Need Of Cooperation

Blame it on the war in Europe: Texas housewives may soon start carrying shopping bags again, to hold the articles which they buy in stores. Wrapping paper is getting scarce.

Retail merchants, cooperating with the government in a campaign to prevent the waste of paper so that needed supplies will be available for the army and navy and defense industries, began a campaign this week to eliminate all unnecessary use of paper bags and wrapping paper. Wednesday was chosen to start the campaign because it is "War Against Waste Day," established in President Roosevelt's proclamation of Civilian Defense Week.

Home Burns

Early Monday morning while Mrs. Jack Sparks was preparing breakfast on a gas stove she stepped into the adjoining room on returning found the whole room in a blaze coming through the house and all its contents.

A Nathan Hale, who gave his life for America, like great numbers of his fellow countrymen. We are only asked to lend our dollars for Defense Bonds and Stamps to defend the liberty for which they died.

Q Where I work there is no pay-roll allotment plan for the buying of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. How can I get one started?

A This depends on your position, and the kind of organization in which you are employed. Generally speaking, your immediate superior would be the proper person to receive your suggestion that you would like to have a voluntary pay roll allotment plan introduced. The firm's bank can supply information about such a plan.

Note.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps now are on sale at retail stores.

Army, Navy and Commercial Airlines Suffer in Series of Plane Crashes; 'Reuben James' Sinking, F.D.R. Speech Draw Formal Statement From Hitler

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Troops who took over the Bendix, N. J., plant of Air Associates, at the command of President Roosevelt are shown camping in a field near the plant. The order for the plant's occupation came in the interests of "national defense" according to official sources as Air Associates holds millions of dollars' worth of defense contracts for various kinds of aviation equipment. Production had been held up because of difficulty between the company and union leaders, but work got under way soon after the troops moved in.

FIRST LOSS:

Sinking of 'James'

First American naval loss of the war was the Reuben James, 1,000-ton destroyer, 20 years old, sent to the bottom of the Atlantic with an undetermined loss of life somewhere west of Iceland.

Details were shrouded with greatest secrecy by the navy, who finally disclosed that 44 men, apparently all enlisted men, were saved. Whether more would later be rescued was problematical.

She carried about 120 officers and men. Whether she had previously encountered and battled successfully with submarines was a matter of conjecture.

One news service had obtained a purported letter from one of the sailors on the Reuben James which stated that the vessel had sunk two submarines, "maybe more."

The writer was Leonidas C. Dickerson, a seaman, who wrote to his aunt in Danville, Va.:

"We've been at sea for 42 consecutive days, and I've lost lots of sleep. I'll be glad when we're through with this job and I can get some sleep again."

The letter, written several weeks before the sinking, said:

"We have gotten two subs, maybe more. I have lots to tell you when I see you."

Another letter told of a submarine attack on the James. It had been written by Harold James Orange to his mother, Mrs. Marie Orange, in Chicago. He said:

"I was up on the crow's nest on watch when we were nearing Iceland and I saw a torpedo. It was coming right for us. I gave the alarm and we started zig-zagging. It missed us, sped right by. I saw not one, but several submarines."

REACTION:

In Many Quarters

Following the sinking of the Reuben James the reactions followed swiftly, drawing certain powerful figures closer to the President's foreign policy, and bringing from Hitler's headquarters no other statement than that "people foolish enough to walk down a railroad track may expect to be run over."

Berlin issued a lengthy formal statement from Hitler, most of which was devoted to answering the President's Navy day address.

He reiterated his statements that the South American map and the document purporting to reveal a Nazi plan to do away with all religion as "nonsensical" and "crude forgeries." He categorically denied that the Reich government had created either of these items.

The wording of the declarations from the German leader was scanned carefully by foreign correspondents, who saw in it the typical Nazi line of argument that their vessels had been attacked; that Germany was being attacked by the United States, that the U. S. was stamping itself as the aggressor.

These words were believed significant in that it was the usual German terminology preceding an open break between the Reich and another nation. It was pointed out that treaties between Germany and her Axis partners called for help in case any member of the three is attacked.

PLANES:

Keep Crashing

Started off by the crashing of five army pursuit planes, this disaster seemed the signal for a series of tragic losses, which had reached a new record for American aviation.

A Northwest Airlines plane dropped to earth in a fog, killing 14 persons and hurling the pilot clear. Within 24 hours a 21-passenger American Airlines plane, carrying 20 persons, plummeted to earth in a rainstorm near St. Thomas, Can., and burst into flames. All lost their lives.

Less than 48 hours later an army bomber, with five air corps men aboard, fell out of misty clouds into a cornfield near Findlay, Ohio, and burst into flames.

The five men were instantly killed.

Then it was the navy's turn to announce a disaster. This was the crash of a huge bomber at sea with the loss of 12 lives. The plane was "operating in the Atlantic ocean area."

