After his discharge from the Army, he came to Brownwood, where he has since lived.

He served two years as City Attorney of Brownwood and six years as County Judge of Brown County. ## R. H. Reaves, of Coke County for Rep- resentative 92nd District

In announcing myself as a candidate for the important office of representative of the 92nd District, composed of Coke, Runnels and Concho Counties, I realize the responsibility of this important branch of our State Government.

I have been a resident of Texas since a small boy; have lived in this part of the state for the past 33 years; and have been for 16 years a resident of Coke County.

By training and experience, I feel capable of performing the duties of this office. Most of my life has been spent in public business. First, school teaching for a time, then in the mercantile business for several years, and at present farming.

Space will not permit a long drawn out platform and I prefer making fewer promises and giving more real service if elected.

I believe in carrying out the wishes of the voters of our great state for payment of old-age pensions to the needy aged people without making them feel like they are taking the pauper's oath. There is at present a great number of high priced administrators paid first out of this fund, the remainder going to the old people. I believe by administering the pension fund through some existing state department we can save hundreds of thousand for the aged.

Machinery and other conditions have forced many of our people out of employment and they must be helped, but I am opposed to the wasteful cost of getting this help where it belongs.

More than ever before the paramount question with our state and nation today is tax problem. The best thinkers of our land are at a loss as to where and how the burden, if it be a burden, should be placed.

Most of our citizens are glad to pay a reasonable tax for our protection, but excess taxes have caused nations trouble. I am no pessimist but I do believe that it is high time that the good people of our state choose well the ones to represent them in raising and appropriating the millions that it now takes to carry on our state government.

I want to make this race on my own qualifications, and I earnestly ask the people of this the 92nd District, who do not know me, to make a real investigation as to my qualifications and honesty, and pass your finding, whatever it may be, on to your neighbors.

It will be impossible for me to see every voter, therefore I ask that you take this as a personal request for your vote and influence.

I would like to base my campaign and tenure in office, if elected, on the following as a slogan:

Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report. If there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, Think on these things.

H. G. Hamrick For Representative

H. G. Hamrick, sup't. of school at Wingate, announces for Representative. Mr. Hamrick will, as the campaign gets under way, discuss his platform thoroughly. Briefly stated and among the things he will advocate are:

I am convinced that the cost of government can be reduced materially without impairing government efficiency. I pledge my support to rigid economy in government cost.

I favor modification of our chain store tax law so that independent home merchants will be exempt.

I favor a program, through proper state legislation, to make effective the provisions of the Federal Conservation Act, in order that a continuous service may be available to each and every farmer and ranchman.

Our public school system is deserving of liberal support. Every boy and girl should have an equal opportunity to, at least, a high school education. The equality should be attained by raising standards of the lower class schools and not by a leveling down process. I favor an increase in transportation and rural state aid, and a $25.00 per capita school appointment.

I favor not only liberalizing our pension law and paying the aged people a higher pension, but I favor changing the administration of the law and let the County Judge and Commissioners Court handle the applications

Honored With Surprise Party

Miss Beatrice Wojtek was honored at a surprise party given by Miss Geneva Martin at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Thomson, Saturday night. A large crowd from here and the Graham Valley and Sanco communities attended and entertainment was furnished by the usual bunch of amateur musicians.

Miss Wojtek will leave soon to enter business college in San Angelo.

Quite a large number attended the singing of old-time songs at the Baptist church here Sunday afternoon. It was quite typical of old times to hear Mr. K. Y. Roberts lead songs, singing the notes first and then the words. Mr. Roberts led several songs without the aid of a book and he knew them perfectly.

The singing was hampered considerably by lack of books and practice. The group is planning for the purchase of some books and a regular meeting on each Fifth Sunday.

EUROPEAN WAR AVERTED

Britain, France and Russia Would Not Stand for German Aggression Against the Czechs

Here is an armored car detachment of Czechoslovakia's up-to-date army which was sent to the frontier to meet the threats of aggression by Fuehrer Hitler's troops that were massed on their side of the border.

On the Verge of Hostilities

GERMAN and Czech troops by the thousands were massed on the frontier between the two countries. President Benes of Czechoslovakia and his cabinet decided to call 70,000 reserves to the colors. Poland assembled armed forces close to the Slovakia border. Hungary was reported to be taking "certain military measures." France was ready to defend her ally, Czechoslovakia, against Nazi aggression, and there was assurance that Great Britain and Russia would come to the aid of France if she were attacked without provocation. No wonder the governments of Europe were desperately worried by such a critical condition.

Hitler must have realized that the time was not ripe for aggressive action against the Czechs, for German authorities in Berlin solemnly assured Dr. Vojtech Mastny, Czech minister to Berlin, and the Czech military attache that Germany planned no military expedition against Czechoslovakia. This eased the situation somewhat, but the British cabinet continued to urge Benes and his government to make all possible concessions to Hitler concerning the demands of the Sudeten German minority. It was believed the Fuehrer would ultimately get about everything he wants from the Czechs without a fight. Both France and Britain were bringing strong pressure to bear on Berlin, and the British especially were determined to avert general war if it could be done.

Henlein's German party in the Sudeten districts of Czechoslovakia was winning victories in municipal elections, and this made the Nazis quite cocky in their attitude. They refused to negotiate with the government until their safety had been guaranteed.

Southerners Are Sore

KNOWING they were fighting a losing battle, Southern representatives bitterly contested the progress of the wage-hour bill through the house. The test vote on discharge of the rules committee was 322 to 73. In the debate that followed Northern Democrats and most of the Republicans indicated their approval of the measure. The South opposed it mainly because it contains no differentials in favor of that section.

Two Taxation Decisions

IN TWO far-reaching decisions the United States Supreme court further narrowed the field of reciprocal intergovernmental tax immunity. The rulings continued the trend in the direction of President Roosevelt's theory that the federal and state governments can tax the salaries of each other's employees and the income of each other's securities without a constitutional amendment.

