Food Pantry is in need of can goods

The Winters Food Pantry is in need of cans of food for distribution to individuals and families in need. In a meeting with the Food Pantry board of directors last Monday, Vista Worker Alice Hale said, "We have not been able to buy cut-rate cans of food from the Abilene and San Angelo Food Banks. Their supplies have dried up and they have none to sell. We can still buy bulk items there, like sugar, dried beans, and so forth. But their canned goods supply is gone, and for all practical purposes, our is too."

The Pantry Board took action to ask the Winters Citizenry to respond to the need with donations of canned goods. Board members expressed hope that a barrel could be placed in local supermarkets for shoppers to donate cans of food following check-out.

The Ministerial Alliance is planning a combined effort on the part of the churches to canvass the town on Sunday, August 28 in a canned food drive.

Any one wishing to donate cans of food may take their offerings to the Food Pantry located in the Multi-Purpose Center or to any of the local churches.

Getting back in shape

Coach Dan Slaughter's Winters Blizzards are into their second week of two-a-day workouts in preparation for their first scrimmage of the 1988 football season when the Blizzards host Friday evening at 7:30.

Winters sales tax returns shows 34 percent jump

Winters led Runnels County in the size of the check received from State Comptroller Bob Bullock for the city's share of the sales tax receipts collected during the second quarter of 1988.

The check received by the City of Winters amounted to $20,388.40. That brings the total collected by the city this year to $95,560.04.

Ballinger received $20,862.05 in sales tax money for the second quarter period which shows a decline of 7.81 percent for the quarter.

Miles, the only other city in the county to collect the city sales tax, showed a slight decline in the tax payment from the state, only .40 percent with a check totaling $2,005.90.

In the news release accompanying the latest sales tax figures, State Comptroller Bob Bullock said, "Texas economy is steadily improving. Cities and counties across the state are still seeing the benefits."

The checks from the Comptroller's office totaled $113.5 million to the 1043 Texas cities that collect the local sales tax at either one or one and one-half percent.

Another $10.4 million was sent to 81 of Texas' 254 counties that collect the optional one-half percent sales tax.

Runnels County is one of the 81 counties to collect that one-half percent Sales and Use Tax. The amount received by the county totaled $19,357.16 which brings the county's total for 1988 to $85,575.79.

The reasons for the big jump in the amount received by the City of Winters was the implementation of the additional one-half percent sales tax.

Last year voters in Winters and Runnels County elected to levy the additional half-penny tax, while voters in Ballinger rejected the proposal.

By law, that extra amount col-

Kindergarten and Elementary registration set

New student registration for Elementary students grades K thru 6th who have not previously registered is set for Friday from 9:00 a.m. till 12 noon at the Elementary School's Administration office.

Elementary students grades 1st thru 6th will need their shot records. Kindergarten students will need their shot records and birth certificates.

lected in sales tax must reflect a dollar-for-dollar reduction in the property taxes collected in the jurisdictions that collect the extra tax money.

While the $20,000 plus check received by the City of Winters looks large, especially in light of the tight budget conditions, it would also appear quite small when compared to the almost $20 million collected by Houston.

The county receiving the largest check was El Paso County which received $1.5 million.

The August checks represented taxes collected during the months of April, May, and June of 1988 and reported to the State Comptroller's office during July.

day, August 25, 1988, at 8 p.m. for an ice cream party to meet the 1988 Blizzard Football team.

There will be a Booster Club meeting afterwards.

Burglars hit hard in Winters area

Burglars have struck at Reedy Exxon two times in as many weeks according to officials of that company.

In the first burglary, which occurred on August 6, thieves took about $120 from the coin-operated car wash at the company's office and warehouse on North Main in Winters and, after kicking open a rear door to the office, the thieves emptied the cash box.

Company spokesman Johnny Bates said that approximately $2,500 in cash, checks and credit card receipts were taken. He said that the week-end receipts were apparently dumped from the cash box and the box put back into its place.

To add insult to injury, thieves returned to Reedy Exxon on this past Sunday and used what Bates described as bolt cutters to rip into the coin box on the car wash and took "about three or four dollars," and heavily damaged the car wash equipment.

The spokesman said that, after the first burglary the coin box in the car wash had been reinforced in an effort to prevent another theft. Damage estimates were not available late Tuesday for the latest break in.

In another burglary and theft incident in the past two weeks, thieves destroyed a cold drink vending machine and made off with the money from that machine as well as a pay telephone that was at a salt water disposal site just west of Winters.

Other reports indicate a car wash in Tuscola was hit by burglars as well as vending machines at a grocery store in Tuscola.

The first burglary at the Reedy Company was reported to the Winters Police Department, who notified the Runnels County Sheriff's Department. Although the Reedy Company's address is 1015 North Main, the city limits, which extend to Lake View Cemetery, include only the highway right-of-way.

LULAC Council 658 meets with state officials

Members of Runnels County LULAC chapter 658 met, Tuesday evening, with representatives from the Texas Attorney General's office, Legal Aide attorneys and state Senator-elect Temple Dickson's office regarding recent allegations of civil rights violations by law enforcement officials.

Meeting with the local League of United Latin American Citizens group were DiDi Starkey and Sergio Martinez from Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox's office, Abilene attorney Gilbert Rodriguez from the Legal Aide, and Ray Villareal from Senator-elect Temple Dickson's staff.

Also attending the meeting were about 40 residents of Runnels County, Anglo, Black, and Hispanic.

The LULAC Council discussed meeting with the Ballinger City Council to discuss a program to revamp the playground equipment at the Ballinger City Park.

The LULAC council also agreed to meet with the Ballinger City Council, law enforcement officers and State LULAC officials to form a committee made up of law enforcement officers and Runnels County citizens to form a public relations committee to attempt to improve communications with the law enforcement agencies.

The council heard, and accepted, a letter from District Attorney Dick Alcalá and assistant district John McGregor requesting a meeting with the LULAC Council "as soon as possible" to discuss the allegations of civil rights violations by the Ballinger Police Department.

Those attending the Tuesday evening meeting agreed unanimously to respond to an article printed recently in The Ballinger Ledger in which Ballinger Police Chief Paul Bogges alerted citizens to be suspicious of and to report Mexican Nationals to law enforcement authorities.

