F. S. A. News

Now is the time for Coke county farmers to engage in "trench warfare" to help defeat the axis, Mr. S. F. Malone stated in announcing that FSA loans are available to local farmers for the construction of trench silos and other harvesting operations.

Trench silos will help FSA borrowers to help win the war, "Mr. Malone continued, because silo feed will help them to produce dairy products, beef and mutton more economically."

Coke County farmers who are eligible FSA borrowers and who may need loans for digging and filling trench silos, harvesting feed or other farm production purposes are urged to contact Mr. Malone at his office in Robert Lee.

V-Mail Service

Facilities for photographing and reproducing V-mail to and from the United States and the British Isles, Australia, India, Hawaii and other points are now in operation.

In an effort to insure delivery of mail to as many men as possible at overseas destinations when space is limited, the war and Navy Departments have directed that V-mail be given priority in dispatch over all other classes including air mail when transportation facilities under control of those departments are used.

V-Mail letter sheets have been distributed at all post offices; and have been provided all military and naval personnel at overseas points through Army and Navy post offices and military channels.

V-Mail letters are photographed on micro-film by automatic machines at the rate of 2,000 to 2,500 per hour and the film rolls containing 1,500 letters each are transmitted to destinations. Reproductions are then made by other automatic machines and delivered to the addressee in individual sealed window penalty envelopes.

School Started Off Very Encouraging

School started off in fine order Monday in spite of the rain. The Bus drivers all had a good initiation. School started with nice enrollment of about 350. 111 high school pupils with an average of about 30 to the room, and also have a shortage of three teachers but using substitutes.

WAR BONDS ★

Barbed wire used by Uncle Sam's fighting forces is vastly different from that used on American farms. Army and Marine barbed wire is much heavier and the barbs, about three inches in length, are more vicious than ordinary barbed wire.

The Marine Corps pays fifty cents for each twelve yards, or 36 feet of this specially manufactured barbed wire. The Army and Marine Corps needs thousands upon thousands of feet for defensive warfare. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will insure sufficient quantity for their needs. Invest at least ten percent of your wages in War Bonds every pay day.

Call Pastor

The Baptist Church Sunday morning called James H. Hunt of Sentinel, Oklahoma, for their pastor, and at the night service he and Mrs. Hunt were there and he accepted the call.

The pastorium is being re-decorated inside, and the new pastor and his wife will move as soon as finished. He will be here to fill the pulpit next Sunday.

The Sunday School will be at 10:00 A. M. preaching at 11:00, Training Union 7:30 and preaching again at 8:30 P. M. Notice the change in time. All members urged to be present.

Enlisted In The Navy

Two more Coke Countains completed applications during the past week for enlistment in the Naval Reserves through the San Angelo Navy Recruiting Sub station.

Accepted were R. E. James of Tennyson and Robert Hale of Robert Lee.

News From Dallas Office

Figures released recently, crediting the North Texas Navy recruiting district with enlisting 3,243 men during August, showed that Coke County, with a quota of 4 recruits, contributed 5 recruits to the monthly total, the highest in the history of the district.

Encouraged by the banner month of enlistments, 243 above the assigned quota and 1,116 more than ever before sworn in during a single month in the district, Lieut. L. H. Ridout, Jr., officer in charge, established 3600 recruits as the September quota.

500,000 High School Youths Will Receive Pre-Flight Training

Nation to Get Jump Over Axis by Readyng Students For Future Aviation Career

It's an ironical twist of fate that the most far-reaching change in our modern educational system was set in motion by a war.

As September rolls around, public, private and parochial high schools throughout the nation will have radically altered their curricula to include instruction in pre-flight training under the auspices of the Air Training Corps of America, working in conjunction with the Civil Aeronautics administration and the U. S. office of education.

Educationers themselves readily admit that the war, with the attention it has focused on aviation, must be credited in large measure for the speed and efficiency with which ATCA's program has been launched, although the program's peacetime objectives are considered equally important.

Regardless of cause, this September some 500,000 boys who voluntarily are enrolling in ATCA units will be studying algebra, geometry, physics, and other subjects with a new interest. They'll be enthusiastic about subjects they once considered "dry" because these studies will be taught in terms of aviation.

During five, or more, hours each week, ATCA members will study subjects in pre-flight training such as air navigation, communications, aerodynamics, meteorology, safety, and the structure and design of engines.

And if there are those who doubt the enthusiasm with which boys are taking these courses,

The theory of flight becomes a real thing to this student as, stick in hand, he controls the model plane while the wind tunnel, extreme left, whips a stiff breeze in the "flier's" face. This is another part of the course given in the pre-flight ATCA training throughout the nation. This lad some day may become an expert aviator in the U. S. army or navy.

they need only visit one of the schools where the ATCA courses already have been introduced. There these youngsters can be seen tackling the fundamental problems of aviation with an eagerness that is surprising.

They build their own model planes to scale, following specifications provided by the army and navy. These planes perform a useful function in the classes on spotting, where ATCA members learn how to distinguish one type from another at a casual glance and from any angle.

New Style School Arguments. The visitor will see these boys arguing over a problem in plane design—discussing where stress and strain will affect the craft—as though the chart on the wall were a real bomber and they were going to take off in it themselves.

In classes on communications the pupils will be taking down the dots and dashes of the Morse code with the same zeal they might put into remembering the signals for an off-tackle play on the football field.

In classes on engine structure, in physics, in algebra, in whatever these future fliers now are studying in their pre-flight courses, the same degree of youthful eagerness is apparent everywhere.

TRYING HARD
On the drill field, where members of ATCA units learn marching formations and take callisthenics to build them up physically, these lads show the same earnest attitude. They're trying hard every minute, so that sometime they can earn the right to fly a plane for the army or navy, or become professional fliers in civilian life.

