COOKS' QUERY CORNER

HOW IS A LEG OF LAMB PLACED IN THE PAN FOR ROASTING?
A leg of lamb is placed on a rack for roasting with the skin side down because the fat deposit is on the inside surface of a leg of lamb.

SHOULD LINK SAUSAGE BE PRICKED WHILE COOKING?

No. Link sausage which is properly cooked does not need to be pricked to prevent splitting. Add a couple of tablespoons of water to the sausage in the frying-pan, cover, and cook slowly until the water evaporates. Brown and the sausage will hold its shape.

Report On Farm Loan Associations

Better times on Texas farms and ranches are reflected in the "most consistent farm mortgage debt retirement in years," said Mr. R. B. Allen upon his return from a conference of leaders chosen by the board of directors of 29 national farm loan associations in this territory. The meeting was held in Brownwood on Nov. 11, the national farm loan association representatives discussing conditions and the 1941-42 plans with officers of the Federal Land Bank of Houston.

Records of the Federal Land Bank reveal foreclosure sales and acquisitions of farms, for the year ending September 30, were the smallest since 1931, twenty percent below the previous year. Delinquencies are the lowest in several years.

During the past year in Texas land bank and land bank commissioner loans were made for a total of fourteen million dollars, which is the largest dollar volume since 1935. Total land bank loans in the amount of $17,676,334.00 and land bank commissioner loans in the amount of $4,517,093 were outstanding as of September 30, 1941. In the Associations represented at this meeting during the last twelve months, the Robert Lee National Farm Loan Association has made a total of $73,200.00 loans to farmers and ranchmen of Coke County with which to buy and improve their homes. neither the association or the Federal Land Bank has ever lost a dime on any of such loans.

The Association has now outstanding Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans in the amount of $362,500.00

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Stalin Sees Nazi Collapse Within Year As Hitler Challenges British Invasion; Japanese Get Warning From Churchill Against Involvement in War With U. S.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

After a lengthy debate in the senate, that body passed the bill authorizing the arming of U. S. merchant vessels and following the 50-37 vote, the photographer got this picture. It shows left to right Sen. Millard Tydings, against the bill; Allen W. Barkley for the bill; Tom Connally, for the bill and Bennett Champ Clark who was against the bill.

HITLER: Talks Boldly

Adolf Hitler, exuding confidence with the passing of another of the anniversaries of the "beer cellar putsch," and having been congratulated on his excellent health and appearance, had made another address to his backers in which he defied the world.

The "Fuehrer" declared that he had created a united European front against communism, that the eastern front's successes were assured, and he dared England to attempt an invasion from the west.

"I have made such preparations in the west," he declared, "that the British can step up at any time."

"If the English choose to undertake an offensive, whether it is in Norway, on our German coast or in Holland, Belgium or France, we can only say 'step up, you will leave faster than you came.'"

Two years ago a bomb had wrecked the hall minutes after Hitler walked out of it. The assembled crowd did not know until the last minute this time whether he would appear or not.

He scorned direct reference to the might the United States was hurling into the picture, saying his orders had increased many fold the armament potential of Germany since the start of the war.

The speech ignored the unrest in Europe, the halting of the blitzkrieg in front of Moscow and Leningrad, the announced intention of the Finns to quit the war on Russia soon, the passage of the neutrality act revision bill by the senate, the recent utterances of Roosevelt and of Churchill.

There was no reference to the enormous German losses as outlined by Josef Stalin, nor to the growing heavy attacks on the Reich by the Royal Air force of Britain.

He boldly declared his armies could defend Germany and all of occupied Europe, "despite American threats and plans for gigantic armament." He was cheered to the echo.

STALIN: Celebrates

The anniversary of the October revolution was celebrated in Moscow with Stalin himself reviewing troops in front of the grim walls of the Kremlin, with hordes of Russian fighting planes wheeling overhead and less than 50 miles away the Red armies battling to hold back the Nazi hordes.

