By Kerry Craig

The resignations in our police department have come, somewhat, as a surprise—but then, again, not really.

The department survived, luckily, considerable upheaval caused by a former administrator almost two years ago.

Our city found itself a new city administrator and a new police chief along about the same time that it found itself in a severe financial bind. Much of that bind was due to the former administrator.

Some budget constraints just had to be kept above water.

While every facet of the city's operations had to cut corners to make ends meet, a big portion of the budget restrictions hit the cop shop.

The police officers, as well as other city employees, had to do without anticipated salary increases. All had to do without many things that would have made their jobs easier.

Perhaps, if our city could have found the dollars, it would not be looking to fill two vacancies in the police department.

That department is different from the other city departments, with one or two exceptions, in that the people that hold those jobs must have undergone intensive training and examination by the state before being able to assume the position.

For the most part, I have agreed with the present administration's steps to keep the city financially solvent and with the way the city has functioned.

Perhaps there was absolutely no way to find the dollars, maybe there should have been, though.

Police officers are the guys we call when we need help. They are on the job around the clock. Rain or shine, they have always responded when called. From enforcement of traffic laws to making most dangerous calls in law enforcement—family disturbances—these faithful officers have been there. Perhaps they deserve a bit more than they have been getting.

It is hard to maintain a police department with the salaries of officers draw in a small community. The pay is generally less in the small community than what is paid a police recruit while he is in training in a big city department.

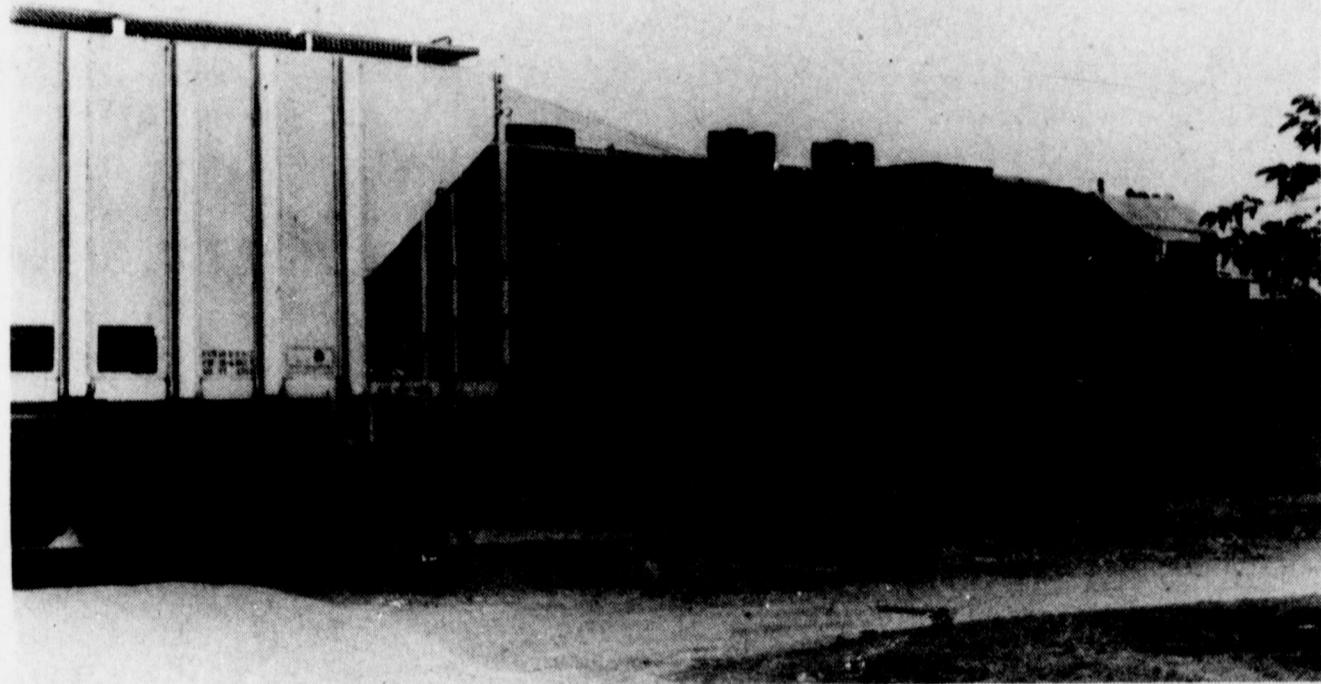

I may be stepping out of line here but, when a man is hired as manager, or chief, he should be that. He should be responsible to the city's chief executive officer. He should be the one where the buck stops, or starts, in that department.

Our police department has come a long way in the past year and a half. It has done so in spite of tight dollars.

With the resignations, we can only hope our city council can profit by what it has learned and continue to allow the police department to improve and to enable the department to have more to do its job with.

Personally, the resignation of the chief will be a loss. Ted has become a good friend. I know I will miss him as will many of us. He has done us an excellent job.

We can only wish him, and his family, happiness and success as they return to Austin to continue a career in one of the most demanding of all professions—a Cop.

The grain season is here

The wheat harvest signals a lot of activity in the area each year. Even with the prospect of losing our railroad, the grain harvest brought a ten-car train to Winters last week. In two days, the jumbo cars were loaded and sent on their way.

In spite of extremely dry conditions, the wheat is looking better than might have been anticipated. The rain this week will delay the harvest for a few days and will also give some of the wheat more time to mature and ripen.

Winters teen attacked, house fire suspicious

Runnels County Sheriff's officers are investigating the vicious attack on a 16 year-old Winters girl.

