Oil Bidness

By Reg Boles ©2000

We are ready to continue our discussion of deep-water exploration and development. And, this time, we are going to talk about a few interesting items that might be encountered on a typical deep-water well

As the deep-water business began to take off, it didn't take long for operators and drillers to realize that setting casing was going to be a real challenge. Usually several strings are required to deal with all the situations in a typical drilling well.

There is a riser string, a string to deal with special problems at shallow sediment depth just below the ocean floor, multiple strings to offset pressures that can be increasing at higher-than-normal rates, and additional sets of casing to hold back the normally unconsolidated sediment near the reservoir of interest. The design of the proper sequence of such a complex set of strings requires intense effort and a high level of expertise.

There is also a unique phenomenon that is potentially catastrophic if not considered in pre-well planning: shallow-water flows. These flows are gaseous releases that occur regularly all over the ocean floor. They are very much like small volcanoes spewing methane and other gases into ocean water as a release of build-ups in pressure. The trick is not to avoid them (you can'tthey are everywhere), but rather to plan for them by surveying the bottom-hole location prior to spud.

The key seems to be to allow for their release by not blocking any currently active flows. If flows are blocked or disturbed, then the pressure has nowhere to go but some new outlet, and the worst place for that is up the wellbore you are drilling. The result is an uncontrolled blowout.

Completion of a well is also tricky. The application of decisions more than a mile from the location of the bottom of the hole is always tough. In a deep-water well, the situation is made even more difficult by having to deal with the pressure of salt water and their currents affecting tools used downhole. Perforating tools, logging indicators, steering motors, downhole valves, and just about anything used to complete a well have to be designed with the special conditions in mind.

Fraught with troubles and challenges from start to finish, it would be easy to ignore the deep waters and their potential treasures. But, this business has never been one to shy from things made difficult, especially when there is a potential pot of gold at the end of the proverbial rainbow.

See you next time.

Pastor Jim Hanson

Can you imagine a church without a Ladies Aid?

I can't.

Without a group of women who huddle together at least once a month... in prayer and Bible fellowship... having a program...

planning a project... remembering birthdays... closing with "lunch?" I can't. And I can't really imagine a church surviving without one.

All of this came up out of my well when I heard Theodora Frick tell our congregation about the 75 years of Ladies Aid at St. John's. I can assure you it was not boring! How eight women got in going in 1925, and how it has been rolling along ever since. In spite of all the "changes," the program and the work is pretty much the same. Get together. Study the Bible. Pray. Celebrate birthdays. Plan a project. Eat lunch.

I can't remember a Ladies Aid where these basics were not the care program. And, I can't ever remember attending a Ladies Aid meeting where I didn't leave feeling renewed, encouraged, and proud of their mission and ministry.

But, in these days in America, Ladies Aids don't get very good press. It seems that women have "come a long way." And Ladies Aids aren't part of that progression. Remember the cigarette ad — with some slinky smooth sophisticated... and beautiful woman — who was pictured with a cigarette in her hand—and these words, "You've come a long way... baby."

Well, that ad isn't around anymore. For good reasons. And Ladies Aids are. For good reason.

I can remember, quite well, when I was truly proud of the young people in our church up north. There were about fifteen of them, Ramona and I, and some other sponsors. We were attending the national youth convention of our denomination in New York City. It was a large gathering and the meetings were held in Madison Square Garden.

On the center stage a group of young people were doing a skit, a short drama, on church life. They were trying to demonstrate how, in "our time" the old patterns don't really work. They had a scene, very satirical, which poked fun at "Ladies Aid." The women were portrayed as somewhat ugly, with high-topped tennis shoes and overly pious. Most of the crowd was laughing.

But... not our bunch. I heard them whispering to each other, "They are poking fun at our ladies aid"... "They are putting our mothers and grandmothers down"... "What's the matter with those kids? Don't they realize we wouldn't be here if those ladies hadn't helped us by serving meals, having 'bake sales,' and even taking money out of their

And, all of sudden, they all stood up and walked out!

Single file. In protest. We joined them.

God bless 'em. I've seldom been so proud of young people. They knew. They knew who truly loved them. Prayed for them. And... supported them. The Ladies Aid.

Ladies Aids have been around a long time. Since Jesus' time. They supported Jesus and the 12, "The 12 were with him... and also some women... who provided for them out of their means." (Luke 8:2,3) And Paul would never have gotten the church in Philippi off the ground if he hadn't wandered down by the riverside together with Luke "where we sat down and spoke to the women who had come together (to pray)." One of them was Lydia, a worshipper of God. She heard the gospel and was baptized. "And opened her home to us," writes Luke in Acts 16:14.

