Charles L. South

The one outstanding job confronting us today is that of winning the war as soon as we can, and with the loss of as few lives as possible. Representative Charles L. South said in making his formal announcement for reelection to Congress.

"Other matters, however important in themselves, must remain in the background until this job has been done. To the accomplishment of this purpose I pledge my continued best efforts," he added.

South is now the Texas member of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. He succeeded Speaker Sam Rayburn on this committee when Mr Rayburn became Majority Leader.

During his campaign for Congress eight years ago, South advocated: (1) lower interest rates on homes, including farm and ranch homes; 2 an opportunity for deserving tenants to purchase homes on liberal terms; 3 soil conservation and parity prices for agricultural products; 4 truth-in-fabric legislation, which informs a purchaser of the fiber content of a garment by requiring the use of proper labels; 5 a better and more stable income for farmers, and wage earners in the lower income brackets.

Politics Warming Up

All of the above have since been enacted into law, as a result of which many of our people are enjoying a higher standard of living.

South has consistently urged the removal of discriminations and unjust differentials in freight rates, which force people living in Texas and several other agricultural states to pay excessive freight charges.

"Much progress has been made toward a fair adjustment of this problem so vital to the proper growth and development of our immediate section, and more will be made if we continue the fight," he declared.

"I do not feel justified in neglecting my work here in Washington in order to engage in an extensive campaign at this time. If possible, I expect to spend several days in the district later on, at which time I propose to discuss the issues fairly and frankly, as I have always done".

"Upon the record which I have made as your Representative, and upon my ability and desire to continue to serve you honestly and faithfully during these critical days, I solicit your continued confidence and support," the Congressman concluded.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Terrific Air Offensive Against Nazis Is Opened With Epic Raid on Cologne; Violent Fighting in Battle of Kharkov Drains German Reserves in Ukraine

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The above map shows why Hitler drove his armies toward Kerch. Beyond Rostov and the Crimea lies the fabulously rich land called the Caucasus. Larger than the state of Texas, it is wealthy in oil and metals. However, Russian warriors at Kharkov may well shatter the Nazi dream to bits.

HITLER'S EUROPE:

Gets a Taste

From London came the first word of the new United Nations offensive against Hitler on his home grounds—occupied Europe. This first word was described as part propaganda and part actual heavy aerial warfare. The propaganda effect was to strike a definite element of fear into the hearts of the German people by announcing that high U. S. officials had arrived in London to plan an all-out attack upon the Nazis.

There was loud talk of non-stop bombing attacks on the Reich. Said some reports, these attacks would be the heaviest and most fearful the world had ever seen. For the first time American bombing crews were taking their places in the non-stop bombing raids being dealt to industrial centers of the Rhineland.

The London radio let the German people know that Britain was being visited by U. S. Services of Supply Commander Somervell, Air Borne Command (Ground Forces) Commander Lee, SOS Chief of Operations Lutes, and SOS Transportation Services Chief Gross. Army Air Forces Commander Arnold and Chief of Naval Operations (Air) Towers had arrived previously and were already in conference with British military and government leaders, said an official report from Allied headquarters in London.

SOS Commander Somervell told a London press conference that U. S. and British officials were conferring on a program to standardize military equipment, including tanks and planes.

From Washington came a report quoting Army Chief of Staff Marshall as saying that American troops are "landing in England and they will land in France."

Cologne

But the Nazis had something to listen to that was stronger than propaganda. It was the whir of 1,250 British bombers and the thud of 5,000,000 pounds of high explosive bombs as the RAF unleashed the "most devastating aerial raid in history" to level and burn three-fourths of the industrial city of Cologne in a single night.

Called the first of the "four-figure" bombing raids on German industrial centers, this raid on Cologne saw a British bomber swoop over its objective once every six seconds. Equipped with both British and American-made planes the raiders were reported by London sources to have made the vicious Nazi annihilations on Britain last year look feeble by comparison.

Even Berlin admitted that terrific damage had been done. The Royal Air Force used so many planes in the mass raid that anti-aircraft defenses were of little use. This method was described as "super-saturating" the Nazi target field so that his aim was constantly diverted. One after another the planes dove low to blast their objectives. One Canadian flier was quoted as saying that when his turn came so much of the city was in flames that he felt like leaving the scene and seeking another target. It didn't seem possible, he said, to do any additional damage.

RUSSIA:

Kharkov Claims

While local encounters were being reported on the Kharkov front in the Ukraine, the operation was considered as having resulted in two vital factors:

The Kharkov battle drained German reserves and diverted a minimum of 36 German divisions which had been massed for an all-out offensive against Rostov.

A Russian communique stated that while "attempting to improve their positions, the Germans threw in large reserves for three days in continued counterattacks. All counterattacks were repulsed with great losses to the enemy."

Claiming a brilliant success in the 19-day Kharkov campaign, the Russians admitted the loss of 75,000 troops—5,000 killed and 70,000 missing. However, a Red army communique claimed the capture or killing of 90,000 Germans.

The same communique pointed out that Soviet offensive operations in the Kharkov region were started only in order to forestall the anticipated blow of the Nazis. The Russian plans did not include the capture of Kharkov. The communique concluded: "Now that these battles are nearing their end, it can be said that the main task put forward by the Soviet command—to forestall the German blow—has been completed."

MEXICO:

Power for Camacho

With Mexico's proclamation of hostilities, 11 of the 21 American republics became aligned in the war against the Axis. In addition to the United States, war has been declared by Costa Rica, Cuba, Guatemala, Panama, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua, El Salvador and Honduras. Eight other Western hemisphere nations have broken off diplomatic relations.

In paving the way for war on the Axis, the Mexican senate approved a bill to suspend 14 constitutional guarantees, including freedom of the press and the right of habeas corpus. The vote was 53 to 0.

