By Kerry Craig

It has been said that when a reporter loses his objectivity he also loses his effectiveness.

For a long time, I have been able to wear two hats and remain objective. I have, with respect to one incident, lost my objectivity. In this specific instance, I sincerely hope I haven't lost my effectiveness.

There are times when my primary profession must take a back seat to my secondary profession.

As you know, along with being an editor/reporter, I am also an Emergency Medical Technician. The combining of these two professions creates, in ways, a paradox.

I, also, am a member of this community.

Tragedy struck our community late last week in an accident that claimed the lives of three of our neighbors and left two others gravely injured.

What caused me to lose my objectivity stemmed directly from this tragic traffic accident.

While our emergency medical service was working to deal with the life-threatening injuries sustained by those involved in the crash, they were actually hampered by the sight-seers, and the curious.

There were several times that on-lookers had to be moved to one side for the EMTs and Paramedics to be able to get to the accident victims—while they were still in the wrecked vehicle.

Now we all know that this is a very close-knit community. All of us, in one way or another, were affected by the loss of our neighbors. We were shocked and saddened, and rightly so.

Perhaps the saddest part of all this tragedy was that there were almost as many spectators there as might go to a home football game.

It is understandable that folks are curious, it is natural. But when it comes to the point of the curiosity of so many people actually hindering emergency medical professionals in their jobs, something must be done.

Our police officers had their hands full just directing traffic around the scene. Some of our firemen were busy with the "Jaws of Life".

No one had time enough to spare to try to keep the spectators back.

So, you see, one tends to lose objectivity about something when so many folks try to see what is going and those folks could mean the difference between life and death—especially if they are in the way and the technicians, specifically trained to deal with this type emergency, cannot get to the person whose life hangs in the balance.

I lost my objectivity the first time I had to ask a by-stander to please move out of the way. So did other emergency medical professionals.

When we had to push an on-looker aside we lost more than our objectivity—and it happened more than once.

In retrospect, we can speculate on the cause of the tragedy, mourn the loss, ask what can be done in the future to prevent another such tragedy, even take solace in the fact that two of our neighbors are recovering.

Some of us can ask ourselves if we were the ones in the way. We can also ask ourselves if the final outcome of the tragedy might have been different if we had not been in the way.

As a reporter, I could understand the desire of the spectators to know the answers to all their questions. I could, in a way, understand their wanting to see what had happened and what was being done.

As an Emergency Medical Technician, I could not see why all those people, who didn't need to be there, were there. I experienced frustration in trying

The women were enroute to Ballinger to attend a church salad supper when the accident occurred. Winters Police Chief L. C. Foster, who investigated the accident said that the car driven by Mrs. Benson failed to stop at the signal light and was struck by the cattle truck. Foster said that witness statements indicated that the car moved from the left lane to the right lane in order to pass several vehicles stopped at the intersection before driving into the path of the truck.

The North Runnels Emergency Service was assisted by the Winters Volunteer Fire Department and the "Jaws of Life" in removing the occupants from the car.

The two injured women were treated at North Runnels Hospital before being transferred by ambulance to the Abilene hospital.

The 'Paul Revere' of Texas

Colonel John Durst, the Paul Revere of Texas, had a much more difficult task than the original Paul Revere who took a "midnight ride" to warn the American Colonists of the British's approach. Durst's ico planned an invasion. A story by Jack Maguire in the Texas Weekly Magazine, May 25, 1986, stated that "History often ignores the fact that Texas had its own 'Paul gallop began in Monclova, Mexico, and it took him 12 1/2 days to reach East Texas to warn the Texian Army troops that Mex-

Revere" when it began its revolt against Mexico in 1835. After searching through several Texas Histories and finding no mention of Durst, I decided the story was true. However, there was a biography of Durst in The Handbook of Texas.

Others who are families with the Dursts story are Laura Pace and Lucy Kittrell, whose Aunt Lillie Kittrell married John Sterling Durst, eighth child of John and Harriet Durst in 1876. They also kept in touch with their cousin, Norma Louise (Durst) Farmer, until her death at Junction in 1979 at the age of Spanish and became a member of the Legislature of Coahuila and Texas in 1835. At Monclova he was warned of the impending invasion of Texas by Santa Anna and made his famous ride. Because of this ride, Texas was ready when Santa Anna and his troops came north.

Durst was master of his house but never failed to recognize that in Harriet Durst there was a capable mistress of the house to deal with. These two hardy pioneers had no difficulty in

102. John Durst was born in Missouri Territory in 1797, one of ten children of German parents, he was orphaned at an early age. He came to Texas from Louisiana with two of his brothers, Joseph and Jacob, in the early 1800's. John became a protegee of Peter Samuel Davenport, who sent him to a Mexican school.

