Three seats up for grabs on each: council, school board and hospital board

Each governing board in Winters: the city council, the WISD school board and the North Runnels hospital board will have three seats up for re-election in the May 5 election.

Incumbents on the city council are Jerry Sims, Dawson McGuffin and Gene Bernal. School board incumbents are Joe Bryan, Place 3; Gary Pinkerton, Place 4; and Charless Allcorn, Place 5. Hospital board incumbents are Ronnie Poehls, Bill Cathey and Fred Watkins.

All three incumbents have filed for re-election to their seats on the hospital board.

Filing deadline for council and school board elections is Wednesday, March 21.

Candidates for the hospital board race are required to acquire the signatures of ten registered voters in the hospital district in order to have their names placed on the hospital ballot.

Because of the wording of the charter of the hospital district, filing deadline for a seat on the hospital board is Wednesday, April 25.

First Baptist Church will celebrate anniversary Sunday

First Baptist Church of Winters will celebrate its 100th anniversary Sunday with a homecoming and special services.

Rev. Harry Grantz of Amarillo, a former pastor, will preach at the morning service at 10:10 a.m.

Rev. Grantz pastored the church from 1967-1973 and has been pastor of Pleasant Valley Baptist Church in Amarillo since November 1982.

Other pastors after leaving Winters include Breckenridge First Baptist for seven years and Roby First Church for one year.

Rev. Grantz has had many executive positions in denominational work including the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas for five years. He was general arrangements chairman for the annual meeting of the convention held in Amarillo in 1983.

He is in his third year as a member of the State Missions Commission of the Executive Board of the Texas Convention. This is his first year as a member of the Mexican Rural Work Committee of the River Ministry sponsored by the Convention.

Glenn Shoemake, pastor, will preside and introduce the program. He will recognize L.L. Trott of Abilene and B.T. Shoemake of Commerce, former pastors who plan to be present. Dr. Julian Bridges of Hardin-Simmons University, an interim pastor, also will be on the program.

The day will begin with Sunday School at 9:30 and the centennial service at 10 a.m. with

A catered noon luncheon will be served at the Community Center with singing and fellowship to follow.

At 6 p.m. the choir will present a community-wide choral celebration in the church sanctuary, followed by a reception for everyone in the fellowship hall.

The concert will feature two children's choirs as well as the adult choir.

As a momento of the celebration the concert is going to be professionally recorded by Fitz. Co. Sound of Midland. A cassette tape of the concert will be available for anyone wishing to buy one.

The general public is welcome and encouraged to attend this concert.

Historical displays and pictures will be on display in the reception rooms.

Rev. Grantz will be accompanied by his wife, Margie, a school teacher who has taught third grade in the River Road School District since being in Amarillo. She has been active in the churches where they have lived.

The Grants have two children, Susie and her husband, Carrol Rhodes, live in Tahoka. He is minister of Music and Youth at the First Baptist Church. Susie teaches second grade and is accompanist for the church. Bill is in the Navy; he is married and has three children.

The Winters Centennial Belles will present "Fashion Reflections of Days Gone By" at Ag Day this Thursday, March 15, at 4:45 p.m. at Ballinger High School Home Economics Department. Rhunell Poe will be commentator. Cheryl Bryan is chairperson of the Centennial Belles.

Also the Winters Centennial Committee will have a hospitality table in the exhibit hall with brochures of the Centennial events, Centennial cookbooks and Centennial pins.

If you eat, you are involved in agriculture so please make plans to attend Ag Day beginning at 1 p.m.

The Taste of Winters Tasting Spree and the sale of cookbooks was a huge success. There were over 400 people served with over 485 cookbooks sold. The Winters Community Center was decorated so beautifully, the tables dressed so invitingly and loaded with the most delicious foods. The murals on the west wall and the ladies dressed in old fashioned dresses gave an atmosphere of nostalgia.

There are so many, many people to be thanked for the success of this event. Billie Alderman, president of the Winters Womens Club, Sandy Griffin for getting the recipes together and Bernie Faubion, chairperson of the Tasting Spree, the Winters Enterprise for printing such a wonderful book, the artist who painted the murals, the women and men who cooked the food, the women who served the food and you who bought tickets and attended. The Chamber of Commerce was great to start off our Centennial year and now the Tasting Spree was such a delight. It was great to see out of town guests shopping in Winters after the spree. We would like for everyone in Winters to get involved in the Centennial celebration and enjoy the fun and fellowship and to promote Winters.

A group from Winters attended the San Angelo Rodeo parade last Friday to promote the Centennial celebration. Lee and Tooter Harrison were busy handing out invitations to the Winters Centennial parade on June 30. Mac Sayles had a wagon in the parade with large posters displaying the history of Winters. Mary Esquivel painted the posters. Others in the parade were Gerald Smith, Gilbert Minzenmeyer, Kay Colburn and Edna England.

The First Baptist Church will be celebrating their centennial Sunday. The morning service will begin at 10:10; lunch will be served at noon at the Community Center. Singing and fellowship will follow the noon meal. At 6 p.m. David Speegle will direct a concert by the church's 29-voice choir as a gift of praise of our heritage. Everyone is invited to attend this worship service of musical worship. The pre-school and children's choirs also will sing.

Those buying shares this week are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hodges, Jamie Sims, Dusty Robinson, Dean Robinson, Kandon McGuffin, Brik McGuffin, Addison Bergman, Virginia Foster Appleby; memorial in memory of Walter Kraatz by Mr. and Mrs. Griff Brown, memorial for Mr. and Mrs. Jake Cortez Sr. by their children, Lavera and Paul Thrp, Heath and Heather Watkins, Mitchell Sawyer, Connie Jean Sawyer, Cody Ray Sawyer.

Varied activities planned for Runnels County Ag Day

BALLINGER—The Sixth Annual Runnels County Agriculture Day will be March 15 in the Ballinger High School. This year's theme, "The Poisoning of America, Fact or Fiction," is aimed at food safety.

Rick Minzenmayer, Extension Entomologist for Runnels and Tom Green counties, said "Media coverage over the past several years has heightened the public's concern over the safety of our food supply. This concern," he said, "has generated questions that need answers backed by scientific fact."

"This year's Agriculture Day is designed to inform local residents of food safety issues affecting both rural and urban residents in our area," said Minzenmayer. "The latest innovations in agriculture, commercial exhibits, outstanding speakers and a ladies program will be featured during 'Ag Day.'"

"Dick Foell, with ICI Americas is scheduled as our keynote speaker. Foell is one of the nation's leading authorities on food hazards. He will present a nationwide public education program called FoodWatch whose purpose is to bring the facts about food safety to the general public."

Ag Day begins at 11 a.m. with an informal booth visitation period and complimentary catered fish lunch served to participants. Concurrent programs, one for producers and the other for the ladies will begin at 1 p.m. and continue throughout the day.

The producers' session will include talks on the economics of producing farm products without chemicals, the arsenic acid issue as it relates to cotton production, problems associated with the storage and disposal of agricultural chemicals and the future of crop protection. Also presented will be a look at the 1990 insect situation and a demonstration on proper chemical application.

The sessions' speakers will include Dr. Ed Smith, Dr. Gary Smith, Dr. Bob Metzger, Dr. Billy Warrick and Dr. Tom Fuchs, all with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Also featured will be Charlie Rogers with the Texas Water Commission and Dr. Roy Fuchs, Senior Research Specialist with Monsanto Company.

At the close of the session area cotton producers in attendance will be asked to select the

OIL BUSINESS

By Reg Boles

Does anybody really understand how much oil we import? It is a staggering amount. Without much fanfare, the U.S. has returned to the dependence on foreign oil that is at least as bad as it was in the 70's. (Remember those gas lines?)

