Bronte' Progressive Business Men Offer Accommodations to Cotton Planters

"All the world loves a lover"—likewise, just at this time everybody is interested in the cotton farmer; especially, those who have got "on the dotted line" with the Government, in the matter of plowing up a part of their cotton crop.

It means that when the government checks begin to come in those to whom the checks come will put some money in circulation—a much desired situation, particularly at this time.

But, until the farmers get the checks due them from the government they are as much pressed as all others. Therefore, it is a matter of far-sightedness on the part of several of Bronte's leading business firms to get together and agree to aid the cotton planters until their checks come, by accepting the individual checks of those who have duplicate contracts with the government in payment for any purchases such planters may wish to make, and to hold same until the government checks to the planters come in.

Big business institutions in nearby cities advertised that they would do this and the local business men knew that it was not necessary for farmers to go away from home to make their purchases under the above conditions. Therefore, they got together and inserted a page announcement in this issue of The Enterprise that the local cotton farmers can get all the accommodations they want right here at home, and thus save the trouble of going away elsewhere for accommodations under the above conditions.

It is very thoughtful and obliging, indeed, on the part of those who make the offer and it is something The Enterprise feels certain, will be appreciated by all the cotton farmers in the Bronte section of country.

Let the cotton planters turn and read the page offer of the Bronte business men on the last page of this issue.

COWBOY ROUND-UP AT DOUBLE HEART RANCH

Ollie Cox, owner of Double Heart Ranch, ten miles this side of Sweetwater, was in town Wednesday advertising the big Cowboy Round-Up and rodeo that is to be staged on the Double Heart, September 1st and 2nd.

The event is the 3rd Annual Nolan County Cowboy Round-Up. The event will be two days of exciting and thrilling events. There will be a rodeo, races, live stock show and baseball. It will be "just one thing after another" in quick succession of the real "old West" kind of cowboy thrilling "rough stuff." If you plan to attend the advice is that you had better leave your false teeth at home—for, there is danger that amid the thrills you will swallow them, or else in your moments of side-splitting laughter you will lose them from your mouth. The first day is San Angelo and Abilene Day—all those throughout this section will want to join and aid San Angelo in having a real crowd in attendance.

The invitation is: "Bring your bed and sleep out under the stars."

Read the announcement of this big event elsewhere in this issue of The Enterprise.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Callaway of Fort Chadbourne will move to Odessa this fall. Mr. Callaway informs The Enterprise. The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Callaway will regret to lose them.

Let "cotton money" mean "subscription money." Thanks!

H. O. WHITT BUYS THE E. R. GIDEON RESIDENCE

H. O. Whitt has bought the E. R. Gideon residence on State street and is moving his family into his newly acquired home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gideon are moving into the residence that Mr. Whitt and family have been occupying and will reside there until ginning season at which time they will move to Midland.

In the spring Mr. Gideon moved his gin to Midland and hence he has to move there to operate his gin. This means the loss of Mr. and Mrs. Gideon to Bronte, which their many friends regret.

The Gideon residence is one of the lovely homes in Bronte. It is located on the street down which highway 70 goes out for San Angelo. Hence, it is also on the most prominent and perhaps most beautiful, street in town, or will be when highway 70 is paved, which it will likely be in the near future. Mr. and Mrs. Whitt are proud of their new home.

PROF. AND MRS. HANKINS RETURN

Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Hankins returned to Bronte Friday, from their summer vacation trip. They report a delightful summer vacation.

Prof. and Mrs. Hankins went to Pine Bluff, Arkansas to spend their vacation with relatives. Pine Bluff is the boyhood home of Prof. Hankins, so he especially had a delightful time, in "the ol' swimmin' hole," fishing, "shakin' down muscadines," squirrel hunting and so forth. Prof. Hankins says that the fish and squirrels both are the fattest he ever saw.

During their absence from Bronte Prof. and Mrs. Hankins also visited A Century of Progress. They report a wonderful fair and a great trip.

"I am glad to be back home," said Prof. Hankins. "I am now ready for school to open. I am anxious about the school for the incoming year—there is so much in the way of distressing conditions that are universal throughout the world to discourage the people. But, Mrs. Hankins and myself both come back to give the very best of which we are capable to the school and the school children. And if the patrons accord their co-operation as many have already assured they will do, in spite of adverse conditions otherwise, I feel very much encouraged at the prospect."

AN ARBOR MEETING

The Enterprise has been requested by those living in that community, to announce that an old-fashioned arbor meeting will be held on the T. C. Price farm, in the Mays school house section of country, beginning the 2nd Sunday in August.