John married, Harriet Jamison at Natchitoches, Louisiana in 1821. He brought his wife to Nacogdoches in 1827 and started business as an Indian trader. He built a depot at Tenoxtilan, acquired the old Stone Fort at Nacogdoches as the family home and settled down.

In 1832 Durst took part in the battle of Nacogdoches, in which Colonel Jose de los Piedras and his troops were expelled from East Texas. He was fluent in working out a division of power in the home, whether it had to do with rearing their 11 children, handling the slaves, dickering with politicians, or carrying on their extensive agricultural and commercial pursuits.

The pictures of John Durst show him wearing the courtly cape of early-day gentlemen, such as was worn by Sam Houston. He was tall and lean and had keen eyes and nose and mouth expressive of force and will power.

The John Durst's were temperate. In the French fashion, Harriet—as the mother—took care of most of the families professed religion, although her husband supported her high ideals. It cannot be said many of the Durst family (other than John Sterling Durst) ever leaned toward ecclesiasticism. But the religious tradition of the family is recorded here to verify a true legend.

At the time John Durst contracted Pneumonia while attending supreme court in Galveston several of his sons, including Louis Orlando, a giant in stature, were at the sick bed. Like all of the early settlers of Texas, the Durst boys had complied with the Mexican requirements that they adopt the Catholic faith. Consequently John and Harriet Durst found themselves rearing their children into Catholicism, though John was a high-order Mason, like most of Texas' founding fathers, including Sam Houston.

Realizing he was going to die, Durst called the priest. When, however, the priest demanded—as a prerequisite to administering the final absolution—that Colonel Durst pay a large sum of money to the church and divulge the secrets of Masonry, Durst turned to Louis and said, "Son, put this man out of the house."

The priest was ejected. There-upon Durst disowned Catholicism and requested his sons to do likewise. Few, if any, Durst's have been Catholics since that day, although followers of a sort of a practical christianity in their day-to-day living and tolerant of all faiths, the Durst's generally are not avid church adherents—but have a strong faith in a Supreme Being. The prime exception among John Durst's children in this regard was John Sterling Durst who throughout his life was a minister in the Church of Christ.

The children of Isaac and Patsy Ann Low held their 60th reunion in Abilene State Park August 8-10, 1986. The main day has been changed from Sunday to Saturday and the dinner to six o'clock instead of 12. There were 94 present this year, the largest number in several years.

This reunion was begun in Electra where Patsy Ann lived with her youngest son, Bob. I. B. Low died June 1, 1918 at the age of 63-Patsy Ann passed away January 2, 1936 at the age of 84 in the home of a daughter, Will and Mollie Puckett, of Wilmeth, now being the home of a granddaughter, Genevieve Denson.

Only two daughter-in-laws are still with us Flora Low, wife of Bob, lives in San Angelo, but she was unable to attend this year. Orrie Low, wife of Jim, was there at the age of 93. The youngest was a great-great-grandson of Orrie's, great grand of Ozella Whitaker's, grandson of Richard and Peggy Wiley-son of Donny and Donna Wiley of Rock Springs.

Only four of the children were represented this year. Descendants of Ethel and George Keel, Saturday night in the Community Center.

Visitors were, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bryan, Norton; Red and Jewell Huckaby of Abilene; Clarence and Liz Huckaby, Winters; Bob and Kyla Smith of Levelland; and the Mother of Donna Wiley.

Let me encourage all the descendants of Grandpa and Grandma Low, to make an extra effort to be there. This is the largest crowd we have had in 25 years. Let me suggest to the first cousins, to bring all the information on the Low's history they might have. They are bound to have a family Bible, or records as to when their mother and daddy married in their immediate family.

Be sure and be there next year, because you never know what you have missed until you have been to one.

Farm credit banks of Texas release second quarter financial statement

According to James Rogers, chief executive officer of the Farm Credit Banks of Texas, combined earnings from the Texas Farm Credit District resulted in net losses of $32.2 million in the second quarter and a $30.9 million net loss for the first half of 1986. This compares to a net gain of $11.5 million for the Texas Farm Credit District in the second quarter of 1985, and a net gain of $24 million for the first six months of 1985.

Rogers said that due to a contractual arrangement resulting from the joint liability on Farm Credit System of obligations, assessments to other district banks from the Texas District totaled $38.1 million in the second quarter and $43.7 million for the first half of 1986. Rogers further stated that without the financial assistance to other distressed Farm Credit districts, Texas would have had net earnings of $5 million in the second quarter and $12.8 million net earnings for the first half of 1986.

