CREAMERY MAKES PROGRESS

Considerable Stock Has Already Been Taken by Town People

DATE HAS ALREADY BEEN PROMISED

Co-Operative Creameries Successful Elsewhere Why Not Here?

P. D. Creager, representing the Haas Industrial Co., of Chicago who here promoting the installation of co-operative creamery reports he is making satisfactory progress. The weather has been very inclement since his arrival here and he has not had much opportunity to get out in the country. The business men of Portales however realize what the establishment of a creamery means to the town and already considerable stock has been subscribed for them. They also have agreed to donate the site.

The plant will cost $5,500.00 complete exclusive of the ground and the money is to be raised by selling shares of stock at $100.00 each. This plant will have a capacity of 1,200 lbs. per day, which will take about 1,200 cows to supply and should be adequate for the needs of this county for the present at least.

This company proposes in their contract to send an expert butter maker to stay here for a period of one year, should the management of the creamery so desire, they also propose to buy all the machinery that will be used in the construction of the plant except the machinery, the only out side labor to be used will be a superintendent of construction, a practical man who makes his business going from place to place constructing creameries.

We understand that 85% of the money subscribed is to be held by the stock holders until after the plant is completed and approved by an executive committee appointed by them. This has the appearance of a fair proposition.

Statistics show that 100 lbs of butter fat when manufactured makes something like 125 lbs. of butter, this due to the salt and ingredients in the cream which do not show in the butter. Our local conditions enable us to produce cream equal to that produced in any part of the United States, but by the time it reaches our distant creamery it can only be manufactured into an inferior butter, which does not command the highest price. These are a few of the reasons why we should have a local creamery. These co-operative creameries are being established in other parts of the country and are being operated with great success. Why not in Portales?

HENRY SALAZAR DEAD
(From Clovis Journal.)
Henry Salazar, veteran newspaper man and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Fort Sumner, died Wednesday in a hospital at Albuquerque, at the age of fifty-one years. In later years Salazar had been publishing the News at Belen.

TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

The coming meeting of the County Teachers Association which will be held Friday and Saturday in Portales promises to surpass any such previous meetings judging from the preparations that are being made and the program.

Some of the best educators in the state have promised to be present and large attendance of county teachers is expected.

PRESIDENT WILSON URGES RE-ELECTION OF FERGUSSON

Santa Fe, N. M., Oct. 27, 1914. Editor Herald-Times, Portales, N. M.
The following telegram was received at Democratic state headquarters this morning:

J. H. PAXTON, State Chairman.

White House, Washington, D. C. Oct. 27, '14.

J. H. Paxton, State Chairman, Santa Fe, N. M.

It is a real pleasure to speak for those who have stood by the cause of the people and manifested in a very practical way their support of just, progressive legislation. Certainly Mr. Ferguson is one of these. Quality has been tested by his service. It would seem to me little more than justice to him that his constituents should return him to the house, where, with lengthening service, he will be able to give the country the benefit of his quality more and more effectively from month to month.

MRS. CARR ENTERTAINS

It remained for Mrs. Carr to do the proper society event for the suffragists of Portales. Wednesday being the regular Club day, the members were invited to a dinner at Mrs. Carr's after which the program.

An elegant appointed table in gold and white with a large basket of Chrysanthemums as center decoration with cranberry napkins with "Votes for Women" in gold. "Vote for Women" diagonally across, made a very pleasing combination.

Covers were laid for ten and the guests were Mrs. W. O. Oldham, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. W. O. Oldham, Mrs. Nixon, Mrs. Lindsey, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. R. Culbertson, Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Dunaway. Besides these ladies there were several other members in the Club who could not be present. The dinner was served in five courses during much merriment and enjoyment.

After dinner the President, Mrs. Lindsey, presided. The matter of the Albuquerque Club maintaining headquarters at the State Fair, giving out literature and providing the beautiful host, decorated in gold with small girls dressed in white, carrying pennants with the names of the suffrage states floating to the breeze, together with the burro carrying the Mexican child walking by the side of the host. It was said to be one of the finest floats given and was a strong competitor for the prize. A vote was taken to send in a contribution to help defray the expenses.

"What suffrage exists in European countries" was discussed by Mrs. Culbertson. "What legislation have the women secured in suffrage states," by Mrs. Lindsey, a reading by Mrs. R. Culbertson and a very interesting report of the state Federation of Clubs meeting at Silver City, by Mrs. Nixon.

A vote of thanks and appreciation was extended Mrs. Carr for the happy event.

SENATOR EVANS WARNS THE DEMOCRAT VOTERS

Republican Party Trying Hard to Get Majority in Lower House and Over-ride the Governor's Veto

DEMOCRATIC PARTY PROPOSES TO PUT STATE MONEY OUT AT INTEREST

Asks Voters to Turn Out on November Third and Support State and County Democratic Ticket

Elida, N. M., Oct. 28, '14. The report of the traveling Auditor October 1st, 1914, there were in the banks of the 26 counties of the state belonging to the various counties $1,500,000 bearing no interest whatever. If this enormous amount of public money were loaned out, say at 4% interest, it would bring to the various counties $60,000.00. But instead of the people getting this $60,000.00 it goes to the banks of the state. Now Mr. Voter are you in favor of the banks or the people getting this $60,000.00. If you believe the people should get this money and not the banks, vote the democratic ticket and in that way assist in lowering the taxes. Now the appropriation of the last session of the legislature for the State University, at Albuquerque, was $45,000.00, which is $15,000.00 less than what we are giving the banks of the state each year.

The appropriation for the New Mexico Military school at Roswell during the last legislature was $25,000.00 which is $25,000.00 less than what we are giving the banks each year. We protestants object to the state appropriating money to the various Catholic institutions of the state, believe in the operation of church from state. Now what was the amount of that appropriation? $22,000.00. Yes we give the banks of the state nearly three times as much as we give the Catholics. Let us quit criticizing that appropriation until we quit giving the banks of the state three times what we give the Catholics.

We appropriate each year to pay the salaries of the eight district judges and the state officers excepting the supreme court and corporation commissioners, from Governor down, $53,000.00 which is $7,000.00 less than what we give to the banks of the state.

Mr. Voter Do you not think that now is the time to stop this by voting the democratic ticket. It is a disgrace and a shame upon the people of the state the way the republican administration have robbed the people. The democratic party is pledged to the enactment of a law requiring interest upon the public funds.

In closing I again desire to impress upon you the importance of electing the state legislature, democratic, as well as a democratic congressman.

That was one of the most disgraceful acts ever perpetrated upon the fair name of New Mexico. With out a trial or the taking of any testimony whatever they just simply removed him and seated Abeyta. This action was in keeping with an agreement with the house to unseat enough members in that body to give them the two-thirds majority which they so much desired. But Speaker Baca would not permit of any such high handed procedure in his body, so to the house the people of the state owe many thanks. In the senate, after the expulsion of Senator Romero they had the necessary two-thirds majority and they carried the two-thirds majority over the Governor's veto on the salary bill and several other measures. If the republicans had not been prevented by Speaker Baca from unseating the democratic members they would have succeeded in getting two-thirds majority in the house and thereby would have passed the obnoxious and disgraceful salary bill over the Governor's veto. It now becomes a matter of patriotic duty to the citizenship of New Mexico, especially Roosevelt county to roll up as large a majority for our democratic nominee as possible to prevent the republicans from even unseating him to get the necessary two-thirds majority. It is absolutely necessary for the democrats to carry the lower house at this election, so we can get some necessary reforms through for the benefit of the people of the state.

Now we democrats have been working since we took the oath of office to get a bill passed to require interest to be paid upon the public funds in the various counties of the state. But the republicans have refused to pass such a bill. Now according to

BRYAN WANTS FERGUSSON

Department of State, Washington, October 2, 1914. Hon. H. B. Ferguson, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.
My dear Mr. Ferguson: You may quote me as saying that I am very anxious to see you re-elected. You have stood by the president in carrying out his splendid programme and he needs you in Washington to assist him in the work in which he is engaged.
Yours very sincerely,
(Signed) W. J. BRYAN.

TRY IT.

Having at one time been connected with the Herald-Times as its editor I know its large circulation among the reading people of this section, especially. I have known for some time that it pays to advertise in the Herald-Times.

Again recently I had opportunity to test this paper as a "result getter." I placed an advertisement in it offering a survey for sale. I had no trouble in selling the survey. I placed an advertisement last week offering a cow I have had several enquiries already. It pays to advertise in the Herald-Times. Try it.

MRS. S. F. CULBERTSON HONORED

Mrs. S. F. Culbertson, our popular and efficient county superintendent has been informed by Mrs. Annie Davis Parker, corresponding secretary of the state federation of Women's Clubs of her appointment as Director of Education for that organization. We consider this quite an honor for Mrs. Culbertson and one which she is fully qualified to fill due to her long and successful experience in educational work.

SHIPPING GOATS.

Vol Finley, who has a goat ranch in the sand hills south of Redland last Saturday shipped two cars of the products of his ranch to market. D. H. Rokey of Elida shipped a car load of sheep on the same train.

U. D. C. MEETING.

The U. D. C. will meet with Mrs. R. Culbertson next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. An interesting program has been arranged and a good attendance is expected.

NEW MACHINE SHOP.

In line with progress and development of the town, Fernandez and son have added to their business a machine and repair shop with automobile repairing in connection. Part of the new equipment consists of a lathe and a four and one half horse power Vandusen gasoline engine.