At nearly the same time a 22-year-old American of German extraction was arrested at the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, and confessed to be a saboteur of planes, having cut electrical wires in such a way that contacts would be broken at some later date.

His deeds had affected more than a hundred planes, though most, if not all of them, had been discovered. So cleverly did he hide his work that suspicion had been thrown on hundreds of other employees. It took the FBI agents from July until late October to catch him.

REDS:

'Reservoirs'

Although the defense lines around Moscow had been bending now and then, the break had not come, and enormous reserves from "manpower reservoirs" in Siberia and other parts of the vast country were reported as having been hurled into the fray.

The United States heard that the first American planes had gone into battle, and had bombed Berlin, a fact which Berlin promptly denied.

It was an unquestioned fact that the Reds had, however, some of the newest and largest American bombing planes, easily capable of flights over Berlin and back.

The Nazis had broken through into the Crimea, however, and the fall of the whole peninsula, thus opening one narrow and difficult road to the Caucasus, was believed certain.

NEUTRALITY:

Battle

With even its opponents admitting that victory was sure, and anti-administration editorial writers regarding it editorially as a fait accompli, there still was bitter fighting over the measure on the floor of the senate.

A notable acquisition of support, however, came when Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, long a foe of the administration's policy, switched over and spoke in behalf of the bill which would remove from the Neutrality act those measures which would prevent arming of merchant vessels, and would open all ports to the American flag ships.

Another Shakeup

In the second of officer changes in the Russian army within a few weeks, Marshal Boris N. Shaposhnikov (above) has been named chief of the Soviet general staff. He succeeds Gen. Zhukov, who several weeks ago was named commander of Red armies on the central front. Shaposhnikov is a close personal friend of Josef Stalin.

JAPAN:

Viewed Menace

Following the German declaration that she had been "attacked" by the United States, Washington was openly fearful that peace in the Pacific could no longer be maintained.

There were many signs, it was asserted, that Japan would receive a signal from Germany to open hostilities, thus to draw the American fleet strength into the Pacific, and remove some of the vessels, perhaps from North Atlantic convoy service.

It was significant that Hallett Abend should have sent a dispatch to the Times from Honolulu stating that the Japanese navy had been guilty of activities in American waters that verged closely on the commencement of hostilities.

The American navy has been watching the activity of a Japanese submarine, and while it had not taken any measures, much was learned of the Japanese tactics through American apparent indifference to what was going on.

A submarine had been observed in Hawaiian territorial waters, submerging by day and coming up only after nightfall.

This vessel had at all times been at the mercy of American naval vessels, but the naval officers laughed at it, saying that the Japs could not have observed anything worthwhile through their periscope.

Other fast Japanese s'ps have been cruising openly at full speed around Midway, Wake island, Johnson, Palmyra and other U. S. Pacific islands, always keeping just outside the territorial limits, Abend said.

Japan's comment on the James incident was that the United States was close to participation in the war. "Therefore," it continued, "the United States is making every effort to avoid a clash in the Pacific, which now seems inevitable. Tension is growing despite sincere efforts of Japan."

This was regarded as being written on an extremely menacing note.

CEILINGS:

Prices, Note Wages

The drastic price control bill reported out by the house banking and currency committee had turned out to be one which set price tops, which forbid farm price ceilings below boom prices, and specifically exempted wages from government control.

The vote had been 18 to 5, but the session reportedly had been turbulent. There were some modified provisions for rent control. All rents in defense areas were to be subject to ceilings.

Farm prices were to have ceilings prohibited at any point lower than 110 per cent of parity, or at less than the average price between 1919 and 1929, the boom years.

Some of the administration experts, studying the bill, said that it would be impossible under it to control prices at less than 30 per cent above parity.

They cited the example of sugar, which now had a ceiling of $3.50 a hundred, and showed that it would, under the committee ruling, be permitted to rise to $5.84 per hundred before being pegged off.

A price administrator had been named in the bill with a salary of $10,000 a year to be named by the President and confirmed by the senate to administer the act with advisory councils from the various industries. The original draft did not require senate confirmation.

Agriculture Has a Role In Post-War Planning

Government Gives Serious Consideration to Problems of the Farmer When 'Reconstruction' Period Begins.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

The people of the United States, through their representatives in Washington, have just begun spending another six billion dollars for tanks, guns, shells, and ships. When these products are used up for the purpose for which they are produced, what will the world have to show for it? Just what the farmer has when he is done fighting a blitz of grasshoppers, beetles or other varmints—a lot of ruined property and a lot of dead things to bury, burn, or plow under—the result of wholesale destruction.

But along with all this spending to kill and destroy, the nation is also planning to build and create. Currently thousands of Americans are gathering in state capitals, county seats and rural communities to talk over some brass-tack ideas for reconstruction after destruction. Post-war planning, it's called.