Nationally, the Farm Credit System posted a $762 million loss in the second quarter of 1986, compared to a net income of $118 million at the same time last year. The system reported a $2.7 billion loss in 1985. Loans outstanding through June 30, for the Texas District totaled more than $3.8 billion. This compares with $4 billion in

Bentsen urges emphasis on border trade

Senator Lloyd Bentsen urged that President Reagan discuss proposals for boosting trade along the border during meetings with Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid in Washington this week.

In a letter to President Reagan, Bentsen noted that he had pressed for action on three specific proposals during a visit with President de la Madrid in Mexico City last April.

"In preparation for your meeting this week with President de la Madrid, I would like to share some observations and recommendations in the area of border revitalization," Bentsen said.

"I encourage you to support the further expansion and development of the maquiladora, or twin-plant, program along with the Texas-Mexico border."

"The maquiladora program, which has become Mexico's second largest revenue raising industry—after oil and before tourism—has proven that programs of mutual benefit can be successful."

Refinery input decreases in June

Railroad Commission Chairman James E. (Jim) Nugent has reported that 54 refineries in Texas processed 141,541,269 barrels of oil and hydrocarbon blends during June 1986.

The June volume compares to 143,417,678 barrels in May and 127,914,678 barrels in June 1985.

Texas refineries ran 108,382,041 barrels of crude oil in June, compared to 112,916,551 barrels in May and 96,102,652 barrels in June 1985.

Products manufactured in June totaled 141,142,075 barrels, down from 144,496,482 barrels in May and up from 128,658,850 barrels in June 1985.

June manufacture of motor gasoline totaled 65,215,224 barrels, compared to 67,190,492 barrels in May and 60,539,463 barrels in June 1985.

Aviation gasoline manufactured in June totaled 432,365 barrels, up from 377,238 barrels in May and up from 340,006 barrels in June 1985.

Texas refineries manufactured 9,775,927 barrels of home heating oil in June 1986—a decrease of 1,945,797 barrels from the May volume. June 1985 output was 7,665,598 barrels.

"During my discussions with President de la Madrid last April, I pressed for a more equitable share of jobs and manufacturing plants on both sides of the border; the sale goods produced by the plants within Mexico and joint efforts to export these goods to third countries."

"I told President de la Madrid I wanted twin-plants to develop into more than a billboard on our side and a manufacturing plant on their side of the border."

"I was encouraged by his promise to purchase more goods from these plants. Although Mexican law permits the internal sale of up to 20 percent of these goods, to date Mexico has made only nominal purchases. And I suggested that our two countries jointly promote sales of these goods in third countries, like Japan."

"The International Trade Commission, as the result of a request I initiated through the Senate Finance Committee, is currently conducting a year-long study on ways to enhance trade along our 2,000 mile border with Mexico," Bentsen said.

"We don't have to wait for an ITC study, though to tell us that the sale of more maquiladora products to Mexico would be beneficial or to convince us of the value of a joint third country export program would hold for both our countries. I urge you to discuss these matters during your meeting this week with President de la Madrid," Senator Bentsen said.

Conference to focus on rural crises

Strategies for dealing with the crisis in Texas' heartland—the financial woes that have beset farmers and ranchers and small town businesses—will be discussed at the 1986 Town and Country Conference at Texas A&M University September 15-17. "Rural Crisis in Texas: Hope-filled Strategies" will be the theme of the 41st annual conference, which is for clergy and church lay leaders. A major effort of the conference is to see how clergy and lay leaders are involved in dealing with the financial crisis throughout Texas and how their efforts and the efforts of various agencies can be interfaced for greater impact, says a sociologist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The only exercise some people get is jumping at conclusions, running down their friends, sidestepping responsibility, and pushing their luck.

ed state and federal fuel taxes, Texas diesel fuel users pay 25 cents per gallon. In 1986, a trucking company will pay as much as $9,200 in taxes on fuel, equipment, and licensing for a typical five-axle tractor and semi-trailer.

A fuel tax hike of five cents per gallon would aggravate conditions for the motor carriers who are vital to the state economy, Floyd says. With increased overhead from skyrocketing insurance premiums and a declining volume of freight to be hauled, many trucking companies are barely surviving. Adding this additional tax burden to an industry that is reeling because of marginal profits and an unstable marketplace would undoubtedly result in more worker layoffs and increased company failures, both of which would be detrimental to the state's economy. "These are difficult times for the state of Texas," Floyd says. "Our industry's leaders are ready to work with the Legislature to solve the state's revenue problems."

"The current low price of fuel at the pumps is unlikely to last with the volatile nature of the Middle East. An increase in fuel taxes would not be a painless solution, but would have a severe impact on all motorists and on the financial stability of the Texas truck and bus industry," Floyd says.

Based in Austin, the Texas Motor Transportation Association represents the public and private sector of the truck and bus industry in Texas. The group has 750 allied and carrier members.