Gen. Salvador Sanchez, chief of Mexican general staff, announced that a supreme national defense council with Camacho at its head was being established to mobilize resources and manpower. The high command has ordered strong army units into positions on the gulf and Pacific coast.

GASOLINE:

Rationing

After WPB Automotive Division Chief Kanzler had stated that gasoline rationing on a nationwide scale would help in relieving potential rubber and automotive replacement parts shortages, Board Chairman Nelson said that administrative difficulties will make it impossible to start a rationing system before July 1.

The Office of Price Administration meanwhile was reporting that the June ration quota of new passenger automobiles will be 40,000, plus carryover of unused quotas from March, April and May.

LIBYA:

Allies Meet Rommel's Drive

From Cairo came the first reports of the opening of a new offensive by the Nazis across the sands of Libya in a drive for Egypt, then Iraq and the rear gate to the Caucasus.

It was Field Marshal Erwin Rommel who was leading the German tank forces against the British in this hot desert campaign. But Rommel's rush met not only the British. It met the full power of American-made tanks.

And with these tanks, Lieut. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie's British troops turned the first spearhead of the Nazis and the terrific engagement of armored forces began once more. The fury of the battle was described as so fierce that a decision in the Tobruk area would not be long in coming, for one side or the other would be forced soon to yield.

GULF:

Frontier Command

As the submarine menace continued to mount in the Gulf of Mexico, the U. S. navy created a gulf sea frontier command and the army at the same time placed the coastal region along the gulf in a military area. This would mean that the district along the gulf coast from Florida to the Rio Grande would be subject to dimouts and blackouts.

Rear Admiral James Laurence Kauffman was chosen by the navy to command gulf sea frontier and Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger, head of the southern defense command for the army, was in charge of the land fighting forces in the district.

No evacuation of citizens was ordered and the army emphasized that civilians within the military area would not be restricted except as to lighting.

Headquarters for the navy forces fighting the submarines in the area will be at Miami.

POISON GAS:

Halts Chinese

"Poison gas" was the cry from China as the Japs were reported to have resorted to this method of fighting to stem a sustained drive by the Chinese to capture fallen Kinshwa and Lanchi in the Chekiang province.

This was not the first time that the Chinese had accused the Japs of using poison gas. Last fall at Ichang, a Yangtze river port, it was officially charged that gas had been used. Also in recent fighting in Burma, the Japs had used gas when hard pressed, the Chinese had reported.

This time, an army communique from Chungking said, the Japs had used this method of fighting only after stubborn resistance by the Chinese had threatened to turn the Chekiang offensive into a Jap defeat.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE:

West Coast

The equipping of West coast police and firemen with gas masks gave evidence that the Pacific seaboard is bracing itself for an enemy attack.

James M. Landis, left, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, talks with Stanley W. Donogh, assistant regional director OCD director in Seattle. Speaking at Portland, Ore., Landis said: "This is a priority region, tops in our strategic thinking. I've directed (civilian defense) equipment here to the anger of other regions."

tack which Secretary of War Stimson considers likely.

Gas mask pouches made their appearance in coast cities from Seattle to San Diego. Mass distribution of masks to civilian defense workers was begun at the same time.

The defense activity followed Stimson's warning that a reprisal raid by Japan for the Tokyo bombing is a distinct possibility.

New shipping precautions were taken along the Gulf of Mexico when night shore lighting from New Orleans to Brownsville was ordered blotted out by the army.

Newly Inducted Soldiers Find Army Is Efficient

Businesslike Military Routine Gives Boost to Morale; Recruits Are Anxious to Serve Where Best Fitted.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

I sat the other day in the office of General Hershey, Selective Service administrator, as he leaned back, one ankle drawn up on his khaki knee and listened to him talk about scarcities. Not the kind of scarcities we hear about when the old argument of scarcity-versus abundance of farm crops comes up, although it might have been such a talk for General Hershey is very much of a farmer. It was a talk about the scarcity of men of the ideal age for the army—ideal from the standpoint of adaptability to military life, physical energy, lack of dependents and other responsibility, lack of training that is needed for agriculture or industry.

The general did some lightning calculations that I couldn't follow but it started with the total number of men of ideal fighting age. Then came subtractions for the ones with dependents, the ones needed on the farm and in the factory and the 25 per cent more which it might be expected would have physical disabilities.

According to plans announced now the United States needs for the army, navy and marine corps (including two million for the air force) nine million men. About three million are now in the service.

When General Hershey finished with the figuring I found that there are about 18 million men available for military service from which six million must be recruited if the army plans are carried out. And out of that 18 million there has to be saved back the ones we can't get elsewhere for agriculture and industry and no one is sure how many that will be.

In any case it means that about one out of every three men of military age will eventually be called.

Grave Responsibilities

That is why such a heavy responsibility rests on the shoulders of the draft boards, and behind the draft boards on all employers of labor. That is also why congress has made the effort to get a sharp clarification regarding deferments because of dependents or because of employment needs. Meanwhile every man from 18 to 44 is left in a state of indecision, for of course all these men cannot be called at the same time. A lot of them would be glad to hear the call and get it over.

Last Sunday I had lunch with a young man who had been moving in a sea of uncertainty for months; it was impossible for him or his wife to make the necessary plans to arrange their existence in case he went into the army. Then out of a clear sky he was called. He had been in the army for one week when I saw him and I never saw such a change. It was largely due to relief. He had come home on a furlough granted him to take care of business matters. He was full of praise for army efficiency and had high hopes that he would be able to do just what he had found it impossible to do before; namely, find out the niche into which he would fit, where he would not only be doing the best job he could do for the country but a job which was best fitted to his experience and training and therefore his peace of mind. He was a man who was energetic and active and if he had been chained to a paper-work job he would have been a misfit. He had worried lest, because he was a college man and had to wear glasses, he would get some kind of clerical work rather than a more active assignment.