The group agreed that the statements were "an offense to Mexican Nationals, as well as all Hispanics" and that Mexican Nationals were not the only illegal aliens in this country.

Ballinger hospital in improved condition

Amid many rumors about Ballinger's Memorial Hospital, Administrator Barry Cheshire said late Tuesday that he could "almost see a flicker of light at the end of the tunnel."

The financially troubled medical facility had been on the critical list for several months and, a week ago, was not expected to survive.

Cheshire said that a check from Medicare for patient services totaling about $16,000 received late last week, additional donations, and action Monday by the Ballinger City Council has given the hospital more optimism for survival.

The Ballinger Council, according to Cheshire, agreed to help. He said that representatives from the city, along with hospital board officials, will be meeting with attorneys and banks seeking financing and that results are expected within the next 10 days.

This past week end, the administrator said, Ballinger Memorial Hospital's kitchen was closed temporarily and that meals for patients were prepared at a nursing home across the street from the hospital.

The decision to close the kitchen for the week end was made in order to conserve money. The preparation of food, outside the hospital, was done after receiving approval from Medicare officials.

The hospital administrator said that the nursing facility had a certified dietitian on staff and that the food was prepared with assistance from the hospital's dietary consultant.

Hospital administrator Cheshire termed rumors that the hospital had been purchased by a Ballinger business and an area rancher was only "street gossip" and not in any way true.

Cheshire said that the latest action by the Ballinger City Council, which had earlier declined to lend financial assistance to the hospital, gave reason to hope that the hospital just might recover from its critical financial woes and be able to continue to meet the health care needs of Ballinger and southern Runnels County.

F. M. Cross gives an account of the last part of his life:

"From Spring Hill I moved to Bell County in the year of 1871, and engaged in the stock business. In this I made the greatest mistake of my life.

"I had joined the Methodist Church the year before the war closed and up to this date had endeavored to live a christian life.

"My pastor was called Brother H. Childress. He was the first Methodist preacher in Brown County; he was sent to the extreme frontier and was better known in those days as the "bear hunter preacher." I was a member of the congregation on the last appointment of his circuit at Johna Mullens' Ranch near Thrifty. Here the first Methodist Church in Brown County was organized.

"Just after the close of the war I went with Bro. Childress the whole round on his circuit. As the Indians were often passing through the country and everybody had to carry arms, this old preacher always carried a shotgun and a six-shooter. I saw him often go into the house where he was to preach on Sunday and set his gun up against the wall and lay his six-shooter down under the table, get out his Bible and go to preaching. It did not seem to embarrass him in any way.

"While in the stock business

I got to striving for the goods of this world, like many others. After a few years I lost my second wife, and sold out my stock interests on a credit, losing in the deal just about ten thousand dollars. Realizing my lost condition—both financially and spiritually—I began to renew my covenant with my God and got back on the right track.

"I was just about forty years old, but from then up to the present I have lived a christian life, and tried to set a good example for the rising generation, at that time I had some motherless children, and I united with my last companion, which union lasted for a period of thirty years. I have three children living by my first wife, two by the second and five by the third.

"In 1897 I moved from Coryell County to Hides Post in Mills County, where my father was living, my mother having died. I moved there to take care of my father, he died two years later. I then moved to Elkins in the lower part of Brown County, and carried on a little grocery store for three years. We had a good school and two churches. Elkins was a great place in those days. The Baptists and Methodists would meet and hold their summer revival together.

"I sold my grocery business in Elkins to Rev. M. W. McGaugh and moved to Comanche County, rented a farm near Mercer's

A class reunion is a gathering where you come to a conclusion that mostly the people your own age are a lot older than you are.

Hopewell Church had a visiting speaker Sunday, Bro. Wayne Heinz and his wife, Sue accompanied him from Buffalo Gap, While Bro. Oscar and Janie Fanning were on vacation. The congregation welcomed Harvey Mae Faubion back and I'm sure she was more than glad to be inside her church after being in hospital and home in bed doctors orders so many mts.

Harvey Mae, Noble & Bernie Faubion were in Dallas Thurs. &

Gap and farmed here for six years. During the second year I lost my last wife; this was nine years ago. At the time of her death two of our daughters were married, leaving two girls and a baby boy at home. I kept house another year and made a crop. When the two girls married, the boy and I were left alone.

"I lived with my youngest daughter and husband for five years. I was in debt $525 at this time. I rented some land each year but it was very dry and crops very short, still I paid what I could each year on my debts. I kept my son in school during the winter and he helped me in crop time. When he was old enough, I let him go to work for himself. I had made three small crops and paid on my debts, and still owed $130. The year I worked alone I planted cotton altogether. I made six bales of cotton and sold it to pay all my debts. Being 73 years old and owing nobody anything but love, and unable to pay that debt with cotton, I decided to quit the cotton business.

"My youngest daughter and husband moved to Pecos County. That being too far west for me, I moved in with my oldest daughter by my last wife and made my home with her near Blanket in Brown County.

"I have ten living children. Nine of them have homes and I am welcome to make my home with any of them, but I have always lived on my own resources and want to live that way as long as I am able.

"I am seventy-nine years, two months and twelve days old at this writing, this ninth day of January, 1914."

Mr. Cross concludes his story without saying that he became a Methodist preacher but he includes his beliefs and a number of his sermons.

Pioneers like Mr. Cross built our nation.

Household worker's wages count for Social Security

People who hire others to work around the house on a regular basis should be sure to report their earnings for social security purposes. Failure to do so may result in penalties sometime in the future, officials reminded.

A household worker is anyone who is paid to work around the home, such as a maid, cook, cleaning person, gardener, handyman, or babysitter. A person hired to work around a building in which the employee does not live—an apartment house rented out, for example—is not considered a household worker.

A household worker's wages count for Social Security purposes only if an employer pays the worker $50 or more in cash within a calendar quarter. Employers are required to either deduct Social Security taxes from wages paid to the employee and pay the employer's matching share of the Social Security tax or pay both shares themselves. Within a month after the quarter ends, employers must send the taxes and a report of wages paid to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). IRS Form 942 (Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees) should be used for this purpose.