In a decision delivered by Justice Stone, the court upheld levying of federal income taxes on employees of the Port of New York authority. In a decision delivered by Justice Roberts, the court upheld federal admission taxes on tickets to football games conducted by the university system of Georgia.

Martin Loses in Oregon

GOV. CHARLES H. MARTIN of Oregon, the veteran soldier who has been fighting against the C. I. O. and other radicals, was beaten for renomination in the Democratic primary by Henry Hess who had the backing of labor unions and of Secretary of the Interior Ickes. Charles A. Sprague was nominated for governor by the Republicans and they believe they have a good chance to win in the fall elections, for the Democrats, there as in Pennsylvania, were badly split.

Italy Warns France

ITALY intimated it would keep out of the Nazi-Czech quarrel, but Mussolini broke off the friendship talks with France and warned that continued French acquiescence in the shipment of arms to government Spain would not be tolerated. The Duce declared that unless France ceases aiding transmission of Soviet and Czech arms to Barcelona, Italy and Germany may be forced to increase their assistance to the insurgents. This naturally would endanger the new Anglo-Italian agreement.

Must Re-Hire Sit Strikers

THE National Labor Relations board ordered the Kuehne Manufacturing company, Flora, Ill., to reinstate with back pay 164 American Federation of Labor sit-down strikers.

It was the NLRB's third major sit-down decision, but the first involving an A. F. of L. union.

"Doom-Sealers," Says Farley

POSTMASTER GENERAL FARLEY attacked the critics of the administration's spending - lending program in an address to the Commonwealth club of Chicago.

"The doom-sealers," he said, "are again sending forth their mournful prophecies of evil because of government acts performed or suggested."

"Stocks are down a bit. There is a recurrence of vast unemployment. Certain taxes bear heavily on people or corporations with plethoric purses. So the same element that has held every national emergency as a precursor of doom is out again in full cry."

"The republic," he said, "is in no danger. It never has been in danger since the present administration checked the downward spiral of the big depression and started us again on the upward path."

Too Late for Wheat Quotas

SECRETARY WALLACE said that under the new crop control law it is too late to invoke marketing quotas on this year's indicated bumper wheat crop. He explained that the law authorized quotas this year only in the event congress appropriated funds by May 15 for "parity payments" provided in the new legislation.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Place of Fats in the Diet

Nationally Known Food Authority Compares the Different Cooking Fats and Shortenings

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th St., New York City.

THERE are, perhaps, more false notions concerning fats than any other class of foods.

Some homemakers, considering them as "fattening" only, try to eliminate them entirely from the diet. Others have the impression that foods containing fat are difficult to digest, and for this reason deprive their families of many delicious and healthful foods. Both points of view arise from ignorance of dietary facts.

Fats Are Necessary to Health

Fats have a number of important functions to perform. They are a concentrated fuel food, having more than twice the energy value of an equal weight of protein or carbohydrate.

One-half ounce of fat, that is one tablespoon, yields 100 calories, and were he able to eat it, a man could obtain an entire day's fuel from three-fourths of a pound of fat. It is interesting to note that it would require nearly eight pounds of cooked rice to give the same number of calories.

In Oriental countries, where large populations live in great poverty, fat is usually scarce and it is necessary to consume huge quantities of food in order to meet the daily fuel requirements. As a result, most of the people develop distended abdomens.

Children Must Have Fat

Because fat is such a compact food, nutritionists agree that for growing boys and girls, and men engaged in strenuous physical exercise, fat is almost essential, if they are to get enough total calories.

There is also experimental evidence that at least a small amount of one or more of the unsaturated fatty acids must be supplied by the food if normal nutrition is to be maintained. And two competent investigators found, experimentally, that the presence of fat in the diet tends to conserve vitamin B in the body.

Some fats, especially those from animal sources, are rich in vitamins A and D, and fats made from vegetable oils may contain vitamin E.

Fat and Hunger

Perhaps the greatest service performed by fat is its ability to give "staying power" to the diet—to satisfy hunger. In this respect, it directly affects the disposition and may influence the ability to enjoy life.

The shortage of fats in European countries during the World war graphically demonstrated how a deficiency of this class of foods can destroy the morale of entire nations.

With supplies cut off or very greatly curtailed, the warring countries found it necessary to ration fats closely. As a result, their people were always hungry and dissatisfied, even when their actual needs were satisfied. In this connection, it is interesting to note that a slice of bread and butter or margarine will delay the onset of hunger longer than a slice of bread and jam, even though the number of calories may be the same.

Different Fats Compared

As sources of energy, the different food fats are very similar. Thus, the homemaker's choice may be determined by preference, convenience, economy, and the use to which the product is to be put.

The various forms of edible fats and oils are derived from both animal and vegetable sources. They include butter, margarine, lard, compounds, which are a mixture of animal fats and vegetable oils, hydrogenated fats, and the liquid vegetable oils.

Butter and margarine are used chiefly as a spread, and it is interesting to note that the annual per capita consumption of margarine is steadily increasing, as homemakers have discovered that the use of this less expensive product releases more money for milk, fruits and vegetables. Margarine is interchangeable with butter for dressing vegetables and in doughs containing spices, fruits and chocolate. Its shortening power and keeping qualities are similar to those of butter.

Lards, compounds and other shortening fats are useful not only as a means of increasing palatability and food value, but to add flakiness to baked foods and to produce a crisp coating which seals in the minerals and vitamins of fried foods.

Lard is used chiefly as a shortening for pastry, and a good grade will be found to be white and free from objectionable odors. The highest grade, called leaf lard, is produced from the leaves of fat in the sides of the hog.

When made by a reputable manufacturer, the compounds prepared especially for cake making, for shortening pastry and for deep-frying, are wholesome, highly nutritious and give most satisfactory results. They are a most economical form of shortening.

Digestibility of Fats

Because of their ability to retard digestion somewhat and thus give satiety value to a meal, the impression has grown up that fats are "difficult" to digest. This results from confusing the length of time required for digestion and the completeness with which a food is digested.

When "digestibility" is regarded in the popular sense of the ease, comfort and speed with which the digestive organs carry on their work, it is conceded that fats in general retard the secretion of the gastric juice and thus cause food to remain longer in the stomach.