This country currently produces about 7-1/2 million bbls. of crude per day, and we import roughly 7 million bbls. each and every DAY. The cost of that little import is about 50 BILLION dollars a year. Yes, BILLION. You would have to sell a lot of Toyotas to equal that amount, but we seem more worried about auto imports than oil imports.

Both of these issues are worrisome, but let's get this thing in perspective. Imported autos account for about 5% of the trade deficit, while imported oil accounts for 50% of the trade deficit. Seems that a problem of such magnitude would draw more attention, but cheap gasoline blinds people to the frightening possibilities.

What are those frightening possibilities? As a primer, go to your local library and read the headlines of newspapers during the period from 1973 until 1980. What you will see is a cycle that results in expensive petroleum products, dependence on foreign governments, burdensome taxes for oil companies, and general wailing and gnashing of teeth.

The cycle goes something like this: Oil prices are low—people are out of work and oil companies are generally unprofitable, and the public refuses to offer even sympathy, let alone economic incentives. Foreign oil becomes a major source of supply as domestic production falls due to lack of incentive to drill. A supply disruption occurs—oil prices rise or even soar. Oil companies become profitable and people go back to work. Rising oil prices continue—the government assumes they are entitled to a part of that new revenue (ala windfall profits tax) and new taxes are levied. The public assumes that something must be crooked and demands more taxes and regulations. Oil prices top out and begin to fall—oversupply overcomes the incentive to develop and we are back to square one.

Sound familiar? These types of occurrences are a result of the cyclical nature of the oil industry. It is not too different from other businesses, but the highs and lows are exacerbated by the magnitude and importance of energy to the world economy. Unfortunately, the U.S. government actually encourages cycles like the above scenario by smoothing out the peaks but not the valleys of the oil industry. The rewards in this business are limited by those taxes and regulations but the risks are as big as ever. Thus, the incentive is not there in the valleys of the cycle to plan ahead (a must in the oil business) 5 or more years, because the peak is not going to be a big enough target to aim for.

Imports are rising again, and this should be a warning to everyone, but it is not being heeded. The government will sit on its hands until foreign countries control a large share of the nation's biggest power source and a supply disruption occurs. This will send prices up and everyone will be appalled at the 'selfishness of the oil people'. An uproar will ensue and taxes will be created and public tongue lashings of oil companies will make headlines. But, the real villain will be eating grapes in a castle in the Middle East, and things will not change until they are ready to make something new happen.

What are some possible solutions? As a start, the public at large must realize that oil producers are business men and women who must make a profit to stay in business. The government must also realize the cyclical nature of the business and, either, (a) smooth out the valleys as well as the peaks, or (b) stay completely out of the cycle. The economists can argue which is better—I have my favorite. And, finally, government must acquire enough common sense to know that there are good and bad times in any business and those in the business must be allowed to have their fair share of each. The oil business is not unique in this respect, it just has higher levels of risks and rewards.

This may be too much to ask for, but maybe those in charge will consider the source of the Premium Unleaded in their limousine and the power source for their air conditioning in their East Coast Villa. The situation might take on a whole new meaning.

FROM A GOLDFISH BOWL

BY PASTOR STEVE BYRNE

I am sitting in front of the computer. My deadline for this article expired about 5 hours ago. Which is about the way things have gone lately.

This weekend I held a planning workshop with a sister congregation who is St. John's Mission Partner. This particular congregation asked me to lead the workshop to help them develop a plan for becoming self-supporting. Their pastor and I were to have a pulpit exchange this past Sunday.

Thursday, my colleague and friend was running 104' temp. And his doctor forbade him from preaching Sunday, much less driving 2 hours to do it. No problem. We adjusted the schedules. A couple of hours on the phone and all was well.

Friday and Saturday I led the workshop. It wasn't a BAD workshop. But it didn't click. It is not like it was a failure. It just didn't click. I like "click."

Drove back Saturday night. Gave the sermon that I had originally written for our mission partner. Somehow it just didn't fit. It didn't click, if you will. Even with an altered ending. But there wasn't time to write another one.

A busy Sunday. Funeral Monday. The copying machine broke down Sunday. With all the bulletins yet to be printed. I won't mention any names, but one of the Winters attorneys came to our rescue, and at 9:15 Monday morning, we had the bulletins for the 10:30 service.

Some time Monday morning, the toilets at church backed up again.

Nothing major. Garrison Keillor would even begin by saying, "It's been a quiet week in my hometown..."

Yet it is the compounding of the small problems that tend to wear on me and bring dazzling new hair colors to my beard.

The adding up of the small problems we face are more dangerous to our well-being than the truly major ones. I have never heard of someone stumbling over a mountain. But you can wear yourself out and get your legs all bloody and painful by stumbling over mole hills.

Not to mention burn-out. Which was what Jesus knew. We all need to get to a lonely place. If for nothing else than to gain perspective. And to realize that after all is said and done, "...only one thing is needed." (Luke 10:42)

"Yet the news about him spread all the more, so that crowds of people came to hear him and to be healed of their sicknesses. But Jesus often withdrew to lonely places and prayed." (Luke 5:15-16) Do you reckon Jesus knew something about all those mole hills?

set a first quarter total of $39,518.95. Percentage-wise the monthly total is down 9.98% and the year-to-date total is down 2.66%.

Ballinger's March check shows a whopping 45.49% increase, but the year-to-date figure is up a more modest 6.41%. The monthly check was for $17,617.17 to yield a year-to-date total of $82,492.36. Those figures were $12,109.19 and $77,520.59, respectively, in 1989.

The checks brought mixed messages for other area towns. Miles received a check for $761.81, an increase of 0.84% over last year; but Tuscola's check for $754.00 was down 21.82% from 1989. The year-to-date total for Miles is $3,673.28 (up 16.78%) while the year-to-date total for Tuscola is $3,497.39 (down 6.39%).

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday that sales tax rebates to Texas cities are up almost 5% so far this year as compared to last year.

Twain Talk

by Fayla Twain

Still like to snow ski? Seems like the folks I've talked to either love it or hate it. I just loved it. Of course that was after I was dressed like "Suzy Ski Slope" and before I actually stepped into the ski boots. Ah, yes - the ski boots. I do believe these must have been designed by Communists or witches or orthopedic surgeons in need of new cars. Or maybe someone with a really warped sense of humor who enjoys seeing folks hobble in complete agony. I had just about gotten the hang of walking in these steel contraptions when I was forced to go up stairs. I felt just a bit smug that I hadn't fallen on my face (or anyone else's) — yet. I'm afraid I spoke too soon because then I realized that I had to go back down these same stairs. (Now if you're ever bored and want to try something new and "different", try severely pulling your toes toward your knees and taping your feet in that position until all the blood leaves your lower extremities. Then try walking down stairs, curbs, hills and mountains without falling on your face. This unique sensation will give you some idea of the joy of wearing ski boots.) I'll always be grateful to the 5-year old kid who told me on the third day that I might walk easier if I'd unbuckle the tops of my boots. That advice certainly came in handy in the powder room and I no longer had to use the hand rails like a gymnast on the parallel bars.

