City race has four running for two seats

Candidates running for places in the city election are profiled below. Absentee voting began last Monday and will continue through April 30.

Sandy Griffin
Candidate for Mayor

Sandy Griffin, candidate for Mayor, has been on the City Council for five years. She was appointed by the Council to fill the unexpired term of June Hays when she and her husband moved out of Winters city limits in 1986. After filling the unexpired term, Mrs. Griffin was elected to the City Council in 1987 and again in 1989.

Born and raised in Rochester, New York, Mrs. Griffin lived for eleven years in California before she and her husband moved to Winters twenty-one years ago. Her husband of thirty years is W. A. (Bill) Griffin. Bill was President of Dry Manufacturing at the time of his retirement in 1989. He had been employed by Dry's parent company for thirty years.

Sandy enjoys playing Bridge and most outdoor activities, especially golf. She is an active member in two golf associations, serving as Secretary-Treasurer for the Winters Golf Association and as Vice-President for the Abilene Country Club Association.

For twelve years, she has been in charge of the kitchen during the Chamber of Commerce Arts & Crafts show. A charter member of the Winters Woman's Club, she headed the Ways and Means Committee for four years, was Vice-President for two years and served as club President for two years.

As part of the Winters Centennial Celebration, she co-chaired the "Special Days" and "Special Events" divisions with Joyce Bahlman. Mrs. Griffin was also in charge of the Centennial Cookbook. Her fondest memory of the celebration was being cast as a "principal" in the nightly pageant.

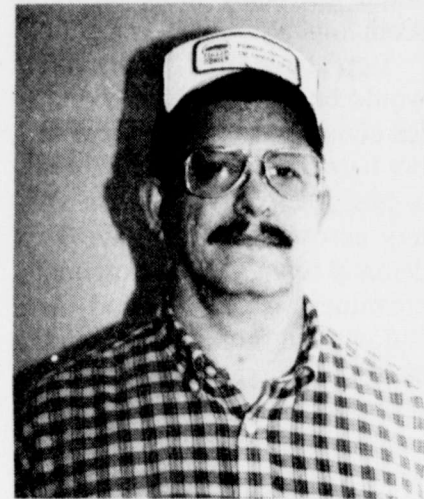

"I see Winters as a friendly, progressive West Texas town and hope to serve the residents of Winters in that manner. However, as Mayor, I do not intend to conduct any City business from my home at anytime. I will be available at City Hall and around town most every day. I intend to be a hands-on Mayor, but must insist on my personal privacy. I look forward to the experience of being your Mayor. I will need and appreciate your support."

Last ditch effort for Little League

Thursday night at 8:30 pm at the Lutheran Church will be the last attempt in which to organize Winters Area Texas League Baseball.

Anyone wishing to coach or assist is urged to attend this meeting. Children ages 6 to 16 are eligible for the fine program. If not enough people are interested in helping to organize this program, it will be cancelled for the summer.

Call Mary Lynn Presley or Archie Lancaster for more information.

Manuel Esquivel, Jr.
Candidate for City Council

Manuel Esquivel, Jr. has been a resident of Winters most of his life. He was born and raised in the Dale Community, southeast of Winters, where his father farmed for the late D. J. Goetz, Sr. Mr. Esquivel graduated from Winters High School in 1963. In high school, he was a member of the Blizzard Band.

Mr. Esquivel is the originator of the Blizzard logo now in use by the Winters Blizzards. It was drawn under the supervision of the late Robert Christian, former coach and principal in the Winters school system. The drawing was approved and accepted in 1961.

Art is a favorite pastime of Esquivel and he still draws when time permits. Several of his drawings were published in the National Poetry Association, Art Division, during his school years.

Mr. Esquivel served in the U.S. Army and was stationed in Germany for two years. During his adult life he has worked for Spill Funeral Home, Lone Star Gas and the Winters Independent School District. In 1978 Esquivel moved to Brady to work for the school system there. He was Maintenance and Transportation Director for six years, returning to Winters in 1985 due to his father's failing health.