The employer must also give the worker a W-2, a wage and tax statement, by January 31 after the year in which the wages are paid. Copy A of the form should be sent to the Social Security Administration.

Although some employers may not report a household worker's wages at the request of the worker, it should be noted that the employer, not the employee, is held liable for reporting the wages. The non-payment of Social Security taxes for household workers may be detected when a household worker retires and applies for Social Security benefits. If the worker reports that he or she worked for a certain employer and there is no such information in Social Security records, SSA will ask the employer for information. If the employer cannot be found and the employee has no evidence of earnings, that income might not be used to establish eligibility or the amount of benefits.

However, if the employer is located, and it is determined that Social Security taxes were not paid on the household worker's wages, the employer is legally responsible for paying not only the employer's share of the taxes, but the worker's as well.

Employers are urged to call the nearest Social Security of-

RRC levies fines

The Railroad Commission assessed a total of $12,600 in administrative penalties last week to six oil and gas operators for problems under Commission rules.

Penalties for inactive and unplugged wells included $5,000 to Sorpresa Petroleum, Inc. of Beaumont for two wells on the Vim Lease, Hardin County; $3,000 to Diamond B Energy, Inc. of Graham for a well on the McBrayer "B" lease, Young County; and $3,000 to Trio of Borger for a well on the Tippen lease, Cottle County.

Three companies agreed to penalties without admitting any violations of Commission rules. Woodham Oil Corp. of Fulshear agreed to a $500 penalty for a well on the J. V. Olson lease, Hardeman County; Oil and Gas Investments of Houston agreed to a $600 penalty for six wells on the Blakely "B" lease, Fort Bend County; and Santa-Fe Andover Oil Co. of Austin agreed to a Cheers!

In these days of heightened awareness of alcohol abuse, the funny drunk is becoming less funny all the time. People who drink socially are becoming more aware of the limits of how much they can handle.

Gary Wimbish, toxicologist at Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine, has two tips for these drinkers: Don't drink on an empty stomach and be sure you pace yourself.

If you drink, you should eat to delay the absorption of alcohol into your system. High-carbohydrate foods like potatoes, spaghetti and bread do that best.

The average person can consume a drink an hour without $500 penalty for one well on the Halsell lease, Dimmit County.

To date in 1988, the Commission has levied more than $635,000 in pollution and well plugging penalties. Last year, the Commission assessed some $794,000 in such penalties.

becoming impaired. Dr. Wimbish warns that your judgment is the first thing affected by alcohol. You may not be able to drive a car safely even when you think you can.

Summer can bring its own drinking hazards, too. Dr. Wimbish reminds us not to drink beer to replace body fluids on a hot day. It won't work, and it will make you feel awful.

Coffe, tea or caffeine free?

The latest news in the world of caffeine isn't good for heavy coffee drinkers.

If you drink nine or more cups a day, you are twice as likely to have heart disease as people who drink one or fewer, says Michael Clearfield, chairman of internal medicine at Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine.

Caffeine contributes to irregular heart beats and to high blood cholesterol levels. It also can dilate the larger airways that lead into the lungs; asthma patients should be careful of combining their medication with caffeine. And coffee or tea drunk during a meal—or immediately before or after—can reduce iron absorption. Dr. Clearfield thinks we should look at caffeine as a drug because it is psychologically addicting. Many of us don't function until we've had that first cup of coffee in the morning. But it's just the coffee or tea taste you want, try one of the caffeine-free varieties. Maybe you can trick yourself into waking up without caffeine.

Managing fish ponds

The primary purpose of most farm ponds is to provide a dependable supply of water for livestock. A well-designed and managed pond, however, can offer many hours of sport fishing for the family or a source of income as a fee-fishing or fish culture operation.

According to Mark Lane, Range Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Ballinger, "A successful fish pond depends upon proper construction, proper stocking and proper management." There are 2 types of ponds; excavated and embankment. An excavated pond is built by removing soil from a pit. It can be filled with runoff water, by pumping, or from a higher elevation reservoir.

Embankment ponds use a dam to impound "free" water. You need to consider the amount of water available, rate of input, and water quality. You need about 35 acres of drainage for every acre-foot of storage. Runoff from cultivated or unvegetated areas can carry too much sediment causing rapid sedimentation of the pond.

Ponds should be built in soils that will hold water. Soils that are permeable may be sealed with bentonite, polymer resin or plastic liners. Also, when constructing a pond, eliminate shallow water areas which promote weed growth and harbor too many small fish from bass, causing the pond to become overpopulated with small sunfish and stunted bass. The dam and the area immediately surrounding the pond should be seeded or sodded to perennial vegetation to prevent erosion. Don't allow trees to grow on the dam as they may cause leaks.

Conditions should be adequate to promote the growth of planktonic algae, which promotes the growth of fish. If conditions are not ideal for this algal growth, ponds can be fertilized, using granular or liquid fertilizer such as is used on cropland. After 3 to 5 years or this type of fertilization, a phosphate fertilizer may be suitable to maintain "bloom." Improper use of fertilizer can be undesirable, promoting too much plant growth and depleting oxygen.

Management of fish is difficult in ponds less than 1 surface acre in size. In ponds of this size, you should stock channel catfish only at 100 fingerlings per acre along with 500 fathead minnows per acre as their food. This number can be doubled if the pond is properly fertilized. In ponds greater than 1 surface acre, the species and numbers you stock are going to depend on whether or not the pond is muddy or clear, the hardness, the storage fluctuation, and the season in which you stock.

For the first 3 years following stocking, you should remove all bass less than 15 inches. After that, return all bass from 12 to 16 inches and remove about 25 bass per surface acre per year. You should remove all sunfish caught after the first spawning season. Channel catfish can be harvested when they average 12 to 15 inches (3/4 to 1 pound).

According to Mark Lane, it is probably necessary to fence fish ponds and their dams and spillways off from livestock to prevent erosion and sedimentation. The pond can still provide livestock water through a pipe placed in the dam or bank and released into a trough or small pond.

There are many other considerations and specifics involved in ponds and their management and the rules are constantly changing. A fish pond for fun or profit may be a viable opportunity for you. For more information, contact the Soil Conservation Service in Ballinger.

