Wait a minute...

By Kerry Craig

My how time flies. A number of things have crept up on us already. Thanksgiving will be here next week and Christmas is only five weeks away. It seems like a couple of weeks ago we were just getting over the holiday season.

Deer season is well underway and a number of folks have inquired as to my success, or lack of, in the pasture. Well, the deer have been quite safe so far and we are now on the road to recovery at home.

Maybe, just maybe, I can beat the last days of the season.

During the football season, my Saturday mornings start off with a quick check of the sports pages of the Abilene and San Angelo papers. Not only to see what other teams have done, but to see what the big-city papers say about us — and how they say it.

The folks in San Angelo have been, for the most part, impartial when it comes to reporting on our football games.

The same is not quite true of the sports writers at the Abilene paper. This past season, the writing has given us notice that someone up there is not too fond of Winters.

It especially rankles me when our "Bunch" has had a really good season like the one just ended, and to see, week after week, very small headlines when our team has won an important game.

Just wait until we lose a game. That is enough to get headlines bigger than a B-1B did when it crashed. The Abilene paper would use the biggest headlines in the entire paper to say that some team defeated Winters, letters over an inch tall.

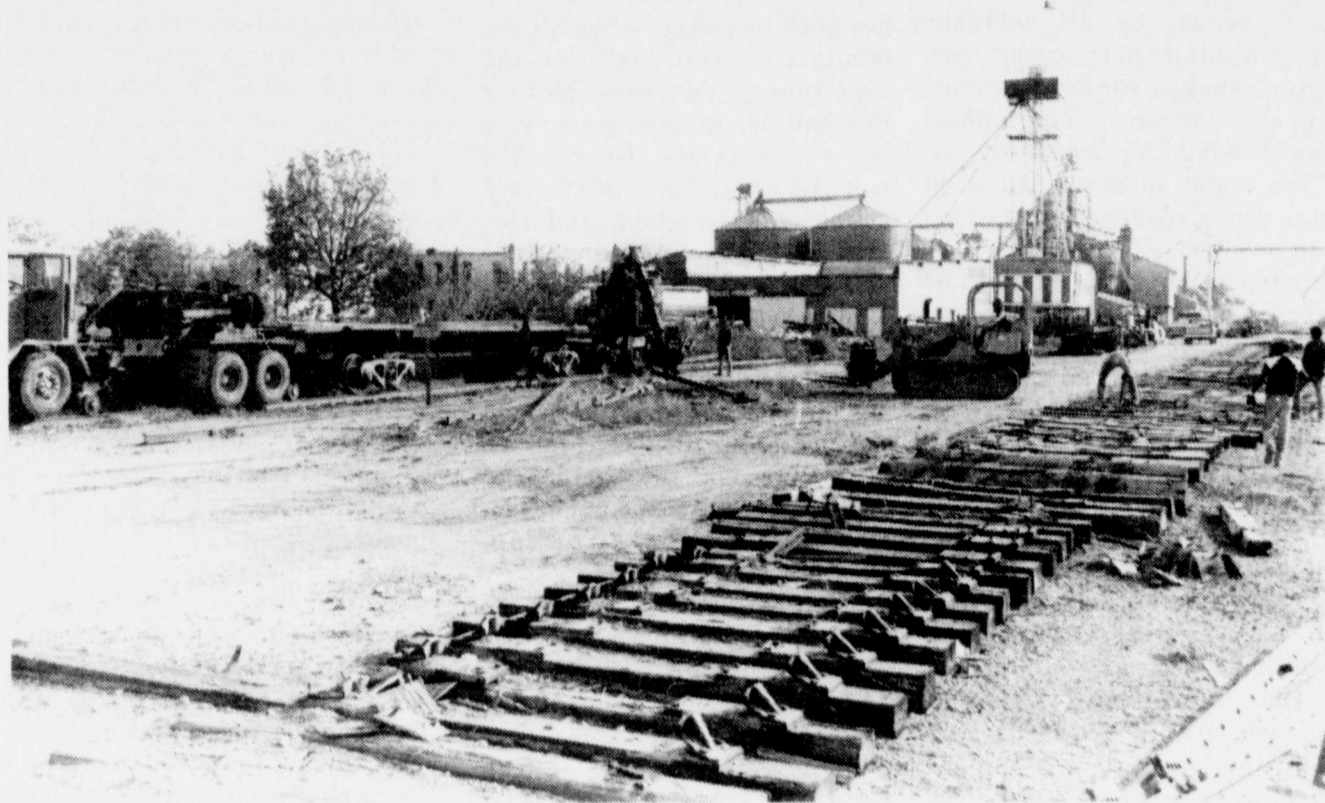

Bigger, even, than what was used on either of the Abilene schools winning.

I guess that the only other thing that would qualify for such big headlines would be the Dallas Cowboys winning a game.

Really, guys, you have been too obvious. It really doesn't bother most of us, though.

Our Blizzards have just completed a season that anybody could be proud of. Coach Slaughter and his coaching staff are to be commended and the Blizzards saluted for a tremendous season.

(See Wait page 8)

The end of an era

Work crews were busy Monday between Dale and Parsonage Streets pulling spikes, unbolting rails, and loading rails and ties on trucks as Winters' only tie to a railroad is being trucked away.

The removal work is moving at about a city block per day, and by the end of the week, the railroad will have been completely taken up in Winters.

Need an ambulance in South Taylor County, who do you call?

When people who live in communities such as Shep or Bradshaw, Moro, Ovalo, Lawn, or even Tuscola may have a problem if they need an emergency ambulance.

There are two obvious choices as to who to call. Abilene Emergency Medical Service is supposed to respond to that area. North Runnels Emergency Service in Winters is much closer but is not authorized by Taylor County to respond to calls in that county.