This attribute of the Air Training courses in secondary schools, as much as the fact that the new studies have called for a complete overhauling of the curricula, is the reason that educators are quick to acknowledge that the system of teaching is going through the most radical change it ever has seen.

And They Like It! They find it adding to their own enthusiasm to be met with such a ready response on the part of their pupils. When "x plus y" can be something to do with a pursuit plane

Model Builder

This ATCA student is building his own model plane from army and navy specifications. Such practice gives youth throughout the U. S. first-hand knowledge of planes they hope some day to fly.

and "a times b" has something to do with increasing the already terrific speed of a giant bomber, it's something which both teacher and pupil find exciting.

ATCA members present a dashing appearance in their uniforms especially designed for the corps. Jack-ets, shirts and trousers of the uniform are all in a matching tone of gray-blue. Ties are navy blue and buttons on the jacket are silver-toned. The caps have a piping of bright red and the same color appears again in the single stripe on each sleeve cuff. The red and white ATCA insignia is attached to the upper left sleeve.

Considering the spirit it has injected into the system of teaching, it is not surprising that ATCA courses are finding a ready welcome in the schools.

As for the army and navy—they, too, are all for it. They have long recognized that the best professional flier is the one who has been trained from youth. They realize the importance of the program in filling the lack that has existed for providing training in the fundamentals of aviation.

Objectives of ATCA have been endorsed by Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary of war for air, and by Robert Hinckley, assistant secretary of commerce and founder of the Citizens Pilot training program.

Sponsoring the work of the ATCA are some of the outstanding men and women in the country, including Bernard Baruch, James A. Farley, Alfred E. Smith, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, chairman of the Pan-American games committee; C. R. Smith, ex president of American airlines; Robert Hinckley, assistant secretary of commerce, and Mrs. Colin Kelly, widow of the American air hero.

That's the story of ATCA. It's one of those things created during war which is not necessarily a part of war. It will, educators feel confident, live long after the war is over, and the ways of peace returned again, because it is inextricably tied up with aviation—and aviation itself has many long and vigorous years stretching ahead of it.

End of War Will Mark Aviation's Golden Age

America invented the airplane—yet the greatest single threat to our security today is the plane itself.

Having created the means by which man could fly, America failed miserably to recognize the significance of its own invention. It remained for other nations to grasp the airplane's enormous possibilities—to visualize it as a gigantic instrument of peace and war.

It remained for other nations to sense the possibilities of training—not just a small segment—but all its youth, to be air-minded and air-wise.

Americans have been caught napping. But, if a determined group of American citizens have their way, this will not, cannot, happen again. These determined citizens have united to form the Air Training Corps of America.

Wings for America at Peace. No informed person will deny that the end of this war will mark the true beginning of the Aviation age.

There will be new markets to be won, new lands to be developed. And in this post-war race for trade, aviation will play a major role. In America and throughout the world, the highways of commerce will be in the air. In transportation, in a thousand as yet undreamed-of facets of our daily life, men trained in aviation will be the leaders of tomorrow. And the nation which molds these leaders will be itself a leader.

In training its youth for aviation, America is assuring its sons a rich opportunity, and is at the same time, taking steps to insure its own future.

Wings for America at War. Every decent American hopes that boys now in high school will never have to go to war.

But every thinking American realizes that they may have to fight before this war is won. And make no mistake about it, this war will be won by trained, professional airmen over that "last battlefield," wherever it may be. These airmen, grim though the idea is, must be young. For the air warfare of today, with its 40,000-foot altitudes and 400 m.p.h. speeds, demands youth-trained youth. No one else has a fighting chance.

This is the lesson brought us from England, a lesson dearly learned by the heroic RAF in the Battle of Britain. England itself has already profited from this lesson, and has set up its own Air Training corps under the air ministry. So far, England's Air Training corps has graduated 75,000 boys into the Royal Air force.

Helpful to Canadians. The idea, transplanted to Canada, has resulted in the training of 26,000 boys—and has not yet hit its full stride. It is already considered an indispensable part of the Royal Canadian Air force training program. It is saving the best part of a year—precious time when time is all-important—in preparing airmen for combat duty. It has materially reduced training casualties.

Not all of these boys, of course, become pilots. One of the important benefits of this training is the fact that it "screens" the boys into the particular job in air or ground crew for which they are best qualified. Furthermore, it gives them the essential psychological conditioning that their own job, whatever it may be, is all-important.

Naturally, an important part of the program is a carefully worked out course of training to promote physical fitness, to make the youth of America strong, hardened and ready for the tasks that lie ahead.

Members of the Air Training Corps of America will also receive basic training in the manual of arms and military drill, and will be schooled in the highest ideals of discipline and patriotism.

ATCA's Role in the War Effort. In undertaking to set up pre-flight squadrons in the nation's high schools, the Air Training Corps of America is co-ordinating its work with that of other organizations interested in the progress of aviation.

The Civil Aeronautics administration, working with and through educators who have a thorough grounding in aviation and aviation problems, have done a splendid job of preparing practical, easily understood textbooks in the various phases of pre-flight training.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Soap jelly may be used for shampooing upholstery or small rugs; for washing painted furniture, woodwork and walls, for lingerie washing and hair shampoos.

If you make your own householders, remember that the most comfortable ones have plenty of room.

Is your dry floor mop too dirty for further use? Wash it in warm suds, rinse well, and dry in the air, shaking it occasionally to restore fluffiness.

Put a little water, milk or cream into fudge frosting that thickens too quickly, stirring until it has the right consistency.

Before using a new broom, soak it half an hour in cold water. This will make the wood around the bristles swell up and keep the broom in place. Hang up the broom to dry before using it.

Kerosene will soften boots and shoes that have been hardened by water and will render them as plant as new.

ON THE HOME FRONT

With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Now is the time to use every scrap of old woolen goods that you have on hand. That old coat the moths got into; the dress from which spots cannot be removed; the trousers that are ragged at the knees—all of the material in these may be made into handsome hooked rugs that you will be proud to own.