As a rule you will find, I believe, that the average man of military age feels this way: he is willing to do whatever job his country wants him to do. He wants to do the job he can do best. He doesn't want to break up his education, his family arrangements, his business career if he is not going to be called, yet he wants to plan ahead if he is sure any of these things are going to be necessary. When he is called, and the decision is made and he finds himself in the army and finds that army life and army routine are a lot more businesslike than he thought, his morale goes up like the mercury in August. That is the reason why a lot of soldiers are saying, "What's the matter with civilian morale?" instead of it being the other way around as many people thought it would be at first.

With the launching of more and more Allied offensive action, with more and more American units engaged, the attitude of the pre-draftee is expected to change. The need of his help will be brought home.

1942 will see about 2,250,000 new men joining the army, air force and navy. Every effort will be made to defer those with dependents and to take the older men last. That is the reason for the army's insistence on drafting the 18 and 19 year group. The chief argument against calling the younger men is that it breaks up their schooling. But schooling can be taken up again. Taking family men disturbs the social and economic life of the nation. Taking skilled workers and men who are already fitted into the economic pattern of the nation, disturbs the war effort.

Although few but the most optimistic say so, it may not be necessary to call any more men after 1942—if the war is still going full tilt then another 2,250,000 will be needed in 1943—but there is no use counting our ugly ducklings before they are hatched.

An Old Comrade

From Ciudad Trujillo

This is the story of the main base for the military forces invading the Western hemisphere—the first and highly successful invasion of the American continent. It was from here that foreign invaders launched their pitiless attacks which placed the peoples of the western world under a European flag, despoiled their wealth, broke their spirit, destroyed their culture and reduced them to vassalage.

I am speaking of what is now known as Ciudad Trujillo.

The fortress built by the first invader still stands in that city—today this city is probably as far from the war and the rumors of war as any spot on earth. It is the capital city of the island of Santo Domingo where Columbus landed and whence Pizarro, Cortez, Ponce de Leon, Balboa, and every Spanish invader set forth to crush and conquer the New World.

But first a digression to bring you back by way of Paris to Washington where today's story starts:

There used to be a saying about Paris—that if you sat long enough at a table on the sidewalk in front of the Cafe de la Paix (at that fascinating corner of the Avenue de l'Opera and the Boulevard des Italiens) you would be certain to see somebody you knew go by, no matter where you came from.

Today Pennsylvania avenue in Washington has become the world's boulevard—only we have no sidewalk cafes. We have only very crowded restaurants. Perhaps the real world rendezvous is the wide waiting room of the executive offices of the White House.

Today, as I sat waiting for the correspondents to line up and show their passes and be admitted to the oval office for the regular semi-weekly press and radio conference, who should appear but my old comrade Oliver Newman, major of infantry in the last war, one-time commissioner (mayor) of the District of Columbia, Iowa farm boy and prince of good fellows.

You ought to see Ollie around a horse—or a mule. What he doesn't know about these critters, whether they are pulling a load of hay, yanking a 75 out of the mud, or stretching noses toward the finish line, adds up to nearly minus.

But that is only a part of the accomplishments which have been many and varied in the field of politics, society, finance, and, shall we say, climatically, journalism.

Anyhow, Major Newman came up and extended his hand. I have met him surprisingly in other less congenial places than the White House. This time he had just returned from his distant post in Santo Domingo where he is advisor to the government, for a vacation in the capital which is half his home.

(Ciudad Trujillo—Santo Domingo—is the capital city of the Dominican Republic island which is situated southeast of Florida, between Cuba and Puerto Rico.

CHAPTER X

Harcourt picked up the belt and holster which he had dropped to the desk when he came in. The shoulder holster which held its twin was empty.

"Pascal!"
No answer to his call. The boy was doubtless helping the Samp girls in their preparations.

Plump Miss Mary in a dove-gray taffeta, its balloon sleeves proclaiming it of the vintage of '94, its rose-point bertha suggesting a grandmother of parts, greeted him as he entered the Samp living-room.

"Well, now! Well, now! Janice is dressing, Mr. Bruce. Mary and I begged her to wear one of her lovely evening dresses for our party. She let us choose it from a trunk in the storehouse." She patted his sleeve. "Don't you look nice."

"That goes for you too, Miss Mary. You almost knocked my eyes out with your pretty dress." He bent his head and kissed her rosy, wrinkled cheek. "Thank you for arranging Jan's room. When did you hear the news?"

"You're the most heart-warming person, Mr. Bruce. I feel as though I'd been sitting in the sun after I've been with you." She smiled through tears, dabbed at her eyes. "Mr. Tubby radioed the news before he left the city. Such a surprise."

Janice was lovelier even than he had thought her. Her pale blue gown, silvery as the edges of a cloud, suggested a fairy loom. Slippers which matched her gown had bows of sparkling stones which were repeated in the clasp of a bag of antique brocade. She laid a mandarin coat, heavily embroidered with mauve and purple iris, carefully over the back of a chair.

He picked up the mandarin coat. "Taking this?"

"Yes. I'll use it as a wrap. Isn't it gorgeous? I found it in my room here. Tubby must have bought it for a wedding present when he went back to the city. He knew that I was mad about it. I suspect that it was frightfully expensive. It is taking goods under false pretenses for me to accept it. I ought to give it back, but I love it. Can he afford to buy a thing like this?"

"Probably not every day, but weddings do not occur every day at headquarters. Why hurt the donor by returning his gift? Let's go."

An orchestra, consisting of fiddle, flute and saxophone, agonized into the Wedding March from Lohengrin, as they appeared in the doorway of the Waffle Shop.

