Wait a minute...

By Kerry Craig

I'm not real sure as to what prompted things this past week end at our house. No doubt there was a slight disagreement between parents and kids or something of that sort.

The end result will, in later years, be called cruel and unusual punishment or will have the child protective people throwing such parents in jail.

As this protracted event commenced to begin with Saturday morning, the kids at our house, young and the older ones too, suffered some withdrawal effects which ranged from severe, complete with screams and tears, to the milder effects of wandering around feeling a bit lost and trying to figure out why you were wandering around feeling lost.

By late Saturday, we had all begun to find ourselves and feel that just maybe we had this thing by the tail on a down-hill pull.

By midday Sunday, we found that we were not even missing what we were doing without—very much anyway.

When Monday rolled around, things were getting back to normal, almost.

We are learning that there are really things that are more difficult to handle when it comes to breaking a habit than to do without a television set blinking and babbling merrily over in the corner all day and night.

As with breaking any habit, there are some side effects that seem to linger with you and others that really plague you because they don't stick with you.

You see, we either lost or hid the remote control and now we cannot find it.

In a couple of weeks we will have the opportunity to elect representatives to our city council, a mayor, trustees to our school boards, and directors for our hospital.

It has become a rule, rather than an exception, for a light voter turnout, very few folks voting. This is not good.

The people we elect will play major roles in how our local tax dollars are spent, how our city is operated, how our kids are educated, and the level of care we have available in our hospital in a time when the small, rural hospitals are an endangered species.

In the next couple of weeks, we will endeavor to contact these candidates and give them the opportunity to tell the voters why they are running for these offices.

This next is more of a personal note.

Late Tuesday afternoon a big, black motorhome-looking vehicle with a tall tower extending from the top made a stop in Winters and attracted quite an active crowd.

Now, normally we don't use this space to promote a specific business. I did find the KEAN Coach rather interesting.

The mobile studio, from the Abilene radio station held a rather special interest for me.

Back in my radio station super star days of playing the hits, things were done a bit differently. These radio station guys are using an old idea with some really high-tech innovations, as they travel into the various communities in their listening area.

My interest, however, was not in the fancy gadgets, bumper stickers and "T" shirts.

KEAN, you see, was not always in Abilene. From the early 50's to the late 70's KEAN was in Brownwood and, for most of that time, was operated by the Farren Twins, Jimmie and Eddie, along with sister Pat. The same group that travelled this area in the 50's with their own country music band.

I spent a number of my radio station years at KEAN in Brownwood and played a small roll in its move to Abilene.

It was pleasant to visit with

Winters Council awards insurance bid Monday

The Winters City Council met in regular session Monday to handle four items on a rather brief agenda.

Highlighting the meeting was the council's acceptance of an insurance program to cover the majority of the city's general insurance needs.

The winning bid proposal was submitted by George Mostad, of Bedford-Norman Insurance Agency.

The coverage for the next will cost the city approximately $37,000 according to City Administrator Chuck McIlvaine.

In other business, the council met with Gary Goff, representing the Winters Little League program to discuss the base ball fields.

The city agreed to continue

Texas Aggies to descend on Winters

Former students of Texas A&M University will assemble in Winters on April 21 for the annual Texas Aggie Muster, announced co-chairman Tommy Lancaster '60 and Amanda England '77.

The Muster activities will begin at 6 p.m. at the Winters Country Club in Winters, according to the co-chairman. Muster is open to all former students and their families, parents of students, and friends of Texas A&M.

Texas A&M is in its "Second Century of Greatness." During the last 100 years, Texas A&M has grown from a small Land Grant College to one of the leading research and educational institutions in the nation.

Aggie Muster dates back to 1883, and has been held annually since. More than 400 Musters will be held around the world this year "wherever Texas A&M former students live or work."

During wars, Aggies mustered in foxholes, on the battlefield, aboard ships, in airplanes and in medical hospitals. In World War II, a Muster was held on Corregidor Island shortly before the Japanese captured it in 1942.