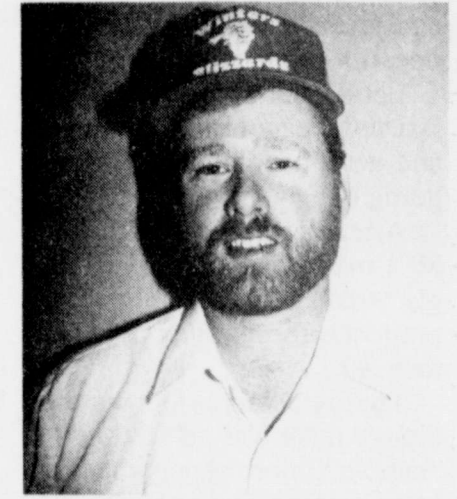

While in Brady, Mr. Esquivel was active in the Bulldog Booster Club and worked with the Concho Valley Council of Governments securing jobs for students in McCulloch County.

After returning to Winters, he worked for John's International and also worked the night shift at Dry Manufacturing. Esquivel is presently employed by Dry Manufacturing as an operator of a computer controlled stamp machine.

He is married to the former Cathy Green. They have two sons and a daughter, Manuel III, Bradley and Kendra.

As a candidate for a position on the City Council, Mr. Esquivel says "I will serve the City of Winters and its' citizens to the best of my ability. I will work with the Mayor, other members of the Council, all city departments and citizens to better our city government."

Mr. Esquivel further states, "I have gained knowledge and skills that are required while working with people and with tight budgets. My door will be open to all citizens of Winters, especially those in the Hispanic area. I will do my best to improve relations between the city departments and the citizens of Winters."

In her opening campaign statement, Mrs. Nitsch says, "With the support of the people of Winters, I hope to help organize planning and budgeting. We have a great deal to offer as a city if we can truly work together and pool all our special talents. I need your support to gain a position that will allow me to benefit all of you."

Spring Tour of Homes Sunday

The Winters Woman's Club Spring Tour of Homes will be held Sunday, April 21, from 2-5 p.m. This annual event features two country homes and the newly renovated Winters Country Club clubhouse. The price is $3.00 per person and tickets are available for purchase from any member of the Woman's Club, the Chamber of Commerce, or at the three locations on the day of the tour.

The residence of June and Bobby Blackwood, owner of Quality Interiors, is one of the homes featured on the tour of homes. The Blackwood house, built in 1981, is a modified 2-story "A" frame made entirely of steel. This couple has used their many talents to create an unusual and personal home.

Bobby designed the house with over 1200 square feet in the upstairs bedroom, bath and family room, and over 1400 square feet in the downstairs area. The living room, dining and kitchen areas in the downstairs are combined into an unseparated space. All the walls are done in pecan paneling with the west wall in the living room made of faux rock which includes a fireplace with cedarmantle. Also downstairs is the master bedroom and bath.

June has planned the interior around various shades of brown and beige capitalizing on earth tones to develop her country theme. Accent colors are rusts, blues and greens, and in the master bedroom she has used areas of large floral prints complemented by corresponding mini-prints and lace window treatments.

The upstairs guest rooms contain a collection of antique pieces including old mirrors, an early-style dresser, a hand crank victrola and floor model radio. She has used many of her mother's and grandmother's old pictures for wall decorations. The accent colors here are in peach tones with lace

Card of Thanks

I would like to say "thanks" to all the Winters and surrounding area folks who expressed concern for my health and its progress, during the last week or so, and the many ways you did so.

The various church groups who sent word; the many individuals who came to visit, who called, and sent word and encouragement. A special thanks to my minister Bro. Travis Franklin, Dr. Lee and the nurses at North Runnels Hospital, Bob Prewitt, Archie Lancaster, and the physicians and staff in Abilene.

All of you have, and do, mean so much to me - we have to have something to happen to "open" our eyes and heart. Thanks again.

Spirit Filled Happenings

by Dixie Leverett
Guiding Light Spirit Filled Baptist Church

Have you ever really had a bad day? Maybe the kids drove you crazy, the car had a flat, you were late for an appointment or, you had a fight with your spouse.

Whatever the causes you had reached the limit, but you needed milk or bread from the store. So off you go to the store, get your items only to find one checker on duty and the person in front of you has an overflowing basket and, wouldn't you know it, they're going to write a check.