RRC Levies fines

The Railroad Commission assessed $63,000 in administrative penalties to ten oil and gas operators Monday for problems under the Commission's pollution and well plugging rules.

The largest penalty, $20,000, went to Leon Addison of Holliday for nine inactive and unplugged wells on the Burnett C lease in Wichita County. The operator was also penalized for operating a saltwater disposal well on the lease without a permit.

Aladdin Petroleum Co., of Seguin received a $10,000 penalty for several violations on the company's W. H. Alexander lease in Bastrop County. Two wells were inactive and unplugged, a firewall had not been constructed around a tank battery, and oil and saltwater had been discharged into a dry creekbed.

Pollution penalties included a $2,500 levy to Ultra Oil, Inc. of Kilgore for maintaining an unauthorized pit containing oil and saltwater on the company's Talco Pit lease (Owings Estate property) in Franklin County.

R&S Oil Co. of Arlington agreed to a $2,000 penalty for four inactive wells on the R. T. Burks and R. T. Burks B leases in Callahan County. Commission inspectors also documented drainage of saltwater into a dry creekbed near the leases. Tests of the water showed chloride concentrations of 48,600 parts per million. In agreeing to the penalty, the company did not admit to any violation of Commission rules.

Companies receiving well plugging penalties included Mesa Oil, Inc. of Lubbock, $6,000 for three wells on the Jeffery 49-20 lease, Young County and $4,000 for two wells on the Ingram lease, Eastland County; and Great Southwest Petroleum Co. of San Antonio, $6,000 for one well each on the Mayer and R. F. Mayer 56 leases, Irion County.

Three companies agreed to pay penalties for unplugged wells on leases they operate without admitting any violation of Commission rules. They were Condor Petroleum Co. of Houston, $1,000 for failure to file a plugging report for a well on the company's Stockton lease, Taylor County; Interstate Energy Resources, Inc. of Augusta G., $6,000 for one well each on the Perry A and Perry C leases, Tom Green County; and Petroloer Exploration, Inc. of Abilene, $3,000 for a well on the J. R. Miller lease, Taylor County.

Dave W. Rhone agreed to a $2,500 penalty for use of an unpermitted well for saltwater disposal on the Ethel Lumpkin lease, Clay County. Rhone did not admit violating Commission rules.

To date in 1986, the Commission has levied more than $889,000 in pollution and well plugging penalties. Last year the Commission assessed more than $1 million in such penalties.

Farmer compliance with conservation rules

New proposed rules contained in the 1985 Food Security Act relating to conservation of erodible lands and wetlands and conservation compliance provisions will have a major impact on Texas farmers, says a soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Conservation compliance provisions will be of particular concern since they require farmers of highly erodible land to plan and apply locally approved conservation plans to be eligible for any USDA farm program benefits such as price support payments, disaster payments, crop insurance and FmHa loans.

VA Restructures Veterans Group Life Insurance premium rates

The Veterans Administration has restructured its Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI) premium rates in an attempt to increase participation in the program.

VA Administrator Thomas K. Turnage said the new rate structure is based on six age groupings instead of two and represents a reduction of nearly 30 percent for the youngest age group.

The VGLI program, which is an extension of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) for active duty personnel, gives former servicemen and women up to 120 days from date of discharge to convert to a low-cost 5-year VGLI term policy, regardless of their physical condition. They have an additional year beyond that to apply, but must meet good health standards.

Under the new rate structure, monthly premiums for a $50,000 policy range from $6 for veterans 29 and under, to $37.50 for those 60 and over. The new rates apply to all individuals who are separated from active duty on or after July 1, 1986, or who enlist in the Individual Ready Reserve or Inactive National Guard on or after that date.

VGLI membership currently numbers about 258,000 and the VA would like to double that number. "These new veterans deserve continued insurance coverage upon leaving the service and we would like to see them take advantage of these low premiums," Turnage said. "We feel it's a good bargain and a benefit they have earned."

The agency is currently developing procedures that would permit GI's to apply for the insurance coverage before leaving active duty. At present, VGLI applications are automatically mailed to personnel leaving the service.

"In 1984, the Texas truck and bus industry stood in strong support of the increase in motor fuels taxes to 10 cents per gallon, increases in registration fees, and one percent increase in the motor vehicle sales tax to help fund education reforms and the highway program," Floyd explains. "Another five cent increase in fuel taxes at this time would be very hard on an industry plagued by furious competition and a downturn in the economy."

Motor fuel is one of the most heavily taxed essential commodities in the nation, and, since 1982, fuel taxes for Texas users have nearly doubled. In combin-

Francis Langdon, who publishes the Tonkawa (Okla.) News, tells me the old Methodist parsonage is empty now. The fellow who bought it from the church in 1965 has died and the place is up for sale.