The Germans had boasted that the Russians would have been beaten to their knees long before the annual great Soviet holiday. Instead Stalin was in his country's capital city, reviewing the troops in the customary fashion, despite the war.

He declared that the Germans had lost 4,500,000 men in killed, wounded and captured since the start of the invasion of Russia, admitted that much territory had been lost while "Russia stood alone" against the invader, but promised his people that Germany was beaten and within a year would collapse under the weight of "its crimes."

There was a bitter note in Stalin's talk as to the lack of full British co-operation, though he did give thanks for the aid that had been received.

Yet there was a great deal of calm confidence, and he expressed his nation's willingness to fight on, come what may, until the collapse of Germany, regarded by him as inevitable, would take place.

CHURCHILL: And Roosevelt

As Hitler and Stalin were celebrating anniversaries, and each predicting the future with confidence, each from his own standpoint, Churchill hailed that "glorious warrior Stalin," told Britons that the entry of the U. S. naval vessels into the war left Britain no longer alone, and predicted that England had been rendered, by this aid, "once more masters of our own fate."

In another statement he warned that should the U. S. be forced into war with Japan, Britain would join in the fight against Nippon "within the hour."

Roosevelt, beset by strikes and threats of labor troubles, also meeting a determined challenge of his policy in the senate debate on the neutrality act revision, issued an appeal to labor to work for the national defense, and to place labor quarrels to one side.

There had been a momentary lull in sea-losses, though the dead in the Reuben James disaster had risen to 101. This loss stood as a silent speech-maker in the senate halls during the neutrality act debate, and was being used to show the people the all-out necessity of naval aid to America in "delivering the goods" where needed.

NEUTRALITY: New Phase

The relatively close senate action on the neutrality act revision did not change the situation as regarded the outcome, which meant the death of the final two parts of the measure placed in it at the beginning of the war at the insistence of the isolationists.

Their final fortresses had now fallen, and with the navy's range extended to every port in the world, and with American merchant vessels ready to move, armed for their own protection, into those same ports, the de facto complete entry of this country into the naval battle was considered a certainty.

Representative Bloom indicated that the full authority of the bill might not be used at once, might never be used. He said:

"The situation is tense throughout the world. This is true both on the Atlantic and the Pacific. It is better to have the power which the repeal gives the President and not to need it, than to need it and not to have it."

This seemed to be the attitude of many members of congress who were not anxious to see American ships in danger-laden and belligerent ports, but who deeply felt the need of an all-out American effort and the means to make it so if necessary.

PACIFIC: Threat Closer

The Clipper flight of special envoy Kurosu to the United States apparently to make a final effort to "clarify" the Japanese position on the Pacific brought only gloomy predictions in Washington as to the mission's probable outcome.

Japanese position in the Orient and the British-American stand seemed poles apart, and little likelihood of betterment in the situation.

In fact, there had been a report "on excellent" authority that plans were well advanced for joint British and American action in the East.

COSTLY: British Raid

The biggest British raid on Germany had been carried out with a terrific cost of 37 of the newest bombers, and an estimated 200 fliers.

The ships lost included the new four-motored Stirlings and Halifaxes, the report said. The Germans claimed 14 more, thus putting the maximum loss at 51 planes in 24 hours.

The British reported that much of the loss might be attributed to bad weather conditions, thunderstorms and icing being found over the Reich and the German fighters being forced to keep the ground because of these facts.

It was regarded as the supreme R.A.F. offensive of the war, and was aimed at reducing the pressure on the Moscow and Leningrad fronts, at least from the air.

Hour after hour, even following the original loss of 37 bombers, the newest ships shot over the channel in a steady stream, fighting weather, German fighters, and hurling death and destruction not only on the Reich but on key points in Italy.

STRIKES: And Threats

Despite the truce in the steel strike and the personal victory for President Roosevelt in the express strike, in which the men agreed to return to work at his request, there were many labor troubles looming, chief among them the December 5 deadline for railway labor negotiations.

