ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF WTU POWER PLANT

Bids to Be Received on WTU's $10 Million Oak Creek Plant

Bids for the general contract for the construction of West Texas Utilities Company new power plant on Oak Creek Lake north of Bronte will be taken April 26.

Specifications for the $10 million power plant were released to five general contractors who are considered to be prospective bidders for the job. Specifications were also placed in three "plan rooms" in the area. With the bids to be opened on April 26, construction of the new plant is scheduled to begin the first week in May.

The new plant will be located about 11½ miles north of Bronte.

The first unit at the plant, a 75,000 kilowatt reheat unit, is scheduled to be placed in service by April, 1962.

The estimated cost of the new plant is approximately $10 million. West Texas Utilities in 1957 purchased the 117-acre plant site on the west side of Oak Creek Lake immediately adjacent to Highway 70. A portion of the site was purchased from the City of Sweetwater, owner of the lake, and the remainder from Charles Copeland, Coke County rancher.

WTU purchased water rights for the plant from Gulf Oil Corporation and the City of Sweetwater.

The plant building itself will be of masonry, reinforced steel construction and will be 90 feet by 100 feet in size and approximately six stories high.

The boiler, which is the outdoor type, will be fired by natural gas and will be the equivalent in height of a ten story building. The boiler will be capable of supplying 525,000 pounds of steam per hour at 1,000 degrees temperature and 1,450 pounds pressure per square inch to the generating unit.

It is estimated that fuel requirements for the plant will be one million cubic feet of gas per hour. The natural gas used will be supplied from the Lone Star Gas Company's system.

UNCLE HUIE from HOG CREEK says

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Right about now the folks in this country is as busy as a bob-tailed bull in fly time. The men-folks is putting the final touches on Form 1040 and Item 4 Minus Item 3, and the wimmen is trying to git their Easter outfit as loud and conspicuous as possible.

It would be fitten and proper this year to call April the "Ulcer Month" on account of what that doctor in Chicago said the other day. He allowed as how ulcers was strictly a 20th century disease. He said they was caused by cars, taxes and wimmen's hats. Taxes and wimmen's hats is what we'll have the most of this April, and cars is more plentiful than ever.

Them insurance companies that figgers these things out claims that more and more pedestrians will git killed ever year as cars git thicker on our city streets. But I think Mother nature will help out in this situation. As cars git thicker, the jump of the pedestrian will git longer and longer and quicker and quicker, helping to hold the casualty list down a little.

As fer wimmen's hats, the outlook ain't so bright. In fact, it never looked worse. They're putting everthing on 'em now but a sprinkling of salt and pepper and I expect to see some of that at church on Easter Sunday. Considering the kind of clothes wimmen wear these days, it seems a great waste of time to spend so much of it on designing wimmen's hats. They ain't one feller in a hundred this day and time that ever looks at a woman's hat. Fer instant, I was walking down the street Saturday behind a woman wearing one of them "gazemegood" dresses and I couldn't tell you today to save my life if she was bare headed or wearing a sun bonnet.

Some feller claimed here a while back that wimmen was gitting more bow-legged all the time on account of them big ear-bobs causing 'em to bend a little, but I think what they're wearing on their head is also helping it along.

As fer taxes and their effect on the ulcer situation, it would take a whole issue of your paper, Mister Editor, fer me just to jot down a brief outline, so I won't go into the matter at this time.

Well, I better stop exposing the wimmen and git to doing some of my chores around the house. My old lady says I'm gitting pritty sorry in my old age. I told her I've noted that no matter how sorry a feller gits, a hound dog will take up with him and some woman will always marry him. That was yesterday and she ain't spoke to me since.

Yours truly,
Uncle Huie

MR. AND MR. JOE CARTER
...in the 50th State

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carter Enjoyed Their Vacation Trip to Hawaii

Editor's Note: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carter were the first people (and as far as we know, the only ones so far) to visit our new 50th state — Hawaii. They made the trip several weeks ago. At the request of The Enterprise, Mrs. Carter kindly consented to write an account of their trip. It is reprinted below:

Arriving in the 50th state is a real experience. Although the Lurline was to dock at 10 a. m., all passengers were up early for a Continental breakfast on Promenade deck to get their first view of Diamond Head, which is the high point first seen as the boat approaches Oahu, the island on which Honolulu is located.