It's the last straw, but the person in front of you turns around, gives you a warm smile, and tells you to go ahead since you only have a few items. You then smile at the checker, she returns your smile and it all seems better. The day isn't a total loss.

Smiling is contagious. Give a smile, receive a smile. Love and kindness toward another is a gift from God. Your smile is your light, let it shine. Matthew 5:16

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

In the future

"Community of Caring Program" comes to Winters

Values are the emotional rules by which a nation and a community will govern itself. Values summarize the accumulated folk wisdom by which a society organizes and disciplines itself. And values are the precious reminders that individuals obey to bring order and meaning into their personal lives.

The school is the only agency legally established by organized society and supported by taxation whose sole job it is to teach the child the knowledge, the skills and the values required for a successful adult life within the bounds of society. Its task is formidable, its achievement when things work well—that is, when teachers, children and parents unite in a common effort—can be magnificent.

Winters ACES will introduce the "COMMUNITY OF CARING PROGRAM" to the community on April 24, 1991.

The Community of Caring school is a school that has initiated an active, caring program that includes all members of a school's community—students, teachers, parents, staff, administrators and civic and business leaders.

June S. Sherwin, a Community of Caring Consultant and Trainer from Phoenix, Arizona, will present the perspectives in values education and the role of the school and community in this task. Ms. Sherwin received her B.S. degree from the University of Vermont and her Masters from the University of Connecticut in Education. She is currently working on her doctorate through the Ottawa College, UMKC. She has been trained in the area of values-education through the University of Virginia, and holds the position of consultant and trainer. She is experienced in being the Lead Teacher for Winnetonka High School, North Kansas City, MO, and has had 21 years of teaching experience and has been the teen Forum Advisor, Southern Governors' Conference, Wilmington, Delaware. Ms. Sherwin was presented the Christa McAuliffe Pioneer in Education Award, Northland Chamber of Commerce, 1988.

Ms. Sherwin comes to the Winters Community highly recommended by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation, Washington, D.C. The Kennedy Foundation is the sponsoring agent of the Community of Caring Program.

Girl Scout Leaders Day set for April 22

April 22, 1991, marks the tenth annual observance of Girl Scout Leader's Day. Thousands of women and men nationwide will be honored for their voluntary contributions to Girl Scouting. The Heart of Texas Girl Scout Council will be paying tribute to our 1,016 adult volunteers with cards, a small token of appreciation from the council and special activities in troops or the service units.

Today, 79 years after the first Girl Scout troop met in the United States, the Girl Scouts' goal remains unchanged—to help today's girls become tomorrow's leaders. The remarkable thing is that Girl Scout troop leaders make every developmental step along the way fun.

Remember Secretaries Day Wednesday, April 24

PROCLAMATION Girl Scout Leader's Day

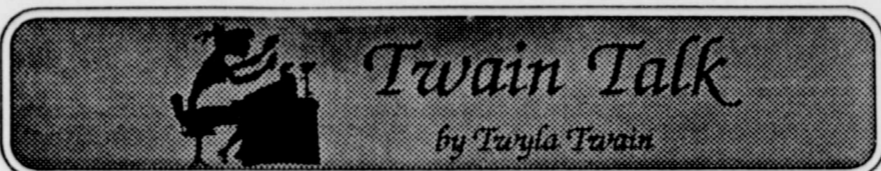

WHEREAS, Girl Scouts across the nation observe the tenth annual Girl Scout Leader's Day on April 22, 1991; and
 WHEREAS, Girl Scout leaders have served as valuable role models for more than 50 million girls since Girl Scouting began in 1912; and
 WHEREAS, Girl Scout leaders provide an all-girl setting where girls can enjoy leadership experiences that will enhance their lives so that they can contribute to society now and in the future; and
 WHEREAS, Girl Scout leaders provide a setting where girls can have fun and form lifelong friendships; and
 WHEREAS, 1,016 adults in Heart of Texas Girl Scout Council volunteer as Girl Scout leaders working with 2,502 girls in their 19-county jurisdiction,
NOW THEREFORE, I, Randy Springer, by virtue of the authority vested in me as mayor of Winters, hereby proclaim April 22, 1991, as Girl Scout Leader's Day in Winters. I do further call upon all citizens of Winters to join me in honoring Girl Scout leaders and lending continued support and cooperation to all Girl Scouts.