The shop has been greatly improved by the building of an office and a stock room and laying a new concrete floor. W. E. Hudson a man of previous experience and who was graduated from the Sweeney Auto School at Kansas City with high honors has been engaged to do the auto repair work. He is a specialist in carburetor and magneto repairing.

Mr. Fernandez is well known over this county and has for several years been more or less connected with the auto repairing business particularly spring welding and building and other foreign duplications.

He has always held a good share of the patronage of the town and no doubt will be equally successful since enlarging his business. His son Ralph Fernandez, who was practically raised in Portales, returned a few months ago from California where he is now a partner in the business.

and corporation commissioner. The republicans, during the Andrew's campaign, urged upon the people to elect a man who is in harmony with the administration at Washington, rather than send a democrat who would not be in the good graces of the republican party. Now, using the republican arguments, lets send Ferguson, who is in harmony with the democratic party in power, and then he can accomplish something for the people of New Mexico. What good could B. C. Hernandez do for New Mexico in Congress. It has been proven he is not competent to hold a county office what could he do with a great office, that of congressman.

What could the people expect from men like Sec. Romero, of Las Vegas speaker of the house and H. B. Holt of Las Cruces, floor leader of the senate. Holt has been tried and found lacking, he being corporation lawyer, of course, could not violate his duty to his wealthy clients.

Hoping that the voters of Roosevelt county will be patriotic enough to go to the polls on November 3rd, and that they in their wisdom will support the democratic ticket.

An very truly yours,
ARTHUR J. EVANS.

GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION

Permanent Organization Made at Roswell Last Week During Fair

JUDGE RICHARDSON PRESIDENT

J. P. Deen, Treasurer, Board of Control From Each County

The Good Roads meeting held at Roswell last week was a great success according to the Roosevelt County delegation. The Eastern New Mexico Good Roads Association formed a permanent organization and elected a bunch of live officers. There was a good attendance from every county.

One of the objects of the organization that is particularly interesting to Roosevelt county is that which refers to the building of a highway connecting the towns along the Santa Fe railroad. This as we take it means that Chaves county is going to build a road connecting Roswell and Elida. Between Elida and Portales the road is partially completed and the State has promised to build the road between Clovis and Portales, so when these contemplated improvements materialize we will have a good road from the Texas line on the north at east to Roswell on the south.

The sentiment at Roswell seems to have changed from a road east across the plains to the road north paralleling the railroad and through Roosevelt county. The good roads movement is now on a substantial basis in Eastern New Mexico and is expected to show its influence at the next meeting of the State Legislature. Ed. J. Neer is the member of the executive committee from this city. The following were elected from this county as members of the board of control: A. A. Beeman and Senator A. J. Evans of Elida and Monroe House, Carl A. Johnson and W. H. Garrett of Portales.

The report which was adopted with much enthusiasm, shows the objects, officers and other information concerning the organization is as follows:

1. Name: Eastern New Mexico Good Roads Association.
2. Objects: (a) To build an eastern New Mexico highway from the state line of Texas on the south through eastern New Mexico, connecting the several towns along the Santa Fe railway in eastern New Mexico so far as such connection may be feasible and practicable. (b) To cooperate with the several sections of eastern New Mexico in planning and building a general system of public highways including main lines, proper connections, and necessary branches. (c) To organize, establish and promulgate a system of good roads publicity. (d) To promote closer co-operation between the state and county road officials, and encourage and support such legislative action as may be necessary to obtain this, and to insure the most efficient and equitable expenditure of all district, county, and state road funds.

3. Board of control: This association shall be composed of delegates from the counties represented and interested in the development of eastern New Mexico. Each county shall appoint five members of the board of control and at all meetings of said board the representatives or representative of the said county shall be entitled to cast five votes.

4. Officers: The board of control shall elect the following officers: President, G. A. Richardson, Roswell; Vice-president, Fred W. James, Clovis; Secretary, A. M. Hove, Carlsbad; Treasurer, J. P. Deen, Portales.

These officers, together with one member from each county, selected by the board of control of said county, shall be an executive committee for the transaction of all business of the association. Its action shall be final except when reviewed or altered by the board of control.

The officers above named shall perform the usual duties of such offices.

5. Finances: The executive committee shall have power to levy such assessments on the members (counties subscribing thereto) as it from time to time shall deem necessary or advisable.

J. F. HINKLE,
W. H. BALL.

METHODIST CHURCH

The Adventures of Kathlyn

SYNOPSIS.

Kathlyn Hare, believing her father, Col. Hare, in peril, has summoned her, leaves her home in California to go to him in Allahabad, India. Umballa, pretender to the throne, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir. Arriving in Allahabad Kathlyn is informed by Umballa that her father being dead she is to be queen, and must marry him. She refuses and is informed by the priests that no woman can rule unmarriage. She is given seven days to think it over. She still refuses, and is told that she must undergo two ordeals with wild beasts. If she survives she will be permitted to rule. John Bruce, an American, saves her life. The elephant which carries her from the scene of her trials runs away, separating her from Bruce and the rest of the party. She takes refuge in a ruined temple, but this haven is the abode of a lion and she is forced to flee from it. She finds a retreat in the jungle only to fall into the hands of slave traders. Kathlyn is brought to the public mart in Allahabad and sold to Umballa, who, finding her still unsubmitive, throws her into the dungeon with her father.

CHAPTER IX.

The Colonel in Chains.

The colonel and Umballa swayed back and forth. Umballa sank to his knees and then fought madly to rise; but the hands at his throat were the hands of a madman, steel, relentless. The colonel's chains clanked sharply. Lower and lower went Umballa's head; he saw death peering into the cell. His cry rattled in his throat.

Not a sound from Kathlyn. She watched the battle, unfeeling as marble. Let the wretch die; let him feel the fear of death; let him suffer as he had made others suffer. What new complications might follow Umballa's death did not alarm her. How could she be any worse off than she was? He had polluted her cheeks with his kisses. He had tortured and chafed her as few white women have been. Mercy? He had said that day that he knew not the word.

"Ah, you dog! Haven't I prayed God for days for this chance? You black caha! Die!"

But Umballa was not to die that moment or in that fashion.

That nervous energy which had infused the colonel with the strength of a lion went out like a spark, and as quickly Umballa rolled from his paralyzed fingers and lay on the floor, gasping and sobbing. Hare fell back against the pillar, groaning. The cessation of dynamic nerve force filled him with racking pains and a pitiable weakness. But for the pillar he would have hung by his chains.

Kathlyn, with continued apathy, stared down at her enemy. He was not dead. He would kill them both now. Why, she asked with sudden passion, why this misery? What had she done in her young life to merit it? Underfed, dressed in grass, harassed by men and wild beasts—why?

Umballa edged out of danger and sat up, feeling tenderly of his throat. Next he picked up his turban and crawled to the open door. He pulled himself up and stood there, weakly. But there was venom enough in his eyes. The tableau lasted a minute or two; then slowly he closed the door, bolted it, and departed.

This ominous silence awoke the old terror in Kathlyn's heart far more than verbal threats would have done. There would be reprisal, something finished in cruelty.

"My dear, my dear!" She ran over to her father and flung her arms about him, supporting him and mothering him. An hour passed.

"All in, Kit; all in; haven't the strength of a cat. Ah, great God! If that strength had but lasted a moment longer! Well, he's still alive. But, O, my Kit, my golden Kit, to see you here is to be tortured like the damned. And it is all my fault, all mine!" The man who had once been so strong sobbed hysterically.

"Hush, hush!"

"There were rare and wonderful jewels of which I alone knew the hiding place. But God knows that it was not greed; I wanted them for you and Winnie. I knew you were here. Trust that black devil to announce the fact to me. . . . God! what I haven't suffered in the way of suspense! Kit, Kit, what has he done to you?"

Briefly she recounted her adventures, and when she had done he bowed his head upon her bare shoulder and wept as only strong men, made weak, weep.

To Kathlyn it was terrible. "Father, don't, don't! You hurt me! I can't stand it!"

After a while he said: "What shall we do, Kit; what shall we do?"

"I will marry him, father," she answered quietly. "We can take our revenge afterward."

"What?"

"If it will save you."

"Child, let me rot here. What! Would you trust him, knowing his false heart as you do? The moment you married him would be my death warrant. No, no! If you weaken now I shall curse you, curse you, my Kit! There has been horror enough. I can die."

"Well, and so can I, father."

Up above the world was going on the same as usual. Trains were hurrying to and fro; the great ships were going down the sapphire seas; children were at play, and the world wide marts were busy with the daily affairs of men.

"Jewels!" she murmured, gazing at the sky beyond the grilled window. Was there ever a precious stone that lay not in the shadow of blood and misery? Poor, poor, foolish father! As if jewels were in beauty a tithes of the misery they begot!

"Ay, Kit, jewels; sapphires and pearls and emeralds, diamonds and rubies and moonstones. And I wanted them for my pretty cubs! Umballa knew that I would return for them and laid his plans. But were they not mine?"

"Yes, if you intended to rule these people; no, if you thought to take them away. Do you not know that to Winnie and me a hair of your head is more precious than the Koh-i-noor? We must put our heads together and plan some way to get out."

She dropped her arms from his shoulders and walked about the cell, searching every stone. Their only hope lay in the window, and that appeared impossible since she had no means of flying through her father's chains and the bars of the window.

She returned and sat down beside her father and rested her aching head on her knees, thinking.

Bruce, struggling with the soldiers (and long since their fat flesh had been stung into such activity!), saw Umballa appear in the corridor.