The square rug in the sketch was designed to fit in a smart dressing table corner. The rose-and-ribbon design in the chintz skirt and window valance was copied in making a border and center flower for the rug. It is easy to make your own rug designs in this way to exactly suit your room. So begin today to plan a rug for some special spot in your home.

Porter Knew Where To Get Quicker Service

The young lovers were trying to find some quiet, secluded spot for a long embrace. But everywhere they went there were people, people, people. And the girl was shy.

Suddenly the man had a bright idea. Triumphantly he led her to the railway station and, standing beside the door of a railway carriage as though seeing her off, kissed her fondly.

After the couple had repeated the experiment at four or five different platforms, a sympathetic porter strolled up and whispered to the young man:

"Take 'er rahnd to the bus stop, mate. They goes ev'ry three minutes from there."

If you are ever stumped by the question of what to send a friend or relative in one of Uncle Sam's armed forces, here's a tip. If he smokes a pipe or rolls-his-own, nothing would please him more than a pound of his favorite tobacco. Surveys among the men themselves show that. Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco has long been known as the National Joy Smoke—it is the largest-selling smoking tobacco in the world. Local dealers are now featuring Prince Albert in the pound can as an ideal gift for service men who smoke a pipe or roll-their-own.—Adv.

NOTE: There are suggestions for preparing hooked rug materials and for making original designs in BOOK 5 of the series of home-making booklets which Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers. Does Your Garden Grow?

Recently a clergyman, in the course of his sermon, illustrated his point by saying, "You know you plant roses in the sunshine and heliotrope and geraniums, but if you want your fuchsias to grow you must keep them in the shade."

After the service a woman came up to him, her face beaming with pleasure.

"Oh, I am so grateful for that sermon!" she said, clasping his hand and shaking it warmly. His heart glowed with this appreciation of his labors, but it glowed only for a moment. "Yes," she went on, "I never did know before what was the matter with my fuchsias."

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Economy Accent . . . Delicious Chicken Croquettes
(See Recipes Below.)

Budget Stretchers

What can I serve as a main course that won't take too many dishes? What can I give my large family that isn't too expensive? These are the two queries often asked by my readers. The answer to both questions is simple—a casserole. Easy to make, easy to serve, economical too, casseroles solve the main dish problem almost perfectly.

Make your casserole so delectable and so distinctive in flavor and no one will ever realize that it's packed with economy and you have a one-dish meal that's perfection plus.

Never overwork the casserole by trying to use up all the leftovers lining refrigerator and pantry shelves. Never swamp the flavors of the food so you strike a false note and confuse the sense of taste. Use good food and season with discrimination. Your result will be a real success.

Here are some new ideas I've compiled for you. Most of them of the food you have used often enough so they're old favorites, but in new dress! You'll like:

Rice and Chicken Casserole.
(Serves 6 to 8)

- 2 cups rice
- 2 cups milk
- 1½ tablespoons butter
- 2 eggs
- 2½ cups diced, cooked chicken

Boil rice in salted water until tender. Stir in butter, milk and eggs. Put a layer of this into a casserole, then chicken, more rice, etc. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until well browned.

Every now and then you've heard me talk about food affinities. Here's another I'd like to add to the list:

Lamb and Lima Bean Pie.
(Serves 6)

- 2 pounds lamb neck, shanks or shoulder
- 1 pound dry lima beans
- Salt, pepper
- Celery salt

Soak lima beans overnight. Drain and place in a heavy kettle. Have lamb cut in 2-inch pieces. Add to beans, season and cover with water. Transfer to casserole and top with pimiento biscuit rings and bake in a moderately hot oven 20 to 25 minutes.

To make pimiento biscuit rings: add ½ cup coarsely chopped pimiento to baking powder biscuit recipe.

Lynn Says:

Store Food Wisely: There are no "Finders Keepers" but you may be the "Loser Weeper" if you do not store those vegetables properly.

Scientific experiments show that lettuce may lose 40 per cent of its vitamin C if kept at room temperature. Refrigerator recommended!

Spinach, left standing on pantry shelf, will be drained of its vitamin C by about one-third. Canned string beans lose about one-third of their vitamin C if they stand in a bowl at room temperature for six hours.

Short cooking time is recommended, too. Cabbage, for instance, loses 69 per cent of the elusive vitamin C and 72 per cent of its calcium and 50 per cent of its other minerals when these valuable nutrients go up in steam.

This Week's Menu

*Recipe Given.

You'll get your carbohydrates, proteins along with vitamins and minerals in this economical, hunger-satisfying dish good for family dinner or informal buffet entertaining:

American Goulash.
(Serves 6)

- ½-pound package macaroni
- 1½ pounds hamburger
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 tablespoon fat
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 3 cups tomatoes
- 1 can tomato soup
- Buttered crumbs

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water, about 20 minutes, or until tender. Drain. Brown meat and onions in fat. Add macaroni, seasonings, tomatoes and soup. Pour into greased baking dish and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate (350-degree) oven.

Second day service of chicken is beautifully simplified if you do up the bird in crusty cylindrical croquettes, and dish them up together with golden carrot strips and either canned or frozen asparagus and you have a one-plate meal that is bound to inspire the family's appetite:

Chicken Croquettes.
(Makes 10 croquettes)

- 2 cups cooked, ground chicken
- 1 cup thick white sauce
- 2 teaspoons chopped parsley
- Flour
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 3 cups oven-popped rice cereal
- Salt, pepper

Prepare white sauce using ½ cup chicken stock and ½ cup milk. Add to chicken and parsley and chill thoroughly. Shape into pyramids or cylinders. Roll cereal to fine crumbs. Dip croquettes first in the flour, then in egg (to which milk has been added) and in rolled crumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat (365 degrees) for 2 to 5 minutes or until golden brown.

