By Kerry Craig

As a reporter, or editor, one gets the opportunity to write many things about many different people, places and events. Always, it is written from, hopefully, an objective standpoint.

A bit of difficulty arises when the reporter/editor wears several hats and suddenly finds that the person to be written about is the person doing the writing.

Now try to be objective in that position.

As you know, I also serve as an Emergency Medical Technician with our local ambulance service. About a year ago, a little less, the ambulance service obtained a new vehicle. It was not brand, spanking new but, to us—I mean the ambulance service—it was new.

The service was most proud of the new vehicle and how it allowed the expansion to more and better things in giving care to the sick and injured.

Now among the folks that got to drive that new bus there was the infrequent comment of who would be the first to get a dent or a scratch in it.

It finally happened. One of the drivers just didn't watch the mirror close enough, or something, when backing up to the emergency entrance at the hospital.

C-R-U-N-C-H!

One of the bright and shiny spotlights on the rear of the vehicle went to pieces in a big way. Right before the amazed eyes of the medical director for the service and a majority of those who work on the ambulance.

By now you may be wondering who had the misfortune to be driving. Well, like I said, it is hard to be objective when writing about some things.

Along the same lines, the same service obtained another ambulance during the past year. It also was equipped to help better the service.

The day after the first ambulance got its first scratch (and everyone was chuckling) the second ambulance was on the front row. It was taken on a call and, you guessed it. Another light, got crunched.

There were two different lights, two different ambulances, and two different drivers.

Not to mention names here but, thanks Wanda. They say that imitation is the most sincere form of flattery.

While talking about such things as ambulances, one automatically thinks of doctors and hospitals.

Our hospital, our doctors, the hospital directors, and the ambulance service are to be commended.

Steps are being taken to add equipment at the hospital that will speed up the process of giving emergency treatment to the sick and injured. This equipment will enable the medics in the field to communicate with the doctor, with the hospital and to give the nurses information on what type of patient is being brought to the emergency room.

All the big city hospitals have this equipment and most of the smaller community hospitals like ours do too.

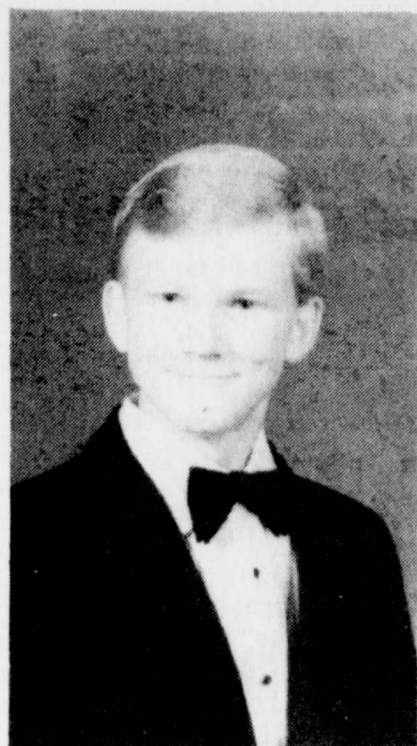

Soon we will be taking the step to upgrade services in this area.

It is something that has been needed for some time. The funds for the purchase of the radio equipment may come from the Hospital Equipment Fund which is built through donations and memorials.

If you would like to help, you can contact the hospital, Winters Funeral Home, Winters State Bank, or North Runnels Emergency Service.

Assault charges filed against Winters man

Three charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon were filed against a Winters man over the week end in connection with two separate, but related, incidents late Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

Charged is Santos Reyna. He was arrested by Winters Police officers, Runnels County Sheriff's officers, and Ballinger Police officers early Sunday morning at a residence in south-east Winters.

Winters Police officers said that in the first incident, a man and his wife were injured in an affray that was thought to have occurred just north of Winters.

The couple, Sonny Santoya and his wife Betty were beaten and struck with what was thought to have been a beer bottle.

Both were taken to North Runnels Hospital where they were treated and released.

In the second incident, several youngsters were in a car which stopped on a street that runs between the Old Crews Road and F.M. 53, just east of Winters and near the residence where the man and two companions were arrested.

When the youngsters stopped, their car was struck with a blast from a shotgun. The pellets struck the driver's door of the car and the driver was struck by four of the pellets, in the face, neck and hand.

Officers said that Reyna was arrested without incident and was later released on bond.

Officers installed for Z. I. Hale Museum

Officers for the new year at the Z. I. Hale Museum were installed at the board meeting on Tuesday by Emily White.

Mrs. White said that we think of the museum as one of our oldest institutions but the zoo pre-dates it; one was established 2800 years ago in Assyria. She presented each officer with a picture and challenged them to develop the attributes of the animal depicted.

Jewel Krantz, incoming president, was directed to show the strength and courage of the lion, King of Beasts. Nina Hale, represented by Dickie Lloyd, was challenged to be powerful like the tiger.