Driving me crazy - a very short trip!

Did you take driver's education? That wonderful course that allows hormone-crazed teenagers to get behind the wheel of a vehicle and meet the world head-on.

About a hundred years ago when I took driver's ed, things were much different. Not that I had to bring my own horse and buggy to class - I just had a different setting than what's available for today's course.

Back in my day (don't you just love to hear that?) the law allowed us to take driver's ed and get our licenses at age 14! As an adult, I'm not so sure that was such a great idea. But at age 14, I thought it was the greatest law ever made (next to the one that allowed us to spend summers out of school).

By the time I was 14, most of my classmates and I had already been driving for at least four years. Some of us had driven tractors, trucks and pickups as was necessary for survival on the farm. We'd occasionally get to "go into town" and might be lucky enough to get to take the car instead of the pickup.

So when we all signed up to take driver's ed, none of us were worried. And I sure didn't see any big deal about jumping into the driver's seat, hanging my left arm out the rolled-down window and yelling "where to?" to my instructor at the beginning of my first outing behind the wheel.

After all, this was my "turf" and I had driven those roads a million times. No sweat.

Now that my son has reached this golden opportunity, why should there be any need for concern? I'll tell you why!

First, we decided that he really couldn't go through life (or my five-speed transmission) staying in whatever gear he happened to start with. Yes, I'm picky that way. So we found a deserted road and began a new game called, "Watch Mom's Neck Pop a Thousand Times."

Guess I should have taken the advice of my friend who begged me to wear her neck brace during the "learning of the gear shifting."

After what only seemed like an eternity, my sweet son managed to go somewhat smoothly through all five gears while I went through five aspirin. Fair enough.

Now we were ready for real driving, real cars, real people, real headaches. And, according to my son, as long as the radio was on the right station at a deafening level, everything would be right with the world.

So why have I developed a huge callous on my right foot from pressing phantom brakes on the passenger side? I'll probably have to get my front teeth recapped because I've worn them down from sucking air through them as a trade-off from expressing verbal panic at fast-approaching stop signs, traffic lights and one-way streets.

I've become accustomed to honking at houses of "cool" friends every six seconds. I can almost tolerate changing lanes at 30 mph without hitting even one of those bumpy dividers. I can almost guess what songs will warrant an immediate channel change because we simply cannot drive without bobbing our heads to something "radical" on the radio.

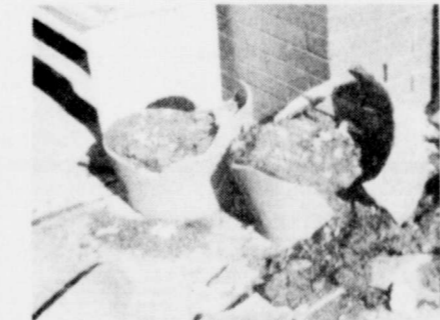

So when you see a cute teenager "jammin' down the road" with a graying-by-the-minute mom wearing a neck brace, don't worry. It's just me enjoying life in the fast lane.

Woman's Club discusses Tour of Homes and Mayfest activities

The Woman's Club met on April 9 in the fellowship building of the First Baptist Church. Sharing hostess duties were Dorothea Laughon, Janie Humble, and Theresa Briley.

"Travel of the Holy Lands" was the program. Glenn Shoemaker, pastor of the First Baptist Church, gave a most interesting presentation with film and discussion of his trip to the Holy Lands. The places club members have studied about were brought much closer by seeing the films.

In the business meeting, conducted by President Kay Colburn, the club voted to give a donation of $100 to Project Graduation and a $100 donation to the American Cancer Society for the memorial plaque.

Members were reminded of the Tour of Homes to be conducted April 21st. Homes on the tour will be Rita Stevenson's and June and Bob Blackwood's, as well as the newly decorated Country Club. Tickets are $3.

The Club will participate in the Mayfest Celebration with a bake sale.

Mrs. Lillian Roberson was given a lifetime honorary membership in the Woman's Club. She is a charter member and has been very active in all club projects.