"Durga Ram," he cried, with a furious effort to free his arms, "Durga Ram, you damnable scoundrel, it would be wise for you to kill me, here and now, for if I ever get free, God help you! O, I sha'n't kill you, that would be too merciful. But I'll break your bones, one by one, and never more shall you stand and walk. Do you hear me? Where is Kathlyn Hare? She is mine!"

Umballa showed his teeth in what was an attempt to smile. He still saw flashes of fire before his eyes, and it was yet difficult to breathe naturally. Still, he could twist this white man's heart, play with him.

"Take him away. Put him outside the city gates and let him go."

Bruce was greatly astonished at this sign of clemency.

"But," added Umballa, crossing his lips with his tongue, "place him against a wall and shoot him if he is caught within the city. He is mad, and therefore I am lenient. There is no white woman in the palace or in the royal serana. Off with him!"

"You lie, Durga Ram! You found her in the slave mart today."

Umballa shrugged and waved his hand. He could have had Bruce shot at once, but it pleased him to dangle death before the eyes of his rival. He was no fool; he saw the trend of af-airs. This young white man loved Kathlyn Hare. All the better, in view of what was to come.

Bruce was conducted to the gate and rudely pushed outside. He turned savagely, but a dozen black officers convinced him that this time he would meet death. Ah, where was Allah, and Ahmed, and the man Lal Singh, who was to notify the English? He found all at camp, the chief mahout having been conducted there in an improvised litter. He recounted his experiences.

"I was helpless, sahib."

"No more than I am, Ah. But be of good cheer; Umballa and I shall meet soon, man to man."

"Allah is Allah; there is no God but God."

"And sometimes," said Bruce, moodily, "he watches over the innocent."

"Ahmed is at Hare Sahib's camp."

"Thanks, Ah; that's the best news I have heard yet. Ahmed will find a way. Take care of yourself. I'm off!"

When Umballa appeared before the Council their astonishment knew no bounds. They saw the shaven head, the shaking hands, the disheveled garments—what had happened to this schemer whom ill luck had made their master?

He explained. "I went too near our prisoner. A flash of strength was enough. They shall be flogged."

"But the woman!"

"Woman? She is a tiger-cat, and tiger-cats must sometimes be flogged. It is my will. Now I have news for you. There is another sister, younger and weaker. Our queen, and he seamed ironically, "our queen did not know that her father lived, and there I made my first mistake."

"But she will now submit to save him!"

"Ah! would indeed that were the case. But tiger-cats are always tiger-cats, and nothing will bend this maid; she must be broken, broken. It is my will, with a flash of fire in his eyes."

The Council salaamed. Umballa's will must of necessity be theirs, hate him darkly as they might.

The bungalow of Colonel Hare was something on the order of an armed camp. Native animal keepers, armed with rifles, patrolled the menagerie. No one was to pass the cordon without explaining frankly his business, whence he came, and whither he was bound.

By the knees of one of the sentries a little native child was playing. From time to time the happy father would stoop and pat her head.

Presently there was a stir about camp. An elephant shuffled into the clearing. He was halted, made to kneel, and Ahmed stepped out of the howdah.

The little girl ran up to Ahmed joyfully and begged to be put into the howdah. Smiling, Ahmed set her in the howdah, and the mahout bade the elephant to rise, but, interested in some orders by Ahmed, left the beast to his own devices. The child called and the elephant walked off quietly. So long as he remained within range of vision no one paid any attention to him. Finally he paused under a tree near the cages and reached up for some leaves. The child caught hold of a limb and gleefully crawled out upon it some distance beyond the elephant's reach. Once more, she became frightened, not daring to crawl back.

She prattled "elephant talk," but the old fellow could not reach her. The baboon in the nearby cage set up a chattering. The child ordered the elephant to rise on his hind legs. He placed his fore legs on the roof of the baboon's cage, which caved in, rather disturbing the elephant's calm. He sank to the ground.

The baboon leaped through the opening and made off to test his unexpected liberty. He was friendly and tame, but freedom was just then paramount.

The elephant remained under the tree, as if pondering, while the child began to cry loudly. One of the natives saw her predicament and hastened away for assistance.

Ahmed was greatly alarmed over the loss of the baboon. It was a camp pet of Colonel Hare's and ran free in British East Africa. The troglodyte, with that strange reasoning yet untranslatable, loved the colonel devotedly and followed him about like a dog and with a scent far keener. So Ahmed and some of the keepers set off in search of the colonel's pet.

He went about the search with only half a heart. Only a little while before he had received the news of what had happened in the slave mart that afternoon. It seemed incredible. To have her fall into Umballa's hands thus easily, when he and Bruce Sahib had searched the jungle far and wide! Well, she was alive; praise Allah for that; and where there was life there was hope.

Later Kathlyn was standing under the cell window gazing at the yellow sunset. Two hours had gone, and no sign of Umballa yet. She shuddered. Had she been alone she would have hunted for something sharp and deadly. But her father; not before him! She must wait. One thing was positive and absolute: Umballa should never embrace her; she was too strong and desperate.

"Kit!"

"Yea, father."

"I have a sharp piece of metal in my pocket. Could you . . . My God, by my hand! . . . when he comes!"

"Yea, father; I am not afraid to die, and death seems all that remains. I should bless you. He will be a tiger now."

"My child, God was good to give me a daughter like you."

She turned to him this time and pressed him to her heart.

"It grows dark suddenly," he said. Kathlyn glanced over her shoulder at the window.

"Why, it's a baboon!" she explained. "Jock, Jock!" cried her father excitedly.

The baboon chattered.

"Kit, it's Jock I used to tell you about. He is tame and follows me about like a dog. Jock, poor Jock!"

"Father, have you a pencil?"

"A pencil? blankly."

"Yes, yes! I can write a note and attach it to Jock. It's a chance."

"Good Lord! and you're cool enough to think like that!" The colonel went through his pockets feverishly. "Thank God, here's an old stub! But paper!"

Kathlyn tore off a broad blade of grass from her dress and wrote carefully upon it. If it would not understand, if the baboon returned to camp, it made her weak to realize how slender the chance was. She took the tabaret and placed it beneath the window and stood upon it.

"Jock, here, Jock!"

The baboon gave her his paw. Deftly she tied the blade of grass round his neck. Then she struck her hands together violently. The baboon vanished, frightened at this unexpected treatment.

"He is gone."

The colonel did not reply, but began to examine his chains minutely.

"Kit, there's no getting me out of here without files. If there is any rescue you go and return. Promise."

"I promise."

Then they sat down to wait.

And Ahmed in his search came to the river. Some natives were swimming and sporting in the water. Ahmed put a question. O, yes, they had seen the strange looking ape (for baboons were not usual in this part of the world); he had gone up one of the trees near by. Colonel Hare had always used a peculiar whistle to bring Jock, and Ahmed resorted to this device. Half an hour's perseverance rewarded him; and then he found the blade of grass.

"Dungeon window by tree. Kathlyn."

That was sufficient for Ahmed. He turned the baboon over to the care of one of his subordinates and hurried away to Bruce's camp, only to find that he had gone to the colonel's. Away went Ahmed again, tireless. He found Bruce pacing the bungalow frontage.

"Ahmed!"

"Yes, sahib. Listen." He told his tale quickly.

"The guards at all the gates have orders to shoot me if they catch me within the walls of the city. I must disguise myself in some way."

"I'll find you an Arab burmooose, sahib, and that will hide you. It will be dark by the time we reach the city, and we'll enter by one of the other gates. That will allay suspicion. First we must seek the house of Ramabai. I need money for bribery."

Bruce searched his wallet. It was empty. He had given all he had to the Brahmin.

"You lead, Ahmed. I am dazed."

In the city few knew anything about Ahmed, not even the keenest of Umballa's spies. Umballa had his suspicions, but as yet he could prove nothing. To the populace he was a harmless animal trainer who was only too glad not in any way to be implicated with his master. So they let him alone. Day by day he waited for the report from Lal Singh, but so far he had heard nothing except that the British raj was very busy killing the followers of the Mahdi in the Sudan. It was a subtle inference that for the present all aliens in Allahabad must look out for themselves.

"Sahib," he whispered, "I have learned something. Day after day I have been waiting, hoping. Colonel Sahib lives, but where I know not."

"Lives!"

"All in younger prison where later we go. He lives. That is enough for his servant. He is my father and my mother, and I would die for him and his. Ah! Here is the north gate. Bend your head, sahib, when we pass."

They entered the city without mishap. No one questioned them. Indeed, they were but two in a dozen who passed in at the same time. They threaded the narrow streets quickly, skirting the glow of many dung fires for fear that Bruce's leggings might be revealed under the burmooose.

When at length they came to the house of Ramabai they did not seek to enter the front, but chose the gate in the rear of the garden. The moon was up and the garden was almost as light as day.

"Ramabai!" called Bruce in a whisper.

The dreaming man seated at a table came out of his dream with a start. A servant ran to the gate.

"Who calls?" demanded Ramabai, suspicious as all conspirators ever are.

"It is I, Bruce," was the reply in English, flinging aside his burmooose.

"Bruce Sahib? Open!" cried Ramabai. "What do you here? Have you found her?"

Ramabai's wife, Pundita, came from the house. She recognized Bruce immediately.

"The memsahib! Have you found her?"

