Ballinger Council accepts bids on airport

The Ballinger City Council, meeting in regular session Monday, accepted bids for paving and striping of the runway extension at Bruce field, the Ballinger airport, and approved a contract with an Odessa firm for engineering services for the new medium intensity lighting for the airport.

Both contracts are being jointly funded by the Texas Aeronautic Commission and the City of Ballinger. The state agency will pay 75 percent of the cost and Ballinger will pay 25 percent.

The bid of $49,985.51, submitted by West Texas Construction Company of Abilene was the bid selected for the surface work on the runway.

program.

The council awarded the bid for an automated refuse collection system to the Emco Company of Plainview. Included in the bid was a 1984 Ford truck with lift equipment for $58,579.50, adapting an existing city truck to handle the containers at a cost of $12,108 and 349 3-yard steel dumpsters at a cost of $75,035.

Wait a minute...

By Kerry Craig

You remember that interesting little tidbit from several months ago about one of those so-called convenience store-gas stop combinations in the big-acting city to the north?

You know what I'm talking about. The one that charges two-bits for barely enough air to fill your tire. Well I found something new.

Before we get to this new discovery, there is something that is a bit puzzling—what do those poor folks that work in a convenience store-gas stop do? How they make it through their shift is surely amazing.

Think about it. Those little money-makers have everything—well just about. Self-service fuel, oil, water, air (you gotta' pay in some places), food, drinks, games to play, you name it. But that poor worker.

With a few exceptions these bright spots in the night do not have a restroom, or if they do, it is out of order (broken).

It is difficult for this country boy to understand having someone work in one of these for the duration of their shift with out the convenience of the aforementioned facility.

Maybe that is why a lot of those folks don't seem to smile much.

Now to the new discovery. In that same blooming metropolis there is a brand new tourist court. They call them inns or motels anymore. Well anyway, when you rent one of their rooms you also get a couple of tokens.

Now these little goodies make the ice machine do its thing—barely.

County gets check for mixed drinks

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday sent checks totaling $11 million to 221 counties and 419 cities as their share of the state's 10 percent mixed drink tax collected during the first quarter of 1984.

Bullock said the state collected a total of $39.2 million in taxes on the sale of mixed drinks during the quarter, up 8.3 percent over the same period in 1983.

Runnels County is to receive a check in the amount of $456.39. The amount reflects the county's 15 percent share of $3,042.62 collected for mixed drinks sold in the county.

Texas cities and counties each receive a 15 percent rebate on the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks in Texas.

In Coke County, the sale of mixed drinks generated a check in the amount of $327.12, while in Coleman County the City of Coleman will receive $755.19 and the county will get $771.06. Concho County will get $37.12, all of that goes to Eden.

Taylor County will get a total of $45,024.25. Of that amount, $44,064.20 goes to Abilene, $225.49 to Buffalo Gap, and $263.59 to Merkel.

The state's general revenue fund will receive the balance—$28 million—of the tax money collected.

The mixed drink tax is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and city-county rebates are sent out quarterly by the Comptroller's Office.

Windmills Of The West

For the Texan, few things reminiscent of the good old days on the farm or ranch can stir up nostalgia like the windmill. From the old wooden type to the gleaming all-metal jobs, the windmill was a vital part of country life—a member of the family.

Childhood memories recall blistering summer days and bone-chilling dips in the stock tank that was kept brimming full by a nearby, creaking Old Faithful. The rhythmic creak-clank of the wheels and logs were music to lonely ears and sounds of impending disaster to the farm mechanic.

The history of the windmill goes back to sixth century Persia, some over-worked soul invented a device to capture the power of the wind and help him in his work.

Thirteen centuries later as the pioneers spread out across the western half of our country, they settled first along year-round water supplies—rivers, streams and lakes. But there were just so many locations available. A few late comers were able to survive with shallow hand-dug wells. What these hearty souls needed to enable them to move out into the water—poor plains and prairies was a device to bring plentiful underground water to the surface.