The strike of the teamsters union in Detroit was tied up with what was claimed to be a refusal of the railway clerks' union to submit to arbitration. It was one of the difficult jurisdictional questions out of which some of the most bitter strikes had come.

At the same time the congress, which had refused to include wage ceilings in its price control bill, was watching the strike situation, also the opening of the Canadian price-fixing act, which included wage ceilings based on a system of bonuses to cover increases in the cost of living.

COMMANDOS: New Shock Troops

The British Commandos (an old South African word meaning small, speedy bands of desperate troops) which for a long time had been reported to be carrying out successful raids on Italy and the occupied French and Norwegian coasts, are to be stressed and made larger in the future, the British had revealed.

They are being composed mostly, it is reported, by men who have lost everything that life holds dear, and who have left to them only a burning hatred for the enemy and a desire for vengeance.

They include Polish pilots who are so willing to die that they will drive their fighter planes head-on into German bombers and pursuit planes.

They also include men of every nationality that has felt the Nazi heel, including Englishmen, whose loved ones have been blown to bits during German bombings of British cities.

It was revealed that they have been attacking along the Mediterranean coast with terrific results.

Three-Way Pulling Match Builds Defense Log Jam

Washington Sees Conflicts of Authority, Effort And Viewpoint as Threat to Satisfactory Carrying Out of Program.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

There is a log jam today holding up the defense program that is going to take dynamite to blow up. Whether there is the courage and the unity and the understanding to do the job remains to be seen.

It will take understanding because the men who make the charges will have to know the facts and realize the conditions and the traditions which have created the evils.

It will take courage, for a premature burst may damage a lot of innocent bystanders.

As far as can be judged from information leading out of the cracks in the defense machine it is a three-way pulling match. The difficulty in analyzing the situation is the difficulty in classifying and identifying the opposing forces.

The usual classification is: One, the New Deal group. Two, the dollar-a-year men. Three, certain army and navy officials.

But this is a very misleading classification because there are some dollar-a-year men who are working with the administration. There are some members of the administration charged with playing into the hands of the dollar-a-year men. There are some army officials who are co-operating with the so-called New Deal element.

Roughly—the Charges

Roughly the charges are these: Those sympathetic with the viewpoint of the New Dealers say that some army officials insist on favoring the dollar-a-year men who manage to steer defense contracts to big business, block sub-contracting to the smaller firms.

Some of the army and navy officials say that they are not going to let amateurs run their affairs, that they have dealt with certain firms for years who know how to do what they want done.

The champions of the small business men and congressmen who have attempted to help them say that priorities assignments are sending essential materials to the big business firms—and they mention the utilities in particular. Small manufacturers and public projects like rural electrification which is bidding for precious copper for its power lines, are being passed by, is the accusation.

The dollar-a-year men say that they are protecting free enterprise and that those opposing them are trying to turn business over to government control.

These bitter conflicts of authority, effort and viewpoint naturally prevent the co-operation essential in the tremendous undertaking which the Office of Emergency Management is attempting to carry out.

This is one reason for the log jam. There is another. In Washington itself criticism is growing. This is not new. It is criticism of the overlapping and conflicting authority among the officials of the OEM.

Theoretically, Vice President Wallace is the responsible head of all defense effort and in that capacity he reports only to the President but the money he requires to carry out his functions is controlled by Jesse Jones, head of the RFC as well as secretary of commerce. That is just one example of similar anomalies right down the line.

The strange thing about it all is that everybody in Washington seems to know all about the log-jam except the President himself who is the only man who can straighten it out.

'ABCD' Countries In New Trade Pact

The "A B C D" countries have just drawn up a trade agreement which bottles up a large share of the raw materials of the world. The ABCD's (America, Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies) control a large share of the things that do not or will not grow anywhere else. The agreement has a two-pronged purpose. One is a horn of famine, one is a horn of plenty. The horn of famine is pointed today at Japan as a threat to keep her within her own domain. The horn of plenty is a peaceful promise. Its purpose is to provide a working arrangement so that all nations may share in the riches of the earth, the precious raw materials of which the "have-nots" say the "haves" are depriving them.

