I believe this $34,-628 34 can be made eligible for State aid, but it will have to be made eligible by a State wide move because the law does not apply to it as it now reads.

I wish to assure you that I am now working in cooperation with other interested parties over the State on such legislation, and I am hoping that we will get the desired results at the next regular term of the Legislature, or at least make a satisfactory start.

Below I quote a part of the law under which I made the application for the aid we received:

SYNOPSIS

James Lambert tries in vain to dissuade his beautiful foster-daughter, Leonora, from marrying Don Mason, young "rolling stone." He tells her, "Unless a house is founded upon a rock, it will not survive." Leonora suspects the influence of her half-brother. Ned, always jealous of the girl since the day his father brought her home from the deathbed of her mother, abandoned by her Italian baritone lover. Don arrives in the midst of the argument, and Lambert realizes the frank understanding between the two. Sitting up late into the James Lambert tries in vain to dissuade arrives in the midst of the argument, and Lambert realizes the frank understanding between the two. Sitting up late into the night, Lambert reviews the whole story, of Nora as a child, at boarding school, studying music abroad, meeting Don on the return trip. In the morning he delivers his ultimatum, to give Don a job with Ned for a year's showdown. When Nora suggests the possibility of running away with Don, Lambert threatens disinheritance. Don agrees to the job, but before a month is over, his nerves are jumpy, he cannot sleep at night, he is too tired to go out much with Nora. Nora soothes him with her music. Nora grows quieter, and broods over Don, complains to her father of Ned's spying on him, and decides that rather than see Don's spirit broken, she will run away. She urges her father to put an end to the futile experiment. James Lambert is obdurate and angry. Lambert tells her that if Don quits sie will quit with him; that he will be through with her. He adds that if she tires of her bargain it will be useless to come to him for help. Later Don and Nora discuss the situation. Don promises to buck up and take life more calmly. "We'll stick it out." he says. With the coming of spring, Don is full of unrest and wanderlust, and takes life more calmly. "We'll stick it out." he says. With the coming of spring. Ned, meanwhile, insinuates to his father about Don's evenings away from Nora, but Lambert refuses to listen. Meanwhile, Don broods over the undermining of while. Don broods over the undermining of

Don answered, a curious dryness in his throat: "Too hot to go out, not to mention eating."

"I'll say it is! We had ours sent in. But we're likely to get it hotter come July. Father says they're moving to the country on Monday. You can't work without food, Mason. Better skip out and get a bite.

His voice trailed off as he came nearer. Now, pausing beside the desk he lifted the newspaper and stared down a while, utterly unconscious of Don's tense attitude. With maddening accuracy his lean white finger found the elusive error.

"You've made a mistake there, Mason." He might have been correcting some small boy. "That six should have been a sixty. See?" He sauntered idly to the window, gazing down at the mass of sweltering humanity below while Don suppressed a murderous impulse to throw him out. But Ned had turned again—was speaking.

"See here, Don. There's some thing I feel I ought to say to you.'

The young man braced himself. "If it's about my work, I can save you the trouble," he replied brusquely. "I know I'm a dumbbell at this sort of thing-always will be. Suppose you keep those comments for a day when the mercury's somewhere below one hundred. There are limits, you know, to what even a cog in this machine can endure without exploding; and for your sister's sake I prefer to keep my temper."

Ned sat down slowly on the window ledge. He didn't speak for a moment, and regarding him closely Don wondered how many times that morning the man had changed his collar. The thought made him conscious of his own much wrinkled linen trousers, and he slid his long legs under the desk to hide them.

'You happen to be on the wrong track," Ned replied. "My comments have nothing whatever to do with your work here. You do as well as most beginners, I suppose. What I refer to is a different matter altogether. I've no desire to meddle with your private life, Mason. Get that straight. But Father tells me that Nora sends you home early; and twice I've caught you nodding by three o'clock. It stands to reason that a man who gets to bed before midnight, ought to be able to keep awake through the next day.

I can only surmise . . "Well?" Don prodded, ominous leave Nora.' "I see," said Don. He was desperately angry, but making a brave attempt to hold his temper. "May I ask where your active imagination sees me passing the night hours?" Don, for the first time that stifling day, though he answered calmly: "Sarcasm won't help, Mason, because as it happens, I've got the "Most certainly I do not! Make yourself clear, please."

"I'll be only too glad to." Ned spoke briskly, as if concluding some successful business deal. "I don't like beating about the bush myself; and you can't deny that you were with another girl late Friday evening, because I saw you."
"The hell you did!"

