What a Little Water Would Do

If the farmers in the proposed irrigated area could turn the water on their crops at this time, the increased yield which would result from the one 'dose' would almost pay for building the big irrigation project.

Thousands of acres of cotton and feed stuff is beginning to scorch for the lack of moisture. Two weeks ago the crops in the proposed irrigated area were promising, and if water for keeping them growing had been available a bale, a bale and a half and two bales per acre would have guaranteed.

Under present conditions the crops will not produce a quarter of a bale per acre unless rain falls within a few days. The crops are facing the danger period, and this danger could have been entirely eliminated had the big irrigation project been in operation.

The land upon which these crops are growing would be increased several times their present value if water was available to insure the bumper crops which the farmers have started.

As is always the case in this country during the crop making season, one good watering would do the work. If the rain could be had at the proper time the rain would make the crop. Ask the farmer what he would give for a good rain on his crop now. Let him figure the difference in what the yield will be without rain and what it would be with a good rain.

Water engineers tell us that the water which flowed passed Ballinger last spring if impounded, would have been sufficient to irrigate 150,000 acres. Figure the value of a quarter bale per acre, and less and the value of a bale per acre, and more, and it can readily be seen what damming the Colorado River would be worth to the farmers who own land in the proposed irrigation district.

The land owners could well afford to give one-half their holdings to get water for irrigating the other half. The owner who does not want to cultivate irrigated land, could sell out for three or four times what his holdings would bring now. The possibilities of such a project are too great for the average man to comprehend. If the land owners do not put it over they deserve to dry up and blow away. It is the greatest opportunity ever offered an agricultural country.—Ballinger Ledger.

Roe Drives Eight Goals Over Line

Texas Fred Roe again occupied the spotlight in yesterday's polo contest between the Bryn Mawr Foxhunters and the Bryn Mawr Freebooters. The semi-final event for the Bryn Mawr polo cups which the latter won by the score of 16 goals to 3.

Roe's fearless riding and his accuracy of mallet stroking scored eight of the total of fourteen earned goals made by the Freebooters, and ran his record for the season to twenty-five goals. Roe scored in five of the eight periods of play yesterday, in three of which he drove over two markers each. His desperate lunges at the ball brought the spectators to their feet on numerous occasions as the Texan almost fell out of the saddle to drive the ball goalward.

The Freebooters win over their running-mates eliminates the latter from further competition for the Bryn Mawr polo cups and brings the victors in the final event against the Meadowbrook Ramblers, who won the second leg of the Wootton Challenge Cup last week, to be played Thursday.

Walter Randolph took the place of Rodman Wanamaker, who lately discovered a broken bone in his left hand. Randolph a member of last year's Bryn Mawr squad and a skillful malleteer, has not been in the game since last season, and although he put up a splendid article of polo, the lack of practice was easily seen. Randolph has not even ridden a horse for more than a year.

The result of the game was never in doubt after the first two periods. The Freebooter assault rang up two goals in a little more than a minute of play, followed by another from Roe in four minutes. Only after six minutes and nineteen seconds of desperate play in the second allowed Converse to shoot the first Foxhunter goal. This was the only session of the game in which the Freebooter mallets were silent.

The Foxhunters rang up two more goals in the third, but that ended their scoring. Two slashing goals were made, both by Fred Roe, as the timer's bell ended the third and sixth periods. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Same old Story, a Good One

Mrs. Mahala Buras, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles." adv.

Houston Chronicle: If you would care less for what persons outside your family think about you, and more about what those in your home think of you, it is more than likely that you would conduct your self in a way more pleasing to those who are entitled to the best there is in you. Isn't it true that you make very little effort to be agreeable in your home and every effort possible to win the good graces of others? If some of those friends who know you in a social and favorable way, knew you as they do in your home, there would be less respect for you. You know what sort of person you are. You know the side you show your family and what you show the world. Are you not ashamed, sometimes, when you think how you treat the members of your own little home? Why not make yourself happier by a real effort to be courteous and considerate of those near and dear? Why save all your good and bright happy ways for the "crowd," in other words, mere friends or acquaintances?

Are You the Man Who Never reads Advertisements?

Some men, who are neither blind nor illiterate, claim sincerely that they "never read advertisements."

Yet, if you could investigate, in each case you would find that the man who "never reads advertisements" used an advertised tooth paste or shaving cream or soap. If he owns an automobile it will be an advertised car. If you ask his opinion of any automobile he will reply in words that might have been lifted bodily from an advertisement of that automobile.