Rev. W. D. Richards of Norton assisted by a Methodist minister whose name was not furnished The Enterprise, will lead the meeting.

An old-fashioned brush arbor meeting, with old-fashioned preaching and singing, is the plan of those who are directing as to the arrangements for the meeting.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend the meeting—to do good is the purpose of those who have planned the meeting.

Leslie Lammers is home from San Angelo where he underwent an operation in a hospital for appendicitis. Mr. Lammers' friends are glad to see him on the streets again.

Bronte's Farmer Boy Band Wins Trophy at State Band Contest

Bronte was on "shouting ground" Wednesday morning.

The jubilation was caused by the receipt of a telegram from Director C. C. Holder of the Bronte Future Farmer band, to Mrs. Holder that the Bronte boys had won first place.

The occasion was that of the 2nd Annual Future Farmers' Band Contest of Texas. The event is under the supervision of the State Department of Vocational Agriculture and is held at the Sam Houston State Teachers College at Huntsville.

Last year was the first of the annual events and the Bronte Future Farmers won with no trouble. But this year competition had greatly stiffened and the local boys and their well-wishers, which are all of Coke county and this part of West Texas, did not know just how the local boys would fare this time.

Hence, when the telegram came Wednesday morning, there was rejoicing on every hand.

IN HAYRICK MEETING

Rev. Wallace N. Dunson is in a meeting at Hayrick this week. The report comes that the meeting starts well and that Rev. Dunson is doing some excellent preaching.

W. J. Eads has returned home from a San Angelo hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Eads' friends are glad he is home again and is rapidly recovering his health.

HER BROTHER DIES

Mrs. U. F. Lowry has the sympathy of her friends in the death of her brother, Ollie Hogg, at Fate, Thursday of last week. Death was sudden. Deceased had just come in from the field, about the noon hour. He slurped over and died without a moment's notice to the members of the family.

Mrs. Lowry and son, Thad, attended the funeral, returning home Monday night. Deceased was sixty-two years old.

Bootlegger Says, "Yes," "Uncle Bill" Kellis Says, "No"

"Even the bootleggers are tired of prohibition, they are disgusted, many of them have developed a window pane neck, a neck condition caused from looking out the windows for officers and they will ALL VOTE A WET TICKET IN AUGUST." —Sunday Morning San Angelo Standard-Times.

Readers of The Enterprise are aware that there has been some controversy between "Uncle Bill" Kellis, editor of the Sterling City News-Record and The Enterprise editor relative to the booze election the liquor crowd has brought on the country.

"Uncle Bill" Kellis is "honest as the days are long" in his convictions. The one thing we have sought to do in all we have said in the controversy is to get the facts to "Uncle Bill" that a man with his ideals of sobriety and straightforwardness cannot afford to champion a cause such as the legal liquor traffic. "Uncle Bill" has argued that he is for legal liquor because of the fact that prohibition is the bootlegger's cause—that every bootlegger in the country is for prohibition, as prohibition makes it possible for the bootlegger to ply his illegal vocation. And in a recent issue of his paper "Uncle Bill" shot us through and through with shafts of sarcasm from his editorial quiver. He wrote as follows:

"Bro. West lies down to pleasant dreams with a fat, sleek bootlegger for a bedmate.

"Bro. West pretends to be down on the bootlegger yet, he has done, and is still doing a willing service to promote his calling. Only for the things for which our friend has grown so frantic, the bootlegger and his calling could not exist. He and the bootlegger have a common cause. They put out the same argument, vote the same ticket, and are political buddies."

Now, dear readers, go back, please, and read again the first paragraph above, quoted from last Sunday morning's issue of the San Angelo Standard-Times.

That quotation is the exact language of the king of bootleggers of all West Texas. We leave it to our readers to say, who in reality, is "the political buddy" of the bootlegger in the booze election to be held August 26th. Who is it that is marching hand in hand with the bootleggers that day to vote on the booze question? Who is going to vote the "same ticket" that day with the bootleggers and all the other toughs, both men and women of the land—will it be "Uncle Bill" Kellis or the writer? We say again, as we have before, that the tragedy of it all is that there are many fine, noble people with ideals like "Uncle Bill" Kellis who are voting with the sports, the toughs, the thugs, the bums, the bootleggers and all other kinds of unworthy characters, with those who are going to profit from the booze business.

So, "Uncle Bill," in all sincerity, since the above king of the bootleggers of West Texas admits that all bootleggers are going to vote for the return of the saloons, what ticket will you vote now? Will you go on, since the fact is out that all the bootleggers are going to vote for the return of booze, and vote with them?

