By Bill Boykin

Austin — Legislators have a lot more left to do than they have done so far in almost four months.

Of the nearly 1,700 House bills and almost 1,000 Senate bills introduced, fewer than 100 have actually reached the Governor's desk.

If the 63rd Legislature accomplishes as much as the 62nd did numerically (more than 1,000 bills passed), about 99 per cent of the floor action must be captured in the brief period before the May 28 adjournment deadline.

Slow moving debate in the House—where more than 200 amendments were offered—on the $9.7 billion appropriation bill fanned some speculation that a special session may be necessary to complete mandatory work.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who holds the key to calling such a session has made clear he doesn't want one.

Senators banged through their $9.5 billion version of the state budget in an hour and 21 minutes.

In spite of the two weeks spent on the House spending bill, Speaker Price Daniel Jr. maintained "plenty of time" remains to consider other "must" legislation.

Daniel predicted House passage of these measures before May 28:

- * Mass transit.
- * Drug law reform.
- * Bills to improve fiscal responsibility in government appropriations.
- * Restoral of capital punishment.
- * Penal code revision.
- * Water district reform.
- * Public school finance.
- * Competitive insurance rating.

While the work load appears staggering, Texas legislators are used to concentrating most of their floor action in the last month of their sessions.

CONSTITUTIONAL HEARINGS BEGIN — The Constitutional Revision Commission began the first of its three months' series of hearings in the Panhandle and Far West Texas.

Initial hearings were held in Amarillo, Lubbock, El Paso, Midland-Odessa and San Angelo before moving south to San Antonio. A total of 18 hearings will hear citizens' views on how the constitution should be revised.

Witnesses offered suggestions on everything from dipping cattle in cold weather to legislative pay and the rights of individual citizens. Some told the Commission it should move cautiously in changing the constitution.

Further hearings are slated in many other Texas cities between now and the end of June.

FEE, JURY BILLS PASSED — Higher hunting and fishing license fees and lower age limits for jury service are virtually assured.

The Senate passed amended bills authorizing both and returned them to the House where they originated.

The hunting license will cost $5.25 instead of $3.35 and the fishing license $4.35 instead of $2.15. A combination license is available for $8.75. Out of state hunters visiting Texas may pay $37.50 for their licenses. A special, three day, non-resident salt fishing license can be obtained for $1.25.

Under the new juror age legislation, 18-20 year olds can serve on any Texas state court trial jury.

A bill to provide full maturity rights to the 18-20 year olds finally passed the Senate and went to the House.

SCHOOL LAW REVISION PONDERED — Governor Briscoe said he is "optimistic" the Legislature can still turn out a bill revising the present system of financing public schools.

Briscoe emphasized he would discourage the idea of a special session on the school law revision, and prefers to meet the issue this year if a method can be found to defer new taxes to foot the bill.

Efforts are being made to "phase in" the program over a six year period to avoid an $812 million tax bill which the contemplated revision would force in 1975.

Short Snorts

The Governor has signed into law bills providing for optional personal injury auto insurance up to $2,500 per person and permitting right turns on red traffic signals.

An omnibus drug bill which includes a provision lowering the first offense possession of marijuana penalty to a misdemeanor received House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee approval.

Official Memorandum

 Dolph Briscoe
 GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

Greetings:

The importance of a strong national defense is in concert with the national goal of a generation of peace.

Such defense forces serving as a deterrent to aggression includes a strong, equipped, manned and trained National Guard and Reserve.

National Guard and Reserve forces can maintain the necessary readiness only if they are manned with citizen-military in the required numbers.

Many citizens of Texas are active members of the Guard and Reserve and devote their personal energies and time toward the proficiency needed to assure readiness in the event of emergency.

These modern-day Minutemen have consistently demonstrated their dedication to the defense needs of this Nation as well as their commitment to the betterment of this State.

In order to continue serving the Nation, these Guardsmen and Reservists require the understanding and support of every American.

THEREFORE, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate the week of May 6-12, 1973, as a period of public support for the National Guard and Reserve and enjoin all citizens of the State of Texas to render willingly the support to their Guardsmen and Reservists which will ensure this Nation the security necessary for its protection and preservation of our free way of life.

Lions Clubs Achieve One Million Members

OAK BROOK, ILLINOIS — Bernard A. "Barney" Gill (left), of Virginia Beach, Va., has been recognized as the one millionth member of the International Association of Lions Clubs, according to Lions President George Friedrichs, Anney, France. Lions International is the world's largest service organization with more than 26,000 clubs in 148 countries and geographical territories around the world. It is the first service association to reach one million members. In special ceremonies conducted at the Association's Oak Brook, Ill., headquarters, Gill received a special plaque from Phil W. Sterker, of Basalt, Colo., Chairman of the Membership Club Service Committee of the International Board of Directors.