On the other hand, most fats have such a high coefficient of digestibility, that under normal conditions only about one-twentieth of the fat eaten escapes digestion. Experiments indicate, for example, that the coefficient of digestibility of oleomargarine is 97.55 per cent.

It is sometimes erroneously stated that pastry is indigestible. This statement is without foundation, provided the pastry is made from a high grade shortening and is properly baked. Similarly, fried foods come in for a great deal of criticism that should not be charged to the use of fat, but to incorrect methods of cooking. If food is properly cooked in fat that has a high smoking point, there will be no opportunity for decomposition products to develop.

How Much Fat?

Nutritionists have ample evidence that health is best served when 30 to 35 per cent of the total energy value foods is provided in the form of fat. This will include the fat of meat and the fat used in cooking the many delicious fried and baked foods which make eating a pleasure.

His mother stooped to caress the soft, fair hair; and Don said gently: "I stand rebuked, Nora. Now I'll be reasonable. What's your idea?"

"This," she told him. "Let's buy that barn, Don, and by degrees (as we have the money), make it into a home. To quote old Tom Littlefield, the carpenter at the Port. It was built at a time when folks built honest. It was built to stand. I'll admit that it's not beautiful. The cupola with its ridiculous colored windows is an eye-sore, of course; but it can be taken down."

"You mean that darling little house on top of the old barn, Mummy?" Young Donald spoke quickly, in alarm. "I love that cunning little house, Mummy. Daddy and me climbed up there once, didn't we, Daddy? We saw the lighthouse way, way out to sea; and a big steamer! Everything looked so kind of cheerful. Daddy 'splained it was because the windows are such pretty colors. Daddy liked it too, Mummy. Don't you let anybody take it down!"

Said Don, who had the wisdom never to laugh when his small son was serious: "The cupola remains. It can be our watch tower. What, my darling," he asked of Leonora, "is a man's castle without its watch tower?"

For the first time in fifteen minutes Nora drew a breath of sheer relief. Don was won! His imagination had started working, and once that got going there was no stopping him. For six years she had been an uncomplaining nomad. Life, despite its ups and downs, its sometimes terrifying hardships, had been rich, and colorful, and adventurous; but there were times when, woman-like, she had dreamed of possessing a real home, even though she knew (being Don Mason's wife) that they would occupy it only periodically.

And her dream was to come true! Nora laughed, a laugh so joyous and unguarded that Don realized for the first time, perhaps, how courageously his wife had relinquished her own dreams that his might be fulfilled. The knowledge brought him a sense of his own unworthiness. He said, voice husky: "I'm a moron, Nora—a dumbbell—a complete washout. I hadn't an idea that you were missing—anything. With me, you know, home is simply 'where the heart is.' I ought to have understood that a woman feels differently—needs some place to call her own. Why didn't you tell me? I'm only a blundering man, darling, but I love you and I haven't meant to be self-centered. Of course we'll buy that barn if it's what you want and there's sufficient cash on hand to pay for it! Come on, kiddies! Let's take a look at our future home. Your mamma is more than a wonder, Jimsy. She's something that's utterly impossible to describe, and we don't deserve her. Watch out, Nora! Here's the big wave you prophesied a while ago!"

Don's warning came too late. There was a rush—a scramble—a wall of anguish from James Lambert Mason. Safe on the dunes the baby pointed seaward to where his craft, red shoe: a tiny, fearless small amid the breakers, was setting sail across the broad Atlantic.

CHAPTER XI

It was early summer when they bought the stable with its surrounding savin-covered pastures, its stretch of dunes and beach. Don, a smile of understanding in his eyes, presented the deed to Nora with such a flourish that the white-haired notary who witnessed the signatures, inquired if she were planning to "make a palace of that old barn?"

"I've seen her do things even more incredible," laughed Don; while Nora, her face lighting at the old man's words, responded: "It will be a palace to me, anyway—my shining palace. That's what we'll call it, thanks to your inspiration, Mr. Moore. If ever you're tempted to read the modern poets, look up Millay and perhaps you'll understand."

To her surprise the notary quoted without hesitation: "Come and see my shining palace built upon the sand? Well, this future home of yours is surely built upon the sand; and I have no doubt you'll make it shine surpassingly. Yes, I love the poets. Mrs. Mason, though as a rule my taste in poetry is as old-fashioned as I am myself. But I've heard Miss Millay read her own verses, and that makes a difference. Let me know when the latch string is out and I'll pay my respects to the Royal Family!"

"We'll bid you to dine some evening in the banquet hall!" smiled Nora as they turned away.

"And who," said Don, when they stood in the sunlight outside the hideous frame building which housed the notary's small office, "who would suspect that aged patriarch of reading the moderns?"

"I would," retorted Leonora. "He's no moss-back, Don. He's a perfect example of what they used to call a scholar and a gentleman. But he'll never know how superbly that quotation fits our case. Father told me once, back in the days when he was fighting the thought of our marriage, that to survive, a house must be built upon a rock."

"Safe upon the solid rock the ugly houses stand;
Come and see my shining palace built upon the sand!"

"Don't you see what I mean?" "I see that you don't regard me as possessing the comfortable stability of a rock, my dear!"

"You possess it in the essentials," replied Nora soberly, "which is all that matters; and you've got the lovely changing quality of the sand, as well. When I was a small girl Dad took me to the sea one summer. I used to sit four hours on the beach, Don, and with a wee tin shovel lift off layer after layer of damp sand; and every layer was different from the one before—like beautiful fabrics woven in varying patterns. It used to fascinate me because I never knew what the next layer would be; and it's the same with you, dear. Just as I'm sure I know you inside out, up springs some quality I hadn't dreamed of! Who wants an ugly house to live in year after year, Don, if one can have a palace for—enriched intervals?"

"I wish you wouldn't say such things on a public street, Nora," complained her husband. "It might shock these repressed, un-democratic natives of the state of Maine to see a man embrace his wife under a telephone pole! Come on now, let's beard the village carpenter in his den. There's no time to spare if we're to see the beginnings of this home you've set your heart on before we sail for Naples on November tenth."