Every Muster ceremony is the same. Texas Aggies pay their respects to all those absent because of death since the last Muster. When the names of the honored dead are called from the Muster Roll, a friend of the deceased answers, "Here."

Impatience, greed can lead to ripoffs by mail

The convenience of mail-order shopping will be more pleasant if some advice from Postmaster Dean Thompson is heeded.

"Don't buy a pig in a poke," he says. "Above all don't look for simple answers to complex problems, like losing weight without exercising or dieting or fantastic bargains, like getting a $450 color TV for $50."

Postmaster Thompson also offers some additional rules to follow.

*Beware of exaggerated claims or unusually low prices.

*Don't be rushed! Avoid offers that claim to be your "last chance" to get a bargain.

*Keep a copy of the advertisement from which you order.

*Never send cash. Use a check, money order or credit card because these can be traced if necessary.

*Keep a record of the date of your order and the number of your check, if you pay by check. And retain cancelled check when it is returned to you.

"Mail-order shopping can be a real convenience for busy people and get offer discerning shoppers a chance to get goods only available through the mail," Thompson says. "The Postal Service wants to help our customers get our best. I urge mail-order shoppers to remember these few words of advice, then sit back, relax and go shopping without leaving the comfort of home."

A Salute to Care Givers

May 14-10 is national "Nursing Home Week" and this year's theme—"A tradition of caring"—is intended to honor the truly loving individuals who daily care for the sick and frail in our nursing homes.

Americans are living longer than ever before. In fact, two out of every five people who live beyond 65 years of age will spend some part of their lives in nursing homes. Some 87,000 Texans reside in nursing homes.

Today's modern nursing home care teams include professionals in medicine, nursing, nutrition, social, spiritual and personal care. These people, along with the volunteers who participate in our community nursing homes, should be commended for their commitment to helping make other people's lives happier, more comfortable and more enjoyable.

Most people do not know very much about life in a nursing home. They are unaware of the professional services involved, as well as the fun and stimulating activities available daily to help residents reach their full potential. And we sometimes forget how much the loving touch, smile and conversation with staff and volunteers means to our community pioneers living in nursing homes.

This special week offers an opportunity to give thanks to these care givers in our community, and to increase our own involvement in enriching the lives of nursing home residents.

The Great Days

In the spring of 1933, the Lamar Street Baptist Church in Sweetwater called Lawrence Trott as pastor. This marked the end of school teaching and the beginning of his real seven-day-a-week ministry. "A great feeling," he said.
 Sweetwater then had a population of 12,000. The church grew in numbers and maturity. All available space was used and some classes met in the parsonage.
 Lamar Street Church consisted only of a basement for the total program, and that structure carried a mortgage. Trott preached on tithing and many of the members began giving in that spirit. They paid all debts and started plans to build the second floor and remodel the basement.

 When the White Flat School consolidated with Trent School their three-room brick building was for sale. The church bought it for $175 and the members moved it load by load to their location. Everybody helped clean brick, pull nails and stack lumber. The auditorium rapidly took shape. The church began growing at an exciting rate.
 One Sunday morning, Trott noticed four strange men in the congregation. They turned out to be a committee from First Church, Levelland, who invited him to come preach for them in view of a call.

 "It can get mighty cold up on the plains, and on the Sunday that I went to preach, the country lived up to its icy winter reputation. I had to wear my pajama bottoms under my trousers to keep warm."
 "The church gave me an enthusiastic call and we soon moved to Levelland. That was in 1937, one of the peak years of the Great Depression.
 "Members of the church lived over a far stretch of this wealthy farm country. A county seat town surrounded by good farms and ranches, Levelland promised a church field ripe for harvest."

Visitation in the homes and a good music program helped the church to grow quickly. This church remains an outstanding religious pillar for West Texans.
 "It happened again—a pulpit committee from First Church, Rotan, came visiting. I preached for them and the church called me. In July of 1938 we moved to Rotan. Even as we left Levelland, that church prepared to build."