Gill, 45, a retired Army Lieutenant Colonel and Viet Nam veteran, is Executive Director of the United Drug Abuse Council, Inc., a planning and coordinating agency for all drug related problems in the Tidewater region of Virginia. He resides in Virginia Beach with his wife, Nancy, and their five children, and is a member of the Virginia Beach Oceanfront Lions Club.

Production Down, Income Up... Cattle on Feed Increases Again... Cattle, Calf, Sheep Sales.

Wool and mohair producers are enjoying some of the best prices they've received in years. Mohair prices, for example, were 89 per cent higher in 1972 than in 1971. Wool prices are 32 cents per pound on the average higher for 1972 than 1971.

Increased demand for the commodities plus a continuing decline in production are reasons for the price situation.

Texas mohair production during 1972 was down 32 per cent from 1971. The number of goats and kids clipped during 1972 totaled 1,521,000 head, down 31 per cent from 1971.

Average price for mohair during 1972 was 83 cents; this compared with only 30.1 cents per pound during 1971. Total 1972 value of mohair to Texas producers was $8,458,000, up 89 per cent from 1971.

While mohair production was declining, so was wool. Texas sheep produced 29,400,000 pounds of wool during 1972, a decline of three per cent.

A total of 4,145,000 head of sheep shorn on Texas ranches averaged 7.1 pounds per fleece during 1972, down slightly from 1971.

The average price per pound of wool during 1972 was 48 cents; this is 32 cents a pound above 1971. Total value of wool produced was $14,100,000 in 1972 compared with only $4,900,000 in 1971.

Nationwide, the production of wool also declined three per cent during 1972. A one per cent decrease in number of sheep and lambs shorn was also noted in 1972.

IT'S THE same story for Texas cattle on feed. Texas continues to be the number one cattle feeding state in the nation. During April, a total of 2,259,000 head of cattle were on feed in Texas feedlots, this is 22 per cent above the number a year ago, and three per cent above the total a month ago.

Indications now are that close to 4 million head of cattle will be fed out in Texas this year, which will be another healthy increase over last year.

Feedlot operators report intentions to market 1,320,000 cattle between now and June 30. This would be 21 per cent more than marketed during the April-June quarter of last year, again proof positive that cattle producers are expanding their operations and not holding back on cattle in an attempt to keep the price at high levels.

Large feedlots — those with 1,000-plus capacity — numbered 238 in Texas and held 2,211,000 cattle on feed for slaughter market. Capacity for these lots showed a 76 per cent occupancy.

Steers account for the bulk of cattle on feed with a total of 1-

462,000 head, heifers and cows totaled 797,000 head.

Nationwide, cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in 23 major feeding states is five per cent above a year earlier. Marketings now through June are anticipated to be five per cent higher than a year ago.

SALES of cattle, calves and sheep increased in Texas during March, while sales of hogs declined.

Cattle and calves marketed through auctions in Texas during March was 38 per cent higher than a year ago, and nearly 50 per cent higher than a month ago.

Sheep sales were three per cent higher than a year ago, and 75 per cent above a month ago.

Hog sales during March in Texas were 15 per cent below a year ago, but 28 percent above a month ago.

Published by the American Medical Association

Do you know what to do in a medical emergency? Max Klinghoffer, M.D., who pioneered emergency medical services at Chicago's O'Hare airport, lists five priorities to guide emergency rescuers:

1. Stop major hemorrhaging. Blood loss can kill a victim in three to five minutes. (This doesn't apply to minor bleeding or oozing — a person isn't losing too much blood from a wound on the arm or a nosebleed that may look worse than it is.)

2. Restore respiration and heartbeat. Rescue efforts aren't going to do any good if the person has stopped breathing or his heart is no longer functioning. To establish an airway or heartbeat, begin cardiopulmonary resuscitation (by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and chest massage).

3. Immobilize major fractures.

4. Control pain by immobilizing the injured area and making the person as comfortable as possible. Verbally reassuring the victim also can help prevent shock.

5. Don't move the victim unless you have to; if necessary, do it carefully and deliberately. "A lot of people who are injured, but not seriously, become critically injured and die as a result of careless transportation," says Dr. Klinghoffer.

He also recommends that those suffering from specific diseases, such as diabetes, or certain allergies, even those wearing contact lenses should carry some notice of this on their person. Special identifying bracelets and wallet cards are available for this purpose. When there is a medical emergency, rescuers should look for these notices, explains Dr. Klinghoffer, and respond accordingly.