I was well on my way to "conquering the mountain" at this point. That is, until I had to get on the ski lift - a daring feat, I believe. I began to get a bit skeptical about the lift when our ski instructor, Sven Igor, warned us of gross disfigurement if we failed to keep proper dismount form. This simply consisted of keeping the forty pound ski tips pointed upward at an exact 45.8 degree angle, waddling your backside to the very edge of the chair which is dangling 800 feet in the air, and leaning forward so your face will be the first thing to hit the ground and/or ski tips. Then you just slide smoothly off the chair and pray furiously that you won't stab anyone within twenty feet of you and that the fool who fell in front of you will evaporate within the next two seconds before the monster chair swoops into the back of your head. I am proud to say that after only six minor collisions, one of which consisted of becoming seriously entangled with my saintly ski instructor, I almost mastered the ski lift. At least I thought I had, until I ventured over to Lift #2, which travelled just under the speed of sound. So far, I'd had a great time so why ruin it on stupid Lift #2. Besides, I kind of liked the Bunny Slope. And I had learned how to look back up toward the mountain as though I was the first one down from the top and no one was the wiser.

As the end of my first ski adventure came to a close, I actually found myself wishing it wasn't time to go home. I could finally get on and off the ski lift without becoming nauseous. I felt comfy in knowing I could snow plow with the best of them. I had almost learned to turn right and left. I realized that I had by now joined the ranks of those who are hooked on pushing their bodies and minds to the limit. And although some of us reach our limits rather quickly and in different ways, accepting a challenge, taking a few chances and reaching a new goal can certainly bring a wonderful, exhilarating sense of accomplishment - especially if all your bones are still intact!

Poe's Corner

By Charles Poe

STYLES: Then and Now

In keeping with the year's Centennial theme, members of the Triple L Club presented a preview of styles of yesteryear up to the present for guests and members Wednesday in Fellowship Hall of First Baptist Church.

Billie Whitlow introduced the show and presented the models who portrayed styles of each decade, beginning at 1890.

In 1890 the woman's suffrage had gained strength. Art was considered frivolous and was linked with loose morality. No well dressed woman was without the bustle.

Gertrude Young was the stately model dressed in white blouse and red skirt with prominent bustle.

Near 1900 the bustle had grown smaller, and was now only a small pad. It was referred to as a projecting back, never a bustle. Wanda Smith was the pert little lady who represented this era with a handsome dress she had made. She was accompanied by her husband, Gerald, dressed in black with fancy brocade vest, reminiscent of steamboat gambling days. Men were wearing broad brim hats.

In the next few years the hem is slightly raised to expose the petticoat, with much fullness at the feet and ankles. The leg of mutton sleeve was the rage. This style was exhibited by Charles Poe. This dress sported a yoke and ruffled apron made of shear black material. The dress was accented by a black satin bonnet. Broad brim hats for men had shrunk to a derby.

From 1910 to 1920 the automobile was being introduced in America. A few bold and wayward women were actually showing their ankles. Swim suits were worn by women, though sun bathing was unheard of.

Swimsuits were ankle length bloomers, cotton stockings, bouffant swim caps were worn to protect the hair. Gloria Poehls modeled her bathing suit of broad blue and white stripes; full skirt over bloomers and all topped with a fancy cap.

The men paraded wearing suspenders and pert bow ties. Some wore caps enough to make the lady's heart race. Floyd Huckaby, C.R. Knight and Louis Wade led this group.

Now, we are into the roaring 20's. Skirts had shrunk to very small proportions. There was barely enough room for walking. It was called the "Hobble Skirt." The flapper made her eryone by saying, "I'm so proud to be here." But the voice sounded just like Lillian Roberson.

TheWinters Enterprise, Winters, Texas, Thursday, March 15, 1990 5

The 60's brought the hippies. Men grew long hair, tied in a ponytail. Bell bottom pants were worn by both male and female. Dresses had loose waists and were called shifts or "Moo Moo's." Verda Smith wore a new flowered shift she had made.

Anything has been fashionable in the 70's and 80's; long hair, short hair, straight hair or kinky hair; long skirts, short skirts, plaids, dots, stripes, floral or solids; spike heels, low heels and sandals.

But one thing has Whitlow worried—The scanty bikini has replaced the knee length swim suit. She wonders what can be done to the bikini.

can keep this project for future generations.

The 7th and 8th grade class has several projects in progress right now. (1) In math class each student is in the process of designing a house. They are using equivalencies, angles, area, and perimeter to figure the sizes and cost of floor covering and wall area for paint needed.

(2) In health class, students have been studying nutrition. They had to plan a balanced meal, then on Friday they cooked it themselves. They grilled hamburgers outside and due the windy weather, finished putting them together in their classroom.

Employ The Older Worker— March 11-17

Recognizing the importance of meaningful employment for senior Texans, Texas Department on Aging Executive Director O. P. (Bob) Bobbitt, proclaimed March 11-17, 1990, as Employ The Older Worker Week in Texas. Bobbitt further urged "all employers and co-workers of older Texans to acknowledge the value of their accomplishments and achievements in the workplace."

The annual event focuses special attention to the growing and valuable resource of seniors as a source of experience and dependability for both public and private sector employers.

Green Thumb, Inc., a Senior Community Service Employment Program, funded by the Department of Labor, and sponsored by Texas Farmers Union, assists the older workers with training and part-time employment through assignment to local non-profit organizations. Operating in 117 rural Texas counties, Green Thumb enrolls more than 1,000 seniors to provide needed manpower services in such areas as senior centers, day care and headstart programs, schools, public works, weatherization, libraries, and municipalities.

Texas Farmers Union President, Joe Rankin, invites employers "to utilize an abundance of talent, resourcefulness, and experience by hiring senior Texans." "During Employ the Older Worker Week, and every other week, employers should hire the reliability and dedication of an older Texan and see firsthand that Ability is Ageless!" Ranking continued.

Scott Kozelsky, a Winters Junior High 7th grader, attended the United States Space Academy Level 1 in Huntsville, Ala., from Feb. 24 through March 2. He participated in week long activities designed to stimulate student's interests in science, mathematics and engineering.

The program developed from the inspiration of the late Dr. Werner Von Braun, world renowned space and rocket scientist. Dr. Von Braun and others recognized that the United States' lead in technology and space was being taken away by foreign countries and that this was the direct result of a general lack of emphasis on the sciences, engineering and mathematics in the U.S. society. The Space Camp/Academy program, developed in 1982, is a direct outgrowth of Dr. Von Braun's vision.

U.S. Space Academy Level 1 consists of a five-day program which emphasizes the study of the Space Shuttle systems. Trainees participated in two simulated Space Shuttle/Space Station missions. In the first mission Scott was selected to serve as the Flight Director in Mission Control. On the second "flight" he acted as a Space Station specialist, donning a space suit and conducting a simulated space walk to repair the Space Station Freedom. The "Wyle Team," of which Scott was a member was awarded "Best Mission" honors at the graduation ceremonies held Friday.

In addition to the missions, trainees attended numerous classes and took field trips to the NASA facilities at the Marshall Spaceflight Center to observe the work on the Space Station and other ongoing space projects.

Letter to the Editor

Approximately four months ago, a resident of Winters contacted our Rannels County LULAC Council regarding concerns against members of our local law enforcement agency. I was chosen by our LULAC Council to Chair a committee to decide if this request warranted further attention.

During the process of meeting with local representatives and members of the Winters Police Department, we found several areas of concern including a lack of written procedures for citizens to follow regarding complaints, what we felt to be out of date Winters Police Department Policies, and a definite lack of adequate training for members of the Winters Police Department. We presented our concerns to the City Administrator by letter and asked to be placed on the City Council meeting. At the Council meeting, we were told that the City was in the process of developing a complaint procedure and it is my understanding that there is now some form of written complaint procedure and although not entirely adequate; it is a very good beginning.