"We visualize a post-war world," says Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, "in which we will make full use of our manpower and our resources for the benefit of the American people."

That's a nice visualization. What's being done to make the vision real?

The National Resources Planning board in Washington is centralizing post-defense planning efforts, not only of the federal government but of the country as a whole. In September Secretary Wickard set up an inter-bureau committee in the department of agriculture on post-defense problems to help work out some of these plans. The committee has three jobs:

1. Keeping in touch with and making what contribution it can to the developments that affect the national economy as a whole.
2. Developing rural works programs in the capital improvement field. (That means improving the farmer's "plant.")
3. Developing publicly sponsored programs of rural welfare ("services").

Mediums of Action

How does this committee get action? Through state and local land-use planning committees already set up, with the co-operation of department field representatives. These are state committees, county committees and committees of neighborhood groups. The latter are made up of farmers; the others are mixed farmers and federal and state officials.

What are the general problems the American farmer has to face in the post-war world as the department of agriculture sees them today?

First, there is likely to be a great demand for foodstuffs as the United States feeds a starving Europe after the war.

Secondly, there will be an effect on the domestic market when military service and defense work ends, for the farmer's income swells and shrinks in direct proportion to the size of the employee's pay envelope.

Of course, every effort will be made to create jobs on public works projects while industry is changing over from defense to civilian production. But it is freely admitted that the tremendous defense effort in the industrial world cannot be duplicated by "made" work. Therefore, the emphasis in planning is to be placed on jobs that will produce jobs, and agriculture must expand to carry its share of the effort, say the planners.

Rural Works' Program

The first job which the department of agriculture is concerned with right now under "capital improvement" is a rural works program which will provide work in rural areas to improve the farmer's physical plant. And that is what the committees are now considering—"rural housing." When these committees have studied the question and given their suggestions, they will be reported back to the inter-bureau committee and the department will build its policy under the influence of these suggestions. Then the department will report to the National Resources Planning board which in turn will submit its program to congress whose duty it is to carry out the wishes of the people.

Thus the democratic cycle is completed.

Many of the suggestions which the inter-bureau committee is throwing out for consideration are not new. Under the head of improving the farm plant, and back of it the resources on which the plant has to draw—are the well-known activities in soil conservation, flood control, water development. Many of these activities are now being carried on but, says Secretary Wickard, "not on a scale commensurate with the need."

These are the things that can be done. The defense effort has demonstrated here, as it has in England, that the United States has today a potential national income much greater than ever achieved before. It is stimulated by the forced creation of destructive products. There is no reason why the resources of this vast and rich nation cannot be utilized to create just as large an income derived from constructive endeavor whose benefits can be shared by all.

If it is not, then we servants of democracy have buried our talents and we may as well get ready to be banished, along with another certain "wicked and slothful servant," into outer darkness where, it is said on excellent authority, there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

A Message

From Hitler

The other day my boss handed me a note from Hitler. Not, of course, of the fuhrer himself, but just a little reminder of what the Nazi Number One was doing to me.

As I scanned the formal note a picture came before me. I shall never forget it—but when I see it in my mind's eye I see it always like a scene from some exotic play—no part of the world in which we live; it is the picture of a little man, pale, determined, wearing a field gray tunic. He stands on a platform, his hands grasping a lectern, against a gaudy background of brilliant uniforms and red—the high priests of Nazidom. Before him is a sea of brown—the members of the puppet parliament.

"And I shall not take off this uniform" (or words to that effect), he is saying, "until victory . . ."

Hitler, it was, addressing the Reichstag on that day in 1939 when he launched his legions into Poland and started the war. But how could it affect me?

Well, this was the note the boss put on the bulletin board the other day for me and the other staff members:

"The paper, paper clip, rubber band, and staple situation is becoming serious. May we ask that all of you conserve these items as much as possible because under the new priorities setup these supplies are going to be very difficult, if not impossible, to secure . . ."

That scene I had witnessed in the reichstag two years ago struck home for the first time. It had seemed very far away until now. True, I had had a moment of apprehension earlier lest Hitler get our Clipper. But I never dreamed he would get our clips.

Carrier Pigeon Useful in Emergencies

In a world where aviation has developed so rapidly that a plane is often obsolete before its construction can be finished, one type of flier, which is the oldest of all, remains supreme in its field. The carrier pigeon is still considered the best means of emergency communication.

Recently a new set of these feathered recruits started training for service with bombers at MacDill, Fla. They are expected to prove useful in case of emergency landings—that is, if the pigeon can be released unscathed with a message it could guide rescuers to the scene of the crash. The officer who is training them is Lieut. Thomas Fulton. He is the man who received the message, borne by a pigeon, which caused the rescue of the famous Lost Battalion in the Argonne forest in the last war.

When the birds now training are grown they will be able to fly 60 miles per hour and keep it up for 600 to 700 miles a day without landing.