Here, in a farming-cattle-county town, Trott realized immediately that the Rotan congregation needed a new sanctuary and improved education facilities. They knew it, too. So, in the early 1940's a sanctuary was built with $10,000 borrowed from Hardin-Simmons University (which was soon repaid).

The youth work gained state-wide attention. Trott was asked to go with five intermediate Royal Ambassadors to Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly. Two of these boys are now prominent in Baptist life: Browning Ware is pastor of First Church, Waco; Jimmy Allen is President of S.B.C. Radio and Television Commission.

The church bought a cabin at Lueders Baptist Encampment. This encouraged the people to attend programs there.

Ranchers operated large spreads out in the mesquite country, and many members of the congregation lived on these ranches. "I remember the Bostic, Branch, and Frank Sorrell families, all of whom lived on the far side of the North Fork of the Brazos River."

Three churches—Cross Roads, Sardis and Hobbs—lay west of Rotan, also the community, Hell Roaring Hollow. "I never knew the reason for the name, but I found some really fine people out in Hell Roaring Hollow when I conducted revivals for these smaller churches," said Trott.

Two family tragedies occurred in Rotan.

 Lynn suffered a broken leg in the first high school football game of the season. That one play ended a promising football career forever.
 Glenda, the youngest daughter, contacted polio, considered a killer of children in those days. After four-plus months in Scottish Rite Hospital in Dallas, she came home an earned recognition as an "over-comer." Surgery saved the use of her left hand and today she can do about anything that most other women can do.
 "It happened again! A pulpit committee from First Church, Winters, came in the winter of 1944. I had been in Rotan only 6½ years but it was time again to move on."
 In January 1945, the Trotts moved to Winters and found another church ready to move out. Temporary measures included using cloth curtains to provide classes in the balcony. The basement yielded additional classrooms. "We moved quickly to air-condition the sanctuary. A new educational building was started in 1948."

The Winters church built the first cabin at Heart O' Texas Baptist Encampment. Pastor Trott was on a committee of three to plan the encampment layout. Among other experiences he had was directing the first Vacation Bible School at Winters. This was a huge success and another was conducted for the Negro children with Virginia as principal. A strong woman's organization already existed and Mrs. Trott helped greatly in this work.

After five years in Winters, the Trotts were moving again to Denver City, an oil field-farming community about 70 miles west of Lamesa. "The move took us to the farthest point west in West Texas ministry."

Denver City was the hub of this major oil field region, and many young people moved in to take advantage of oil industry employment. This meant many young parents and a need for a strong children's department. Ruth Trott, as director, found the babies and enrolled them in cradle roll.

Again Ruth filled another big role. She planned and directed a District 8 Youth Camp at Big Spring. New adult classes were organized and attendance ran high. In April, 1954, there was Only eighteen more days until Mayfest is here!

Reservations for the Arts & Crafts and Food booths are coming in and there is going to be lots of "goodies".

Some new people are joining us this year in the Arts & Crafts Building, and it will be fun to see their work, plus the ones who come back year after year. In the food division, there will be the good homemade ice cream from the Baptist Youth. The Fire Department will be cooking up the hamburgers this year. The Cub Scouts will do German Burritos while the Mt. Carmel Church does Mexican Burritos. Methodist Youth will charcoal sausages on a stick while the Guiding Light Baptist folks are dishing up Bar-B-Q sandwiches and Corny Dogs. Sounding good? Then there's the VFW Auxiliary offering Bar-B-Q plates with beans and salad. And for something a little sweet, the Rodeo Assn. will be making Funnel cakes and Kolaches. Cookies from the Eastern Star ladies and brownies from the Literary Service Guild. O'you will want to stop by the Women's Club and pick up a cake to take home with you.

Next week I will tell you about some of the Game Booths. New ones there too.

Everything is shaping up for a great Mayfest Celebration. Come early and stay late so you don't miss anything.

Brand new designed Mayfest Tee Shirts have arrived. We have jade, hot pink, black and white in limited quantities. Hurry down to the Chamber of

Varsity Girls District Results

The varsity girls track team composed of Melanie Smith, Tracey Grantham, Heather Brown, Kathryn Kozelsky, Carrie Smith, and Kimberly Deike scored 52 1/2 points for fourth place at their district meet.