Upon request by our LULAC Council and agreement by local officials, a member of the United States Justice Department did visit Winters and present a training program for our local law enforcement officers on Civil Rights Violations. Also we are hoping that Winters Police Department Procedures will be updated in the near future. We will be working with the new police chief to ensure that the process that has begun will get a follow-up.

During this four months, myself and another member of the LULAC Council have regularly attended City Council meetings. Members of our City Council have been very hospitable and willing to listen as we have presented our concerns. Although there is still a ways to go, I feel it is unjust to present all our elected officials thru the press media as being a few powerful people who want their way and get it most all the time, even though their way may not be for the good of the majority of Winters residents. During this past four months, I have discovered that no more than a handful of people attend these council meetings and that usually no one but our Rannels County LULAC Council's representatives were present as visitors. How can we as residents of Winters expect to hold our City Council accountable for making decisions that we consider not in our best interest when we as residents CHOOSE NOT to voice our opinion to those who REPRESENT US!

For myself and our Rannels County LULAC Council, the times of setting back and not actively participating are a thing of the past. We will now ensure that we continue to have representation at local meetings of our City Council in hopes of working with elected officials to improve Winters for all members of our Community.

After being contacted by two residents regarding their inability to climb stairs to the second floor of City Hall where our City Council meetings are now held, we approached the City Council by letter regarding the possibility of getting the meeting changed. We were told that this has been a problem that the City Council has been checking into for many years. At the present time, the City Council is checking out several options. It is my hope that this time our City Council will see fit to take action and follow through by showing a commitment to the fact that all residents of Winters should have access to City Council meetings.

While attending the City Council meetings, I have also noticed that no members of the local press are in attendance. Yet one newspaper, consistently presents a brief summary of actions taken usually during the same week that the meetings are held. We have been told that minutes Council meetings cannot be released until approved at the following meeting. I hope that in the future reporters from one or both newspapers will make an effort to attend Council meetings in order to present actual account of actions taken. Residents of Winters must rely upon local members of the news media for a majority of the information regarding our local government and we as residents deserve fair accurate coverage.

In conclusion, I commend the letter that submitted the letter to the editor dated March 1, 1990. It is only by voicing an opinion that we can achieve change. I encourage other members of our community to participate in our local government process. Vote for the representative of your choice and allow them to work for you, but don't be afraid to voice an opinion when you are in disagreement for they represent us, the residents of Winters. By participating, we can say we have done our best to make changes for the better of our community and that is what our Country is all about.

ASK YOUR CHILD WHAT A STRANGER LOOKS LIKE

Chances are good that if you ask your child what a stranger looks like, he or she is likely to describe a person like the one pictured here.

So when you tell your child not to talk to strangers, it's important to make sure that your child understands who a stranger really is.

Simply put, a stranger is anyone your child does not know, be it the "nice lady" with the dog or the kindly old man in the park.

One good idea is to establish a code

word known only by yourself, your child and any adult authorized to escort or care for your child. If the stranger doesn't know the "magic"

word, your child is not to go anywhere with that person. It's as simple as that.

While the movies make it easy to tell the good guys from the bad, real life unfortunately is not so simple. So take a moment to help safeguard your child today.

Child Safety. It's a matter of show and tell.

Annual Ram Performance Test Field Day and Sale March 15 at Sonora

SONORA — The Annual Ram Performance Test Field Day and Sale is set for March 15 at the Sonora Experiment Station near here. The program will begin about 1 p.m., followed by the sale of performance-tested animals at 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Maurice Shelton, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researcher based at San Angelo, said about 400 rams were placed on the test this year, including some Experiment Station-owned rams that were fed on pasture.

"One new aspect of this year's test is that two groups of Australian Merino-Rambouillet rams are included," Shelton said. "There are literally hundreds of good Rambouillet rams on the test. A few of these, not to exceed 75 head, will be offered at public auction."

Shelton said those rams eligible for the sale will be those that performed above average on the test, pass a visual inspection and meet certain minimal production criteria. The test evaluates a range of economically important traits, including fleece characteristics and rate of gain.

Sodium in the Diet

A reasonable amount of sodium for the average person is 2 grams daily or the sodium in 1 teaspoon salt. Most Americans eat 2 to 4 times more sodium than they need by salting their food and eating foods high in sodium.

Centennial Cookbook big success

The introduction of the Centennial Cookbook has been overwhelming and we thank everyone for their support. It is regrettable that it has come to our attention the omission of the following seven (7) recipes. These recipes were overlooked when compiling the cookbook.

1. Buttermilk Salad from Willie Green.
2. Buttermilk Orange Jello Salad from Lavera Tharp.
3. Orange Jello Salad from Nancy Bryan.
4. Strawberry Jello Delight from Melvena Gerhart.
5. Tuna Salad from Brenda Green.
6. Tomato Soup Salad from Alise Middleton.
7. Tomato Cooler from Mary Ellen Moore.

All of these recipes were submitted on time and many of them were a part of the Tasting Spree. As Chairperson of the Centennial Cookbook, I (Sandy Griffin) assume all responsibility for this oversight and I apologize to everyone for this inconvenience.

Good News! We've been informed that the additional 1,500 cookbooks will be completed by the end of this week and that these cookbooks will include the overlooked recipes mentioned above. Early cookbook customers may obtain the omitted recipes at the Winters Enterprise office after Wednesday, March 21.

The cookbooks will be available for sale at the Chamber of Commerce office and other downtown locations Monday, March 19. The cost of the cookbook is $7. Checks should be made payable to the Centennial Celebration.

By the way—if your Tasting Spree dish hasn't been returned, it's because your name came off of the dish. These dishes are available at Jerrolyn's and need to be picked up.

Blood Drive to be held in Winters

United Blood Services will be in Winters, Tuesday, March 27, 1990, to accept voluntary blood donations. The blood drive, from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m., will be at the North Runnels Hospital, room 203.

"There is absolutely no risk of getting AIDS or any infectious disease by donating blood," said Gary Karshner, Community Relations Representative of United Blood Services. Only sterile and disposable equipment is used during the donation process. Everything, from swabs to the blood bags to the needles is used just once and then thrown away.

United Blood Service is the nonprofit community blood provider, serving 21 hospitals throughout West and Central Texas.

Since blood cannot be manufactured or synthesized and red blood cells can only be stored for 42 days, a safe and adequate supply of blood must be available to meet the needs of area hospital patients. Currently, more than 1600 units of blood must be collected each month to meet area demands.

Blood used by patients in the United Blood Services system is freely provided by volunteer blood donors, so there is no charge for blood itself. United Blood Services charges a processing fee to recover the operational costs of the blood center, including collecting, testing, processing, storing and delivering the blood and blood components. Health insurance usually covers this fee.

Healthy people over 17 may donate blood. The State of Texas requires written consent of the parent or guardian for 17 year olds. Each donor receives a thorough pre-donation interview, including a careful review of medical history and a check of temperature, pulse, blood pressure and blood iron level. After the blood is collected, it is typed and tested for diseases which could be transmitted to the recipient. Should any of these test indicate the need for medical attention, the donor is notified by mail.

The actual donation takes about 10 minutes. The donor relaxes in a comfortable chair while one unit (about a pint) is collected in a special container. Afterward, donors enjoy a light refreshment before returning to their normal routine.

Incumbents on the city council are Jerry Sims, Dawson McGuffin and Gene Bernal. School board incumbents are Joe Bryan, Place 3; Gary Pinkerton, Place 4; and Charless Allcorn, Place 5. Hospital board incumbents are Ronnie Pochls, Bill Cathey and Fred Watkins.

First Baptist Church will celebrate anniversary Sunday

First Baptist Church of Winters will celebrate its 100th anniversary Sunday with a homecoming and special services.