Living in this house in the mid-fifties was like having my own amusement park. Good things seemed to happen when you lived at 709 East Grand Avenue - especially if you were a kid.

It had large empty rooms. It had an attic big enough to play a game of catch. It had a basement with spiders and ghosts and anything else my sister and I could conjure up with our imaginations.

There were air vents you could see through from the second story to the first. My grandmother and I once got down on all fours and looked through one of them to watch my Dad perform a marriage ceremony we'd been banned from minutes earlier.

There was a flat roof outside my bedroom and just above the back porch. I used to spend the night out there in the summer. When the sun came up I could shimmy down a drain pipe and run across the street to Tate's Grocery and nourish my body with Hostess cup cakes and Dr. Peppers.

The large, semi-circular front porch was made of wood and I guess you could say the footing was a little unsteady.

I can still see my dad tripping over one of the steps and rolling to an undignified rest on the sidewalk - all 240 pounds of him.

"Dog blast it," said the reverend, just managing to avoid profanity.

It was in this house my dad taught me about Bud when it meant a football coach instead of a brew.

It was here I first listened to OU football games on the radio. As long as I lived in that house, Oklahoma never lost one. The day the Irish from Indiana drove the fatal stake through the hearts of every OU fan in the land, I was looking on tearfully from another parsonage.

In this old house, though, my grade school totally dominated what my friends and I saw as the more affluent grade school from the other side of the tracks. The Washington Redskins (my team) beat Lincoln (the rich kids) in every sport all three years I lived in that house.

There was one close call with Lincoln, though. Only the house saved us.

The last sport between the two schools my sixth-grade year was the track meet. Going into the 880-relay we were clinging to a narrow lead.

The coach told us it all came down to this race. If we won it, we could "graduate" knowing we had never lost to the miserable Lincoln Bears. But, if we lost, it would be our shame to bear for life.

I just happened to be the anchor-man for our relay team. I just happened to be the guy who got the baton with a slight lead over the Lincoln anchorman. And I just happened to be the guy who got passed and beaten to the tape.

Go ahead, tell me about your Charlie Brown humiliations.

Our coach had lied shamelessly in an effort to motivate us for that race, though. Turns out we had just enough points to win the track meet in spite of my failure.

Had I lived in an ordinary parsonage that race would have cost us the city championship. I've never doubted that.

I stopped through Tonkawa a few years ago and met the man who had purchased the house from the Methodist. He led me on a familiar tour.

He seemed to appreciate the old house the way I did, too. I told him a few stories about it and he invited me to come back again. I promised I would and I'm sorry I didn't make it back sooner.

I'm sure he had stored up a few of his own stories of good fortune at 709 East Grand Avenue.

RRC issues 32 permits in April

Railroad Commission Chairman James E. (Jim) Nugent has announced that 32 permits to operate new pipelines in Texas were granted by the RRC in April. In March, the Commission approved 10 permits.

Eighteen of new permits were for gathering pipelines, six were for trunk transmission lines and eight were for multi-purpose and other types of lines. Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases, while trunk lines are larger diameter lines into which smaller pipelines connect.

In April one operating permit was approved for a pipeline in the San Antonio area (District 1), four in the Refugio area (District 2), 11 in South East Texas (District 3), one in deep South Texas (District 4), one in East Central Texas (District 5), five in East Texas (District 6), two in West Central Texas (District 7B), two in the San Angelo area (District 7C), two in the Midland area (District 8), and one each in the Lubbock area (District 8A), North Texas (District 9), and the Panhandle (District 10) areas.

Why eat a "Variety" of food?

"Eat a variety of foods" is probably the most common nutrition advice given by physicians and nutritionists. It's also first in the list of Dietary Guidelines for Americans, released this year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Department of Health and Human Services. So why is dietary variety so important? According to Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutritionist with the Texas A&M University Agriculture Extension Service, the answer is relatively simple. "People need over 40 different nutrients to stay healthy. These include vitamins and minerals, protein, fat, carbohydrates and water, which are found in foods," she says. "Since no one food supplies all the essential nutrients in the amounts a person needs, it's important to eat several types of foods each day," Hunt emphasizes.

Texas Medical Foundation offers selected hospital review services

The Texas Medical Foundation announced today, August 12, a plan that offers selected hospital review services to all 254 Texas counties. The new plan is a response to the recently enacted County Indigent Health Care Act and is based on policies developed by the Texas Department of Human Services. TMF's hospital peer review proposal would assist the counties in maintaining quality health care while reducing unnecessary costs associated with providing medical care to county residents.

The County Indigent Health Care Act established a state fund to match expenditures for patients from counties that meet requirements and do not qualify for other state or federal medical assistance. The Act, passed by the 69th Legislature, takes effect in all counties on September 1, 1986.