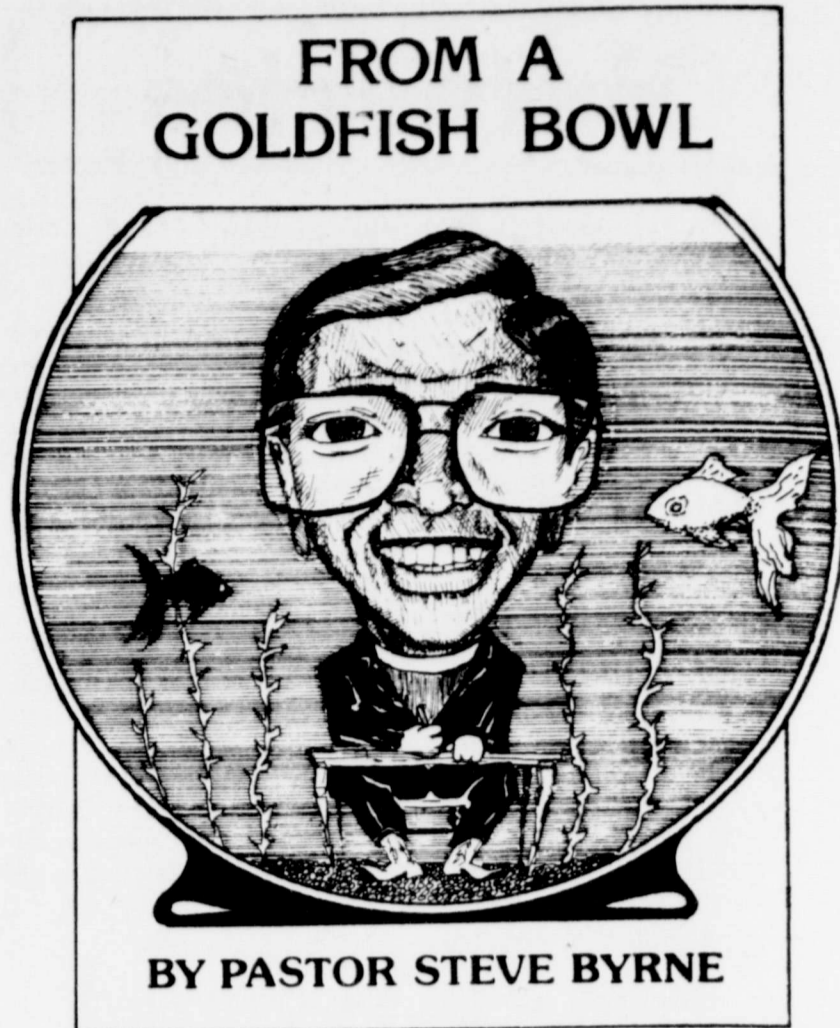

Two girls qualified for the regional meet. Tracey Grantham was first in the 100 m. hurdles running a 16.69. Heather Brown qualified in two events; taking first in both the shot put and discus. She put the shot 32'3 1/2" and her discus throw was 104'4".

Kim Deike placed third in the high jump and Kathryn Kozelsky tied for fifth place. Tracey Grantham and Melanie Smith placed third and fifth in the long jump. Melanie Smith was 5th in the 200 m.

Due to an injury Carrie Smith was unable to perform at her best, so Heather Brown filled her spot on the 800 relay along with Tracey Grantham, Melanie Smith and Kim Deike. The relay took fifth place.

Kim Deike bettered her time with a 2:42.18 in the 800 run. Congratulations to these girls for their accomplishments and hard work.