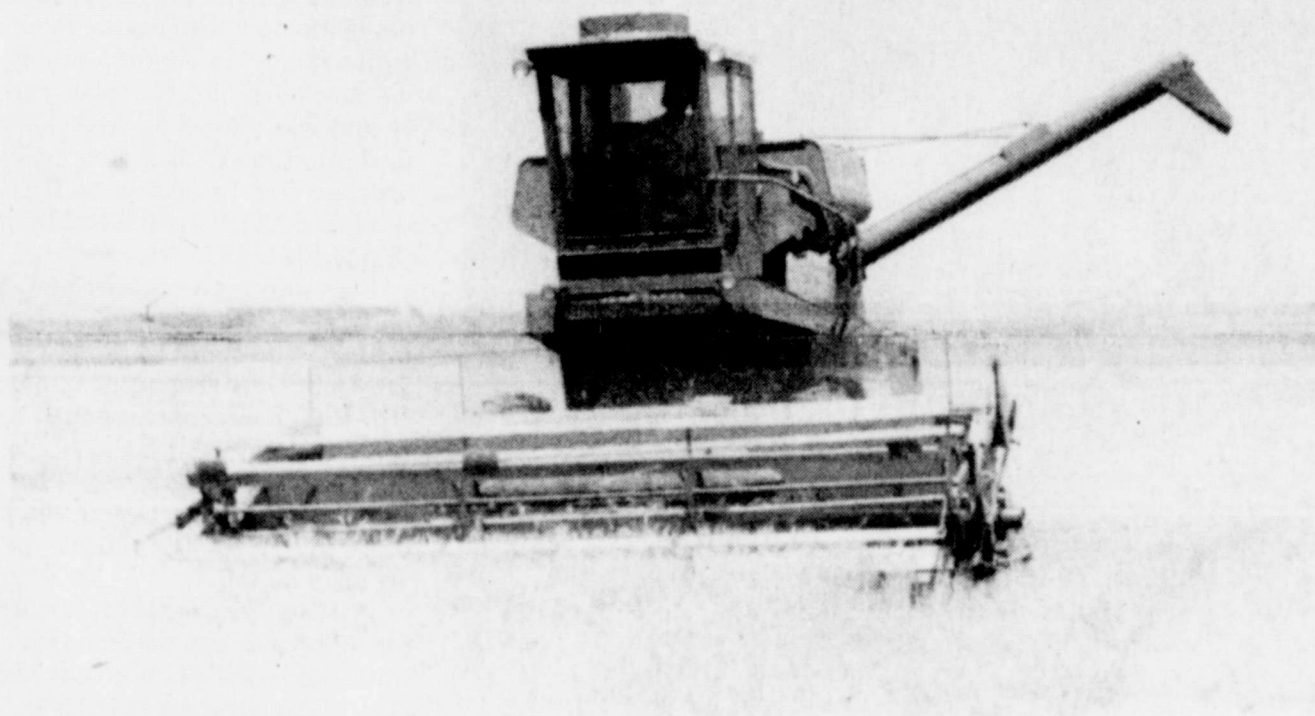

The work of the secretary, Mary Margaret Leathers, was compared to the zebra who gets our attention because of his black and white stripes, and so does the secretary with her records in black and white.

Estella Bredemeyer, as treasurer, was linked to the giraffe whose long neck enabled him to look in all directions. This is her task to protect the funds and be on constant lookout for new resources.

The reporter and historian, Charlie Poe, must be like the pink elephant who never forgets. And the curator must take great strides like the ostrich and be able to see great distances as will Mrs. Leathers in this position.

Roy Young, building coordinator and his assistant, Buford Baldwin, were instructed to be Eager Beavers in using all available resources and people to protect the museum and its contents.

Edna England, outgoing president, expressed her appreciation to the group for their cooperation and support of her work. Miss Bredemeyer reported a balance of $1,976.28 on April 30.

Big Game Hunt Brings Big Thrills

Don Roach of Fort Worth, experienced hunter seeks out the thrills of "Wildlife" at the age of 46, he has set a goal of getting one of each of the 30 North American animals designated as big game before he is 50. So far, he has 18.

He acknowledges the romantic association with the term big game hunter and admits: "We all have an ego."

"But I really don't see myself as different from anyone else with a hobby," he said.

Roach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Roach, is a trophy hunter, one of many in the Fort Worth-Dallas area. He and about 750 others met at a three-day convention of the Dallas Safari Club in March at the Amfac Hotel, Dallas/Ft. Worth Airport.

"I am a trophy hunter," he said, "a term that implies something. It means taking clean shots; shots close enough and open enough to kill an animal, not allowing it to escape injured and suffer a slow death. It implies going after older animals, ones old enough to gain bulk and size."

Roach is quick to point out that hunters are more concerned about propagation and care of animals than many people think. He is a member of several hunting associations including the Dallas Safari Club and Game Conservation International, a group responsible for attempting to breed rhinoceroses in Texas to replenish depleted African herds.

"It is incorrect," he said, "to think that all trophy hunters are concerned about is the kill. For me the most thrilling part is the hunt. You are in some of the most beautiful country and meet some of the finest people in the world."

"You can have a very successful hunt and never fire a shot," Roach said.

When he is not hunting Roach is managing his General Aviation Industries in Fort Worth, that he established after his graduation from the University of Texas in 1964.

The building is like so many others at the nearby business park, all concrete and sheet metal, colors not much different from the ground around it.

Outside there is no hint of the rewards of Artic Circle quests, but inside reveals the soul of the hunter.