So — we can say, "You have come a long way, ladies." Two thousand years of unbroken service all over the globe. And they keep on going. With or without a pastor. Coming up with new projects... even when they are old. The Ladies Aid Circle at St. John's has another one — "to renovate the Sanctuary at St. John's — to be completed by November 4, 2004 — the 100th anniversary of the church." Even if some will probably not be on earth to see the completion.

No wonder they call themselves "the Ladies Aid." For, indeed, they are "ladies." And for certain, they "aid." First. And foremost. No wonder God chose one and her womb as a place to enter this earth. And thank God for the millions of women in Ladies Aids who have received Him in their hearts and aid us in so many ways in their service of Him. Amen!

Southside Baptist Winters Woman's Club learns history of Fort to host "Super Chadbourne during January 11 meeting met Tuesday, January 11, 2000, at the Security State Bank in Winters. Hostess was Bonnie Lee. Cohostesses were Jane Allcorn, Mary Ellen Moore, and Sondra Petty. Twenty members were present.

Phyllis Boles introduced the speaker, Garland Richards. He gave a very interesting program on the history of Fort Chadborne and the restoration project he and his wife, Lana, have undertaken.

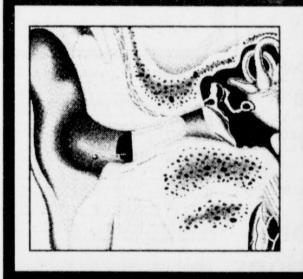

Fort Chadbourne has been in the Richards family since 1876. The fort was established in 1852.

The first soldiers sent to the fort were infantry soldiers. Their duty was to defend against the Indians. They were later replaced with Cavalry soldiers. In 1867, Fort Chadbourne ran out of water and relocated at Fort Concho. The final soldier was transferred out of Fort Chadbourne in 1873. In 1876 the Odoms established Fort Chadbourne Ranch.

The Fort Chadbourne Restoration Foundation was established part of the heritage to the public.

The Winters Woman's Club The fort was named for Lt. in 1998. This project will have Theodore Chadbourne, who was three phases. The first phase inkilled during the 1840s in Mexico. volves research and recommendations for stabilization of the fort. The second phase involves establishing a visitors center and museum. The third phase involves reconstruction and restoration of some of the buildings

The Winters Woman's Club has a very rich history in this area, and the community is fortunate to be able to participate in the restoration project by supporting the efforts being made to bring this

Exams for accelerations available to grades 7-12

The Texas State Board of Education now requires that school districts provide students the opportunity to take an examination to be "accelerated" to a higher grade level or to receive credit for a course he or she has not yet taken in school.

In order for a student to receive course credit, the student must score at least a 90 on the test.

Winters ISD has set the following dates on which "examinations for acceleration" will be administered: March 6 and 7 at 3:30 p.m. at Winters High School.

Since the tests are ordered from Texas Tech University, students will need to sign-up at the high school by February 7.

For more information, please contact Becky Reel, WHS counselor at 754-5516.

Second in district race—

Lady Blizzards pick up two "big" wins over Mason and Coleman recorded two more district wins in basketball action last week with Mason and Coleman. Prior to Tuesday evening's game versus Goldthwaite, the Lady Blizzards were 7-2 in district, second behind the Lady Eagles.

In last Tuesday's game with Mason the Ladies picked up "a big win to start the second half of district," according to Coach Ken Fowler.

Winters outscored the Lady Punchers in the first two quarters to lead at halftime by ten. However Mason outscored the Blizzards, 25-8, in the third quarter to take a seven point lead into the final period of the game.

The Lady Blizzards tallied 21 points to Mason's 7 in the fourth quarter. Winters won the game by seven, 67-60.

"Basically we went to sleep in the third quarter," said Fowler. "We quit moving and started watching.

"In the fourth quarter, we woke up again-and played much betthrows. We made 27 of 40. So 27 of our 67 points came from the free throw line.'

On Friday evening the Lady Blizzards earned another big win at Coleman to take sole possession of second place in the dis-

The Winters Lady Blizzards trict battle. Winters defeated the Lady Cats by six, 51-45.

"Both teams played really well in the first half," said Fowler. "Coleman hit a three pointer right before the buzzer at halftime—to go up by 4.

"Probably some of the best "D" (defense) we've played in a long time, came in the next quarter and a half. Coleman scored only 2 points," Fowler added. The coach also noted that the Lady Blizzards had an 11 point lead at one point in the fourth quarter.