I have the picture of a scene on election day in my mind, "Uncle Bill," which if it were not so tragic, it would be laughable. I have tried through the years never to see the humorous and the funny features of a tragic situation. The picture is that of three sovereign voters of this great nation of democratic rule, going up to the polls to vote. They walk along hand in hand, merrily as a trio of baby brothers. They sing the same song and vote the same ticket. They could sing more consistently than any other song of which we can think: "How dry I am." And the ticket they vote is the same—a ticket for the legal return of booze.

The first of this interesting and amusing trio of wet voters is that "jimferguson person" of "Uncle Bill" Kellis; the second of the trio is "Uncle Bill" Kellis himself; and the third is no less person than the bootlegger who has developed a "window pane" (Continued on page two) neck." Ye gods, "Uncle Bill," that is inconceivable! But that is literally what is going to happen according to your expressed purpose to vote for the return of booze legally, unless the fact that the bootleggers now admit that they are going to vote for booze disgusts you and makes you to face about on this question.

Why not do that, "Uncle Bill" and don't join hands with the bootleggers to bring back liquor so they can sell it legally rather than illegally. For, you know, well as I, "Uncle Bill," that long as we keep them from selling it only illegally, we are not directly responsible—but when you and I vote to make it legal, we are just as guilty as they. I know you so well, "Uncle Bill," I know you will not even try to find fault with my position on this question. Long as you believed sincerely that the bootleggers were supporting prohibition with the hope that if prohibition continued they could continue to ply their nefarious trade, you had some ground on which to justify your position. But, now, since they are out in the open and admit that they are tired of the bootleg business—of being oft arrested and in jail, they are now going to vote to make their business legal so they can have your sanction and mine upon their unholy trade.

Again, I say to you, "Uncle Bill," as I see it, you simply can not afford it.

And what I have said above to "Uncle Bill" Kellis, I say to all readers of The Enterprise. I know some good men who are readers of The Enterprise, who say that they are going to vote for the legalization of intoxicating liquor. "My beloved brethren," as we see it, you can't afford it. To do so, you will join hands with a crowd between whom and yourselves there is not a common ideal. And it is my deepest and most sincere belief that if you do, and liquor flows again legally in this country, it will not be six months until the brazen debauchery that will flaunt itself in your faces will make you wish that you had voted for the return of liquor. I have a letter on file from a Fort Worth firm that is a contributor in Texas for the largest brewery interests of all the country. They wanted the name of every hotel, cafe, cafe, ice cream parlor, grocery store and filling station in Bronte where cold drinks are served—they state in that letter that "Texas goes wet, just as soon as it is legal, they want to put booze in every one of the above places they possibly can. Now, won't that be, "h-ll turned loose in Texas?" Who that believes in just common decency wants to see an orgy of debauchery such as will come to pass, if the above firm and all of their stripe, can only get the people to vote them that privilege.

Except for humanity's sake, if it were possible to build a "bull pen" and segregate this booze making, booze selling, booze drinking bunch, I would highly favor it, and let them make and sell and drink the accursed stuff till the stomach of the last drunken one of them would burst from the inordinate use of strong drink. Then, let the booze makers and vendors be the officiating ministers at the obsequies and the lewd women of the bunch be the "flower girls," and instead of a funeral with all the tender amenities that usually attend a funeral in which all the proprieties are observed, let the liquor sellers and bawdy house women break a bottle of booze on the dead one's head. You say, "Oh, God, how terrible such a circumstance would be!" True you are. But when men insist on living that kind of life and then compel those who have different and higher ideals—ideals of sobriety and decency, including innocent children and good women, to have to live in such a damnable situation, the segregation of all such would be preferable.

Neighbors of mine, you had better see to it while you may, that "none but Americans are on duty," and vote for the thirty one delegates on the dry side of the ticket on August 26.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cash of New Orleans were guests for a week of their old-time friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Rutherford of Oak Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Cash and Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford were next door neighbors at Crabtree, Arkansas for many years. But ten years ago Mr. and Mrs. Cash moved to New Orleans where Mr. Cash took a position with the street car company of that city. He worked for ten years and never lost but one day. So, Mr. Cash decided that nothing would be more delightful than that of taking a vacation and he and family visit their erstwhile Arkansas friends. It is enough to say that all had a delightful time.

If Texas follows the trend of the states voting on liquor thus far, it will go into the hands of the booze gang. But, if so, the Democratic party will have some very valuable (?) assets—it will have the "jim ferguson person" of "Uncle Bill" Kellis and legal booze. It wouldn't be so bad, after all, perhaps, were it not that the party's assets will make "Uncle Bill" so arrogant and beastful of what the party has in Texas he will become intolerant and want to "boot out" everybody who will not follow the party's state leader and declare that he is a hero.