Rev. Harry Grantz of Amarillo, a former pastor, will preach at the morning service at 10:10 a.m.

Rev. Grantz pastored the church from 1967-1973 and has been pastor of Pleasant Valley Baptist Church in Amarillo since November 1982.

Other pastors after leaving Winters include Breckenridge First Baptist for seven years and Roby First Church for one year.

Rev. Grantz has had many executive positions in denominational work including the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas for five years. He was general arrangements chairman for the annual meeting of the convention held in Amarillo in 1983.

He is in his third year as a member of the State Missions Commission of the Executive Board of the Texas Convention. This is his first year as a member of the Mexican Rural Work Committee of the River Ministry sponsored by the Convention.

Glenn Shoemake, pastor, will preside and introduce the program. He will recognize L.L. Trott of Abilene and B.T. Shoemake of Commerce, former pastors who plan to be present. Dr. Julian Bridges of Hardin-Simmons University, an interim pastor, also will be on the program.

The day will begin with Sunday School at 9:30 and the centennial service at 10 a.m. with

REV. HARRY GRANTZ

David Speegle, minister of music, directing the song service and introducing past song directors.

A catered noon luncheon will be served at the Community Center with singing and fellowship to follow.

At 6 p.m. the choir will present a community-wide choral celebration in the church sanctuary, followed by a reception for everyone in the fellowship hall.

The concert will feature two children's choirs as well as the adult choir.

As a momento of the celebration the concert is going to be professionally recorded by Fitz. Co. Sound of Midland. A cassette tape of the concert will be available for anyone wishing to buy one.

The general public is welcome and encouraged to attend this concert.

Historical displays and pictures will be on display in the reception rooms.

Rev. Grantz will be accompanied by his wife, Margie, a school teacher who has taught third grade in the River Road School District since being in Amarillo. She has been active in the churches where they have lived.

The Grants have two children, Susie and her husband, Carrol Rhodes, live in Tahoka. He is minister of Music and Youth at the First Baptist Church. Susie teaches second grade and is accompanist for the church. Bill is in the Navy; he is married and has three children.

Publicity Chairman

The Winters Centennial Belles will present "Fashion Reflections of Days Gone By" at Ag Day this Thursday, March 15, at 4:45 p.m. at Ballinger High School Home Economics Department. Rhunell Poe will be commentator. Cheryl Bryan is chairperson of the Centennial Belles.

Also the Winters Centennial Committee will have a hospitality table in the exhibit hall with brochures of the Centennial events, Centennial cookbooks and Centennial pins.

If you eat, you are involved in agriculture so please make plans to attend Ag Day beginning at 1 p.m.

The Taste of Winters Tasting Spree and the sale of cookbooks was a huge success. There were over 400 people served with over 485 cookbooks sold. The Winters Community Center was decorated so beautifully, the tables dressed so invitingly and loaded with the most delicious foods. The murals on the west wall and the ladies dressed in old fashioned dresses gave an atmosphere of nostalgia.

There are so many, many people to be thanked for the success of this event. Billie Alderman, president of the Winters Womens Club, Sandy Griffin for getting the recipes together and Bernice Faubion, chairperson of the Tasting Spree, the Winters Enterprise for printing such a wonderful book, the artist who painted the murals, the women and men who cooked the food, the women who served the food and you who bought tickets and attended. The Chamber of Commerce was great to start off our Centennial year and now the Tasting Spree was such a delight. It was great to see out of town guests shopping in Winters after the spree. We would like for everyone in Winters to get involved in the Centennial celebration and enjoy the fun and fellowship and to promote Winters.

A group from Winters attended the San Angelo Rodeo parade last Friday to promote the Centennial celebration. Lee and Tooter Harrison were busy handing out invitations to the Winters Centennial parade on June 30. Mac Sayles had a wagon in the parade with large posters displaying the history of Winters. Mary Esquivel painted the posters. Others in the parade were Gerald Smith, Gilbert Minzenmeyer, Kay Colburn and Edna England.

The First Baptist Church will be celebrating their centennial Sunday. The morning service will begin at 10:10; lunch will be served at noon at the Community Center. Singing and fellowship will follow the noon meal. At 6 p.m. David Speegle will direct a concert by the church's 29-voice choir as a gift of praise of our heritage. Everyone is invited to attend this worship service of musical worship. The pre-school and children's choirs also will sing.

Varied activities planned for Runnels County Ag Day

BALLINGER—The Sixth Annual Runnels County Agriculture Day will be March 15 in the Ballinger High School. This year's theme, "The Poisoning of America, Fact or Fiction," is aimed at food safety.

Rick Minzenmayer, Extension Entomologist for Runnels and Tom Green counties, said "Media coverage over the past several years has heightened the public's concern over the safety of our food supply. This concern," he said, "has generated questions that need answers backed by scientific fact."

"This year's Agriculture Day is designed to inform local residents of food safety issues affecting both rural and urban residents in our area," said Minzenmayer. "The latest innovations in agriculture, commercial exhibits, outstanding speakers and a ladies program will be featured during "Ag Day."

"Dick Foell, with ICI Americas is scheduled as our keynote speaker. Foell is one of the nation's leading authorities on food hazards. He will present a nationwide public education program called FoodWatch whose purpose is to bring the facts about food safety to the general public."

Ag Day begins at 11 a.m. with an informal booth visitation period and complimentary catered fish lunch served to participants. Concurrent programs, one for producers and the other for the ladies will begin at 1 p.m. and continue throughout the day.

The producers' session will include talks on the economics of producing farm products without chemicals, the arsenic acid issue as it relates to cotton production, problems associated with the storage and disposal of agricultural chemicals and the future of crop protection. Also presented will be a look at the 1990 insect situation and a demonstration on proper chemical application.

The sessions' speakers will include Dr. Ed Smith, Dr. Gary Smith, Dr. Bob Metzger, Dr. Billy Warrick and Dr. Tom Fuchs, all with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Also featured will be Charlie Rogers with the Texas Water Commission and Dr. Roy Fuchs, Senior Research Specialist with Monsanto Company.

At the close of the session area cotton producers in attendance will be asked to select the

OIL BUSINESS

By Reg Boles

Does anybody really understand how much oil we import? It is a staggering amount. Without much fanfare, the U.S. has returned to the dependence on foreign oil that is at least as bad as it was in the '70's. (Remember those gas lines?)

This country currently produces about 7-1/2 million bbls. of crude per day, and we import roughly 7 million bbls. each and every DAY. The cost of that little import is about 50 BILLION dollars a year. Yes, BILLION. You would have to sell a lot of Toyotas to equal that amount, but we seem more worried about auto imports than oil imports.

Both of these issues are worrisome, but let's get this thing in perspective. Imported autos account for about 5% of the trade deficit, while imported oil accounts for 50% of the trade deficit. Seems that a problem of such magnitude would draw more attention, but cheap gasoline blinds people to the frightening possibilities.

What are those frightening possibilities? As a primer, go to your local library and read the headlines of newspapers during the period from 1973 until 1980. What you will see is a cycle that results in expensive petroleum products, dependence on foreign governments, burdensome taxes for oil companies, and general wailing and gnashing of teeth.

The cycle goes something like this: Oil prices are low—people are out of work and oil companies are generally unprofitable, and the public refuses to offer even sympathy, let alone economic incentives. Foreign oil becomes a major source of supply as domestic production falls due to lack of incentive to drill. A supply disruption occurs—oil prices rise or even soar. Oil companies become profitable and people go back to work. Rising oil prices continue—the government assumes they are entitled to a part of that new revenue (ala windfall profits tax) and new taxes are levied. The public assumes that something must be crooked and demands more taxes and regulations. Oil prices top out and begin to fall—oversupply overcomes the incentive to develop and we are back to square one.