However the Ladies also tallied 30 turnovers in the game— "the worst all year." The key to the game once again came at the free throw line. Winters connected on 24 of 43 shots.

"So out of our 51 points, nearly half were from the free throw line. We had a mental lapse late in the fourth quarter and we quit doing what we were doing. Coleman didn't press us most of the game because we beat it the first game we played them.

"They started pressing in the ter defense. The key was free fourth quarter and we couldn't run through it," said Fowler. "We showed maturity. They got within 3—then we settled down and started doing what we do."

After playing Goldthwaite on Tuesday, the Lady Blizzards will host Bangs on Friday evening.

Inexperience proves costly to Blizzards

The young varsity Blizzards continue to struggle in their quest for a district bid, losing to Coleman 64-41 last Friday in the Bluecat gym. But Coach Robert White says, "Don't give up on this team. We believe that we can surprise some folks as we start the second round of district play." Coleman scored 12 points to Winters' 4 in the first quarter, giving the Blizzards a hole to dig out of from the get-go.

"We couldn't buy a basket in the first quarter," said Coach Robert White. "Coleman played with a lot of confidence and it's hard to spot a team 8 points and then dling. play catch-up."

the second quarter when Coleman's leading scorer hit two 3-point shots and three 2-point shots. "This seemed to bust our bubble," said Coach White.

But on a positive note, the Blizzards out-rebounded Coleman and held the Bluecats to only three 3-point shots.

The Blizzards are also improving at the free throw line, shooting 65 percent as a team, making 29 of 32 in district play.

"Considering how bad we were at the free throw line at the beginning of the season, we've come a long way," said Coach Fowler. "Our goal is to shoot over 70 percent as a team.'

High scorers for the Blizzards were Josh Minzenmayer with 12 and Wade Parramore with 10.

The Blizzards dropped their game against Mason 65-49 on Jan. 18. The Punchers got into a half-court trap which the young Blizzard team had trouble han-

Foul trouble also plagued the Things didn't improve much in Blizzards against Mason who went to the free throw line 37 times, scoring 25 points. Minzenmayer had three very picky fouls early in the first half. Colby Walker and Aaron Pritchard fouled out, making the Blizzards play very conservative basketball. Winters made 16 of their 17 free throws.

The Blizzards traveled to Goldthwaite Tuesday night but no scores were available at press time.

Friday night, Winters meets Bangs in Blizzard gym at 8 p.m.

As of Jan 24, the Blizzards held a 4-3 district record. If Winters can go 6-1 or 5-2 in this second half of district play, the Blizzards still have a shot at third place. But patience, hard work and confidence must continue to improve for the Blizzards to be a threat.

Coach White said, "We're still a young team who gets frustrated and shell-shocked at times which makes our confidence drop. But our kids really work hard, and I continue to be very proud of them because no matter the outcome of the game, our kids play together as a team with respect.

There's nothing negative within the team and we hope our parents and fans will share our positive attitude. We always appreciate the support from our fans."

Opal Hunt gets autographed ball from Nolan Ryan

Margie Ladner, daughter of the late Mayme Little, of Tuscola, and 6-year-old grandson H. Lee Bowen IV visited friend Opal Hunt in North Runnels Hospital in Winters approximately two weeks ago to make a very important delivery. Opal had taken ill, but is now at home.

Along with flowers and a stuffed toy cat, the pair delivered a special box brought by UPS. Since Opal had taken ill and was not at home at the time of the delivery, Mrs. Ladner had gladly accepted from UPS.

In the box was a 1999 baseball signed by Nolan Ryan, accompanied by a personal letter and a letter of authenticity. In his letter, Ryan said he heard Opal was an admirer and he wanted her to have

According to Mrs. Ladner, Opal opened the box with a big smile on her face and said "who ever would have thought he (Ryan) would have done this." She was so proud!

The Concho Valley is actually in its third year of abnormally dry conditions.

Conditions right now are severe for all plant life including established 20- to 30-year-old trees, shrubs, and turf grasses.

Homeowners are encouraged to deep water their trees at least once every seven to ten days. Grass needs moisture as well to ing to the garden. Do not use fresh survive but can be easily reestablished if necessary. Trees and shrubs are not easily replaced.

Trees and shrubs are experi- lasting, can reduce moisture encing severe moisture stress and many will die if moisture conditions do not change. Mulches can be used to help in conserving moisture and should be placed around small trees, newly established trees, and shrubs where verely deplete nitrogen if not well possible.

A mulch can consist of inorganic or organic materials. Organic mulches include straw, pine needles, and bark. Inorganic mulches include gravel, stone, excellent mulch, but unattractive and even plastic.