I suppose a lot of us spend a good portion of our time pondering on the meaning of life. What makes it all hang together and mean something in the light of myriads of seemingly random events that happen to and around us. We think about these things. At least when we are not anesthetized by the TV in our home or the radio-cassette player in the car. I was elated when I got the answer the other night while I was watching television. The commercial begins as a young woman has apparently just had a baby girl, obviously her first. She is thinking back on her own life, trying to figure out what the thread of her existence is that gives meaning to her life. The idea is that once she discovers this thread, she will pass it on to her little girl. Finally, the woman discovers the thread of her existence that has made her life meaningful. The legacy that she will leave to her daughter. SHOPPING AT THE MALL! Imagine the conversation between the rich young man and Jesus. "Good Teacher, what must I do to have eternal life?" "Have you kept the commandments?" "Pretty much, I guess." "Then you lack one thing. If you are really looking for eternal life (meaningful life), go get your checkbook and go shopping at the mall." Jesus says that life is not for collecting and accumulating. But for giving away in service. That the true meaning of life is not found in being served by life and other people, but in serving God and others. I had to stop and think. Are we giving off the message of salvation by shopping? Does this shocking commercial truly reflect the values of our society? My stomach turns when I think that the answer might be, "Yes." I pray that my legacy to Sean and Ryan will be that the meaning of life lies in service. Following Jesus. It might be worth thinking about sometime.

Tick populations are building throughout the area

Residents in the area, at one time or another, will experience the aggravation of tick bites. Knowledge of their biology and habits, as well as methods of tick control, can help avoid this problem.

Ticks are blood-sucking ectoparasites, which attack a variety of hosts, including mammals, birds, reptiles and even some amphibians. Apart from causing loss of blood and localized irritation around the bite, ticks are serious vectors of diseases that affect people, pets and farm animals, as well as wildlife. Many tick species feed on more than one host and they can act as disease vectors between wild animals; which are reservoirs of the disease, and domestic species of people.

In consumer advertising for pet care products, and on many pesticide labels, ticks are grouped with fleas as though they were similar pests. The only similarity between these pests is that both ticks and fleas suck blood and can therefore transmit disease. But, while fleas are insects, ticks are related to mites and spiders; and like them, ticks have rather oval bodies with no distinct dimensions. The life cycles and habitats of ticks are completely different than fleas and necessitate quite different control measures.

Ticks have four developmental stages, egg, six-legged larvae, one or more eight legged nymphs and adult. Hard ticks usually mate on the host animal. The female then drops to the ground and deposits from 3,000 to 6,000 eggs, which hatch into larvae or "seed ticks". Larvae climb nearby vegetation where they collect in large numbers while waiting for small rodents or other vertebrates to pass within reach. After a blood meal on the host, the engorged larvae drop to the ground, shed their skins (molt) and emerge as nymphs. Like larvae, the nymphs await the passage of a host, engorge themselves with blood, drop to the ground, molt and become adults. Adult ticks seek host animals and, after engorgement, mate.

Tick control involves a combination of chemical and non-chemical control measures. The following non-chemical techniques will help to reduce tick problems.

—Keep grass and weeds cut short—this reduces tick resting places and makes the environment drier, thus increasing the chances of ticks dying of desiccation. It also discourages rodents and other animals which might act as tick reservoirs.

—Remove debris which might harbor rodents.

—Fence yards to prevent dogs from picking up ticks from surrounding areas. In addition, such a practice keeps out other large animals.

—Screen or seal vents, chimneys, foundation holes, etc., which squirrels, raccoons, chipmunks, etc. may use to enter building.

—Seal crevices in walls, porch ceilings, kennels, etc., where ticks may lay eggs.

—Remove and burn unnecessary egg-laying sites of ticks (old wooden posts, etc.)

—Clean or destroy pet bedding.

—Regularly examine and groom pets.

Where ticks have become established in and around buildings the use of pesticides will almost always be necessary to eliminate them. Because ticks often stay hidden and can resist starvation for long periods, the emphasis must be on using residual pesticides. Indoors the focus will almost entirely be on treatment of cracks and crevices here ticks hide and lay eggs. This contrasts with treatments against fleas, which primarily involve area treatments of floors.

Indoor treatments against ticks may require treating crevices throughout the premises. This requires products which aren't only labeled for all the necessary sites, but which won't cause damage to various surfaces.