"Just a moment. Kathlyn Memsahib is in one of the palace dungeons. She must be liberated tonight. We need money to bribe what sentries are about." Bruce went on to relate the incident of the baboon. "This proves that the note was written not more than three hours ago. She probably will be held there till morning. This time we'll place her far beyond the reach of Umballa."

"Either my money or my life. In a month from now . . ."

"What?" asked Ahmed.

"Ah, I must not tell." Pundita stole close to Ramabai.

Ahmed smiled.

"We have elephants but a little way outside the city. We have pulling chains. Let us be off at once. It is not necessary to enter the city, for this window, Ahmed says, is on the outside. We can easily approach the wall in a roundabout way without being seen. Have you money?"

From his belt Ramabai produced some gold.

"That will be sufficient. To you, then, the bribing. The men, should there be any, will hark to you. Come!" concluded Bruce, impatient to be off.

"And I?" timidly asked Pundita.

"You will seek Hare Sahib's camp," said Ramabai. "This is a good opportunity to get you away also."

Ahmed nodded approvingly.

Pundita kissed her husband; for these two loved each other, a circumstance almost unknown in this dark, mysterious land of many gods.

"Pundita, you will remain at the camp in readiness to receive us. At dawn we shall leave for the frontier. And when we return it will be with might and reprisal. Umballa shall die the death of a dog." Ramabai clinched his hands.

"But first," cooed Ahmed, "he shall wear out the soles of his pig's feet in the treadmill. It is written. I am a Mohammedan. Yet sometimes these vile fakirs have the gift of seeing into the future. And one has been . . ."

He paused.

"Seen what?" demanded Bruce.

"I must not put false hopes in your hearts. But this I may say: Trials will come, bitter and heart burning; a storm, a whirlwind, a fire; but peace is after that. But Allah uses us as his tools. Let us haste!"

"And I?" said Ramabai, sending a piercing glance at Ahmed.

But Ahmed smiled and shook his head. "Wait and see Ramabai. Some day they will call you the Fortunate. Let us hurry. My memsahib waits."

"What did this fakir see?" whispered Bruce as he donned his burmooose again.

"Many wonderful things; but perhaps the fakir lied. They all lie. Yet . . ."

Hurry!

The quartet passed out of the city unmolested. Ramabai's house was supposed to be under strict surveillance, but the soldiers, due to largesse, were junketing in the bazaars. Shortly they came up to two elephants with howdahs. They were the best mannered of the half dozen owned or rented by Colonel Hare. Mahouts sat astride. Rifles reposed in the side sheaths. This was to be no light adventure. There might be a small warfare.

Pundita, flung her arms round Ramabai, and he consoled her. She was then led away to the colonel's camp.

"Remember," Ramabai said at parting, "she saved both our lives. We owe a debt."

"Go, my lord; and may all the gods—may, the Christian God—watch over you!"

"Forward!" growled Ahmed. First, though, he saw to it that the pulling chains were well wrapped in cotton blankets. There must be no sound to warn others of their approach.

"Ahmed," began Bruce.

"Leave all things to me, sahib," interrupted Ahmed, who assumed a strange authority at times that confused and puzzled Bruce. "It is my memsahib, and I am one of the fingers of the long arm of the British raj. And there are books in Calcutta in which my name is written high. No more!"

Through the moon-frosted jungle the two elephants moved silently. A drove of wild pigs scampered across the path and the wild peacock binned from the underbrush sleepily. All silence again. Several times Ahmed halted, straining his ears. It seemed incredible to Bruce that the enormous beasts could move so soundlessly. It was a part of their business; they were hunters of their kind.

"Queer People I Have Met."

I've seen Kentuckians who hated whisky, Virginians who weren't descended from Pocahontas, Indians who hadn't written a novel, Mexicans who didn't wear velvet trousers with silver dollars sewed along the seams, funny Englishmen, spendthrift Yankees, cold-blooded southerners and narrow-minded westerners, and New Yorkers who weren't too busy to stop for an hour on the street to watch a one-armed grocer's clerk do up cranberries in paper bags.—From O. Henry's "A Cosmopolitan in a Cafe."

Many farmers are making a profitable living on high-priced lands, localities cursed with insect plagues, or drought, or weed enemies, or other enemies to successful farming. The end of each year finds progress made. Spur Farm Lands offer relief from these conditions. The tenant on the high-priced lands further east can make a payment on his own acres here. A good farmer can pay for Spur Farm Lands the products thereof. The Spur Farm Lands offer productive, virgin lands easily cultivated at low prices on easy terms. Splendid crops raised without irrigation. No weevil, ever known here. 2,000 to 2,600 feet.

Considering the reliable production of these lands, prices are low. Texas, new country, setting the splendid climate, no malaria, no fever; good churches and schools. We offer the homesteaker a wide selection and are selling on no commission to anyone. The chaser receives full value in his land in dealing direct with the owner, opposed to paying a middleman a dollar per acre.

Stock Farms and Small Ranches. We also offer fine grazing lands perfectly adapted to this purpose. Section to fifty—at prices from per acre up. Free illustrated book giving all particulars, on application to Chas. A. Jones, Manager for Swenson & Sons, Spur, Dickson County, Texas.—Adv.

Children at Meal Time. Never allow children to eat when they are hot and tired; let them rest down a little first. For this reason an interval should always be allowed between work or playtime and meal, and the nurse or parent must be instructed to bring the youngsters home at least twenty minutes before the actual meal time in a leisurely manner. Hurrying to the "late for dinner" cry appears temper and digestion. If a child is tired when it arrives, spoons to be used and hands and feet to be washed a few minutes before the meal. It falls asleep don't wake it; it is more necessary than food at the moment and give a light meal.

LEARNING THINGS. We Are All in the Apprentice Class.

When a simple change of diet restores back health and happiness the story briefly told. A lady of Springfield says:

"After being afflicted for years with nervousness and heart trouble, I received a shock four years ago that put me in such a condition that my life was despaired of.

"I got no relief from doctors, from the numberless heart and nerve remedies I tried, because I didn't know that coffee was daily putting me more than the doctors could pay ahead.

"Finally at the suggestion of a friend I left off coffee and began the use of Postum, and against my expectations gradually improved in health until the past 6 or 8 months I have been entirely free from nervousness and those terrible sinking, weakness spells of heart trouble.

"My troubles all came from the use of coffee which I had drunk since childhood and yet they disappeared when I quit coffee and took up the use of Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many people marvel at the effect of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum, but there is nothing marvelous about it—only common sense.

Coffee is a destroyer. Postum is a builder. That's the reason.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The sultry summer past, September comes, soft twilight of the slow declining year. More sober than the buxom, blooming May, and therefore less the favorite of the world; but dearest month of all to pensive minds. —Wheez.

DESSERTS FOR THE INVALID.

All desserts for invalids should be prepared as attractively as possible, for daintiness in serving is a great aid to the appetite. An orange is far less tempting in its natural state than if after cutting in halves the pulp is removed with a spoon and served in long-stemmed glasses and dusted with powdered sugar. Cantaloupe, when scooped out with a spoonful, sprinkled with a little sugar and served in sherbet glasses is more tempting than simply served halves or slices.

Apples baked or as apple sauce are easily digested when the raw fruit does not agree. Peaches and plums as well as peaches are delicious when baked. Stewed prunes and figs are especially valuable when laxative effects are desired.

Desserts of which the basis is milk, with or without eggs are easy digestion and very nourishing. The best of milk desserts is junket from rennet. This comes in tablet form, one tablet being sufficient for a quart of milk. The rennet slightly curdles the milk so that it is easily digested for by the most delicate stomach. Baked and boiled custards with various flavorings come next in line of simplicity. Plain ice creams are valuable, especially in fever cases, hot weather or when the throat is sore and inflamed. They slip down easily and are both nourishing and refreshing.

All desserts using milk or eggs are freshest and best are always to be had, as a sick person is abnormally sensitive as to taste, and the slightest suggestion of anything not just right will be more quickly noticed than would be the case with a person in health. Desserts made of gelatine may be had almost infinitely. Jellies of different flavors are refreshing, coffee cocoa mildly stimulating. Sponge cakes are the best for the invalid and all puddings should be of the best kind.

You will find the mere resolve not to be useless, and the honest desire to do other people, will, in the quickest and most delicate way improve yourself.

SAVORY MEAT PIES.

Meat pies are acceptable when well prepared and not served too often. Cut the remnants of cold roast beef into small pieces, season well with salt, pepper and paprika. Cover with an abundance of gravy, and let simmer gently over a low fire. Add to it a tablespoonful of onion, or a few mushrooms, a teaspoonful of beef extract. After seasoning put into a pudding dish covered with a thin layer of pastry, and vent for the steam.

Chicken Pie.—Cut up one chicken into neat pieces, a half pound of pork cut in inch lengths, one dozen button mushrooms, two hard-cooked eggs, a few oysters and half a cup of stock, pepper, salt and a little nutmeg. Arrange the materials in a pudding dish in layers, pour on stock and add the seasoning, and cover with a paste. Cook one hour in an oven.

Veal Pie.—Peel and slice thin as potatoes as will half fill a medium sized baking dish, butter the bottom, then pieces of cooked meat or slices of lean bacon. Sprinkle some herbs and onions chopped and then another layer of potatoes until the dish is full. Dot pieces with butter on top and cover with a crust. Bake three-quarters of an hour then pour in a little rich gravy and cook 15 minutes longer. Ham Pie.—Take one and a half pounds of veal, two hard-cooked eggs, a little mace, and cayenne pepper, a teaspoonful of grated lemon peel, half a pound of ham, one teaspoonful of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, chopped onion, a few mushrooms and herbs. Cut the veal and ham in thin slices, mix the spices, herbs, seasoning and flour, roll each slice of meat in the seasoning and lay in a pudding dish, alternating with ham, eggs cut in slices and the mushrooms. Add a cupful of water, line the edges of the dish with paste and cover with a crust. When baked add a little stock or gravy. Serve hot or cold.