A crispy, citrus salad goes well with casserole dishes. Suggestion of the week which will take top honors in the hall of fame is this one made with grapefruit, oranges and cranberries for color. Its dressing is unusual in that it combines honey with mayonnaise, and cranberries.

Grapefruit and Cranberry Salad.
(Serves 4)

- 1 large grapefruit
- 2 large oranges
- Lettuce
- ½ cup ground, raw cranberries
- 2 tablespoons honey
- ½ cup mayonnaise

Peel and section oranges and grapefruit. Arrange alternately on lettuce. Mix cranberries with honey. Let stand ½ hour. Combine with mayonnaise. Serve over salad.

NEW EFFECTIVE HAY FEVER RELIEF

Hay fever, which annually causes more sneezes, more inflamed noses and more red, streaming eyes than any other scourge, may have its final big fling this September, all because a Pennsylvania electrical engineer was served a dish of corn meal mush which was entirely too salty. The engineer, sneezing, and with all other hay fever manifestations, stopped at a hotel where he was served a dish of mush which he considered sending back as it was much too salty. Finally he ate it, however; the hay fever attack lessened, ultimately ceased. Next day he had three meals, all oversalted, and experienced his most comfortable time in years in the "hay fever season."

His analytical mind quickly grasped the possibility that the saline substance in his food was responsible for his relief.

About this time, Dr. E. E. Selleck, a graduate of Columbia University, met the engineer, made notes, and when he returned to his home, began experiments. Today Dr. Selleck declares he has found a certain means of relief for hay fever and is supported in his contention by other medical experts, and a nationally known chemical manufacturing concern, the Hollings-Smith Company, at Orangeburg, New York, has taken over making the remedy, which is called Nakamo Bell.

Describing the experiments, Dr. Selleck said, "After I was sure I had found a means of quickly relieving hay fever through the chloride group, I tested it in the most practical way I knew. I held a three day clinic, to which many hay fever sufferers responded, from ages ranging from 10 to 60 years. Each person was given two tablets with a little water. Some relief came to all within ten minutes. Reports on these cases during the ensuing weeks showed practically a complete cessation of symptoms."

Co-operation

We are at war but that does not mean that we are to lose interest in home life we should keep up our morale at home by carrying on as best we know how, so that our boys away will have something to come back to and that life will be worth living.

Here in Robert Lee as every town there should be a park for youngsters and oldsters to gather after sunset for recreation and fun, It would cost very little to have a park on the court house lawn' the ground could be leveled sodded to bermuda grass, let interested clubs, lodges, churches, or individuals sponsor rock tables and seats, and help beautify the grounds, It would be an easy matter to irrigate the grounds.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows to wit:

Suit in Trespass to Try Title and for damages, Plaintiff alleging that on or about the first day of July, A D 1942, she was lawfully seized and possessed of the following described land and premises, situated in Coke County Texas, holding and claiming the same in fee simple, to-wit, 173 acres, more or less, consisting of a part of survey No. 1 1/2 in the name of L. The very fact that West Texans do take electric service for granted is a tribute to the men and women who supply it. They've made it dependable. And they've made it cheap.

The average West Texas family gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did 10 or 15 years ago. It's made it possible for most families to enjoy the comfort and convenience of many more time and labor-saving appliances.

This has been accomplished under the American tradition of freedom. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

United Nations Rout Japanese Forces To Score Major Milne Bay Victory; Soviet Bombers Blast German Cities; Offensive Nets Air Bases for Chinese

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

These Italian prisoners were captured on the North African front by New Zealand and Indian forces. Almost all prisoners taken were from Pavia and Brescia footslogger divisions. Reports from the front indicate a mutual feeling of dislike between the Italian and German troops and officers. German troops are said to have refused to salute Italian officers.

TRAPPED JAPS:

Outguessed, Outfought

"Milne bay area is rapidly being cleared of the enemy . . . His losses have been heavy . . . All his heavy supplies and equipment, including tanks, were lost."

This happy communique from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia made it clear that the Japanese were smashed in their Milne bay thrust and that Port Moresby was saved for the fourth time. The Japs were outguessed and were caught in a carefully prepared trap.

The communique said, in part: "The operation represents another phase in the pattern of the enemy's plans to capture Port Moresby . . . His latest effort was to turn the right flank by a surprise attack at Milne bay. The move was anticipated, however, and prepared for with great care. With complete secrecy the position was occupied by our forces and converted into a strong point."

Solomons

American forces in the Solomons continued to consolidate their positions in the newly won outpost in preparation for their next move, which may be a blow at Jap bases in the northwest Solomons, or, if the enemy renews land and sea attacks, defensive action.

Two waves of Jap planes attacked U. S. troops and installations on Guadalcanal island, where a large enemy airport fell to invading American marines. The position of the marines has grown strong enough for the navy to announce that only "mopping up" operations were in progress. The navy also announced further strengthening of positions on six Solomon islands in American hands—Guadalcanal, Tulagi, Florida, Tanambogo, Makambo, and Gavutu.

THE GOOD EARTH:

Recaptured by China

The recapture of Chushien and Lishui, the two most important airport cities in eastern China, marked one of the greatest victories of the war for Chinese soldiers. In a few weeks of fighting the Chinese counterattack virtually wiped out Japanese gains of the May and June campaign in the Chekiang and Kiangsi sectors.

Best news to America is the fact that both towns are within 700 miles of the Japanese mainland, and may soon base United States bombers for attacks on the enemy at home.

Among Chinese officials there was little tendency to look upon recent gains as a clear cut victory resulting from superior offensive power. Belief was expressed that the Japs had overextended themselves.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

TRAINING: Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the Services of Supply, U. S. army, called upon schools and colleges to become pre-induction training centers for the armed services. His prediction was that some colleges may be required to devote all facilities for such purpose.