Don's eyes were blazing, while seven thousand imps seemed to be pounding the top of his head with tiny hammers. Where, he was asking himself frantically, had he been on Friday? Of course there was no girl; but he must produce an alibiand he couldn't seem to think. Nora's brother was accusing him of being untrue to her . . . It was beastly, horrible, and . . . Then he heard Ned say, a triumphant ring in his usually level voice: "You don't deny it? Then perhaps you'll admit what Corinne suspected at the time: You were giving her money?' To the man's complete surprise. instant relief sprang into Don's harrassed face. Money! That girl on the bridge, of course! The kid he had talked with! Those blinding headlights that had lingered on him So Ned Lambert and his wife had been behind them. Gosh! what a situation! Perhaps under the circumstances it wasn't so strangethe thing they'd thought about him. He said, almost laughing in relief: "Yes, I gave her money. She set me back a whole month's boardpoor kid! You see .

He told the story, eagerly, excitedly. He told it well. It had seemed a colorful experience-a bit out of the heart of life, to Don. He did not realize how it would seem to Ned, until at its close the man said dryly: "And you really expect to put that over on me, Mason?"

Don stared at him, amazement in his eyes.

"Put it over on you! Do-do you mean to imply . . Anger was surging through him, hot waves of anger. Never had Don felt anything just like them. He arose, slowly, his dazed head pounding. Did Nora's brother actually doubt his word? It was unthinkable-some bideous mistake He gripped a chair, his nervous fingers tense, as Ned, who had also risen, answered: "I imply nothing. I have no use for implications in such a matter. But for you to expect me to believe that any man in his senses sees a girl for the first time-the first time, mind you, and because she tells him a flimsy sob story, hands over his whole roll-well, it simply won't go down, young fellow. A yarn like that doesn't hold water. People don't meet by chance on bridges and confide their life histories to each other, not in this age. And decent girls don't accept money from complete strangers, anyhow. I hate to say this, Mason, but after all, Nora's my sister, and if you've been double-crossing herrunning around till morning with some cheap jane who isn't fit to-"

Ned Lambert never finished that sentence. Something as hard as it was unexpected came in contact with his jaw, and he went down. When, furiously, he regained his feet a moment later, a white-faced

Don exploded:

"Will you take that back?" "Damned if I will, you lazy-"

"Take care!" warned Don, "or you'll get the mate to it!" He reached for his hat—set it firmly upon his head. "Well, I'm through for." He moved toward the door, then turned, forcing himself to say: "Look here, Lambert. For Nora's sake I apologize for hitting you, though I'd probably do it again under the same provocation. But you'll do well to remember that I'm not a liar; and if you're unaware that your sister's the sort a fellow tle. For in those first ecstatic moments he had forgotten Nora.

Now, at thought of her, his own small triumph was completely lost in the knowledge that it would make things harder for her, make them, indeed, well nigh unbearable. What had he brought her anyway, he asked himself, save trouble and problems? Perhaps the kindest sides . . . thing that he could do was to obey her brother's furious command and go away.

Half dazed. Don went out into the mid-day sunlight which beat down pitilessly on his throbbing head. Yes, he would go away-leave Nora to the life of ease and luxury that should be her portion. But (his fighting spirit rising) damned if he'd go before she'd heard his version of this morning's trouble. And there was no time to lose. Already Ned and his father might be on their way to her. The girl said, after a moment in which something told her lover that she was fighting tears: "Is that what you want, Don? Are you soso weary of everything that I seem a burden?"

This was too much. Don simply couldn't bear it.

"Oh, Nora!" he said gently. 'Nora-my dear!"

It was the heartbreak in his voice that decided Leonora. She said, drawing a quick breath: "Listen Don. (It's all right, Central. I know we're talking over time.) Listen, dear. Have you had lunch yet?"

As for Nora, she hung up the receiver and sat quite still for a time, thinking. It seemed incredible that after all Don's patience and forbearance, this was the end! Another tragedy for her father. She arose at last, going up the wide staircase slowly, almost reluctantly. Somehow this home had never seemed so dear to her, nor so desirable. Passing her father's room she paused a moment, recalling the many times a little girl, waking to bad dreams, had scampered into his big bed for comfort. And now she must leave him-hurt him cruelly. Would he understand some day-forgive her?