WORTH WHILE KNOWING.

Individual cottage puddings baked in muffin rings or tops of baking powder cans are much more appetizing, especially for those who prefer the crusty pieces.

Pass a snowy dish of freshly popped corn with the tomato soup and let each help himself.

Ginger plasters made like mustard plasters produce the same results without the blister.

When children suffer from the ear ache dust a little pepper on a bit of cotton wet in warm oil and insert it in the ear. Repeat if the pain does not cease soon.

Castor oil taken in a spoon with a bit of orange or lemon juice will go down without a protest.

For a cold in the head put a few drops of peppermint in a bowl of hot water and inhale it. Camphor is also used in the same way and is often easier for some to inhale.

Pineapple juice with honey is an excellent cough medicine, and one that the little people will not object to taste.

If a fishbone is lodged in the throat swallow a white of egg at once, and an egg swallowed after any foreign substance will coat it and cause less trouble in the alimentary canal, as it surrounds and covers the substance.

To stop nose bleed, place an ice pack on the back of the neck and press the blood vessel on the side of the jaw which leads to the side of the nose.

If a child is taken with cramps, rub the throat and neck with kerosene oil and give half a teaspoonful internally while waiting for the doctor.

Old newspapers put around the ice will keep the ice from melting. Also newspapers wrapped around the ice cream can before packing and then covering well with paper will keep cream frozen much better than the ordinary way of covering with rug or carpet.

LIVING WITHIN THE INCOME.

The majority of people, when thinking of income, think in terms of dollars and cents; but there is a much more important side of the question—there is the income of time and the income of possessions—they cannot be renewed as can money.

How, best to arrange one's work that the minimum of time and strength produces the maximum of comfort is the problem for each householder to solve. Conditions are so different, family tastes are so varied that each must work out her own solution, using all the light it is possible for her to throw upon it.

The homemaker needs time for social duties and life; they are obligatory upon her by her family's relation to society, as well as her own.

All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl. We must get away from the training of our Puritan mothers, fine as it was, to put right values on things. Society life has so many more calls upon the woman of today and we are relieved of much that was then impossible to get outside of the home.

In homes where so help is kept and the children share in the housekeeping, they have a training in life that nothing else can give. Many mothers who are able to pay for the expense of a maid or two dispense with them for the children's good.

All work becomes much easier if it follows a system, enabling one to go from one duty to another without stopping to think what comes next. For each day there are certain tasks to be done, and for every day some peculiar to that one alone.

We must have each day the three meals, the dishes washed, some darning done, the beds made, and if we take these in order they will be dispatched much sooner than, if no plan is followed.

If each member of the family is expected to put his bid in on leaving it, put away all belongings, it helps greatly in the day's work. One will soon learn not to make two motions when one will do.

Work Weakens the Kidneys.

Many occupations weaken the kidneys, causing aching backs, urinary disorders and a dull, gloomy, discouraged feeling. Work exposing one to chills, dampness or sudden changes; work in cramped positions; work amid the fumes of sulphur; constant riding on jolting vehicles, is especially hard on the kidneys.

Taken in time, kidney trouble isn't hard to stop; neglected it is dangerous. As a kidney tonic, there is no other medicine so well recommended, so widely used and so universally successful as Doan's Kidney Pills.

PIMPLES ON SCALP ITCHED

Lewisburg, Tenn.—"Four years past I had a very bad scalp trouble that commenced with itching. Later my hair got thin and my scalp sore and I could not sleep for scratching at times. I did not get the sleep that was restful and refreshing. I was losing my hair fast. I had pimples on my scalp which itched and burned so that I scratched and irritated them. I had dandruff which scalded off and showed on my clothes."

"I tried almost every noted scalp remedy and hair tonic without success. Then I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was relieved of the itching and sore scalp after three shampoos and applications of the Ointment. After using both the Cuticura Soap and Ointment for three months I was completely cured." (Signed) F. B. Lewis, Jan. 1, 1914.

COLORS' EFFECTS ON MOODS

Belief That Has Long Been Held is Declared to Have Real Foundation in Scientific Fact.

People to whom certain colors represent sounds or emotions have long been laughed at, but scientific work on the sun's rays is proving them to have justification for their theories.

Red, it appears, is the most exciting and stimulating of all colors and has a special effect on the activity of the brain. Blue, which so many people in an age of great nervous strain and tension find soothing, is so in reality. Unless you are in a depressed and melancholy state sea blue curtains at your bedroom windows have a beneficial effect, especially if you face south and get the morning sun.

Color, indeed, especially in flowers, has an extraordinary effect on the mental condition. The sight of crimson, pink and amethyst rhododendrons growing in the open air has a curiously uplifting and joyous effect.

Two Classes Barred.
A successful agricultural show is carried on each year in a certain village in the south of Ireland. Among the many competitions for the encouragement of thrift and cleanliness is one for the best turned out donkey cart. The prize for this was usually won by either the local doctor or the local solicitor. After one year's show the farmers and working classes protested that it was not quite fair to expect their hardy used animals to compete successfully with the well-cared-for and well-groomed animals of those who generally won the prize.

In consequence of this protest the following proviso in connection with this competition appeared in the show placard the following year:

"All legal and medical donkeys excluded."

Memories of Old Luxemburg.
Luxemburg, whatever its claims to the protection of Great Britain, possesses one strange association with England that dates back 12 centuries.

It is connected with the cult of St. Willibrod, the variously-spelled Saxon saint who helped to convert the Germans to Christianity—very imperfectly, as an Oxford don once dryly remarked. Every Whit Tuesday the memory of our English saint is honored at Luxemburg by a procession and religious dance which rank among the most curious survivals of medieval parentry. Luxemburg is also a place which appeals to British naturalists, for one of the commonest birds in the public park there is the charming little black redstart, which is a rare winter visitor to England.—Daily Chronicle.

Supreme Test of Friendship.
An invitation to breakfast was, in Macaulay's opinion, one of the supreme tests of friendship. "You invite a man to dinner," he wrote to Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, "because you must invite him, because you are acquainted with his grandfather, or because you wish to see him. You may be sure if you are invited to breakfast that there is something agreeable about you."

Filial Solitude.
"When I was your age," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "I did not stay out and dance all night as you do."
"I know it," replied his sociable son. "And I'm mighty sorry about it. That's why I'm trying to get you to come along and make up for some of the chances you've missed."

5 Women Avoid Operations

For years we have been stating in the newspapers of the country that a great many women have escaped serious operations by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is true.

We are permitted to publish in this announcement extracts from the letters of five women. All have been recently received unsolicited. Could any evidence be more convincing?

1. HODGDON, ME.—"I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached and I was so nervous I could not sleep, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation, but I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Me.

2. CHARLOTTE, N. C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor, and I never would get well unless I had an operation. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I gladly say that I am now enjoying fine health."—Mrs. ROSA SIMS, 16 Winona St., Charlotte, N. C.

3. HANOVER, PA.—"The doctor advised a severe operation, but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it."—Mrs. ADA WITZ, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

4. DECATUR, ILL.—"I was sick in bed and three of the best physicians said I would have to be taken to the hospital for an operation as I had something growing in my left side. I refused to submit to the operation and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and it worked a miracle in my case, and I tell other women what it has done for me."—Mrs. LAURA A. GRISWOLD, 2300 Blk. East William Street, Decatur, Ill.

5. CLEVELAND, OHIO.—"I was very irregular and for several years my side pained me so that I expected to have to undergo an operation. Doctors said they knew of nothing that would help me. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I became regular and free from pain. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. GRIFFITH, 7805 Madison Av., Cleveland, O.

A Grateful Parent.

"How do you like your new son-in-law?"
"I'm reconciled to him," replied Mr. Curox, "even if he is a duke. I'm thankful Gladys Ann didn't marry somebody that 'ud compel me to make a bow to my own daughter an' call her 'your majesty.'"

Unkind Suggestion.
"My youngest boy is always thinking of bright and clever things," said Mr. Bilgins.
"I've often heard you say so," replied Miss Cayenne as she moved wearily on. "You ought to get him to tell you a few of them some time."

Important to Mothers
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Watson In Use For Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria Encouraging.

"Did you catch any fish?" asked the woman who is always encouraging.
"Not one," replied her husband. "We got a couple of nibbles and then there was nothing doing all day."
"Well, even if you didn't catch any I'll bet you gave them an awful scare."

Democratic Ticket

For Roosevelt County, to be voted at the Election, Nov. 8, 1914

STATE TICKET

For Congress:— HARVEY B. FERGUSSON

For Member corporation Com:— ADOLPH P. HILL

For District Judge:— GRANVILLE A. RICHARDSON

For Member State Legislature:— R. G. BRYANT

It is as certain as anything can be that the republican bosses are concentrating their efforts to secure a two-thirds majority in the lower legislative house, and when men are willing to sacrifice the interests of their party, nationally, by trading off congressmen for legislative votes enough to override an executive veto, there must be something they want which must be forced through against popular opinion. Watch the legislature.