ESCAPE: Of the more than 1,000 officers and men interned when the German pocket battleship Graf Spee was scuttled in Montevideo, more than 100 have escaped internment in Argentina, Juan Antonio Solari, chairman of a senate committee investigating anti-Argentine activities, said.

U. S. BOMBERS:

In Desert Action

As a prelude to the actual reopening of the Egyptian desert offensive, British and Axis forces sparred daily by raiding each other's supply and patrol lines via the air route. U. S. bombers were aiding the British in these attacks.

While German Marshal Erwin Rommel was still "digging in" around El Alamein and consolidating his position before the Nazi drive toward Alexandria and Cairo, the British navy was striving desperately to cut his supply lines in the Mediterranean. RAF and U. S. planes, meanwhile, were striking hard at Nazi bases at Tobruk and El Daba. Both cities have vital Axis-held airports.

As the tempo of this new desert battle increased British and American planes also attacked enemy encampments, tank concentrations and armored units, behind Rommel's front lines.

RAF bombers and torpedo-carrying planes set two Axis ships afire and hit at least one other in an attack off the coast of Libya, and set fire to an oil tanker in the Mediterranean.

CRUSH JAPAN:

Grew Warns

A "crushing defeat" of the Japanese militarists is the only thing that will assure future peace in the Pacific area, Joseph C. Grew, former American ambassador to Japan, told the nation upon his return to Washington.

Grew, who returned from Japan on the exchange ship Gripsholm, said: "We shall crush the Japanese machine and caste system in due course, but if we Americans think that, collectively and individually, we can continue to lead our normal lives, leaving the spirit of self-sacrifice to our soldiers and sailors, letting the intensification of our production program take care of itself, we shall unquestionably risk the danger of a stalemate in this war of ours with Japan."

He pointed out that Japanese can surmount economic hardship and that force alone will defeat them.

"Let's put it in a nutshell," he said. "There is not sufficient room in the area of the Pacific ocean for a peaceful America, for any and all of the peace-loving United Nations and swashbuckling Japan."

KAISER:

Record-Breaker

Ten-thousand freighters launched within 18 days after their keels are laid.

That was the goal announced by Henry J. Kaiser, master shipbuilder of the Pacific coast, when he spoke just before the record-breaking Liberty freighter, John Fitch was launched only 24 days after keel laying. This launching broke by two days the record established in one of Kaiser's Oregon yards when construction time was reduced from 35 to 26 days.

HENRY KAISER

It was at the John Fitch launching ceremonies that Kaiser disclosed he would again present to the government plans for building huge cargo planes. A few weeks previously he had made his first proposal to Washington and obtained authority to present specific plans for the plane construction program.

V-MAIL:

Saves Space

Throughout the nation, some 45,000 postoffices and rural letter carriers are equipped to furnish free forms on which to write soldiers overseas by V-mail. By this process, V-mail letters written on special forms, are photographed, reduced to micro-film and sent overseas by air. Upon arrival the letter on the film is developed and full-sized letters are printed and delivered to the soldiers. Army officials are urging friends and parents of the boys overseas to increase their use of V-mail, thus saving valuable cargo space on supply ships.

Washington Digest

U. S. Backs Fair Trials For Axis War Criminals

President Hopes for Punishment by Process Of Law for Perpetrators of Crimes Against Subdued Nations.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

It was press and radio conference day at the White House. We were crowded around the big desk in the executive office. It was hot. The President was seated at his desk, coatless, in a white shirt and black tie. He was leaning over a typewritten statement before him, reading it carefully, puffing out his cheeks and then blowing out slowly, as many people do when they are concentrating.

It happened to be a newsworthy day and the answers to the reporters' questions and the explanations of two long statements filled columns in the papers which you read the next day.

The first announcement, the one which he was reading over to himself when we came in, is the one which I want to speak about—the warning to the Axis perpetrators of acts of atrocity against the civilian peoples of the occupied countries.

Brutal though the theme was, ominous though the warning, I was suddenly struck by the feeling that here, in the midst of hatred and slaughter, was an effort to maintain the spirit of decency and humanity, the things we are really fighting for. The whole intent of the warning was to assure justice—even for the enemy. America was committing itself to the principle that the Axis with its policy of making the innocent suffer for another's offense—such as the shooting of hostages—would be punished, not by blind vengeance as brutal as the crime it would avenge, but by due process of law. Gestapo and military officials after the war would be tried in a court in the country where the crimes were committed.

Vengeance?

As the President was explaining this, a reporter asked him if he thought the people in the occupied countries would wait for a trial. Would they not take the law into their own hands? Another asked the President if he had heard the sentence said to be circulating in the occupied countries—"give us a week."

That, the President said, was exactly what he hoped would not happen—that criminals would be punished after fair trials. He pointed to the recent trials of the Nazi saboteurs in Washington as an example of this nation's insistence on the due process of law.

It seemed gratifying, to me, that we were setting out now in the midst of bloodshed and hatred, to plan curbs against violation on our part of the very things for which we are fighting.

One man, familiar with military law and usage, pointed out to me that when and if perpetrators of these crimes are tried, the defense is sure to be that the individual officer cannot be held to account for merely executing the orders of his superiors. If General X, for example, is arraigned for shooting innocent hostages in Paris, he will answer that he was merely obeying instructions from his superiors in Berlin.

"Legally," my friend said, "that excuse will not wash. Military law requires unquestioning obedience only when the command given is honorable. No soldier can be required to perform an act that is contrary to honor."

"If the accused general's conscience revolts against executing people who have committed no offense, he is entitled to refuse to obey the order. Even a German court martial would uphold him in that refusal."

"The German gauleiters who slaughter Jews and Poles and Czechs cannot take refuge in the plea that their crimes were commanded by Hitler or Himmler."