Police officers were first called to North Runnels Hospital where the girl's mother had taken her for severe lacerations to the throat and neck. The injuries were sustained during the attack, which occurred at a residence west of Winters about 5 p.m. Tuesday afternoon.

After receiving emergency treatment at the Winters hospital, the young woman was rushed to Humana Hospital-Abilene for surgery.

While enroute to Abilene, the youth communicated with medical personnel and told them her house was on fire.

Firemen arrived, along with law enforcement officers to find smoke pouring from the rear of the home. Firefighters had to wait a few minutes, a short distance from the residence, while officers determined that the attack suspect was not in the house.

Officers said that the young woman was thought to have been sexually assaulted before being attacked with a knife.

Officers searched the area, using officers in vehicles, on foot, and an aircraft to search for the assailant's tracks through a muddy field.

By 10:00 p.m. Tuesday evening Sheriff Bill Baird said that his officers had not located a suspect in the attack, but that a search and intense investigation was underway.

Officers also said that an ar-

Auction benefits Ballinger School District and Runnels County

Equipment that was seized on February 12, 1987 on behalf of the school district and county through an order issued by former Judge Curt Steib will be sold at auction June 7th according to School District Tax Assessor/Collector Patti Robinson.

The company that owned the equipment owes $29,446 in property taxes to Ballinger School District and Runnels County.

Steib issued the seizure order when Robinson and the school district's delinquent tax attorney determined that the San Angelo Company was moving the equipment from a site in Western Runnels County, Robinson said.

However, sale of the equipment, to recover delinquent taxes owed by Pool Sand and Gravel was delayed when the company filed for bankruptcy one week after the seizure, Robinson said.

"We've been working on the case for the past one year and three months. It finally looks like we are going to be able to hold the sale to recover the taxes owed," she said.

Proceeds from the auction will be pro-rated according to taxes due to both the school district and the county, according to Robinson.

The San Angelo company owes the county $10,109.66 in back taxes. The company owes the school district $18,118.65 in delinquent taxes, Robinson said.

"If the equipment sells for more than the company owes in taxes, the additional funds will go to other lien holders," she said.

The auction is scheduled for 11 a.m., June 7, at the Clifton Reed Farm on Highway 3115 at the Colorado River. Other items will be sold during the auction. However, the school district and county will benefit only from

Industrial founder J.P. Dry dies Thursday

Funeral services were held Saturday in Winters for John Preston Dry, 70, who died Thursday in Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene.

John Preston (Johnny) Dry was instrumental in the founding of three of Winters' major industrial businesses, J. R. Dry and Sons, now known as Winters Manufacturing, Dry Manufacturing, and John's International.

Born September 28, 1917, in Winters, he lived in Winters most of his life. He married Nita Taylor on Christmas Day in 1955.

Johnny Dry served in the U. S. Army Air Corps during World War II and, following his discharge in early 1947, he started an evaporative cooler business which he operated until 1956 when that business was sold and he moved to Abilene.

In Abilene, Dry began pre-fabricating heating and cooling components in a business that he sold later that year. Also in 1956 he was instrumental in the construction of an evaporative cooler manufacturing plant in Mexico.

John Dry returned to his native Winters in late 1958 and, with his brothers Hal and Cherry, founded the grill and register business which became known as Dry Manufacturing.

Dry Manufacturing was sold to the Wallace-Murray Corporation of New York in November of 1969 and John Dry remained president of the manufacturing division until he resigned later that year.

In 1970, John's International was founded by John Dry. Winters' third major manufacturing business was sold to a Houston firm in late 1976.

Following Johnny's retirement in 1976, he and wife Nita maintained homes in Brownsville and in Winters. During this time John Dry was actively involved with interests in cattle ranching and with oil interests.

After living in Abilene for a short time, John Dry moved back to Winters and started his fourth industrial venture, JP's Manufacturing, which built fire place accessories and was located just a short distance north of Winters on U. S. 83.

While in Winters John Dry served a number of years as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Winters Independent School District and on the Board of Directors of Winters Housing Authority.

In 1964, the Winters Area Chamber of Commerce named John Dry as Winters' citizen of the year for that year.

Johnny Dry

A member of the Presbyterian Church, John Preston Dry is survived by his wife Nita; a son, John Michael Dry of Winters; two brothers, Hal and C. A. Dry, of Winters; and one grandson.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon in Winters' First United Methodist Church with Rev. Grantland Groves officiating, assisted by the Rev. Travis Franklin.

Burial was in Lakeview Cemetery under the direction of Winters Funeral Home.

Pallbearers were E. B. Underwood, James West, Ray Alderman, E. J. Bishop, Doyle Pumphrey, Bobby Airhart, Skinny Shackelford, and H. M. (Jiggs) Nichols.

The Train Arrives

After the final contract with the railroad was signed on September 22, 1908, the Winters people didn't set down and wait during the long months ahead. They were up and doing because the railroad would bring prosperity and they wanted to be ready for it.

J. L. Heath, an enterprising businessman, whose home was a block from the proposed railroad, conceived the idea of building a hotel. Rock was hauled from the dismantled county jail and hotel at Runnels City, the first county seat, and work began. The hotel was completed before the train arrived.

New homes and business houses sprang up here and there. The farmers got ready for more and bigger crops of cotton and grain. Winters was incorporated and the first city officials elected.

The indenture required Morgan Jones to build a standard gauge railroad from the Texas and Pacific tracks at Abilene to Winters.

Jones was indeed ready to begin. With assistance from his nephews, Morgan C. and Percy, he managed to have grading crews at work by October 30, 1908. They commenced five miles north of Winters, just below the Runnels County line. Separate crews worked north and south at that point, Jones promised that "active grading will not cease until the track is actually laid."