The halls are covered with maps of Canada and Alaska. Spots of successful hunts are marked. A red dot marks the spot in the Yukon where Don Roach killed a polar bear.

The Wolverine

Ugly, vicious and hard to kill

A feature article written by Mike Menichini, Star Telegram writer, March 18 describes Roach's office. It is earthstones and leather. Even the screen is photographs of his family and his hunts, from the covers of National Geographic and other magazines on a coffee table, and the blue and white scales of the mounted sailfish.

But it is his trophies of other hunts that dominate. It is because of them that the office is so big, about 30X18 feet.

A Kodiak bear dominates one corner. Two chairs rest on a grizzly bear skin rug. Another rug is made from the pelt of a wolf. There are others: a stuffed black bear, a mountain lion, another wolf and on the coffee table a wolverine.

The wolverine is ugly, vicious and nocturnal, making him very hard to catch. Some hunters have chased him for 20 years without success.

One wall is decorated with the mounted heads of a Canadian moose. A caribou and an elk. Two mountain sheep heads are mounted on the back wall. The skin of a large rattlesnake is mounted beneath them.

Three deer heads are on the wall to the right, on the left wall is a javelina head and that of an antelope.

The polar bear remains in a Canadian taxidermist shop because federal law prohibits bringing the animal into the United States.

Those are not all his trophies, but they are the bulk.

Those who know Don are confident that he will reach his goal of getting one each of the 30 North American animals designated as big game.

Someday the polar bear will be brought home to reside with the other trophies in the concrete building on Midway Road.

Jobs agency catches non-residents for fraud

Two former Texas residents recently discovered that relocating to another state would not protect them from the Texas Employment Commission's fraud detection system.

Former Texas resident James P. McNeil II, was located by the jobs agency in Lewistown, Pennsylvania. McNeil had failed to report employment or earnings for 15 weeks while drawing unemployment benefits. Sentenced to two years in prison, his sentence was later suspended, and McNeil was placed on three years probation in Pennsylvania and ordered to repay the Texas agency the $2,520.00 he had drawn in benefits.

In a similar case, Alaska resident Valerie Hespeth was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in her former home of El Paso on five counts of mail fraud. Hespeth drew unemployment benefits for thirteen weeks while failing to report employment or earnings. She pled guilty and was placed on five years probation in Alaska. The court ordered her to return to TEC the fraudulent benefits totalling $1,644.00.

These and other cases under indictment are part of an ongoing effort between the TEC and the U. S. Department of Labor, Office of Inspector General, to identify, locate and prosecute individuals who are employed and fail to report earnings while drawing unemployment insurance benefits.

In 43 seminars held statewide by TEC, designed to teach businesspersons how to cut the cost of doing business in Texas, over 12,000 Texas employers have been encouraged to cooperate fully with TEC in the investigation of potentially fraudulent claims. It is clearly to the advantage of both workers and employers to aid the agency in fraud detection. According to agency Administrator Bill Grossenbacher, "Our goal is to preserve the integrity of a very good system which provides short term assistance to persons unemployed through no fault of their own. This assistance is no quick fix for an ailing economy,

KOREA: AMERICA'S TRADING PARTNER

Greater job stability and improved job opportunities for many Americans can come about thanks to a delegation of Korean businesspeople visiting the United States during April. They're here to begin an ongoing program of purchasing goods from the United States.

A Korean trade mission could mean more jobs for more Americans.

In the weeks ahead, executives of Korean businesses will travel to companies across the United States to make actual purchases and to begin negotiations on future contracts. Their shopping list includes such products as cotton, coal, grains, machinery and electronics.