CJC prepares for 1988 Fall semester

Cisco Junior College is making preparations to begin its 1988 Fall semester. Since 1940, CJC has offered quality academic and vocational programs in a small college setting at a very low cost. The smaller classes and interested, well-qualified faculty provide more opportunity for individual instruction. CJC's Counseling Office provides information about career choices, qualifications and job opportunities for students unsure of their career plans. Various financial aid programs are available to students on the basis of need and/or merit in the forms of grants, loans, work study and departmental activity scholarships. Financial Aid is available if qualified at all three locations— Cisco, Clyde and Abilene.

In Clyde CJC offers day and night academic classes. These courses are designed to help fulfill the first two years of study leading to a baccalaureate degree.

Cisco Junior College offers numerous vocational programs at the Abilene Center at Office Park West (209 S. Danville). Programs offered are Auto Mechanics, Child Care and Development, Electronics, Fire Technology, Human Services, Law Enforcement, Licensed Vocational Nursing, Maintenance Engineering, Mid-Management, Real Estate, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning, and Medical Assisting Technology. Fire Technology and Law Enforcement are taught at Dyess.

Registration for the Abilene Center is August 25 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. Students wishing to register at the Clyde Center is August 24 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. Registration for the Cisco Campus is September 1 from 8:30 to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Night registration will also be held on Thursday, September 1 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Dear Bob Bullock: I build and install waste water facilities, such as home treatment plants, septic tanks and culvert pipes. I need to know how to tax these jobs—PLEASE! V. L. J. Lufkin

Dear V. L. J.: First of all, based on your letter, you are a contractor making improvements to real property. As a contractor, you charge your customers in one of two ways—by lump sum or by separately stating your charges for labor and materials.

If you charge lump sum, you must pay tax at time of purchase on materials that you place on the property of your customer. For example, if you pour concrete over reinforcement wire to build a retaining wall, that wire has become part of the property. You must pay sales tax on that wire when you buy it.

However, using the same example, if you separate the charges on your bill for pouring the concrete from buying the material, you can issue a resale certificate for the wire when you buy it. You then collect tax on the materials from your customer.

Now, you should collect tax on labor and materials for repairing and remodeling commercial property, regardless of the way you bill it. Tax is not due on the labor to repair and remodel residential property or on new construction.

What's yellow and black, and has 144 feet?

Summer vacation is just about over and kids across the state will be returning to school, many of them aboard big yellow and black school buses. One of the most common sights on the state's roadways during the school year, these buses can carry from 71 to 83 seated students on any given trip each day, depending on bus style. Texas Safety Association encourages parents to remind their children about school bus safety rules.

Last year in Texas, 1,685 accidents involving school buses were reported that resulted in 1,085 injuries. Although nine fatalities were attributed to these accidents, none were passengers on the buses. In 1986, the 1,686 accidents involving school buses accounted for 1,022 injuries and five deaths.

Since many school bus accident victims are struck by vehicles while waiting for buses, children should be reminded to:

- Line up away from the road and wait for the approaching bus to come to a complete stop before entering the roadway to board.
- Avoid pushing and shoving.
- Use the grab handle when boarding and move directly to a seat.
- While the bus is in motion, children should:
 - Avoid horseplay.
 - Refrain from shouting or making loud noises that could distract the driver.
 - Remain seated for the entire trip, even when the bus is approaching its destination.
 - Upon arrival at the bus's destination, children should:
 - Exit the bus in a quiet and orderly manner.
 - Walk about 12 feet to the front of the bus so the driver can see them, and wait until the driver signals them before attempting to cross the street.
 - Remember that although it is against the law for vehicles to pass a school bus that is loading or unloading passengers, some drivers still do. Students should check both ways on any street before crossing.

One of the most often asked questions regarding school buses is, "When is it legal or safe to pass a stopped school bus when its lights are flashing?" According to the Texas Motor Vehicle Laws Uniform Act (6701d, Sec. 104b): "The driver of a vehicle upon a highway with separate roadways need not stop upon meeting or passing a school bus which is on a different roadway or when upon a controlled-access highway and the school bus is stopped in a loading zone which is part of or adjacent to such highway and where pedestrians are not permitted to cross the roadway."

In other words: When approaching a stopped school bus from the opposite direction on a highway, a driver need not stop if: 1) the school bus is on a frontage road, 2) the opposing lanes are separated by a median strip 10 feet in width (Turn lanes are not considered median strips!), or 3) the opposing lanes are separated by a permanent barrier. In either case, only vehicles traveling in the same direction as the school bus must stop. Vehicles may pass in the same direction if the bus is in a controlled loading zone adjacent to the traffic lanes, and where pedestrian crossing is prohibited. But it's still safer to stop.

Parents should review other basic pedestrian safety rules with their children in preparation for the daily trips to school.

Working Beneficiaries Should Update Earnings Reports

It's a good idea about this time of year for people who are receiving Social Security benefits and are still working to check their earnings to make sure the estimate of their annual earnings they made earlier is still accurate. If expected earnings are higher than estimated on their annual earnings report, they should notify Social Security as soon as possible to avoid problems with the overpayment of benefits.

A change in earnings during the year is one of the most frequent causes of over-payments. This is why beneficiaries should review the earnings estimate they were required to submit to Social Security by April 15. Monthly benefits payable are based on expected earnings for the year.

Under the law, an annual earnings limit applies to people receiving Social Security benefits who work. Earnings over the limit result in benefits being reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings above the limit. The 1988 earnings limits are $8,400 for people 65-69 and $6,120 for people under 65 all of 1988. People who do not report their correct earnings and who receive benefits to which they are not entitled are required to repay the overpayment. Generally, the repayment is made from deductions from future benefits.

A mass mailing is conducted each August as part of an effort to alert working beneficiaries to update their earnings reports to avoid overpayments. An estimated 70 percent of overpayments likely to occur in 1988 will result from low estimated of annual earnings reported to Social Security.

Changes in earnings can be reported by phone, mail, or in person. The San Angelo Social Security Office is located at 2214

Sherwood Way, and the telephone number is 949-4608.

Toll-free AIDS line open to public

One of the Texas Department of Health's (TDH) most important weapons against the spread of AIDS in Texas is public information. And to ensure that clear, easily obtained answers about AIDS and its prevention are available to everyone, the department's Public Health Promotion Division operates a toll-free, bilingual telephone information and referral line in Austin.