The first train that departed Abilene for Winters on July 7, 1909, was a single 2-8-2 engine, No. 20, which pulled a long red combine car, No. 52. The combine was a combination caboose, passenger, express and freight car. Its special features included screened doors and windows, coal-oil lamps and a coal stove. The colorful little train arrived in time for the noon picnic as planned.

There was great rejoicing among the citizens and they all turned out for the picnic to celebrate. The Winters Brass Band furnished entertainment for the occasion.

An unscheduled downpour of rain caused everyone to run for cover and Mrs. Max Lewis recalled the floors in the new home of her parents, the Cliff Kornegays, were completely ruined and had to be refinished.

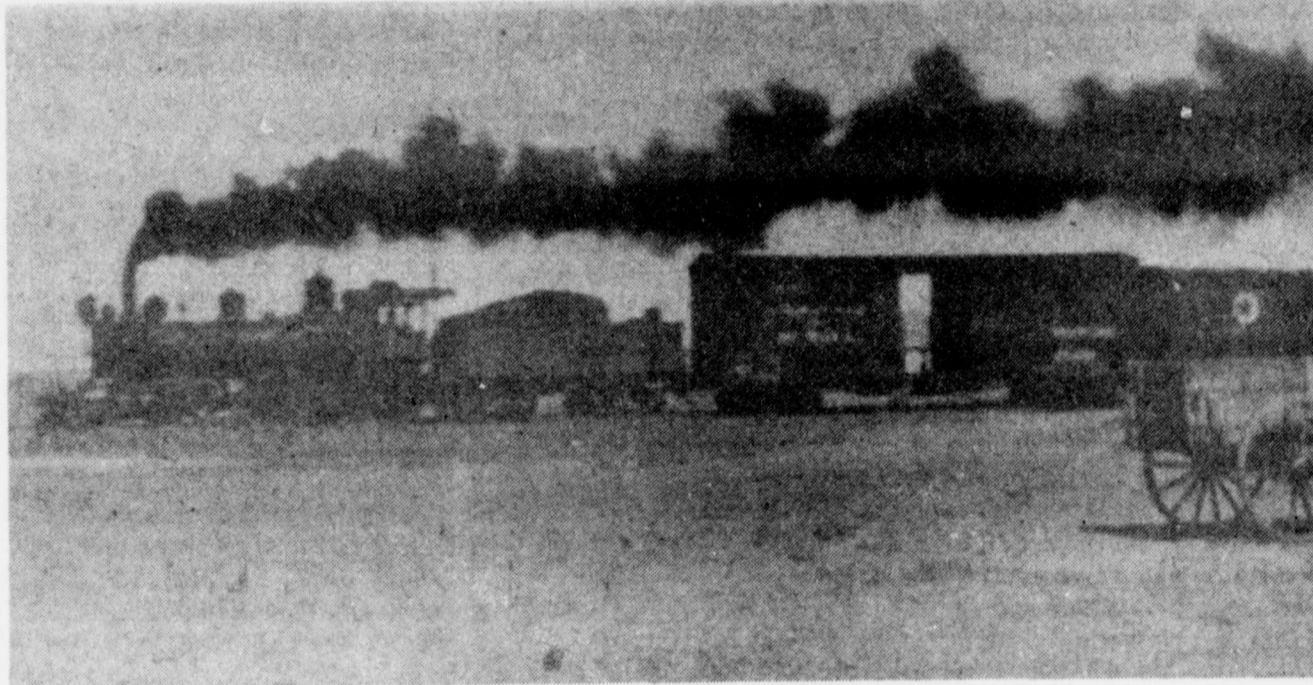

Mrs. T. V. Jennings remembered that she had on a hat trimmed in red roses. As the rain came down so did the red out of her roses, her face and dress took on a rosy hue.

Roy Crawford said that the train was decked with banners and loaded with railroad officials. He could remember getting up into the cab of the engine with the fireman to see all the levers, whistle and bell cords. While he was up there, the fireman decided to have some fun out of the bystanders. He rang the bell a few times and yelled out the window, "Move back, folks, we've got to turn around."

Crawford couldn't vouch for the way the story ended, but it was said that several people were trampled in the stampede to get out of the way.

The first through train from Abilene reached Ballinger on September 9, 1909. Col. Jones had connected successfully the rails of the Fort Worth and Denver City, the Texas and Pacific and the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe. It connected Abilene to Runnels' prosperous farmers and ranchers. The total cost was $688,536.52.

Jones initially scheduled a daily round-trip to Ballinger, but within weeks so many farmers, ranchers and their families traveled to Abilene that Jones added a round-trip evening train to the schedule. Many passengers were immigrant farmers who purchased acreage and carved farms from former ranch lands.

The Colonel often made inspection trips. His weary nephews, Percy, the engineer, and Morgan C., the conductor, always dreaded to see "the old mahn" climb aboard. If they drove too swiftly, he said they could not see the farmers along the right-of-way who wanted to stop the train to order tobacco and snuff. If they drove too slowly, he claimed they were trying to camouflage the roads rough places. He never forgot that its purpose was public service.

"The Abilene & Southern was, indeed, the best little road I ever built," declared Jones.

During its first season, the train hauled between 40 and 50 thousand bales of cotton to local markets. Freight service to Ballinger ended in 1966, but continues until this day at Winters.

At one time, trips to Abilene on the colorful little train were a favorite past time of many people. This practice might be revived if there are enough people interested in retaining some of the best of our heritage. Many towns have managed this problem of maintaining rail service.

Welsh-born Morgan Jones, a railroad builder, came to Texas in the 1870's and remained here until his death in 1926 in Abilene, one of the towns his rails helped to promote.