The Texas Medical Foundation is a non-profit organization of 4,500 practicing physicians who are committed to qualify, cost-efficient health care in Texas through physician peer review. TMF was recently awarded a two-year renewal of its contract with the federal Health Care Financing Administration to administer hospital peer review for the Medicare program in Texas. The Foundation has also held the state Medicaid program's contract for medical review since 1976, in addition to administering numerous private review contracts throughout the country.

Texas Medical Foundation Review Services

1. Certification of Hospitalization

Advances in medical technology have opened the door to providing many services on an outpatient or day surgery basis that previously would have required hospitalization. TMF offers a service to review the medical necessity of hospitalization. TMF's Physician Advisors (PAs) will review a case and then discuss the planned course of hospitalization with the patient's physician. If hospitalization can be avoided without jeopardizing the patient's safety, changes in the patient's plan will be made.

2. Certification of Surgery Surgery is often the last option for correcting a medical problem. TMF surgical review assures that all alternatives to surgery are exhausted before resorting to surgery. This review works in coordination with the patient's attending physician to assure both the patient and the payor that the surgery is medically necessary.

3. Medical Necessity Audit It is not always possible to review a treatment plan before the patient is hospitalized. TMF also reviews the patient's hospital medical record after discharge to determine if hospitalization and surgery were medically necessary.

4. Claim Audit

Hospital bills often include charges for services that were not provided to the patient. TMF's claim audit service assures both that any charges billable to the payor were ordered for, and provided to, the patient.

Permits for air contaminants

Landowners can no longer assume they can build anything on their land they wish, especially not a potential source of air pollution, says an agricultural engineer in waste management with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Any new operation or process, whether in industry or agriculture, is required to obtain a construction permit from the Texas Air Control Board if it has the potential to contaminate the air. Among air contaminants are odors, dust, hydrocarbons, nitrogen oxides, sulfur oxides and similar substances. The construction permit has to be obtained from the Texas Air Control Board before the facility is built.

Dr. Winfred Moore to speak at HSU

Dr. W. Winfred Moore, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Amarillo and immediate past first vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention, will be speaker at Hardin-Simmons University's annual Convocation for the new academic year on September 4.

Dr. Jesse C. Fletcher, HSU president, said that Moore's address will be given in Behrens Chapel beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Moore who served two terms as president of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, was a candidate for the presidency of the SBC in 1985 and 1986.

He has been pastor of the First Baptist Church in Amarillo since 1959.

Retirement test for self-employed

The retirement test—the limit on the amount of earnings people can have without affecting their Social Security benefits—is different for self-employed persons. People who continue to do some work after retirement or receive income as farmers, insurance agents, and sales persons, and other types of self-employment should note the differences so as to avoid any disruption of their monthly benefits due to overpayments.

Like regular wage earners, the self-employed person is subject to the annual earnings limit, which is $7,800 in 1986 for people 65 and over. For people under 65, the 1986 limit is $5,760. There is no limit on earnings for those age 70 and over. Earnings over the annual limit cause the monthly benefits to be reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings over the limit.

The first year of retirement is where self-employment income is treated differently. A monthly test is usually applied during the first year a person starts receiving benefits. This permits a person to retire any time during the year and have his or her earnings count against the retirement test only for the months after retirement. For regular wage earners, the monthly test is one-twelfth of the annual test. This means that a person may earn any amount during the year as long as he or she does not earn over the monthly limit beginning with the month in which he or she starts receiving benefits.

However, because the income of the self-employed tends to be irregular—it may be received months or years after it is earned—a test of "substantial services" in the business or trade is used. During the first year of retirement, a person who receives earnings from self-employment can get a full benefit for any month he or she doesn't perform substantial services in self-employment.

Whether or not services are substantial depends on a number of factors. They include the amount of time devoted to the business of profession, including time spent planning and managing, the kind of work done, and how the work compares with that the person previously did.

In general, more than 45 hours of work devoted to a business during a month constitutes substantial services. Less than 15 hours a month is never considered substantial.

Another provision unique to the self-employed holds that certain self-employment income received after the first year of retirement from work performed before retirement is not subject to the annual limit. This rule was designed to help insurance agents who receive renewal commissions after they retire, retired farmers whose leftover crops are sold in a year after they stop farming, sales people who receive deferred commissions, and persons who continue to receive income from their investment in a business or partnership.

People who need additional information about the special rules affecting earnings for retired self-employed people should call the San Angelo Social Security Office. The telephone number is 949-4608. The office is located at 2214 Sherwood Way. Ask for the leaflet, HOW WORK AFFECTS YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY CHECK.

Letter to the Editor

A special thanks to all the wonderful people I've met in Winters in the past six weeks. I've spent 13 years of the last 26 years in San Angelo and have been around the world at least eight times during that 26 years, but had never visited Winters except to fish at Elm Creek Lake. I am very glad that I finally had the opportunity to visit with and really meet the people in Winters.