"Oh, let's not think about November tenth!" Don felt a pang at the protest in Nora's voice. "I want to forget such things as boats and railroads and suitcases for a little while. We've got four months before we have to leave, Don. We can do a lot. And it won't be so hard to go away if our home's in order (or even disorder!), waiting to welcome us again next spring."

Don said, as they turned down a side street: "Would you rather not go to Italy this year, Nora?"

"We must," she answered. "I promised Constance. Their villa seems so big and lonely without Ven. And it's such a wonderful chance for you, Don. You can fare forth gathering material to write about, and know that the boys and I are safe and comfortable. Of course we'll go; but it will be so wonderful to know we are coming back! And when Father finds we're really living somewhere—somehow civilized, I mean (you know his feeling about Europe!), he may come to see us. I—I am sure he will."

Tom Littlefield, a weatherbeaten but vigorous man of sixty-odd, was in his shop; a neat white building at the rear of his comfortable dwelling house. "He makes me think of a tree at timberline," Don said later. "The sort I've seen in the Colorado Rockies, gnarled by the wind, you know, but strong and sturdy."

The man's face brightened at sight of Leonora. It brightened still more when she disclosed their plans. Don, content to stand aside and watch them, saw at a glance that they understood each other, this strangely assorted pair. "I see," the carpenter kept saying. "I see." And when she had finished: "What I'd advise, Mis' Mason, is to measure up the place and make a sketch of where you want partitions. I'll run you down in the Ford right now, and we'll look it over. And I'll be on hand at seven sharp tomorrow mornin' ready to begin."

"I'm not a union man, though I've nothin' at all against those that is. But I've been my own master too long now to be willin' to take orders. If I want to quit at noon and go fishin' off the point, I quit. If I feel like workin' till seven at night to finish somethin' I set out to do, I work. And I work honest. No one ever complained of a house built by Tom Littlefield. Let's go."

Then, and then only did Don speak. He said, with discretion learned of marriage: "But we'll have to know something about the cost, Mr. Littlefield. This wife of mine has a prejudice against running bills."

The carpenter raised a rugged, protesting hand.

"That'll be all right. You're honest folks, and I'm not worryin' about my pay. This little lady has got to be made comfortable. When the job's done, pay what you can, and the balance whenever it comes handy. I been doin' business that way for forty years (so long's I knew the folks I dealt with), and I never lost a copper. Now let's not waste any more time."

It was Leonora who suggested moving in.

Nor did they! It was astonishing how fast the work progressed. For as wholeheartedly as he had ever embarked on an adventure, Don threw himself into the making of Nora's home. Day by day, early and late, he worked beside the carpenter. Nora worked too, at any task she could lay hands on. Even small Donald carried out rubbish with solemn pride in the thought that he was "helping build our house."

Sometimes the old carpenter would disagree with Nora. The size of the living room disturbed him. "It's too big," he protested. "It won't be snug and cozy like a sittin' room should be. It's big as a ball room!"

"It is a ball room," retorted Nora, "and as for its being cozy—you wait and see! A baby-grand piano takes up space, you know; and—Oh, don't fuss any more," she pleaded. "I want it big. I've lived in band-boxes for six years."

"Well," sighed the old builder with a dubious shake of his gray head, "it's your house; but remember I warned you."

Don would pause in his hammering when these discussions raged. Sometimes he'd say over his shoulder: "Oh, let her alone, Mr. Littlefield. She's on the war path!" And the grizzled product of the "wild New England shore" would wink solemnly, pick up his tools, and continue to do exactly as Nora said.

They concentrated on the living room at first; and when the partitions were in place and the wide casement windows finished, it was Leonora who tacked builders' paper to the walls of one end, while a mason from the Port constructed a chimney at the other; and Don and Tom Littlefield moved their work bench into one of the box stalls that was destined to become a kitchenette.

"And what I don't understand," grumbled the old man good-naturedly, "is why anyone in their senses should want a sittin' room big enough to accommodate a trolley line, and a kitchen so small you can't eat breakfast there cold mornin's. Tain't sensible, if you ask me."

"But I didn't ask you," retorted

Nora while he grinned at her impudence. "It's not suitable for a Royal Family to eat in the kitchen, Mr. Littlefield; and besides, those next two stalls are to be the banquet hall."

"What do you think this old barn is?" he questioned sternly. "Wind-sor Castle? The Royal Family! Whoever heard o' such a thing?" But he kept right on obeying orders; and one day astonished Nora by inquiring where "the royal bed-chamber" was to be—upstairs or down?

Overhearing the question, Don collapsed with mirth. A royal bed-chamber seemed so foreign to this sturdy old builder with the New England twang in his voice, and the New England sense of humor (so often mistaken for something quite the opposite) lurking in the depths of his blue eyes.

The weeks passed rapidly. Mid-August was there before they knew it; but Tom Littlefield continued to arrive at seven o'clock, and not once had he been tempted to "quit at noon."

Don arose early in those days, tipped about the shack getting a light breakfast, and sometimes left before Nora was awake. Later she followed with the children and a picnic lunch; the baby took his nap in an old packing box, oblivious to the sound of hammer and saw; while small Donald sat on a nail keg and handed things to his father as requested, forgetting in this absorbing interest that he'd intended tunneling to Italy that season.

It was Leonora who suggested moving in. "It'll save the long walk night and morning, Don. It'll save time; and it can't be much more inconvenient than the shack is now. The living room—" ("Ball room," corrected the builder dryly) "is entirely finished. The fireplace burns like a breeze; and there's a sink in the kitchen even if there's no water running into it."

"And speaking of water," observed Don, "the report on this well water is O. K., Nora. It came this morning. Why shouldn't we move?"

Thus there came a day when with the aid of two Portland movers (hailed by Jim Perkins as they passed through town), Nora's beautiful piano stood on the spot planned for it; and Don said: "Christen the ballroom, Nora. Play something appropriate. 'On with the dance, let joy be unconfined.'"