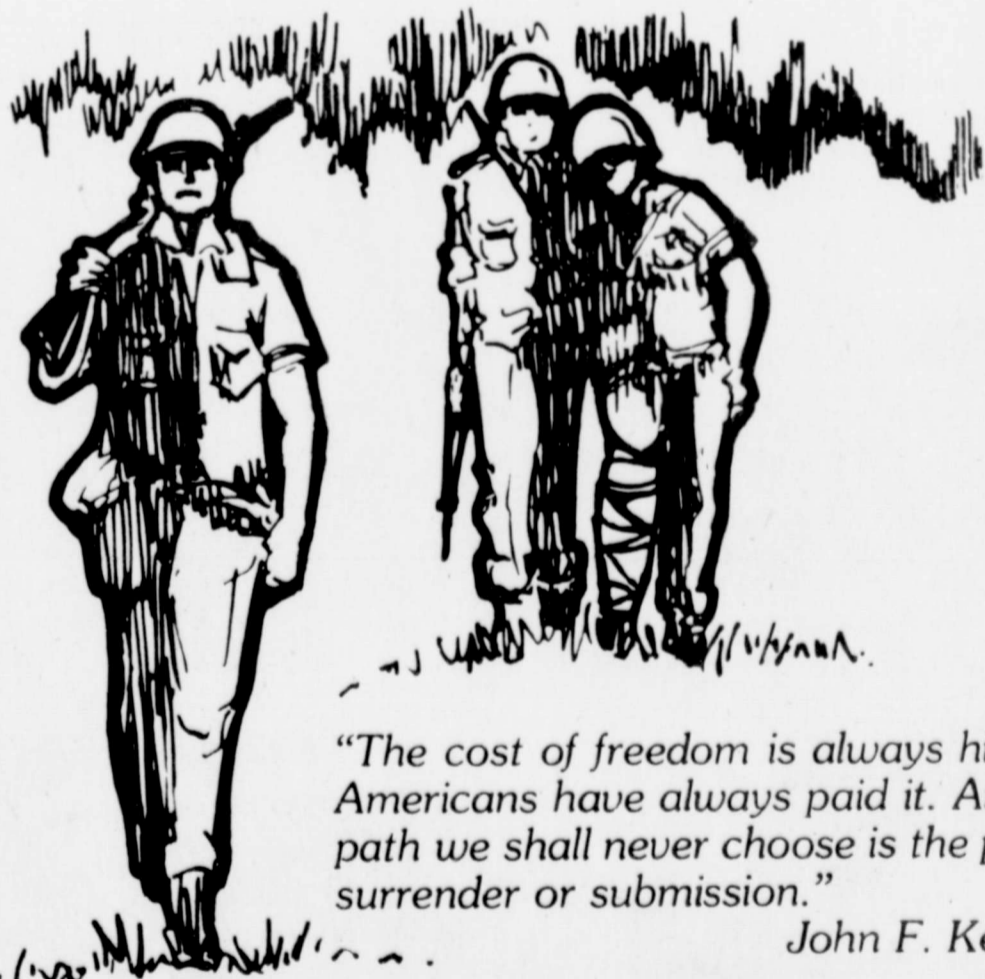

"We are intent on building a positive trade relationship with the United States," said Jin-Ho Kum, Korean Minister of Trade and Industry, adding that successful trade relationships are a two-way street.

In addition to purchasing American goods, the Koreans are expected to explore other avenues for economic cooperation between the two countries—a move that could cement ties as well as provide greater job security for a greater number of Americans.

May is High Blood Pressure Month

High blood pressure, also called hypertension, is the leading cause of death from heart disease in Texas each year, yet it is almost entirely controllable, with medication, diet and life-style changes, according to the Texas Department of Health.

During May, High Blood

Pressure Month in Texas, TDH urges everyone to have their blood pressure checked and take precautions against the most common deadly heart disease.

Anyone can develop a high blood pressure condition in which the heart exerts excessive force in pushing blood through the arteries.

What makes hypertension so deadly is that it is hard to detect by the way a person feels. A person can have dangerously high blood pressure and feel perfectly fit. The only reliable way to know whether a person has the disease is by a simple, painless blood pressure check, performed preferably by a nurse or physician.

To determine blood pressure, an inflatable cuff is wrapped around the upper arm, while a stethoscope is placed in the bend of the elbow. When the cuff is inflated, the pressure increases until the flow resumes. The reading the pressure gauge at the cuff is then recorded. That reading, the systolic pressure, indicates the pressure the heart exerts each time it pumps blood into the large blood vessels.

As the pressure in the cuff continues to decrease, the pumping sound disappears completely. The gauge reading then represents the resting, or diastolic, pressure. The diastolic pressure is the pressure remaining in the artery when the heart is relaxed.

A person's blood pressure is expressed as two numbers, the systolic (pumping) pressure, over the diastolic (relaxed) pressure, such as 118 over 74 or 118/74, which is considered within the normal range.

For accuracy, a person should have his or her blood pressure checked on at least two different occasions, and compare the sets of readings, since an individual's blood pressure may vary slightly from time to time.

For blood pressure to be considered high, the individual must have an average diastolic pressure of 90 or more, or an average systolic pressure at least of 140 or more.

A blood pressure check is easy and painless. If your pressure is high, you should find out early and begin treatment to avoid futher illness.

The joy on the face of this young camper at Camp Sweeney attests to the fun that the diabetic child finds when they are "one of the gang" at the camp sponsored by the Southwestern Diabetic Foundation each year.

Time to pack up for summer camp

All the signs show that summer is fast approaching. Little League play is starting up, the mesquites are out, the days are lengthening, and children everywhere are packing for summer camp.

For many children with diabetes, summer means spending three wonderful, fun-packed weeks at Camp Sweeney in the green hills of North Central Texas, 10 miles northeast of Gainesville.

Camp Sweeney is a summer camp especially for diabetic children ages 6-18. The camp is sponsored by Southwestern Diabetic Foundation and is funded through the United Way and private donations.

Children at Camp Sweeney participate in the same activities that their peers in other summer camps enjoy, such as swimming, boating, fishing, archery, hiking and horseback riding. In addition to these activities, campers at Camp Sweeney learn how to deal with their diabetes and lead normal lives. Each camper's diet is individually monitored by an experienced kitchen staff. The medical staff is on duty 24 hours a day to check the campers for any adverse signs and to conduct classes to help educate the campers on the medical aspects of their disorder. Any child with diabetes may attend Camp Sweeney, regardless of ability to pay. Scholarships are available for any diabetic child who wishes to attend the camp. Camp Sweeney does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, religion, creed, nationality or handicap.

Picante sauce a "Hot Item"

Tastes for hot sauce come in varying degrees, and that taste seems to be growing by leaps and bounds as picante sauces of all types are hitting the market. "Picante," which comes from a Mexican word meaning "hot to the tongue and mouth," was first commercially produced by David Pace in San Antonio in 1947. Now there are some 20 to 25 different brands of picante campers on the medical aspects of their disorder. Any child with diabetes may attend Camp Sweeney, regardless of ability to pay. Scholarships are available for any diabetic child who wishes to attend the camp. Camp Sweeney does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, religion, creed, nationality or handicap.