Originally created in December to manage the growing number of calls the department received from physicians and other health professionals, the phone service was offered to the general public in April.

Sylvia Watson, who answers most of the calls explained, "We opened the line to the public to coincide with the federal Centers for Disease Control's national mail-out of AIDS brochures to every U.S. household. We knew that although the brochures were clearly written, there would be many people needing further information, especially about locally available services."

The toll free Texas number is 1-800-248-1091.

After dialing the number, callers hear a recorded "menu" of subjects relating to AIDS. The menu tells them they can listen to recorded messages, can talk with Watson, or can do both.

Watson is bilingual and is available to answer callers' questions weekdays from 8:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and from 12:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. The recorded messages are about AIDS and women, HIV testing and referral, AIDS and children, heterosexuals and AIDS, symptoms, prevention, national and Texas statistics, and general information in English and Spanish.

A special feature is a telecommunications device for the deaf, who can use the same telephone number.

Before the line was opened to the public, calls primarily were referrals to other health professionals and clinics. "Now, most of the callers ask about the symptoms of AIDS," Watson said. "Quite a few of them are people who have had transfusions and are worried that the blood they received might have been contaminated with the AIDS virus."

Watson tells these callers that Texas blood banks began testing for the AIDS virus in 1985. She explains that the AIDS virus can be dormant in the bloodstream for five or more years.

"Other calls, from both men and women, are questions relating to promiscuity and risky behavior. Some of the callers are worried that their past sexual partners may have been infected with the AIDS virus," she said. Watson advises these callers to be tested for the virus.

"Some calls are from mothers or mothers-to-be. About half of the children born to infected mothers are infected with the AIDS virus. Mothers who are intravenous drug users, or who have been promiscuous-or who suspect their partners of having been promiscuous-or who suspect their partners of having been promiscuous-are really concerned," she said.

Watson answers questions about AIDS and refers callers to the nearest of the department's 32 affiliated local health departments offering educational programs, as well as to the nearest of the 68 affiliated testing sites. She also mails pamphlets and other printed information and refers callers to physicians who treat people who may have AIDS.

Dear Bob Bullock:

I understand there have been some recent changes in the way food sales are taxed. Could you explain what those are?

MJW
Austin

Dear MJW:

It's pretty simple. Restaurants should collect sales tax on usual food sales.

For Grocery stores, bakeries and delicatessens, taxable food sales depends on whether the business provides eating facilities for customers. If it does, you should collect tax on these items.

* food maintained in a heated state;
* food sold in individual portions;
* food sold with utensils;
* ready-made, ready-to-eat sandwiches;
* individual ice cream sundries; and
* five or less doughnuts, cookies and other baked goods.

If you don't have eating facilities for your customers, you should tax these items:

* food maintained in a heated state;
* food sold with utensils;
* ready-made, ready-to-eat sandwiches; and
* individual ice cream sundries

The law and the rule are a little complicated, but I've found that simple rules aren't always fair, and fair rules aren't always simple. If you have any questions or you'd like a copy of the new rule, just call or write my office at the number and address above.

Remember - Safety First Around Electricity!

Enjoy a safe summer while working in your yard by following these safety tips.

- Use only properly grounded electrical equipment and replace all worn and damaged cords.
- Never use electric tools in rain or on any wet surface.
- Keep electric cords clear of your working area.
- Keep ladders or long-handled tools clear of power lines. Even wooden ladders can conduct electricity.
- Be careful when digging. Call your Local WTU Office to locate underground power lines in your area.

From A Goldfish Bowl

By Pastor Steve Byrne

In the 4th chapter of Genesis, the ancient Israelites tell us the story of Cain and Abel. Cain killed Abel. "The Lord said to Cain, 'Where is Abel your brother?'" He said, "I do not know; am I my brother's keeper?" (verse 9)

Cain's question is never answered. It didn't need to be. It was a rhetorical question asked by Cain, which, by the way, was rather out of place in the context of the story. The obvious answer is, "No. I am not my brother's keeper."

Cain was not his brother's any more than you or I are called to take responsibility for our peers. But there is quite a gap between taking on the job of keeping another and aggressively taking a life.

Somewhere in between this immense gap lies acts of Christian compassion. A life of service to others. It is what most of us strive for in our lives.

It is just such an attitude by many in our community three years ago that gave birth to the Winters Community Food Pantry. A concern that individuals and families be helped in tough time with the basic necessities needed to tide them over until their crisis has passed.

Generous folks gave food and money. The money was taken to Abilene or San Angelo, where generous supermarkets had donated (or almost donated) dented cans of food. Which were purchased at the price of 10 cents a pound.

This was a good deal. But the source of 10 cent a pound cans has dried up and our own food pantry needs cans.

Winters is a community which never ceases to amaze me in its response to emergencies. People, churches, and institutions mobilize quickly, and work together marvelously when the situation calls for such action.

On August 28. That is a Sunday afternoon, the Churches are planning a canned food drive which will canvass every part of the city of Winters. If you can, plan to help us go door to door, asking for a can or a few cans of food for the pantry. If you can't be with us, be generous when one of your neighbors rings your doorbell that afternoon. If you live out of town, drop off your donation at your church or at the pantry in the Multi-Purpose Center.

No, we are not our brother's keeper. But the Lord has made it clear with his life that each of us is called to simple acts of Christian compassion. And together we do make a difference.

Soldiers to acquire land in Texas

Soldiers from Fort Hood will once again visit Central Texas to acquire land for an upcoming exercise. The exercise, known as Roadrunner 89, will take place in late January 1989. Fort Hood officials stress however, that the exercise hasn't been approved yet and that the land leases are being acquired in anticipation of approval.

Teams of Fort Hood soldiers will be contacting landowners in Central Texas from August 8 to September 2. The exercise are tentatively includes 23 counties. Not all counties will have a large military presence, but the Army is still interested in acquiring the use of land in case it's needed.

The Army has identified eight counties where the entire county will be part of the exercise area. Those counties are: Hamilton, Coryell, Lampasas, San Saba, Mills, Brown, Coleman and McCullough.