Windmills in the early years of our history were based on the wooden-armed, cloth sleeved giants of Europe. These machines required constant attention and they had to be hand-built in a permanent location. This windmill was impractical for the settlers of the West.

It took another tool of western expansion, the railroad, to bring us our American style windmill. As the railroad prepared to move across the plains, water was needed to supply the steam locomotives. In 1854 John Burnham, known as the "pump doctor" of Ellington, Conn., asked Daniel Halladay, a local steam mechanic, to design a windmill. Halladay delivered, and the American style windmill was born.

Halladay's portable, weather-resistant windmill was sold to the union Pacific Railroad. Armed with a reliable, easy-to-transport windmill, the pioneers marched out on to the plains. Water stops, consisting of a windmill and large overhead storage tank, were established about 30 miles apart. Sometimes towns sprang up around these stops and they became known as "Tank Towns." Sod houses and windmills dotted the landscape.

But the evolution of the windmill had just begun. Competition was fierce. In the 1870's, Halladay Standard vied with the Wheeler Eclipse for the railroad trade.

The Eclipse Windmill, with its huge multi-slatted rosette wheel was introduced in 1869. Leonard H. Wheeler had developed his design for the Eclipse while serving as a missionary to the Ojibway Indians in Wisconsin, and was issued his patent in 1867. In 1870 the first Eclipse Windmill was installed to supply water for a railroad. By 1873 approximately 2,000 Eclipse Windmills had been sold.

These machines proved to be so dependable that ranchers in Texas were reluctant to change over to the all-steel windmills that were introduced in the late 1880's. But steel finally won and the use of the Eclipse wooden windmills went into decline. Most of the remaining ones are found in museums or in private collections.

Innovations in the windmill came about. The solid wheel was patented in the late 1860's. In 1915 the self-oiling windmill was introduced. By this time many of the brands we know today were being produced. Such names as aeromotor, monitor, dempster, axtell, Star and Samson were blowing in the wind. Even Sears and Roebuck was selling windmills under the name of David Bradley. The aeromotor was the most popular windmill in Texas.

Windmill at Nancy Parker's cabin near Content

Thomas O. Perry, a pioneer in aero-dynamics produced the first truly scientific windmill: It featured galvanized metal parts for weather resistance, curved blades set at a pitch to derive the most power from the wind, was back-gearred for smooth operation and greater power, and was promoted for ease of erection and maintenance.

Another revolutionary change came in 1915 when the aeromotor company introduced the self-oiling style windmill. The parts operated in a bath of oil similar to the crank case of an automobile. The windmill needed only an annual oil change. By the early years of the 20th century, aeromotor was selling 50% of all windmills sold in the United States. They still manufacture windmills and replacement parts.

The golden age of windmills peaked in 1929. That year about 100 companies turned out $10 million in windmill sales. With rural electrification in the 1930's the windmill declined.

But the romance of these wind machines has not waned. Even in today's age of technology, the idea of a device as simple and as non-polluting as the windmill reminds us of the life-giving powers of nature.

The artist: Dan Brown of Fort Worth has prepared an exhibit of paintings as a tribute to those magnificent wind machines, to the men who built them and to those who used them. The selected seven paintings represent the major windmills that pioneered the Southwest. Models of all seven were found within 30 miles of Fort Worth.

Block home information released

A Block Home is a refuge for a child in trouble, whether it be from dogs, bullies, an alarming stranger, sudden illness or accident, extremely bad weather, etc.

The children have been instructed not to use Block Homes for unimportant things (like toilet-needs, refreshments, phone calls or minor injuries or squabbles, or baby sitting).

Display your sign as much as possible during all hours of the day. Remove your Block Home sign when you are not at home so as not to confuse the child needing help.

Do not administer first aid except to stop dangerous bleeding or to restore breathing. Do not transport a child in your car. Do not give food or drink as a soother; the child may be allergic or diabetic. You are not expected to break up minor fights, but you may protect a child from bullying.