This summer's sessions are as follows: Session I: June 8-June 17; Session II: June 29-July 18; Session III: July 20-August 8. There are still openings in all of the sessions at this time. For more information on attending the camp and the scholarships that are available, contact the Southwestern Diabetic Foundation at P.O. Box 918, Gainesville, Texas 76240 or 817-665-9502.

Camp Sweeney is indeed a special camp-for special kids. Of all the activities and education that the camp offers, perhaps the most appealing offering to the children who attend the camp is the chance to be "Just like everyone else."

Instead of being the "only one with diabetes," they are surrounded by bunkmates and cabinmates who also have to take insulin shots, eat a certain way, and most importantly, who understand how it feels to be a diabetic-the fears, the experiences, the laughter.

Camp Sweeney makes the diabetic child "One of the gang," sauce on the market, points out a food technologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Nineteen companies in Texas alone are producing their version of picante, with annual sales estimated at $200 million in 1985.

Bentsen Bill would end controls on oil drilling equipment sales to Soviets

Senator Lloyd Bentsen introduced legislation that would end controls on the sale of oil drilling equipment to the Soviet Union, noting that the controls add to economic problems in Texas. Senator John Heinz (R-Pa.) joined in co-sponsoring the legislation, which would maintain those controls deemed necessary for national security. "We have restrictions on sales which no other country in the world is imposing. As a result we are losing sales and jobs to foreign competitors without having any impact on the plans or behavior of the Soviet Union," Bentsen said in Senate remarks accompanying his legislation. "The utility of these controls have been documented by the Central Intelligence Agency in a study entitled 'Soviet Needs for Western Petroleum Technology and Equipment.' A declassified copy of the report was released at Bentsen's request. It lists 34 categories of oil drilling equipment the Soviet Union needs and indicates that 32 of the 34 are available from sources outside the U.S. The CIA study also lists seven categories of petroleum technology which is available from non-U.S. sources at levels deemed "adequate for most needs." The USSR is the largest petroleum equipment market outside the U.S. American firms had about 25 percent of total western exports to that high market before the embargo. By 1983 they had only 0.4 percent. Had the U.S. market share only remained constant we would have had $1.8 billion in orders during 1979-83 instead of actual $118 million," Bentsen said. "This is a loss of over 90 percent in potential sales and a loss of over 8,000 jobs. My home State of Texas is the center of the world oil equipment industry and Texas companies have borne an estimated 50 percent of these losses." "The current controls on the export of oil field equipment to the USSR are useless in terms of foreign policy impact and very damaging to a key U.S. industry that is in deep trouble," Bentsen said. "I regret that the Administration has forced us to take legislative action to implement what should have been a routine agency decision," Senator Bentsen said.

Payee reminders

Do you receive Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) checks on behalf of a relative, friend, or someone else? If so, here are some important reminders about your duties as a representative payee. To begin with, all payments must be used for the benefit and well-being of that person. Your first priority is to see that basic daily needs for food, shelter, clothing, and personal items are met. After this, checks can be used for special needs such as school expenses, medical expenses, insurance premiums, tax bills, and current payments on a house in which the beneficiary has an interest. If any funds remain after meeting basic and special needs, they must be saved or invested. The money should be kept in an account separate from yours and clearly identified as belonging to the beneficiary. Keep in mind, though, that accumulated funds may affect a person's eligibility for SSI payments. Promptly report to Social Security any changes that may affect benefits such as: change of address or custody; person dies, marries, takes a job, or enters or leaves an institution; disabled person's condition improves; or person getting SSI has a change in assets or income. The leaflet you received when you became payee describes other changes you need to report and provides other information. If you need a copy, ask at any Social Security Office for the leaflet, Your Duties as a Representative Payee. From time to time, you will be asked to complete a Representative Payee Report and explain how you used funds paid to you. Therefore, you should keep a record of money received and how it was spent or saved. Keep all receipts, cancelled checks, and other proofs in case Social Security requests to see them. Social Security has a Representative Payee Account Book, available free at any Social Security office, that may help you keep track of income and expenses. For more information, contact the San Angelo Social Security Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608.

Getting fresh with Texas vegetables

"Getting fresh with Texas vegetables appears to be outdoing last year's "Fresh approach" scheme to inform Texans of good produce buys. Make your's "TexFresh" produce.

Consumer choices of good buys include onions and cabbages. The new 1015Y Super Sweet onion developed at Texas A&M University is producing jumbo-sized onions this year. These colossal-sized, sliced sweet onions hanging over the edges of a hamburger bun go real good with some cole-slaw.

Caught him — finally

Dan Miller says that he finally caught the fish that his buddy Wilbur Waggoner let get away. This 22-pound yellow cat was caught on a trot line in the old Winters Lake last Tuesday evening.

"Ask for vegetables and fruits grown in Texas," suggests Tom Longbrake, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "You'll be supporting Texans who earn their livelihood from growing your groceries."