Advertising has formed his opinions to a great degree. He may have received his information through others who obtained their knowledge from advertising. But it is a fact that no man can escape the effect of advertising even if he does say he "never reads advertisements."

Not one of us ever reasoned out entirely from his own mind that the earth is round. If we had not read it or heard it we would never have known it.

In these days of good, truthful, helpful advertising to say "I never read advertisements" is merely your way of saying, "I don't read all advertisements."

HELD COMMON SENSE VIEW

Colonel Roosevelt's Idea of the Propriety of Establishing Proper Game Preserves.

In his "African Game Trails," Colonel Roosevelt wrote:

"Game preserves should not be established where they are detrimental to the interests of large bodies of settlers, nor yet should they be nominally established in regions so remote that the only men really interfered with are those who respect the law, while a premium is thereby put on the activity of the unscrupulous persons who are eager to break it.

"There should be certain sanctuaries and nurseries where game can live and breed absolutely unmolested; and elsewhere the laws should, so far as possible, provide for the continued existence of the game in sufficient numbers to allow a reasonable amount of hunting on fair terms to any hardy and vigorous man fond of the sport, and yet not in sufficient numbers to jeopardize the interests of the actual settler, the tiller of the soil, the man whose well-being should be the prime object to be kept in mind by every statesman. Game butchery is as objectionable as any other form of wanton cruelty or barbarity; but to protest against all hunting of game is a sign of softness of head, not of soundness of heart."

LOST FORTUNE IN RUBLES

A debtor who, in 1914, borrowed 750,000 Russian rubles, then worth about $300,000, can now repay in full with $250, Judge Russell has decided in the chancery division of the royal courts of justice at London. However, a stay of execution was granted with a view to an appeal.

The parties were the British Bank of Foreign Trade, which borrowed the 750,000 rubles from the Russian Commercial and Industrial bank against securities which the borrower now seeks to redeem. The lending bank, however, insisted on payment of $300,000 in sterling.

The judge held that the loan was a ruble loan repayable in rubles, either imperial Romanoff, Kerensky or soviet issues, whichever were available. Soviet rubles were quoted at about 60 for a penny at the time of the court's decision.

MUSIC HELPS INVALIDS

Discussing Fritz Kreisler's belief that the musician is a valuable aid to the doctor in treating disease, W. D. Moffat, editor of the Mentor Magazine, tells of the experience of an English scientist who found that he could grip an object harder when heroic music was played, and whose grip was correspondingly weaker when a lullaby was played. This indicates, the writer points out, that music has a discernible effect on mind and body.

WENT ALTOGETHER TOO FAR

Delegation Couldn't Help but Think That the Head of the Corporation Was Unreasonable.

The head of a number of corporations, on the verge of a nervous breakdown, decided to get his house in order prior to an extended sojourn in southern California.

Among other details, he put in economies in the office forces of these companies, which included laying off a large number of clerks.

These men, learning of their impending dismissal, sent a delegation to wait on their superior. The conversation waxed personal and the chief of the clerical committee suggested that if the president had not appropriated so large a salary things might have been different for their jobs.

Without losing his temper, the officer replied: "Very well, as you put it that way, will you gentlemen work here on the same basis as I am?"

The answer was a unanimous affirmative.

"All right. You will discover from the accounting department that my salary was entirely discontinued the first of the year," said the president.

The meeting broke up in confusion.—Wall Street Journal.

CRAFTY GERMANS

It is now known why and how the famous central picture of Van Eyck's painting, "The Adoration of the Lamb," was hidden by the Belgians of Ghent during the war to save it from the invading Germans, who, for many decades, have held the accompanying shutters or panels. Perhaps it will never be known where the canon of St. Ravy put it and thus defied all efforts of the Germans to gain possession of the treasure, but it certainly remained safe till the treaty of Versailles could stipulate that the six shutters of the great work then in Berlin should be restored to Ghent. The Germans, who had originally given only 500,000 thalers for the shutters, now asked 75,000,000 francs for the lot, in spite of the fact that two years earlier they had put their value at something under 20,000,000 francs. As the value of the shutters has had to be deducted from the total sum due for reparations, the Germans may be said to have driven a handsome bargain.—Christian Science Monitor.