A call for help at a home in Bradshaw last week was made to the Abilene service where a dispatcher told the caller that Bradshaw was not in Abilene EMS's area and to call the ambulance in Winters.

The Winters ambulance service responded to the call for help even though the home is located inside Taylor County.

There is, it seems, considerable confusion in Abilene about this problem.

Richard Cox, owner of Abilene Emergency Medical Service, told The Enterprise that his ambulance service was required to only respond to calls inside the Abilene city limits.

Taylor County Precinct 3 Commissioner John Thompson said, however, that the county paid a portion of the monies that subsidize the Abilene ambulance service and that he felt the service should be provided by Abilene Emergency.

That commissioner said that he would look into the matter and contact The Enterprise the next day. Commissioner Thompson's call has still not been received. Attempts were made three times Monday to contact him and two attempts were made Tuesday to contact the Taylor County Commissioner from that area with no success.

Late Tuesday, a dispatcher at Abilene Emergency told The Enterprise that a person living in the Bradshaw area that if an emergency ambulance is needed that person should call Winters EMS.

Randy Nolte, owner of North Runnels Emergency Service, said that his area of responsibility, defined in his contract with Runnels County, is the northern half of Runnels County. Nolte said that his service is not authorized by Taylor County to respond to calls in that county.

Nolte said, however, if he receives an emergency call from someone living in the area in question, his service will respond.

He said, "we have a moral responsibility to respond when needed, when someone's life is in the balance, we cannot take time to worry about which county that person lives in."

Nolte said that his primary responsibility is to the residents of north Runnels County, that the county pays a subsidy to insure the service will be available when needed.

Nolte said that he understood that the Abilene Emergency Service received funding from not only the City of Abilene, but from Taylor County and that he felt that the Abilene service should respond to calls in the southern part of that county.

(See Ambulance page 8)

Winters is no longer the end of the line

A big part of Winters' history is literally being picked up and hauled off. Work crews were busy this week taking up the tracks of the old Abilene & Southern Railroad line.

The line, which at one time connected Abilene, Winters and Ballinger and joined with the Sante Fe line in Ballinger is no longer.