Additionally, parts of 15 counties are included in the exercise area. These counties are: Bosque, McLennan, Bell, Williamson, Burnet, Llano, Mason, Menard, Concho, Runnels, Taylor, Callahan, Eastland, Comanche and Erath.

The basic outline of the exercise area runs from Fort Hood in the east to the vicinity of Ballinger in the west. The area's

How does one report a tax evader?

Dear Commissioner Nabers: As a businessman who has suffered the same sharp increase in taxes as many other legitimate business owners in Texas, I am angry and concerned that part of this increase is due to the fact that many Texas businesses are not in compliance with the law. They are not paying their fair share and it is costing the rest of us.

In the past three months, the professional organization to which I belong has conducted an intense investigation of our particular industry. The results have led us to conclude that within our industry alone millions of dollars in unemployment insurance tax revenue are being lost as a result of employers treating employees as independent contractors. Although there are certainly instances where the independent contractor relationship is legitimate, our canvass showed that 50-54% of business owners in our industry are operating under these conditions to avoid payment of FICA, FUTA, and UI taxes. Those of us who are paying taxes find it increasingly difficult to compete when our competition has an automatic 15% illegal advantage.

We want to report businesses within our industry that we have good reason to suspect are evading their legal responsibilities and we urge all tax paying businesses to do the same.

F. R. Dallas, Texas

Dear F. R.: The TEC is mandated to collect UI taxes from all employers who come within the provisions of the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act. The Act is a self-enforcing tax statute which means that all businesses are charged with finding out if the law applies to them and, if it does, complying with its requirements. Although it is unlikely that the large increase in taxes could have been avoided even with the 100% compliance, you are absolutely correct when you say that non-compliance is extremely costly to Texas Business in a number of ways.

We are obligated to investigate specific reports of non-compliance and we do so

Dear Bob Bullock: I am in the remodeling and repair business, and sometimes I add footage on to a structure. Is there a difference between repair/remodeling and new construction for taxing purposes?

G. J. Freeport

Dear G. J.: Yes, there is a difference between the two. The labor for non-residential repair/remodeling became taxable on January 1. Labor charged for new-residential and commercial construction is still not taxable.

If you remodel a building, you're simply making it over or rebuilding it. This includes the replacement or upgrading of parts of an existing structure.

If you're in the repair business, you're mending or restoring property or equipment that's broken, damaged or defective.

But new construction includes new improvements to real property, including finish out work done before in new buildings. Adding new footage outside an existing structure is also new construction.

Remember that labor for repair/remodeling on residential property is not taxable, including work done on family dwellings, multifamily housing complexes, condominiums and retirement homes.

northern boundary runs along a line from Goldsboro to Meridian in the north and from Mason through Llano to Bertram in the south.

To the maximum extent possible, the same soldiers that contract the land in the summer months will be the same people to clear the property with the landowner at the conclusion of the exercise.

Choosing nutrition at the salad bar

The interest in healthy foods among today's on-the-go consumers has created a boom in salad bars at restaurants, fast food chains and even supermarkets.

A 1988 national survey conducted for The Packer, a fruit and vegetable industry publication, found that 45 percent of supermarkets now have salad bars and 51 percent of produce consumers use them at least once a month.

However, patronizing a salad bar doesn't automatically result in healthy eating.

"What people get nutritionally from a salad bar depends entirely upon the choices they make," said Dr. Alice Hunt, a nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

A salad of iceberg lettuce with dressing, for example, will be high in fiber and low in calories if you don't over-do it on the dressing, according to Hunt.

"But you can do better nutritionally by adding vegetables that are high in vitamins A and C, such as romaine lettuce, spinach, broccoli, carrots, cauliflower or green pepper," she said.

"If your salad is suppose to be an entire meal, you should also include some protein foods, such as bacon bits, shredded cheese or chopped egg," said the specialist.

"Some nutrients, such as iron, thiamin and niacin are supplied primarily by foods you don't often see at salad bars, such as meats and whole grain products. So you may want to balance out your diet by eating these at another meal during the day," she said.

Hunt said a salad bar is often not the best place to find a low-calorie meal, unless you can show some restraint, both in serving size and what you select.

"By choosing potato and macaroni salads, gelatin, fruit salad with whipped dressings and cole slaw in addition to your vegetables, you can wind up with more calories than a regular meal," said the specialist.

To keep the calorie count down, the nutritionist suggested sticking with plain raw vegetables and diet dressings, avoiding pickled foods and the prepared salads that use high calorie dressings.

Cornbread and Vegetables—A Southern Tradition

During the summer months, Southerners naturally turn to fresh vegetables when planning meals. It's not uncommon to see a table full of fresh vegetable platters and cornbread.

When it's hot outside and the last thing you want to do is heat up your kitchen by turning on the oven, you can still prepare great cornbread to go with those garden fresh vegetables. Try these top-of-the-stove cornbread recipes. Butter Bite Hoecakes are moist inside and crunchy outside. Sweet Milk Corncakes are like corn meal pancakes.

Butter Bite Hoecakes
1 cup Martha White Self-Rising Corn Meal Mix
1 1/2 cups boiling water

Combine cornmeal and boiling water in bowl; stir to blend. In large skillet, heat 1/4-inch shortening over medium low heat until a drop of water sizzles when dropped in skillet. Spoon batter by tablespoonfuls into hot skillet. Fry until golden brown; turn and fry on other side until golden brown. Serve hot with butter. Makes about 10 hoecakes.

Sweet Milk Corn Cakes
1 egg
3/4 cup milk
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 cup Martha White Self-Rising Corn Meal Mix
1/2 teaspoon sugar

Preheat lightly greased skillet or griddle on medium heat (350°F). Lightly beat egg in mixing bowl. Add remaining ingredients; stir until well blended. Pour batter onto hot skillet or griddle; 1/4 cup batter makes a nice size corn cake. After cake is brown on one side, turn and brown on other side. For thinner corn cakes, add a little more milk. Makes 6 corn cakes.

Note: These corn cakes are good topped with barbecue or may be buttered and served with any meal.

General Situation

Cotton in Runnels and Tom Green Counties is progressing rapidly with the hot temperatures. We are starting to see moisture stress in some dryland cotton fields which have a heavy fruit load. Insects of concern in cotton now include: Boll Weevils, bollworms, aphids, and spider mites.