GETTING A LIKENESS

The photographer had made some very striking portraits of a fair young woman. In fact they were so good that she had ordered one of them tinted in oil at a price of $20. The photographer was showing her the finished picture for the first time, and after a moment's study she said:

"I think you have made the color of my hair a little too bright a red."

"It can be made a little darker, if you like," replied the photographer.

"No, on second thought, I don't think you need change it. I rather like the shade and I'll just change the color of my hair to match the picture," she answered.

Ferguson Put on Ballot

Dallas Aug. 7.—By unanimous vote the state Democratic executive committee today decided to certify the name of James Ferguson of Temple to the county chairman as one of the run off candidates for the United States senate in the primary Aug. 26.

The motion to certify Ferguson as a candidate was seconded by Judge Barry Miller, who was the manager of Senator Culberson's campaign for the July primary. Judge John W. Gaines, of San Antonio, who sought to prevent Ferguson's name going on the ballots for the August primary, spoke against certifying Ferguson's name. At the end of his speech the motion to adopt the resolution naming Ferguson with Earle B. Mayfield as the candidates for the senatorial nomination was put and adopted. Judge Gaines' protest was the only one against the action of the committee, which recessed at noon until 2 o'clock.

When the committee convened Ferguson was present but did not remain until final action on his candidacy. Mayfield was not present in person, but was represented. He made his position plain as opposing action that would eliminate Ferguson from the August primary.

The committee today first canvassed the vote of the July primary and then certified the names of candidates in the same order as the unofficial tabulation of the votes by the Texas election bureau showed their respective positions.

Good Cotton Crop.

Without more rain, which is badly needed, San Angelo this season should market a crop of probably 5,000 bales, worth one million dollars on the basis of the present steady market, in the opinion of W. W. Cochrane of Morris Leon & Company buyers for A. L. Wolf & Company with headquarters in San Angelo. Last year slightly less than 2,000 bales was received here.

"Three weeks ago west Texas had prospects for the biggest cotton crop since 1908 when it looked like the production would average from a half to three-quarters of a bale to the acre," said Mr. Cochrane Monday morning at the St. Angelus hotel. "The hot, west winds since then have depreciated the crop and have lowered estimates on the yield from 25 to 40 per cent."

A third of a bale to the acre will now be a good average.

"However, a general rain of from one to two inches—not showers—by August 15 followed by a few days of cloudy weather will restore 20 per cent of the estimated loss, if we have a late frost. All the early cotton is in good shape, but cotton planted three weeks later, because farmers were kept out of the fields by wet weather, is dying."

About 60 per cent of the cotton in this section is early cotton, estimates Mr. Cochrane. He says it will mature fast under continued continued dry weather and the first bale may be expected in San Angelo by August 25. The first bale last year was brought in August 17, by Tom White. A good rain not only would revive the late cotton but would further the growth of the early crop and would prolong the opening of the picking season.

"Cotton is best where the rows run north and south," said Mr. Cochrane. "These hot west winds hit the stalks cross-wise and have not dried out the soil as much as where the wind has had free sweep down the east and west rows. The old adage that a cotton crop can promise more and make less and promise less and make more is never more true than in west Texas, so you can't tell what the final outcome is going to be. The crop will be made in the next ten days if it don't rain, however."

Mr. Cochrane and Morris Leon who recently moved to San Angelo from Abilene, have traveled extensively over west Texas in the last thirty days and are familiar with the crop situation in nearly every community as far north as the Ft. Worth & Denver City railroad, southwest to the Pecos river and east to Brownwood. Conditions are unlike those in other portions of Texas they say, as dry weather has prevailed into Oklahoma. Robert Lee, Coke county, until the middle of July expected to receive 4,200 bales, but present indications point to only about 2,000 bales, Mr. Cochrane reports. Ballinger's 1921 receipts were around 16,000 to 17,000 bales. Fifty thousand bales was expected but the estimate has dwindled to 35,000, with the depreciation conservatively estimated at 25 to 30 per cent. Rowena with receipts of 4,000 bales last year had anticipated almost four times that number, but now looks for only around 7,000 bales, according to local buyers. The crop on Lipan Flat, the largest farming area near San Angelo, will be reduced an estimated 30 per cent by dry weather, they say.

There is from 10 to 40 per cent more land planted in cotton in this immediate section this year than last. Mr. Cochrane reports. Little of this increase represents new farmers, those already here having swelled their acreage that much. Farmers are doing this work themselves, but there will be the usual demand for hands when the cotton picking season opens.