A number of years ago the tracks between Winters and Ballinger were taken up leaving Winters at the end of the line.

About 13 years ago, residents rallied together to oppose the closing of the rail line and were successful.

At that time, the railroad was used by a number of shippers hauling farm equipment, grain, and other merchandise.

In the ensuing years the need for the railroad dwindled and when notice was received early this past summer of the railroad's intent to close the line, there was no opposition.

The last train to, or from, Winters ran in October.

In a few short weeks the only reminder of a bygone era will be just the road bed, no rails or ties. Just a pile of rock and gravel stretching the 35 miles from Winters to Abilene.

Former residents injured in Hill Country wreck

Two former Winters residents are hospitalized in Kerrville's Sid Peterson Hospital and a third in San Antonio Methodist Hospital with injuries sustained in a Friday evening accident near Ingram.

Chris and Omega Gehrels and Mitzi Hudson were all passengers in a late model Toyota that ran off a roadway and crashed into a tree.

Investigating Highway Patrol Trooper Travis Hill said that the car, driven by Mitzi Hudson, was east bound on state highway 39 when the accident occurred. Hill said that the driver was "trying to turn on the dome light in the car" when the headlights went out.

Hill said that the car travelled some 100 yards on the shoulder of the road before crashing into a large tree.

Historical Marker dedication to be held

A dedication of an official Texas Historical Marker will be held in the townsite of Marie, 18 miles west of Winters, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, November 20, 1988.

Master of Ceremonies will be Neuman Smith, of Ballinger, Runnels County Historical County Chairman; Invocation will be held by Wesley Campbell of Ballinger; introduction of guests will be by Mrs. George Poe, Winters; the speech will be presented by J. T. Henry, Mayor of Bronte; and the

All three were taken to the Kerrville hospital for treatment and later Omega Gehrels was transferred to the San Antonio Methodist Hospital for surgery.

A spokesman at Sid Peterson Hospital said late Tuesday that Mitzi Hudson was in the intensive care unit of the hospital and that Chris Gehrels was undergoing surgery at the same time.

Nursing personnel at San Antonio Methodist were unable to give any report on Omega Gehrels' condition late Tuesday. Family members said that all three received multiple fractures and lacerations along with internal injuries.

According to local family members, the trio was returning from Kerrville with a birthday cake at the time the accident occurred.

presentation of the Historical Marker will be made by Norma Gentry.

A reception will follow.

Mother Poe Told It Like It Was

My husband's mother—Mother Poe—never minced words. She let them roll out without bothering to sweeten or soften them. Her tongue was as sharp as the buttermilk she drank three times a day. It took me a long time to learn that underneath that rough exterior, she had a heart of gold.

For starters, when George and I were married she was away from home. She wrote a letter, reminding us of her custom of giving each of her children six quilts when they were married. She ended her letter by saying, "Go over to the house and get your quilts, but don't take anything else."

My next confrontation occurred the first time George and I were invited to dinner at Mother Poe's house. When the fried chicken was passed I took the back—my favorite piece. Immediately Mother Poe blurted out in her deep bass voice,

"That's my piece of chicken. Put it back!" Needless to say, I did. George later explained that with 10 children in the family, each one had a designated piece of chicken because after once around the table the dish was empty.

She spoke her peace regardless. When a newspaper printed an article about tuberculosis, she wrote the editor, "I've been told that exposure brings on tuberculosis, and if you don't call the modern way of dressing children 'exposure' then I don't know what you would call it."

Mother Poe's opinions were well known by all—whether they wanted them or not. She often rebuked women for wearing short dresses. "Your ankles are showing," she would say. Or, "You ought to sew a ruffle on that dress." And a woman smoking brought forth her strongest condemnation, "You ought to be hung by your toenails!"

Not all her words were so cutting. Mother Poe had many sayings that made a lot of sense once you thought about them. She made all the family's clothing, cooked, raised chickens, and tended a garden. She often commented, "The only rest I ever get is sitting down to churn, reading the paper, and nursing a baby."