In case of a serious accident, Don't Move The Child. Call the child's parents or police for an ambulance (Block Home Parents are cautioned about calling a private ambulance, as they can be held responsible for payment should the child's parents refuse). If the injury is not serious, call the parents. Should the child not know his phone number or be unable to give it, call the school.

In case of a dog bite, call the Animal Shelter or City Pound. It helps if you can capture the dog and have him tied down. In case of a stray dog is a nuisance to the neighborhood, call the Pound or Shelter to have it picked up.

If you suspect the presence of a molester in the vicinity, call the police. Report any questionable matter or incident to the police and the school, even if no action was taken by you, so that all may be alerted to possible trouble. Know how to describe the person. Height, weight, clothing and other identification marked. When a car is involved, write down the license number and color or before phoning so as not to confuse the number with the digits on the telephone dial.

Block Homes have no legal status whatever, except as of any private citizen. A report must be made to the school within 24 hours from the time a child is helped or any action taken.

Watch for grass tetany in cattle

Runnels County cattlemen need to be aware of a condition called grass tetany that might afflict their herds this time of the year.

Grass tetany is a metabolic disturbance resulting from low blood magnesium in the animal, explains Allen Turner, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The problem occurs frequently in adult cows, especially those nursing calves and grazing lush pastures. However, it can occur in cattle of any age or condition and often develops in those grazing wheat or other cereal crops. Cattle in poor condition and exposed to cool, wet, cloudy weather also are subject to grass tetany.

Grass tetany appears more rapidly in lactating animals and more slowly in poorly nourished cattle, says Turner. It results mainly from low levels of magnesium and high levels of potassium and nitrogen in grass and wheat pastures. Thus magnesium absorption is limited and the blood serum magnesium level drops.

In serious cases of grass tetany, animals start to tremble, stagger or run in a frenzied manner. Those that fall and show convulsions usually die rapidly. Animals less affected may be nervous, walk with a stiff gait, urinate frequently, and be sensitive to touch and sound. This may continue for several days before progressing to the convulsive stage leading to death.

The agent recommends calling a veterinarian as soon as possible once symptoms develop since use of intravenous magnesium and calcium compounds can save

Fruit growers program set

A special short course and field day for Texas fruit growers will be held at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Stephenville, April 13-14.

The short course on April 13 will be mainly for new growers and will begin at 7 p.m.

The field day and tour of orchards at the A&M animals. Preventive measures can help avoid cattle losses from grass tetany. Feeding a free-choice mineral mix of 25 pounds each of tract mineralized mixing salt, cottonseed meal, dicalcium phosphate and magnesium oxide has been effective in preventing grass tetany. Other mixes also are available, but the key is for each animal to get at least 1 to 2 ounces of magnesium daily.

Since magnesium oxide is unpalatable, he suggests feed mixtures that increase palatability. Start lactating or advanced pregnancy cows (those most susceptible to grass tetany) on a feeding program 30 days before grass tetany is normally observed.

Once the problem appears, crash feeding programs usually are not adequate to prevent losses. Feeds that supply energy, such as corn or milo, as well as legume hay can help prevent borderline grass tetany cases.

Center the following day will begin with registration at 7:30 a.m.

Short course participants will receive information on many of the "basics" of fruit production, such as orchard planning, variety selection, economics of production, direct marketing and overall orchard management, including weed, disease and insect control.

Discussions during the field day will deal with apple production, pruning and training fruit trees, managing high density orchards, trickle irrigation, water requirements of fruit trees, storing and marketing fruit, calibrating spray equipment and controlling weeds, insects and diseases.

Featured speaker will be Dr. Bill Lipe with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, who will discuss "The Developing Grape and Wine Industry in Texas."

A registration fee of $10 will be charged for the two activities.

The field day and short course is being sponsored by the Texas Fruit Growers Association in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station of the Texas A&M University System.

Local PTA to sponsor block homes program

The Winters Parent-Teacher Association has voted to sponsor a Block Home program similar to the one in Abilene and are being assisted in the endeavor by the Abilene PTA.