Some recommended insecticides used for tick control are Baygon[®], diazinon, Dursban[®], fenvalerate, Ficom[®], or Safrontin[®]. All of these provide both contact and residual control.

Tick control in home lawns and other vegetated areas can also be obtained with residual sprays. Some suggested insecticides for outdoor tick control are Dursban[®], diazinon, Baygon[®], and Deltic[®].

Do not use the chemicals listed above to treat your pets.

By Bob McDaniel

The last day of Spring Soccer League gave us one of our most exciting games of the season in the Under 10 division with the Mustangs and the Gunners playing to a 1-1 tie in regular game time. Richard Jalomo scored for the Gunners and Kenny Whittenburg for the Mustangs prior to the game going into the third Shoot-Out of the season for these two teams. Once again, however, the Mustangs came out on top with a 3-2 Shoot-Out victory. Cory Murman and Bryan Jennings scored the two goals for the Gunners and Justin Minzenmayer, Kenny Whittenburg, and Joe Nitsch drove the ball in for the Mustang's three goals. There was no action in the Under 12 division.

Below are the final standings for the Spring League:

Samuel Adams was born in Boston, Massachusetts, in 1722. It is believed that he gave the signal to dump the tea, carried in British ships, into Boston Harbor on December 16, 1773. The Boston Tea Party was one of many incidents which eventually led to the outbreak of the Revolutionary War. The Capt. Wm. Buckner Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution urges citizens to read about these events in history.

The Boston Massacre occurred March 5, 1770, and was another event which helped to increase the unpopularity of the British in American which eventually led to the Revolutionary War. It was a street fight between British soldiers and a Boston mob in which many of the colonists were killed by the British, says the Capt. Wm. Buckner Chapter DAR.

Thanks
As this chapter in our lives has come to a close with the death of John Boyd, mere words are too inadequate to express the deep gratitude we feel to all of you who have had a part in making a most difficult time a bit easier to bear. In the past four months, we have received an outpouring of blessings from so many wonderful friends in so many ways—the fundraisers, the recliner, the blood drives, donations, food, cards, flowers, phone calls, visits and prayers.
John Boyd was so aware of all he received and commented many times that he had never felt so loved as he had during his illness. From giving him a smile over coffee at Wes-T-Go, to allowing him the dignity to attend his City Council meetings; from giving donations of time, energy and money, to holding his hand and sharing a prayer—all these kindnesses helped in more ways than you'll ever know. We thank you from the bottom of our hearts and want you to know that we'll never forget our "family" of friends.

Death benefits for firefighters sought by State Legislators

If passed two pieces of legislation introduced in the State Legislature could go a long way in aiding firefighters and other public servants.

HB1538 and its companion bill SB762, sponsored by Rep. Tony Goolsby and Sen. Ken Armbrister, seek to raise the death benefit from the current $20,000 to $50,000 to survivors of firefighters, police officers and other public servants killed in the line of duty. The bills, endorsed by the 113-year-old State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association of Texas, doubly apply to Texas' firefighters, according to David Cox, the Association's executive director.

"No amount of money can compensate for the loss of a firefighter, but $50,000 will go a lot further in easing the staggering financial hardship that comes with the loss of the person who is usually the family's main breadwinner," said Cox. "Since 80 percent of Texas' firefighters are unpaid volunteers, their only monetary compensation comes from death in the line of duty benefits."

A second bill, HB2252, sponsored by Rep. Ben Campbell, calls for buildings built outside a city limit to comply with that city's building codes. According to Ray Williamson, chairman of FirePAC, the Association's political action committee, Texas is one of the only states not to have a state fire code.

"HB2252 allows counties of over 125,000 to adopt a fire code for unincorporated areas," Williamson said. "Texas is one of the few states that has no state fire code and the result is that numerous substandard structures are built just outside the city limits and therefore don't have to comply with city fire codes. In the fire service, we say that these are buildings built to burn. HB2252 is an important step towards firesafe construction practices in Texas."

