's feed value while harvest delays result in feed value losses, he says.

The United States is the world's largest producer of oats but only about five per cent of the crop goes for human consumption.

Blossom-end rot common in tomatoes

It's virtually impossible to grow a crop of tomatoes without having to deal with blossom-end rot.

Blossom-end rot, which also affects a few other crops such as peppers and watermelons, is associated with a deficiency of calcium as well as excessive water loss, says

Allen Turner, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Although blossom-end rot may occur anywhere on the fruit, it generally appears at the blossom end or bottom. It can occur at almost anytime during the development of the fruit.

The Fromage Hour—Summer Cookout

The next time you have a patio party or cookout, try Roquefort butter on charcoal-grilled steak and add a real gourmet touch. Roquefort cheese has been considered superb fare for centuries and owes its unique character to the fact that it is made solely from sheep's milk and ripens in special limestone caves in southern France. While it often turns up after the main course or as dessert, Roquefort also lends superlative flavor to any number of cooked dishes. This recipe is simple—cheese and butter are joined by garlic, lemon juice, chopped chives, mashed until velvety and then chilled. When ready to serve, the chilled mixture is spooned directly onto the sizzling steak or—for a rosette effect—pressed through a pastry bag fitted with a star tip. As the perfect accompaniment, offer a glass of Châteaufort-du-Pape or Côtes du Rhône—both full-bodied French red wines from the Rhône Valley—and you will have given a sophisticated flavor to an afternoon or evening of summer fun.

ROQUEFORT BUTTER FOR INDIVIDUAL STEAKS (Makes about 6 servings)

- 6 shell or strip steaks, each 1-1/2 inches thick
- 1/2 cup finely crumbled Roquefort
- Salt, crushed garlic and pepper
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 3 T. chopped chives
- 1/2 cup butter, at room temperature

Sprinkle steaks with salt, garlic and pepper. Broil or grill steaks to desired degree of doneness. Combine remaining ingredients and mash until smooth and creamy. If butter is lumpy, press it through a coarse sieve. Chill butter mixture until it is firm but not hard. Place butter in a decorating bag with a large star tip and press rosettes of Roquefort Butter onto hot steak.

Blossom-end rot generally begins with the appearance of small, irregularly shaped, water soaked areas near the base of the fruit. The area darkens and eventually can become leathery, wrinkled and deteriorated.

Visual symptoms associated with blossom-end rot are often the result of a condition which may have occurred several days or even weeks prior to the symptoms, he says. The disorder must be prevented, not just treated after it appears.

Blossom-end rot often occurs when plants suffer from water stress — either too much or not enough — or when drying winds increase water loss from the foliage.

Whenever these conditions occur, plants will lose more water to the atmosphere than they can absorb through the roots. This results in water loss from the plant and the fruit, resulting in a slight drying of the blossom end or the bottom of the fruit. As these cells die, a blackened area appears.

Maintaining uniform soil moisture will help prevent blossom-end rot, notes the agent. Well-drained soil and a good mulching program will help keep the soil from becoming water-logged while reducing loss of water available to the plant during dry periods. A uniform and consistent watering program is also important.

It's best to remove fruit damaged by blossom-end rot so top quality fruit can develop, adds Turner.

He Felt Better, So He Didn't Take All His Medicine. Then He Felt Worse.

It's a familiar story. He started taking the antibiotic the doctor prescribed and within a day or two most of his symptoms were gone. He felt so much better that he decided not to finish the bottle.

"What's the point of taking it all?" he asked himself. "I'm over the worst. Besides, I don't like taking medicine all that much."

But the symptoms came back. With a vengeance.

68th Legislative session significant in changing family law

"The 68th Legislature was probably the most significant session for substantive changes in family law since 1975 if not since 1973, when the new Family Code was first enacted," said UT-Austin School of Law Professor Jack Sampson, recently. As of Sunday (June 19) midnight, when the deadline for gubernatorial vetoes passed, more than a dozen bills had become law dealing with parental kidnapping, child support and divorce-related issues.

Sampson said different bills have different effective dates, and that some are already in force, but that others will not take effect until August 29, 1983.

Provisions effective immediately grant non-custodial parents full access to school, medical and dental records, extend the statute of limitations on proving paternity to the child's 20th birthday, and allow County Commissioners to establish alternative dispute, or mediation, centers funded by local filing fee increases.

A major bill signed into law by Governor White recently permits those obligated to pay child support to assign voluntarily a portion of their wages to cover the payment and allows voters to decide in November whether courts should be allowed to require wage assignments in cases of repeated noncompliance.

This bill also allows courts to use standards and guidelines to set child support payment levels and requires that visitation, if granted, be specific and enforceable unless some reason is shown that specified visitation would be harmful to the children.

Together, says Austin Judge Harley Clark, the wage assignment and visitation sections of this statute "are probably this session's most important and substantial changes in family law."

