I finally talked to Rudy, Ballinger's city administrator, Monday about my thoughts concerning that city, its hospital and the proposed clinic plans.

There were areas in which we did not agree, areas in which we did agree, and still others we discussed.

There was agreement that the primary concern was that of medical services being available to residents there. There was, at least, partial agreement regarding governmental entities and the private sector. There, also, was agreement on the concern as to the future of the hospital in Ballinger.

The effects of a clinic facility on the hospital's future was an area in which we did not totally

The politics and issues that lead to the present situation there were the ones discussed.

More binness. There was some concern stirred by a letter to the editor in last week's paper and the criteria a letter to the editor must meet in order to be published.

In order to be considered for publication, a letter to the editor must be typed, or neatly and legibly written, it must contain the writer's name, address and Opinions expressed in a letter to the editor are solely those of the person writing the letter. Those opinions do not reflect the opinions of the publishers or editorial staff.

This next is of importance for those who live in the south Taylor County area.

For some years now, these folks have not known where to call for emergency medical help.

Over four years ago, the problem was called to the attention of the Taylor County judge who said he would look into the matter.

Late last year, the Taylor County commissioner for that area said that he had not been made aware of the problem before but that he would pursue it and solve the problem.

That commissioner is working hard but a solution seems no

A very important meeting has been called for next Monday evening at the Jim Ned School in Tuscola. Meeting time is 7:30.

All southern Taylor County residents have been urged to at tend to hear a report from a committee that has been work ing trying to secure emergency medical service for the area.

Our stock show went very well this past week end. It was made possible only with the help of many neighbors who took time to support this program.

These folks deserve a big thank you for their work and their help. There was one thing that was more than a little unusual about the stock show this year, however. The weather.

Since school days, I have had the opportunity to either attend or participate in livestock shows on the county level on up to the bigger ones in Houston, Ft. Worth, and San Antonio as well as the state fair in our state along with several other states.

Weather, unpleasant weather, has always been, it seems, one of the things that just go along with stock shows.

Our weather this year was most pleasant. It was really difficult to grasp the fact that our stock show was going on with all the sunshine and mild temperatures.

Cold weather and snow or sleet or freezing rain seem to always coincide with stock shows. Kinda like rain and rodeos.

Now, speaking of rain, we rain-sometime. It always has ner with all the trimmings. before.

Excellent livestock, all ready to compete in the show may be found on page 5.

Taylor County Commissioner John Thompson in an attempt to learn what steps that county is taking to provide dependable ambulance service for the area.

In that meeting Commissioner Thompson told the committee members that he had asked the Taylor County District Attorney's office to determine if it would be legal for the county to contract with North Runnels Emergency Service, Inc. to provide ambulance service in the Thompson said that the proposal was found, by the district attorney's staff to be sound and legal, however, Thompson said that he had asked for, and was awaiting, a ruling from the Texas Attorney General's office on the legalities of a county contracting with a private business from outside that county to provide a service within the county.

A number of questions were asked the commissioner about what the county would and could do, about the county providing the funds to subsidize an ambulance service in southern Taylor County, and why the county was paying a rather large amount of money each year to the City of Abilene to help provide ambulance service operating under a contract with that city, a contract that did not specify the contracted service to respond to the areas around, and south and west of Tuscola.

In response to the many questions, the commissioner could only reply that "we are working on it" or that he did not know the answer at that time.

The local manager added that WTU has lowered its fuel factor five times since 1985, and had six refunds totaling almost $50 million as the result of other contract changes.

Velma Hart, dedicated Teacher

While watching 20/20 on TV Friday night, I saw a devoted young teacher trying to instill in homeless children the love of learning, knowing that she could have them only a short time, perhaps just a day. But trying to create in their hearts a desire for knowledge and to continue studying wherever they might

This brought to my mind many dedicated teachers I had known in the Winters schools, the last one being Velma Hart, whose daughter brought us some of her memorabilia for the museum: a table cloth and napkins that the children had made for her under the direction of the room mothers and a service plaque that Mrs. Hart received when she retired as a first grade teacher.

In her letter, Claudine Walker of Abilene said, "I thought that her service plaque might be displayed with the tablecloth and napkins, and it might be a more enduring memory of her years in the school there, than just hanging in my house."

The plaque reads: Velma S. Hart 1944-1970

inches and was made broadcloth. A schoolhouse was painted in the center with the date '53. "Mrs. Hart dearest" was printed in a circle. Frolicking lambs, ducks, small girls and kittens made an attractive border interspersed with names of mothers and children; only the surnames for the mothers and given names for the children.

