FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Mary had a little cold, but
Wouldn't stay at home;
And everywhere that Mary went,
The cold was sure to roam.
It wandered into Molly's eyes and Filled them full of tears—And,
Went from there to Bobby's nose,
And thence to Jimmy's ears.
It made Anna's throat bright red,
And swelled poor Jennie's head
Dora had a fever and,
A cough put Jack to bed.
The moral of this little tale is
Very quickly said—
She could have saved a lot of
1 sin—
With just one day in bed.

WHOOZ IT?

NEWS NOTES

The Board of Trustees met in their regular meeting Monday night, January 14. Pictures of the group were made for the school annual.

A vast number of students have been absent from school the past week because of influenza.

Paul Leonard, the man with the mystery instrument, gave a very interesting and unusual program in the school gym Thursday, Jan. 24. Mr. Leonard is famous for his ability to harmonize songs of birds to music. The band sponsored the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Chet Holcombe and John visited friends in Denver City last weekend.

Betty Sanderson and her sister, Pam Sanderson, went to Dallas last weekend to visit Miss Swindell, the English teacher of Blackwell high school who was injured in a wreck some weeks ago. Miss Swindell is in Dallas for plastic surgery.

Mrs. J. T. Henry has been absent from work at school part of the week because of flu.

LOOKING AHEAD

The time is near when we students will have to make a very important choice in our life—the determination of a vocation. Whatever our choice of an occupation, we must have a highly trained capacity for hard work. We know that the profession or occupation we select is going to be a source not only of livelihood, but of our power of usefulness and some of the most solid satisfactions of life.

Let us look forward to the great privilege and joy of being serviceable to our community, to our neighbors, and to the greater neighborhood of the nation. Only through service can we merit the living in America. It is only in the atmosphere of freedom that the soundest moral characters can be produced. True democracy permits each individual to put forth his maximum effort.

FETED ON BIRTHDAY

Linda Roland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Roland, was honored on her fourth birthday with a party Tuesday afternoon at the Roland home.

BROOKSHIRE BROWSINGS

By Mrs. Herbert Holland

How are parents to teach their children the value of keeping clean morally?

I suppose fear of the stigma attached to immoral behavior has been a factor in some cases in keeping one morally straight, so far as behavior itself is concerned. At the same time, it is quite apparent that this fear has not been too effective in the past.

The basic cause for wholesome, clean living is not so much fear of the stigma that may be attached to a violation of the moral code, as it is an intrinsic appreciation of all that which is fine and was and good, and a respect for the sacredness of personality. This appreciation must be developed through the years and begins in early childhood. It develops in a home where parents and brothers and sisters maintain high ideals and have happy experiences together. One cannot overestimate the importance of example.

But example is not enough. Boys and girls need to be educated about sex and its place in life. As their questions are answered honestly in the home, as they are helped through books and classes in boy and girl relationships to understand the other sex, as they have opportunities to consider with skilled and understanding teachers what is involved in preparation for marriage, they are receiving the finest kind of foundation for clean and wholesome living.

Let us not minimize, also, the contribution of religion to the building of high ideals and standards. An appreciation of the sacredness of all persons and a desire to help others become their best selves are tremendous deterrents to immoral behavior.

It should not be forgotten, furthermore, that our boys and girls need to learn the art of self-discipline. Children who are given everything that they want, whose whims are always catered to, and who grow up utterly self-centered and selfish, have not developed those inner disciplines that provide a steady force when faced with temptation and the pull of intense emotional desires.

We have two children—a boy of seven and a girl of three. How can we handle this business of Santa Claus? Is there danger of disillusionment when the children find out about him?

This problem of what to tell their children about Santa Claus is a real one to many conscientious parents. It may be helpful to look at three different ways parents have dealt with the problem.

1. There are those who feel it is wrong to tell their children there is a Santa Claus. A young man brought up in such a family as this, reports that so far as he can recall, he and his brothers and sisters never did believe in Santa Claus and that their Christmas was as joyous as was the Christmas of those in homes where Santa was the center of attention.

2. At the other extreme, we find parents who scoff at the above viewpoint and feel that it robs children of one of the most precious memories of childhood. They frankly tell their children that there is a Santa Claus, that he lives at the North Pole, that he receives letters from boys and girls, and may even go so far as to say that he is especially eager to please "good" little boys and girls. There is no hemming and hawing on their part when children ask questions about him. They take the position that when a child becomes old enough to know different, he will realize the truth without any great disillusionment. Experience suggests that whereas this is true for many children, for others the discovery that Santa is not an actual person is a tragic experience.