Grain sorghum harvest is well underway in some areas. Younger fields are having insect problems with sorghum midge, conchuela stinkbugs and headworms.

Boll Weevils

Boll weevil populations are on the upward trend. This week we've found up to 80% punctured green squares and we have some fields where adult weevils can be easily found in blooms. Overall we're finding about 15 to 20% punctured squares in scouted fields.

Remember that the economic threshold for boll weevils is 20 to 25% punctured green squares. Pick healthy one-third grown squares to determine the percent punctured. If the square falls off in your hand when you remove it from the plant, discard it and pick one which snaps off the plant.

If you have more bolls than squares, you should be picking small bolls. If 15% of your small bolls which you expect to take to the gin are punctured, you are at the threshold.

Bollworms

Our bollworm egg and worm counts have decreased somewhat over the past week. That is not to say some producers still have worm problems. These problems seem to be "spotty", so be sure and check your field closely for bollworms prior to your weevil application.

Our budworm trap catches continue to increase across the whole area. We are having a few worms pull through some of our pyrethroid treatments now. If you need to control worms and choose a pyrethroid insecticide, be sure to use a mid to high rate. Do not cut rates!!

Cotton Aphids

Aphid populations continue to increase in some fields. Although we do not have an economic threshold established for cotton aphids, it would probably pay to control them if you averaged 25 aphids per leaf across the field.

Aphid populations tend to get worse behind pyrethroid insecticide applications. If you do have aphids and are needing to apply a pyrethroid insecticide be sure to add something for the aphids. Products such as dimethoate, Bidrin[®], Swat[®], Orthene[®] or Lorsban[®] will do a good job.

Spider Mites

We're beginning to see a few spider mites particularly in fields that have a history of mite problems. Several fields have already been sprayed for mites. If you notice mite infestations in cotton that has bollworms, you may choose to use a pyrethroid such as Scout[®] or Maverik[®], which does not tend to make mites worse. Use high rates, or select an insecticide that will control mites and bollworms. Curacron[®] has been used in several fields which we had worms and mites and has done a good job. Some Azodrin[®] has been used also and has done a good job. Since these materials do not control eggs, a second application may be needed when the immature mites hatch. I understand that Capture[®] was recently labeled for cotton and it can be used in a closed system only. That means no ground rigs. Capture[®] does pretty well on spider mites also, but it may be very expensive to use.

Other Comments

I know a lot of producers are getting very concerned about the number of dollars they are putting into their cotton crop this year due to increased insect pressure. But I do not think we have lots of options in many fields if we are going to make a good crop. I believe the worst option is to commit to an insect control program and then quit in the middle of it.

Poor nutrition can lead to hairworms

Hairworms, also called stomach worms and intestinal worms, commonly infect the gastrointestinal tract of cattle and often result from poor nutrition.

Infected cattle transmit the worms by continuously passing eggs in manure onto the ground where they hatch into larvae under moist and moderate temperature conditions. Cattle continuously swallow the larvae while grazing grass. The worms mature in about three weeks and lay eggs and the cycle is repeated. Hairworm transmission is common during rainy weather in spring, fall and warm winters.

Normally hairworms are secondary to inadequate nutrition. Poor management practices such as overcrowding and overgrazing create inadequate nutrition and provide for continuous reinfection of worms.

The gastrointestinal tract of cattle maintained under these conditions is a suitable environment for worms, and cattle in poor condition are not able to withstand the effects of the worms. The primary malnutrition condition, a protein deficiency, worsens as worms interfere with digestion, causing diarrhea and lack of appetite.

Wormy cattle show any combination of clinical signs, including pale mucous membranes, bottle jaw, pot belly, diarrhea, drawn, not grazing, not chewing cud, rough and dry haircoat, thin, weak and down. The signs are similar to those caused by malnutrition, coccidia and liver flukes.

Correcting poor nutrition by preventing overcrowding and overgrazing and using a pasture rotation system is the key to hairworm control. These management practices will prevent severe reinfection of worms. Additional control measures are good drainage and sanitation, separating cattle into age groups and routine worming.

Routine worming is worming cattle one to three times a year during the wet periods three to six weeks after the rains begin. You should alternate wormers to prevent drug resistance. Wormers that can be used against hairworms are ivermectin, fenbendazole, thiabendazole, levamisole, morantel, haloxon, phenothiazine and coumphos.

Texan named to legal services board, Gramm says

The President has nominated Jay Blakeley Hall of Rockwall to the board of the Legal Services Corp. in Washington.

"The board of the legal Services Corp. supervises the operation of an important federal resource," Gramm said in announcing the selection. "I know that Blakeley Hall will make Texas proud of his service to Texas and America on the LSC board."

VA to hold survey of disabled veterans

The Veterans Administration has begun a nationwide survey of disabled veterans to gather information on their needs and to assist the VA in determining how it can better serve veterans with service-connected disabilities.

The Arawak Consulting Corporation, Rosslyn, VA., which is doing the survey for the VA under a $1.5 million contract, will conduct in-depth interviews with 10,000 men and women veterans over the next six months. The survey's participants were selected at random and will be contacted directly. A final report of the results is expected to be available by the middle of next year.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Thomas K. Turnage is urging all veterans contacted to participate in the study. Said Turnage, "Their corporation will ensure and accurate and unbiased report on the attitudes and experiences of disabled veterans and will be invaluable in helping VA plan for their future needs." In a letter sent to each veteran selected, Turnage noted that their participation is voluntary and that the confidentiality of all responses will be maintained.

Brush management for wildlife and livestock

Brush management can harm or help food production for both wildlife and livestock. This depends greatly upon the pattern, extent, and method of brush control. Most wildlife prefer brush for cover. However, disturbing the ground by clearing away brush not only allow grasses to grow but it also stimulates the growth of forbs. Forbs are grazed not only by wildlife but also by livestock. If too much brush is cleared it's detrimental to wildlife. If too little is cleared the livestock will suffer. A balanced pattern must be devised which controls enough brush for livestock grazing, yet allows for cover and food for wildlife.