THE STORY SO FAR: Ellen Carey seems interested in two men, Jeff Brand, rustler, and Calhoun Terry, ranch manager. Four rustlers had been mysteriously killed. The big ranchers, though much over Terry's protest, hired an

CHAPTER XXXVI

The raiders under Ellison reached Packer's Fork safely and found the wagons waiting for them. After a hot meal they bedded down for the night.

When morning dawned one of Sunday Brown's men who had been scouting in advance of the others came back at a gallop to report that he had been fired on by men hiding behind large piles of baled hay on a hilltop which commanded the road.

There were, he guessed, forty or fifty men behind the rampart of bales. The leaders quickly decided to leave the road and took to the foothills in a detour to a ranch known as the Wagonwheel Gap.

Collins swung from his horse and stepped to the porch. Eluntly he stated the situation. "Hell has broke loose in Georgia, boys. The whole damn country is headed this way for the war. That means we're in for a fight. We don't want to be caught in the open, and this spot is made to order for us."

The ranch was excellently situated for defense. On all sides of it were low, rolling hills with little large brush except in a few gullies. Plenty of water for the horses could be got from Bear Creek, which ran close to both the stable and the house. An adjoining corral had a large haystack near the barn, in case the supply in the loft gave out.

The arrival of a large body of settlers interrupted these preparations. Bill Herriott was in command. He stationed his men along a ridge to the north of the house, and they began to pour down a scattering fire that drove the ditch-diggers and the timber workers to cover. As word spread that the cattle barons and their Texans had been trapped, reinforcements poured in to join the attackers.

Clouds scudded across the sky and obscured the moon so that nightfall brought darkness. The ditch-diggers went to work again, protected by ramparts of logs built between them and their enemies along the bluff. The firing did not die down entirely, but it became intermittent and sporadic.

The leaders of the party held a conference in the living-room of the ranch house. They did not deceive themselves about the ultimate outcome of the battle. In time the settlers would overpower them by sheer numbers, unless help came to them from outside. That help could come only from government troops.

Ellison paced the floor anxiously. He more than anybody else had got them into this trap, and he was worried about the outcome. To the others he read a telegram he had written. It was directed to the Governor, and it asked him to urge the President to order troops from Fort Garfield to the Wagonwheel Gap Ranch at once.

A dozen men volunteered to try to run the enemy lines and get the telegram through. A young Texan named Hal Yancey was chosen. He was not married, and he had once worked on the Two Star Ranch and knew the country fairly well. Moreover, he was a seasoned man, game and determined.

Yancey followed the stream, moving through the water carefully in order not to make a misstep on a slippery rock that would cause him to stumble and make a splash. The creek was lined with willows after he had passed out of the cottonwood grove in which the ranch buildings were situated. The Texan left the creek and crept toward the log fence which separated him from the enemy.

He waited until a dark cloud swept in front of the moon, then clambered over the fence and moved forward through the brush.

A voice hailed him. "Hello, fellow! Where you been?"

The messenger knew he had been mistaken by one of the other party for a friend.

"I slipped down to that log fence to have a look at it," Yancey answered. "Nothing doing there. The logs are too close to crawl through."

"Hmp! I could of told you that. Got the makings?"

The Texan handed the man a sack of tobacco and his little book of paper wrappings. He had to wait while the homesteader shook out the tobacco and rolled the cigarette. The hillman had not taken a second look at the donor, but Yancey felt very nervous. He heard somebody else moving toward them through the brush.

The advancing man loomed out of ly under surveillance, but the horses were being watched. A draw brought him to an aspen grove. Calhoun hesitated, uncertain whether to go round it or go back to the summit of the hill from which he had just come. He passed into the aspens.

Guns sounded, close to him. What surprised him was that they were revolver shots. The distance was too great to reach the ranch house except with rifles. He heard excited voices, and presently the sound of a runner coming into the aspens. The escaping man collapsed and sank to the ground.

Almost in a murmur, Terry said, "What seems to be the trouble?"

The man on the ground turned a startled face toward him and reached for a gun.

"Not necessary," the Diamond Reverse B man said. "I won't hurt you or call anybody."

Yancey recognized him. What are you doing here with these fellows, Mr. Terry?" he asked, surprised.

"I came to try to fix up a truce, but the settlers wouldn't have it." Calhoun asked a question. "Was it you they were shooting at?"

"They hit me in the leg. I'm one of Sunday Brown's Texans. They sent me from the ranch to get a telegram through to Washington asking for troops."

"Hit bad?"

"Not so bad. I can't travel, that's sure. Not on that game leg."

"You have a written message?"

"Yes." He added, worried, "They're depending on me at the ranch."

"I might get it through for you. But I can't leave you here."

Terry gave instructions. "Stay here. I'll have a try for the horse. When you hear me coming move to the edge of the aspens."

Terry walked up the incline toward the draw and met Lane Carey.