Janice laughed and parried questions, played her part brilliantly. No one could suspect from her manner that she was not the most gorgeously happy bride in the world, Harcourt told himself with a tinge of bitterness. Her radiance vanished like sunshine blotted by a cloud as Millicent Hale approached.

"Dear Mrs. Harcourt, how sweet of you to provide an occasion for civilized clothes. I am consumed with curiosity to know how you accomplished it. I've heard Bruce declare repeatedly that never, while he was in Alaska, would he marry. What brand of coercion did you use?"

The malice of the attack rendered Harcourt speechless. Was the little woman whom he had considered pathetically helpless like that? Was Janice as amazed as he? He glanced at her in concern. She was looking straight into the eyes watching her with cat-like intentness.

"It was a method quite my own, Mrs. Hale. You couldn't possibly use it." Harcourt came out of his trance of surprise, laid his hand on her bare arm. She shook it off, turned to extend her hand to Chester. Challenged gaily:

"Why the gloomy brow? Cheerio! This is a party, not a memorial service."

Before he could answer Tubby Grant seized him.

"Want you, Jimmy. Going to stage an old-timer. The Samp girls are stepping out in a quadrille." "Salute Partners!" Miss Martha spread her plum-color taffeta skirts with work-worn hands and curtsied to the floor, recovered, made a deep obeisance in response to a shouted, "Salute Corners."

Her beautiful dignity set the keynote for the dance. The others kept watchful eyes on the sisters, who sailed through the figures with the grace of an angular and a chubby swan.

"Change Partners!" Millicent Hale was first to give out. She turned to Bruce:

"I haven't danced so much nor so hard since the winter I came out. Do take me home, Bruce. Jimmy has disappeared. Joe will be furious if I stay longer."

For the fraction of a second Harcourt hesitated. Why pick on him? Better to humor her. She might make a scene. Anything was credible after her hateful attack on Janice.

"Of course I didn't need an escort this short distance, Bruce, but I had to consult you about Jimmy."

"Jimmy! What's the matter with Jimmy?"

"That's what I want to know. Today when I entered our cabin, he was threatening Joe with a pistol."

An empty shoulder holster hanging against a log wall flashed on the screen of Harcourt's mind and was gone.

"As I entered," said Millicent, Jimmy was saying:

"Send for her again and I'll shoot you. You've messed up my sister's life, that's enough. Get me?"

"I couldn't believe it was Joe huddled in his chair, livid, afraid. Joe afraid! As I looked at him I thought what a poor fool I had been all these years, not to stand up to him, not to threaten him. He is a bully and a coward, Bruce, and I've never before found it out."

"If you have lost your fear of him, it is a lot gained, Millicent. For whom did Joe send, do you know?"

"No. Unless—unless Jimmy found out about Tatima. Joe has made a fool of her with flattery. Nothing worse, I'm sure, but she follows him about like a dog."

"I'll speak to Jimmy. He will have to turn over his gun to me, if that is the use he is making of it."

"You can't lose what you never had, Millicent."

"Talk with him, Bruce. Poor boy, he has never forgotten his experiences overseas. You will have more influence than anyone else." She laid her hand on his arm. "We all dump our worries on your shoulders, don't we? I shan't dare do it now that you are married. I feel as though I had lost you."

Under pretense of producing his cigarette case Harcourt stepped back.

"You can't lose what you never had, Millicent. Good-night!"

He heard her little gasp as he turned on his heel.

As he entered the Waffle Shop Miss Martha and Miss Mary, crimson faced from the exertions of the dance, with mammoth white aprons over their creaking taffetas, were serving the ice-cream which Grant had brought hundreds of miles in a plane. As he approached Janice he heard Jimmy Chester say harshly:

"He'll never send for you again."

Had Joe Hale sent for Janice? The suspicion tightened Harcourt's lips. The girl looked up at him. There was a hint of resentment in her voice.

"Oh, you have come back. Jimmy and I had decided that you didn't like the party, hadn't we, Jimmy?"

It was evident that she had seen him go out with Millicent. He answered evenly.

"I'm crazy about the party. Did you think I would leave before I had danced with my bride? The musicians have finished their gorge and are tuning up. By the way, Chester, be ready with a track-laying gang to go up the inlet at reveille. You have all the specifications. Short notice, but you can make it. Want to push the work while this weather holds." He held out his hand. "My dance—Mrs. Harcourt."

He was conscious of Jimmy Chester's pale, frowning regard as they moved away in rhythmic step to the music. He watched him until he left the room. Janice looked up.

"Sorry I was catty, Bruce."

He held her the fraction of a degree closer. "Were you catty? Millicent was raw to you, Jan, but don't lay it up against her. This last year has set her nerves on edge."

"I wonder if a year here will do that to mine."

"You won't have a chance to find out."

"Won't I? Perhaps you will like having me here so much you'll beg me to stay."

His arm tightened. "Dance well together, don't we?" There was a hint of strain in her laugh. "The fighting line again. Tubby wants me here if you don't. Yes, we are good. We might make a dancing team, if engineering fails."

"That's a thought. Sorry, but it is time the festivities broke up. All of us must be sons of toil again tomorrow. We, being the guests of honor, should make a move. That correct? I suspect Tubby of a theatrical climax. We will dance round to the door, vanish and escape."

As they stole surreptitiously from the Waffle Shop, the heavens still held a trace of the glory of the sunset. Above the broken crater spread a coppery glow.

Janice drew a long uneven breath. "It is more gorgeous than I had imagined." As they turned toward the H house, she said lightly: "Ever since I arrived as Jimmy Delevan, I have been consumed by curiosity to—see the inside of your cabin."

He answered by throwing open the door. As they crossed the threshold a shower of confetti pelted them. It powdered their hair, lay like colored snow on their shoulders, one adventurous particle clung to Janice's eyelashes. She laughed unsteadily as she brushed it away.