Austin attorney John Paul Jones, who was the Travis County Domestic Relations Office lawyer for several years, says that unenforceable visitation has been a common problem in divorce decrees for years. "The Austin chapter of Texas Fathers for Equal Rights examined all the divorce decrees in Travis during 1981 and found that more than two-thirds contained visitation clauses which simply could not be enforced, and Travis decrees are, if anything, generally more carefully drafted than those of many other counties," Jones explains. "The phrase 'reasonable visitation' is legally meaningless." In testimony provided at a House Judiciary Committee hearing in support of specified visitation, Jones stated that doing away with "reasonable" and other vague language might eliminate as much as 30 percent of all child support noncompliance. "What happens all too often," he said, "is that a parent with vague visitation can be denied all access to the child and retaliates by withholding child support payments."

Professor Sampson expresses concern that some attorneys will be slow in learning about many of these legislative changes. "A communications gap is always present," he remarked, "often as much as six months. On the firing line, it is difficult to get the text of the new laws."

Sampson, who edits the newsletter of the Family Section of the State Bar, says that attorneys who take the newsletter will receive full details of the new bills in mid-July, but that others may not learn of the requirement that visitation be specific for quite some time.

"After last Friday, an order for non-specific visitation without a showing of good cause should be grounds for a new trial, and the original order could well be reversed," he added.

Other legislative changes going into effect on August 29, according to Sampson, added to the scope of the 68th session's family law reform.

Bills going into effect on that date will allow grandparents to seek improved visitation with their grandchildren, give appeals involving parental terminations precedence over other civil cases, and provide attorneys for indigent parents and stricter standards of proof when a state agency seeks to terminate parents' rights.

Three other pieces of legislation will permit counties to create new domestic relations offices or transform any existing child support collection agency to allow it to enforce both child support and visitation orders.

Until the Legislature acted, only one county — Travis — had a domestic relations office enforcing both types of orders, and Travis County claimed the highest child support compliance rate in the state. Two major counties, Bexar and Harris, sought and received local bills authorizing similar offices, and an additional bill passed enabling any county to set up its own domestic relations programs.

Parental kidnapping was addressed by another bill which will allow a parent whose child has been kidnapped by the other parent to sue for actual costs and monetary damages, and the bill includes repeated denials of visitation in its definition of kidnapping.

Another statute going into effect in August makes Texas a party to the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, a national act which, until this session, only Texas and Massachusetts had failed to sign.

A major bill which began as the State Bar's Family Section clean-up package was amended during the legislative process to include several significant changes. After August 29, new divorce decrees must include a requirement that the parent with custody give notice before moving with the children, allowing the other parent a chance to seek revised visitation schedules and for the court to consider ordering that any increased costs of visitation be shared.

Other sections of this bill recognize problems faced by parents who actually are raising the children even though they do not have legal custody and alter provisions of the Family Code dealing with procedures for modifying custody.

"I am extremely impressed by the awareness of the legislature, especially of the House and Senate committees directly involved with family law," says divorce-reform activist Michael Diehl of Austin. Diehl, who represented Texas Fathers for Equal Rights and the Dallas/Fort Worth Mothers Without Custody organization during the session, says the changes "reflect an extremely fair and balanced view in that efforts to improve the situation of parents with custody were balanced by attention to the concerns of noncustodial parents."

"The ultimate beneficiaries of these changes," adds Diehl, "will be the 80,000 Texas children whose parents divorce each year. The legislature has acted to help make certain they receive child support and to protect their relationship with the parent who doesn't get custody."

Austin attorney Carol Cunningham says, "With all these changes in family law, statutory law is starting to reflect social change and the problems that actually exist in divorce, but it's important that attorneys out in the field become aware of the new statutes in order to represent their clients effectively."

on their radar screens you would think that someone closer to home, like a state agency, could at least find out how to mail something to us. Maybe they also forgot that they had even thought about sending radio active rags to our neck of the woods. And I just put new batteries in the old Geiger counter.

Well, on to another soap-box. It was good to see so many folks in town Saturday for the sidewalk sale, the parade, and all. It kind of reminded me of a neighboring community many years ago, you know, when everybody came to town on Saturday.

Other towns and cities have regular promotions (media term for sale or something to bring more people into a particular area) and I was beginning to wonder if we would ever see something like it again. That was a good idea — thanks to the merchants and those who got the idea going.

Now, for an idea for a weekend joy-ride — we did last weekend and the trip, although hot, was very enjoyable. It is simple, just take U.S. 83 to Junction and then follow U.S. 377 from there to Rock Springs. Several miles southwest of Rock Springs take a left and travel Ranch Road 674 to Brackettville.

Just head south out of Junction on 377 to Rock Springs. The highway gets narrow and there are a bunch of sharp turns on it, but you really don't have to slow down for the turns because you have slowed to just look at some of Texas Hill Country, and it is beautiful. You follow the Llano River and a number of times you cross low-water crossings where the clear water of the river bubbles along.