Natives board the boat in the early hours with musical instruments and leis for the passengers. Representatives of various large hotels page their prospective guests and place leis around their necks, saying "aloha" and the girls kiss the men and the boys kiss the women. Then the tourist company with whom you have made arrangements page the passengers and the same ceremony takes place. Your travel agent has sent leis, etc. By this time you are beautifully decorated and smell like a perfumery.

The next step is to meet in the lounge where a trio in native costume furnish music for native dances. These girls are barefoot and wear below the knee skirts made of ti leaves, lapped over until they are very full. With these skirts they wear a camisole top. Their long black hair hangs loose. Their dances are graceful and beautiful and not in the least common or vulgar. If girls and boys both are dancing they do not dance together — solo effect. Girls are not allowed to dance professionally until they are 21 years old.

When we left the boat we were met on the pier by other dancers and musicians. When we reached our hotel we were met by more musicians and dancers and served pineapple juice and then ushered to the hotel clerk.

Our first day of sightseeing was a drive around the island where we saw large, large fields of sugar cane growing. This was not harvest season but we were told that refineries in Oahu could not handle the cane, so much of it was sent to California for refining. This is the history of our C&H sugar (California-Hawaii.)

Dole and Libby have immense fields of pineapple. The fruit is gathered by a big machine that reminds us of our cotton pickers. A man sits on a long shaft and selects the ripe fruit. (It doesn't all ripen at the same time). He places the fruit on a conveyor belt that carries it to a box car which is later lifted by a power truck and is loaded to be moved to the cannery. It takes much work, fertilizer and insecticide to produce good fruit.

The Dole Cannery is the world's largest fruit cannery. It is located in Honolulu and the plant covers 56 acres. One of the landmarks is Dole's pineapple shaped water tower that holds 100,000 gals of water. Dole's cooling room for their canned products has a capacity of 8½ million cans. During the peak of the season 7,800 people are employed; 3,900 in the off season period. Area after area containing machinery that never lets a pineapple rest take the shell and core from the fruit after it has been automatically sorted and graded. A conveyor belt carries it by women, wearing rubber gloves caps and aprons, who trim and examine each pineapple before it enters the slicer. It is inspected and graded before it is placed in the can and a syrup of pineapple and sugar is added before sealing and cooking. Only the top grade is labeled "Dole" — other labels are used for the remainder. Dole packs 275,000,000 cans annually. Mash from the waste is used for cattle feed. Tourists are served fresh pineapple and the free juice and paper cups are dispensed by the side of the water fountains — (No payola from Dole!)

Honolulu has some beautiful up to date church buildings. Catholicism is the leading religion but it is followed closely by Buddhism and Mormons take third place. Tourists are shown a Buddhist Temple which is very ornate with gold leaf covering much of the altar area. The furnishings were very expensive. Although the Temple is large, plans are underway for improvements.

The Mormon Tabernacle is very large and imposing. Honolulu also has a large number of Protestant churches but the influx of Japanese and Chinese have naturally added to the growth of the Buddhists.

Honolulu is the home of the largest military installations in the world. The Marines, Navy, Air Force, etc are stationed at Hickam Field and at Schofield. A trip through Pearl Harbor and the explanation of the attack there stirs the blood of any American. When you see the hulls of the Oklahoma, the Nevada, the Arizona and others and know that thousands of American boys still lie in their wreckage in watery graves, you wonder why? why? Security is so tight in the harbor that the small boat that carries tourists has to stop for clearance before passing around Ford Island. The Punch Bowl cemetery is comparable to Arlington Cemetery on the mainland. The

"air-cooled aluminum engine . . . not dependent on the properties of a liquid coolant" . . . a rear-mounted transaxle "allowing a flatter floor and a lower roofline. . . ." These are some of the praises heaped upon Corvair by the editors of Motor Trend—the world's largest general automotive magazine—in announcing their coveted Car-of-the-Year award. Other cars didn't even come close. The Motor Trend experts, who evaluated every make in the country, were unanimous in their decision, published in the April issue. But, unless you have personally driven a Corvair, you can't appreciate what this engineering achievement really means in combining compact car economy and agility with big for economical transportation car ride, room and sure-footedness. ### CARTERS VISIT 50TH STATE — The Bronte Enterprise

morial day a small American flag is placed on each grave and then a lei is placed on each grave by a member of the military forces. A monument has been built in the Punch Bowl to honor our dead. From the top of this one gets a view of the entire cemetery and the natural setting of Korean needle pines on the surrounding hills.