He laid more rails across north and west Texas than any one individual. His life was in effect a history of railroading in the region and an account of the tremendous impact railroads had on its development.

Nursing Home news

Thank you Winters for a great May! You've continued to care and be involved with our residents. Thanks. Family night May 13, was the best ever! Over 100 guests and residents enjoyed barbecue and music shared by the Bluff Creek Band. Good music and a beautiful day combined for a nice finish of National Nursing Home Week.

Many activities are planned for June including a volleyball tournament, garage sale, bake sale and square dance. More on that in coming weeks. We would like to welcome young people ages 10-13 into our home for fun and caring this summer. For those families that have young people with responsible caring attitudes we would like to hear from you. A structured volunteer experience makes for great summers and strong characters. Many volunteer opportunities exist. Contact David Willson if you or your children are interested. Many young people have expressed intent. An adult coordinator would be helpful. Stay tuned.

All our thanks to those that gave of themselves during May—to Mrs. Dry for the hanging baskets, to Joe and Melba Emmert for the joy of music on their organ, to all the area Pastors and Ministers Alliance for faithful caring in worship experience. To the Pentecost Church for our Birthday Party. Happy birthdays to Garland Crouch and James West; and Liz Willson for the drapes in our dining room. The material given by the Veterans of Foreign Wars made our dietary department even more homelike. Helen Crenshaw has really done beautifully with plants and helping to start an outdoor landscape! Richard Watkins has broke his back carrying his organ and will be bringing dominoes for awhile. We're sorry to lose Stephanie Smith as our Activity Director. We wish her well. As you have questions about our activity program feel free to call David or Liz Willson. Thanks for caring Winters. It's a pleasure serving you in His name.

P.S. We've had to postpone our garage sale scheduled for June 4. More later. Thanks.

NOTICE-NORTH RUNNELS WATER SUPPLY CORPORATION CUSTOMERS

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has adopted requirements that all public water systems notify their customers about lead exposure. This notification is intended to educate and inform consumers on this issue in light of the fact that your drinking water may be a potential source of lead exposure. This is being done even though your water system is not in violation of the current standard. There are also other potential sources of lead contamination in the environment.

The following specific language is required by EPA in this notice:

The United State Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (PPM). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain; kidneys; nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest: 1. if your home or water system has lead pipes, or 2. if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and -if the home is less than five years old or -if you have soft or acidic water, or -if water sits in the pipes for several hours

Ways to avoid potential lead exposure are to "flush" faucets before use and to use cold water for drinking and cooking. You may wish to have your home tap water tested for lead content by a competent laboratory. You may also wish to check to see of lead pipes, solder, or flux were used in your home plumbing.

For additional information contact: Perry Poe, Manager, North Runnels Water Supply Corporation, 915-754-5000. (May 26, June 2, 9, 1988)

A. Veterans may receive compensation for a pre-existing condition if the condition was aggravated during service beyond the normal progression of the disability. You should apply for compensation for any disability that might fit this category so that a determination of eligibility can be made.

From A Goldfish Bowl

By Pastor Steve Byrne

I went to the high school graduation last Friday night. It was an important event in the lives of the graduates. A ritual which recognized their accomplishments, let them bid farewell to the past stage of life, and propelled them into the next stage of their earthly journey. Michelle Baker's words in her address were not only prophetic, but right on target. She said, "It is time to move on." Like all good rituals, this one was filled with dignity that was only partially interrupted by a few folks giving cat-calls. These folks don't understand the importance of ritual.

But then our society as a whole doesn't understand the importance of ritualizing important stages or passages in life. Rituals like these are important for us so we can say good-bye to the old and walk into the new. Without such rituals, we tend to go back and forth between old and new, and not make as much progress as we could if we had ritualized the passage.

Jack Sanford tells the story of a primitive people of Australia who have a very important ritual for young males in the tribe which made their transition from childhood to adulthood a little easier. When the boy became the proper age, the men of the tribe came to the women's part of the village, where the young boy had been raised and nurtured to this point.

They would take the boy with them and go to the part of the village where the men do their thing. He would be appropriately initiated, frightened and what-not. Then they would let him in on all the male mysteries and the young boy would be accepted as an adult member of the tribe.

The final part of this ceremony may be the most significant of all. After being duly initiated into the tribe, the young boy would go back to the village where the women were. He would carry a pitcher of water with him. His mother would go out to greet him. Then she would ask for a drink of water. At which time her son would throw the water in her face and walk away.

It was all done in the context of the ritual. The young boy leaves his dependence on mother to become a man. Mom didn't get upset because it was part of the ritual.

We don't have a ritual like that in our society. So Mom usually gets water thrown in her face in one form or another for about five years.

The Church has some rituals. Confirmation. Marriage. Funerals. It is not enough. But it is a start.

Families celebrate birthdays. Wouldn't it be helpful if families developed their own rituals for any time members of the family reach a stage where one door is shut and another open?

It is worth thinking about. By the way, Congratulations and Good Luck, Graduates.

Students urged to apply for grants

Students and future students in need if supplemental funding for college were urged today to write to The Scholarship Bank for a free financial aid planning calendar and information on private scholarship sources.

According to the director of this national, non-profit foundation, an estimated half-billion dollars is available to high school and college students, many of whom may not know that they are eligible. Funds are contributed by corporations, trade, civic and non-profit groups and are normally awarded on such basis as academic standing, college major, geographic preferences, areas of special interest and even on the student's willingness to consider a special research project. Parental factors such as union, employer or past military experience are also considered by some donors.