After reaching Rock Springs your highway will intersect with Ranch Road 647. Here you have to watch close, there is only one sign and it says "Brackettville" and gives the approximate mileage.

For the first few miles you think you have wandered off into some forgotten desert, and about the time you think of turning back you drop off into the valley of the West Nueces River. Following this river there are some things that you just have to stop and look at for a while.

The paved road, in places, seems to barely hang on the side of a mountain, the river is hundreds of feet below. Here too, the road is narrow and the turns are acute, but the trip is worth while — enough so that crashing into some apparent orphan calf, with no owner, did not even spoil the ride.

By the way, the calf was just south of town and just ran right into the front of the car. We mourned for the car, but the poor calf must not have had anyone who cared for it — no one claimed it. Now wait a minute...

Your right to representation in SS matters

Many people sometimes feel a need to have someone represent them in their business with Social Security. Usually this is when they appeal a claim or have some difficulty in prosecuting a claim.

You have the right to be represented by the person of your choice in your dealings with the Social Security Office. However, there are a number of rules that have evolved governing the use of such representatives. Essentially, these rules are designed to protect your interests and your social security benefits. And, in any case, you should know what your representative can and cannot do.

Your representative may or may not be an attorney. You cannot appoint as your representative a person who has been suspended by us from representing social security claimants. You cannot name a corporation or organization to represent you.

The appointment of your representative must be in writing.

If the person is not an attorney, he or she must state in writing his or her name and indicate that he or she is accepting the appointment.

In most cases, your representative cannot sign an application for you. Your representative cannot charge or collect any fee from you without first getting written permission from social security to do so. The fee may be requested and authorized even though your claim is denied. If the representative is an attorney, we can pay him or her from money in back benefits due you. If your claim is denied and the representative is not an attorney or the claim is for Supplemental Security Income (SSI), you must pay him or her directly, but only after we have approved the fee in writing.

Only the Social Security Administration or a court of law can decide the fee your representative can charge. Any contract you may have signed is not binding on you. Both you and your representative will get a notice of our decision on the fee. If the fee is decided by a Court, the law provides that it cannot exceed 25 percent of past due benefits.

We will treat your representative as we would you; he or she will receive the fullest cooperation in representing your interests at every stage of the prosecution of your claim.

If you have any questions about how to get adequate representation, call the San Angelo Social Security Office at 949-4608. They are located at 2214 Sherwood Way. In addition, we have a booklet that you may wish to receive entitled Social Security and Your Right to Representation. We'll be glad to send it to you.

Majority of Texans think guns should be registered

Seven out of ten (71%) of the Texans responding to the latest Texas Crime Poll believe that at least one type of gun should be registered.

Almost half (46%) said that all guns should be registered, and two of every three (67%) said they have at least one type of gun in their home.

The opinions were collected from 1,442 Texans selected at random, representing 197 of the state 254 counties. The poll was conducted by the Survey Research Program at Sam Houston State University's Criminal Justice Center.

One in four (25%) of those responding said no guns should be registered, while 4% offered no response.

Respondents were also asked their opinion of several handgun control issues.

More than 9 of 10 (93%) favor a mandatory prison sentence for all persons using a handgun to commit a crime. Seven of 8 (87%) favor a crackdown on illegal handgun sales and that same percentage favors institution of a waiting period before a handgun can be purchased to allow for a criminal records check.

Eight in 10 (81%) would strengthen the rules for becoming a commercial handgun dealer and more than 3 of 4 (77%) would ban the manufacture and sale of small, cheap and low-quality handguns — the so-called "Saturday night specials."

Seven in 10 (71%) would require a license for all persons other than law enforcement agents carrying a handgun outside their homes or places of business, and 2 of 3 (66%) favor a mandatory fine for such unlicensed handgun carriers.

There was little support for proposals to use public funds to buy back and destroy existing handguns, on either a voluntary or mandatory basis. Two of three (66%) would oppose such a program on a voluntary basis and 7 of 10 (69%) would oppose it if mandatory.

Dr. Raymond H.C. Teske, Jr. director of the Survey Research Program, said that Texans are holding fairly steady in their gun registration opinions, as reflected in past Texas Crime Polls.

When the question was asked previously in 1978, 44% said all guns should be registered. That figure grew to 46% in 1980 and held there when the question for the latest survey was asked in 1982.

Of the 67% who said they keep a gun in their home, 37% said they do so for both sporting purposes and protection, while 16% said sporting purposes only, and 13% said protection only. Thirteen respondents, or 1%, listed other reasons for owning guns, such as collecting, or investment.

The number of homeowners without guns seems to have increased, despite increases in victimization, fear of crime, and installation of protective devices such as door bolts.

Almost three in 10 (29%) said in the recent survey that they do not own a gun, as opposed to 27% in 1980 and 24% in 1978.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports 56 percent of all women of working age hold jobs.