The mothers were mesdames Burns, Richie, Williams, Gambill, Grider, Awalt, Cooke and Stevens.

The children were: Anna, Charles Lee, Judy, Norma, Jeanette (Lewis), Dee, Christine,

FROM A GOLDFISH BOWL

I've been reviewing copies of this column, trying to find a way to improve it. Make it more useful. I think I discovered a gross oversight on my part. Since I began writing this column, there hasn't been one recipe in it. That would be something USEFUL.

Here it is a recipe that Nancy Spill showed me. It is in the recipe book published by St. John's Lutheran Church Women in 1926.

Chili Boil together 1 quart of .kidney beans and five large onions until beans are well done. Rub 1 quart tomatoes through colander and add to the above mixture. Fry 20 cents worth of good beef in 2 tablespoons butter and add to above mixture. Add 1 bottle of Eagle Brand chili powder, 1 tablespoon pepper, and salt to taste. Let boil 15-20 minutes.

Times have changed just a bit since then. I wonder what Kerry would say if I asked him to measure out 20 cents worth of ground beef because I was making chili for a dozen or so people.

Another thing has changed since then. I think for the better. There were no names along with the recipes. No way to identify the creator and cook of these family treasures.

Back then there was a strict norm for rural Lutherans. Humility above everything. Never let on like you are good at something. The last shall be first and all that.

It even meant you didn't volunteer for anything, though you knew you could make a contribution. Someone might think you thought highly of yourself.

Today we put those names where they should be. With the recipe. We have grown to understand that anything we can do and do well is a gift from God. These gifts were not made to be hidden under a barrel, but given back to God through service.

Now the Church celebrates the things that each person can do well. We rejoice in the multiplicity and excellence of these gifts of God. We compliment and encourage one another.

The joy of giving to others the excellence of what God has given us is readily available to all. That is a big improvement.

I still have a question. Just how much ground beef was 20 cents-worth in 1926?

The Pirate boy's basketball team was a winner again last week when they played San Angelo Catholic. Keep up the good work boys. We are proud of you.

The Pirate boy's and girl's basketball teams will meet St. John's in competition Monday, January 23 at 5:30 p.m. in Pirate gym. The third and fourth grade students will be honorary members of the basketball teams at that time. They will suit out, sit and play with the teams. This is exciting for students in the lower grade level. The Pirates will play the return games with St. John's in Abilene Monday, January 30. Game time will be 5:30 p.m. with the bus leaving Wingate at 4 Mrs. Sneed's fourth grade social studies class is studying Texas Indians and are making a pueblo. Delores Vara has read and reported on thirty library books and received her third certificate. Brandy Dyess has read and and received a certificate. Mrs. Meyer's students have been invited by Las Colemas reported on ten library books

Elementary to participate in the Friends of Americas 1988-89. In this project, two boxes are sent to Miskito Indians of Honduras. A box to each a boy and a girl. The Las Colemas Elementary students plan to mail two boxes containing school supplies.

Some suggested items arecanned food, clothing, toothbrushes, toothpaste, bath soap, combs, brushes, scissors, needles, color books, dolls, balls, American flag and map of the United States.

The cost of mailing each box is about $5 and students are being asked to contribute to this fund by earning money in various ways - selling soft drink cans, babysitting and doing chores for parents and friends.

Today in Latin American, thousands of small children are homeless refuges without food, clothing or medical care. Others are orphans or victims of natural disaster. Many are sick and suffer from malnutrition. Most of these children have never had a new piece of clothing or even a single toy.

The school students in the United States can demonstrate love and concern for the peoples of Latin America by sending these gift boxes to the needy children there.

The fifth and sixth grade students are collecting soft drink cans. If anyone cares to contribute to this collection, contact Jody Meyer and you will be given a sack to put the cans in.

German cockroach is most prolific

(Part II in a series) Blatella germanica (Linnaeus), is the best known and probably the most widely distributed species. It is a small species, native to Europe, measuring from 1/2 to 5/8 inches long and the adult cockroach is tan to light brown in color. The head shield is marked with two dark stripes which run lengthwise of the shield. Adults of both sexes are fully winged but rarely fly. Nymphal (immature) German roaches are smaller and darker than adults and are wingless. The German cockroach is the most prevalent roach in Texas, and is more active than other domestic species. The female of this species carry their egg capsules protruding from the abdomen for about 2 weeks until they are nearly ready to hatch.

Young Farmers met

The Winters Young Farmers held their monthly meeting Monday, January 16. Members enjoyed an evening of bowling and pizza in Abilene, courtesy of Elanco and Ralph Porter.