The Scholarship Bank works with financial aid counseling offices throughout the U.S. to assist in distribution of the information on the approximately 3,500 scholarship sources. Each scholarship has a value of at least $1,000 and many are renewable yearly. Graduate level grants with values of up to $25,000 are also available. All students receive from 20 to 65 different aid sources for which they are potentially eligible. For the 1988-89 school year, a number of new aid sources are available to students majoring in law, business, health, engineering, computer sciences and the humanities. Three national organizations are funding older women returning to school.

High School, college and future students should send now for their free planning calendar and information on the scholarships by sending a stamped, self addressed envelope (business size) to The Scholarship Bank, 13944 E. Amar Rd., La Puente, California 91748. For faster service, call toll free 1-800-332-4432 outside California and 1-800-523-6831 in California.

Cargo floating on the water from a sinking ship is called flotsam, while the debris washed ashore is called wreck.

General Situation

Cotton planting is well underway in Runnels and Tom Green Counties. The soil moisture situation is good in most areas, but a few areas could stand a little more moisture. Overwintered boll weevil emergence has slowed from last week.

Insecticide recommendations for commercial producers are as follows:

Boll Weevils

Overwintering boll weevil emergence slowed down this week. Probably due to the cool nights we have had the past several days. The peak period of boll weevil emergence from overwintering sites is typically the last week of May and the first two weeks of June. Let's hope this continues to be true.

Scouting Techniques

Rumors are floating around that the new guy is going to change the scouting techniques used here. That is not true. We will continue to use the point sample technique. This is an efficient method of scouting cotton. The Extension Service is looking at some other techniques to use, but at this point in time, we are just evaluating the efficiency of them.

RRC levies fines

The Railroad Commission levied $39,000 in administrative penalties Monday to 12 oil and gas operators for problems under the Commission's well plugging rules.

The largest of the penalties, a total of $8,000, went to De Los International of Dallas for two inactive and unplugged wells on the Brewer lease and one well each on the W. C. Brewer and Kaufman leases, all in Kaufman County. Commission records indicate the wells became inactive almost three years ago.

Other well plugging penalties included BLR Enterprises, Inc. of Abilene, $1,500 for one well on the C. G. Raughton lease, Haskell County; Fortune Energy of Richardson, $3,000 for a well on the Marshall "A" lease, Wichita County; Christlin Petroleum Corp. of Leander, $4,000 for two wells on the Schirocky lease, Bastrop County; and K.C. and J.L. Huey of Freer, $4,000 for two wells on the Bishop Cattle Company "B" lease, Duval County.

Contests in 39 different categories will kick off the second day of Roundup. Competitive events will continue throughout the day, and winners will be recognized at a special awards program that evening.

4-H'ers competing in Roundup contests must qualify by winning in county and district competition, points out Swift.

Phone orders can be placed by calling 915/762-3642 or 915/762-2294. Ticket orders can be mailed to the Fandangle, Box 155, Albany, Texas 76430.

The association accepts Master Card and Visa for phone order, or a check can be sent to the office. Tickets are not pulled until payment is received. Tickets can also be purchased at the gate the night of performance; however, advanced ticket purchases are recommended in order to insure seats are available.

The theme for the 50th anniversary show will be a composite of many of the Fandangle performances from years past, plus several new members.

Lots of other Fandangle activities are planned plus a Western Style Barbecue Supper prepared by Joe Allen's Bar-B-Q of Abilene. The meal will be served on the courthouse lawn from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. and includes brisket, sausage, beans, cole slaw and all the trimmings. Tickets are available at $5.50 per plate for adults and $3.50 for children under 10 years.

To date in 1988 the Commission has levied more than $364,000 in pollution and well plugging penalties. Last year, the Commission assessed some $794,000 in such penalties.

Dreams can come true

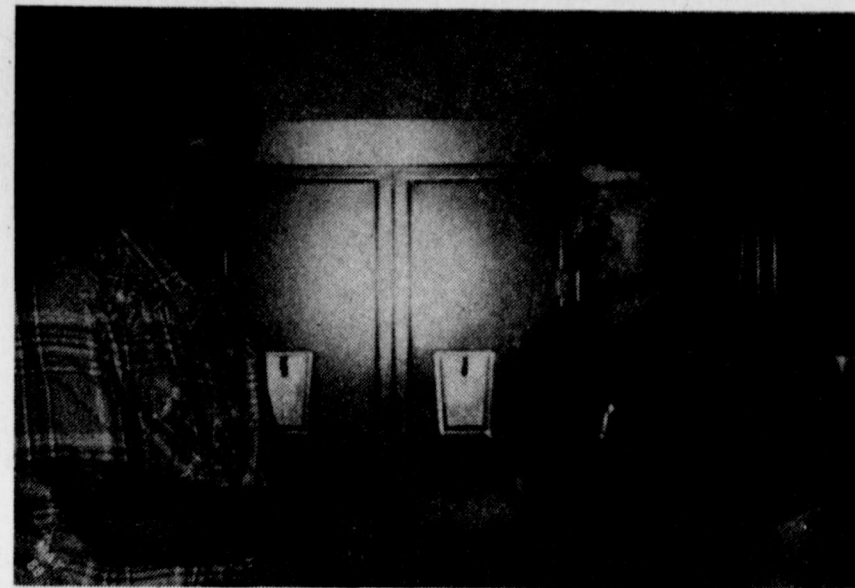

The Texas Elks Camp is offering children with multiple handicaps the chance to fulfill their dreams of going off to camp. At the camp they can expand their social, self-help, and leisure skills.

According to Project Manager Leroy Haverlah, Jr., any child from six to 16, who is a resident of the state of Texas, may attend. An admissions committee reviews each application. All are eligible regardless of race, religion or ethnic origin.