The program calls for one home on each block to be designated as a Block Home, with a sign in a front window to identify it. Children passing by may go to the Block Home for help if they are being harassed, chased, or threatened in some way. However, they should not go to the Block Home for help in settling arguments, with other children; their parents should take care of those problems.

Anyone interested in participating in the Block Home program should call 754-5064 for full details. After-school help is needed, but the project will probably be a year-round one. Information will be sent home with the students from each school, and a meeting of prospective Block Home families will be held in the near future.

Weather affects disease causing organisms

Although weather is not directly responsible for plant diseases, it does influence disease-causing organisms and may increase or decrease certain diseases.

The fungi, bacteria, nematodes and viruses that cause plant diseases are influenced by weather conditions, says Allen Turner, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Knowing what conditions favor disease-causing organisms will make it easier to know when to expect plant diseases and how to control them, he points out.

By carefully watching for plant symptoms, it's possible to determine whether these microscopic organisms are present in the plant. However, early recognition is necessary to prevent serious disease attacks. Once a disease problem is progressed, little can be done to control it.

Some disease organisms cause more plant damage in cold soils than in warm ones, Turner notes. "Damping-off" is a particular problem in beans, peas, okra and cotton in cold soils. Waiting until the soil is approximately 70 degrees F. will help prevent this condition.

Other organisms require hot conditions to grow and thrive. Charcoal rot and cotton root rot can completely kill healthy plants by damaging stems and root systems.

Becoming familiar with crop diseases and the conditions under which they occur will allow one to plan control strategies, says the agent.

Weather is not the only factor necessary for disease to occur. The pathogen or disease-causing agent must be present along with a susceptible host plant. If any of these factors are altered, control is possible. Disease-resistant varieties are one way to combat disease problems.

Knowing crop diseases, conditions necessary for their growth, and preventive measures can lead to a successful crop yield without major losses, he notes.

McMurry offers small business course

A three-part course on small business management will begin April 25 at McMurry College in Abilene.

The course, part of the college's new Continuing Education Program, will be taught from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Ryan Fine Arts Center on April 25 and 30 and May 2.

K.O. Long, an Abilene attorney and businessman, will be the instructor. The tuition is $40 and persons may register for the course by writing to Special Programs, Box 147, McMurry Station, Abilene, Texas 79697, or by calling the special programs office at 915-692-4130, Ext. 375.

The course is designed for persons planning to enter the small business world and for those who already own a small business. In the three three-hour sessions, Long will cover everything from small business philosophy to legal considerations and human relations.

In the initial class meeting, he will discuss the planning of a small business. Whether one purchases an existing business or starts from scratch, these considerations will be key factors, according to Long.

In the second class meeting, the topics of taxation, research, location, financing, personnel, insurance, and franchising will be discussed.

Once the business is off the ground, the owner or manager has new points to consider. In the final class meeting, Long will discuss accounting, planning for growth, marketing, purchasing, inventory, and human relations.

Bluebonnet cultivation

Bluebonnets, now displaying their beauty over much of Texas, can be cultivated in home landscapes with a little care and patience, says a landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Once bluebonnets mature, they should be left growing until seeds drop to the ground. Seeds will germinate in the fall as moisture becomes available, but the plants will make little growth until spring. Under cultivated conditions, bluebonnet seeds should be scarified to increase the germination percent since the seed coat is hard and will absorb little moisture without scarification. Plant seed in late summer or early fall and cover with no more than one-half inch of soil.

Singing His glory

The combined choirs of the First United Methodist Church and First Baptist Church rehearse the very inspiring cantata "Kneel at the Cross" Sunday night shortly before their performance at First Baptist. David Speegle of First Baptist conducted the cantata, with Susan Conner as pianist and Carolyn Slaughter as organist.

Democrats set precinct conventions

The names of Democratic Presidential contenders will not appear on the May 5, 1984 Texas Democratic Primary ballot. Texas Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle today reminded all Texas Democrats that in order to express their preference for the presidential candidate of their choice they must attend their precinct convention on Saturday, May 5, 1984.