Your choice of mulch depends ation. Keeps soil temperatures on your personal preferences as to what looks the best and will be readily available. Of the materials listed, sawdust is probably the least desirable because of its ability to rob nitrogen from the garden planting. Stenholm looks to future as he announces for re-election

Congressman Charlie W. Stenholm-announced recently that he would be a candidate for reelection to the U.S. House of Representatives.

In making his announcement, Stenholm cited several accomplishments of the past year in Congress, including passage of legislation to correct the unintended consequences to health care providers included in the Balanced Budget Amendment. "Passing the Balanced Budget Amendment was one of the most important legislative accomplishments of my career. However, we never intended for the BBA to impact health care providers as it did and I am glad to have had a hand in correcting this measure.

Stenholm serves as Ranking Member on the House Agriculture Committee. In this important position, he has a great deal of influence on all agriculture legislation and programs, including the issues of community development and infrastructure. "This makes it possible for me to do so much for my district and for American agriculture. But we still have a lot to do and I look forward to utilizing my seniority to accomplish those goals."

Stenholm also pointed toward accomplishments regarding the oil and gas industry. "I think we have made a lot of positive progress, but we still have a long way to go. However, I think that the relationships that we have built between steel and agriculture and the oil and gas industry will continue to be positive over the next few years."

However, Stenholm spent much of his time speaking about issues of importance to future generations. "My two reasons for for our sons and daughters."

running are my grandsons Cole and Chase," said Stenholm. "There are tremendous issues of great importance that will impact their future. I don't want them to look back and say, 'If only my granddad had done what he knew in his heart he should have done, we wouldn't be in this mess to-

In particular, he noted Social Security legislation filed by he and Republican Jim Kolbe of Arizona. "Our bill is the only one with both Democrat and Republican support," noted Stenholm, who went on to add, "Social Security reform is on the most pressing issues that faces us today. If we want to preserve this program for our children and grandchildren, then we have to develop a consensus between our political parties.

"As a father and grandfather, I want to make the future brighter for every child in every family that I represent," said Stenholm. "The most important thing that I can do as your Congressman is to make this country a better place

"Booger Red"

Editor's note: Continued from January 20, 2000.

Booger was game and agreed to ride the gray if a purse was made up for him. Four men rode horseback through the crowd and with their Stetson hats gathered two gallons of coins from the excited onlookers, but no one bothered to count the money. Whatever the amount, the little redheaded bronc buster earned his money.

The killer horse started out in the style that had brought him victory a few hours earlier. After about 100 yards, he began fencethrowing. He kept this up until he had churned up several acres of

But the gray's attention was all on the man fixed to his back and the quirting he was taking at every jump-Booger's way of keeping himself in rhythm with the horse's motion.

Finally, the tiring bronc made one last desperate lunge and a high kick, then set out for the corral in a dead run. He stopped at the gate of his own accord and two men held him while the rider Booger Red was so drained that he had to lean against the fence. The gray had pitched himself blind. No one asked for his money back that day!

Privett's parents were both dead by the time he was 15. When he had a chance to travel from his home in Erath County, with his uncle in a surrey, to West Texas in 1988, he gladly took the oppor-

He worked for Billy Guest on his Sonora ranch, 100 miles south of San Angelo. In the next two years his fame with horses grew, and all the ranchmen of the area came with their outlaw horses for him to ride.

It was said that Booger Red knew what the horse was thinking before he thought it and can tell how hard he bucks by just looking at him. He warned the ranchers that when a real outlaw once has his spirit broken, he will future bride. never be any good afterwards.

He also wore leggins but no spurs; the bronc was controlled between his knees with his strong muscles. How good it felt to have a Stetson hat with a brim and a higher crown to protect him from the strong winds.

The remainder of Privett's dress was plain except for a fancy vest, his trademark. Although dramatic in his performance, Booger was quiet in his attire and his voice was a gentle baritone until he baptized some pitching cayuse with his boiling vocabulary.

Privett acquired a wagon yard in San Angelo, on the block between Beauregard and Twohig. His office was the pool hall above the old Arch Light Saloon.

All ranchers knew where to get in touch with him if they needed to tame a horse. The pool hall patrons followed them for some entertainment. Here were Red's first customers.

Booger was proud of his reputation as a horseman, and he enjoyed playing pool with the boys. He smoked a corncob pipe or chewed mostly on the stub of a cigar; seldom ever lit it. Keeping a promise to his mother, he remained a teetotaler.

A socializer, Red danced and played the guitar for country dances. He entertained the ladies with songs and witty quips. In spite of his looks and midget size, the women admired him and the men respected him.