Sudan Grass promises to be one of our most valuable hay grasses. It has already proven its worth in sections of scant rainfall and in the more humid sections when the summer moisture is inadequate for other hay and forage crops. Plant Sudan and feed your stock.—Farm and Ranch.

A vote for Fergusson and Hill, cast in Roosevelt county, even though it is a strong Democratic county, is just as important as one cast in another county of the state where the result is usually close.

The enormous crops raised by the stockfarmers in Roosevelt county this year is going to put this county in a more prosperous condition than it has ever been before. Those most successful in raising crops, however, have not forgotten the years when little grain was raised and the dairy and cattle business is steadily on the increase. The settlers for the most part have come from places where conditions were different and where farming was a different proposition from here. They had to learn and with the experience was costly. Two years ago there was not a silo in the county and the dairy business was just beginning. At the present time there is perhaps a hundred silos and next year there will be one on every dairy farm. Most of them, except in the Valley are underground and were made with little expense except the labor. As to the dairy business and the selling of cream, it has grown in this short time, in such proportions that Roosevelt county is one of the principal cream producing counties in the state. Ask many of the stock farmers and they will say, "If it had not been for my cows and my cream check coming in each month, I would have had to have left the country." Owing to the increase in live stock and hogs a larger percentage of the grain raised this year, than ever before, will be fed. It is to be regretted that there is not stock and hogs enough here to consume every pound but with the increase of stock at the present rate the time is not far off when shipping grain will be a thing of the past.

WILSONIANS.

Nobody can be the friend of any class in America in the sense of being the enemy of any other class.

You can only be the friend of one class by showing it the lines by which it can accommodate itself to the other class.

Nothing can be for the interest of the country which is not in the interest of everybody; therefore the day of accommodation and of concession and of common understanding is the day of peace and achievement of necessity.

By common counsel and by the accumulating force of co-operation, we are going to seek more and more to serve the country.

SUPPORTED THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. Fergusson has stood by the President in all his policies, steadfastly and at all times. He voted for the tariff, set the banking and currency act, the Panama Canal tolls repeal act, the anti-trust and conservation legislation. Under the new tariff act, the price for wool paid in New Mexico has increased substantially as the daily market reports show. Needless to say Mr. Fergusson has earnestly and steadfastly supported the President in his Mexican policy, as a result of which the United States, of all the great nations of the world, is the only one not now engaged in war.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF WILSON'S ADMINISTRATION.

Tariff revised downwards and currency system reformed, without panic. Income tax made to shift part of tax burden from poor to rich.

Dollar Diplomacy abolished.—Human rights placed above property interests.

Panama Canal completed. American Merchant Marine established without subsidies.

Lobby driven out of Congress. Alaskan Railway authorized, and work begun.

Regular vote for United States Senators.

War with Mexico averted. Arbitration substituted for strikes in Railway labor disputes.

Parcel Post extended and cheapened.

Postal system made self-supporting.

Telephone and Telegraph Trust dissolved.

SETTING BUSINESS FREE.

President Wilson, at the White House, October 4, 1913:

"We have set the business of this country free from those conditions which have made monopoly not only possible, but, in a sense, easy and natural. But there is no use in taking away the conditions of monopoly if we do not take away also the power to create monopoly; and that is financial, rather than a merely circumstantial and economic power.

"The power to control and guide and direct the credits of the country is the power to say who shall and who shall not build up the industries of the country, in which direction they shall be built and in which direction they shall not be built. We are now about to take the second step, which will be the final step in setting the business of this country free. That is what we shall do in the currency bill."

MACHINE BUILDING TO REPLACE HORSES ON FARMS.

A machine designed to replace horses entirely on small farms has been developed, says the November Popular Mechanics Magazine. Driven on the same principle as standard "caterpillar" tractors, it is intended to serve more in the sense of a mechanical horse, drawing all ordinary farm implements and working wherever it is possible for horses to work. Its motive power is supplied by an internal-combustion engine.

Election Proclamation

The Board of County commissioners of Roosevelt county, in pursuance of the requirements of section 1, of chapter 105 of the laws of 1909, hereby give public notice that an election will be held in said county on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, Nineteen Hundred and Fourteen, the same being the third day of said November; that the object of said election is the selection by the people of one Representative of the State of New Mexico in the Congress of the United States; of one member of the State Corporation Commission; of one member of the State House of Representatives to be elected from said

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear, which is not dangerous, if left entirely alone. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; since cases of deafness are constantly recurring, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. IMPORTANT FACTOR IN ALFALFA CULTURE

Alfalfa, the One Best Feed.

(By R. A. MOORE.)
A very important factor to observe in alfalfa culture is the proper time and manner in cutting and curing the hay. For best results alfalfa should be cut when coming into blossom. When about one-tenth of the plants are in bloom and the weather fair, the mower should be started and the alfalfa cut, leaving the stubble at least one inch in length. If the alfalfa is left until in full bloom, the stems are woody and coarse and the feeding quality much impaired; the leaves will then fall quite readily, causing considerable loss of the best part of the forage. When cut shortly after the first blossoms appear, the plants recover quickly and usually in 30 days from the time of taking first cutting from the field another is ready to cut. Alfalfa should not be cut after the mid-ly into hay, and cures are an absolute necessity. After the alfalfa remains under the caps for two days in moist weather it is necessary to remove the caps of hay or the alfalfa plants underneath will meet with certain death. If the corks of alfalfa cannot be opened on account of moist weather they should at least be drawn from the spot where standing. This can be done readily by sticking a pitchfork into the hay near the bottom of the corks; then pulling it directly toward you, it can be moved easily. Dew and sunshine hurt alfalfa as well as rain; hence the use of the hay cap is urged as a necessity for making well-cured hay. At the Wisconsin experiment station four cuttings of alfalfa were obtained during one season which yielded five and one-half tons to the acre. By comparing alfalfa, clover, timothy and brome grass for protein con-

A Fine Field of Alfalfa Being Cured.

At the end of September, but the growth left for winter protection. Alfalfa may turn yellow and look sickly; this may be due to an over-abundance of moisture or to a disease known as leaf spot. When alfalfa is affected as described, it is a good plan to cut regardless of the state of maturity. The next growth will show no detrimental effects. The first cutting is generally made in early June, and, as a rule, is the heaviest and hardest to cure. Hay-caps are found to be very essential in curing the hay; often one-half the total value of the hay is saved by their use. In good drying weather the alfalfa cut in the forenoon can be raked into windrows in the afternoon and put into corks containing not more than one hundred pounds of hay. These should be promptly capped and left for two days. If the weather is fair, corks can be open to the sun and wind for a few hours and then hauled to the barn. In rainy and misty weather it is somewhat trying to cure alfalfa nice-tent. It was found that the alfalfa yielded three times as much protein per acre as clover, nine times as much as timothy and twelve times the amount obtained from brome grass. Profitable Patch. The vegetable garden should have a place on every farm. There is no question that this can be made one of the most profitable patches of ground when the satisfaction to the entire family is taken into consideration. It is well worth the work and the effort. Neat Package Sells Well. A neat and attractively put up package will sell much more readily and at a better price than one carelessly packed even though it contains better produce. Supplemental Goose Feed. Geese will make a pretty fair living if they have plenty of grass, although a handful of grain every day, even during the summer months, will do them all the more good.

SPRAYING INCREASES YIELD OF POTATOES

Spraying Potatoes Makes Them Grow.

The importance of spraying the potato crop is not recognized by many growers. Too many who really know better, are too lazy to take the time. The top row of potatoes shown here came from a field that was sprayed twice; the lower row is from a field adjoining in which the soil is equally good or even better, but the plants were not sprayed.

DROUGHT MAY BE PREVENTED

Fall Plowing Should Always Be First Step in Preparing to Combat Dry Season to Follow.

Naturally, there is no way in which a drought may be avoided when it really comes, but there are certain practices that will help to lessen its harmful effects. We have had several dry years in the last decade and it is time we were taking advantage of any and every plan whereby we may be able to save the moisture in the soil for the benefit of the growing crops. Saving the moisture is the one essential thing. Of course, to do that properly we ought to follow the plan of the man who uses dry-farming methods and do most of our plowing in the fall. Fall plowing should always be the first step in preparing to combat a dry season. This will fill the soil with rain and snow water during the winter and in the spring you can keep most of that water there by judicious and constant stirring of the soil.

In the spring, and even in the early summer the soil is usually pretty well saturated with moisture. If we looked at it through a microscope we would see every soil particle surrounded by a thin film of water. The good rains of winter and spring have filled the soil spaces and packed the soil pretty tightly. If it remains packed, the films of water surrounding the soil particles will vanish. It will be sucked up from particle to particle till it reaches the surface and the wind and the sun will pick up and whirl it away.

Fighting off the effects of dry weather depends for its success on keeping this moisture in the ground. It cannot be permitted to reach the top. Once gone it is not going to be replaced in midsummer.

The solution of the problem is keeping the soil water in the soil. Leave the soil to itself and in a little while a crust will form over a plowed field or a stubble patch and then the real evaporation begins.

If the surface is scratched up and kept stirred the water will not come to the surface but will remain in the soil, where the plant roots can get at it.

PREFERENCE GIVEN TO RYE

Particularly Good Crop When Outlook Is Not Good for Winter Wheat —Time to Plow.

I would particularly recommend to dry farmers that, when the outlook is not good for winter wheat on account of moisture conditions, preference should be given to rye, says a writer in Dry Farming.