The Salvation Army has an up-to-date attractive home for orphans and unwed mothers. Adjacent to it is a beautiful Waiola Tea Room, owned and operated by the Salvation Army, the profits of which are used to support the home. The Tea Room is rather swank and is patronized by tourists, clubs and people who wish to entertain.

The people of Hawaii are a kind, gentle, loving, polite, English-speaking dark skinned race made up of a fusion of the early adventurers from Bora Bora and Tahiti and the Chinese and Japanese and the white race from the mainland. Hawaii is up to date and progressive. We are told that according to population, there are more automobiles in Honolulu than in any place in the world. Cadillacs and Chryslers seem to be the favorites.

There are many, many hotels and they are large, modern and very busy and expensive. Henry Kaiser has invested a lot of money in Honolulu. He has recently built a large and beautiful hotel. The Kaiser Dome is another marker that tourists soon learn to use as a guide.

Waikiki Beach is like a big and continuous carnival with tourists and natives dressed in muu-muus, halomus, aloha shirts, straw ornamental hats and sandals. The shops are small and plentiful. Along the beach people are surfing, swimming, sunning, etc. The big hotels face both the beach and Kalakau Ave. Across Kalakau are more shops, more places to eat and the International Market. Their market extends to the back of the block. It is made up of many small businesses, one for hats, one for bags, one for camera supplies, one for imported ivory products, one for monkey pod wood products, one for Hawaiian Clothes, etc, etc.

The food in Hawaii is good. The better places advertize prime rib roast and it is excellent. Their sweet rolls are especially good. Coconut honey is served with hot cakes. Their tossed salad as well as fruit salad is good. Kona coffee is raised on the island of that name and is used in most places. It makes good coffee as we did not notice the difference.

The hotels feature dancing to the strains of Hawaiian music each night. There are four places in Honolulu who have a luau every Thursday and Sunday night. The luau is a feast like the feasts of the early days and is followed by a good first class floor show. The featured food of the luau is the Kalau pig. For a luau a large hole is dug in the ground and called an imuu. Hot lava rocks are placed in the imuu. Over the rocks, wet ti leaves are placed and then a dressed whole pig is placed in wire netting and laid on the leaves. Hot lava rocks are placed in the pig and around it and then wet ti leaves cover it. Large pieces of ducking like wagons sheets are placed across this and dirt is piled to make a mound. The kalau pig is placed in the imuu at 1:30. At 6:00 o'clock the people who have bought tickets for $8.50, $10.00 or $12.00 gather around for the coming out of the kalau pig. Three men wearing lava lavas (a piece of material wrapped around their waist, extending to below their knees) and nothing else, shoveled the dirt back, then lifted the ducking and jerked the steaming hot ti leaves back with their bare hands and rolled the hot lava rocks out the same way. The pig (there were two) looked luscious. The netting used as a basket was lifted to a wooden vat, then carried inside to be readied for serving. The 500 paying guests wandered in the patio and drank punch until the sun was setting. At this time two Hawaiian boys, dressed in lava lavas, lowered the U. S. flag while another boy held two torches aloft and a girl sang the Star Spangled Banner. It was very impressive. The guests, all of us wearing Hawaiian costumes, went into the Long Room for the feast. The tables were covered with ti leaves and centered with pineapple halves, bananas etc. with hibiscus flowers. Each place had a paper cup of poi, made from taro root, a square of coconut pudding and a square of coconut cake and a teaspoon with which to eat. Our dinner was served in large monkey pod wooden deep plates with dividers carved into it. The large area had a generous serving of kalau pig (delicious) and a club steak. Another division had long rice (looked like a strip of cellophane and tasted like tapioca); another division had taro (tasted like spinach), a piece of sweet potato and lomi lomi salmon which was good. The poi (horrible) was the bread. Black coffee completed the meal.

In the early days the people sat on the ground and ate with their fingers. We had chairs and a teaspoon and we used our fingers too.

The feast was followed by an excellent floor show. All shows are clean — no questionable jokes.

Leaving Hawaii is as colorful as arriving, a band plays, a vocalist sings a real concert. When she sing "Aloha" the passengers on board are standing on deck amid colorful ticker tape and drop their leis overboard which means "good-bye, I will return."
