City to Spray For Mosquitos

A heavy infestation of mosquitos this year has brought many protests from local citizens and plans are in the mill to spray the town. Mayor Royce Lee said Wednesday morning that he expects the work to get underway by the latter part of the week.

"We have been trying to find some authority to tell us just what we need to use," the mayor said, "and just as soon as we find the proper formula the fogging machine will start."

Recent rains and hot, humid weather have caused the mosquitos to be thicker than usual. They are especially annoying to spectators at the local ball park.

Revival Meeting Planned At Central Baptist Church

A revival meeting is scheduled to be held at Central Baptist Church June 21-28, according to an announcement made this week by the pastor, the Rev. Wayne N. Stout.

Meeting Called To Discuss Traffic Law Enforcement

A meeting has been set up by Mayor Royce Lee for Thursday night, June 18, to discuss and study traffic law enforcement in the City of Bronte. The meeting will be held at the city hall, starting at 8 p.m. The meeting place may be changed and a definite place will be announced in next week's Enterprise.

The mayor said all law enforcement officers, school officials and others have been issued a special invitation to attend the meeting. Everyone in the community is invited to attend, but particular mention was made of getting teenage drivers, their parents, church and organization representatives out to the meeting.

Mayor Lee said that traffic violations in the city are mounting, and he feels now would be a good time to try to work out a solution to this problem. The mayor said he wasn't "picking on teenagers, but I have noticed that quite a few of our young people are not handling their cars in the manner conducive to safe driving."

Lee said the matter had been discussed in city council meetings and the council voiced approval of seeking cooperation of all law enforcement officers in the area in trying to correct the problem.

The mayor said, "We want everybody out for this meeting who is interested in making our streets safer and preventing death or injury to some of our young people or others."

Walton Sells Gulf Agency To E. Butler

A business transaction became effective Friday, May 29, which transferred ownership of one of Bronte's oldest firms. Ronald S. Walton sold his wholesale Gulf Oil Products agency to Elroy Butler. Walton said they made the deal some time ago but could not get all the details worked out with Gulf Oil Corporation until Butler took over.

Walton first became associated with the Gulf Agency here in 1922, when he went to work for the late Cecil Glenn, who started the firm in 1921 with his brother, Herman Glenn. He continued to work for Mr. Glenn until 1928, when he took over the business. He has been owner for the past 36 years.

Elroy Butler, the new owner, said he hoped to be able to serve the customers as well as Walton during his 42 years with the firm. Butler came to Bronte Oct. 1, 1963, from Sterling City, after buying the Gulf Service station here from Bill Wrinkle and Charles Sims.

Walton said quite a few changes in the manner of operation have occurred in the wholesale oil business since he started in 1922. "When I first started," he said, "kerosene was one of our biggest sellers. We sold about as much kerosene then as we did gasoline. Now, we don't sell much."

Walton said they delivered the merchandise in a Model T Ford truck when he first started to work. It took a half-day back then to haul 330 gallons of fuel to Robert Lee, Walton said. Now he hauls 1,007 gallons to the Coke County capital, unloads and makes the return trip in about 1½ hours.

Another big change during his ownership is the method of unloading liquid petroleum products. "We used to spend a long eight hours at a hand pump unloading a tank car of fuel," Walton said. "Now, we unload one these big transport trucks in about two hours, with an electric pump."

One item that used to be a big seller was Red Top axle grease, and it isn't even available now.

Walton's sister, Mrs. Ruby Davenport, has been associated with him as bookkeeper since he took over the business, except for one year, when his wife kept the books. She, too, has seen changes in the way her part of the business is conducted. Code entries to indicate the type of business firm which buys the products, and other detailed bookkeeping procedures are used now, while in bygone days "all we had to do was fill out a dray ticket."

Walton's territory included Bronte, Robert Lee, Blackwell, Sanco and Silver, along with the adjacent farm and ranch country. When he started delivering his merchandise to this area, he said there were "maybe three" Ford tractors in the area and a few stationary engines used to pump water. The rest of his out of town business was "coal oil" which was used for cooking, heating and fuel for lamps.

Use of tractor fuel in this area increased steadily until during the 1940s and then pretty well leveled off until the Soil Bank program went into effect. Then it dropped off considerably, according to Walton.

When asked about any interesting incidents which had occurred in his 42 years with the Bronte agency, Walton said the first day he worked for Cecil Glenn, he filled a five gallon can with lubricating oil turned it over and had the oil running clear across the floor. "I told Cecil I hoped my last day would be better than my first," he said.

Walton was born out in the country from Bronte and moved

LBJ Pushes Small Business Loans

The very small businessman — chiefly operators of retail shops or service establishments — many of whom have had a hard time obtaining financing in the past — will now find it much easier to qualify for a Government loan Jack Teddlie, Lubbock branch manager of the Small Business Administration, said today.

The new, liberalized loan program was announced by President Johnson at White House ceremonies in Washington, May 26, which Teddlie attended.

The White House ceremonies in connection with National Small Business Week, were the climax of a trip to Washington by Teddlie along with other SBA regional directors and branch managers to review the agency's activities.

"President Johnson's administration is definitely concerned with the welfare of small business," Teddlie said. "He assured us that he has small businessmen very much in mind every day and his interest was clearly demonstrated by his willingness to take time out from a very busy schedule personally to greet the SBA representatives."

The SBA's new small loan program reflects a new emphasis on helping the very small businesses, Teddlie said.

Field Representative To Be In San Angelo

A field representative of the Small Business Administration's Lubbock Branch Office will visit the San Angelo Chamber of Commerce Office, Tuesday, June 16.

Any small businessman interested in obtaining information about SBA's business loans or other services may call for an appointment at 655-4136 or contact the SBA Field Representative on June 16 at the San Angelo Chamber of Commerce Office, Continental Building, San Angelo, Texas.