Poe's Corner

Snakes and more snakes

Lucius Wood and his partner, Robert Cook, won the trophy for catching the longest snake at Sweetwater during the Jaycees Rattlesnake Roundup the second weekend in March.

The snake was 68 inches long. The partners also placed third in bringing in 265 pounds of snakes. First place was 1,077 pounds.

Wood, a lifetime resident of Runnels county, said he started snake hunting 26 years ago when he was working for West Texas Utilities at Bronte. They had a snake hunt and he went out to watch. He began hunting, too, and attended most every year.

All he remembers about that first hunt was there were seven or eight in the crowd. Bill Thomas was with him and Hurlin Lee got a bunch of snakes.

Lucius, named for his Grandfather Wood, an early day Runnels county rancher, thinks he may have gotten the idea from what he did. His grandfather died before he was born but he was told that he caught rattlesnakes, defanged them, and turned them loose. In his own way, he was practicing conservation, but we know now that the fangs grow back in a matter of months.

Wood is always cautious and uses a catcher. He never touches the snakes with his hands. But he almost got bit this year for the first time. He was hunting between Roby and Rotan and stepped on a snake. It felt like a sponge. He jumped with his catcher in his hand. The snake struck at him. He caught the snake by coming down on him with the catcher while they were both in the air, a rare experience.

"We found more and healthier snakes this year than we ever have," said Wood.

Evidently, the hunters have not bothered the snakes very much, but for the first time there were protesters at the Sweetwater Roundup. Gas fumes are used to drive snakes out of their dens, but we were accused of using gas, said Wood. "They said you will eradicate the snakes." They carried signs: Save the rattlesnake, he kills your mice and rats.

Wood told them he'd rather live in a house with a mouse than a snake.

He now makes house calls. People call him to come out and hunt snakes for them on ranches and farms. Doug McWilliams phoned him at 3 o'clock one morning to come help find a snake in his house on the ranch. Lightening had struck and the snake had already bitten the cat. The search went on until afternoon when the snake was found under a bed.

There is no charge for his service, said Wood, but he sells all the snakes he collects. They are carried to the Sweetwater Roundup and sold, mostly to the Kiwanis Club in San Angelo. Every year the price is different; the highest price has been $8.50 and the lowest $2.25. They hunt all rattlesnakes. The bull snakes, coach whips and king snakes, a solid block snake, are never bothered.

"Everybody in our family hunts, my wife, Sheila, started about four years ago," said Wood. "I never hunt by myself, it's too dangerous, that's how I got Sheila to go with me."

"You can't just sit there and watch the hole," said Sheila, "when a snake comes out you've got to do something."

They were hunting in a little valley close to Ballinger when eight snakes were found under a cactus leaf near their den. Daughters Kim and Kristie also hunt.

Snakes are kept in locked, wooden boxes at the house, three miles out on the Drasco road. Once, some newborn baby snakes were found in a box. They are about 8 inches long when born. Little ones are quicker and more dangerous. At the Sweetwater Roundup, all the little ones are put in a barrel out of the way.

The hunters have traveled from Roby to 30 miles southeast of Ballinger; Coleman and Coke county, but have never gone on anyone's land without first asking permission. One of the pleasures is looking for arrowheads. Most of them have been found on the ground, but a big one was discovered on the Colorado River.

Highlight of the year is a trip to the Buffalo Creek Ranch as guest of Bob Davenport of Midland. He provides a Western barbecue and a souvenir cap for each one of his guests.

Wood has never eaten any snake meat and says he never will unless he gets mighty hungry.

VETERINARY UPDATE

by Jimmy Smith, DVM

As winter rolls into spring, with it comes warm weather, rain (hopefully), and green pastures. Rescuegrass, filaree, and buffalograss are at their greenest and most nutritious. Cows and ewes with newborn will reach peak milk production under these conditions. Those new babies will put on a lot of fast pounds, with all of those extra groceries. These are also ideal conditions for a "blackleg" outbreak. Even though these are very positive conditions for the well doing for all classes of livestock, it is also a stressful period for them.