Commandos Find Zest In Hit-Run Raids

The remark of one of the young members of the Rangers who took part in the raid on Dieppe, that in the midst of the fighting they suddenly realized they "were having fun," fell with a shock on many civilian ears. But that sentiment, terrifying as it is, explains the philosophy of the raider. It is not a discovery of this war. It is evidenced in the last war and has been a part of all wars.

This week I was talking with William Bird, a former foreign correspondent who is a keen student of human nature and who spent some time with an organization in France, in the early days of the present war, called the "groupes francs." These consisted of about two dozen men, divided into squads of six. Each squad was quartered in a single barrack room, and each was completely autonomous. The members of the squad had no contact with the rest of the battalion, or even with the members of other similar squads, except in the planning and execution of operations involving more than one squad. They did not even attend the company mess, but cooked their meals on the barrack room stove.

"You know," Bird explained to me, "what gives zest to big-game hunting is the element of danger to the huntsman. Some men will travel half way around the world for the thrill of risking their lives in battle with a tiger or an elephant."

"The same kind of man gets an even bigger thrill from war, because man is a deadlier foe than any beast. The Commandos and the Rangers are made up largely of men who thrive on mortal danger."

The Personnel

"One of the 'groupes francs' which I came to know," Bird went on, included:

A champion racing driver.

The son of a multi-millionaire manufacturer who, until the war came along, was often in the famous "salon prive" at Deauville, where fortunes changed hands nightly on the turn of a card.

A Montmartre hoodlum who had done time for stabbing a rival in a fight.

A bookkeeper from Lyons.

A farm boy from Normandy.

A garage mechanic.

They had no tastes in common except a taste for risking their lives. In peace time scarcely any two of them would have spoken to each other. But in war they were boon companions, and each was ready to die for the others.

"War to them was simply the sublimest sport in the world."

Chinese Jujitsu Expert Trains American Officers

So far the Japanese strategy, the strategy of the little fellow against the big one, has been to hit his opponent when he isn't looking.

And that philosophy goes back a long way with Japan. Back to the art of jujitsu. Some say that this is an indigenous Japanese institution, dating from Seventh century Nippon. My friend Joseph Chiang has another story. Chiang is a Chinese newspaper man in Washington and he says that jujitsu is Chinese. "The Japanese copied our language. They copied jujitsu too," he says.

According to Chiang it was used first by the peaceful Buddhist monks to defend themselves and their monasteries against bandits. It is primarily an art of defense although it can make the aggressor break his own neck if the jujitsuist isn't careful.

"The feat consists of clutching or striking such part of the enemy's body as will make him numb or incapable of resistance. Its object is not to kill but to incapacitate for the time being."

That is a definition by Inanzo Nitobe, in "Bushido, the Soul of Japan."

What the expert does with his victim after he has incapacitated him, Mr. Nitobe does not say, any more than Mr. Kurusu mentioned that the Mikado was going to do "after Pearl Harbor."

Whether the Japanese stole the idea from the Chinese or invented it themselves they have made good use of it. It has long been part of the training of the Japanese police and is now a part of the training of the Japanese soldier. No wonder. The Jap fighter weighs an average of 126 pounds. He may be equipped with fanatic zeal but it takes more than that to meet a six-foot American or Britisher in a hand-to-hand combat. Something must be added to put him on equal terms with a heftier adversary.

SADDLE and RIDE

By ERNEST HAYCOX W-N-U Release

THE STORY SO FAR: Clay Morgan is determined to play a lone hand against Ben Herendeen, a rancher who is out to run the cattle country his own way. As a rancher, Morgan knows he must protect his own rights, but he doesn't like Herendeen's methods. Of his former friends, only Hack Breathitt has not gone over to Herendeen's side. The rest—Charley Hillhouse, Gurd Grant and Lige White, for example, are supporting Herendeen, more or less in self defense. They don't like his methods, either, but they believe that if they don't follow him they will lose everything.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER IV

At daybreak Clay Morgan rode as far as the Antelope Plains with the roundup crew and worked with it until mid-morning. Afterwards he set off to have a look at the grass and water on the western edge of the Moguls. Gurd Grant, having business at his own ranch, went along. Gurd was a big and completely friendly man of Morgan's age with light features and a consistently pleased expression in his eyes. There was no malice and no subterfuge of any kind in Gurd. But now, as he rode, he spoke in a rather troubled, uncertain way of Herendeen.

"You know, Clay, he ain't such a bad fellow. I hate to see you two start chewing the same piece of leather. Of course, you never did like each other. I can remember as far back as school when you and Ben got in some pretty tough jangles."

"Gurd," said Morgan, turning toward his partner, "I want to warn you. Ben's the kind of a fellow that gets worse the farther he goes."

Riding on through the short hills, they came to Crowfoot's quarters seated in a small round valley backed against the Haycreek Hills. A creek, charging out of the pine timber, crossed the meadow in front of a low, long-galleried white house surrounded by poplar trees. The two dismounted in this pleasant shade and went back to the dining room for a late noon meal. They were still at the table when a single rider came out of the hill trail at a full gallop. A moment later Catherine Grant appeared.

"Gentlemen," she said, "you are both very solemn."

Gurd Grant held his seat with a brother's habitual indifference but Clay Morgan rose at once before this laughter-loving girl with the gay and gently blue eyes. This was Catherine Grant, who, with her brother Gurd, ran Crowfoot.

"Crazy as always," said Gurd. "And quit running your horse down that trail, you hear?"

She didn't hear. She stood in front of Clay, stripping away her riding gloves—smiling and watching his answering smile break the solid healthy darkness of his face. Gurd Grant sat as an interested and forgotten spectator to this scene, quick to note his sister's instant gaiety in front of Clay, and Clay's lightening expression. There always had been an odd closeness between these two people. Sometimes, as now, that closeness puzzled him and sometimes bothered him; he never could get at its meaning. All he knew was that whenever they met they seemed to share some old memory which excluded everybody else, as now. He rose and left the room.