Prospects of a light crop throughout the country due to dry mid-summer weather in Texas, Oklahoma and other Southwestern states and too much rain through Tennessee, Alabama and other Southern states, a light carry over from 1921 and indications of a better staple are attributed by Mr. Cochrane to the present strong market. The price in west Texas last year average around 16 cents a pound, he says, and he looks for the 1922 market to open at least as high as 22 cents. Thus with the crop probably double that of 1921 in number of bales, regardless of whether needed rains fall, and with the price one fourth to possible one-third higher, west Texas should profit greatly from the 1922 cotton production, Mr. Cochrane believes.

Cause of Appendicitis

When the bowels are constipated, the lower bowels or large intestines become packed with refuse made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and sets up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis.

The Rain

About half an inch of rain fell in Robert Lee Tuesday night. Some parts of the county got as much as two and a half inches.

Carter-Adams

Mr. Claud Carter and Miss Dannie Adams were married Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. K. Adams. The marriage service was spoken by Judge E. J. Stockton, and during the service Mary Cowan sang "O' Promise Me."

The groom is the son of Prof. and Mrs. H. T. Carter of Valley View. He grew to manhood in this county, volunteered in the world war, in the aviation section of the army and was advanced to a Lieutenant. He is the Democratic nominee for representative of this district in the recent primary having received more votes in this county than anyone who ever ran for office with any opposition. He has attended the University the past two sessions where he completed a law course.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. K. Adams and grew to womanhood in Robert Lee. She was a member of the graduating class of 1922, and an accomplished musician and vocalist, and is one of our most splendid Christian young ladies.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for San Angelo, Paint Rock and other points. They will make their home at Austin.

Their great host of friends join The Observer in wishing them bon voyage through life.

What a Little Water Would Do

If the farmers in the proposed irrigated area could turn the water on their crops at this time, the increased yield which would result from the one 'dose' would almost pay for building the big irrigation project.

Thousands of acres of cotton and feed stuff is beginning to scorch for the lack of moisture. Two weeks ago the crops in the proposed irrigated area were promising, and if water for keeping them growing had been available a bale, a bale and a half and two bales per acre would have guaranteed.

Under present conditions the crops will not produce a quarter of a bale per acre unless rain falls within a few days. The crops are facing the danger period, and this danger could have been entirely eliminated had the big irrigation project been in operation.

The land upon which these crops are growing would be increased several times their present value if water was available to insure the bumper crops which the farmers have started.

As is always the case in this country during the crop making season, one good watering would do the work. If the rain could be had at the proper time the rain would make the crop. Ask the farmer what he would give for a good rain on his crop now. Let him figure the difference in what the yield will be without rain and what it would be with a good rain.

Water engineers tell us that the water which flowed passed Ballinger last spring if impounded, would have been sufficient to irrigate 150,000 acres. Figure the value of a quarter bale per acre, and less and the value of a bale per acre, and more, and it can readily be seen what damming the Colorado River would be worth to the farmers who own land in the proposed irrigation district.

The land owners could well afford to give one-half their holdings to get water for irrigating the other half. The owner who does not want to cultivate irrigated land, could sell out for three or four times what his holdings would bring now. The possibilities of such a project are too great for the average man to comprehend. If the land owners do not put it over they deserve to dry up and blow away. It is the greatest opportunity ever offered an agricultural country.—Ballinger Ledger.

Roe Driest Eight Goals Over Line

Texas Fred Roe again occupied the spotlight in yesterday's polo contest between the Bryn Mawr Foxhunters and the Bryn Mawr Freebooters. The semi-final event for the Bryn Mawr polo cups which the latter won by the score of 16 goals to 3.

Rows fearless riding and his accuracy of mallet stroking scored eight of the total of fourteen earned goals made by the Freebooters, and ran his record for the season to twenty-five goals. Roe scored in five of the eight periods of play yesterday, in three of which he drove over two markers each. His desperate lunges at the ball brought the spectators to their feet on numerous occasions as the Texan almost fell out of the saddle to drive the ball goalward.

The Freebooters win over their running-mates eliminates the latter from further competition for the Bryn Mawr polo cups and brings the victors in the final event against the Meadowbrook Ramblers, who won the second leg of the Wootton Challenge Cup last week, to be played Thursday.