"I heard some revolver shots," Lane said. "Hope they weren't firing at you."

"No. At a fellow named Yancey who was trying to get through a telegram from the beleaguered men to send to the Governor. They hit him, but he got away and is hiding in the aspens. I'm trying to get a horse for him—that one in the draw there."

"How badly is he hurt? Can he ride?"

"He says so. If I could get two horses I'd try to go with him."

"You'd be shot down before you got twenty yards."

"I'm not so sure. It's dark when the moon is under a cloud. More men keep riding in to join the attackers. Nobody is paying any attention to us."

"Not as long as we don't try to get away."

They were moving in the direction of the saddled horse. It was a rather heavily built sorrel gelding.

"I'm going to try it," Terry said. "They will find Yancey soon if I don't get him away, and if they do he's a goner."

He untied the horse, and the two men walked back with it toward the aspens. They met a man whom they recognized as the owner of a wagon yard at Round Top. He said, "Hello!" and passed without question.

Yancey was waiting at the edge of the aspens.

"How is your leg?" Terry asked.

"Fine," the man answered in a thin voice.

"Let me look at it," Carey said.

While he examined and dressed it as best he could, Terry took the horse deeper into the aspens where it would not be seen. Carey called him when he was ready.

The Box 55 man said in a low voice, "This man can't make it alone to the railroad."

Terry frowned. "I've been thinking that. I'll go with him. Later on we'll pick up another horse somewhere."

"You mean, both go on this horse?"

"Yes. He isn't going to make it without help."

Yancey spoke up stoutly, but in a weak voice. "I am too. Boost me into the saddle and I'll burn the wind out of here."

They helped him to his feet. He leaned heavily against Terry. The eyes of the ranchmen met. Each was telling the other that the Texan would not get far alone.

Out of the darkness a man walked. He asked peremptorily, "What you fellows doing here?"

boys. I'm not allowing to harm either of you if you behave."

They drifted, but unfortunately directly toward another group of three or four men. Yancey bolted into the brush as Hart yelled out a warning. Bullets whistled in the darkness. The Texan knew he had been hit, but kept going. He dodged into a draw and ran limping down it. When he reached a clump of aspens he buried himself in them and sank to the ground. He believed he had evaded the pursuit.

A low voice, not six feet from him, asked, "What seems to be the trouble?"

CHAPTER XXXVII

When Terry and Carey offered their services as mediators to the little group who seemed to be leading the attackers the proposal was rejected at once. The Diamond Reverse B superintendent was not in favor with the people's party, even though he had escaped lynching by a narrow squeak.

"We don't aim to do any mediating," Lee Hart sneered. "We're figuring on wiping out this bunch of killers the cattle barons have brought in, and with them some of the high moguls themselves."

Bill Herriott was less ferocious but just as uncompromising. "They can hang out a white flag if they want to surrender," he said. "Until then we haven't any terms to offer."

"What terms will you give if they do decide to surrender?" Carey asked.

Herriott's bleak gaze rested on the face of the Box 55 owner. "I wouldn't know. We'll cross that bridge when we come to it. The fellows who hired Turley to kill our friends will have to pay the price. So will those who murdered Dave Morgan and Sib Lee. There won't be any compromise about that."

When they went to get their horses they were met by the announcement that they were to stay here for the present. They had not been asked to come, but since they had done so they were not to leave.

Terry strolled down toward the fringing-line, from which occasional flashes came. He was not apparent-

UNION WITH CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—John 15:1-10. GOLDEN TEXT—Abide in me, and I in you.—John 15:4.

Our lesson presents deep spiritual truths concerning our union with Christ—mystical, but practical.

I. The Conditions of Union With Christ.

There is a sense in which union with Christ is entirely unconditional, one is either united with Him by faith or he is not. However, there are conditions for the fulfillment of all that such union carries with it. It is in that sense we use the word.

1. Cleansing (vv. 1-3). Christ is the Vine, and the believer as a true branch is united with Him. There is a oneness here which is difficult to express but delightful to receive and believe. He who is the Vine needs constant, daily purification by "the Word" (v. 3). Are we permitting God's Word to keep us clean? Only if we are reading it, studying it, meditating upon it.

There is moreover a severer type of purging to which the husbandman subjects the vine that it may bear more richly, and that is pruning (v. 2). It may not be pleasant, my brother, but it is profitable, and remember whose loving and sure hand it is that wields the pruning knife (v. 1).

Some branches must be cut away altogether (v. 1) and burned (v. 6). They lack the evidence of life—fruitbearing—and must be destroyed. These words are evidently not written to dishearten true believers, but they are a solemn warning to those who bear a false profession of Christianity.

2. Abiding (vv. 4-8). The branch bears the fruit of the vine. It has no strength or ability of its own to bring forth fruit. The Christian cannot serve Christ without abiding, and if he does abide the life of Christ will show forth in His living and serving. There can be no union without abiding in Christ.