The cook brought Catherine her meal. She sat opposite Clay, eating a little and talking a little. Clay lighted a smoke. He braced his elbow on the table, chin propped in his long, heavy hand. "Your hair," he said, "is getting darker."

"That's gray you see. Gray from worry."

"When you were eighteen it was almost a carrot red."

She said: "I remember you said that once, a long time ago. It almost made me cry. I came home and wondered if I could dye it."

"We used to talk pretty straight, didn't we? We had some tall quarrels."

Suddenly she rose and turned away, knowing what was in his mind. He left the table, following her out to the house porch. He said: "See you later, Catherine."

"All right, Clay."

Gurd came around the house. He said to his sister in a teasing, amused voice: "Rakin' up the ashes of an old fire?"

"Hush."

"You two," commented Gurd, "used to be pretty thick. Before Lila came along, I always wondered how thick?"

She straightened against the porch post and showed him a self-contained expression. Gurd laughed a little, seeing his sister close up on him, and ceased to laugh, when he thought of something else. "I don't like the way he's acting. He won't talk to Ben."

"No," said Catherine. "He never will."

"It was something that had to do with Lila and Ben, wasn't it?"

She shook her head. "Never mind, Gurd."

The quick ruffle of horses' hooves turned her against the porch post and in this attitude she watched Herendeen and Lige White cross the meadow. When they reached the porch Lige White lifted his hat with a gallant flourish he could never escape. Herendeen simply stepped down, saying: "Want to see you, Gurd."

Herendeen said, "Why don't we go into War Pass some night, Catherine, and paint the town?"

They sat down in the drowsy shade of the living room. Lige White looked around, chuckling over a sudden fancy. "I remember how your mother used to receive visitors here. A very proper and courteous woman, Gurd."

"Gurd," said Ben Herendeen, blunt and impatient as always, "we're going to set some men on these hill trails at night. Just to see who travels 'em after dark. Lige has agreed to take care of the Antelope Plains. I'm posting one near the west base of the Moguls. I want you to keep some men up there on the high trail to War Pass. Be sure they don't talk and be sure they do this after dark."

"Why don't we go into War Pass some night, Catherine, and paint the town?"

"All right," said Gurd. "But you're fishin' with a pretty loose net. What we need is a man to just ride around with his eyes and ears open, without being suspected."

"Range detective," said Lige White.

Herendeen gave both of them a stolid look. "Already got that man."

"Who?" asked Grant.

Herendeen bent forward and let the man's name drop softly into the room. "Now," he added, "say nothing about it. Anybody knew it was him, his life wouldn't be worth much." He put his hand on Gurd Grant. "I don't want Morgan to know, either."

"Well now," answered Gurd Grant with slow discomfort, "I don't know about that. He's in this, too."

"What was he playin' along with Ollie Jacks for? Anybody know where he really stands? Anybody got a square answer out of him? No. Until we do we'll keep this to ourselves." He had a way of dropping his closed fist through the air to drive home his talk; he did it now. Then he added, dryly: "It may be he's on the other side of the fence."

"That's a damned fool thing to say," flared up Gurd Grant. "I don't like it."

"He's protecting Hack Breathitt," pointed out Herendeen. "And what's Hack? Figure it out."

"Wait a minute," said Gurd Grant, "Hack's all right."

"He made camp with Pete Borders last night," said Herendeen.

Grant scowled at the news. "Foolish thing to do," he admitted.

Herendeen rose. "You two fellows meet me at my place around six. Maybe I can show you something. Maybe, before long, we'll smoke out Morgan. Far as I'm concerned, it's fish or cut bait. We'll have this country empty of people that don't belong in it by ninety days." He slapped his hand sharply against his knee and rose, leading the other two to the porch.

Catherine remained by the steps. Herendeen paused and put his round blue glance on her, cool and appraising; he betrayed himself to her, in the way he used his eyes. He showed her what he was thinking. "Friday night then, Catherine," he said and went to his horse, riding out of the meadow with Lige White.

"Gurd," reflected Catherine, "be careful in what you promise Ben."

Gurd said: "We've all got to stick together," and went back through the house.

Catherine turned into the house, climbing the stairs to her own room. She started to remove the riding habit but stopped and sat on the edge of the bed, closely thinking. All the talk of the men had come through the front room's open window to her—all of it, excepting the name of Herendeen's informer.

Leaving Grant's ranch, Clay Morgan rode north through a gentle up-and-down roll of hills carpeted with bunch grass and loosely studded with twisted, ancient junipers and jack pine. Later in the afternoon he passed the valley of Herendeen's ranch at some distance and entered the footslopes of Mogul, through short ravines shaded by box elder and alder and cottonwood.

Thus he rode upward with the quartering trails of Mogul, toward its plateau in the late afternoon hours. The sun fell behind the western mountains in a formless red eruption. In another half hour twilight, cool and tremendously still, whirled about him. Beyond eight o'clock he sighted the glint of light from his ranch house, shining across the flats. Reaching home, he had supper and sat on the porch. Muscular weariness loosened his long frame and the ease of the darkening night got into him; fed and indolent, he swayed the rocker across the loose porch boards and breathed the fragrance of his cigar.

Quietly he smoked his cigar, until he heard the far rhythm of a horse coming out of the west, around the foot of the Mogul Hills. He took the cigar from his mouth, cupping its glowing tip in his palm, and sat quietly until the rider turned in at the porch. Catherine Grant called quietly, "Clay," and got down.

He brought over another rocker. She sat beside him, lying back. Her arm trailed over the rocker's arm, her face was a round soft-shining blur in the dark. But he didn't need to see it; he remembered how her lips would be long and gently pursed, how half-grave and half-amused her eyes would be. She said in a serious voice: "Maybe I'm doing something you won't like. I'm carrying tales. Ben and Lige White came over to see Gurd directly after you left. Ben's going to have men out in the hills, looking for rustlers. He's got somebody in the country pussyfooting for him. I don't know who it is—but somebody we're all acquainted with, I think. Gurd wanted to tell you all this. Ben said he didn't trust you."