Just because you've never had a case of blackleg on your place does not necessarily mean that your herd is not in danger. Not only is the organism soil-borne, it may also be a normal inhabitant of the gastrointestinal tract. When the livestock have such good feed for themselves, they are also furnishing those same nutrients to the microbes in their gut. With this much excellent forage, it is not only possible, it is also likely that there may be a rapid and deadly overgrowth of the blackleg organisms with a resultant increase in the amount of toxins in the body.

If there is no protection to the animal in the form of antibodies (which are manufactured by the animal in response to vaccination) death may, and usually does, result. Let me impress on you again, now is an ideal time for a "blackleg" outbreak. This group of organisms can affect all ages and classes of livestock. Vaccinate now before it is too late.

As I mentioned last week, calving season is in full swing. We are still delivering a lot of calves that are oversized due to better than average winter pasture. Remember that you should only give a cow a limited amount of time to have that calf. The first stage of labor, the period when the water bag dilates the cervix, should not take longer than six hours, preferably fewer. Once the water bag shows, the calf has moved into the pelvic canal. The feet should appear shortly afterward if all is well. If no progress occurs after 30 minutes, it is a good sign there may be a problem at hand. Keep these time frames in mind and make an effort to check your cows at least once daily during your calving season.

Another problem that we have been seeing a lot of lately is also connected with calving, and that is retained placentas. Shedding of the placenta or afterbirth, as it is commonly called, is the last stage of the birthing process. The placenta is usually shed from 2-6 hours after the calf is born. However, vitamin A deficiency, difficult calving, or disease can cause the placenta to be retained. In most instances, if a cow does not clean out within 72 hours after calving or she becomes sick anytime (even though it may be fewer than 72 hours since she calved), she should be treated as soon as possible.

We very seldom see tetanus (lockjaw) in cattle, but of the two situations that can result in it, retained placenta is one. Another problem which can result is toxic metritis. This just means that due to the retained afterbirth, an infection has set up in the uterus and the body has absorbed poisonous toxins from the decaying placenta and bacteria. This can result in a very sick cow and sometimes, death. Other cows may show no toxic effects from the placenta, but oftentimes there is a chronic uterine infection which results in a reproductive tract that has sustained so much damage that it is no longer capable of maintaining pregnancy later.

That's all for this week. In closing, let me congratulate Winters FFA and Runnels County 4-H for a strong effort at the major stock shows this spring. A special round of applause for Little Ed Bredemeyer of Winters FFA for showing the Champion Angus Steer and the Grand Champion Carcass at the 1991 San Antonio Livestock Exposition. To make it even better, he was home grown! How much better can it get?

TEXAS TRAILS

EIGHT MILE TRIP... A large stone monument for the Sewall family arrived in New Waverly in 1912. Its destination was the Waverly cemetery eight miles away. It was so heavy it took an eight-wheel log wagon and 23 yoke of oxen to pull it. The road was muddy and washed out from heavy rains. The crew would travel as far as possible in a day, then camp for the night and continue the next morning. The eight-mile trip to the cemetery took three weeks.

Hunter's Camp

by Don Haley

When a man gets married, he instinctively feels the want and need to share his innermost joys with his new mate. To the outdoorsman and freshly betroved husband, this most likely will take the form of involving and showing her all the wonders to be found up and down brushy draws and across the steep slopes of rocky hillsides.

So when my wife and I were married a year ago last spring, she didn't really seem all that mad when I proposed a compromise in which, in exchange for having the wedding on the first weekend of the spring gobbler season, we cut the honeymoon a little short and make a swing by the turkey roost.

And so what if the old hunting cabin wasn't quite as fancy as what she was used to, we were together and that was the important thing.

"Where's the bathroom?"

The glow from the old lamp in the far corner was pretty dim, the single bulb being painted yellow to discourage bugs and other flying creatures. So I couldn't quite see the look on her face as I pointed toward the west pasture and explained to always watch for snakes when she went to the bathroom, especially at night.

She did seem to perk up a little when she spied the faucet and water line stuck in through a hole in the wall, which was connected to the windmill out by the cattle pens. The guys and I were mighty proud of this improvement to the cabin, since the only running water used to be down the rafters and across the floor when it rained hard from the southeast.

"This water is green and has stuff floating in it!"

The water from the old well is all right, it just has to sit for awhile and let the forces of gravity settle the heavier pieces to the bottom of the bucket, that's all.