Wister Randolph took the place of Rodman wanamaker, who lately discovered a broken bone in his left hand. Randolph a member of last years Bryn Mawr squad and a skillful malleteer, has not been in the game since last season, and although he put up a splendid article of polo, the lack of practice was easily seen. Randolph has not even ridden a horse for more than a year.

The result of the game was never in doubt after the first two periods. The Freebooter assault rang up two goals in a little more than a minute of play, followed by another from Roe in four minutes. Only after six minutes and nineteen seconds of desperate play in the second allowed Converse to shoot the first Foxhunter goal. This was the only session of the game in which the Freebooter mallets were silent.

The Foxhunters rang up two more goals in the third, but that ended their scoring. Two slashing goals were made, both by Fred Roe, as the timer's bell ended the third and sixth periods. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Same old Story, a Good One

Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo. relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles." adv.

Houston Chronicle: If you would care less for what persons outside your family think about you, and more about what those in your home think of you, it is more than likely that you would conduct your self in a way more pleasing to those who are entitled to the best there is in you. Isn't it true that you make very little effort to be agreeable in your home and every effort possible to win the good graces of others? If some of those friends who know you in a social and favorable way, knew you as they do in your home, there would be less respect for you. You know what sort of person you are. You know the side you show your family and what you show the world. Are you not ashamed, sometimes, when you think how you treat the members of your own little home? Why not make yourself happier by a real effort to be courteous and considerate of those near and dear? Are You the Man Who 'Never reads Advertisements?'

Some men, who are neither blind nor illiterate, claim sincerely that they "never read advertisements."

Yet, if you could investigate, in each case you would find that the man who "never reads advertisements" used an advertised tooth paste or shaving cream or soap. If he owns an automobile it will be an advertised car. If you ask his opinion of any automobile he will reply in words that might have been lifted bodily from an advertisement of that automobile.

Advertising has formed his opinions to a great degree. He may have received his information through others who obtained their knowledge from advertising. But it is a fact that no man can escape the effect of advertising even if he does say he "never reads advertisements."

Not one of us ever reasoned out entirely from his own mind that the earth is round. If we had not read it or heard it we would never have known it.

In these days of good, truthful, helpful advertising to say "I never read advertisements" is merely your way of saying, "I don't read all advertisements."

HELD COMMON SENSE VIEW

Colonel Roosevelt's Idea of the Propriety of Establishing Proper Game Preserves.

In his "African Game Trails," Colonel Roosevelt wrote:

"Game preserves should not be established where they are detrimental to the interests of large bodies of settlers, nor yet should they be nominally established in regions so remote that the only men really interfered with are those who respect the law, while a premium is thereby put on the activity of the unscrupulous persons who are eager to break it.

"There should be certain sanctuaries and nurseries where game can live and breed absolutely unmolested; and elsewhere the laws should, so far as possible, provide for the continued existence of the game in sufficient numbers to allow a reasonable amount of hunting on fair terms to any hardy and vigorous man fond of the sport, and yet not in sufficient numbers to jeopardize the interests of the actual settler, the tiller of the soil, the man whose well-being should be the prime object to be kept in mind by every statesman. Game butchery is as objectionable as any other form of wanton cruelty or barbarity; but to protest against all hunting of game is a sign of softness of head, not of soundness of heart."

LOST FORTUNE IN RUBLES

A debtor who, in 1914, borrowed 750,000 Russian rubles, then worth about $300,000, can now repay in full with $250, Judge Russell has decided in the chancery division of the royal courts of justice at London. However, a stay of execution was granted with a view to an appeal.

The parties were the British Bank of Foreign Trade, which borrowed the 750,000 rubles from the Russian Commercial and Industrial bank against securities which the borrower now seeks to redeem. The lending bank, however, insisted on payment of $300,000 in sterling.

The judge held that the loan was a ruble loan repayable in rubles, either imperial Romanoff, Kerensky or soviet issues, whichever were available. Soviet rubles were quoted at about 60 for a penny at the time of the court's decision.

MUSIC HELPS INVALIDS

Discussing Fritz Kreisler's belief that the musician is a valuable aid to the doctor in treating disease, W. D. Moffat, editor of the Mentor Magazine, tells of the experience of an English scientist who found that he could grip an object harder when heroic music was played, and whose grip was correspondingly weaker when a lullaby was played. This indicates, the writer points out, that music has a discernible effect on mind and body.