"The trail of the resourceful Mr. Grant. Doubtless he expected you to carry your bride over the threshold, as big strong men do in the movies and points south."

Harcourt laid his hands lightly on her shoulders. "We will postpone that ceremony. Take off your wrap. The room is hot. Pasca keeps these fires roaring."

She slipped off the heavily embroidered mandarin coat. He laid it on the couch, crossed to the fireplace and lighted a cigarette. Arm on the mantel, he watched her eyes travel from the Indian blankets on the log walls to the Russian samovar, saw them glow with admiration as they rested on the Chinese pewter tea-service, linger on the rich pelts on the floor. They met his.

"Like it?"

"Love it. How did these rare things get into this wilderness?"

"Small trading vessels stop for any one of a dozen reasons. The captain or mate usually has something choice he will dispose of for a consideration."

"I'm mad about that Chinese pewter. We'll have tea every afternoon."

"Everything I have is yours, Jan." The huskiness of his voice sent the color to her face. That wouldn't do. He opened a door, snapped on a light, said grandiloquently, "Behold the kitchenette!"

She stepped to the threshold. "Pale green, and a gray-and-white linoleum on the floor. My word, but you are modern!"

"I told you that I lost my head over the H house. After we had finished the chimneys, they just naturally required bedrooms to utilize their other sides; bedrooms required baths; a house this size needed a kitchen. I have never regretted it. Planning and ordering kept Archie Harper busy and happy. He worked up to almost the last moment of his life, and now I have it for you." He nodded toward a lighted room. "Your things are in there. If you are not too tired I should like to talk a while, Jan."

"Except for the fact that my feet are shredded to ribbons—that wasn't a dance, it was a riot—I am not in the least tired. I will change my slippers and come back."

"I'll get your sandals." He pulled the fan-back chair a bit nearer the fire. "Sit here—" As she hesitated he added, "Please."

He dropped to one knee in front of her. "Stick out your foot." He gently removed the high-heeled blue slipper with its sparkling bow, put on the sandal. "That better?" She nodded. "The other." He held the slender foot in his hand after it was shod. "Jan, you understand, don't you—Who the dickens is pounding like that? Is Tubby trying to be funny?"

"Someone is beating with both fists. Go! Quick!"

Harcourt pulled open the door. Millicent Hale stumbled into the room. "Bruce!" Her terrified eyes widened as Janice took a step toward her. She shut them. Sobbed. With arms outflung she braced herself against the log wall. Brilliantly swinging from her ears, on her green frock, quivered with light. She shuddered. Gasp for control. Harcourt caught her shoulder.

History in the News

'Attention: A. Hitler'

THIS is marked "Attention: Adolf Schickelgruber, alias Hitler":

You say the Jews and Poles are "inferior races" and not fit to associate with your tribe of "Nordic supermen." So, ever since you came to power in Germany, you have subjected them to the cruelest, most senseless persecution that a so-called human being ever visited upon his fellow-men.

This is to tell you about something which took place recently in the second largest city of a land where its citizens "hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

In this city a great crowd of people gathered to dedicate this monument:

That figure on the left is the likeness of a man named Robert Morris. (Possibly you wouldn't know about him, Herr Schickelgruber.) That majestic figure in the center is George Washington. (Surely you've heard of him!) The name of the man on the right is Haym Salomon and—mark this well, Adolf!—he was a Polish Jew! In fact, it was to honor especially this scion of what you would call a "doubly inferior race" that this monument was erected.

The reason they are clasping hands, Herr Schickelgruber, is because they once joined together in a fight for freedom from the tyranny of a stupid king in whose veins, incidentally, ran the blood of that race which you boastfully call "Nordic supermen." Now, 160 years after their successful fight for liberty, they are still clasping hands as a symbol of the unity that exists in the nation which they helped create and against which you declared war last December.

This monument is symbolical of another fact also, Herr Schickelgruber. You have conquered the native land of Haym Salomon but some day it will free itself from your hateful rule just as the native land of Robert Morris and George Washington (and Haym Salomon's adopted land) freed itself from the hateful rule of another despot of German blood!

The Morris-Washington-Salomon monument which was dedicated in Chicago recently pays belated tribute to one of the unsung heroes of the American Revolution. Born in Poland in 1740, Salomon came to America in 1772 and set himself up as a broker and commission merchant in New York city. He might have made a fortune for himself but he hindered his chances by joining the Sons of Liberty to help resist oppressive acts of the British crown.

Imprisoned by the British soon after the opening of the Revolution, Salomon escaped to Philadelphia. There he met Robert Morris who had been made superintendent of finance and upon whom fell the task of providing the money to pay Washington's soldiers and keep the struggling new government from collapsing for lack of funds. It was to Haym Salomon that Morris turned when he was desperately in need of money to keep the revolution going and the Polish Jew never failed him.

The ledgers of Robert Morris, which have been preserved, are filled with no less than 75 entries bearing the name of Haym Salomon and, although the total amount of money which he supplied will never be known, it is estimated that it totaled at least $800,000. Although it can not be proved definitely that all of this was his own money, it is probable that the most of it was.

And his reward? When he died January 6, 1785, it was found that he was virtually bankrupt. He left a widow and four children facing poverty and it is a melancholy fact that for more than 80 years his heirs tried in vain to get recompense from congress for the money which Salomon had lent to the patriot cause.

Facts About Flies

One pair of flies can multiply to 335,923,200,000,000 flies in 10 weeks, if all their offspring live, according to Alan Devoe in Reader's Digest. In writing about "Our Enemy the Fly," Devoe says that a fly egg hatches in 24 hours, the larva becomes an adult fly in less than 10 days. Thereafter at 10-day intervals, for 8 to 10 weeks, the female fly lays 100 eggs. The total for nine generations of a single pair thus amounts to trillions of offspring.