However Slagle urged all Democrats to check with their Precinct Chair or Election Judge when they vote on May 5 to confirm the exact location of their precinct convention.

"Precinct conventions will convene promptly at 7:15 p.m. on May 5," Slagle said.

He added that the precinct convention will be called to order by the Democratic Precinct Chair. If the Chair is absent, however, any qualified Democratic voter may convene the convention.

In order to attend the precinct convention a voter must have voted in the Democratic Primary, May 5 either in person or absentee. At the time of voting the individual's blue voter registration card is marked "voted democratic primary." This stamped voter registration card or other evidence of having voted is the "ticket" for admission to the Democratic Party precinct convention.

Slagle stated that the convention method of expressing presidential preference and electing delegates to the National Convention has been the traditional method of choosing the Party's delegates in Texas. Only in 1976 and 1980, had the Party deviated from tradition using in 1976 a direct election of delegates and in 1980 a non-binding preference election combined with the precinct convention system.

Precinct conventions are frequently called caucuses; in other states. "Texas will be crucial in choosing the Democratic presidential nominee in 1984," Slagle said. "I hope to see the best turnout ever at the precinct conventions to ensure that the delegates we elect to the National Convention are truly representative of the choices of the Democrats of Texas," he added.

Precinct Convention attendees will caucus by candidate choice and uncommitted preference to elect their proportionate number of delegates to County and in some urban areas Senate District conventions to be held on May 19, 1984. At the County and Senate District conventions delegates will caucus to elect delegates to the State Convention to be held this year in Houston on June 15 and 16. Delegates at the State Convention will elect 185 Texas delegates and 67 alternates to the National Convention. Fourteen Texas Democratic congressmen and Senator Lloyd Bentsen have already been elected delegates by the House and Senate Democratic caucuses.

"Based on the delegate count for Mondale, Hart and Jackson at this point," Slagle said "our 200 delegates to the National Convention could be a key factor in choosing our Nominee.

The Texas Democratic Party has been holding workshops and seminars across the State since January to educate voters on the delegate selection process. Slagle urged that interested groups contact the State Party office to arrange a workshop in their area. One page summaries of the delegate selection process are available free of charge from the State Party Office in both English and Spanish.

Slagle requested the assistance of the Texas press in publicizing the process through public service announcements to increase voter participation.

If a glass of water were magnified to the size of the earth, the molecules comprising it would be about as big as a large orange.

Medical Notes for Older Citizens

By Sal White

Antacids and the Elderly
Antacids are commonly used to neutralize acid content in the stomach. Maalox® contains some magnesium. In folks over 50, there may be problems eliminating this chemical via the kidneys.

If magnesium accumulates, an unsteady gait could result, along with other symptoms.

Maalox® and other antacids also contain aluminum. Aluminum may blend with phosphate in the intestine, limiting phosphate absorption.

Chronic use of antacids containing aluminum can contribute to depletion of phosphate in the bones, causing dissolving bone problems. Weak bones are more apt to fracture when a person falls.

Liberal diabetic diets?

Many overweight patients with mild diabetes just need to lose body fat.

With mild diabetes, if the person does not require insulin or pills, and is not overweight, the doctor might be less concerned about diet than if those factors were otherwise.

Also, if a diabetic does consume some sweets at the end of a meal, it will not always seriously affect the blood glucose level, if he has a moderate amount of calories and a balanced meal.

Sweets, if eaten at all, must be eaten with a meal and not on an empty stomach. The insulin dependent diabetic must follow a regular diet plan.

Parkinson's Disease: Current Drug Therapy

Usually, the first drugs turned to are those anticholinergics. They include: Artane, Cogentin, Kaminon, Akineton, and Pagitan. If they do not help, the next step is to add L Dopa-type drugs, which include Larodopa and Sinemet.

If the patient is not getting better with these, of if they are losing their effect, then the doctor may turn to Parlodel. The generic name is Bromocriptine.