We do not realize how much of a "have-not" nation the United States is. I did not until I saw the report of Carter R. Bryan of the department of commerce. It was a story of his visit to a country store.

Mr. Bryan looked over the goods on the shelves and counters and hanging on hooks against the walls and then began to trace them to their origin. I haven't the space to mention more than a few but the next time you go to the store you will be able to use this list as a starter and surprise yourself.

List of 'Have Nots'

Of course he began with tea from China and coffee from South America and then went on:

"Among other things were binder twine, made of sisal, which comes from Yucatan, and halter ropes, made of hemp from the Philippines; brushes, made of hog bristles from Mongolia, soft drinks containing coca leaves from Peru and kola nuts from Jamaica, and tapioca from The Netherlands Indies or the Dominican republic.

"Cocoa beans from South America are used in making cocoa and chocolate. The same is true of the chocolate bars in the candy case. Even those penny peppermint candy sticks," he continued, "are made of sugar, which probably came from Cuba, and peppermint oil from Russia, and that chewing gum was made of chiclet from Central America or Mexico."

Then of course there are spices—"And spices," he pointed out, "have played a big role in history before. Columbus wasn't looking for America when he sailed west; he was looking for a new route to India and spices in the days when another barbaric horde interfered with trade."

After noting several large bunches of bananas from Central America and pineapples from Cuba, he continued:

"One whole section was given over to bottles containing cod liver oil from Iceland, old-fashioned castor oil from India and Brazil, hay fever and asthma remedies containing Ma Huang (Ephedra Vulgaris) from China, purgatives containing psyllium seed from India, ipecac from Nicaragua, senna from the Levant, and aloes from The Netherlands West Indies, that invaluable cold and malaria remedy, quinine, from The Netherlands Indies, camphor oil from Japan and iodine from Chile, horehound from Spain, and other medicinals from every part of the earth."

As I said, this was only a starter. Bryan named at least 100 other articles right in that one country store, all or a part of each shipped in from foreign lands. If this country, with its wide range of climate and mighty resources has to depend on foreign countries for these products used in our daily life it is easy to see how dependent all nations have become, one upon the other. Trade barriers must go down if civilization is to continue to go upward.

Birds, Traffic Signals And Early Risers

Some people here in Washington have been living dangerously before you and I start our day.

They are up and doing before the traffic signals begin their rhythmic cycle of red, yellow and green. It is a period of comparative freedom, the lights flash yellow—a warning to be careful, not a command to stop. To some of the mad, pre-dawn motorists the flashers are not warnings at all. They are simply lures for the heedless autos dashing at the intersections like moths at a candle flame.

That makes it stimulatingly dangerous for early folk whose reveille has sounded long before our bacon sizzles. They have to be wide awake. Except the birds—one of the few forms of life, feathered, furred, or pajamaed, whose waking is pleasant to hear—the plaintive peep that gradually swells in a soft crescendo to a cheerful chatter.

And the birds are about the only living creatures who can risk an early start for they can cross the street without regard for the traffic lights.

Riders of Buck River

THE STORY SO FAR: Ellen Carey seems interested in two men, Jeff Brand, rustler, and Calhoun Terry, ranch manager. Four rustlers had been mysteriously killed. The big ranchers, much over Terry's protest, hired an army of

The voice was that of Lee Hart. He bowlegged forward, and pulled up abruptly as he recognized the two ranchmen. His gaze slid to Yancey. They could see understanding of the situation filter into his eyes. He opened his mouth to shout, and was a fraction of a second too late.

Terry had plunged forward, his right lashing at the man's jaw. Hart went down, and Terry was on him instantly, his fingers closing on his hairy throat to prevent an alarm. Calhoun dragged the heavy body into the aspens.

"Give me your bandanna," he said to Yancey, and with it gagged the prisoner. The rope from the saddle he used to tie the man.