So, seated upon an upturned box, Nora played; and looking up at the haunting strains of "The Beautiful Blue Danube" died away, beheld the entire working force, apparently hypnotized.

Old Tom Littlefield stood in the doorway staring straight ahead through a window that faced the sea. One of the Portland movers (perched on a barrel) appeared to have gone into a sort of trance; while the other was wiping suspicious moisture from his eyes, and Jim Perkins stood before the fireplace, arms folded, head sunk forward, lost to the world.

Don, as the music ceased, didn't look up at all. His wife suspected that he was in the same plight as the second Portland man. Even the children remained quiet; and at last the mover seated on a barrel said: "I remember that tune. Seems as if my wife must ha' played it when we was goin' together."

"That's queer," the other man observed, shamefacedly thrusting his handkerchief into a pocket, "but darned if I wasn't thinkin' that very thing! Kind o'—kind o' brings things back, don't it?"

The carpenter's blue eyes twinkled at this confession.

"It sure does," he admitted. "I donno as I ever heard that piece before, but it did somethin' to me. If you want the truth, Mis' Mason, I wa'n't here at all. I was 'seem' Nelly home' after a church supper forty years back. You better lock up that piano and keep it locked if you want this downstairs finished by November first."

Ancient Hygiene

While methods of disease transmission are discoveries of recent years, the Mosaic laws made provision against transmission that are similar to our own, but go a long, long way further. A person who touched an unclean animal or thing caught the uncleanness and had to wash himself and his clothing in running water, sometimes the cleansing lasting for many days.

Desired to Know Who Thrust Honor Upon Him

At a prominent watering place a large crowd gathered on the pier gazing out to the swirling waters. A man was struggling for his life, shouting for help.

Suddenly, amid the cheers of the spectators, a young man dived fully dressed into the sea and brought off a gallant rescue.

The rescuer received the congratulations of everybody who witnessed the deed, and the suggestion that the hero should be honored was received with cheers.

"Oh, well," said the young man, "it's O. K. by me—but what I want to know is, who pushed me off the pier?"

Some time ago a high school class in a farming community was asked to write essays on various farming problems. One boy wrote, in part: "Two things are necessary to help dairymen. First, farmers need better organization; second, farmers, need more education about marketing problems.

That is as true as it is simple--and it applies to all other branches of agriculture. Farmers who scientifically develop and serve markets, and who are represented by well-financed, efficiently managed and loyally supported marketing organizations are, in the long run, prosperous and progressive farmers. They will face fewer periods of crisis than other, disorganized farmers--and in good times and bad they will earn a better livelihood. Marketing corporation simply means putting agriculture on a business basis, which eliminates hit-and-miss methods, and so far as possible guarantees that the producer will have a profitable market for what he raises.

And if we just had the 10 commandments to go by, and nothing else, it would be great. And to study law, you would just read Deuteronomy. And partner, you don't need a lawyer to explain it, like with 3 A, where even a Philadelphia lawyer cannot figure it out.

The two range inspectors for Coke County began their work last week, and to date have inspected approximately 50,000 acres of range land that was not in the program last year. Complete inspections will be made only on new applications. If a ranch was inspected last year it will not be inspected again the year. Only the practices will be approved.

Due to a misunderstanding in regard to signing range applications many producers who wish to place their ranches in the program failed to sign up. It will be necessary for every producer to sign a range card and designate the practice he wishes to carry out this year. Those producers who wish to construct tanks or dig wells must notify the County Agent's office at once. All producers who have not signed cards for 1938 should do so immediately.

This year's range program is very similar to the 1937 program. The amount of payment to be earned is determined by the number of animal units the ranch will carry and the number of acres of range land.

The practices are: 1. Reseeding of range land by deferred grazing. This practice earns 60 percent of the allowed earning, provided as much as 25 percent of the range land is deferred; if less than 25 percent is deferred it will earn some proportion of the payment. This practice was to be started May 1st, 1938 and run for 150 days thereafter. Any producer who is carrying out this practice and has not done so should call at the county agent's office and make affidavit stating that he is carrying out this practice.

2. Artificial reseeding. In this practice the producer will receive 20 cents per pound, not more than $2.00 per acre for reseeding depleted range land with seed of adopted varieties of range grasses, legumes or forage shrubs. 3. Contour listing, 50 cent per acre for all range land which is listed on the contour. 4. Spreader dams and spreader terraces - 15 cents per cubic yard of dirt moved in building dam and 40 cents per 100 linear feet of terraces constructed. 5. Earthen tanks - 15 cents per cubic yard for dirt in fill or excavation. 6. Concrete or ruddle masonry dams - $6.00 per cubic yard of concrete or ruddle masonry. Such dams to be constructed only where earthen dams are not practicable and there are no possibility of using said dam for irrigation purposes. 7. Well - $2.00 per linear foot for well carrying a 1" or larger casing, $1.00 per linear foot for well carrying casing less than 4" but not less than 2". In digging wells water must be obtained and a mill or power pump put over the well and adequate storage provided. These wells will only have to be cased when actually needed. 8. Development of natural watering places-- for developing springs or seeps where excavating is in soil or gravel 40 cents per cubic foot where excavation is in rock 70 cents per cubic foot. These springs or seeps when developed must be protected from tramping and water piped in pipe not less than 1" to a tank for purpose of providing stock water. 9. Tree planting - $10.00 per acre for planting trees on range land before November 1st, 1938. Such trees must be of a good shade variety and properly planted and cultivated and fenced off for protection. 10. Eradication of prickly pear and cactus-- All pear and cactus must be removed from the land or destroyed. 50 cents per acre for light, $1.00 per acre for medium and $2.00 per acre for heavy. 11. Cedar eradication - 75 cents per acre for light, $1.00 per acre for medium and $1.50 per acre for heavy. 12. Establishment of fire guards - 5 cents per 100 linear feet. These fire guards must be at least ten feet wide and the material soil exposed. Fire guards will not be approved if used for controlling burning within the ranching unit.