You should hang a sign on every road leading into the County announcing "The friendliest and best people in the world". I thoroughly enjoyed visiting with all of you, stopping in at the General Store to smell the wonderful scents and enjoying the beautiful smiles; drinking excellent coffee and enjoying pleasant conversation with the folks gathered at the DQ—even if "the first liar didn't stand a chance", gossiping with the ladies out at Crews and learning the area history from Mrs. Kurtz, learning when to plant black-eyed peas to get a good crop from the farmers around Winters and Norton—and even though I must give God the credit for the three rains you had in that six weeks, I couldn't help but notice that they fell on my first day in town on each of the three weeks I was there.

My only regret is that I never did get over to Poe's Corner to meet Charlie—But—maybe I can drop back in a couple of weeks to see if it will rain enough to raise a spoon-billed catfish and get to visit at Poe's Corner.

Thanks for everything

Memo from Kay

Winters has lost several long time citizens during the past week. This certainly seems to be the proper time to share our love and caring with the many friends and family members of those who have left us.

It sometimes takes losses like these to remind us of the special closeness of a small community, a place where we are all neighbors no matter which block or which side of town we live on. The Chamber of Commerce and the business section of Winters will indeed miss the wisdom and leadership that came from our friend J. W. Bahlman.

May the younger citizens of the Winters business community accept the challenge to assume the responsibilities necessary to a progressive town and to fill the shoes of the leaders that are passing.

Session should guarantee bond rating, Water Development Board Chairman says

The special session of the Texas Legislature called by Gov. Mark White should sound a favorable note to allow full implementation of the legislative water plan approved last year by the state's voters, according to the chairman of the Texas Water Development Board.

"The Board welcomes the session, and is confident the Legislature will take positive steps necessary to insure the credit of the state keeps its top rating," said Thomas Dunning.

"Because of relatively fast changes in the state's financial position, we've postponed the sale of $100 million in water development bonds that would have provided additional funds for loans to local governments for water supply, wastewater treatment, and flood control projects," he said. However, Dunning said that he anticipated that action taken in the special session will remove the uncertainty and assure continuation of the top credit rating for the state, allowing the Board to proceed.

Dunning explained that financial institutions rate the bonds issued by governments, such as the State of Texas, according to risk. The higher the bond rating, the less interest the issuer must pay on its bonds. These lower rates obtained by the state are then passed on to local governments in the form of similarly low rates for water development loans.

"Without the help of low interest loans such as those available through the Board, many cities might have to delay needed projects. It is imperative that the Legislature take action in the special session to protect this source of financial assistance that the Board can offer," Dunning said. He added that the Board expects to market an additional $100 million in water development bonds as soon as possible after the special session.

The legislative water plan, approved by 72 percent of Texas voters last November, authorized the Board to issue bonds for $190 million in loans for water supply projects, for $190 million in loans for wastewater treatment projects, and for $200 million in loans for flood control projects. Another $400 million in bonds was authorized to provide funds for state acquisition of parts of regional water and sewer systems and reservoirs. The Board issues bonds as needed to provide funds for these programs.

These funds are especially important to smaller communities, Dunning noted, because they usually cannot raise funds for maintaining and upgrading existing water systems on their own.

After school activities helpful

Participation in band, 4-H clubs, athletics and other after-school activities is more than just a "good time" for teenagers. After-school activities encourage responsible behavior and help teenagers avoid delinquent behaviors, such as vandalism, says Diane T. Welch, a family life education specialist. Vandalism is commonly thought of as an urban problem, notes Welch, a home economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. According to studies reported by Pennsylvania State University researchers, however, over half the students in rural high schools had committed at least one act of vandalism. Nearly 75 percent of those students repeated their behaviors three or more times. The reports also show that young people who participated in organized youth activities were not as involved in vandalism as those young people who did not have after-school activities.

Free trees given by foundation

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten free trees to people who become Foundation members during August, 1986.

The free trees are part of the Foundation's effort to promote tree planting throughout America.

A Sugar Maple, White Flowering Dogwood, Pin Oak, White Pine, Red Maple, Birch, American Redbud, Silver Maple, Red Oak, and Colorado Blue Spruce tree will be given to members joining during August. The six-to-twelve inch trees will be shipped this fall at the right time for planting between October 15 and December 10. They will be sent postage paid with enclosed planting instructions.

These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: Lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds, according to the Foundation.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting. The Foundation will give the ten free trees to members contributing $10 during August.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to TEN TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by August 31, 1986.