Currently Texas ranks behind California and Florida in total U.S. vegetable production, notes Longbrake.

Cantaloupes, honeydew melons, cucumbers, bell peppers and watermelons are all being sold now by Texas producers.

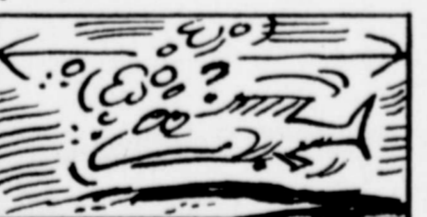

"Nutritionally, you'll reduce calorie intake by substituting vegetables for traditional snacks," says Longbrake. For instance, one raw onion, 2-1/4 inches in diameter, has only 38 calories while cucumbers contain calcium, phosphorus, vitamin A, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and ascorbic acid.

Squash and tomatoes will soon be available along with watermelon, okra and blackeyed peas, all traditional Texas sesquicentennials. And these are all low-calorie, too, says the horticulturist.

Tomatoes are the most popular vegetable bought at roadside markets followed by watermelons, squash, cantaloupes, southern peas, cucumbers and okra.

"If you're in the cost-cutting mood, consider buying fresh produce by the bushel for canning or freezing at home," suggests Longbrake.

Either way, you can "Get fresh" with "TexFresh" produce.

Studies show the Atlantic Ocean is widening by 6/10ths of an inch a year.

Farm families wanted for family land heritage program

Pointing to the importance of recognizing and remembering the pioneer farm and ranch families in Texas, Sen./Rep.has invited longtime farming families to participate in the Texas Department of Agriculture's 1986 Family Land Heritage Program.

Registration for the program, which recognizes families who have had land in agricultural production for 100 years or more, is now open and will extend through July 15, Sen./Rep.said.

"To date,properties in Sen./Rep. districthave qualified for the Family Land Heritage Program, and this year I hope we will be able to identify many more," he/she said. Since the program was established in 1974 to honor pioneering families, 1,902 such families have been recognized.

The basic requirements of the program include continuous with classes beginning June 3. A wide variety of courses at the undergraduate and graduate level will be offered.

The Irvin School of Education is providing courses in counseling and human development, elementary, secondary and special education courses.

Students also will begin work this summer on a new master's degree in physical education through the Irvin School of Education.

Information on the graduate program and procedures for enrollment may be made by contacting Dr. Ray Ellis, dean of the Graduate School (915/677-7281, Ext. 298).

Undergraduates may obtain information from the Office of Admissions or the Registrar's Office, (915/677-7281, Ext 207 or 200.

agricultural production on the farm or ranch for 100 years, land ownership within the family, complete operation or supervision of the farm/ranch production by family members who are Texas residents, and a size of at least 10 acres with a minimum income of $50 from farm or ranch products. If the farm or ranch is smaller than 10 acres, sales must total $250 per year.

"These families are living, productive symbols of our family farm unit. We celebrate their past achievements, and acknowledge the importance that such family farms hold for us in the future," he/she said.

This year's certified registrants will be honored at a state ceremony at the LBJ Library on October 15, 1986. Honorees will receive a certificate with an official sign/maker to be placed on the recipients gate or home designating their property as a "Century Farm" or Century Ranch." Property owners of 150 years or more will be awarded a special Sesquicentennial certificate. Additionally, a Family Land Heritage Registry will later be published and distributed to all honorees.

Those who wish to apply may obtain an application from their county judge, county historical commission chairperson, the nearest TDA district office or by writing to: Family Land Heritage Program, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

Medicare hospital admissions have declined by almost 10 percent

The Texas Medical Foundation (TMF) announced today that as a result of the first year of its physicians' statewide medical peer review and education activities, Texas's Medicare hospital admissions have declined by almost 10 percent. Patients are receiving medical care

4-H roundup time at hand

More than 2,000 4-H members, adult leaders, friends of 4-H and county agents with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will gather at Texas A&M University June 9-11 for the annual Texas 4-H Roundup. The 4-H program is conducted by the Extension Service. 4-H'ers will compete in the State 4-H Food Show, State 4-H Project Show and in 40 different contests during the three-day period.

More than 100 youth will receive scholarships totaling almost $700,000 through the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation. In addition, special awards will be presented to outstanding 4-H adult volunteer leaders and to individuals and organizations that have provided long-time support to the 4-H program in Texas.

outside the hospital often, but only when those patients can be treated safely and effectively in some other setting. The medical community continues to develop safe alternatives to inpatient hospital care, partially in response to TMF medical review program's emphasis on the appropriate use of all health-care resources.

TMF, a physician-directed medical review organization, was designated as the Peer Review Organization (PRO) of Texas in October 1984 by the Health Care Financing Administration, a division of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Through its medical review and education programs, TMF works to ensure safe, efficient, and cost-effective delivery of health care to Medicare recipients in Texas. TMF physicians review hospital admissions to assure that patients receive quality medical care in the appropriate medical setting.

Commenting on the reduction in Medicare admissions, S. Robert L. King, Jr., TMF's Executive Director, says, "Before the PRO, Texas and one other state did not have independent, statewide medical peer review programs for Medicare. Both states have shown a significant decrease in the number of inpatient admissions. The dramatic drop in Medicare admissions reflects a new awareness by physicians that treatment settings other than inpatient hospital can be equally safe and acceptable." King said that TMF physician consultants have found that 6.83 per cent of those inpatient hospital admissions reviewed were not medically necessary.

