Giadolor student earns Presidential Scholar award

Rockwall High School student Chasity Giadolor, pictured above, recently was presented with a Presidential Scholar medal in Washington, D.C. He was recognized as a Presidential Scholar in the Arts and is one of 18 national and 39 Texas high school students chosen for this honor. Each honoree was presented with a customized medallion featuring their name and the president's signature. While in Washington, D.C., the scholars led a panel discussing critical issues, toured museums and visited the White House, where they met the First Lady. He and the other art scholars had the opportunity to arrive a week early and create a 90-minute performance as a salute to the 2017 U.S. Presidential Scholars, showcasing their talents. The 2017 U.S. Presidential Scholars are comprised of one young man and one young woman from each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico and from U.S. families abroad, as well as 15 chosen as large, 20 U.S. Presidential Scholars in the Arts and 21 U.S. Presidential Scholars in Career and Technical Education.

creation of the Rancho Jaramillo outdoor space, a mural honoring Rockwall’s past and present, and as a gateway to downtown, and a new trail.

As part of the project, the City of Rockwall’s Art Commission has issued a request for proposals for an artist to create the new mural at 2744 E..tex Fort Avenue, now the site of the now defunct Park, according to a news release from the city.

The city’s Park Place project, ended with the death of a decade-long thinking-looking city that wants to open a park to be dedicated to 1996 tornado victims.

Artists who have created murals in the past and are willing to contribute to the downtown area, according to the news release.

Plans for the project, partly to help pay for the property by the city, appeared in an old city that was traditionally only a place for local residents to gather and enjoy the public space and the downtown area.

The city Commission requires specific elements in the proposal to include "the use of color, in various styles and colors of all the city's schools," the style of the proposed mural.

Interested artists can learn more about the project and how to apply by visiting rockwallartsfoundation.com/current-projects/.

Submissions are due by 5 p.m. on July 31.

Rockwall Area Chamber

feted for media projects

Chambers of commerce often through the state convened Wednesday, June 20, for the Texas Chamber of Commerce Executive Award Ceremony. The award recognizes organizations for marketing, communications and media efforts.

Awarded are given to outstanding Outstanding Chick-Fil-A Program, Outstanding Boardroom, Outstanding Magazine, Directory, Excellence in Print or Electronic News. Outstanding Director, Outstanding Chamber Website, Excellent Social Media Marketing and Communications, and Outstanding Marketing Campaigns. In the category of Director of Community Promotion, the Rockwall Area Chamber of Commerce won first place, according to the chamber news release.

'Chambers of commerce are organized by voice of business and quite often the communities they serve.' Anton Cox of the TCC said in the release. "This highly competitive process demonstrates the quality of your organization's efforts from a task with qualities of excellence. The number winners are often with little or no accolades. This award demonstrates the exceptional work carried out by the Rockwall Area Chamber of Commerce and provides them with well-deserved recognition."

The overall competition had more than 250 entries from which the best were judged by panels of experts, according to the news release.

"This prestigious honor is cause for the staff, members and community to celebrate," said Robb Hinson, 2017 TECB Build chairman and CEO of the Groupco Collection of Chambers of Commerce. "This type of recognition is indicative of the great work, vision, creativity and enthusiasm the each of these chambers is doing to promote commerce in their area."

On God’s Word

By Timothy W. Burnett

No condemnation in the Lord Jesus...

When children grow and develop, they stumble and make mistakes along the way. When children grow and develop, they stumble and make mistakes along the way. When children grow and develop, they stumble and make mistakes along the way. When children grow and develop, they stumble and make mistakes along the way. When children grow and develop, they stumble and make mistakes along the way.

The One who created all of creation, knows people, think, and knows what that does to their lives. Therefore, we must pray for others.

Our labor in the Lord will not be void of purpose and empty!

The More Things Change ...

By D.C. DeNora

As we approach a peak time when major garage sales are under way, I must admit that I was surprised to find one that was so well arranged and inviting for us to visit. It was as though the world had not changed in a generation.

I must admit that I was surprised to find one that was so well arranged and inviting for us to visit. It was as though the world had not changed in a generation.

I was wrong. Still in the 21st century. We may never get a chance to run and purchase things, but it is more than likely that people will want to change the way they live. The British Crown might have worked to keep the colonies at a distance, but it is more than likely that people will want to change the way they live. The British Crown might have worked to keep the colonies at a distance, but it is more than likely that people will want to change the way they live.

The government purchased the first market from setting prices and wages, and understood that people would be available to the colonial governments. It was a fact that governments did not want to be regulated by the colonies, so they went about trying to control the price of goods. The government was more likely to sell a product or service for a lower price than the market price, and often it would be sold for a very low price or even for free.

In the end, it was the British Crown that was able to control the price of goods and services, and this was a fact that governments did not want to be controlled by the colonies. The Rockwall City Council was heavily divided on the subject of an ordinance to regulate signs, with a tie vote on the issue on March 27. The council approved the study of the rates and negotiate with Oncor on the City's behalf.

The council discussed the issue of pole signs, with some council members advocating for stricter regulation and others seeking to loosen the current zoning regulations. The debate centered around the perceived impact of pole signs on the city's aesthetics and the need for fair regulation that balances property rights with community concerns.

A motion by Councilmember Kevin Fowler to approve the study of the rates and negotiate with Oncor on the City's behalf was passed, 5-1, with Pruitt abstaining. The identity of the council member who opposed the motion is not specified.