Sound familiar? These types of occurrences are a result of the cyclical nature of the oil industry. It is not too different from other businesses, but the highs and lows are exacerbated by the magnitude and importance of energy to the world economy. Unfortunately, the U.S. government actually encourages cycles like the above scenario by smoothing out the peaks but not the valleys of the oil industry. The rewards in this business are limited by those taxes and regulations but the risks are as big as ever. Thus, the incentive is not there in the valleys of the cycle to plan ahead (a must in the oil business) 5 or more years, because the peak is not going to be a big enough target to aim for.

Imports are rising again, and this should be a warning to everyone, but it is not being heeded. The government will sit on its hands until foreign countries control a large share of the nation's biggest power source and a supply disruption occurs. This will send prices up and everyone will be appalled at the 'selfishness of the oil people'. An uproar will ensue and taxes will be created and public tongue lashings of oil companies will make headlines. But, the real villain will be eating grapes in a castle in the Middle East, and things will not change until they are ready to make something new happen.

What are some possible solutions? As a start, the public at large must realize that oil producers are business men and women who must make a profit to stay in business. The government must also realize the cyclical nature of the business and, either, (a) smooth out the valleys as well as the peaks, or (b) stay completely out of the cycle. The economists can argue which is better—I have my favorite. And, finally, government must acquire enough common sense to know that there are good and bad times in any business and those in the business must be allowed to have their fair share of each. The oil business is not unique in this respect, it just has higher levels of risks and rewards.

This may be too much to ask for, but maybe those in charge will consider the source of the Premium Unleaded in their limousine and the power source for their air conditioning in their East Coast Villa. The situation might take on a whole new meaning.

The Tuesday night meeting is scheduled to last one hour. Cheryl Bryan, chairwoman of the Centennial Belles Committee, added, "The Centennial Belles and the Brothers of the Brush are the 'fun' organizations of the celebration. Neither is designed for money-making projects, but to give the community a chance to play together and have some fun. We encourage everyone in the community who likes to have fun with his or her neighbors to come and participate in this kick off meeting."

BY PASTOR STEVE BYRNE

I am sitting in front of the computer. My deadline for this article expired about 5 hours ago. Which is about the way things have gone lately.

This weekend I held a planning workshop with a sister congregation who is St. John's Mission Partner. This particular congregation asked me to lead the workshop to help them develop a plan for becoming self-supporting. Their pastor and I were to have a pulpit exchange this past Sunday.

Thursday, my colleague and friend was running 104° temp. And his doctor forbade him from preaching Sunday, much less driving 2 hours to do it. No problem. We adjusted the schedules. A couple of hours on the phone and all was well.

Friday and Saturday I led the workshop. It wasn't a BAD workshop. But it didn't click. It is not like it was a failure. It just didn't click. I like "click."

Drove back Saturday night. Gave the sermon that I had originally written for our mission partner. Somehow it just didn't fit. It didn't click, if you will. Even with an altered ending. But there wasn't time to write another one.

A busy Sunday. Funeral Monday. The copying machine broke down Sunday. With all the bulletins yet to be printed. I won't mention any names, but one of the Winters attorneys came to our rescue, and at 9:15 Monday morning, we had the bulletins for the 10:30 service.

Some time Monday morning, the toilets at church backed up again.

Nothing major. Garrison Keillor would even begin by saying, "It's been a quiet week in my hometown..."

Yet it is the compounding of the small problems that tend to wear on me and bring dazzling new hair colors to my beard.

The adding up of the small problems we face are more dangerous to our well-being than the truly major ones. I have never heard of someone stumbling over a mountain. But you can wear yourself out and get your legs all bloody and painful by stumbling over mole hills.

Not to mention burn-out. Which was what Jesus knew. We all need to get to a lonely place. If for nothing else than to gain perspective. And to realize that after all is said and done, "...only one thing is needed." (Luke 10:42)

"Yet the news about him spread all the more, so that crowds of people came to hear him and to be healed of their sicknesses. But Jesus often withdrew to lonely places and prayed." (Luke 5:15-16) Do you reckon Jesus knew something about all those mole hills?

Winters tax check down--

set a first quarter total of $39,518.95. Percentage-wise the monthly total is down 9.98% and the year-to-date total is down 2.66%.

Ballinger's March check shows a whopping 45.49% increase, but the year-to-date figure is up a more modest 6.41%. The monthly check was for $17,617.17 to yield a year-to-date total of $82,492.36. Those figures were $12,109.19 and $77,520.59, respectively, in 1989.

The checks brought mixed messages for other area towns. Miles received a check for $761.81, an increase of 0.84% over last year, but Tuscola's check for $754.00 was down 21.82% from 1989. The year-to-date total for Miles is $3,673.28 (up 16.78%) while the year-to-date total for Tuscola is $3,497.39 (down 6.39%).

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday that sales tax rebates to Texas cities are up almost 5% so far this year as compared to last year.

Twain Talk

by Fayla Twain

Still like to snow ski? Seems like the folks I've talked to either love it or hate it. I just loved it. Of course that was after I was dressed like "Suzy Ski Slope" and before I actually stepped into the ski boots. Ah, yes - the ski boots. I do believe these must have been designed by Communists or witches or orthopedic surgeons in need of new cars. Or maybe someone with a really warped sense of humor who enjoys seeing folks hobble in complete agony. I had just about gotten the hang of walking in these steel contraptions when I was forced to go up stairs. I felt just a bit smug that I hadn't fallen on my face (or anyone else's) - yet. I'm afraid I spoke too soon because then I realized that I had to go back down these same stairs. (Now if you're ever bored and want to try something new and "different", try severely pulling your toes toward your knees and taping your feet in that position until all the blood leaves your lower extremities. Then try walking down stairs, curbs, hills and mountains without falling on your face. This unique sensation will give you some idea of the joy of wearing ski boots.) I'll always be grateful to the 5-year old kid who told me on the third day that I might walk easier if I'd unbuckle the tops of my boots. That advice certainly came in handy in the powder room and I no longer had to use the hand rails like a gymnast on the parallel bars.

I was well on my way to "conquering the mountain" at this point. That is, until I had to get on the ski lift - a daring feat, I believe. I began to get a bit skeptical about the lift when our ski instructor, Sven Igor, warned us of gross disfigurement if we failed to keep proper dismount form. This simply consisted of keeping the forty pound ski tips pointed upward at an exact 45.8 degree angle, waddling your backside to the very edge of the chair which is dangling 800 feet in the air, and leaning forward so your face will be the first thing to hit the ground and/or ski tips. Then you just slide smoothly off the chair and pray furiously that you won't stab anyone within twenty feet of you and that the fool who fell in front of you will evaporate within the next two seconds before the monster chair swoops into the back of your head. I am proud to say that after only six minor collisions, one of which consisted of becoming seriously entangled with my saintly ski instructor, I almost mastered the ski lift. At least I thought I had, until I ventured over to Lift #2, which travelled just under the speed of sound. So far, I'd had a great time so why ruin it on stupid Lift #2. Besides, I kind of liked the Bunny Slope. And I had learned how to look back up toward the mountain as though I was the first one down from the top and no one was the wiser.

As the end of my first ski adventure came to a close, I actually found myself wishing it wasn't time to go home. I could finally get on and off the ski lift without becoming nauseous. I felt comfy in knowing I could snow plow with the best of them. I had almost learned to turn right and left. I realized that I had by now joined the ranks of those who are hooked on pushing their bodies and minds to the limit. And although some of us reach our limits rather quickly and in different ways, accepting a challenge, taking a few chances and reaching a new goal can certainly bring a wonderful, exhilarating sense of accomplishment - especially if all your bones are still intact!