The moon came out for a moment, then went behind a cloud. Yancey was boosted to the saddle and Terry swung up behind him.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Ellen found it impossible to sleep. After tossing in bed for two or three hours she got up, dressed, and went down into the hotel lobby. Roan Alford passed through it, on his way from the bar to the street. The gray-haired little man's beady eyes fastened on the girl.

"What you doing up this time of night, Miss Ellen?" he asked.

"I can't rest, Mr. Alford. I'm worried about father. I want to go back to the ranch, where I'll be nearer him if anything happens.

Alford agreed to ride with her. As they rode up through the darkness to the ranch house Roan caught at the rein of Ellen's horse and pulled it to a halt.

"Wait a minute. There's someone there—on the porch."

Already Ellen's gaze had picked up two horses at the side of the building, vague and shadowy in the gloom. The object on the porch stirred. It was a man. Or was it two men?

"Who is it?" Alford called.

"Calhoun Terry," the answer came.

A pulse began to beat in the girl's throat.

"Is that father with you?" she asked.

Terry rose from where he had been kneeling. "No. Your father is all right, Miss Carey. This is a wounded man. He slipped out of the Wagonwheel Gap Ranch with a message, and they wounded him as he was trying to get through the lines."

"The Wagonwheel Gap," she repeated.

"Yes. Ellison's men are surrounded there. They want a telegram sent to the Governor."

"Has there been a battle?"

"Not yet. The settlers are besieging the invaders, who are pretty well fortified up. I'm afraid there will be a heavy loss of life if the troops don't stop it."

"Where is father?"

"He is with Bill Herriott's men. We offered to mediate, but they wouldn't let us."

Ellen looked down at the man on the floor. "Is he badly hurt?" she asked.

"Shot in the leg. Could you take him in here, until I can arrange to have him moved?"

"Of course."

"I hate to trouble you, ma'am," Yancey said.

"Don't worry about that," she told him.

The men carried him upstairs and put him to bed. They dressed the wound as best they could, after which Ellen joined Calhoun on the porch.

"I'll rope one of your horses, if you don't mind," he said to her. "I have to get this message off to the Governor."

She took instant alarm. "You're not going back to Round Top?"

"No. I'll send the telegram from Jim Creek. It would probably be held up if I tried to get it off from Round Top."

"Will you send a wire to Doctor Harris and ask him to come up and look after our patient here?"

"Yes. He'll probably be needed at the Wagonwheel Gap Ranch too. On the way there he can stop here."

Ellen walked down with him to the corral.

"Larry Richards and I are buying a slice of the Diamond Reverse B," he told her. "I've been thinking we might have a place for Jeff Brand when he gets able to work."

She flashed a quick look at him, surprised. "Do you think that would suit Jeff?" she asked. "He's so restless. I wonder if he would be content."

"He'll have to settle down sometime, won't he?" Calhoun said.

"I don't know. He's so wild." She went on, almost as if she were talking to herself: "It would be terrible for a girl to be married to him. With a husband as reckless and unstable as he is, no woman would be able to keep step. He would bring her great and lasting unhappiness, though very likely she would keep loving him till the end."

Calhoun pulled up in his stride. "I thought you were going to marry him."

"Did you think I would marry a rustler?" she reproved gently.

"Do you mean—that you're not in love with him?" he asked, looking directly at her.

She laughed, a little tremulously. "Where did you get that ridiculous notion?"

He stared at her, a heat beating through his body. "Then you're not in love with him . . . or with any other man?"

She said in a low voice, "We aren't talking about any other man, are we?"

Some hint of her deep emotion reached him. A swift hope blazed up in him. He had thought never to tell her what was in his heart, but now he flung away restraint.

He said, "I couldn't be the man." But his voice asked for a denial.

When she did not reply, he pressed home his question.

Ellen looked up, her face a soft and shining answer.

Riding through the night to send the message to the Governor, Calhoun was filled with a sense of the nearness of the girl whose warm body he had held in his arms.