Dry-raised seed rye has a value of its own, in some years bringing as high as $1 a bushel. It will grow and make 20 bushels to the acre in some seasons when winter wheat would not make five bushels. It can also be cultivated in between the corn rows in August without hurting the grain a particle and plowed under as a fertilizer before the next planting in May or June. This method is earnestly recommended to those who raise corn in the same field year after year without rotation.

How about dry plowing in August and September? If the succeeding winter is normal it will come out in good shape in the spring and can be worked up to advantage and will contain more moisture than land plowed in March or April; but if the soil is very obdurate it may be better to disk the surface in the fall and to put off the plowing until later. Every farmer must settle this question according to his own conditions. There is this to be said: If the winter is dry it will be just as hard to plow in the spring as it was in the fall.

The danger lies in planting deeply plowed land before it has settled. Rolling or packing is not a remedy for this condition, for the trouble is over-aeration, or too much air in the soil, and nothing will drive the air out and fine the soil sufficiently to keep it out but water.

TIME FOR PLANTING WHEAT

Much Depends on Locality, Earlier in North and Later in South—Rolling Not Needed.

Which is the best month to plant winter wheat, August or September? This depends on the locality, earlier in the North and later in the South; but this may not be always the rule. In any place where the wind blows it is essential to plant early in order that the plants may stool and cover the ground before the worst of the winds hold away. Some say that if we plant early the rank growth may sometimes take too much moisture out of the ground. This idea is largely imaginary, but if it is found to be the case it may be easily remedied by putting the cattle on it for a few days. Care must be taken, however, to not allow cattle to over-pack the winter wheat land. They cannot do this when the ground is frozen.

It should also be noted that no artificial packing must be used on land which has time to settle and pack itself. The only real function of the roller is to firm land which is plowed today and planted tomorrow; but, since we never do this if we can help it, and since corn and sorghum prefer loose land with a little packing in the seed row, there is no need to throw away $50 or $60 on a packer, especially as the best seed bed is made by alternate disking and harrowing.

TAMWORTHS ARE THE IDEAL BACON

Tamworth Boar.

(By D. L. GRAY.)
The question is often asked, "What is the best breed of swine?" The answer cannot be given by naming any one particular breed; there is no such thing as a "best" breed. One breed may be specially adapted for a certain purpose, while another may be better suited for a different object. The best breed for any particular farmer is usually the breed that he likes best.

The breeds of hogs are divided into two general classes, the bacon type and the lard type. The Yorkshire and the Tamworth breeds belong to the bacon type, while other breeds, as the Berkshire, the Poland-China and the Duroc-Jersey, belong to the lard type.

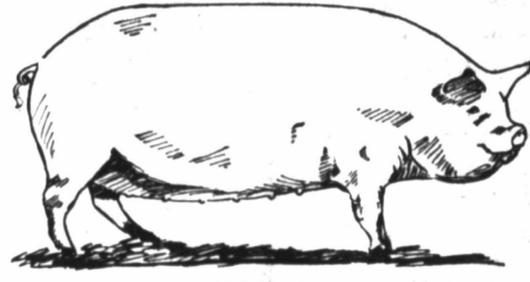

The individuals of the large Yorkshire breed are noted for their extreme length and depth of body, from which can be taken large pieces of meat suitable for bacon. They are not as broad as the lard type of hog across the shoulders, backs and hams. The Yorkshire is a very large breed—probably the largest of the breeds of swine known in America. For use in the southern states their color is against them, as they are white, and are red. They will attain a size almost equal to that of the Yorkshire. They are good rustlers, very prolific, and the meat is of the highest quality and ranks very high for bacon.

This breed is large in size and can be made to weigh from seven to nine hundred pounds and even more, but the average mature male will probably weigh about six hundred pounds and the sow 450 pounds. At six months of age pigs will weigh about one hundred and seventy-five pounds.

The Berkshire is one of the old and well-established lard types of hogs. In form they are long, broad, deep and low. They are much shorter on their legs and have a shorter head and neck and a better developed ham than the bacon type. While the back of the Berkshire is broader than that of the hogs of the bacon types, still it is not as broad as that of the Poland-China. The modern Berkshire breeders are working for a back medium in width and for a side long and deep and free from wrinkles.

In color the breed is black, with white points in the face, on the tip of the tail and on the feet. Sometimes a splash of white is seen on the fore

Yorkshire Sow.

In the South there is strong objection to white hogs on the ground that they are more subject to skin diseases than the black or red hogs. This is practically the only point, however, that can be brought against them for the southern conditions. They are good rustlers, can get about over large areas, and they are unexcelled as grazers. The Yorkshire is not an early maturing breed; the smaller breeds of hogs can be prepared for the market in less time, but Yorkshires are rapid growers and are capable of making much of this growth from pastures. Furthermore, they are good breeders, good mothers, and produce large litters regularly.

The Tamworths are the ideal bacon type. The bodies are extremely long and moderately deep. The legs, the head and the neck are also long and coarse when compared with the hogs of the lard type. The back is not as broad as that of the Yorkshire. The Tamworths have the advantage of the Yorkshires in color, as they leg. The nose is short, the face is dish, and the ears stand erect with a droop at the tip. Berkshires are good rustlers and fatten at almost any age. The quality of the meat is good. While they are relatively strong in breeding qualities, still they are not as good breeders as the Yorkshires, Tamworths or Duroc-Jerseys. They are, however, more prolific than the Poland-Chinas.

As the name would indicate, the Berkshire is of English origin, and is said to have been first brought to this country about 1830. The breed seems to be able to adapt itself to almost any environment, as it is found being successfully raised in the warmer sections of the South and Southwest, as well as the more northerly parts of the United States. For grading purposes, the value of the Berkshire male with common stock is undoubted. And where fair individuals of pure breeding stock are used, this breed crosses well with Poland-China and other breeds.

PREPARE FOR COVER CROP

Continued and Late Cultivation of Cotton Will Keep Rows in Condition to Receive Seed.

There is a strong argument for continued and late cultivation of cotton. It will keep the rows in good condition to receive the seed of a fall cover crop at about the time of the first plowing, writes W. B. Mercier in Southern Agriculturist. This may be rye, oats, wheat, crimson or bur clover or vetch. The clovers, of course, are preferable for this, as they not only add vegetable matter, but also furnish nitrogen, and are frequently a very valuable help in grazing live stock. The sowing of some cover crop in the cotton middles has proven very successful in nearly all the humid sections. It is believed that every acre could be sown down to some kind of cover crop to advantage. It will protect the soil from erosion, add vegetable matter, which is the greatest need of southern cotton lands, and also furnish considerable feed for the various kinds of animals. A bushel of rye or oats, 20 pounds of crimson clover seed, two to three bushels of bur clover seed in the bur, or 15 or 20 pounds clean, or 20 pounds of vetch seed per acre give a very satisfactory seeding. The sowing may be done in the middles and followed by some kind of cultivator to loosen the soil and cover the seed. There is nothing that could attract more attention to the cotton fields than a green covering during the winter and early spring, where only the bare land has met the traveler's eye in the past. This can be made the first step toward retaining and improving the soils of our cotton fields. Let everyone who has a cotton field try out at least a part of it in a cover crop in 1914.

WORKING TOOLS FOR GARDEN

Equipment Costing About Twenty Dollars Is Essential for Plot of Ground One Hundred Feet Square.

(By E. M. MATHATON, Georgia Agricultural College.)
Every garden of 100 feet square should have a combination seed drill and wheel hoe, a small sprayer, a hand rake, a small garden hoe and a large field hoe, as well as a tiny fork, trowel and spade, a wheelbarrow, a good stout line of about 100 feet. This equipment would cost around $20. If the seeding were done by the hand and the work done with hoe and rakes exclusively the equipment for the garden would not cost over $5.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

- Burn carcasses of dead hogs promptly, also all rubbish.
- Hog cholera is the greatest menace to the hog raising industry.
- Because a farmer has never handled sheep is no good reason why he should not make a start now.
- Have an experienced person vaccinate, with serum, all hogs while healthy if the disease is in your locality.
- Receipts of beef cattle at the big markets prove conclusively that the country is facing a great cattle shortage.
- Keep the quarters of the pigs free from dust, which is a busy carrier of tuberculosis, hog cholera and pneumonia.

MAKING A SPLIT-LOG DRAG

Every Farmer Should Possess One of These Implements for Use on Roads After a Rainfall.

The halves of the drag should be framed together by wooden braces so that the split surfaces of the log will be in front. The face of the drag should lie at an angle of 45 degrees with the lines of the road, thus directing the earth toward the center. The rear log should follow in the track of the first. Drags should be used after rains, or continued wet weather, to smooth the earth's surface and prevent ruts from forming to hold water.

Split-Log Drag.

The drag not only smooths the road but crows it and puddles the water so that it is hard when dry.

These drags have been used with great success on clay or water-logged soils. Many stretches of black gravel roads in the West are maintained by the use of this implement.

Every farmer should own one after a rain he should spend a few hours on the road adjacent to his farm. If there are many depressions to fill, the drag should be used when the road is wet.

After it has been used long enough to make the road fairly smooth, the drag gives the best results if used when the earth begins to dry.

GRAVEL TO SURFACE ROADS

With Good Material and a Little Attention Highways Should Last for Several Years.

(By E. B. HOUSE, Colorado State Station)

There has been much agitation during the past year concerning the financing of our principal roads and in many parts of the state we find deposits of gravel it seems that the material which may be economically used. A few words concerning the construction of these roads may be out of place.

