Soil Conservation Week In Texas and County May 4 to 10

In keeping with the Governor's Proclamation of proclaiming the week of May 4 to 10th as official Soil Conservation Week, we, the Board of Supervisors of the Coke County Soil Conservation District, wish to take this means of explaining the Soil Conservation District and the assistance available to land owners and operators through the District; also how the District was organized, its purpose and how it is operated.

Contrary to a common error of understanding, a Soil Conservation District is not a governmental agency, but is one of the most democratic organizations in the United States.

It is equally as true that the Soil Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service are two entirely different and distinct things.

The Soil Conservation District is composed of a group of farmers and ranchers, who band themselves together under authority of a Texas law, to practice soil conservation. Their affiliation with the district is purely voluntary and they elect their own officers and administer their own affairs.

The Soil Conservation Service, on the other hand, is a technical

The district is composed of the following counties: Brewster, Coleman, Coke, Crane, Edwards, Crockett, Glasscock, Irion, Jeff Davis, Pecos, Presidio, Reagan, Runnels, Schleicher, Sterling, Sutton, Terrell, Tom Green, Upton and Val Verde.

Hardeman was first elected as Senator in 1946, following his return from military service. He was re-elected in 1950 without an opponent.

Senator and Mrs. Hardeman reside in San Angelo with their two young sons, Mark and Bryan. He is a member of the San Angelo law firm of Runge, Hardeman & Steib. Senator Hardeman is well known throughout West Texas.

"It shall be my purpose, as ever, to represent this fine district and the State within constitutional provisions and the principles of sound governmental practices."

"Limited space suggests that I not discuss my legislative record here. As I go about the district during the coming months, I shall discuss it, however, as opportunity and occasion arise."

MAKE YOUR WORD GOOD

The man who looks the whole world in the face,
Whose creditors never 'round after him chase,
Is a man to whom we are willing to lend,
Because on his word we can always depend;
But the man who quits work to fish and to play
And when the sun shines seldom makes hay,
May for a time even wear better clothes
Than most of the people to whom he yet owes.

creation of the State, while the Soil Conservation Service, a technical and advisory agency, is something to be provided by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to co-operate with the Soil Conservation District. There is no mandatory legal alignment between the two. With the issuing of the Secretary of Agriculture Memorandum 1278, dated Feb. 15, 1951, the Production and Marketing Administration were directed to assist the Soil Conservation Districts and encourage landowners and operators to become district cooperators; therefore the Soil Conservation Districts now receive any assistance available from the P. M. A.

A standard soil conservation act was drafted in 1936, for presentation to the legislatures of all 48 states, since then all 48 states have passed in some form, Soil Conservation district laws, quite similar if not actually identical with Texas law, giving local farmers and ranchers the privilege of organizing Soil Conservation Districts.

As the experienced and successful farmer or rancher well knows, his is a highly complex business that requires careful and intelligent planning and action. He must make allowances for climatic conditions, rainfall, the lack of rainfall, and soil types, among other things. As a result of organized Soil Conservation Districts farmers and ranchers working cooperatively are doing a better job for themselves and for each other.

The program and work plan prepared and used by a Soil Conservation District are based on actual conditions and needs as they are found in the District. Each year the supervisors of the Coke County Soil Conservation District set up an annual plan of work, and with this program there is a minimum duplication of work, as each group is assigned to work in accordance with their ability and capacity.

Worthwhile accomplishments of an individual in the district group is relayed to other members of the group as part of the district's educational program. The Soil Conservation District is truly "Democracy in Action" and is the workshop through which those who love the land pool their efforts and information in making land more stable and productive.