Nora packed, slipped into the cool, dark dress that would be her wedding gown; forgot her father's picture (the one taken specially for her when she went to college); opened her suitcase and placed the photograph where it would not be broken. A queer, hard lump rose in her throat. It hurt her. She worked fast-fast, so that she would not weep; and when all was done, stood at the door a while, letting her eyes dwell lovingly on every detail of the room-her own first room. (TO BE CONTINUED)

"REFORM" BILL PASSED

Measure Giving President Vast Powers Squeezes Through Senate . . . May Die in House

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, is here seen telling members of the press what his committee had done and proposed to do to the revenue measure so that it would be less objectionable to business and to the country in general. It already had made radical changes in the bill as it was passed by the house.

Wide Powers for President

DRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S reorganization bill squeezed through the senate by the close vote of 49 to 42, after a fierce fight. A motion to recommit, which would have virtually killed the measure, was defeated by a vote of 48 to 43.

Opponents of this bill are convinced that it paves the way for a dictatorship in the United States.

The measure was sent on to the house, which already has passed bills covering some of its features. There is no certainty, however, that the senate measure will ever be brought to a vote in the house. Chairman O'Connor of the rules committee said it should be allowed to slumber peacefully in some pig-

The bill authorizes the President, by executive order, to transfer, regroup, co-ordinate, consolidate, segregate the whole or any part of or abolish any of the 135 bureaus, agencies, and divisions of government.

Excepted from this section, however, are the federal reserve board. the corps of engineers of the United States army and the independent, quasi-judicial and regulatory establishments, such as the board of tax appeals, the communications commission, the federal trade commission, the interstate commerce commission, and the national labor relations board.

It abolishes the civil service commission as now constituted, and the general accounting office. It creates a new "department of welfare," and it authorizes six more $10,000 a year assistants to the President.

Sen, H. "The administration's strategy has been to cover up TVA dirt by a phoney counter-attack," he said.

He was answered vigorously by Sen. Lister B. Hill of Alabama.

Utilities Must Register

IN A 6 to 1 decision, the United States Supreme court upheld the registration provisions of the Wheeler-Rayburn public utility act of 1935, but did not pass on the constitutionality of other parts of the law, including the death sentence for holding companies.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered the court's opinion. Justice McReynolds, who wrote no opinion, was the only dissenter. Justice Cardozo, who is ill, and Justice Reed took no part in the consideration of the case.

He was Wilson's personal representative in the Versailles peace conference. Later he and Wilson disagreed and their close association came to an end.

Franco in Catalonia

ENERAL FRANCO'S insurgent army blasted its way through the loyalist lines and entered the province of Catalonia, moving far toward Barcelona, the third capital of the government forces. In this rapid advance about 100 towns were captured in a single day and many villages were demolished by bombardment by a fleet of 200 war planes said to have been contributed by Italy and Germany.

Italy warned France that any French intervention in Spain "might compromise peace on the European continent." The organ of the Italian foreign office, Informazione Diplomatica, published the statement.

Silver Buying Halted

SECRETARY OF THE TREASthat the United States had discontinued the purchase of Mexican silver until further notice. This probably was a direct result of Mexico's expropriation of foreign oil properties, which Secretary of State Hull considers a hard blow to his "good neighbor" policies. Price of silver was cut 1 cent an ounce.

The United States Treasury has been buying 5,000,000 ounces of newly mined Mexican silver each month, paying around $2,500,000 for it at the artificially maintained New York price, which gave Mexico sizable profits.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Noted Food Authority

Relates the Miracle of VITAMINS and Explains Why YOU MUST EAT THEM or DIE

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

WE LIVE in the most inspiring age the world has ever known. Chemists grow plants without soil. Doctors snatch men from death with insulin. Surgeons perform incredibly delicate brain operations. And thanks to the amazing discoveries of nutritional scientists, children enter the world with far better chances for long and happy lives, while men and women of seventy are more active and useful than their grandparents were at fifty.

Much of the hard - won knowledge of how to eat so as to increase efficiency, curb deficient in any of the vitamins, disease, and improve the chances for longevity is due to the discovery of vitamins. die.

. . . VITAMINS DISCOVERED

Twenty-six years ago, a nowfamous scientist walked nervously around his laboratory, back and forth - back and forth. He was conducting a nutrition experiment of vast importance. He didn't quite know what he was going to find, but he beneved that he was revolutionary food discovery. The scientist was my friend, Casimir Funk, a brilliant Polish bio-chemist. He had been working on the problem for many years. At last, in the year 1912, his experiments were positive and conclusive. Then he announced to the scientific world that he had discovered a vital force. "This force," said Funk, "I have called vitamine, because it is necessary to life."