"We must fight continuously against adult flies that get into our houses, wielding old-fashioned swatter, spraying, using fly-paper," says Devoe.

E. F. SMITH FOR Chief Justice COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS

Thousand Dollar Court Opinions

"The present Chief Justice wrote seven opinions during the year 1941 originally disposing of lawsuits. These opinions cost the tax payers more than a thousand dollars each! Is it any wonder that the Court is so far behind with its work? The people will choose between E. F. Smith and the present Chief Justice. We have made our choice. It is E. F. Smith". -The Holland Progress.

Elect E. F. Smith in the Public Interest

"We make the following statement, which we believe to be accurate for the benefit of the voters: E. F. Smith has a good record as a lawyer, he is an able writer on legal subjects, and has an enviable record in the public service. The Court is about eighteen months behind with its work. E. F. Smith is 52 years old and is known as a hard worker. The incumbent has been in his present position for about 20 years and previously he had served on the Commission of Appeals. He will be 70 years old in 1943. The term of office is six years. The incumbent is asking for a fourth elective term of six years at an age which is the retirement age fixed by Congress for Federal Judges."

Sterling City News Record.

"We agree with President Roosevelt that Judges should retire at 70 years, giving place to younger men who are more familiar with present conditions and who have the strength to do the work that our Judges are required to do." - Llano News.

"From our exchanges it appears that practically all the sixty-four newspapers published in the twenty-four counties of the Third Supreme Judicial District favor the candidacy of E. F. Smith. This is true because it is believed that this able lawyer and writer on legal subjects can best serve the public interests as a Judge on our Court of Civil Appeals. He has our support."

Hays County Herald.

Fortunately, the present Chief Justice, who at seventy years is asking for a fourth elective term of six years, is wealthy. The court is far behind with its work and in these troubled times only men who are willing and able to work should be elected to public office."

Winters Enterprise

E. F. Smith did not inherit or marry wealth. He began his career at the Bar, as did most lawyers of twenty-five or thirty years ago, with nothing more than high hopes, great ambitions, and a willingness to work. He has won his present high place among Texas lawyers by a wholehearted devotion to the law and by strict observance of the ethics of his profession." Temple Daily Telegram.

"Judge E. F. Smith is one of the better lawyers of Texas, and a man who enjoys the respect of those who know him best. He announced for Chief Justice, Court of Civil Appeals last December. Soon after the present Chief Justice announced he would be a candidate for a fourth elective term of six years. We are sorry he did this, for we have high regard for the person and character of the present Chief Justice, but believe that at his advanced age, his reelection would be contrary to the best interests of the people."

Georgetown Sun

Recognizing the unchallenged ability and integrity of E. F. Smith a majority of the lawyers in the Third Supreme Judicial District favor his candidacy. Ask your lawyer about the ability of E. F. Smith

Comments About E. F. Smith

Mr. Smith was admitted to the Bar in 1915. He was an Assistant Attorney General in the administration of Attorney General C. M. Cureton and was first assistant to Attorney General W. A. Keeling. He has engaged in the private practice of law in Austin since 1924. In 1932 he was delegate at large from Texas to the Democratic National Convention which nominated President Roosevelt. He is author of Steck's Corporation Forms and author of A Saga of Texas Law. A review of a Saga of Texas law written by Federal Judge J. C. Hutchenson places Judge Smith among the nation's outstanding authors of legal subjects." --Austin American

In this time of national crisis, it is good to have one of the foremost lawyers of the state offer as a candidate for high judicial office. By natural ability, training experience and temperament E. F. Smith is well qualified for the office he seeks." Austin Tribune.

"The candidacy of E. F. Smith is most gratifying. He is one of the best lawyers in Texas, a gifted writer on legal subjects, who at fifty-two is in his physical and mental prime, a good man, and a hard worker. E. F. Smith is of the people and believes with his whole heart and soul in protecting all our natural rights according to the guarantees of the Bill of Rights". --Taylor Daily Press

Men and who have known E. F. Smith have a concurrence of opinion, which is that he is both highminded and honorable and that his ability as a lawyer is unchallenged". -- LaGrange Journal

"E. F. Smith is strictly a lawyer, in no sense a politician". -- Wm. M. Thornton, Austin Correspondent of The Dallas News

"By every test, E. F. Smith is well qualified to make a good appellate court judge". -Lampasas Record.

"E. F. Smith's election will assure the people of a judge whose sole obligation will be to all the people." Robert Lee Observer.

"E. F. Smith has the highest standing as a lawyer". Lometa Reporter

"E. F. Smith is best known in West Texas for the long and splendid fight he made in defending the farm and ranch owners when the attempt was made to take from them the title to the minerals in their lands". Brady Standard

"E. F. Smith's experience as a lawyer, his enviable record in the public service and his recognized talent as a writer on legal subjects should enable him to be a good judge." Texas Posten

"We like E. F. Smith." San Saba News

"I have known E. F. Smith since I was a boy. I respect him for his moral and intellectual honesty, his personal integrity, his whole some interest in the cause of education, his genuine democracy, his real patriotism, and for his learning, not alone in law, but in subjects of government, history, philosophy, and all literature."

R. M. Cavaness President, San Marcos Academy.

The legal ability of E. F. Smith has long been recognized by the lawyers and judges of his acquaintance. A good man, an experienced lawyer and a hard worker, he will, in our opinion, make an excellent appellate court judge." Lockhart Post Register

The above are but a few of the many testimonials to the character, ability and qualifications of E. F. Smith. Others will be presented during the campaign.

A Bride's Cake to Greet You at the Reception!
(See Recipes Below.)

Wedding Receptions

After the "I do's" have been said, and you have remembered to wear something borrowed, something blue, and something new, besides throwing your bouquet to some lucky bridesmaid, you are ready for the reception.