Telltale Signs of a Stroke

TIA's (Transient Ischemic Attacks, or Mini-Stroke)
*Every year, half a million Americans suffer strokes.
*Catching warning signs can reduce or prevent up to 50% of strokes.
*About 30% who have TIA's will have strokes within five years.
*Beyond that time frame, 80% of those who have strokes have experienced TIA's before.
*Doctors can pinpoint where circulation problems exist by x-ray scans. Neurologists or vascular surgeons should be the physicians to see after having a TIA.
*Those more likely to have a stroke are those with some of these factors: high blood pressure, diabetes, heart disease, over age 60, recurring TIA's, stress, inactivity, smoking, obesity, taking oral contraceptives past

Youth plan Fly Day

The youth of St. John's Lutheran Church will sponsor a Fly Day on April 21st. It will be held at the Winters Airport beginning at 1:00. Family caregivers for elderly Caring for elderly parents and other relatives may be the next big family issue to confront our society, says aging specialist Dr. Judith Warren. The elderly most affected by illness—those 75 and over—have grown by nearly 40% in the last ten years, says Warren, a home economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

Many of the family caregivers are middle-aged women, who may still have teenage children at home, or "young-old" women about ready to retire. For all family caregivers, adult day care and adult sitter programs in a community can make it possible to age 40, circulation problems.

Treatments include anticoagulants, aspirin in men (preventative), low cholesterol diet, drugs, surgery.

Signs of a TIA are: weakness or immobility of one side of the body (arms/hands/legs, facial muscles). Also possible: swallowing problems, speaking or understanding difficulty, brief spells of blurry vision or partial blindness, sudden headache, temporary loss of balance, and forgetfulness.

Once the blood flow returns to normal, the person's condition usually returns to normal within a few minutes, or within 24 hours. But things are not right, and seeing the right kind of physician should follow.

This 1942 North American SNJ Navy trainer used during World War II and the Korean War will be on static display Saturday afternoon at the Winters Municipal Airport courtesy of the Big Country Squadron of the Confederate Air Force. Merrill constructs ready-built homes

Johnny Merrill, owner of Merrill Trenching Service and local fire chief, has begun a new business, Merrill's Custom and Ready-Built Homes. A demonstrator model of the ready-built homes will be on display on Highway 83, near the Rodeo Arena Road. This beautiful new home is being constructed for Andy and Tina Smith.

Merrill is enthusiastic about the new project, explaining that many young couples would like to buy or build a new home, but cannot afford one. These homes will be reasonably priced, while affording the latest in modern conveniences and energy efficiency.

The houses are built on a pier-and-beam-type foundation to facilitate easy moving. Merrill says that they can be ready to move one in a half day. Solid construction will hinder cracking during moving. The homes are built using 2 x 4 trusses set on 16 inch centers.

The houses are totally electric and well-insulated, making a $500 rebate from WTU possible. The central heat and air units are electric, as are the built-in range and water heater.

The attic insulation has a value of R-30, with R-19 in the floor, and R-17 in the walls. Thermal pane windows stop drafts, as do insulated steel storm doors.

Carpeting covers the floors, with the exception of the kitchen and part of the bathrooms, which will feature Armstrong Solarian® no-wax vinyl.

Paneling gives a warm atmosphere to the spacious living-dining area with wide windows overlooking the wood porch fashioned of 2 x 6 beams.

The ceilings were blown with white acoustical material.

Plenty of closet space is every woman's dream, and the new home has it in abundance. Even the master bath has a large walk-in closet with shelves for storage.

The cheerful kitchen with numerous custom-built cabinets features modern conveniences: electric range with stainless steel vent-a-hood, stainless steel sink, dishwasher, a refrigerator-freezer, and a microwave oven. (Appliances can be included in the price of the home if desired.)

The counter and table-level bar are covered with textured almond leather, an unusually lovely countertop. Fluorescent lights accent the work area.

A long utility room lies off the kitchen. The pantry is in this room, with doors designed somewhat like refrigerator doors—shelves on the inside of the doors can hold canned goods safely. The master bath has two sinks set in a long vanity, which includes a place to sit down. Vinyl flooring was utilized next to the tub/shower, with carpeting in the dressing area.