A warm, romantic fire would make her feel better, so I filled the pot-bellied stove from the woodbox, being careful to swat the stinging scorpions and black widow spiders away before she saw them.

How was I to know that a momma rock squirrel had built a nest in the flue pipe? Between my wife's coughing and choking and the squirrel clawing its way up and out of the chimney, I was just hoping they didn't scare the turkeys off their trees two miles up the creek. It did get a little chilly with the door and all the windows open that night to let the smoke out, but it wasn't all that bad and pretty soon things quieted down.

"What's that noise!"

I couldn't pinpoint, exactly which noise she meant, whether it was the eerie moonlight bawling of two bulls fighting through the fence, the way the cottonwood limb scraped against the tin roof like fingernails across a chalkboard, the rustle of the armadillo just outside the thinly planked walls as it dug for grubs, or the rattlesnake trying to swallow a rat underneath the cabin floor. I finally decided it was the latter.

When the alarm sounded at 4:30 a.m., the wide-awake, wild-eyed look on her face told me she was excited about the hunt.

"Put on what?"

I carefully explained how turkeys have keen eyesight and that every area of the body must be covered to match the terrain. So, she didn't say much as I smeared greasy green and black camouflage paint across her face, over her ears, and down her neck. It was kind of a job getting it spread around though, with the way she furrowed up her brow and clenched her mouth and jaw so tight and all. But as she sat before the mirror, dressed in my old hunting coveralls hitched up and under with a belt, daintily twisting her bangs with a curling iron in full head-to-toe camouflage, I was proud.

The long walk in the pitch darkness, across hills and dales, didn't stimulate her as much as I had hoped. Maybe it was the soaking rain that set in or the hurricane force winds that messed up her bangs or maybe both, I'm not really for sure as she wasn't talking that much. In fact, she wasn't talking at all.

We weren't able to call in any gobblers, so I couldn't show her how much fun spring turkey hunting really is. We did spot a couple of gobblers as we crouched in the shinoak and I think we could have called them in too, if only the cricket that had crawled unnoticed up my wife's pants leg had not suddenly wanted out!

I had wanted her to hear a turkey gobble, to feel the wildness, the beauty, the spirit of nature. Homeward bound, we crossed a fence and a jagged barb slashed across her backside. Her high-pitched yelp of pain was answered by a booming gobble just down the draw. She has almost forgiven me for asking her to keep bellowing and try to fool the old gobbler into coming our way.

It's been almost a year now. The blisters on her feet have pretty much healed and there is hardly any noticeable limp anymore. Her fence-crossing wound did not even need stitches and you can barely even see the scar. A few claw marks are still evident around her ankles from some intensive scratching, but the chigger and tick bites have long since healed. And with a couple more doctor visits, the allergic reaction that her skin had to the camo paint will almost be gone.

I must admit I was disappointed when I overheard her talking to a friend last week who asked her if she was going to go turkey hunting with me again this year.

"I've been turkey hunting two times; my first and my last!"

Maybe if I hadn't shown everyone that picture that I snuck up and took of her back at the cabin, she would have reconsidered; the one where the wind, rain and sweat had plastered and matted down her hair beneath her hunting cap, with little muddy rivers running down her face where the tears had parted the camo paint.

Oh well, there's always next year. See ya'll back at camp.

Poe honored by Country Companies

Jeannine Poe of Tillamook, Oregon, has qualified for Country Companies distinguished 1990 All American team, an honor achieved through outstanding sales and service in life and health insurance coverage. She is the daughter of Charlsie Poe and sister to Dennis Poe, both of Winters.

The honor is the highest a Country Companies agency manager can receive, according to Jeff Benzing, company spokesman.

Benzing explained that while the award signifies an "exceptional level of insurance production," the policies also must remain in force for established periods, which encourages quality service to clients.

Poe has also been selected to serve on the company's Agency Advisory Committee in 1991.

Dickson holds town hall meetings in Ballinger, Winters

Senator Temple Dickson (D-Sweetwater) will travel to Winters and Ballinger for a pair of town hall meetings Friday, April 19th.

"We are going to continue our program of visiting the communities of this district because I don't believe that there has ever been a time when more issues of importance to the people of Texas are before the Legislature," said Dickson.