By Charlsie Poe

STYLES: Then and Now

In keeping with the year's Centennial theme, members of the Triple L Club presented a preview of styles of yesteryear up to the present for guests and members Wednesday in Fellowship Hall of First Baptist Church.

Billie Whitlow introduced the show and presented the models who portrayed styles of each decade, beginning at 1890.

In 1890 the woman's suffrage had gained strength. Art was considered frivolous and was linked with loose morality. No well dressed woman was without the bustle.

Gertrude Young was the stately model dressed in white blouse and red skirt with prominent bustle.

Near 1900 the bustle had grown smaller, and was now only a small pad. It was referred to as a projecting back, never a bustle. Wanda Smith was the pert little lady who represented this era with a handsome dress she had made. She was accompanied by her husband, Gerald, dressed in black with fancy brocade vest, reminiscent of steamboat gambling days. Men were wearing broad brim hats.

In the next few years the hem is slightly raised to expose the petticoat, with much fullness at the feet and ankles. The leg of mutton sleeve was the rage. This style was exhibited by Charlsie Poe. This dress sported a yoke and ruffled apron made of sheer black material. The dress was accented by a black satin bonnet. Broad brim hats for men had shrunk to a derby.

From 1910 to 1920 the automobile was being introduced in America. A few bold and wayward women were actually showing their ankles. Swim suits were worn by women, though sun bathing was unheard of.

Swimsuits were ankle length bloomers, cotton stockings, bouffant swim caps were worn to protect the hair. Gloria Poehls modeled her bathing suit of broad blue and white stripes; full skirt over bloomers and all topped with a fancy cap.

The men paraded wearing suspenders and pert bow ties. Some wore caps enough to make the lady's heart race. Floyd Huckaby, C.R. Knight and Louis Wade led this group.

Now, we are into the roaring 20's. Skirts had shrunk to very small proportions. There was barely enough room for walking. It was called the "Hobble Skirt." The flapper made her crone by saying, "I'm so proud to be here." But the voice sounded just like Lillian Roberson.

The 60's brought the hippies. Men grew long hair, tied in a pony tail. Bell bottom pants were worn by both male and female. Dresses had loose waists and were called shifts or "Moo Moo's." Verda Smith wore a new flowered shift she had made.

Anything has been fashionable in the 70's and 80's; long hair, short hair, straight hair or kinky hair; long skirts, short skirts, plaids, dots, stripes, floral or solids; spike heels, low heels and sandals.

But one thing has Whitlow worried—The scanty bikini has replaced the knee length swim suit. She wonders what can be done to the bikini.

The 7th and 8th grade class has several projects in progress right now. (1) In math class each student is in the process of designing a house. They are using equivalencies, angles, area, and perimeter to figure the sizes and cost of floor covering and wall area for paint needed.

(2) In health class, students have been studying nutrition. They had to plan a balanced meal, then on Friday they cooked it themselves. They grilled hamburgers outside and due the windy weather, finished putting them together in their classroom.

Employ The Older Worker— March 11-17

Recognizing the importance of meaningful employment for senior Texans, Texas Department on Aging Executive Director O. P. (Bob) Bobbitt, proclaimed March 11-17, 1990, as Employ The Older Worker Week in Texas. Bobbitt further urged "all employers and co-workers of older Texans to acknowledge the value of their accomplishments and achievements in the workplace."

The annual event focuses special attention to the growing and valuable resource of seniors as a source of experience and dependability for both public and private sector employers.

Green Thumb, Inc., a Senior Community Service Employment Program, funded by the Department of Labor, and sponsored by Texas Farmers Union, assists the older workers with training and part-time employment through assignment to local non-profit organizations.

ment through assignment to local non-profit organizations. Operating in 117 rural Texas counties, Green Thumb enrolls more than 1,000 seniors to provide needed manpower services in such areas as senior centers, day care and headstart programs, schools, public works, weatherization, libraries, and municipalities.

Texas Farmers Union President, Joe Rankin, invites employers "to utilize an abundance of talent, resourcefulness, and experience by hiring senior Texans." "During Employ the Older Worker Week, and every other week, employers should hire the reliability and dedication of an older Texan and see firsthand that Ability is Ageless!" Ranking continued.

Scott Kozelsky, a Winters Junior High 7th grader, attended the United States Space Academy Level 1 in Huntsville, Ala., from Feb. 24 through March 2. He participated in week long activities designed to stimulate student's interests in science, mathematics and engineering.

The program developed from the inspiration of the late Dr. Werner Von Braun, world renowned space and rocket scientist. Dr. Von Braun and others recognized that the United States' lead in technology and space was being taken away by foreign countries and that this was the direct result of a general lack of emphasis on the sciences, engineering and mathematics in the U.S. society. The Space Camp/Academy program, developed in 1982, is a direct outgrowth of Dr. Von Braun's vision.

U.S. Space Academy Level 1 consists of a five-day program which emphasizes the study of the Space Shuttle systems. Trainees participated in two simulated Space Shuttle/Space Station missions. In the first mission Scott was selected to serve as the Flight Director in Mission Control. On the second "flight" he acted as a Space Station specialist, donning a space suit and conducting a simulated space walk to repair the Space Station Freedom. The "Wyle Team," of which Scott was a member was awarded "Best Mission" honors at the graduation ceremonies held Friday.

In addition to the missions, trainees attended numerous classes and took field trips to the NASA facilities at the Marshall Spaceflight Center to observe the work on the Space Station and other ongoing space projects.

Letter to the Editor

Approximately four months ago, a resident of Winters contacted our Runnels County LULAC Council regarding concerns against members of our local law enforcement agency. I was chosen by our LULAC Council to Chair a committee to decide if this request warranted further attention.

During the process of meeting with local representatives and members of the Winters Police Department, we found several areas of concern including a lack of written procedures for citizens to follow regarding complaints, what we felt to be out of date Winters Police Department Policies, and a definite lack of adequate training for members of the Winters Police Department. We presented our concerns to the City Administrator by letter and asked to be placed on the City Council meeting. At the Council meeting, we were told that the City was in the process of developing a complaint procedure and it is my understanding that there is now some form of written complaint procedure and although not entirely adequate; it is a very good beginning.

Upon request by our LULAC Council and agreement by local officials, a member of the United States Justice Department did visit Winters and present a training program for our local law enforcement officers on Civil Rights Violations. Also we are hoping that Winters Police Department Procedures will be updated in the near future. We will be working with the new police chief to ensure that the process that has begun will get a follow-up.

During this four months, myself and another member of the LULAC Council have regularly attended City Council meetings. Members of our City Council have been very hospitable and willing to listen as we have presented our concerns. Although there is still a ways to go, I feel it is unjust to present all our elected officials thru the press media as being a few powerful people who want their way and get it most all the time, even though their way may not be for the good of the majority of Winters residents. During this past four months, I have discovered that no more than a handful of people attend these council meetings and that usually no one but our Runnels County LULAC Council's representatives were present as visitors. How can we as residents of Winters expect to hold our City Council accountable for making decisions that we consider not in our best interest when we as residents CHOOSE NOT to voice our opinion to those who REPRESENT US!

For myself and our Runnels County LULAC Council, the times of setting back and not actively participating are a thing of the past. We will now ensure that we continue to have representation at local meetings of our City Council in hopes of working with elected officials to improve Winters for all members of our Community.