3. Obedience (vv. 9, 10). The hall-mark of character in a child is obedience. That is also true in God's household. There is no use in talking sweetly and piously about abiding in God's love unless we obey His commandments. The Christian who disobey the teachings of God's Word regarding holy living and does not respond to the leading of the Holy Spirit shuts off the blessing of God in his own life and stops its flow out to others.

II. The Results of Union With Christ.

1. Purity of Life (v. 3). "Now ye are clean"—how refreshing our Lord's words sound to us as we live in a wicked and filthy world. We sometimes wonder if there are any pure lives anymore. Yes, there are—those whom the Lord has cleansed by His Word. Would you like to be clean? Turn to Him and to His Word.

2. Prevailing Prayer (v. 7). At first one wonders why our Lord put in that word about prayer, but it is evident that one of the fruits of union and fellowship with Christ must be intelligent prayer according to God's will, in the power of the Spirit, and certain of an answer.

Notice that the prayer promise here is absolutely unlimited, but that it follows an "if" which states a closely limited condition. Let us fulfill the condition and claim the promise.

3. Fruitbearing (vv. 2, 4, 5, 8). The fruit a Christian bears is the fruit of Christ who is the Vine, but as the branch he does have the joy of bearing "fruit" (v. 2), "more fruit" (v. 2), and "much fruit" (vv. 5, 8). The Christian's phraseology can be borrowed, the Christian's service imitated, but his fruit produced only by abiding in Christ.

4. Abiding in Love (v. 10). We have been talking about abiding all through our lesson and it may seem strange to list it as one of the results of union with Christ, yet it belongs here. Our Lord said (v. 10) that the cleansed and obedient disciple should abide in His love, even as He obeys the Father and abides in His love.

What a picture that is. Christ, the One who knew no stain of sin (II Cor. 5:21), always perfectly obedient to the Father (Heb. 10:7), who knows complete and perfect fellowship with the Father, reaches out His loving arms and draws the believer into the circle of that blessed union and love.

Ford Speeds Defense Work With
New 400,000-Volt X-Ray Machine

DEARBORN, Mich.—With greater speed and manufacturing perfection essential these days to national defense production, the Ford Motor Company has just taken another big step toward faster action on its defense work. A new 400,000-volt X-ray machine (upper photo) has been installed at the Rouge plant automotive laboratory to locate quickly any possible flaws in heavy steel castings.

Once restricted to the field of medicine, the X-ray was adopted by industry a few years ago when a 100,000-volt machine was built that could penetrate steel. In 1931 Ford, one of the first big industries to make use of it, installed a 250,000-volt X-ray outfit which remained in service until the new 400,000-volt apparatus succeeded it recently. The new machine penetrates several inches of steel.

Where the old apparatus required two to six hours to make an X-ray exposure of a heavy cast steel part, the new machine does the same chore in a few minutes, according to Ford engineers. Translated into terms of production and manufacturing perfection, this X-ray machine is expected to greatly facilitate Ford's work on $700,000,000 in defense contracts.

In the upper photo, a laboratory worker is shown placing a cast steel crankshaft for the Ford experimental aircraft engine into place under the giant 400,000-volt X-ray tube. The X-ray room is entirely sheathed by a thick protective layer of lead covering walls and ceiling.

The lower photo shows a laboratory technician studying an X-ray negative of a crankshaft. Tell-tale shadows reveal any flaws in the internal structure of metal.

"Five mornings a week, nine months a year, we mothers of Texas get our children ready for school.
"In our home and a million other Texas homes, that's one of the first and most important duties of a mother's day. Sometimes Dad finds out what a job it is when he has to do it by himself."

All of us want our children to have the best education possible. Most of us look to the public schools for this.

Fortunately, Texas has the best public schools in the South. Helping to build and operate them is the Texas petroleum industry which pays 24 million dollars a year in taxes for school purposes.

These petroleum taxes pay an average of one-fourth the cost of educating our children. Altogether, they meet the entire expense of schooling nearly 400,000 Texas boys and girls.

In addition, oil has contributed substantially to the 70 million dollar permanent school fund. Oil is also responsible for much of the 30 million dollar permanent university fund, which has made possible the expansion of the University of Texas and A. & M. College.

Furthermore, taxes on petroleum products add another 11½ million dollars a year for the schools of our State.

Household Hints

Never use a damp or wet cloth or holder in removing a hot dish from the oven or stove. A dry one prevents the heat from penetrating and scorching the fingers.

Powdered or confectioner's sugar that has become lumpy should be pressed through a fine-meshed sieve or rolled with a rolling pin.

Grease marks on pages of books may be removed by sponging them with benzine, placing them between two sheets of blotting paper and pressing them with a hot iron.