There are few or no ranches in Coke county that could not use some of the listed practices. The producer who does not take advantage of them is missing an opportunity to make needed improvements on his ranch. Every ranchman should bear in mind that this is NOT a control program but strictly a conservative program. The Government does not wish to limit the stocking methods on a range, they are trying to assist the ranchman in improving his range so that he might increase his stock without hurting his range.

Appreciation

To say that the Sanco teachers were greatly surprised at the fine words of appreciation printed in last week's Observer expresses our deepest feelings mildly. But, more than our surprise is the depth of our appreciation to the dear old Sanco school--its fine pupils, excellent and cooperative parents and the members of the board of trustees. Dear friends, we cherish not only the school and the community as a whole, but each of you personally. And through the coming years when memory shall go gleaming in the silent fields of the past, we will find ourselves back in the dear old Sanco school, among its fine people, mixing and mingling with the student body as we did through the 1937-1938 session of the school. Again we say "thank you," to each and everyone of you, and our wishes shall always be that each one of our pupils shall make good in life.

Deeply appreciative,
Sanco Teachers

time he was County Judge a road program was launched which eventuated in one of the most complete road systems in Texas. Senator Davis served as a member of the 42nd Legislature, and is now serving his first term as State Senator. During his service in the Legislature, he has proven to be a man who has the courage of his conviction, and all of his efforts have been on constructive legislation, both local and state wide.

Senator Davis is an Elder in the Presbyterian Church, a member of the American Legion, is Captain of Company A, 142nd Infantry, Texas National Guard, and has been active for many years in civic work in town and country. He has taken a special interest in 4-H and FFA work.

In making his announcement Senator Davis submitted the following statement:

In these perplexing times, the Legislature is confronted with many problems, some new and some old. Space forbids the discussion of all of them, but I submit the following as my attitude on some of the questions that will confront the next legislature:

Governmental Expenses

During the past 24 years, the cost of State Government has mounted from $14,000,000, per year to $160,000,000, and during the past four years the cost of government has increased some $72,000,000 per year. It is true that highway work, increased school appropriations and our social security program accounts for much of this increase; but I am convinced that the cost of government is too high and can be reduced materially without impairing the efficiency of any department, by reducing the number of employees, and by the elimination of several boards and combining their duties with other boards, and thereby effect a saving of six to ten million dollars.

It is my judgment that the Legislature should spend more time in seeking to simplify and reduce governmental expenses and less time in hunting new sources for taxation. Already the various governmental agencies of this country are costing more than 25 per cent of the total annual income.

Schools

I favor liberal support of our public school system. I favor keeping the apportionment at the present amount of $22 per capita, and higher if receipts from present taxes will permit it. I also favor an increase in the State equalization fund, and particularly that portion of the fund which has to do with transportation. Texas has made a good start toward furnishing equal educational opportunity for all children, both rural and urban, and this work should be carried on until we ultimately reach our goal.

I favor the establishment and development of a state wide system of vocational training. Only 8 per cent of the students of high school age ever attend college, and most of these leave school at the age of 17 or 18 years, with a smattering of academic knowledge, and with no practical training for their life work. It is my judgment that the burden is on the State to see that this 92 per cent of students are given an opportunity. Vocational training, like all technical training, will be expensive, but it will be worth while, and is but just to the 92 per cent who will never have the opportunity to attend our State supported colleges.

I also favor making provision at the next session of the Legislature, for the full payment by the State into the Teacher's Retirement fund.

Social Security

I favor legislation which will put into effect and adequately support all phases of the Social Security Program, and will give my best thought to those matters at the next session of the Legislature.

I favor broadening the base and liberalizing the Old Age Assistance Program, and my record in the Senate will show that I have uniformly fought for such a program. So long as such assistance is based on need, that need should be determined by the net income of the applicant, rather than on kinfolks or on the fact that he happens to own a little home in town or in the country, or other non-revenue bearing property. If governmental expenses cannot be reduced sufficient to take care of the Social Security Program, I will favor any reasonable tax to give adequate support to the Old Age Assistance and other social security.

Soil Conservation

I am convinced that the greatest need of the State of Texas is a comprehensive soil conservation program. It is estimated that we are losing $200,000,000 worth of rich alluvial soil each year. A recent survey of Brown County shows that 60,000 acres of land, once productive, has been abandoned in the last 20 years, due to erosion, and this is but typical of all this section of the State. The very existence of the urban as well as the rural population depends upon the conservation of the soil.

During the 42nd legislature I assisted in the passage of House Bill No. 17, which authorized the Commissioners' Court to rent the road machinery for terracing purpose when not in use for road building. During the 44th Legislature I sponsored Senate Bill No. 227, which authorizes the Commissioners' Court to allocate not to exceed one-fourth of the automobile license fees for terracing purposes, and during the 45th Legislature I sponsored the passage of what I thought was a comprehensive bill, and one which would have hastened the conservation of our pastures and farms. This bill was passed by an overwhelming majority in both houses, but was vetoed by the governor, principally because it provided tax diversion for purchasing machinery and running contour lines. I expect to continue my fight in the next legislature for a practical comprehensive conservation bill.

Livestock

The raising of livestock is one of the leading industries in this district. I have always followed the legislative programs sponsored by the Cattle Raisers' and the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Associations; and I pledge my continued and unstinted support of their legislative programs.

Local Legislation

During my service in the Senate, I have been active in looking after the local interests of our district. I sponsored the Upper Colorado River Authority bill,

In Memory of J. W. Wilkerson

A friend from us has departed,
Where he is we cannot say
But we feel that we will meet him
Up in Heaven some sweet day.

He's been here for so many years
'Tis sad to know he's gone.
His life was full of sorrow and tears,
Pray now he's found a happy home.

A home where we can all enjoy
Each other better there.
And where our friend they called
"big boy"

Will never have another care.
Some folks called him "Uncle
Jim"

A name he always loved to hear,
And when his friends gathered
'round him
He'd laugh and sing a song to cheer.

The day before he passed away
He was sitting by the radio,
Listening to his favorite program
When a little girl cried "open the doo'."