After being contacted by two residents regarding their inability to climb stairs to the second floor of City Hall where our City Council meetings are now held, we approached the City Council by letter regarding the possibility of getting the meeting changed. We were told that this has been a problem that the City Council has been checking into for many years. At the present time, the City Council is checking out several options. It is my hope that this time our City Council will see fit to take action and follow through by showing a commitment to the fact that all residents of Winters should have access to City Council meetings.

While attending the City Council meetings, I have also noticed that no members of the local press are in attendance. Yet one newspaper, consistently presents a brief summary of actions taken usually during the same week that the meetings are held. We have been told that minutes Council meetings cannot be released until approved at the following meeting. I hope that in the future reporters from one or both newspapers will make an effort to attend Council meetings in order to present accurate account of actions taken. Residents of Winters must rely upon local members of the news media for a majority of the information regarding our local government and we as residents deserve fair accurate coverage.

In conclusion, I commend this resident that submitted the letter to the editor dated March 1, 1990. It is only by voicing an opinion that we can achieve change. I encourage other members of our community to participate in our local government process. Vote for the representative of your choice and allow them to work for you, but don't be afraid to voice an opinion when you are in disagreement for they represent us, the residents of Winters. By participating, we can say we have done our best to make changes for the better of our community and that is what our Country is all about.

ASK YOUR CHILD WHAT A STRANGER LOOKS LIKE

Chances are good that if you ask your child what a stranger looks like, he or she is likely to describe a person like the one pictured here.

So when you tell your child not to talk to strangers, it's important to make sure that your child understands who a stranger really is.

Simply put, a stranger is anyone your child does not know, be it the "nice lady" with the dog or the kindly old man in the park.

One good idea is to establish a code

word known only by yourself, your child and any adult authorized to escort or care for your child. If the stranger doesn't know the "magic"

word, your child is not to go anywhere with that person. It's as simple as that.

While the movies make it easy to tell the good guys from the bad, real life unfortunately is not so simple.

So take a moment to help safeguard your child today.

Child Safety. It's a matter of show and tell.

SUPPORT THE
CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Ag Day will be celebrated--

1990 Uniform Delayed Planting Date for Runnels County.

The ladies session has as their first speaker Keitha Stephenson of Springtown. Stephenson, an author, publisher and humorist, will present a talk on women reaching their full potential called "Think Like a Man, Work Like a Dog and Act Like a Lady".

Roy Rodriguez from San Angelo will follow with a look at cult activity and satanism and its affect on youth. Rodriguez conducts professional drug prevention programs in the area.

The session's final speaker is Dick Foell, who will present a look at food safety in the home entitled "Ladies, the Kitchen's Becoming a Scary Place." The session will conclude with a fashion show featuring the Winters Centennial Belles' presentation of "Fashion Reflections of Days Gone By".

A catered meal will be served at 6 p.m. prior to the evening session with entertainment provided by San Angeloan Julie Carpenter and her band. Immediately following supper, an awards ceremony is scheduled to announce the recipients of the Pat Lee Memorial Scholarship, the Farm Family of the Year and the Agribusinessman of the Year. Also to be recognized by special presentation is Dub McMillion. McMillion is being honored for his continued support of Extension programming in Runnels County.

The day's activities will conclude with Foell's keynote address. He will be introduced by State Senator Temple Dickson of Sweetwater who will speak briefly on the food safety issue in Texas.

"The Runnels County Crops Committee and the Home Economics Committee have coordinated plans for all the Ag Day activities," said Minzenmayer. "Our entire area's population is invited as there are programs of interest for urban and rural residents alike."

Annual Ram Performance Test Field Day and Sale March 15 at Sonora

SONORA — The Annual Ram Performance Test Field Day and Sale is set for March 15 at the Sonora Experiment Station near here. The program will begin about 1 p.m., followed by the sale of performance-tested animals at 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Maurice Shelton, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researcher based at San Angelo, said about 400 rams were placed on the test this year, including some Experiment Station-owned rams that were fed on pasture.

"One new aspect of this year's test is that two groups of Australian Merino-Rambouillet rams are included," Shelton said. "There are literally hundreds of good Rambouillet rams on the test. A few of these, not to exceed 75 head, will be offered at public auction."

Shelton said those rams eligible for the sale will be those that performed above average on the test, pass a visual inspection and meet certain minimal production criteria. The test evaluates a range of economically important traits, including fleece characteristics and rate of gain.

Scenes from Tasting Spree

Some of the younger set joins in to enjoy a meal in the old fashioned cabin.

Folks enjoy their food while others fill their plates with the many dishes.

Tooter Harrison (in hat) and Sherri Mikeska "man" ticket/cookbook sales.

Centennial Cookbook big success

The introduction of the Centennial Cookbook has been overwhelming and we thank everyone for their support. It is regrettable that it has come to our attention the omission of the following seven (7) recipes. These recipes were overlooked when compiling the cookbook.

1. Buttermilk Salad from Willie Green.
2. Buttermilk Orange Jello Salad from Lavera Tharp.
3. Orange Jello Salad from Nancy Bryan.
4. Strawberry Jello Delight from Melvena Gerhart.
5. Tuna Salad from Brenda Green.
6. Tomato Soup Salad from Alise Middleton.
7. Tomato Cooler from Mary Ellen Moore.

All of these recipes were submitted on time and many of them were a part of the Tasting Spree. As Chairperson of the Centennial Cookbook, I (Sandy Griffin) assume all responsibility for this oversight and I apologize to everyone for this inconvenience.

Good News! We've been informed that the additional 1,500 cookbooks will be completed by the end of this week and that these cookbooks will include the overlooked recipes mentioned above. Early cookbook customers may obtain the omitted recipes at the Winters Enterprise office after Wednesday, March 21.

The cookbooks will be available for sale at the Chamber of Commerce office and other downtown locations Monday, March 19. The cost of the cookbook is $7. Checks should be made payable to the Centennial Celebration.

By the way—if your Tasting Spree dish hasn't been returned, it's because your name came off of the dish. These dishes are available at Jerrolyn's and need to be picked up.

Blood Drive to be held in Winters

United Blood Services will be in Winters, Tuesday, March 27, 1990, to accept voluntary blood donations. The blood drive, from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m., will be at the North Runnels Hospital, room 203.

"There is absolutely no risk of getting AIDS or any infectious disease by donating blood," said Gary Karshner, Community Relations Representative of United Blood Services. Only sterile and disposable equipment is used during the donation process. Everything, from swabs to the blood bags to the needles is used just once and then thrown away.

United Blood Service is the nonprofit community blood provider, serving 21 hospitals throughout West and Central Texas.

Since blood cannot be manufactured or synthesized and red blood cells can only be stored for 42 days, a safe and adequate supply of blood must be available to meet the needs of area hospital patients. Currently, more than 1600 units of blood must be collected each month to meet area demands.

Blood used by patients in the United Blood Services system is freely provided by volunteer

blood donors, so there is no charge for blood itself. United Blood Services charges a processing fee to recover the operational costs of the blood center, including collecting, testing, processing, storing and delivering the blood and blood components. Health insurance usually covers this fee.

Healthy people over 17 may donate blood. The State of Texas requires written consent of the parent or guardian for 17 year olds. Each donor receives a thorough pre-donation interview, including a careful review of medical history and a check of temperature, pulse, blood pressure and blood iron level. After the blood is collected, it is typed and tested for diseases which could be transmitted to the recipient. Should any of these test indicate the need for medical attention, the donor is notified by mail.

The actual donation takes about 10 minutes. The donor relaxes in a comfortable chair while one unit (about a pint) is collected in a special container. Afterward, donors enjoy a light refreshment before returning to their normal routine.