Dozens of onlookers

Attention is called not to the vehicles involved in the wreck, but to the many people who showed up to crowd around the accident last Thursday. The sightseers at times were in the way of emergency personnel and added to the problems of moving traffic around the accident in the busy U. S. 83-F. M. 53 intersection.

Agri-Women

with farming and many children believe milk is made in factories, they will try to present the real identity of American farmers to urban consumers, politicians, media and church leadership by education. They will write letters and visit their Legislators hoping to broaden Agriculture's influence in the market place and in the political area on all levels; local, state, regional and national. They will work for a marketing system which makes quality food and fiber available to all on a reasonable cost basis and at a fair profit to the farmer.

All through history, the women on a farm have worked side by side with the men, hoeing, picking, gathering, whatever needed doing. When these jobs became obsolete the women learned to operate the new equipment or took jobs off the farm to help with expenses, and many times do both. Now there is a new need. Farmers in general are very "low-profile". They would rather be on a tractor doing their thing, repairing their equipment and fences, planning what to plant and where or figuring what they can do to break even, instead of talking to the public or their legislatures about what they need and what would be good for the American people and farmers.

Texas Agri-Women President Gail Long of Mission, Texas was quoted in a recent interview saying, "If women set their minds to it they are generally good negotiators. Women are known for their patience and don't lose their tempers or give up if they believe in a cause. Women are usually organized and goal oriented. Legislators are listening to women because it is something new to be hearing from women on the farm problem and they are paying more attention because they don't hear from women every day."

Texas Agri-Women ask you to remember the quote of William Jennings Bryan in 1886, "Burn down your cities and leave our farms and your cities will spring up again as if by magic, but destroy our farms and the grass will grow in the streets of every city in the country." If you give a honest look at the world today, is this not still true?

Bob Bullock reports on tax restructure

State Comptroller Bob Bullock released details of a plan to restructure Texas' major taxes with reduced rates on broader tax base.

"The Texas tax system currently does not mirror the Texas economy and is in dire need of fair, uniform simplification," Bullock said.

Bullock's suggestions were included in a Special Financial Report, "Time of Change/Time of Choice," and amount to the first overhaul of the sales tax since it was adopted 25 years ago.

The centerpiece of the plan would put a lower tax rate on goods and virtually all services not currently taxed and put items taxed under separate laws—like the hotel occupancy tax—under the sales tax umbrella.

A series of calculations illustrating the tax concept shows that it could raise between $926 million and $4.8 billion in additional revenue in the 1988-89 biennium depending on which lower tax rate was adopted.

Bullock said the expanded sales tax base would also boost the income to cities and transit authorities by nearly $1.5 billion in the 1988-89 budget period.

The proposal also reduces tax rates on motor vehicle sales, lowers oil and gas severance rates and taxes other minerals produced in Texas.

It also changes the make-up of the state's corporate franchise tax with its heavy—and some say archaic—reliance on assessments against capital and surplus with a new formula that levies against corporate gross receipts at a dramatically-reduced rate.

Exemptions are suggested for small businesses from both the sales tax and corporate franchise tax. It would remove 110,000 current sales tax taxpayers with annual sales of less than $5,000 and would exempt 113,000 small corporations with annual receipts of less than

Congressman

Charles W. Stenholm

The House of Representatives indicated its unanimous desire to calm senior citizens' fears about Social Security funds by passing H.R. 5050, which prohibits the sale of assets in the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

As a result of the congressional measure, the Social Security Administration would be set up as an independent federal agency and no longer under the jurisdiction of the Department of Health and Human Resources.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm (D-Texas) said this action should help ease the concerns of senior citizens across the nation. "Congress rarely votes unanimously about any issue," he said. "I hope that despite tactics by some organizations to arouse the fears of senior citizens, confidence now will be restored that Congress is truly concerned about the fair treatment of seniors." In the past two fiscal years, the administration has chosen to "cash in" Social Security bonds in response to Congress' failure to raise the legal limit on the public debt. Although Congress followed with legislation to replace the capital and interest, this action confused the public and caused many citizens to worry about the future of the funds.

By adopting these measures, the House hopes to eliminate the cause of those fears. The legislation prohibits the Administration from using the funds as they have in the past. No full counterpart measure is currently before the Senate, though a less restrictive version of the ban on "disinvesting" Social Security funds is contained in the pending debt ceiling bill.

businesses, it will bring 234,000 new taxpayers into the system, particularly service industries, which now employ a fourth of the state's workers.

The plan would make it possible to roll back sales tax rates to those of 15 years ago, produce additional revenue and give small taxpayers a break, Bullock said.

The proposal keeps exemptions for food for home consumption, agricultural items, prescribed medicine, doctors' bills, required medical devices and appliances.

Bullock said the proposal will lessen the impact of sales tax regressivity by lowering the rate and taxing sales of personal and professional services purchased by high-income households.