Good advice to heart patients

... Be careful how you carry any heavy packages! David H. Jackson, M.D., spokesman for a team of Alabama researchers, reports on tests of 13 healthy young men (ages 30-34) on a treadmill moving at a rate of 1.7 miles per hour. Each was asked to carry 40 pounds — first, with all of the weight in the right hand, then with all on his back, and finally with only 20 pounds in each hand.

The rise in blood pressure and heart rate was much less in the last two trials, than when the weight was all in one hand. According to Dr. Jackson, "It is not only imperative that coronary disease patients be cautioned as to carrying loads, but that they be instructed (by their physicians) in the most efficient method of carrying any load."

May is here and it is such a good time to start plants growing—indoors or out. These tips on hanging baskets and terrarium-garden should be of interest to many persons.

Hanging Baskets

A hanging basket is any container which holds living plants and can be suspended from a support. The basket may be a wooden box, a moss lined wire basket, plastic pot or other container. Hanging baskets may be used both inside and outside. Remember that your basket will need strong supports to hold the moist soil and plants.

If you are planting a wire basket, use sheet moss or a 2 inch liner of sphagnum moss. A mixture of two parts peat, one part sand and one part perlite is a good soil mix to use in the hanging basket. Choose your plants carefully, selecting the plants according to the light intensity where you will place the hanging basket. Most plants will do well in a bright shaded area. For easiest maintenance, use one plant type in each basket. When planting, spread the roots in the potting mix being careful to set the plants at the same depth they were growing in the pot. If you have placed your hanging basket outside or on a screened patio, you will need to water it frequently because of air movement. However, do not overwater. Use a foliage plant fertilizer no more than once each two weeks.

Planning and Planting a Terrarium

Terrariums are miniature gardens enclosed in a clear glass or plastic container. The containers may be round glass globe, fish aquarium, brandy glass or other shape. Choose your container according to the room where it will be used. Terrariums provide almost ideal conditions for many plants.

Terrarium plants are easy to construct.

1. Place a one inch layer of gravel, pebbles, broken crock or charcoal under the soil to handle excess water.
2. Cover the gravel with three to four inches of good organic soil (one part peat to one part sand). Mound the soil higher on one side to provide a naturalistic setting.
3. Select plants that basically have the same cultural requirements. Foliage plants suitable for the terrarium include: African violets, anthuriums, maranta, dwarf rex begonias, Chinese evergreens, cryptanthus, dracaena, fittonia, grape ivy, English ivy, hoyo, small palms, peperomia, small philodendrons, snake plant, pothos, selaginella and wandering Jew.
4. Set the plants at the same depth they were growing in their pots.
5. The glass cover should be moved to ventilate the terrarium when excessive moisture collects on the inside of the glass.
6. Keep the soil moist but not soggy.
7. Place the terrarium in bright light but never in direct sunlight.
8. Prune plants back when they become too large.

Should there be a viable wool and mohair industry in this country? That is a recurring question which in 1954 was reflected in the National Wool Act whereby it became a national policy to seek an annual production level of 300 million pounds. Availability of raw wool has been declared an essential for national defense, since in time of war only domestically produced wool could be counted on to meet our minimum requirements.

Due to low cost foreign competition, domestic wool producers were in plenty of trouble in the early 1950's. A Tariff Commission study at that time found our domestic production costs to be about 10c below what low cost competitors could produce and deliver it, including tariff, to our markets, and recommended addition of a 10 cent per pound import fee.

Instead, President Eisenhower proposed what became the Wool Incentive Act, whereby the Secretary of Agriculture would annually establish an incentive price level designed to encourage increased production of up to 300 million pounds, which since 1954 has been from 62 to 72 cents on wool. The Wool Act provided for an annual incentive payment to growers of the percentage difference between the average domestic price and the incentive level.

In 1971 our wool and mohair prices were the lowest in 33 years, and the incentives, to approach the incentive level, were high. Wool prices that year averaged only 19 cents; in 1972 it was 35 cents and this year (1973) no incentive payments are expected because of good market prices for both wool and mohair.

It should be pointed out that no incentive payments whatever can be made from U. S. appropriated funds. Such payments, if any, come exclusively from import tariffs imposed on imported competitive products. Thus, technically, at least, Australian and New Zealand growers pick up the tab for most of the cost of financing our incentive program and payments made to individual U. S. growers.

The law prohibits more than 70 per cent of the tariff generated revenue from ever being used to finance the incentive program. It is usually much less.

After high school, will your kid go to work, or to college?

High school is the end of Free Education.

If your child decides to go on to college it'll take money. Lots of money. Money that you should probably be saving right now.

And there's no better way to start a college savings fund than by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. That way an amount you specify will be set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U. S. Savings Bonds. Before you know it you'll have a nice little college fund on hand.

Now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan. And, if your child keeps studying and you keep saving, you'll both be ready for college.