3. Between these two extremes are the parents who neither tell their children there is or there isn't a Santa Claus. At the same time, they go ahead and talk about Santa Claus, and may even encourage their children to write to him. In their conversation about Santa, however, they frequently refer to him as the "spirit of giving"; they encourage their children to notice that there are several Santa's in the stores at Christmas time; and as the children get older and begin to share gifts with others, they talk about "our playing Santa to this child or that."

With respect to your seven-year-old boy, is it not possible for you to talk to him about how much the idea of Santa Claus meant to him when he was young and that now he has an opportunity to help his little sister enjoy the make-believe story of Santa? Help him realize that gradually his sister will realize that it is a make-believe story, but that in the meantime all of you will go on playing Santa at Christmas.

to our farmers and ranchers against unreasonable searches of their premises. In other words, the proposal that Immigration officers have free access to premises without first obtaining search or arrest warrants would be a dangerous invasion of personal rights of people, and would undoubtedly cause much dissension and possible trouble. Such searches cannot now be done, without warrants, with respect to narcotics, stolen property, etc; so why give Immigration officers such blanket rights with respect to search for wetbacks?

We need laws against illegal aliens but such laws should apply over all the nation and should recognize the rights of the people as against invasion of their premises by officers, with or without reason. If they have good reason, they can obtain authority from Magistrates to make any necessary searches for proper arrests. On the Judiciary Committee, now studying this phase of the proposed legislation is Congressman Wilson of Dallas and Pickett of Palestine. They are both fighting for reasonable laws that will be adequate but which will not be violative of fundamental rights.

IT NOW APPEARS likely that a new immigration law will be enacted within the next few weeks, but probably some time after the February 11 deadline. Just what it will provide remains to be seen. It also remains uncertain at this time whether the present agreement may be extended pending passage of the legislation on the subject insisted upon by the President. If and when negotiations are begun on a new agreement with Mexico, it is indicated that they may be held in Washington this time.

Claude Ash Conducts Lamb Feeding Tests

How to get the most out of a relatively poor field of hegari was demonstrated by the animal husbandry department at Texas Tech in a lamb-feeding experiment.

The experiment, involving 11.30 acres of dry-land hegari and 196 head of Rambouillet lambs, was conducted by the department with the aid of Claude Ash, Bronte graduate student. Ash will use the data collected for his master's thesis.

Each acre of hegari and supplemental feed produced 195 pounds of lamb, when sold at market price, would bring $54.60. If the hegari had been cut and sold, it would have brought an estimated $30 an acre.

Seventeen head of lambs grazed, and were fed a supplemental formula, on each acre. The formula, costing about $2 for each acre of hegari consumed, consisted of 44 pounds of cottonseed hulls, 27 pounds of cottonseed meal, eight pounds each of salt and limestone.

Harvesting the hegari acreage with livestock brought the department $22 more per acre than it would have realized if it had harvested the grain commercially.

Ever go "over the side"?

IT ISN'T EASY with the roll of the transport and the clumsy sway of your heavy full field pack. And, at the foot of the landing net, the risky drop into the cold, crowded landing craft bobbing in the choppy sea.

Then, finally there's the tense, terrible run toward an angry beach and a destiny you cannot even guess.

It's all very serious and dangerous and hard. Yet thousands of American youngsters have done it—and are ready to do it again, if need be, in defense of our country and you.

But defense is your job, too. And you can do your job, in an important way, by buying U.S. Defense Bonds.

For these bonds make you and your family secure at home. They provide the economic stability that's needed behind our effective military power. And they help keep America at peace because they help make America strong...in a world where peace is only for the strong.

So, for the sake of the boys on the landing nets—and for your own family's security—invest your savings in United States Defense Bonds now!

The U. S. Defense Bonds you buy give you personal financial independence

Don't forget that bonds are now a better buy than ever. Because now every Series E Bond you own can automatically go on earning interest every year for 20 years from date of purchase instead of 10 as before! This means that the bond you bought for $18.75 can return you not just $25—but as much as $33.33! A $37.50 bond pays $66.66. And so on. For your security, and your country's too, buy U. S. Defense Bonds now! Bankers recommend them as one of the safest forms of investment.