His ecstasy amazed him. He had counted himself a hard man, cynical, not given to sentiment. Yet a girl with a wind-blown skirt had crossed his path and changed the world for him.

CHAPTER XXXIX

That the soldiers reached Wagonwheel Gap Ranch just in time to save the invaders is written in the history of Cattleland. Ellison and his men surrendered to the commanding officer of the troops stationed at Fort Garfield.

Collins strutted out of the ranch house undaunted by the yells and curses flung at him and his associates. He stood on the porch and waited for a chance to speak, and when the angry shouts died down flung back defiance at the enemy.

"To call me a murderer doesn't make me one," he said, no more

A rescue party takes Jeff to town for medical treatment, and Terry and Larry are arrested by the sheriff for safe-keeping. Jeff pacifies mob. Cal, free, doesn't know Ellen loves him, not Jeff. But he is soon to learn.

disturbed than if he had been sitting with cronies at the Cheyenne Club. "We're honest men fighting for our rights. Some of us have been here since the Indian days. Every cattleman among us has helped build up this territory and has been a good citizen. I can call out the names of a dozen thieves I see among you, scoundrels who came here without a cent and have obtained herds at our expense, every hoof of them stolen from some of us."

He waited till the roar of rage had spent itself, then went on hardily. "I'd do just what I have done again."

Neither Collins nor any of the other invaders went to the penitentiary. Their trials were postponed for many months. Witnesses vanished. The intensity of the feeling against the cattlemen declined. Moreover, the cost of the trials was so great that there was likelihood of county bankruptcy. In the end the indictments were dismissed.

But it was plain that the big ranches were doomed. One after another they followed the example of the Diamond Reverse B and went out of business. With the increase in the number of small cattlemen the chances for undetected rustling grew fewer. Most of the thieves were known, and one by one they flitted to Montana or Idaho or Mexico.

Jeff Brand joined a cattle outfit in the Argentine. At long intervals his friends heard of him. He came back to the States to enlist for the Spanish-American War. A bullet took him in the throat as he was going up San Juan Hill.

In the reorganization of the cattle country after the break-up of the big ranches Calhoun Terry took an important part. He was recognized as a strong man, and as the years passed his influence became more than local. There came a time when he had to go to Washington to represent his people. He was never quite happy there, for he was no politician, and he was glad when his term of office expired. So was Ellen. It seemed to her that a city was no place to bring up a large family of boys and girls, and she gave a deep sigh of relief when they were all home again in the West she loved. Her father was an old man by that time, and she knew it made him happier to be near them.

In private, sometimes, her husband tells Ellen that she is still lovelier than the slim, dark-eyed daughters who trouble the hearts of the young men of the neighborhood. She smiles wisely, and is content. For she knows that both Calhoun and she have had a happy life in spite of the occasional storms that have beat up to trouble them.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

PRAYER AND THANKSGIVING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:5-13; Ephesians 5:20; 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks.—1 Thessalonians 5:17, 18.

Being one with Christ, the Christian finds prayer to be as natural as breathing. As he walks with the Master he talks with Him, praises Him, thanks Him, makes his petitions and his needs known to Him. We feel, however, like Christ's disciples who asked Him to teach them to pray (Luke 11:1).

I. Instruction in Prayer

1. How Not to Pray (Matt. 6:5, 7). Prayer, which is the highest privilege of the Christian, is beset by some deadly dangers.

a. No hypocritical performance (v. 5). Some who wished to be seen in prayer managed to be in a conspicuous place at the Jewish hours of prayer (nine, twelve, and three o'clock). There, before a crowd, they put on a prayer "show" for the benefit of the onlooking audience. Such a prayer is designed for the ears of men and never reaches God.

b. No vain repetition (v. 7). We do not need to repeat our petitions. God knows our need (v. 8). When repetition is the outpouring of an earnest and urgent heart it means much, but that is different from just repeating phrases.