Also, further information can be obtained at First National Bank in Bronte, said President L. T. Youngblood.

SBA Administrator Eugene P. Foley has frequently expressed the view that the Agency in the past has not done as much as it should to help the businessman at the lower end of the small business scale, he said. Yet they are often the businessmen most in need of financial help, and those who have the most difficulty in obtaining it.

The new small loan program was designed to meet this need, Teddlie said. Under this program SBA will make loans to small firms up to a maximum of $15,000 for as long as 6 years under greatly liberalized terms.

Primary emphasis will be on the character of the applicant and his past record of meeting obligations, and no application will be turned away merely because he lacks collateral to pledge as security for the loan.

"SBA believes that you have to take a chance on people," Teddlie said, "and we will take a calculated risk in cases where we believe the applicant has a fa-

Denver Judge Gives Advice

(Editor's note: The letter below, which you may have read somewhere before, was written by a Denver judge. It ties in very well with a problem in Bronte and the rest of this country. We are running it as an editorial, as it reflects the views of The Enterprise.)

"An Open Letter to a Teen-ager:

"Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teenagers: What can we do? Where can we go? The answer is: GO HOME! Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves. Mow the lawn. Shovel the walk. Wash the car. Learn to cook. Scrub some floors. Repair the sink. Build a boat. Get a job.

"Help the Church. Visit the sick. Assist the poor. Study your lessons. And when you are through—and not too tired—read a book.

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your town does not owe you recreation facilities. The world does NOT owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy and your talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty, or sick, or lonely again.

"In plain simple words: GROW UP; quit being a cry-baby; get out of your dream world; develop a backbone not a wishbone; and start acting like a man or a lady.

"I'm a parent. I'm tired of nursing, protecting, helping, appealing, begging, excusing, tolerating, denying myself needed comforts for every whim and fancy, just because your selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality, and thinking, and requests."

County Agents News Column

By STERLING LINDSEY

The current cattle situation — cattle numbers and prices particularly — has many people speculating on what lies ahead for the cattle industry. Certainly their concern is in order. Some believe a peak has already been reached, while others believe the situation may get still rougher before getting better.

Texas cattle numbers are the highest in history. More than 10 million head were on hand on Jan. 1. Ed Uvacek, Extension Livestock Marketing Specialist, believes the state has reached its high peak in the current cattle cycle.

Cattle numbers in the U. S. are also at a record high. The total on January 1 was in excess of 106 million head. The record high cattle population represents the seventh year of a buildup in cattle herds.

A national downturn in cattle numbers will begin this year or in 1956, the Texas A&M specialist predicts. When liquidation begins, Uvacek expects a three year period when cattle numbers will become successively lower.

Marketings from Texas feedlots in the January-March period this year totaled 292 thousand head or 18 percent more than in 1963.

Federally inspected slaughter of cattle was up 11 percent during the first quarter of this year. And experts look for cattle slaughter to stay well above 1963 levels for the remainder of the year.

Prices of choice beef carcasses are expected to gradually decrease after May, he said, probably reaching their lowest levels in the September-October period. Uvacek predicts that good carcasses will decrease in price to lower levels in the July-September period.

Also, feeder and stocker calves are now at their best demand for the year and should drop much lower as the heavy movement of late summer and early fall marketings begin.

Beef and veal imports into the U.S. during the January-February period were 11 percent below last year.

The screwworm situation is also a concern vital to the stockman's well being. Our last report showed seven cases during the week. The number is small, but where they come from is more noteworthy. One case was reported in Lampasas County, two each from Mason and Schielcher counties. The numbers have remained low. Where they came from has gradually moved northward. We could be next.

Statewide, 36 cases were reported during May. This compares favorably against 1963 and 1962. In May of 1963, 451 cases were reported. In 1962, 6,308 cases were found during May. And the authorities believe the reporting is much more complete than in the two previous years.

Nevertheless, we must be alert. One case undetected could cause a setback to the program.

Gardeners who are having trouble with blossom-end-rot on tomatoes can curb the problem with a small application of calcium chloride.

Blossom-end-rot appears as dark, sunken, leathery spots on the blossom-end of green tomatoes. The first symptom is a slightly sunken, water-soaked spot.

Although nothing can be done for affected tomatoes, an application of calcium chloride will usually stop the problem in later-developing fruit.

Home gardeners growing tomatoes on sandy soil can stop blossom-end-rot by applying one heaping tablespoon of calcium chloride in a two-foot diameter area around each plant and then by wetting this with about one gallon of water to leach the material into the root zone.

To curb the problem on heavy soils, the Extension horticulturist suggests that the calcium chloride be put in a slight trench around the plant. Pour a gallon or more of water into the trench; then cover it with soil.

Blossom-end-rot usually occurs on plants that are about one-third to one-half grown. The problem often shows up after periods of dry weather or prolonged dry winds, or after excessive rainfall, and following heavy sidedressings of nitrogen. However, lack of calcium that is usable to the plant is the cause of trouble.

I will be attending school the next three weeks at Colorado State University. Should you need information that is contained on one of the Extension Service bulletins do not hesitate to call our office. If you have a problem that will hold, I will be back in the County on July 6. Leave word with Mrs. Beaty and I will contact you when I return.

"It is clear," Teddlie said, "that the SBA will have an important role in President Johnson's war against poverty. More and more it is becoming apparent that a thriving small business community can do much toward taking up the slack in unemployment."

He said that top SBA officials in Washington are also concerned with the large number of business mergers which may be a threat to small business.

Teddlie added that SBA officials are giving serious thought to the effects on small business in the future as the Government cuts back on defense production and the economy converts primarily to provide for civilian needs.