WENT ALTOGETHER TOO FAR

Delegation Couldn't Help but Think That the Head of the Corporation Was Unreasonable.

The head of a number of corporations, on the verge of a nervous breakdown, decided to get his house in order prior to an extended sojourn in southern California.

Among other details, he put in economies in the office forces of these companies, which included laying off a large number of clerks.

These men, learning of their impending dismissal, sent a delegation to wait on their superior. The conversation waxed personal and the chief of the clerical committee suggested that if the president had not appropriated so large a salary things might have been different for their jobs.

Without losing his temper, the officer replied: "Very well, as you put it that way, will you gentlemen work here on the same basis as I am?"

The answer was a unanimous affirmative.

"All right. You will discover from the accounting department that my salary was entirely discontinued the first of the year," said the president.

The meeting broke up in confusion.—Wall Street Journal.

CRAFTY GERMANS

It is now known why and how the famous central picture of Van Eyck's painting, "The Adoration of the Lamb," was hidden by the Belgians of Ghent during the war to save it from the invading Germans, who, for many decades, have held the accompanying shutters or panels. Perhaps it will never be known where the canon of St. Raveon put it and thus defied all efforts of the Germans to gain possession of the treasure, but it certainly remained safe till the treaty of Versailles could stipulate that the six shutters of the great work then in Berlin should be restored to Ghent. The Germans, who had originally given only 500,000 thalers for the shutters, now asked 75,000,000 francs for the lot, in spite of the fact that two years earlier they had put their value at something under 20,000,000 francs. As the value of the shutters has had to be deducted from the total sum due for reparations, the Germans may be said to have driven a handsome bargain.—Christian Science Monitor.

The photographer had made some very striking portraits of a fair young woman. In fact they were so good that she had ordered one of them tinted in oil at a price of $20. The photographer was showing her the finished picture for the first time, and after a moment's study she said:

"I think you have made the color of my hair a little too bright a red."

"It can be made a little darker, if you like," replied the photographer.

"No, on second thought, I don't think you need change it. I rather like the shade and I'll just change the color of my hair to match the picture," she answered.

Ferguson Put on Ballot

Dallas Aug. 7.—By unanimous vote the state Democratic executive committee today decided to certify the name of James M. Ferguson of Temple to the county chairman as one of the run off candidates for the United States senate in the primary Aug. 26.

The motion to certify Ferguson as a candidate was seconded by Judge Barry Miller, who was the manager of Senator Culberson's campaign for the July primary. Judge John W. Gaines, of San Antonio, who sought to prevent Ferguson's name going on the ballots for the August primary, spoke against certifying Ferguson's name. At the end of his speech the motion to adopt the resolution naming Ferguson with Earle B. Mayfield as the candidates for the senatorial nomination was put and adopted. Judge Gaines' protest was the only one against the action of the committee, which recessed at noon until 2 o'clock.

When the committee convened Ferguson was present but did not remain until final action on his candidacy. Mayfield was not present in person, but was represented. He made his position plain as opposing action that would eliminate Ferguson from the August primary.

The committee today first canvassed the vote of the July primary and then certified the names of candidates in the same order as the unofficial tabulation of the votes by the Texas election bureau showed their respective positions.

Good Cotton Crop.

Without more rain, which is badly needed, San Angelo this season should market a crop of probably 5,000 bales, worth one million dollars on the basis of the present steady market, in the opinion of W. W. Cochrane of Morris Leon & Company buyers for A. L. Wolf & Company with headquarters in San Angelo. Last year slightly less than 2,000 bales was received here.

"Three weeks ago west Texas had prospects for the biggest cotton crop since 1908 when it looked like the production would average from a half to three-quarters of a bale to the acre," said Mr. Cochrane Monday morning at the St. Angelus hotel. "The hot, west winds since then have depreciated the crop and have lowered estimates on the yield from 25 to 40 per cent.

A third of a bale to the acre will now be a good average.

"However, a general rain of from one to two inches—not showers—by August 15 followed by a few days of cloudy weather will restore 20 per cent of the estimated loss, if we have a late frost. All the early cotton is in good shape, but cotton planted three weeks later, because farmers were kept out of the fields by wet weather, is dying."

About 60 per cent of the cotton in this section is early cotton, estimates Mr. Cochrane. He says it will mature fast under continued continued dry weather and the first bale may be expected in San Angelo by August 25. The first bale last year was brought in August 17, by Tom White. A good rain not only would revive the late cotton but would further the growth of the early crop and would prolong the opening of the picking season.