The exterior walls are solid half-inch plywood from top to bottom, and the siding is wood. Two types of insulation were used in the walls.

Persons interested in these homes may contact Johnny Merrill at 754-4004, or visit the construction site on Highway 83.

Stresses of caring for elderly

Those who care for their elderly parents or relatives at home face many tasks which can be both stressful and difficult, says Dr. Judith Warren, an aging specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economists program. These tasks include compensating for the emotional drain from constant responsibility while avoiding a drain on their own health and strength; balancing responsibilities to all family members; managing feelings toward other family members who do not regularly help; dealing with medical and social services; and performing basic daily living activities for the elderly parent. Some researchers suggest that one way to provide care for the elderly is to provide support services for their family caregivers, says Warren.

Appraise your valuables

You don't have to have a million dollar estate to need the services of a professional appraiser, says home economist Bonnie Piernot. A good appraiser can be as important as a good banker, broker or lawyer if you have insurance damage or loss of settlements, divorce proceedings or an IRS audit, explains Piernot, a specialist with the Texas

A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

Appraisers are not directly licensed or certified by government agencies, so you should investigate before you hire one, she advises. Ask for

Hard at work

Work is underway on Winters new waste water treatment plant just southeast of the city. West Texas Construction Company, of Hamilton, is the contractor on the job. Money for the project came from the sale of bonds and from a federal grant. When completed the new plant will bring the city's sewage treatment facility up to modern standards.

Wait —

Those standard plastic containers that come with the accommodations are not too large and a token in the ice machine will only fill it half-way—and if you don't have a token, it takes a quarter. That's right, one-fourth of one good old American dollar, twenty-five whole cents.

Now I've seen a lot of motels, from the Best Motel (now that's another story itself) to some that are so fancy the help will bring you large buckets of ice, shine your shoes, straighten your tie, etc., but this is the first that charges for a few ice cubes, now wait a minute...

Before you wait, read on. If you happen to have a small child with you—one that requires a baby bed, that establishment will dip deeper into your pocket. For a mere six bucks (plus tax) you get a crib delivered to your quarters—minus blanket. Maybe the blanket costs extra.

Oh, by the way, their hamburgers, with cheese, from room service would have cost another four dollars. And that doesn't count the tip.

The lesson was learned—just travel further around the freeway. You do not have to spend the night at the first place you see. Even if it is just right up the street from a major shopping center.

It must just be a sign of the times, and of age. I can remember getting a cheese burger and coke for a quarter, and the ice was free.

I'm afraid it is already too late to annex that suburb into our city limits.

Hance —

first hand experience how effective he is. Kent Hance best reflects the philosophy of Texans."

Carol Hance, who has visited over one hundred counties in campaigning for her husband, said "We feel very positive about Kent winning the nomination because of the strong support he has throughout the state. The strong organizations he has in nearly all of Texas 254 counties will result in a victory on May 5."

Stenholm and Mrs. Hance pointed to recent editorial endorsements from the Houston Chronicle, Lufkin News, Longview News Journal, Sherman Democrat, Hereford Brand, Port Arthur News, and San Antonio Light as further evidence of Hance's broad, statewide support.

More than forty people representing supporters from Abilene, Stamford, Erickdahl, Cisco, Eastland, Haskell, Colorado City, Roscoe, Lubbock, Baird, Fort Worth, and Breckenridge participated in this week's bus tour. Before the week is over, Congressman Stenholm will have visited over twenty cities during his legislative break from Congress.

Pointing to Hance's record as a state senator and Congressman Stenholm said, "Kent Hance is in tune with the people I represent. He backs a strong defense and knows from personal experiences the problems of farmers and small businessmen."

Stenholm went on to say, "Kent Hance has proven his effectiveness by co-sponsoring the 1981 tax cut bill, the largest personal income tax cut in the nation's history. He is the only candidate running for the Democratic nomination who has passed a major piece of legislation in Congress. We need the strong leadership Kent Hance will bring to the United States Senate."