"I want some input. I want to know how real people feel about these issues," Dickson added.

Dickson and members of his staff will be in Ballinger for a 5 p.m. town hall meeting at the Ballinger High School cafeteria. They will travel to Winters for a second town hall meeting at the Winters High School auditorium at 7 p.m.

Change of Venue motion denied in Nolte case

District Judge John Sutton turned down a motion last week for a change of venue by attorneys for Randy Nolte. Nolte is free on bond at this time on several charges relating to sexual molestation of minors. Attorneys for Nolte asked that the trial be moved to San Angelo because of adverse publicity in the case and fear that a fair trial could not be held in Runnels County.

According to Special Prosecutor Charlotte Harris, Judge Sutton denied the motion. Harris expressed hope that the trial in the case would be held in late July.

Nolte was arrested in July, 1990 and charged with two counts of sexual assault of a child under the age of 17 and one case of indecency with a child under the age of 17 by contact.

panels and floral swags at the windows. This comfortable home reflects the many interests and hobbies of the couple.

Their home is located 3 miles south of the intersection in Winters of U.S. Highway 83 and Texas Highway 153, then west a mile and a half on County Road 336.

Another home featured is that of Rita and Doug Stephenson. They have taken an old railroad depot building and cleverly transformed it into a comfortable house in the country. The site for the relocation of the Tahoka depot is the old homeplace of John J. Hood, Mrs. Stephenson's grandfather. While few changes have been made to the exterior of the building, many changes have been made to the interior to create a 3 bedroom, 2 1/2 bath house.

The original office space and ticket window have become an expansive kitchen. The ceilings have been restored to their original height of 12' 6", and the walls are antique beaded wood. Modern oak cabinets and a stove/water island have been added giving a contemporary touch. Windows throughout the house utilize the fine view from the hill.

The living area, in the next room, is a story and a half with a massive bar and beveled mirror at one end and a comfortably arranged seating area at the other end. A large chandelier over 6' counterbalances the massive bar. This was once the mail room where the mail wagons were pulled inside and unloaded.

The remainder of the house, the original warehouse space, has been converted into three cozy bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. The master bedroom is decorated in oranges and whites and the guest room in blues.

The upstairs loft bedroom sleeps four and is a favorite with the grandchildren. It features an old trundle bed and chairbenches, the latter from the courthouse in Farwell, Texas.

Many artifacts from the early train days are used for decoration and accent pieces. One such item is an old train step that has a side pocket for coals to heat the step for passengers in the wintertime. Many pictures of trains and other historical items are placed throughout the house. Outside and to the south is an old rail car caboose that can double as guest quarters.

The Stephenson house is located west of Winters on the Wintgate highway, 9 miles from the intersection of Highway 83 and 153, then left on County Road 301 for a mile and a half. Turn left again and the entrance to the house is immediately on the right.

The Winters Country Club building, built at its present site in 1926, has served as the golf course clubhouse for 65 years. This spring, extensive improvements and changes were made to update the building and enlarge the floor space for the members' usage.

The old pro shop that was located on the enclosed front porch has been turned into a game and/or sitting room. Windows have been added to give a view of the golf course and the #1 tee box.

The central room of the building, used for dances, parties and large meetings, has been repainted and painted in light colors. New light fixtures have been added here, and on the porch. The adjoining kitchen with striped wallpaper and corresponding curtains of turquoise and adobe, emphasize the southwestern theme that has been used throughout the clubhouse.

The lounge area has been moved from the north end of the club, to a more central location in the building, by converting an old storage room. Two walls were removed enlarging the porch area and giving additional seating space.

The existing furniture has been refinshed and recovered and members have donated extra tables and plants. Many people have given time, effort and money to complete this project.

All of the changes and improvements have given the clubhouse a long overdue facelift and will add to the pleasure of members and guests sitting on the porch or deck that overlook this interesting and challenging 9-hole golf course.

The country club is 4 miles south of the intersection of 153 and 83 and has a sign marking the entrance.

The route of all of the places on tour will be well marked.

An old Tahoka railroad depot building is now the transformed home of Doug and Rita Stephenson, complete with rail car caboose nearby.