"Cotton is best where the rows run north and south," said Mr. Cochrane. "These hot west winds hit the stalks cross-wise and have not dried out the soil as much as where the wind has had free sweep down the east and west rows. The old adage that a cotton crop can promise more and make less and promise less and make more is never more true than in west Texas, so you can't tell what the final outcome is going to be. The crop will be made in the next ten days if it don't rain, however."

Mr. Cochrane and Morris Leon who recently moved to San Angelo from Abilene, have traveled extensively over west Texas in the last thirty days and are familiar with the crop situation in nearly every community as far north as the Ft. Worth & Denver City railroad, southwest to the Pecos river and east to Brownwood. Conditions are unlike those in other portions of Texas they say, as dry weather has prevailed into Oklahoma. Robert Lee, Coke county, until the middle of July expected to receive 4,200 bales, but present indications point to only about 2,000 bales, Mr. Cochrane reports. Bailing's 1921 receipts were around 16,000 to 17,000 bales. Fifty thousand bales was expected but the estimate has dwindled to 35,000, with the depreciation conservatively estimated at 25 to 30 per cent. Rowena with receipts of 4,000 bales last year had anticipated almost four times that number, but now looks for only around 7,000 bales, according to local buyers. The crop on Lipan Flat, the largest farming area near San Angelo, will be reduced an estimated 30 per cent by dry weather, they say.

There is from 10 to 40 per cent more land planted in cotton in this immediate section this year than last, Mr. Cochrane reports. Little of this increase represents new farmers, those already here having swelled their acreage that much. Farmers are doing this work themselves, but there will be the usual demand for hands when the cotton picking season opens.

Prospects of a light crop throughout the country due to dry mid summer weather in Texas, Oklahoma and other Southwestern states and too much rain through Tennessee, Alabama and other Southern states, a light carry over from 1921 and indications of a better staple are attributed by Mr. Cochrane to the present strong market. The price in west Texas last year average around 16 cents a pound, he says, and he looks for the 1922 market to open at least as high as 22 cents. Thus with the crop probably double that of 1921 in number of bales, regardless of whether needed rains fall, and with the price one-fourth to possible one-third higher, west Texas should profit greatly from the 1922 cotton production, Mr. Cochrane believes.

Cause of Appendicitis

When the bowels are constipated, the lower bowels or large intestines become packed with refuse made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and sets up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis.

The Rain

About half an inch of rain fell in Robert Lee Tuesday night. Some parts of the county got as much as two and a half inches.

Mr. Claud Carter and Miss Dannie Adams were married Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. K. Adams. The marriage service was spoken by Judge E. J. Stockton, and during the service Mary Cowan sang "O Promise Me."

The groom is the son of Prof. and Mrs. H. T. Carter of Valley View. He grew to manhood in this county, volunteered in the world war, in the aviation section of the army and was advanced to a Lieutenant. He is the Democratic nominee for representative of this district in the recent primary having received more votes in this county than anyone who ever ran for office with any opposition. He has attended the University the past two sessions where he completed a law course.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. K. Adams and grew to womanhood in Robert Lee. She was a member of the graduating class of 1922, and an accomplished musician and vocalist, and is one of our most splendid Christian young ladies.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for San Angelo, Paint Rock and other points. They will make their home at Austin.

Resolutions of Respect

Resolutions from Hayrick Chapter No 187 of the Order of the Eastern Star, in memory of Sister Beulah Adams.

Whereas God has been pleased to take from us and from this earthly suffering to a home where pain and sorrow are unknown, and where the weary find rest, our much beloved sister, be it therefore resolved: That in the death of Sister Adams the members of the lodge fully recognize that they have lost one of their members, who was at all times imbued with the pure principles of the order, and whose life and conduct exemplified true and loyal sisterhood in the O. E. S.

Resolved, That the sincere and heartfelt sympathies of the members of this lodge be and are hereby extended to the bereaved husband and relatives of our deceased sister whose loss we, with them deeply mourn.

Resolved, That as a token of our love and esteem for our deceased sister, the lodge room be draped in mourning and that the members wear the usual mourning badge during that time.

Resolved, That these resolutions be recorded on the memorial pages of the records of the lodge, and that the secretary deliver a copy thereof, properly engrossed to the husband of the deceased.