Dyess opens gates April 30 for "Big Country Appreciation Day"

This day is Dyess' opportunity to thank Big Country residents for their support and friendship.

The main gate to Dyess will open to the general public at 10 a.m. Activities will cease at 4 p.m.

Big Country Appreciation Day will feature the largest number of static display aircraft ever assembled at Dyess. In addition to the large array of static airplanes, there will be fly-overs by such noted aircraft as the B-1B, B-52, C-130, KC-135 and T-38.

One of the day's highlights will be a performance of the Confederate Air Force's P-51, FM-2, F-8F, BT-17 and others. There will be air drops and parachute demonstrations by the 463rd Tactical Airlift Wing's C-130s. One of the unique presentations given throughout the day will be weapons loading demonstrations by the 96th Munitions Maintenance Squadron. Also, the 96th Security Police Squadron will give K-9 demonstrations and simulated aircraft securing procedures.

It promises to be a full day, with concession booths, displays and demonstrations. There will also be professional displays by various contractors of the B-1B.

Admission to the Big Country Appreciation Day is free.

Wait — these folks and to see how they do things now, to swap old "war stories," and compare the "good old days" to KEAN in Abilene.

I must admit, these guys are doing a good job. Thanks, I enjoyed the visit (and the "T" shirt, too).

Rural Health Care and the Public Interest

By Rep. Mike McKinney
D-Centerville

In the past few weeks, much has been said about the so-called health care crisis in rural Texas. No doubt, even more will be said in the days to come, as this issue is debated in the Legislature.

Unfortunately, this issue is shaping up as a matter of greed versus need.

As a country doctor who no longer has a county hospital in which to practice, I can personally attest to the fact that this crisis is real.

Every three weeks another hospital closes in Texas. Currently, 51 Texas counties do not have a hospital.

Millions of rural Texans are being denied access to health care, as hospitals and physicians curtail and even eliminate procedures. Regular maternity care is unavailable in 93 Texas counties. There is no physician, period, in 14 counties, an area larger than nine states and the District of Columbia.

Driving these problems are an unbridled liability system, which has forced professional liability insurance premiums through the roof, a severe shortage of medical manpower in rural areas and an inequitable Medicare-Medicaid reimbursement policy which pays rural hospitals up to 40% less than urban hospitals.

The rural health care crisis is real. And it's getting worse. And it's threatening the life of every rural Texan, as well as every urban Texan who even so much as drives through the country.

It's something we as caring, compassionate Texans must deal with.

H.B. 18 currently before the House of Representatives and soon to be considered by the Senate, I believe, provides symptomatic relief for this rural epidemic. It is a companion to the efforts of Senator Lloyd Bentsen in Washington, and represents the recommendations of a year-long study conducted by a Special Task Force on Health Care Delivery, appointed in 1987 by Governor Clements.

This bill, entitled the Rural Health Care Rescue Act, attacks the causes of this crisis head-on, providing relief in the following areas:

a) Liability. The bill places a cap on non-economic damages of $250,000 for physicians, hospitals or other health care providers who provide emergency care and obstetrical care to the medically indigent when the provider has not previously provided the patient any care.

It also removes liability for physicians or other medical personnel who in good faith provide or give instructions for emergency pre-hospital and hospital care that is not grossly negligent.

b) Severe medical manpower shortage. The bill makes rural practice more attractive by enhancing student loan repayment programs which assist physicians who practice in rural areas. It also requires Texas family practice residency programs to provide the opportunity for residents to serve at least one month in a rural setting.

c) Medicaid reimbursement. The bill requires the Department of Human Resources to ensure reasonable and adequate reimbursement to hospitals for Medicaid patients. It also creates a Hospital Payment Advisory Committee to advise the Board of Human Services regarding the reimbursement for Medicaid.

d) Fragmented implementation of state policy in rural areas. The bill provides a unified statewide effort by creating an Office of Rural Health Care in the Texas Department of Health to promote access to health care in rural areas.

Unfortunately, a handful of the Texas plaintiff's bar — personal injury lawyers who typically keep up to 40% of a client's cash awards — have chosen to distort and misrepresent this legislation.