Thus, the word "vitamin" came into being, along with the first knowledge of these minute but powerful factors which exert such a tremendous influence on human health and happiness.

. . . SPARK PLUGS OF NUTRITION

Other bio-chemists throughout the world—including Sir Frederick Gowland Hopkins in England, and Hart, Humphrey, Babcock, Steen-States-had been working on the same problem that Funk had partially solved. They knew that the firstestep was to find out how vitamins affected the human body, and that the second step was to discover what foods contained these vital substances.

And so there began a long series of experiments in the laboratories of great universities all

These experiments are of the utmost significance to every homemaker, because the same thing happens to human beings as to experimental animals. Today our knowledge of vitamins has progressed to such a degree that it is possible to state the exact requirement for most of the vitamins and to designate the foods from which adequate quantities can be obtained.

Vitamin B promotes appetite, aids digestion, prevents a serious nerve disorder. It is essential to the maintenance of a good digestion, which is vitally important if bock and McCollum in the United the body is to obtain full benefit from the food consumed. This vitamin is closely related to the energy metabolism, and the requirement increases with the rate of growth and with increased energy expenditure, so that growing children and working men and women should receive very generous amounts.

Vitamin B is found in yeast, whole wheat cereals, oatmeal milk, fresh and dried peas and beans, spinach, cabbage and other greens, egg yolk and liver.

Vitamin C plays an important part in regulating body processes. and prevents the dread disease of scurvy. A lack of this essential vitamin results in profound changes in the structure of the teeth and gums, may be responsible for hemorrhages occurring anywhere in the body, and for the degeneration of muscle fibers generally.

Vitamin C is most abundant in succulent fresh green leaves, such as green cabbage. It is also found in onions, potatoes, oranges, tomatoes, green peppers, bananas and strawberries. In most foods, it is easily destroyed by heat-

VITAMIN D AND RICKETS

Vitamin D is sometimes called the sunshine vitamin because it can be manufactured in the body through the action of direct sunlight on the skin. This is the vitamin that is necessary for the proper utilization of calcium and phosphorus in building bones and teeth. When it is lacking in the diet of infants, there develops that horrible disease known as rickets, in which the bones become soft and twisted, resulting in pitiful deformities — knock knees, bow legs, pigeon breast.

In foods, vitamin D is only found in appreciable amounts in fish-liver oils and egg yolk. That is why every homemaker should be so grateful to the scientists who labored to discover how to concentrate this precious vitamin from fish-liver oils and add it to foods, or to increase the vitamin D content of foods through irradi-

ANTI-STERILITY VITAMIN E Vitamin E comes in for less discussion than the others, because its significance to nutrition has not been fully determined. It does, however, appear to be necessary for successful reproduction and is found especially in wheat germ and lettuce.

VITAMIN G PROLONGS YOUTH

Vitamin G is necessary for To date, six vitamins have been growth and for the maintenance years. It is essential to the health of the skin, and recent experiments demonstrate that cataracts in the eyes may be due to a deficiency of this vitamin, which is found in yeast, and in liver, kidneys, egg yolk, milk, cheese and green leafy vegetables.

and mineral deficiencies. Certainly enough has been learned of vitamin chemistry to make clear that the homemaker fails in her duty who does not provide vitamins in abundance for every member of her family. Both children and adults depend upon you for their food supply. It lies within your power to help them to health and happiness or condemn them to weakness, illness and sorrow. Do not fail them. See to it that every member of your household-your children, the wage earners, the middle aged and the elderly-get enough vitamins to afford them the health that science has placed within their grasp.

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — Leslie Hore-Be-lisha, British secretary of war, made himself somewhat of a national hero several months ago when he shook up youngsters and sent the oldsters back to their club chairs. The report of his ultimatum demanding a change of foreign policy is a standout in the current news.

There was something like consternation among British conservatives early in 1937, when Prime Minister Chamberlain named the incidentally Jewish Mr. Hore-Belisha for the war post. There was no hint of anti-Semitism in their attitude, but just then certain optimists among them were trying to tool Britain into the German orbit, and there were alarmed predictions that Hitler would be enraged and seek quick vengeance.

That didn't come off, and the new war secretary started a whirlwind army clean-up and all-around reconditioning campaign, to the satisfaction of all hands. Seventy-nine-year-old Sir Ian Hamilton, who had been in command at the Dardanelles, said, "Thank God we are under a proper soldier and will not be shot sitting down."