Usually rangeland can be cleared anywhere from 20% to 70% depending on how thick the brush and on which the rancher wishes to emphasize livestock or wildlife. It would not harm deer habitat to clear no more than 40% of the land in a pattern. The land may be cleared in straight, zigzag or checker board patterns. Any of these patterns will work as long as there is not more than 500 feet from brush to brush in the cleared areas. No matter what percentage decided upon the more edge available to wildlife the better. Edge is where the cleared area joins the brush, wildlife prefer these areas.

A rancher must use his/her head in planning what method of brush control is best suited for his/her individual ranch. Keep in mind that methods of total or near total brush kill such as rootplowing followed by rootraking will have a long term impact on the regrowth and diversity of an future brush communities. It's been observed in south Texas that rootplowed areas which once included several different brush species, when the area becomes reinfested with brush only three or four usually lesser quality browse species are dominate. Partial kill or topkill methods such as prescribe burning, some herbicides, roller chopping, or discing have a shorter term effect because the plants usually resprout. Generally, if a short term method is to be used a higher percentage of the land will be treated, and for a long term a lower percentage will be treated. Sometimes these short term methods are use to rejuvenate or stimulate new more palatable growth for both wildlife and livestock to graze.

Hall, 33, the son of U.S. Rep. Ralph Hall of Rockwall, practices law in Rockwall County.

He is a member of the Rockwall County Bar Association and the State Bar of Texas. Hall also serves on the board of directors of the Rockwall Chamber of Commerce and Lakeside National Bank.

The nomination now must be confirmed by a vote of the Senate, Gramm noted.

Don't take out food poisoning

The combination of summer heat, uninsulated containers and prepared deli foods can add up to an unwelcome bout of food-borne illness.

There's no doubt that supermarket delis are the latest food phenomenon. Industry figures show that almost 62 percent of supermarkets now have delis with salad bars and prepared foods for a quick lunch, completely prepared dinner or instant picnic.

It's not the deli food itself that has food safety experts concerned, but how people handle the food once they buy it.

"In-store delis and salad bars have to meet health department standards in keeping hot foods at 140 degrees and cold foods below 40 degrees. In both cases that inhibits the growth of bacteria in the food," said Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"But if you buy a carton of cold food, take it out to a hot car and then run a few errands before you eat it, the food may become warm enough for rapid growth of bacteria," she said.

"Protein foods, such as those containing meat, eggs, poultry and milk are most susceptible to the growth of salmonella bacteria when not handled properly," said the specialist.

"Many of the most popular deli items, like smoked meats, potato or macaroni salads and puddings fit in this category," she said.

The specialist said that when planning a picnic of deli foods, it's safest to buy hot foods as close to your destination as possible so they can be eaten right away.

"Carry an insulated cooler with ice for cold deli foods. Cardboard or styrofoam containers do not provide adequate insulation," she said.

"If you buy prepared foods for dinner, be sure to take them right home and serve them immediately. After the meal, promptly refrigerate the cartons of leftovers," said Cooksey.

Whenever cartons of food have been sitting out for more than two hours, the specialist said they should be discarded.

"With a few precautions, consumers can enjoy the convenience of supermarket delis without the discomfort of flu-like symptoms from a food-borne illness," she said.

Miles Cotton Festival scheduled

A pet show, a tractor pull, water polo and a wedding will be some of the highlights of this year's Miles Cotton Festival. The eleventh annual affair will be held on September 10 in the Miles City Park.

The festival's theme is "Year of the Train" to celebrate the 100th Anniversary of when trains first came to this Runnels County Community.

A full day of activities is planned for festival-goers. Along with games for both children and adults, there will be a brisket cook-off, arts and crafts booths, a noon meal in the historic Miles Opera House, musical entertainment, a barbecue supper, the Cotton Queen Contest and a street dance.

This year the 10 a.m. parade through downtown Miles will conclude with an unusual, yet romantic finale. Delana Petrey of Miles and Brett Gillette of San Angelo, along with their wedding party, will be on board the last float. The young couple will recite their marriage vows at a stop in front of City Hall.

Miles is located on Highway 67 between San Angelo and Ballinger. For more information about the festival, contact the Miles Opera House at (915) 468-3001.

1988 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN NORTH RUNNELS HOSPITAL DISTRICT

This notice concerns 1988 property tax rates for North Runnels Hospital. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. Compare it to the tax rate the taxing unit proposes for this year. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can not before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

LAST YEAR'S TAX RATE:

Last year's operating taxes	$ 304,948.13
+ Last year's debt taxes	$ 42,147.30
= Last year's total taxes	$ 347,095.43
- Last year's tax base	$123,962,652.00

X 1.03
= Maximum rate unless unit publishes notice and holds hearings	$.30445/100

THIS YEAR'S ROLLBACK TAX RATE:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and taxes to correct appraisal roll errors and adding taxes lost in court suits)	$ 304,448.73
- This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting taxes on new property)	$117,230,779.00

Get the most from your freezer

The money saved by freezing fresh products or food bought on sale can easily be eaten up by energy costs if you don't make good use of your home freezer.

A frost-free freezer costs about $15 per month for electricity, depending upon its size and your local electric rates. You can keep your freezer from using more electricity than necessary by making sure it operates efficiently, according to Bonnie Piernot, a consumer economics specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"A freezer inside the home requires less energy than one kept in the garage because it doesn't have to work as hard to maintain its low temperature," she said.

"When the garage is the only space available, put the freezer against an inside wall, if possible, since it will be cooler there. If your garage has no ventilation, consider adding a roof vent for air circulation and lower temperatures," said Piernot.

The specialist said a full freezer runs more efficiently than one that's half empty. If you use your freezer very little, consider pulling the plug on it, buying only what you need for a short period and storing it in the refrigerator-freezer.

"Older freezers often use extra energy because they have leaky gaskets that let cold air escape," she said. "Test the rubber gasket by placing a piece of paper in the door and closing it. If you can pull the paper out without tearing it, the gasket needs to be replaced."

Depending upon the size of the freezer, Piernot said replacing a rubber gasket is about a $15-25 do-it-yourself job.

"Don't freeze foods you eventually have to throw away. If your family doesn't eat zucchini, for example, freezing quarts of it will simply be a waste of money.