She and her husband pioneered in West Texas, sodding the land and working the farm, yet she reared 10 children without any modern conveniences. When asked how she did it, she replied with a question, "Did you ever watch an old hen with one chick? She spent as much time scratching for it as the hen with a whole brood."

She complained when her body ached, "I feel like I'm dead and rained on." If her back hurt she often groaned, "My get-worser hurts." But these things, even in old age, never stopped her from making bonnets to sell in stores. Because of her gifts to Boy's Town in Nebraska, she was awarded a lifetime membership.

Her speech may have been candid, but her hands were always ready to help. Once, as a young farm wife, I faced a crisis. Eighteen farmers had arrived to harvest our oat crop with a thrasher. I was expected to prepare dinner for them on a two-burner kerosene stove. In marched my mother-in-law, wearing her bonnet and apron, carrying two large pots of food. She then helped serve it and stayed to help clean up afterward.

Mother Poe was considerate of others and continued using the surrey every Sunday to go to church because their 1911 Buick scared the teams in the churchyard. And, of course, she always brought the preacher home for dinner. She served leftovers on Sunday night which she called her "woodpile" supper.

If someone slept late she'd say, "No need gettin' up for the little piece of day that's left!"

When she later moved into town, she visited all newcomers to the neighborhood and carried food to the ill. But she never sent flowers to a funeral. She believed flowers ought to be given while folks were alive and could enjoy them.

She never used terms of endearment or showed signs of affection, but her love for her family was unmistakable. On her 86th birthday, when all the family gathered again for the first time in 34 years, Mother Poe had her picture made with her youngest son, George; his son Dennis, the 26th and youngest grandchild; and this grandchild's son, Clifford, the youngest great-grandchild.

Her last illness hit suddenly. Knowing her daughters were living far away, she asked, "Are my boys here?" When assured they were, she died peacefully in her sleep—the first thing she had ever done quietly in her life. From Modern Living, November 1988. Letter to the Editor

I wrote you recently about the loss of my money clip at the Wes-T-Go and the fact that it had been found in the parking lot and turned in to the people at Wes-T-Go. I had understood that it was turned in by a young lady.

I have since found out that it was turned in by a 17 year old young man by the name of John Andrea. In addition to being very honest I understand he is the FFA President-4H President and just a good all-around Winters Boy. I am sending him a small reward for his help.

Many Thanks to you for bringing this matter to your readers. As I said, I doubt if it would have worked out as it did, anywhere else. Sincerely, Max R. Porter

Roasting a turkey simple as 1-2-3

Turkey is one of today's best meat buys, both nutritionally and economically. Whole turkeys are sold oven-ready: dressed, washed, inspected and packaged. After turkeys leave the processing plant, no hands touch them until time for kitchen preparation.

A defrosted whole turkey requires only six minutes to prepare for roasting (without stuffing).

If stuffing is desired, I suggest it be prepared separately, placed in a covered casserole and cooked with turkey during last hour of roasting time.

Follow label instructions for roasting or use these simple directions to obtain a beautiful golden brown, ready-to-carve-and-eat turkey.

Thawing: (if turkey is not frozen, begin with step two.) DO NOT THAW POULTRY AT ROOM TEMPERATURE. Leave turkey in original packaging and use one of the following methods:

• No hurry: Place wrapped turkey on tray in refrigerator for 3 to 4 days; allow 5 hours per pound of turkey to completely thaw.

• Fastest: Place wrapped turkey in sink and cover with cold water. Allow about 1/2 hour per pound of turkey to completely thaw. Change water frequently. Refrigerate or cook turkey when it is thawed. Refreezing uncooked turkey is not recommended.

Preparation for Roasting: All equipment and materials used for storage, preparation and serving of poultry must be clean. Wash hands thoroughly with hot soapy water before and after handling raw poultry. Use hard plastic or acrylic cutting boards to prepare poultry.