He has spent a lot of time badgering his elders, and still has many of them to work

Clever at Badgering His Elders on, as he is only forty-three. When, a brash young Oxonian, he ran for parliament, his opponent tagged him as "the nonentity of the college bench." He nailed this on his mast-head, spoofed the opposition cleverly, and romped in.

He was a dispatch carrier in the war, then a major, a reporter on a London newspaper, with convenient underground pipelines to the front page and the headlines.

He became financial secretary of the treasury in 1932 and later minister of transportation. He is a demon for detail and has swarmed all over England, inspecting equipment, barracks and army kitchens.

He is of medium stature, roundheaded, with roached, graying hair, unmarried and given to night forays, checking this or that detail of the military establishment. . . .

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

> "A Free Ride to Doom" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: I've seen a lot of articles lately, in newspapers and magazines, warning automobilists not to pick up strangers along the road. Well, sir, today I'm going to warn the strangers not to get too chummy with these doggone automobilists.

And I'm not more than half kidding about that, either, boys and girls. It's a poor rule that won't work both ways, and you can get in just as much of a jam picking up with some bird in a car as the bird in a car can by giving a lift to the guy with the wiggling thumb at the side of the road,

If you don't believe that, listen to the story of Ernest A. Kehr, of Richmond Hill, N. Y. Ernie took a ride one time, back in the summer of 1934, with a bird he'd never seen before-and that ride came darned close to being the last one Ernie ever took.

Picked Up by a Strange Motorist.

Ernie had been up in Calgary riding wild horses in the rodeo and was on his way home. He had hiked through Glacier National park and he was pretty tired, but he was pushing on as fast as he could because he had arranged to meet a friend at a small town in Montana and he didn't want to keep him waiting.

Valier was the name of the town and Ernie was within 15 miles of it when a man came along driving a brand-new car. The man pulled up beside Ernie and asked him if he wanted a ride. It didn't take much figuring on Ernie's part to decide that this was an easier mode of travel than the "Shanks mare" system he had been following. He climbed into the seat by the driver and they were off.

But Ernie had no more got into that buzz buggy than he began to have his doubts. There was something queer about the driver. He had seemed cordial enough when he had offered Ernie the ride, but there his good will seemed to have ended. When Ernie passed a casual remark, the fellow ignored it. He kept his eye on the road and the car seemed to be moving faster and faster with every foot they went.

They had gone quite a distance before Ernie discovered what, the trouble was. His companion was well under the influence of liquor.

Fast Driving on a Dangerous Road.

That didn't look so good to Ernie. The fellow was driving faster than was safe, even with a sober man at the wheel. By this time he was hitting fifty on a road where a sane driver would not have gone more than thirty-a long, steep downgrade that ran along a sloping mountain ridge. The ground fell away on one side of them into a deep mountain gully and on the other side it rose straight up-a wall cut out of solid rock by the graders who had leveled the roadbed.

The small car bounced about perilously on the rough, uneven road, but that didn't seem to bother the man at the wheel. Instead of slowing down he fed the machine more gas. The needle of the speedometer climbed to sixty-then to seventy. Ernie began to get nervous about that time. The car was roaring along now at a speed that almost upset it every time it came to a curve. It bounced about the surface of the road in a thoroughly alarming man-Ernie kept his eye glued on the driver, watching his every move and ready to grasp the wheel in the event that he should lose control of the car. It seemed nothing short of a miracle to Ernie that it hadn't gone off the road or smacked into something long before.

Plunged Right Off the Mountain Side.

They had gone skidding around a curve on two wheels and had just come to a long, straight stretch. The road ahead looked smooth and in good condition, and for the first time during the ride Ernie felt comparatively safe. He drew in a deep breath and heaved a sigh of relief-let his eyes wander over the landscape for a second. And then it happened.

Says Ernie: "I had no sooner taken my eyes from the man than I saw the car leave the hard road and go off onto a soft shoulder. At the speed we were making, that shoulder was fatal. The sudden change of surface swerved the wheels of the car and over the side of the mountain we went, the car turning over in the air as it left the ground. The earth seemed to spin about in a dizzy circle for a few seconds and then we crashed to the slope at the bottom of a sheer drop of 40 feet.