They argue this bill is discriminatory and cuts off a poor person's right to sue.

This is not accurate. The Rural Health Care Rescue Act does not discriminate against the indigent but instead increases their access to quality health care by providing physicians with limited legal defenses in high risk circumstances, such as emergency obstetrical care and trauma care.

As I previously stated, this legislation was based on the recommendations of the Special Task Force on Rural Health Care Delivery, on which I was privileged to serve. The Task Force heard more than 100 hours of testimony in 11 different cities, but not once during these well-publicized hearings did any member of the plaintiff's bar speak up.

Now after all of the hearings and in spite of all of their previous silence, these trial lawyers are claiming the Rural Health Care Rescue Act is a "sneak attack".

But where were they during the public input process? Why were they silent? And where is their alternative?

No matter how you look at it, the crisis in rural health care is liability driven, and liability is where this problem must be addressed.

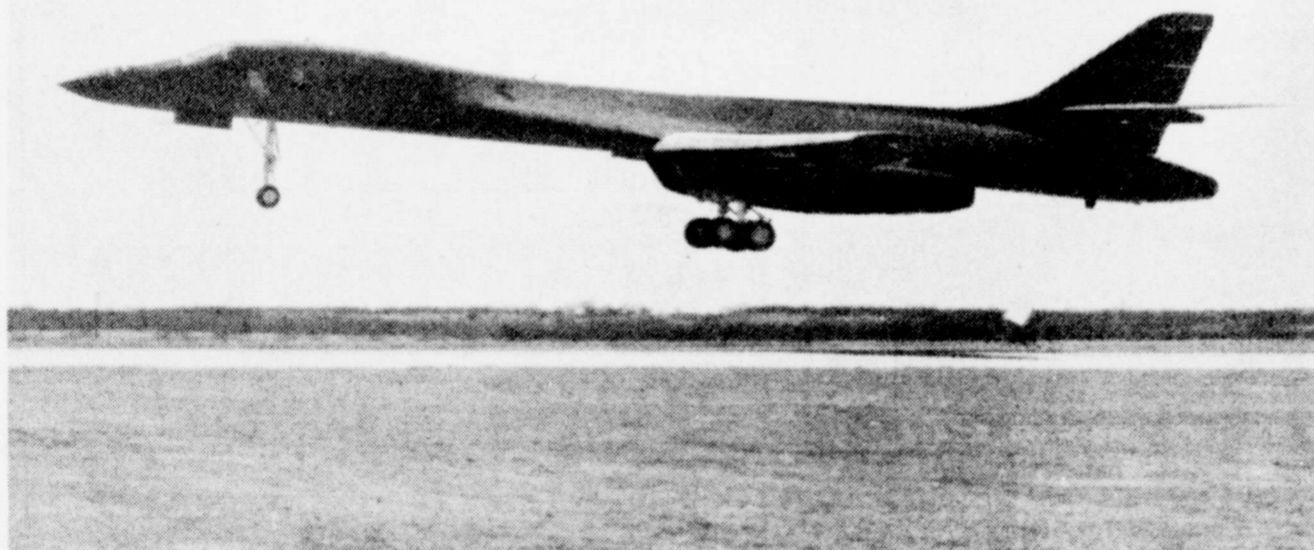

This is more than a rural problem. It affects everyone. Just ask the Dallas teenager who gets a snake bite in Sanderson. Or the Houston couple who has a car accident in Leon County. Everyone is affected by the deplorable state of rural health care in Texas.

If you happen to be lying in an emergency room in some country hospital, when they ask whether you need a doctor or a lawyer, chances are you're going to ask for a doctor.

The Rural Health Care Rescue Act will make it easier for you to see one.

It would serve the public interest if these trial lawyers would put an end to their disruptive practice of baiting doctors with inflammatory charges and false claims of discrimination, and work constructively with the Legislature to resolve this shocking and disgraceful problem. The plaintiff's lawyers must be either part of the solution or part of the problem.

Only then can we improve the quality of health care for all Texans.