The camp is situated in Central Texas on 10 rural acres. Located between Luling and Gonzales, campers live within the main "lodge" which is totally accessible for all handicapping conditions. The camp has a fully equipped kitchen and dining hall, recreation and activity rooms.

Palmetto State Park, located next to the Elks Camp, is used for fishing, hiking and nature studies. The Gonzales Elks Lodge provides a large swimming pool.

"Some activities the campers will participate in include cam-pouts, scavenger hunts, wacky olympics, creative dramatics, camp fires, marshmallow roasts, horseback riding and sing-alongs," Haverlah said.

The campers also participate in athletics such as soccer, softball, football and basketball. Haverlah said each activity is adapted to the child's need and being the best is not stressed in the activities, but participation is.

Haverlah said the camp staff members include camp director, activity counselors, group counselors, registered nurse, medical personnel, kitchen and maintenance workers. Haverlah feels the camp's 3-1 ratio of campers-to-counselors is outstanding. The counselors are college students 18 years of age or older, and each staff member goes through a week of intense training, prior to camp, which helps each counselor to be sensitive to the specialized needs of each camper.

According to Haverlah, the residential camp is free of charge and is sponsored by the Texas Elks Foundation for Handicapped Children, the major state project of the Texas Elks State Association, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America.

The camping program is open to children with numerous problems such as amputees, birth defect (physical), blind/vision impaired, cerebral palsy, hard of hearing/deaf, hydrocephalus, juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, perthes disease, tumor-having a physical effect, mute, partial paralysis, mental retardation (level 1 adaptive deviation 16; Wechsler Scales-above 55, standard deviation 15; level of retardation "mild," education term "educable"), polio, rickets, scoliosis and stroke.

According to the application, campers should be able to participate in and enjoy a carefully planned camping program for handicapped children. Applicants should have normal bowel and kidney function and control. If there are internal or external devices, the child must take care of these needs. Applicants should have some degree of independent self-help skills in feeding and dressing themselves.

Six one-week sessions, allowing 24 children each, will take place this summer. Summer Session I will take place June 26 to July 2, Session II July 3-9, Session III July 10-16, Session IV July 17-23, Session V July 24-29 and Session VI July 31-August 6.

"Last year was the first year for the camp. It went very well and we extended the sessions by two for this year," said Haverlah.

Applicants may call 512-672-7561 or write Elks Camp, Route 5, Box 191, Gonzales, Texas 78629.

Alcohol and boating don't mix

It happens quickly. A person, clumsy with the effects of one too many drinks, slips into the darkness of cool, suffocating water. Not realizing how near death is, he gasps for air, but instead inhales a flood of water. Then slowly and silently, his body drifts down into the deep, unforgiving lake.

The party's over. And so are the good times.

Gruesome as the scenario sounds, it describes many drownings which are often the result of boating while intoxicated. In observance of National Safe Boating Week, the Fort Worth District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers cautions boaters, fisherman and even swimmers to use common sense while out on the water.

Alcohol, which induces fatigue and a loss of coordination, balance and judgment, is a factor in more than 50 percent of all boating accidents. Many of the deaths are a result of people, already lacking coordination and the ability to react swiftly, who fall out of boats or capsize the unstable crafts.

Motion, engine noise, sun, wind and glare all further contribute to the serious impairment of an individual's reaction time. To counter these effects, the National Safe Boating Council suggest that people apply the designated driver concept to boating—one member of the party staying sober to operate the boat. But whether operator or passenger, a drunk person is always at risk on a boat.

VA to provide valor inscriptions on new grave markers

Dr. Stephen L. Lemons, Director of the VA Regional Office, Waco, Texas, stated "The Veterans Administration will now provide inscriptions for certain military awards on future government-furnished headstones and markers." The new policy, effective May 1, adds four valor awards and the Purple Heart to inscription information provided at no charge.

These awards are in addition to the words Medal of Honor and a facsimile of the medal which have been inscribed to denote the nation's highest military honor for many years. "This is a significant change to the headstone inscription policy and is very deserving," said Lemons.

The additional valor awards that will be inscribed at government expense are: Distinguished Service Cross, Navy Cross, Air Force Cross and Silver Star. Valor awards, or decorations, are given for extraordinary heroism or gallantry in combat. The Purple Heart is awarded for the death or wounds suffered as a result of combat. Space limitations may require the use of abbreviations for the inscriptions.

Headstones or grave markers are provided by the VA without charge for the gravesites of veterans interred in any private, state veterans or national cemetery. In VA-operated national cemeteries and state veterans cemeteries, they also mark the graves of veteran's eligible dependents. The VA operates 112 national cemeteries in 38 states and Puerto Rico, and last year furnished approximately 254,000 headstones and grave markers. For additional information about headstones and markers, contact a Veterans Benefit Counselor by calling toll-free, 1-800-792-3271.

Choosing summer care for children

Summer activities can provide supervision for older children, but may not meet their needs for growth and development, according to Dr. Sarah Anderson, a family life specialist.

"Arranging appropriate summer child care can be difficult, especially for the 10-year-old who feels too old for a babysitter, yet is too young to be on his own," she said.

"So parents must often line up a series of day camps, lessons, and babysitters just to cover the summer months," said the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service economist.

"Child development research indicates that older children need some structure, freedom within limits, positive interaction with adults and other children and involvement in planning their own activities," Anderson said.

"Summer child care arrangements should meet these needs as well as fit into parents'

St. John's Lutheran Pre-School makes plans for 1988-89

St. John's Lutheran Pre-School Directors and Committee are getting ready for next fall. In order to plan next year well, pre-registration forms are available at St. John's Lutheran Church or from one of the committee members.

We look forward to next year work schedules and the family budget."