Morgan said: "Sounds natural."

She let the silence go along quite an interval. Her voice was cool and near. "You hate him more than people realize, Clay. As he hates you. Nothing ever would bring you together. Is that why you took Ollie Jacks' part?"

"No," he answered.

She didn't press the point. This was the way they had always been, close and tolerant, sometimes angered and frank, but never demanding. She had a silent streak of her own, a depth she never let others see; and she gave him the same respect. She said now: "Do you know why I came?"

He said, cheerfully: "To sit on my porch again."

"Clay," she said, almost as a warning, "let's keep away from that."

"Why did you come?" he said obediently.

"To tell you I think Ben would do anything to lay a trap for you. Remember that—always remember that."

He said: "I'll tell you this," and turned slowly in the rocker, hearing other horses sweep around the base of the Mogul Hills. Catherine came to her feet. She murmured: "I don't want to be seen here," and stepped inside the house.

Morgan went to her horse and led it around to the dark side of the house. A single rider rushed at the porch, with other riders pounding more distantly behind him. Clay returned to the porch, watching the first rider's shape break the blackness and circle into the yard. His horse was hard-breathing, pushed by a long run; he said, as he stepped to the ground, "Me, Clay. Me-Hack."

"What's the trouble?"

JOSEPH SOLD INTO SLAVERY

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 37:23-36. GOLDEN TEXT—Love envieth not.—1 Corinthians 13:4, R. V.

Does it pay to trust God? Is He really concerned about the affairs of men? Does He know the trials and the heartaches of His children? These are the crying questions of today, and they find their answer in God's dealings with men of the past. The story of Joseph has many interesting and instructive phases, but perhaps the most important just now is the truth of our lesson, "The Lord saith . . . them that honor me I will honor."

I. Jealousy Bears Bitter Fruit (vv. 23-30).

Joseph was his father's favorite and was shown that favoritism in many ways, but it was perhaps most fully expressed in the coat of many colors. This was a luxurious long robe with sleeves, indicating that he was a gentleman and not to do ordinary work of one who wore the sleeveless, knee-length tunic. His brothers deeply resented this evidence of the father's favor.

The dreams which Joseph rather innocently yet perhaps unwisely told to his brothers and his honest report of their wicked behavior fanned the flame of jealousy into a consuming fire which threatened his life. But God, through Joseph's brother Judah and through the opportunity they had to make money out of selling him, into slavery, kept him for His own purposes.

May we not learn that the darkest hour may be the time of God's deep interest and directing power. The only way strong men can be developed is by suffering hardness and trial. "God wants iron saints, and since there is no way of imparting iron to the moral nature than by letting His people suffer, He lets them suffer (Heb. 12:11)" (Meyer).

Parents should also learn here the dangers of favoritism among children. It is one of the most destructive of evil influences that can enter a home.

II. Deceit Attempts to Conceal Sin (vv. 31-35).

One of the tragic things about sin is that a wicked act does not stand alone but leads into another sin to cover the first. In the case of Joseph's brethren, their sin against him was covered by deceit. They lied to the father and maintained that lie for years, even though they saw that their aged father was brokenhearted. How callous sin makes the heart of a man!

Yet the very fact that they lied to cover their sin indicates that they were ashamed to admit that they had fallen so low. James Strahan well says: "Evil never dares to be sincere. It always borrows the colors and wears the garb of innocence. It has a whole lifetime of hard labor in keeping up appearances. Hypocrisy is the tribute which all bad men have to pay to the ideal of goodness."

III. God Overrules Evil for Good (v. 36).

It was God's plan that Joseph should come to his greatest usefulness in his place of authority in Egypt, so He directed the sale of the young slave into the home of Potiphar, a leading officer of Pharaoh.

The story of Joseph's life in Potiphar's house is one of unusual interest. Faithfulness to duty, loyalty to God and truth led to shifting experiences of imprisonment and of favor, but ultimately he came out into the place of leadership in the government of Egypt.

Since the matter of the relation of men to government is so much before us these days, it will be well to note that Scripture holds a very exalted view of the public servant. Paul says we are to "be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God" (Rom. 13:1). The Bible clearly teaches that every governmental agency and every public servant, from the policeman on the beat to the President in the White House, is only permitted to exercise authority over his fellowmen because God has ordained that there should be such government. Clear it is that every right-thinking official of state and nation should be humble, teachable, discreet, and wise in the exercise of his power, and God-fearing in the discharge of his responsibility.

Indirect Punishment

"Claude is such a sensitive child that on no account must he be punished."

"But we must have discipline in the school, madam."

"Well, couldn't you punish one of the other little boys? Claude would be awfully frightened."

She's the Ex

"Some busybody has told my wife that I took you to a dance the other night," said the manager to his secretary.

"Well, what does that make me?"

"My former secretary."

ESCAPING IT

Joe—I hear that Spillman has gone to Alaska to settle.

Jake—No; the truth of the matter is that he has gone there to keep from settling.

Luxury

"Do you like your new baby sister, Tommy?"

"Oh yes, she's all right. But there are lots of things we need more."

Constipation! Why Not Get and Keep "Regular"?

One of the commonest causes of constipation is simply this: Modern diets, superrefined, too often give us too little "bulk food." In such cases, dosing with cathartics and purges gives only temporary relief—the trouble comes back again and again. The way to more lasting relief is to get at the underlying cause and correct it.

You can do this by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This delicious, toasty cereal supplies the needed "bulk." It acts pleasantly, works principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination. In many cases, eating ALL-BRAN regularly and drinking plenty of water brings lasting freedom from constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not benefited by this simple treatment, see your doctor.