THANKSGIVING

This holiday is ours! As you bustle about and plan this year's Thanksgiving dinner, remember this is the day we give our thanks for the bounteous harvest of the year, for the peace and the prosperity, singularly ours. Remember, too, and cherish the foresight of the Pilgrims who had the courage to start carving out this land of ours!

Yes, this holiday is ours, so let it be filled with the spirit of the day and wholehearted thanks.

Some foods are synonymous with Thanksgiving without which the day wouldn't be complete, but don't get into a rut about having the same dinner every year, vary the trimmings a bit and fascinate the family.

Thin wisps of croutons will intrigue if you serve them in the oyster stew.

*Oyster Stew.
(Serves 6 to 3)
1 pint oysters
4 tablespoons butter
1 quart milk
Salt and pepper

Put cleaned oysters, oyster liquor strained, butter and seasonings in a saucepan and simmer gently until oysters curl at the edges. Heat the milk, add to the oysters and serve at once.

Has the family become a trifle weary of your old stuffing? Then try this savory new one with yummy sausage flavoring which is right at home with either turkey, goose, duck or chicken. The sausage stuffing will do a proud job with stuffed veal, pork or shoulder of lamb:

*Sausage Stuffing.
(Makes 6 cups)
4 cups soft bread crumbs
½ cup butter
3 tablespoons chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
½ teaspoon sage or thyme
½ cup chopped celery
2 cups sausage in the bulk
Melt butter, add onion and cook

LYNN SAYS:

To clean the turkey, singe it first, then remove the pin feathers with tweezers. Scrub the outside with water. The inside should be wiped with a damp cloth. If there is any foreign odor, a half teaspoon of baking soda may be added to the water with which the turkey is scrubbed.

Allow 1 pound of turkey to each person. Allow 1 cup of stuffing to each pound of turkey. When stuffing, be sure to put some in the neck for this will give the bird a good full shape. Fasten the skin from the neck to the back. Stuff the cavity but do not pack since dressing swells.

For good roasting and easier carving truss the bird, by inserting a long needle through breast, through rib at the base of the thigh. Draw the cord through and bring the string across by pulling the cord through the openings formed by folding the wings triangularly onto the back. Tie the cords.

Insert the needle through the drumstick joints, bring the cord around the tail, through the backbone, and tie securely. Remove cord before serving.

(Serves 10 to 12)

- 4 cups mashed sweet potato
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 egg
- Salt and pepper
- ½ cup milk or ¼ cup evaporated milk and ¼ cup water.

Place in a buttered casserole dish, set in a pan containing hot water and bake 15 to 20 minutes at 375 degrees until light and puffy. Marshmallows may be placed on top of casserole during last 7 minutes of baking time.

With all the soft food of the meal you'll want something crispy and tart as a relish.

*Cranberry-Orange Relish.
(Serves 12)

Brussels sprouts lend a bright touch of green when served plain with butter or crumbled, cooked chestnuts. Pick the dead leaves off the sprouts, then soak them in cold salted water for ½ hour. Wash and put in boiling water and let cook until just tender, about 15 to 17 minutes. Drain, reheat, and serve after seasoning.

Remember how mother used to make her pumpkin pie and tarts the day before and how good they always tasted after they stood in the cool pantry overnight? Why not try it this time? It'll save you a great deal of fuss on the big day itself besides giving the tarts a chance to mellow and ripen for extra good flavor.

*Pumpkin Filling.

- (Makes 1 large pie or 10 to 12 tarts)
- 1½ cups prepared pumpkin
- ¾ cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 1 teaspoon salt

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

MOST ACCIDENTS IN YOUR BEDROOM

More serious accidents occur in your homes than on the highways and, still harder to believe—the bedroom is the most dangerous place in the house for such accidents.

Dr. Nathan S. Davis III

In 1936, home accidents caused 38,500 deaths and 170,000 serious injuries while 37,800 were killed and 105,000 seriously injured in the much publicized highway accidents.

Mothers worry about their children being injured on the highways while traveling to and from school, yet it is a fact that four times as many boys and girls are seriously hurt at home.

The most frequent of fatal accidents for children under 15 years of age were burns and scalds. For those in the 25-64 age range, falls were the cause of nearly one-third of the deaths and in the older age group they were responsible for 75 per cent of the fatal accidents. Between them, burns and falls cause two-thirds of the accidental deaths in the homes.

Of these deaths, 27 per cent occur in the bedroom; 14 per cent in the living room; 13 per cent in the kitchen; 9 per cent on stairways; 7 per cent in the dining room; and 4 per cent in the bathroom. Other places in the home account for 3 per cent while only 23 per cent of these accidents occur on the grounds and outside of the house.

Most common of home accidents are falls with burns and scalds a close second. Next in order are poisoning (gas excepted), absorption of poisonous gases, mechanical suffocation and accidents brought about by firearms.

Bill-boards are used to show the number of fatal and non-fatal accidents in an area in comparison with a previous year. But who has ever seen a billboard showing the number of fatal and non-fatal accidents caused by falls, burns, scalds and other home accidents?