Remove plastic wrapping from thawed turkey. Remove giblets and neck from the body and neck cavities. To remove neck, it may be necessary to release legs from band of skin or wire hock lock. Rinse turkey inside and out with cool water, pat dry with a paper towel and return legs to hock lock band of skin or tie loosely.

Neck skin should be skewered with a poultry pin or round toothpick to back of turkey to provide nice appearance for serving at table. The turkey is now completely ready for roasting to a delicious golden brown.

Open Pan Roasting: Place turkey, breast side up, on a flat rack in shallow roasting pan, about 2 inches deep. Insert meat thermometer deep into thickest part of thigh next to body, not touching bone. Brush turkey skin with vegetable oil to prevent drying. Turkey is done when meat thermometer registers 180 to 185 degrees F. and drumstick is soft and moves easily at joint. Approximate roasting time (325 Degree F. Oven):

6 to 8 lbs. 2 1/4 to 3 1/4 hours
8 to 12 lbs. 3 to 4 hours
12 to 16 lbs. 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 hours
16 to 20 lbs. 4 to 5 hours
20 to 24 lbs. 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 hours

When skin of turkey is golden brown, shield breast loosely with rectangular-shaped piece of lightweight foil to prevent over-browning.

Storage: Cut all turkey meat from bones before storing leftovers. Cooked turkey will keep up to 2 days in covered containers when refrigerated at 40 degrees F. or below.

Stuffing: For those whose Thanksgiving is not complete without stuffing a turkey, follow these directions. Spoon prepared dressing loosely into body and neck cavities of turkey just prior to roasting. The stuffing should reach an internal temperature of 160 to 165 degrees F. to be sufficiently cooked. Remove stuffing from turkey immediately after roasting.

Pirate Log

Travis Hanson, second grade, and Calvin Williams, fifth grade, were omitted from the list of those who received Wingate Pirate T-shirts for perfect attendance during October. Sorry, Travis and Calvin. The 5th and 6th social studies class studied the presidential election. On Tuesday, November 8, these students made posters and displayed them at places of business urging people to vote for the candidate of their choice. The freedom to vote is a right that we, as Americans, enjoy and should use.

Shanna Jones read and reported on ten library books and received a certificate. Shelley Meyer read and reported on thirty library books and received her third certificate. Keep up to good work, Shanna and Shelley.

Mrs. Derington reports that the field trip her science class made to the Abilene Zoo and Abilene State Recreation Park last week was fun as well as educational.

The teachers and students were grateful for the opportunity to make entries at the Winters Arts and Crafts Show last week.

Travis Walker was winner of the "Best of Show" in kindergarten; Debbie Baize was winner of the "Best of Show" in the third grade. The "Best of Show" means of all the Wingate and Winters entries of this grade, Travis and Debbie had the best entry. These two students also received 1988 Arts and Crafts T-shirts. We are very proud of you, Travis and Debbie.

Other winners in the Arts and Crafts Show were: — Kindergarten-1. Travis Walker, 2. T. G. Garcia; 3. Jared Chapman.

— First Grade-1. Shelley Meyer; 2. Jennifer Dyess; 3. Shanna Jones.

— Second Grade-1. Jimmy Joe Soto; 2. Travis Hanson; 3. Cody Jones.

— Third Grade-1. Debbie Baize; 2. Brandy Dyess; 3. Tiffany Hubach.

— Fourth Grade-1. T. J. Meyer; 2. Delores Vara; 3. Crystal Sanchez.

— Fifth Grade-1. P. J. Tamez; 2. Melia Rogers; 3. Calvin Williams.

— Sixth Grade-1. Ramie Reyes; 2. Misty Garza; 3. Richard Tamez.

Congratulations to all of you! The first basketball game of the season will be Tuesday, November 15 at Lohn at 6 p.m. The girl's game will be played first followed by the boy's game.

On Monday, November 28, both Pirate teams will play the Winters Breezes in the Wingate gym beginning at 6 p.m.

Coach Derington has great expectations for the 1988-89 Pirate basketball teams.