It struck him then as an angels voice,
He stopped to listen but could not see,
And said "I wonder if there'll be someone.

There to open the door for me."
He loved all the little children
Joe and Jack and all the rest.
He loved to joke with them and tease 'em,
That was when they loved him best.

He faced many disappoints,
Like us all when we live this life
And try to make our own arrangements
In this world of pain and strife.
Now there's one thing we will learn,
Our days are numbered as sure as fate.

So why not be careful while traveling this road
And seek our Savior before it's too late.

We love our friends and kindred
So why not try to have a part,
In this old world of such distress
To help some other aching heart.

There's nothing to loose but all to gain

When we see someone old and blind

No matter if they're the cause of their pain

It will add to happiness just to be kind.

We never know 'till its too late
How we could help those that

ONLY A BOY

Boy is a creature of a roving mind,
Not criminal intent but led by kind,
Who seeks con-panions at mischief's play
And stalks through thorns from day to day.

Only a diamond in the rough,
Passing through life with kick and cuff.
Some are pampered by parent wild,
Who know not the cares of an erring child.

He is only a boy, a miniature man,
Advancing through trials
the best way he can.
So be an example, scatter thoughts
from above,
Make friendship your motto and crown it with Love.

Who knows his thoughts?
Not you, nor I, can claim to fathom
his piercing eyes,
Nor delve beneath his tattered hat.
And solve what his brains are working at.
He is only a boy, growing to man's estate,
He needs your assistance before its
too late;

Scatter words of kind counsel,
a message of joy.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF

"Death by Proxy"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

There's only one thing I know that's less profitable than being a burglar, and that's just posing as one.

Back in 1907, when this adventure happened to Bill, he lived in an old-fashioned apartment house in Brooklyn.

Remember those panels. They've got a lot to do with the story.

Burglars Alarmed the Old Ladies.

Bill's family had an apartment on the fourth and top floor of that building.

Bullets Whizzed Over Bill's Head.

Between her and the glass panels, Old Lady Adventure managed to cook up quite a thrill for Bill Stanton.

About three o'clock one November morning, Bill was awakened out of a sound sleep by a loud, insistent pounding.

On the ground glass panels of the door leading to the hall he could see two shadowy figures.

Bill called out, "Who's there?" and began rattling the door knob.

Bill Was in a Tight Place.

Bill followed the crooks down two flights of stairs, but they were too fast for him.

Bill got to the top and put his hand on the doorknob. The door was locked.

It was one of the old ladies—the deaf one—and her tone was ominous.

All at once Bill realized what a tight situation he was in. The old lady could see his shadow through the glass door and thought he was one of the departed burglars.

Shot At by a Deaf Woman.

"I thought I had a good pair of lungs," says Bill, "and I screamed back: 'Don't shoot. It's me.'"

The shots stopped then, but Bill lay right where he was, afraid to stir lest the slightest motion bring more of that hot lead his way.

Bill lay right where he was until the police came. Then he got up again.

Use of the Oregon Boot

Once Oregon was famous for a contrivance that was held in pardonable distaste by prisoners who happened to find themselves confined within the cold gray walls of the state penitentiary.

Compelled to Kill Squirrels

The large number of squirrels were such a menace in the early days that the Ohio legislature passed a law compelling each person to kill a certain number of them each year.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—It is curious how trade winds blow in politics.

Phenomenon in Politics

It grows out of the primaries in two widely separated states, Florida and Pennsylvania.

Taking up the primaries in their order, there was the primary in Florida where Sen. Claude Pepper.

The second primary was that in Pennsylvania where there were three candidates for the United States senatorial nomination among the Democrats and three for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Few party primaries in modern times developed the bitterness that flamed in the Democratic test in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Farley made an eleventh-hour public appeal to the Democrats of Pennsylvania "for harmony."

The Farley announcement, made on the day before the primary, built up resentment even from the men he endorsed.

Mr. Earle won. Mr. Kennedy lost. Mr. Jones won, and shouted about it.

Biting Words

John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, wrote a statement while the sun was coming up on the day following the primary.

Mr. Hamilton, further, called attention to the fact that two present Democratic members of the house of representatives were defeated for renomination.

ical radio priest, and Representative Crosby, author of Townsend plan bills in the house, were supplanted.

Now, as to the Republican battle: James J. Davis, present senator, was renominated over G. Mason Owlett, backed by the Republican state committee.

And to their credit, it must be said they did a good job.

Came then the Pennsylvania primary, a vote that was preceded by charges of graft, bribery, bossism, etc., and the Farley "harmony attempt" in the day before the polls were taken.

Maybe, Maybe

Whatever their conclusions are, there is one thing definitely established. Organized labor's most ambitious political effort flopped.

Another thing to remember about the Democratic primary results in Pennsylvania projects itself into the future—to 1940, to be exact.

In addition to these circumstances, there is talk going around now that the anti-New Deal faction in Kentucky is determined to do business.

Talk About Kentucky

In that state, of course, Senator Barkley, the Roosevelt majority leader in the senate whose selection to the job was made in the famous "Dear Alben" letter, has a tremendous bulge.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—President Getulio Vargas of Brazil was a far-western frontiersman in his youth, still wearing "bombachos," or gaúcho trousers, for informal dress, and quite in character pumping a six-gun at the palace, and putting down a Graustarkian revolt.

A swarthy, stocky little man, quick on the draw, he has never been gun-shy, and impromptu shooting has been an occasional obligato in his rise to supreme power.

When he established his totalitarian state on November 10 of last year, there were those who said he was dealing in the dark of the moon with the green shirts—that here was where Germany and fascism got a toe-hold on this continent.

The green shirt revolt and its vigorous suppression by Sr. Vargas seems to be an answer to that, even if he had not previously made it clear that his authoritarian state was not of the European model.

Brazil has a complex racial make-up which provides no proscribed group or racial myth, the first requirement in fascist technique, and furthermore, when it comes to strong-arm government, all South American countries have plenty of home talent and indigenous skill.