2. How to Pray (Matt. 6:6, 8, 14, 15; Eph. 5:20; 1 Thess. 5:16-18). Public prayer is sometimes both necessary and proper, but usually our prayer should be a. In secret (v. 6). When we pray we should be free from distracting influences or personalities. We are talking to God and should give ourselves entirely over to communion with Him.

b. In faith (vv. 6, 8). God knows what we need even though He waits to be inquired of concerning it. He will answer prayer so as to honor His name in our lives and in our testimony before others.

c. With forgiveness (vv. 14, 15). No one who comes before God with an unforgiving spirit toward his brother is ready to ask God for the forgiveness which he himself so greatly needs.

d. With thanksgiving (Eph. 5:20). To give thanks is altogether fitting as we come to God in prayer. Note that we are to be thankful "always" and "for all things," not just when some special blessing or favor has come to us.

e. Without ceasing (1 Thess. 5:16-18). Union with Christ enables us to pray without ceasing, even as He ever prays for us. This does not call for the constant utterance of words, but the moment by moment prayer of a heart and life lifted to Him. With such praying comes constant rejoicing (v. 16).

II. A Model of Prayer (Matt. 6:9-13)

The prayer which our Lord taught His disciples was intended to be a model rather than a form of prayer. We may repeat it, however, if we put into it the prayer of our hearts.

1. God and His Glory (vv. 9, 10). Recognizing Him as our Father to whom we may and must come for all things, we in all humility ascribe all honor to Him. Then we pray that His kingdom may come, not only in the future (and we look forward to it!), but now, in our own hearts. The true believer wants the will of God done in his own life and throughout the earth, even as it is perfectly done in heaven.

This prayer begins at the proper point. A right relationship with God brings true blessing on earth. The one who prays is now ready to present to God

2. Man and His Needs (vv. 11-13). Daily bread is mentioned first, for without it life could not continue. This is the constant need of man, and his great struggle. God is able for that problem, and only He is able. Unless He gives "seed to the sower and bread to the eater" (Isa. 55:10) we are gone.

But man has even greater spiritual needs. Sin needs forgiveness, weakness needs strength, the power of the enemy of our souls calls for deliverance. Again God is able and ready to hear man's prayer.

One of the sad things about the study of prayer is that we are all so ready to talk about it, discuss it, even preach about it, and then do so little praying. Knowing how to pray, and admiring a model of prayer, will profit us nothing, unless we pray.

In a Queer World THE ladybird is not a bird—it is a beetle; nor is the titmouse a mouse—it is a bird. The jugular vein is not a vein—it is an artery. Ex-Mayor Jimmy Walker Sure Knew His Politics

During Jimmy Walker's last campaign, his opponent repeatedly charged him with corruption. He never once affirmed or denied the charge.

"Why do you let him get away with those accusations?" asked an advisor.

"What good would it do?" said Walker. "It would only build him up. But one thing I would like to ask him—what was he doing in Waterbury last July?"

"Was he there at the time?"

"I have no idea," answered Walker. "But if I asked him that, he could deny it until he was blue in the face. A lot of suckers would still think there was something fishy about him and Waterbury."

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Church Supper Ideas

What is so gay as a grand, big get-together full of informal fun, the hum of pleasant conversation and plenty of good food thrown into the bargain? A church supper, of course!

The fun will take care of itself and the food—well, almost if you get the right amount of it, for the cooking's as simple as only simple can be. Chicken's a treat any way you serve it, but very easy to prepare and serve if you do it this time-tried, old-fashioned, favorite way ladled out of a big kettle with plenty of cream sauce onto feathery light hot biscuits:

- *Chicken or Turkey a la King. (Serves 50)
- 4 4-pound chickens, stewed, then cut meat into pieces
- Or
- 1 18-pound turkey, stewed or roasted, meat diced
- 1 pound fat (chicken or turkey fat and butter mixed)
- 4 cups flour
- 2 gallons scalded milk
- 1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 large cans
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1½ teaspoons or more salt
- ¾ teaspoon white pepper
- 1½ teaspoons paprika
- 2 sweet green peppers, chopped (optional)
- 2 pimientos, chopped (optional)
- ½ cup egg yolks (6 eggs)