Parents and fans, we urge you to give the Pirates your support this season by attending the games and encouraging the players. See you at the basketball game.

From A Goldfish Bowl

By Pastor Steve Byrne

"Therefore, since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses..." (Hebrews 12:1)

I read those words to my congregation Sunday morning, as the lectionary Epistle text. Lately I have been experiencing what the author of Hebrews is writing about.

God has worked it out to call me to serve two rural congregations thus far in my ministry. In both churches one of my predecessors was a man named Pastor Meier.

I wrote about Pastor Meier in the "Goldfish Bowl" on Maundy Thursday of this year. Because of this "coincidence," I have felt a special kinship with him. The stories that parishioners tell me about Pastor Meier always spark a little extra interest.

It is almost like he were my patron saint, if Lutherans had such a thing.

A couple weeks ago, I found a letter in my mail box from Cuero. When I opened it, I discovered a letter written by Ernest Meier, Pastor Meier's son, who has retired back to Cuero and is seeking information about his father's ministry. He knew that he was born in the Winters parsonage in 1918, but was wondering if I knew anything about his father's pastorate.

Boy, did I have some stories for him! I almost feel like I know Pastor Meier, even though he died when I was two years old and had never heard of the Lutheran Church. We have begun to communicate, sharing our stories about his father. It doesn't sound very exciting but it is.

I found out that his name was not Edwin, but Eugene. Which is not so surprising. Back then nobody called the pastor by his first name. I had also thought that he had been educated in the seminary in Switzerland, but discovered that he came to this country with his folks from Switzerland at age 19. He received his seminary education in another foreign country, Dubuque, Iowa. This is all just to set the record straight and maintain historical and journalistic integrity, in case I ever need some sort of recommendation from Charlie.

When I visualize my own cloud of witnesses, I imagine that Pastor Meier is on the front row, cheering me on in my Christian journey and ministry.

The author of Hebrews wrote of this cloud of witnesses as a comfort and source of strength to people going through a rough time. When the going gets tough, we are not going it alone. There is a whole grandstand full of fans who have retired from actively playing the game. They are rooting for us. Cheering us on.

The Spirit of those who have attained the Church Triumphant are with us.

A lot of folks in rural America are going through tough times. A battle for survival and personhood. It is good to know that we are not alone. Even if we feel that way sometimes. Helps us persevere.

In the second verse of this text, Hebrews' writer gives us even more specific advice as to how to get through hard times. "Let us fix our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfecter of our faith."

I believe that is exactly what that cloud of witnesses is cheering for us to do. They know something that we don't. Thanks be to God for the fans!

Memo from the Chamber of Commerce

Winters Area Chamber of Commerce would like to thank you for helping to make the 1988 Arts & Crafts Show such a success. So many people worked to make it possible. It is impossible to name everyone, but I would like to mention a few and thank them publicly. Sandy Griffin and Kay Colburn for making and serving the stew. Ouida Nichols who arranged to have people at the three Arts & Crafts Buildings. Mamie Dell Reed and Randal Underwood who helped in numerous ways. The Rodeo Association and Linda Dry, the Mexican Band, Food Booths and to Ray Boeshart who brought his surrey and gave us a thrill as we rode in it. To Emily Pendergrass, Chairman and her helpers and the Directors who gave many hours to this event. The Exhibitors were attractively set up and The Chamber is especially grateful to Noleta Rice, Wes Hays, and Dean Smith for the use of their buildings and to Gary Moore and WTU for electricity and extra outlets on the street. And a very warm thank you to all of you who came and participated and enjoyed the two day event.

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank the staff of North Runnels Hospital, Dr. Lee and Dr. Thorpe for the patience and kindness that were shown to us during Whitley's hospital stay.

Many thanks also to the ladies of the First Baptist Church for their preparations and serving of dinner for the family before the funeral, and to Bro. Shoemaker for the beautiful service.

A very special thanks to Bro. Jim Lanning for his many kindnesses and visits to both Whitley and myself and our family during his illness and since his passing. Thanks also for the prayergrams, cards, flowers and food that we received from our many friends.