What judge has ever sent the mother of a child who has been slightly burned or, a youngster suffering from a broken bone, to look at the pitifully burned, scarred and disabled children in a public hospital or to see the fracture wards full of those injured in falls at home?

Almost daily smashed cars are pictured in the newspapers but the rugs, stools and, yes, dogs, which many stumble and fall over with serious results do not appear in the press. Neither are there pictures of the dark stairs, the chairs and tables used as ladders, the broken steps, slippery floors and walks and other common causes of falls in the home.

A good deal is written about the danger of scalds and burns and of deaths from poisonous gases, especially carbon monoxide gas from automobile motors, but not nearly as much as about highway accidents. Perhaps one reason for this is that all automobile accidents are listed together whether they be those occurring at railroad crossings, at highway intersections, between intersections on highways, or jay-walking or those caused by children running in front of slow moving cars. On the other hand home accidents are written separately, printed in various sections of the newspapers and, consequently, are not so noticeable.

Twenty-eight safety rules for the home, which were prepared by the American Red Cross, National Safety Council, Metropolitan Life Insurance company and others will be furnished to all who send in a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Nathan S. Davis III, Winnetka, Ill.

To one who waits for health, a moment seems a year.

PLAN BOX SILO ON LEVEL LAND

Is Good Substitute for the Trench Silo.

By E. R. EUDALY
(Dairyman, Texas A & M College Extension Service.)

Built above ground, a "box" silo is a substitute for a trench silo in regions where the land is more or less level and where keeping water out of a trench is a problem.

To construct such a feed container, build two parallel levees of dirt any height and width desired, then fill between the levees with silage and cover with earth. This sometimes is called a trench silo upside down. Two—in places where lumber is cheap it might be advisable to build the upside down trench out of lumber and tar paper. This is called a "box" silo.

It is not advisable to build a "box" of smaller dimensions than four feet between walls, six feet high and 20 feet long. Lesser space between walls would be hazardous since a little spoilage at the edges would be too high a percentage of waste. A minimum height of six feet is suggested because of settling and the possibility of some spoilage on top. If the silage settles a whole lot there might be a high percentage of spoilage.

Width and height may be as much as desired beyond the minimum footage as far as keeping of the contents of the silo is concerned. But the width should be regulated according to the number of livestock to be fed, the specialists advise. At least five cows are necessary to obtain the most success from a "box" silo.

The posts should be three feet apart in the row if one-inch lumber is used, but may be as much as 4 1/2 feet apart if using two-inch lumber. Shiplap lumber is best for siding, but rough sawed lumber may be used provided it is laid so that the inside of the wall will not be so rough as to break the lining paper. Tar, or asphalt, paper is recommended for covering the inside of the wall, and No. 9 galvanized steel wire, or the equivalent in strength, to tie the posts together at the top.

The silage at the open end of the box should slope from the ground to the top of the wall so that the end can be covered with earth. Only two or three inches of dirt may be used provided oats or barley is planted in it, and the earth kept moist until the grain makes enough growth to form a good root system and hold the dirt together to prevent cracking.

Seed Winter Oats for Successful Winter Crop

Many farmers have had excellent success in seeding winter oats in the fall as a cover crop, according to J. C. Hackleman, crops extension specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, Urbana, Ill. The only trouble with using winter oats in the fall, he said, is that the crop is more apt to winter-kill than barley or rye. Oats also does not make as good a nurse crop as the other two crops because it makes a more leafy and dense growth and consequently shades the legumes more and probably consumes more moisture and plant food than would be used by a rye or barley crop.

When used as a winter cover crop, winter oats, barley or rye should be seeded a week or 10 days before the average date for seeding wheat, Hackleman said.

Although more apt to encourage chinch bug increases the following growing season, barley makes the best pasture of the three crops. If nurse crops of oats, rye or barley, instead of being harvested as grain, are pastured next spring, the land can be classified as soil-conserving under the AAA farm program.

Farm Notes

Spraying of certain chemicals has been found to hasten the maturity of potatoes on experimental plots at an Idaho research station.

Root rot fungus spreads by slow growth along roots from plant to plant, even when they are dormant, at the rate of a foot or so a month.

The annual output of United States fruit canning plants amounts to about 50,000,000 cases. Peaches lead with over 12,000,000 cases.

When McKinley Turned And 'Brought Up' Mother

A short while after her son had assumed the presidency, Mrs. McKinley was interviewed.

"What would you consider most important in raising a child to be President?" asked one reporter.

"That's a difficult question," replied Mrs. McKinley. "There are so many things to teach boys. They should be taught to be honest, reliable, fair." Then she added: "But I didn't really bring my boy up to be President. I brought him up to be a good man. That's all any mother can do. First thing I know my son turned around and began bringing me up to be the mother of a President!"