The reception is among the more elaborate forms of entertaining, but because of our wartime status, this year's event will undoubtedly be more simple. Simplicity, however, does not imply lack of charm or graciousness, indeed, it often enhances it the more.

*Chicken in Molded Egg Ring.
(Serves 8)

- 2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 1/2 cups mayonnaise
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- 1/2 green pepper chopped
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 12 hard-cooked eggs
- 1 recipe of chicken salad

Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Cool. Add mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt, onion, green pepper, parsley, and 10 eggs, chopped. Cover bottom of mold with one inch of the mixture. Slice remaining eggs and arrange slices around side of mold. Add remaining mixture and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce, fill center with chicken salad and garnish with salted almonds and tomato wedges. Serve with mayonnaise or french dressing.

Chicken Salad.
2 cups cooked, diced chicken
French dressing
1/2 cup diced celery
1/2 teaspoon onion juice
1/4 cup shredded, toasted almonds

Marinate chicken in french dressing for an hour. Drain. Add remaining ingredients with just enough salad dressing to moisten. Season with salt and pepper taste. Chill well.

Make the reception a really memorable occasion by serving a beautiful Bride's salad, all fruity and creamy with the Egg Mold. Here's how to do it:

*Bride's Salad.
(Serves 8)
1 large can pears
1 large can white cherries

Lynn Says:

Here's help to solve your gift problems for the bride: Linen minimums include the following: 8 sheets, 6 pillowcases, 2 pairs blankets, 2 wool coverlets, 2 bathmats, 8 bath towels, 8 face cloths and 12 linen hand towels.

For the dining room, the bride will need 2 dinner sets with 6 to 8 napkins, 3 breakfast or luncheon sets, 6 to 8 extra dinner napkins, 12 tea napkins, and 2 hot plate mats.

If possible, the bride should have a set of 6 in each of the following pieces of china. If she expects to set up housekeeping on a larger scale, this list may be expanded to 8 or 12 pieces. China set includes: salad plates, soup plates, cups and saucers, dinner plates, sauce dishes, bread-and-butter plates. For serving dishes the following are "musts": 1 large platter (for meat and vegetables), 1 covered dish, 2 open vegetable dishes, tea and coffee pots, and sugar and creamers.

This Week's Menu

- Wedding Reception
- *Chicken in Molded Egg Ring
- *Bride's Salad
- Hot Rolls and Biscuits
- Salted Nuts Preserves Olives
- *Bride's Cake
- Coffee
- *Recipes Given

- 1/2 pound almonds
- 1 large can sliced pineapple
- 1/2 pound marshmallows

Drain and cut fruits. Chop nuts and cut marshmallows with a wet scissors. Make the following cooked dressing:

- Yolks of four eggs
- Juice of one lemon
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk
- 1/4 teaspoon mustard

Combine all ingredients and let cook over hot water until the mixture thickens. Cool. Fold in 2 cups whipped cream. Combine with fruit (well drained), add nuts and fold in marshmallows. Place in a mold, in the refrigerator overnight. Serve surrounded with endive or lettuce.

*Bride's Cake.

- 3 3/4 cups sifted cake flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons double acting baking powder
- 1 3/4 cups butter
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 1/4 cups egg whites, unbeaten
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually. Cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg whites, 1/4 cup at a time, beating three minutes after each addition. Add flour, a small amount at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flavoring and beat vigorously. Turn into a 10-inch tube pan which has been greased and lined on the bottom, sides and around the tube with heavy, waxed paper. Bake in a slow (275-degree) oven 1 hour; then increase the heat slightly to 300 degrees, and bake 50 minutes longer, or until done. Insert favors, if desired, wrapping each in waxed paper, and pressing into small slits in the cake. Spread ornamental butter frosting smoothly on top and sides of cake. Decorate with simple borders and rosettes of the frosting, and trim with silver dragees. Serve on silver tray or platter with delicate sprays of fern, cosmos, or bridal wreath. Place special bridal favors on top of cake; or, tie small wedding bells or other favors to white ribbons and intertwine through sprays.

Ornamental Butter Frosting.
4 tablespoons butter
5 cups sifted confectioners sugar
2 egg whites, unbeaten
2 tablespoons cream (about)
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream butter; add part of sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Add remaining sugar alternately with egg whites, then with cream, until of right consistency to spread. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla and salt. Spread cake. Make rosettes and borders with frosting forced through the pastry tube.

SUNDAY: THE RISEN CHRIST AND HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:33-48.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are witnesses of these things.—Luke 24:48.

The glory and gladness of the resurrection morning drove back the darkness of the tomb and replaced the disciples' sadness with holy gladness. God's message to His people is one of assurance and hope. The night may be dark, but the dawn will surely come.

Two of Jesus' disciples had been walking sadly along the road to Emmaus when suddenly a stranger was with them, telling them what the Scriptures taught about the Christ—His sufferings and His glory. Their hearts burned strangely within them (Luke 24:32), but they did not recognize Him until He broke the bread of their evening meal—and then He was gone.

But now they had a joyous message which sent them hurrying back to Jerusalem to the eleven who had gathered behind locked doors to discuss the reports which had also come to them of His resurrection. And suddenly—

I. "Jesus Himself Stood in the Midst" (vv. 33-43).

What a blessed and conclusive confirmation of their report. He, their beloved Lord and Master, stood there before them, alive and speaking His tender message of "Peace."

The disciples, however, were bewildered and slow to believe. Observe how kind and patient He was with these frightened and unbelieving men. And note what a splendid testimony it is to the truth of the resurrection that they who knew Him best expected proof before they believed.

Before we condemn them for lack of faith let us ask ourselves if we would have done better, and let us be thankful that their hesitation made assurance doubly sure. He was really there—alive.