Attending the January meeting were Ralph, Pam and Lauren Porter, J. W. Earnest, Doug Bryan, Dwaine Lange, Michael and Mitzie Deike, Gary and Dinell Jacob, Allen and Gwen Andrae, Steve and Debbie Ballard, Alfon and Virgie Jansa, Rodrick and Jill Bredemeyer, Roger and Rhonda Kruse, Dale and Linda Duggan, Hudon and White, Malcolm Betty Bredemeyer, and Randall and Susan Conner. A good time was had by all.

The German cockroach produces more eggs per capsule than other species (37 eggs) and a female produces 1 to 7 or more capsules during her lifetime.

Developmental time for a German roach may be as short as 2 months and the approximate number of offspring per year from one female under favorable conditions is 35,300. Thus, troublesome infestations can develop rapidly after the introduction of a few individuals. The nymphs pass through seven molts in six to eight weeks. There are generally two or three generations a year in the

These roaches thrive in all types of buildings, but are found most often in homes and commercial food establishments. They usually enter tightly constructed homes with bottled drinks, potatoes, onions, dried pet foods, grocery sacks, corrugated cartons, and even year, Texas led the nation in the number of hospital closures, with 19 hospitals closing in 1988, according to the Texas Hospital Association, the industry's trade association. Since 1984, Texas has lost 72 hospitals.

Slightly more than half (37) of the closed hospitals were located in rural areas, which the hospital association defines as a county that is not part of a metropolitan statistical area. Only five of the 72 closed hospitals had more than 100 beds.

Texas Hospital Association President Terry Townsend noted that a key factor in hospital closures is inadequate payment for services rendered to the elderly and poor under the Medicare and Medicaid program. "Congress cannot continue to solve budget problems at the expense of health care for the elderly and the disabled. Texas covers fewer of its citizens under Medicaid than any other state. Hospitals cannot continue to break-even or lose money under Medicare and Medicaid and remain open,"

Townsend said. Townsend noted that rural hospitals have felt the impact of inadequate Medicare payment most acutely. "For 1988, Texas' rural hospitals' Medicare operating losses of 23.9 percent were 336 percent lower than the national average of 0.69 percent loss," he said.

In addition to financial difficulties, rural hospitals are adversely affected by the dif-

Organic matter improves soil

The fertility and physical condition of soils can be greatly improved by the incorporation of organic matter. Fall is an excellent time to collect unused organic materials from the garden and kitchen and return them to the soil. These include lawn clippings, leaf rakings, kitchen wastes and other plant matter that is free of disease and nematodes as it will all aid in building up the organic content of the soil.

Plant nutrients and other minerals required for plant growth, are contained in the blackened plant remains and other organic wastes. To obtain completed decompostion, add about two pounds of a complete fertilizer per 100 square feet of bed area as the bacteria and other organisms must have nitrogen to do a good job of decomposing the organic matter. These elements, vital for healthy plant life, are released to the new plants once the organic matter is decomposed and are thus recycled.

A compost pile is a good way to utilize organic wastes. The partially digested compost, or homemade humus, is high in organic matter. Use this when transplanting trees and shurbs, or as a top dressing in preparing garden beds.

Organic matter improves the physical properties of the soil by increasing pore volume, improving moisture retention, and allowing more efficient utilization of fertilizer applications. This means that sticky clays can be changed into soils of more manageable tilth. Adding organic matter to loose, drought sand will help it hold plant nutrients and moisture, thus improving plant growth.

In both cases, the soil particles are less tightly packed together and the increased pore space allows excess moisture to flow through. These pore spaces in the soil also allow better air exchange, thus improving the oxygen supply in the soil. Oxygen is vital for good plant root functions and growth.

Coping with the death of a child

Grief is perhaps the most common emotion parents feel with the death of a child. According to one study, how parents function during that process is an indication of how well they eventually will adapt to their loss, according to the January issue of Texas Medicine.

That same study showed the test was not how long they grieved. In fact, bereaved parents may be preoccupied with their loss for a year or two-which is normal. One danger sign during this period is persistent depression, according to author Dr. Sue Chance, Hospital, Willowbrook Waxahachie.

Parents who avoid talking about their child or act as though nothing has happened are coping poorly, according to the official journal of the Texas Medical Association. "Those parents who possess a consistent philosophy/theology/cosmology of life..seem to fare better. Most frequently this takes the form of religious belief," writes the author.

Dr. Chance also notes that anger is a normal part of bereavement and that "we need to be aware that health problems and martial difficulties O. Box 4087, Austin, Texas, are not uncommon to these