Sr. Vargas recruited his political following as a liberal. He denounced monopoly and promised the overthrow of the "coffee plantation kings."

He seized power in 1930 by the overthrow of President Washington Luiz, with the aid of his lifetime friend, old General Aurelio Monteiro. Luiz had won the election against him, but Vargas raised a cry of fraud.

From the first he ruled partially by decree, now

Denies All Rights of Free Speech
since the adoption of the constitution of November 10. His reorganization of the country followed established dictatorial practice in the formation of labor "syndicates," the fixing of maximum and minimum wages, and the denial of all rights of free press and free assemblage.

He is a famous orator, speaking a fluent and flowery Portuguese, using the radio a great deal in national appeals. He is credited with just about the shrewdest political intelligence in South America. In his prairie town, he attended a private college, later enrolled in a military college, but was diverted to the law.

His rise through minor offices to the national congress parallels the standard career chart of our congressional record biographies—district attorney, state legislature and all the rest of it.

Air Forces Defend U. S. in Mock War
THE make-believe war in which the eastern seaboard was defended against "black" expeditionary forces from overseas was the first large-scale work-out of our "flying fortresses" under a unified command. Major General Frank M. Andrews, running the show, is one of the few flying generals.

He gathered up the strands of the unified service when the GHQ air force, which he commands, moved into the huge air base at Langley field, March 1, 1935.

Called the "handsomest man in the service," he is quietly effective and the last man in the world to be called a swivel-chair officer. He warns the country against a shortage of fliers and urges civilian training. He was not an A. E. F. flier.

In 1934 he made the unusual jump from lieutenant-colonel to brigadier-general and was made a major-general in 1935. He was graduated from West Point in 1906 and was with the cavalry on the Mexican border, before he found his wings.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD I. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for June 5

SERVING BY PERSONAL DEVOTION TO CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:3-11, 27-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—She hath done what she could. Mark 14:8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Mary's Present to Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Mary's Love Gift.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Our Love to Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Heart of Christian Service.

"The love of Christ constraineth us" (II Cor. 5:14) was the all-sufficient moving force back of the greatest life of service rendered by any man. It is this personal devotion to the One whom we love "because he first loved us" (I John 4:19), which makes Christianity "different from all other religions. Christianity alone acts through this natural and deep hunger of mankind with a personalized religion which can be a satisfying joy and pleasure. Yet at this point Christians fail the most and make difficult the work of serving Jesus. They see religion as a job to be done, a form to be observed, a duty to be fulfilled" (W. R. King).

We need to renew that devotion to Christ which expresses itself in true worship. Prayer is too often asking for things; praise, thanking for things (unless we become so engrossed with them that we forget to return thanks); and worship, which is a coming to God in adoration and thanksgiving for what He is rather than what He can give, is forgotten. Our Heavenly father wants us to show love toward Him. The act of Mary was pure personal devotion and worship, and its fragrance lives to this day.

I. Wasted—But Eternally Saved (vv. 3-9).

The dark hours of betrayal and death were before our Lord. All around Him was hostility. Even in the inner circle of the disciples there was misunderstanding and bickering. Mary (to be distinguished from the sinful woman of Luke 7) with the quick intuition of an understanding woman's heart knew what He was passing through, and with a magnificent act of love stood by Him in the fellowship of His sufferings. Dr. Morgan points out that it was "an impulsive act . . . born of the prodigality of love daring not to calculate." In the words of verse 9, Jesus declared that the gospel and that which this woman had done were to "stand side by side with each other forever. That keen intuition of love, that uncalculating outpouring of love, was Godlike, and an act in fellowship with the act of God by which a world is redeemed."

Judas, who was a thief, said she had wasted money that should be used for the poor (John 12:6). The other disciples thought well of his argument and murmured against her. But Jesus commended her. To be thrifty and frugal is commendable, but there are times when the heart should speak without being silenced by the drawing of purse strings.

II. Saved—But Eternally Lost (vv. 10, 11).

Judas betrayed Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. He "made" some money. The fact that he did it by betraying the Son of God may be worse in degree but is not worse in kind than the betrayal of the youth of our land by those who make merchandise of their eternal souls. A recent news item from England declared that church organizations were making money out of properties publicly known as centers of prostitution. The leaders deplored the situation, but said they could not prevent it without losing the income of the property. Why not lose every cent rather than be party to the betrayal of any man or woman?

III. Bold Words—But Weak Actions (vv. 27-31).

Verses 12-26 tell of the gathering of the Lord and His disciples for their last passover and for the establishment of the Lord's supper. As they left the sacred meeting and went out into the Mount of Olives Jesus foretold His betrayal and His coming denial by the disciples.

Peter, quick with his tongue, and bold in spirit, spake swelling words of devotion and assurance. Sadly the Lord foretold his threefold denial of that very night. Again Peter and all the disciples declared their willingness to die with Him. They undoubtedly meant what they said, but reckoning without the weakness of the flesh they failed Him. The lesson that is written large in this story for you and for me is, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (I Cor. 10:12).

Preventing Quarrels

Two things, well considered, would prevent many quarrels; first, to have it well ascertained whether we are not disputing about terms, rather than things; and, secondly, to examine whether that on which we differ is worth contending.—Colton.

and administer the law.

I am apposed to gambling and to the open saloon in all their forms. They are undermining and destructive to character and should be prohibited by state law.

I am opposed to the one-house legislature. If our state legislation is placed in the hands of a small group representation of special interest, because corporation lobbyist can control a small group more effectual. The original motive of our two-house legislature was to check hasty and poorly constructed legislation by making laws more difficult to pass. The need to check such legislation is greater today than ever before.

I favor strict state control of our natural resources. If Texas' three leading natural resources, oil, gas and sulphur, were properly controlled and taxed, Texas would be the most prosperous state in the union. It is a great blot on Texas government to permit great corporations to make hundred of millions of dollars yearly from the wasteful exploitation of our natural resources and at the same time require real property, which in many cases is a liability, to continue to bear the burden of government cost.

Respectfully,
H. G. Hamrick