"We hit the slope with a crash-so hard that the motor of the car was knocked right off the chassis and buried itself in the ground where we struck. But the rest of the car, with both of us in it, continued to roll down the slope at a terrific speed. It rolled over six or eight times and finally crashed into a rock with such force that I went sailing 50 feet through the air. After that I lost consciousness.'

A 40-foot drop, six turns in a tumbling car and a 50-foot sail through the air! The driver was dead when they found him, and Erniewell-he got a bump on the head, three busted teeth-and that's all. And he's still wondering if he's really as tough as those figures would seem to indicate.

A VOID the common mistake of letting vegetables grow too long before picking. Younger vegetables are more tender, more nourishing, and more palatable. Root crops-radish, carrot, beet-are at their best when hardly half grown.

Pick peas just before pods fill out completely. Pick corn just at the "milk" stage, that is, when the kernel, gouged with the finger nail, yields a milky juice. Use summer squash when small, soon after the blossom has dropped off.

Other vegetables, of course, should be allowed to mature more completely before using. Tomatoes should be ripened well on the vine as should winter squash. Cantaloupe are at their best when they need not be pulled from the stem, but roll off the vine at a touch.

There are, of course, exceptions to these rules. For instance, some may wish to use green tomatoes for special dishes or for canning; or they may wish to allow beans to grow to the dry stage.

What Is the Cause of "Spider-Web Check"?

If not properly "fed" with a good oil polish, furniture in time develops what is known as "spider-web check!" This appears on the finish, like wrinkles on the human face-fine lines, spreading here and there in a spider-web pattern. This crazing, this light cracking, is known in furniture language as "checking" and "spider-web checking" better describes the condition. This is the danger-signal, on finish! It's the indication of "starving" wood! A warning to the housewife, that if the finish is not cared for immediately and properly, the furniture will develop cracks, ridges and splits. "Spider-web check" is generally the result of either one of these two vouses: Polish-neglect -or the use of a poor, cheap polish-without the essential fine, light-oil base. When the furniture is periodically "massaged" with a reputable oil polish (the best is non-greasy), the pores of the wood are "fed" and the piece is preserved. Then "spider-web check" will not appear! The use of a quality oil polish is the best preventive formula for this ugly, detrimental check!

YLVIA SIDNEY has just finished a picture called "You and Me," with George Raft, for Paramount, but she's not much interested in it-that is, not so much as she is in several other things.

The house she has just bought in New Jersey, near Flemington, for instance. It's very old, and she is having the usual trouble with remodeling, which never goes fast enough. But she's also having adventures with it.

For instance, some 12 coats of paint had been put on the dining room, during all the years-and when they were removed beautiful old pine paneling was discovered beneath.

Furthermore, the land is good farming land, one hundred and sixteen acres of it; grows good crops of wheat, oats and alfalfa.

Remember the fuss when John Charles Thomas refused to broadcast if he couldn't finish with "Good night, Mother"? Well, that same kind of trouble bobbed up on the Fibber McGee and Molly program, and the rules of the broadcasting company were broken.

Fibber was ending with "Good night, Molly," and was told he couldn't do it any more. But-"Molly" is the name of a character in the show, explained the sponsors, so it might logically belong there. In real life, "Molly" is the wife of Jim Jordan, the man who plays "Fibber McGee," and is just recovering from a long illness.

When the Radio City Music hall in New York holds a picture for a second week you may be pretty certain that the picture's a success, and one that you'll want to see. "Jezebel" made the grade recently.

YOU can eat the fuzzy cat-tail you have seen so often in marshy places. The Iroquois Indians used the root of the cat-tail plant to make flour. The root is starchy and the Indians dried it and made a flour that is similar to flour made from corn or rice. Cat-tail flour was one of the substitutes the Germans learned to use during the World war. The American Indians also used the root to make syrup. It is the tender shoots of the plant that Cossacks enjoy and it is this part of the plant that is sometimes served in England under the name Cossack asparagus

The fibrous leaves of the cattail plant have often been used to male mats and chair seats. The flower is converted into a substitute for cotton or silk and is made into a filling for upholstery. In this form the flower was used as a lressing for wounds in the World war. The ancient people of India aried the cat-tails and used them as torches. In some places where palm leaves are not easily obtained the cat-tail leaves are used on Palm Sunday instead of palms.

The leaves of the cat-tail are grasslike, growing in double rows on the reed stalk and the flower of the plant is the tail which grows at the top of the stalk. The tail is not a single flower but is made up of thousands of little flowers. The familiar fuzzy surface is due to fine down which grows on each