"During this first year of PRO review, the hospital and physician communities have had to evaluate the medical needs of the people they serve. They've had to create safe and effective alternatives to inpatient hospital care, and this has taken time."

King added that in the future TMF expects a decline in the number of admissions that are later found to have been medically unnecessary. "Through its review systems for Medicare, Medicaid, and private contractors, TMF and its physicians will continue to work to assure that patients are treated in the most appropriate medical setting and that they receive quality medical care."

DID YOU KNOW ?

Healthy, attractive plants can be grown indoors with just the flick of a switch. Artificial lighting has expanded horizons in indoor gardening and has increased houseplant sales across the country.

According to experts at North American Philips Lighting Corporation, a major lighting manufacturer, proper indoor plant growth requires blue, red and infrared rays. Fluorescent and incandescent lighting, used alone or in combination, are ideal sources which satisfy these conditions.

Here are some helpful tips:

- Special, convenient fluorescent tubes and incandescent bulbs, such as Philips AgroLites®, have been developed for serious indoor gardeners and are available in various wattages.
- At least two cool white fluorescent tubes should illuminate plants when fluorescent lighting is used alone.
- Similarly, incandescent reflector bulbs used by themselves are quite effective.
- Although either type of lighting works well alone, a three-to-one lighting combination of conventional fluorescent and incandescent lighting, respectively, provides the best mixture of rays.
- The proper amounts of water, fresh air and fertilizer are also important for an indoor garden.

SAFETY BLUNDERS

Not all tires are safely interchangeable. Two of these are used by pickup trucks and some vans: the 16-inch tube and 16.5-inch tubeless tires. If you put a 16-inch tire on a 16.5-inch rim, and inflate it beyond the rated tire pressure, the tire will explode before fully fitting on the rim. That's according to the wheel experts at The Budd Company. The right tire can ensure your safety, the wrong one could cause you unnecessary injury.

Only trained mechanics who have read and follow the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations in Section 1910.177 and wheel manufacturer's literature should service truck tires. OSHA offers free charts and booklets to help mechanics learn the accepted procedures. To get a copy, you can send a self-addressed mailing label to Servicing Rim Wheels, OSHA Publications, Room N-4101, Frances Perkins Bldg., Third St. and Constitution Ave., Washington, DC 20210.

I don't want men of experience working for me. The experienced man is always telling me why something can't be done. The fellow who has not had any experience is so dumb he doesn't know a thing can't be done—and he goes ahead and does it.

Reporting SSI changes

People who receive monthly supplemental security income (SSI) checks must tell Social Security about any changes in their situation that could affect the amount of their payments. Failure to report such a change could result in too much money being paid (money that would have to be repaid) or in missing out on money to which the person may be entitled.

Any change must be reported within 10 days after the end of the month in which the change occurs. Social Security will take steps to recover any money paid out as a result of a person's failure to report a change.

The same holds true is a person receives money to which he or she is not entitled because of having made a false statement. In addition, a person who, without good reason, reports a change late may have to pay a penalty of up to $100.

However, if a single person has money or other assets that add up to more than $2,400, Social Security must be notified. Assets include such items as real estate, personal property, life insurance policies and cars. Some items that don't count include the home of an individual or, couple, lives in, a car, depending on its value, money kept separately for burial, and life insurance totaling up to $1,500 per person.

For more information on reporting changes, contact the San Angelo Social Security Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608.

Selecting beef for microwave cookery

Many people don't use their microwave ovens to cook beef roast because they think it will be tough or overcooked.

According to Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Alice Hunt, one key to tender microwaved beef is to select the right cut to cook. She suggests choosing beef with even marbling or fat cover for more even cooking, cuts that even in shape and thickness and those without bone on just one side of the meat.

Hormone Herbicide Regulated Area

Hormone Herbicide Regulated area

The Northwest part of Runnels County will be in a Herbicide Regulated area again this year, according to Allen E. Turner, Runnels County Extension Agent. The law and the area are the same in 1986 as they were in 1985.

The dates that this regulation are in effect is May 26 to October 1, 1986. All persons within the designated area are asked to abide with these regulations.

The regulations read as follows: That portion of Runnels County beginning on the west county line at the point of intersection with the Colorado River, east-southeasterly along the Colorado River to its intersection with U.S. Highway 83, thence north along U.S. Highway 83 to its intersection with the north county line, thence westerly along the north Runnels County line to the northwest corner of the county, thence southerly along the west county line to the Colorado River, regulated areas, no permit required from October 1 to May 26 of the year following. Use of regulated herbicides is prohibited between May 26 and October 1 of each year. And further, amine and other nonvolatile formulation may be used in the regulated area between the days of May 26 and October 1 of each year, provided that the user obtain a permit as prescribed by the law prior to such use.

Both spouses should know about finances

In some families, one spouse usually the husband—assumes all the financial responsibility in an effort to protect the other. This may work fine until something happens, such as the death of a husband or a major change in their financial situation, says Nancy Granovsky, a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service family economics specialist.