He next gave them a sure foundation for faith.

II. "Then Opened He Their Understanding" (vv. 44, 45).

This He did that they might "understand the scriptures." Their minds had become confused and He literally "disentangled" them. We need to have the knots and kinks taken out of our thinking.

Dealing with the entire Old Testament (divided by the Hebrews into law, prophets and psalms), He thus gave it His endorsement. Men may deny, but Jesus approved the Scriptures of the Old Testament—and we are ready to take His word. "All things must be fulfilled" is His statement concerning Himself. There is our Lord's guarantee that the promises of His second coming, and all that is associated with it, as well as with His future reign, will be fulfilled.

This time of fellowship with the Lord around the Word of God was strengthening to their faith, but it had another purpose. The blessings of God are not for our own satisfaction alone, for it is His will that there be—

III. "Repentance Preached in His Name" (vv. 46-48).

There is a message to go out through His disciples to all nations. He died for the justification of those who believe. There is remission of sin for those who in repentance and faith turn to Him.

Fellowship with Christ and an understanding of His Word which does not result in aggressive witness for Him is quite useless.

To be a witness involves knowledge of a fact, to the truth of which the individual can bear testimony. The disciples were called to be witnesses, "not speculators, philosophers, moralists or legislators. They had neither to argue nor to dissertate, nor to lay down rules for conduct, nor to ventilate their own fancies. They were witnesses, and their business was to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth" (Alexander Maclaren).

It may be difficult in our times to send witnesses to distant lands, for ships are busy carrying the men and implements of war. But right in your Jerusalem there is a spiritual need, in your little town or rural community, in the city where you live, in your home, office, shop, or school. You who read this who are in the service of the country will find a "Jerusalem" in your camp or on your ship.

Oldest Flag in America

The oldest known flag in existence in North America is the banner of Cortez which was borne in the procession when Cortez returned thanks to God at Cuyoacan for the capture of Mexico City, 1519. It is now preserved under glass in the National museum, Mexico City.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up night leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

AROUND THE HOUSE

A fine spread for lunch sandwiches: Cover a pound of dried apricots with water and cook until tender. Then add an equal quantity of apples (in bulk) and cook all together. When it is cooked, sweeten to suit the taste.

To provide the most adequate serving of omelet allow three eggs for every two servings.

Unused soap should be made into soap jelly and used for washing stockings, gloves, lingerie and curtains.

Inspect the refrigerator every morning before planning the day's menu. That is one of the best ways of checking on the cooked food supply and of utilizing every leftover.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A STOOL often looks better in front of a desk or telephone stand than a chair with a high back. A substantial wooden box may make the foundation, and if well padded and smartly covered will be as attractive as anything that you could buy.

Before shopping for materials check over things on hand. Moss, horse hair and even feathers from discarded upholstered pieces may be sewn in a cheese cloth bag and washed before using again. Worn draperies and bedspreads usually have unfaded good pieces in them that may be used for covering a small piece like this.

NOTE: Have you sent for a copy of the new BOOK 8, in the series of homemaking booklets which Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers? It contains 31 of these ideas for homemakers with all directions. To get a copy of BOOK 8, send your order to:

Horace Greeley Disliked Being Disillusioned

Horace Greeley, famous editor of the old New York Tribune, was notoriously absent-minded. While he was at work at his desk, a water pipe might spring a leak over his head and drip down on him for hours without his being in the least aware of it.

One cold Sunday morning, Mr. Greeley stepped into the Tribune office after church. Taking off his boots, he sat down before one of the hot-air registers to warm his feet and read the papers.

After a while the janitor happened by and, seeing the boss there, exclaimed: "There's no heat coming up from downstairs, Mr. Greeley. The boiler is being fixed."

The editor glowered at the man. "You fool," he yelled. "What did you want to tell me that for? I was just getting nice and warm!"

BUY UNITED STATES BONDS AND STAMPS

When armored knights met, it was customary for each knight to raise the visor of his helmet as a means of identification. This gesture has come down through all armies in the form of the salute. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel Cigarettes. In the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, actual sales records in their Service Stores show Camel is the favorite. Favorite gift with service men is also Camels by the carton. Local tobacco dealers are featuring Camel cartons to send to men in the armed forces anywhere.—Adv.

PREPAREDNESS by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

MATERIAL assistance to service men's dependents by the 3,700 chapters of the American Red Cross has increased more than six-fold in the past few months, officials announced today.

Families or dependents of men in the armed forces are urged to keep in close touch with their Red Cross chapters so that existing problems may be handled promptly and others arising from war conditions may be prevented.

When war was declared wholesale cancellation of applications for discharges from the army on the grounds of dependency upset families' plans for the immediate future. Likewise, the transfer of troops from one station to another, and orders for departure from the country, left many unsettled problems. These sudden shifts created an unprecedented increase of work for the chapters.

However, with its resources generously contributed by the American people, the Red Cross is enabled to relieve immediate hardships of the service men's families and to help them plan adjustments to wartime conditions.

Officials stress the fact that this service to dependents is a legal and moral obligation of the Red Cross derived from its congressional charter. Hence, when families seek help from the Red Cross in coping with difficulties caused by the soldier's absence they are not asking either favors or charity but a service which is theirs by governmental right.

Young wives and children left stranded far from home; parents who are hard-pushed to make ends meet; younger brothers and sisters in need of food or clothing—these are just a few of the thousands of situations which are being taken care of by local Red Cross home service workers.

If a service man is reported killed, wounded or missing the Red Cross will obtain information through its communication facilities. The men of the armed forces are likewise served by the thousand or more field workers on duty at all major military and naval stations at home and abroad. The minds of men on duty are relieved by the knowledge that the Red Cross will help clear up the unsettled problems they left behind.