For example, after months of scheduled classroom instruction, children need free time in the summer to follow their own interest and use time creatively.

The specialist said selecting among arts and crafts, reading, outdoor play, games and other activities encourages decision-making and invites children to explore.

"Parents should look for day care or day camps that give children a choice of activities within a general structure," Anderson said.

"Music or swimming lessons and organized team sports, such as baseball or soccer league are excellent activities. But children shouldn't spend the majority of their time in highly structured or competitive situations," she said.

"During the summer older children need time to learn self-dependence. Learning to sew, do woodwork or cook helps build feelings of competence and self-esteem," said the specialist.

"Any summer care arrangement should also include plenty of time and space to run, climb, jump and experience different kinds of exercise," she said.

"A number of research studies have documented that watching television for hours on end reduces physical activity and contributes to obesity and a lack of fitness in children."

Anderson said children this age also need some solitude. The constant demands of reacting to and interacting with other children and adults can be stressful if there's no relief. Any day-long program should have a quiet time or place where a child can curl up alone with a book or just daydream.

First-ever reunion held

On Saturday, May 28, 1988, there were two "Firsts" taking place here. The Winters High School Class of 1938 held its First-ever 50th Class Reunion and it was the First Reunion of this type to be held in the newly acquired Rock Hotel. Forty-six members were in the graduating class in 1938. In 1988, five of those members are deceased; and only the addresses of three members were not found. Twenty-three Class Members attended the reunion; many from Texas, and also from Washington State and Colorado. A total of 49 people attended. Coffee and sweet rolls were served at the Rock Hotel at 9:30 a.m.; registration, and visiting; then the Museum was toured. The meal was served at the Church of Christ Fellowship Hall. A short program was held, with Mary Margaret Leathers serving as Mistress of Ceremonies. Hostesses for the reunion were Mary Margaret Leathers, Mamie Dell Reed, Margaret Baldwin, Jimmie Earl Whittenburg of Winters, and Launa Brand of Abilene.

During the program there was a memorial service for the five members of the class who are deceased: Billy Joe Nance, Elva Ashley, Edwin Patterson, Alice Jewel Wyatt and Dorothy Fishel. Hostesses for the reunion each lighted a white candle in memory of each deceased classmate and the candles were placed in a tapered candelabra, decorated with greenery.

At 3 p.m. a tour of the High School was made, with all the guests then returning to the Fellowship Hall for an anniversary cake.

A Winters cap was presented to Euland Partain, member coming the longest way, from Federal Way, Washington.

Four football players of the Winters Blizzard team of the football season of 1937 were present for the reunion: Cecil Wood, Euland Partain, Buddy Ramsel and Homer Hodge. That year the Winters-Ballinger football game was played on November 25, 1937, Thanksgiving afternoon, and the score was Winters 7 and Ballinger 6.

Guests other than graduates attending were: Lenora Partain, Helen Gardner, Charles Gardner, Buford Baldwin, E. A. Williams, Pauline Johnson, E. L. Stephens, Floy Hodge, Herbert Stehle, Ozzie Reed, Emma Jean Terry, Roy Terry, J. W. Neville, Lawrence and Bettye Jennings, Gladys and Ernest Jennings, Annie Lee Wood, Bess Byers, Tana Dupont, Eddie Merle Proctor, J. L. Aldridge, Charlene Craven, Helen Mayfield, Loreta White, Venita Mitchell.

A generous donation was made to the Rock Hotel Restoration Fund by the Class of 1938.

Barbie Bradley attends seminar

Barbie Bradley attended the Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Seminar recently in Amarillo, Texas.

Over 84 of the area's top sophomore leaders attended the three-day expense paid conference at the Amarillo Hilton. Some of Texas' most successful businessmen and women provided question and answer sessions for the HOBY Attendants.

Barbie was picked as an alternate to attend the National HOBY Convention in St. Louis, Missouri this August. The Hugh O'Brian Foundation is a great opportunity for select tenth graders to get a realistic look at what makes the American incentive system tick, thus better enabling them to think for themselves. CRP sign-up July 18 to August 5

The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) was established to conserve and improve soil and water resources by retiring highly erodible cropland. The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will share half of the cost of establishing permanent native and introduced grasses, forbs, and shrubs on highly erodible cropland. Under 10 year contracts, ASCS will make annual rental payments to you as long as the terms and conditions of the contract are met. For the last sign-up, a maximum rental payment of $40 per acre was established. This figure is not set so the next sign-up may be more or less than the previous amount.

During the 10 year contract, CRP land cannot be grazed.

Crimestoppers is working for you

Most of the rewards were for narcotic related crimes and one was for burglary. Runnels County Crimestoppers pays cash rewards for information leading to the arrest of any criminal. We are easy to talk to at Runnels County Crimestoppers. Just call 365-2111 or dial the operator and ask for Enterprise 67574. You never have to give us your name and your information may be worth a cash reward of up to $1,000. Runnels County Crimestoppers is here for you. We depend heavily on citizen and group donations. As you can see, we have spent a sizeable amount of reward money. Please make any donations to any Runnels County Bank or Savings Institution. We appreciate your support.

hayed, or harvested for seed, but hunting is permitted. CRP has the potential to greatly improve wildlife habitat conditions. Landowners can further increase wildlife benefits by providing for specific wildlife needs when planning and implementing their program.

The next sign-up period for bidding cropland into CRP will be July 18, 1988 through August 5, 1988. Only 25% of the cropland in any county may be enrolled in the program. The maximum number of acres that could be enrolled during the next sign-up in Runnels is about 23,000. Over 44,000 acres in the county have previously been accepted into the program.