Melt about three-fourths of the fat, add the flour, and blend thoroughly; add scalded milk, stirring rapidly with a wire whisk to keep well mixed. Cook until starch taste is gone—about 10 minutes. Cook the mushrooms, sliced, in remaining fat, until delicately browned and add to sauce with the onion. Beat egg yolks and mix with a small amount of the hot mixture to blend and add to the sauce, stirring thoroughly. Cook 4 or 5 minutes more. Add turkey meat. Season to taste (with paprika and pepper mixed into salt). Add peppers and pimientos, if used. Serve on hot biscuits.

The simplest way to prepare the chickens is to cook them in sea-

LYNN SAYS:

Attractive salads pep up meals besides adding nourishment plus to menus. Salads in winter are a little hard to plan because of the scarcity of fresh fruits and vegetables, so I suggest you try these for solving your salad problem:

Prunes stuffed with cream cheese and nuts, served with orange sections and lettuce.

Cooked beets and cooked carrots diced with celery, mixed with mayonnaise.

Orange sections served with tiny cream cheese balls. Marinate oranges in french dressing first.

Canned pineapple and fresh oranges served in alternate sections on lettuce. Alternating orange and grapefruit sections are a good idea, too.

Chunks of lettuce with crumbled hard-cooked egg and a few leftover peas, tossed together with salad oil, salt, pepper, vinegar.

soned water, to which a small onion, 2 carrots and a small bunch of celery are added. Chickens are handled best if disjointed and the breast and back sections cut into convenient-sized pieces.

Baking Powder Biscuits.
(Serves 50)

- 4 pounds flour
 - ½ cup double-acting baking powder
 - 2 tablespoons salt
 - 1 pound shortening (2½ cups)
 - 5 cups milk
- Sift the dry ingredients together, add fat and mix lightly. Make a well in the center and add the milk. Mix just until the dough holds together. Divide dough into fourths and make ¼ at a time. Roll on a floured board, pat to ½ inch thickness, cut and place on baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a hot (450 degree) oven until golden brown.

Best idea for a salad is this one that's made in advance and needs only to be sliced and placed on lettuce leaves for serving. It's as gay and colorful as the get-together itself.

Sunset Salad.

- 18 ounces lemon gelatin
 - 2½ quarts hot water and canned pineapple juice
 - 1½ quarts grated raw carrots
 - 1½ pints canned crushed pineapple, drained
 - 2 teaspoons salt
- Dissolve gelatin in hot water and pineapple juice which has been heated to 130 degrees F. Chill. Combine carrots, pineapple and salt. When mixture is slightly thickened, fold in carrot and pineapple mixture. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise and grated carrots. Makes 32 portions.

Just in case you want to make up a church supper menu of your own, I'm listing additional recipes:

Meat Loaf.

- 10 pounds ground round steak
 - 2 pounds ground pork or salt pork
 - 4 eggs
 - ½ pound bread crumbs
 - 2 onions
 - 2 tablespoons salt
 - 2 teaspoons pepper
 - 1 quart cold mashed potatoes
 - 1 quart milk or canned tomatoes
- Mix thoroughly, mold into five loaves, and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., until done. Makes 50 servings.

The wife of one of our famous football coaches, Mrs. Lou Little, likes to serve a simple but hearty meal after the game. Jot this one down as an idea for an after the game supper or church supper idea: Hot mulled cider, casserole of pork and beans, buttered hot date-nut bread, celery, pickles, and chili sauce; jellied cole slaw; doughnuts and coffee.

For the casserole, used canned pork and beans with tomato sauce; heat in the oven about 20 minutes. As a decoration use half slices of date-nut bread. Put them around the top of the beans for 5 minutes before the casserole comes out from the oven.