In a financial crisis, the wife usually knows something is wrong because she sees overdue notices in the mail or is asked to sign legal documents. Yet, her husband may still refuse to discuss the situation so she won't worry. "Unfortunately, not knowing can be more worrisome than the facts," notes Granovsky.

"How a family handles its finances on a daily basis may be a private matter for one of the partners, but in a community property state like Texas, half of the assets acquired during marriage belong to each spouse," she explains.

The specialist advises couples to at least discuss their basic finances so that both spouses have a good idea of their current situation.

Both partners should be capable of performing most any financial function necessary to survive if the other partners dies.

Most Wanted

They were young, vibrant and intelligent.

Today, they are dead and the residents of the East Texas community of Hawkins are searching for the answers.

In an effort to assist in finding the answers to who killed Suzanne Harrison, 18, Bryan Boone and Gena Turner, both 20, the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council announced today it was joining forces with Wood County Crime Stoppers and the Upshur County Sheriff's Department.

A reward fund of up to $5,000 has been established by the Governor's Office and Wood County Crime Stoppers for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the offender or offenders in the tragic case.

In addition, the citizens of Hawkins have announced a $5,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the offender.

Wood County law enforcement authorities said the three young people had gone to near-by Lake Hawkins to enjoy a warm Sunday. When they failed to return Sunday evening, Boone's brother grew concerned and went to search for them. He found their abandoned pickup at the lake. They truck was unlocked, the windows were open and inside the vehicle were the women's purses, undisturbed on the floorboard.

Miss Harrison's partially clad body was discovered at Barnwell Mountain Park, located about five miles north of Gilmer in neighboring Upshur County. The park is located on a steep, heavily wooded hill on State Road 155. The victim's body was about five or six feet down the side of the hill.

Detectives say Miss Harrison had been sexually assaulted, beaten with a blunt object and strangled.

The bodies of Boone and Miss Turner were discovered Saturday in an ditch beside FM 1649, north of Ore City and about a mile west of Barnwell Mountain Park. They both had been shot.

Investigator James Turner of the Wood County Sheriff's Office said it appears the three young people were abducted around 11:15 a.m. on Sunday, May 4.

Authorities are asking that anyone who might have seen the youngsters after that time to please contact Wood County Crime Stoppers at (214)763-2274, the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477, or the Upshur County Sheriff's Department at (214)843-2541.

In order to reach Barnwell Mountain Park from Lake Hawkins, the offender or offenders could have taken several routes—FM 49 or 1795 to Gilmer, or State Highway 154 to Gilmer, or U.S. 80 to Big Sandy and then State Road 155 north to the park.

Citizens who might have observed a vehicle containing the three young people are urged to come forward with this information. Investigators described Bryan Boone as a white male, 5-8, 160-170 pounds, with medium brown hair, hazel eyes, wearing a blue shirt and turquoise-colored shorts. Gena Turner was a white female, 5-2, 110 pounds, with long brown hair and brown eyes and was wearing a black top and white striped shorts. Suzanne Harrison was a white female, 5-4, 120 pounds, with long brown hair, green eyes and had on a red pull-over sweater and red shorts.

Lack of communication about money causes family problems

One of the major causes of family problems is failure to communicate about family finances.

"Couples who didn't bother to discuss family finances when times were good find themselves at odds when the situation changes," says family economics specialist Nancy Granovsky. For example, a person may tolerate a free-spending spouse until one of them becomes unemployed. Then it's easy to blame the spouse for spending instead of saving and emotions can build until the problem affects their basic relationship, she says.

According to recent estimates there are about 40,000 different varieties of fish.

Lions Club International presents check to Sweetwater Lions for tornado victims

Victims of the April 19 tornado that struck Sweetwater received welcomed aid from Lions Club International recently as District Governor George Beard, of Ballinger, presented a check for $5,000 to a Lions committee working with relief agencies in the city.

The funds which will be used for food, clothing, bedding and medical needs of the victims were sent to Sweetwater by the Lions Club International Foundation which provides funds for humanitarian purposes through out the world.

In addition to the funds from LCIF, the two Sweetwater's Lions Clubs have also received donations of cash and goods from Lions Clubs in San Angelo, Coleman, Dickinson and Dumas.

In making the presentation, the local clubs Beard said, "LCIF is pleased to be able to assist the Sweetwater community in its time of need. LCIF is continuing to provide funds to aid many communities in humanitarian efforts and the funds given to the Sweetwater victims is just another indication of how Lions continue to serve the needs of their neighbors."

The funds given the local Lions Club will be administered by a committee of Lions members, from the two clubs, and will be used to supplement aid from other sources, according to a spokesperson for the group.

Through last week funds had been used to purchase eye glasses, dentures and food for applicants. Victims can make application for aid through the Sweetwater Chamber of Commerce which is acting as a coordinating agency for the various aid funds.

Signal work

Winters drivers will soon have a second signal light to contend with. The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation were at work Monday installing the standards to support the much-needed signal light at the intersection of U.S. 83 and F.M. 53. The installation of the light by the state was at the request of the Winters City Council.

Help for the food pantry

Members of the Total Teens of Winters presented a check to the Winters Food Pantry to help stock the pantry to provide needed food items for families suffering economic hardships.

The funds were the result of a recent fund-raising drive conducted by the local Total Teen