May God bless each and everyone of you.

The Halloween Pictures are in the Chamber Office. Parents may come by and pick up the pictures of their children. This year's first Trick or Treat Downtown was a success and we look forward to doing this another year with more participation of the Businesses.

We know you are aware of some of the facelifts done on the Chamber office and across the street. If you are a owner of a building and have dirty windows, falling awnings, won't you help the Beautification Committee by doing a "little fixin up". We want Winters to be clean and attractive as we drive down our streets and as out of town people drive through. If you need paper to cover your windows call this office 754-5210 and we will provide it. Let's all work together to get the job done. Thanks.

Have you been out west where the Berm for Winters is being placed? If not, take a few minutes and drive out there. You will be amazed at the work that has been done. We are grateful to Mike McDonald who has put in many hours of hard work by himself.

Runnels County quail shipped to Arizona

Don Davis, Biologist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department related that for the past several years male bobwhite quail have been trapped in northern Runnels County and shipped by air to Arizona.

These male bobwhites are in effect used as "mothers" for chicks of an endangered species of quail called the masked bobwhite. Although ornithologists believed it to be extinct during the 1950's and early 1960's, the masked bobwhite survived in small, isolated populations in Sonora, Mexico.

The story begins by only male bobwhite quail being trapped in Runnels County and flown to Arizona. These male bobwhites are subjected to a type of micro surgery which amounts to a vasectomy. The reason for the surgery is to render the Runnels County bobwhites sterile so there is no chance of interbreeding with the masked bobwhites. Eggs are then produced from captive masked bobwhites and hatched in incubators in Maryland. These baby quail are they themselves flown to Arizona.

A procedure has been developed to entice the male Runnels County bobwhite to adopt a little family of masked bobwhite chicks. It takes several days of isolation in special holding cages to accomplish this family union. The Runnels County male bobwhite is immediately willing to adopt the chicks. But the chicks are wild little things. Because they are hatched in an incubator these chicks have no idea of what is going on. They do not even recognize the broody sounds of the bobwhite parent. But after a few days these problems are worked out and the little masked bobwhites accept the male Runnels County bobwhite as a mother. When this union is accomplished each dous season. Congratulations, Guys.

Oh, another event has slipped up on us. The Great American Smoke-Out.

This marks the anniversary of the beginning of a special friendship and the legend of the steak that nobody ate.

Although good old Gary Turner is probably driving somebody else away from smoking somewhere else, the thoughts and memories of that great wagger are most pleasant and our beautiful award (Gary's and mine) still hangs on the wall.

This year, Lanny has the duty and, while he would not go for a similar bet with me, you can bet he will be reminding many folks about the wonderful world of NOT smoking.

Our neighbors in southern Taylor County are going to have to put some heat on their County Commissioner about emergency medical assistance.

It seems that the folks in Abilene that are supposed to be on call for that area either don't know where the area is, or they don't want to get that far from the city.

At any rate, the folks in the area from Shep to Bradshaw, Ovalo, Tuscola, and Lawn have a problem—one that needs to be resolved immediately, if not sooner.

Ambulance —

Abilene Fire Chief Richard Knopff, who also is the 911 coordinator for Taylor County, said "AEMS is supposed to respond to that area, however Winters has responded occasionally."

Knopff said that, in gathering information for the 911 system Richard Cox of AEMS said that he would respond to those areas. The chief said, after learning that Cox had told other officials that southern Taylor County was not his responsibility, would again contact the Abilene ambulance operator to verify the response area.

Chief Knopff said, however, that the AEMS contract, which runs out next September, does not specify the area of responsibility. He did say that there is one other ambulance service in Taylor County and that it serves the Merkel area.

While Taylor County officials and the Abilene ambulance service are trying to find out who is supposed to go where, the residents of Southern Taylor County are in a dangerous situation. A situation that, if allowed to continue may place a life, or lives on the line.