Somebody sent us a last week's copy of Jim Ferguson's Forum—(more correctly pronounced "For Rum.") We do not know who did it—but, it must lay between "Uncle Bill" Kellis of Sterling City and Hon. Frank Dickey of Ballinger.

CARD OF THANKS

We would be very ungrateful indeed should we fail to express to our dear friends the deepest appreciation of our hearts for their tender words of sympathy and kindly deeds of ministry to us in the going of our dear husband, father and loved one.

You did, dear friends, all that was humanly possible to do for us—yet there is a vacant place and loneliness in our hearts no one can ever fill. Dear friends, our hearts will breathe a prayer of gratitude to the Father of us all, for what you did for us and what you were to us, in the hours of our sorrow and sadness.

The floral offerings were beautiful and reminded us of the many friends our darling one left behind. May the good Father bless and reward you each and all, is our sincere prayer.

MRS. LUCY WARNER, MEMBER SCHOOL FACULTY

Mrs. Lucy Warner was elected by the school board of the Bronte school, at a meeting of the board Monday night, to a position on the school's faculty. Mrs. Katharine Dorn having resigned her place on the faculty a vacancy was created and Mrs. Warner was chosen to fill the vacancy. Mrs. Warner was one of the popular and successful teachers in this part of West Texas when she taught in this part of the country formerly.

OBSERVE STOP SIGNS

Messrs. Walker Good, constable, and T. F. Sims, city marshal, request The Enterprise to call attention to the stop sign placed on Main street, by the city council. This sign is where Main street intersects highway 70, where the highway crosses Main street, at the First National Bank corner.

The stop sign was placed for the safety of all. To drive upon highway 70 without stopping is very dangerous. Through travel on highway 70 goes thru almost "like a bullet shot out of a gun." The highway travel has the right to expect those entering from lateral intersection to stop and thus avoid collisions.

The city is earnest about traffic regulation and the enforcement of same. The stop sign does not mean to slow down—it means to come to a full stop and the enforcement officers expect a strict observance of the law—that is, that you come to a full stop at the stop sign post.

Observance of this traffic regulation will keep you from having to tell it to "his 'oner," the city magistrate, for the enforcement officers are going to begin the enforcement of the ordinance to the letter, Saturday, August 5.

MRS. LILLIE OFFIELD DIES

Her friends and the many friends of the family will be grieved to know of the death of Mrs. Lillie Offield which occurred at the family home at Mineral Wells, Wednesday afternoon, August 2, 1933.

Death of deceased was not expected. She had been slightly indisposed for some two weeks, but at no time serious. Wednesday afternoon she took a turn for the worse and was dead in a little while.

Her relatives here were notified and her sister, Mrs. Tom Modgling, and two brothers, R. E. and Ed Hickman, departed for Mineral Wells. But death came and relieved the sufferer before the loved ones arrived.

Interment was at Mineral Wells Thursday afternoon, following religious services.

Deceased was the youngest of the Hickman brothers and sisters. She grew up here and spent the days of her young womanhood here and has many friends throughout this section who will sorrow at her passing.

The sorrowing husband, brothers and sisters and other loved ones have the sympathy of all. She was a gracious woman and has left blessed memories to her loved ones and the large circle of those who knew her and loved her.

COWBOY ROUND-UP

There will be a cowboy round-up at Bronte, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 29 and 30.

Some of the events are: an old cowboy's roping; roping by boys from sixteen years old on down; calf roping; wild cow milking; clown acts by one of the best clowns in all the country; brahma cow riding and bronc busting.

Lots of worth-while prizes to winners in all contests.

Part of the proceeds go to the Bronte band.

In the John Hearne park, half mile east of town.

"DAT MULE" HAS "MULE SENSE"

Bob Ash is known by everybody and everywhere as a farmer who always has fine mule teams.

Some of Mr. Ash's mules developed another quality the other day that gives them a mark of distinction.

Mr. Ash's mules have always been known for their docile and gentle qualities. But, the other day when Mr. Ash harnessed his teams and went into his cotton fields some of his mules seemed to sense that their job was "different"—that instead of "making cotton" they were destroying "the hope of the sunny South." One of the mules got so vicious Mr. Ash unharnessed the team and got another. That team seemed also to understand that the "New Deal" was sure enough something new to them—and it was "so different" they didn't like it—consequently they put on a "new deal" of their own, by running away with the plow and tearing up everything.

Mr. Ash is perplexed. He is thinking of offering the particular mules in question to the democratic leaders as emblems of the party that has put on "the new deal."

INFORMATION WANTED