If you wish to participate in CRP, you first need to determine if your land is eligible. You can do this by getting a cropping history from the ASCS showing that the land was farmed far at least two years from 1981 to 1985. The Soil Conservation Service (SCS) will determine if your land is highly erodible. If it is eligible, the SCS can then develop a plan with you for establishing permanent cover on cropland.

You should begin the paperwork now to avoid any delays in getting a contract ready. If you have any questions please contact the Soil Conservation Service in Ballinger.

Tax — proceeds of the four items originally mentioned, according to Robinson.

"We are hopeful that the proceeds will be enough to cover delinquent taxes owed by Pool Sand and Gravel Company. The four pieces of equipment that were seized represent what was believed to be enough to cover the amount of taxes owed," Robinson said.

Among equipment to be sold at the auction June 7th is a International Harvester "Hough" Pay Loader, Case Model Back Hoe-Loader, a Ford Truck with Fontaine Dump Bed, and a Gravel Washer.

Winters native coaches winning team

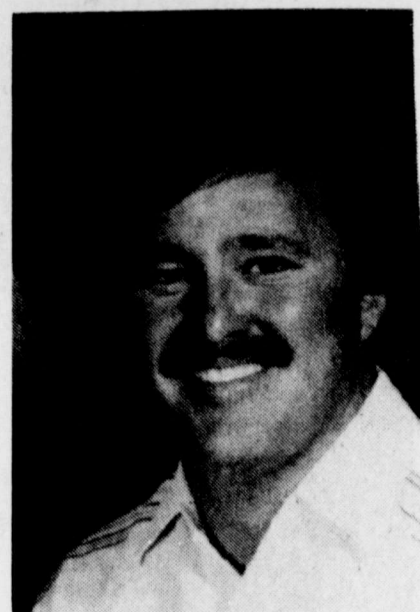

Biff White, a native of Winters who has coached the Bridgeport Bulls for two years has coached his team into the regional playoffs.

On May 24 they played Abilene Wylie Bulldogs and won to advance into an area playoff with Alpine and won. The win for Bridgeport gives them a 17-7 record overall, they will take on Waco LaVega (25-1 and ranked number one in the state in Class 3A). Alpine finishes its season at 15-12.

Bulls' head coach Biff White said the coming back from four-run deficits on two separate occasions shows just what type of spunk his team has.

"I'm really proud of them," White said after the game. "We're not a big play team, and we really didn't have that many big plays today. We have come from a long ways back. No one has given this team a chance this year, but we've fought hard."

White is a 1969 Winters High

Biff White

School graduate and graduated from Tarleton State University with a B S Degree in 1973 and Masters (MED) in 1978. He has been coaching for 14 years. Biff and his wife Debbie have three children.

Biff is the son of Wade and Mary White of Winters.

Selective Service honors 20 millionth registrant

The Selective Service System has registered its 20 millionth man. At a Capital Hill ceremony May 19, 18 year old Neal Goldberg of Fairfax Station, VA., was honored as the 20 millionth man to register since the president reinstated the requirement in 1980. Selective Service Director Sammuell K. Lessey, Jr., and Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) were joined by other members of Congress in honoring Neal.

Like thousands of young men every day, Neal registered at his local post office by completing a simple card. Between 30,000 and 40,000 of these registration cards arrive at the Selective Service Data Management Center in Illinois every week. There they are microfilmed, checked for accuracy and processed. The time required to process a registration, from the date the registration form is completed at the post office, to the date the acknowledgment of the registration is generated, averages 30 days.

Young men must register at the post office within 30 days of turning 18. Although millions have done so since 1980, none has been drafted. The last draft ended in 1973. By having the names and addresses of men between the ages of 18 and 26 on file in the Selective Service System computer, an estimated six weeks could be saved in mobilizing national manpower in a future crisis.

Senator Thurmond noted that Neal "reflects the spirit of today's young men, men who guarantee America's strength with responsibility, commitment, and patriotism." Currently, Selective Service has a compliance rate of over 96.5% for all men ages 18 thru 25.

Selective Service registration has been supported by the Congress since 1980. Lessey noted that "Senator Thurmond and Congressman Gerald B. Solomon (R-N.Y.) have led their colleagues in the Senate and House, in proposing and passing legislation that has been perhaps the most important factor in assuring Selective Service registration."

The Thurmond Amendment

requires that men seeking most federal employment in the executive branch be registered with Selective Service. The Solomon Amendments require registration for a young man to be eligible for student aid under Title IV of the Higher Education Act and for job training benefits under the Job Training Partnership Act. This federal legislation has been paralleled by similar laws in 15 states.

Neal is a senior at James Robinson Senior High School in Fairfax, VA. He will be attending the University of Delaware in the fall.

Councils Meet

The three activity councils of the Texas Chamber of Commerce have begun a series of meetings to implement major projects of the statewide business group.

The Governmental Affairs Council, headed by E.L. Langley of San Angelo, met last week and moved workers' compensation reform to the top of a list of ten legislative targets.

The Economic Development Council already has task forces working on an industrial sales mission to Southern California and the hosting of a delegation of Japanese Businessmen. The full council will meet in mid-June. Glenn Biggs of San Antonio is the Chamber's Vice-Chairman for Economic Development.

A. W. Riter, Jr. of Tyler, Vice-Chairman for Administration and Finance, said that his group also began work on efforts in the next session of the legislature to restore the free port exemption from ad valorem taxes for goods that are temporarily in the state for processing, assembly or distribution.

The group recommended that the Chamber join other business associations in the Texas Association of Compensation Consumers in the effort on workers' compensation reform.

The council also set up task forces to study such issues as trucking regulations, public school funding, judicial reform and health care costs and delivery.