First of all the construction should be such that the gravel is confined and held in position on the road. This is accomplished by so grading the road foundation that shoulders are formed at the sides. The earth forming the shoulders should be well compacted and solid, otherwise they will wash away. The gravel then spread in a layer about four inches thick, in the center and two and one-half inches at the sides. Enough sand or loam is then added to make the gravel "bind" well, this is mixed with the gravel with a harrow and the layer is then sprinkled and rolled until solid. Another layer of gravel is then spread over the first and treated in the same way. The result is a gravelled surface 15 feet wide and six inches thick at the center and two and one-half inches thick at the sides, and if the gravel is of a good quality this road with a little attention should last for years.

The whole surface of the earth foundation should be graded to the proper form and compact with the roller and the gravel then spread in a layer about four inches thick, in the center and two and one-half inches at the sides. Enough sand or loam is then added to make the gravel "bind" well, this is mixed with the gravel with a harrow and the layer is then sprinkled and rolled until solid. Why a Country Road Unit.

A stretch of road of the utmost importance to a locality may be of little concern to a particular township involved (the people using another road), and hence there is no opportunity to have the entire stretch of the road improved as it should be. And we conclude that no system of roads that will answer present needs can be built under township control, because they are too small to carry the work. Moreover, the cost would fall wholly on the township, whereas the center toward which the road passes is as much benefited, but may be in a different township. County control of the main roads would be better; the law could let each county vote for or against county control.—A. N.

A Land of Beauty.

Maryland appropriates $4,000,000 for road improvements, a part of which must be spent for planting trees along the highways. Maryland is making a land of beauty; with good roads the rural districts will be doubly attractive.

Italian Regulations.

Italy is drafting and will soon issue a series of regulations covering the width of wheel ruts to be allowed on highways.

MAKE LARD AT HOME

ALWAYS SUPERIOR IN QUALITY TO BOUGHT ARTICLE.

Method of Rendering Presents Few Difficulties—Fire Must Not Be Too Hot and Pot Needs to Be Carefully Watched.

Since home-made lard is so superior to anything in the same line that can be bought it seems strange so many women buy their shortening ready for use. Frying out the fat is very little trouble and home-made lard is not more expensive than that bought in the can. Leaf lard, the fat that comes on the thin under portion of hog meat, costs from 25 cents to 40 cents for two pounds, according to the location of the butcher's shop, rather than the quality of the lard.

The method of rendering lard is simple. For instance, the fire should not be fiercely hot when the pot is set on the stove and care must be taken not to spill any fat while on the fire, because it might burn. There will be less danger of this if cooked over a slow fire, and as the fat should be melted with gentle heat a moderate fire is best all around.

Cut the fat into small pieces and put without water into the pot. Set over the fire, and when steam ceases to rise from the vessel the lard is sufficiently cooked. Then a little salt should be thrown in, also a pinch of baking soda. The first causes the sediment to settle quickly and helps to keep the lard, while the soda tends to whiten it.

Strain through cheesecloth into small jars rather than large ones. Old lard cans may be used, but it is a good idea in any case, that is, if much lard is made at a time, to cover the tops of the jars with a layer of cotton batting before putting on the lids.

Always keep lard in a cool, dry place. In England the scraps left from the lard are considered quite a delicacy among the poorer people. In this country they are usually thrown away, but I have used them very successfully in the place of suet, chopping them fine and working them into the flour with the tips of the fingers. And speaking of suet reminds me a very cheap and excellent shortening can be made for family use from the suet taken from the beef flank. It is called cod fat and makes a much softer and better shortening than the ordinary suet. This can be melted down like lard after cutting into small pieces. When ready to come from the stove the melted fat is poured into clean, cold water to harden. It can then be taken off, wiped dry and be packed away for future use.

Some people object to animal fat, preferring cottolene. This can be made at home; then there will be no question as to its purity. Six parts of cotton oil to four parts of oleostearine are melted together and strained into jars.

Old-Fashioned Rug.

Save all your rags of various colors, cut them in strips and sew them together. Some evening when you have nothing else to do go through your rag bag, select rags of different colors, put them in separate bags. Then another evening cut these rags in strips, sew them together, wind them in balls. Then some nice sunny afternoon when you are sitting on the porch and wondering what to do, you can begin to make one of the old-fashioned rag rugs in blue or pink, with a border of white or black. "Stocking tops" make splendid black strips for the border. Purchase the largest bone crochet needles you can find and crochet as you would a round dolly in the usual manner. These make attractive rugs for the guest room or bedroom.

Corn Soup.

One can of corn or six ears of green corn grated or put through a vegetable chopper. Cook for 15 minutes in a little water. Boil three pints milk; add salt, pepper and a small lump of butter. When the milk boils add the corn (strained), and serve very hot. Put a dessertspoonful of whipped cream on each cup. A little celery, cooked and strained is a very appetizing addition.

Banana Custard.

Beat well together three eggs and one-half cupful sugar. Add two cupfuls of milk, the grated rind of a lemon and the mashed pulp of banana, until it is the consistency of a thin batter. Then sprinkle the top with sugar and bake to a light brown. When cool cover the top with a meringue, made with the well-beaten whites of two eggs and four tablespoons of sugar; return to the oven and brown. Serve cold.

Potato and Ham Sandwiches.

Into a pint and a half of well-seasoned mashed potatoes stir two eggs without beating. Spread two table-spoons of this potato out smoothly and lay on it a slice of neatly trimmed boiled ham. Cover this with potato, pinch the edges well together, lay in boiling lard and fry to a golden brown. Scraps of any kind of meat minced and seasoned may be used instead of the slices.

Tasty Wild Peppercorns.

Wild peppercorns, carefully picked and washed, can be used for flavoring sandwich fillings of meat or cream cheese or salads. A few spoonfuls added to a cream cheese give a piquant and delicious flavor.

Tailored Costume for College Girl

FOLLOWING the sanest of present-day styles (at a commendable distance from all extremes) and especially designed for slender young figures, the picture given here presents an ideal tailored costume for a young woman.

The undraped skirt hangs straight from the normal waist line. It has the fashionable narrow effect, but is provided with inverted plaits at each side, which are free from the knee down. These give room for long and rapid strides. The bottom is finished with a hem, and above the plaits arrow-heads and seams piped with a contrasting color make a workman-like, and therefore elegant, "tailored" finish.

The coat follows, with fashionable vagueness, the lines of the figure. In many new models the waist line is quite ignored. But in this there is an easy shaping of the waist. The shoulders are wide and the sleeves long, all of which points show the good judgment of the designer in composing a garment for the slender and undeveloped figures of youth. For finish the coat depends upon pipings, embroidered arrow-heads and simulated buttonholes with a turned-back collar in silk of the same color as the decorations.

The belt, of the material, with small ends at the front, has a row of machine stitching near its edges and is a feature in the styles for fall and winter. The jacket is hemmed at the bottom. Deep, slightly flaring cuffs finish the sleeves.

A soft blouse of white cotton voile, with neck and sleeves finished with hemstitched frills, is worn with this suit. The sensible walking boots of kid, with cloth uppers, are neatly tipped with patent leather. The short washable gloves are barred with black. A sailor hat with velvet brim and satin crown is simply trimmed with velvet bow and one large satin poppy. Taken altogether this is a costume that the young woman may wear with much satisfaction. It will pass the most discriminating scrutiny and place her at once among the well dressed.

School Hats for Big and Little Girls

A GROUP of three hats is pictured here suited to the needs of the young lady in the high school and her smaller sister. One of them, the mortar-board hat of velvet, is shown in two views. This velvet model and the large sailor for the nearly grown miss are suitable for dressy wear also.

The mortar-board hat is a novelty in headwear. It is made on a square brim mounted over a small round crown. The velvet covering is cut large enough to fold back, as shown in the picture. This covering is a large square of velvet bordered with silk. The four corners of the square are fastened to the crown with small ribbon bows. No further decoration would be in good taste on so odd a model. This hat could be made of more durable material by substituting one of the thin plushes, such as are shown among fall millinery materials.

The sailor shape of plain velvet is a type of many hats designed for young girls. The brim of velvet is quite often mounted on a crown of silk in contrasting color. Gold and silver cloth is used for this purpose. Pretty roulan-striped silks are good. The close-fitting, bonnet-like shape, for a little miss, is of a light weight plush draped over a frame. It is trimmed with a small natural wing. These plushes will stand any amount of wear and weather and are, in fact, more hardy than fur. Hats made of them are very comfortable and a satisfactory protection in cool weather.

Corduroy is about the most reliable fabric which one can select to make hats for the children's daily wear. And altogether satisfactory shapes can be made at home, using either corduroy or velvet. Hats of this kind are made with soft crowns and have brims interlined with ermine. Patterns for making them are to be had of any standard pattern company. By stitching the brims in parallel rows, they may be kept shapely. Trimmings are of the simplest character if used at all. Bands of ribbon finished with small bows are the best choice of all.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

HOW THE TIDE RUNS.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield, on February 23, 1914, said: "When we are able in one industry (steel), after the duties are lowered, to sell abroad $68,000,000, as against purchases of less than $3,000,000, and purchases which were actually smaller than those made under the old tariff, no one has any sound cause to worry about his market being flooded. The tide runs the other way."

THE TELEPHONE GIRL.

Take off your hat when you meet the telephone girl, advises the Lyons Daily News. She is the one person in the city who knows exactly where every lady and every gentleman lives, has the home location of every hypochrasis and Pharisae and double-dealer, is perfectly "next" to the girl who is telling her parents she is "spending the evening with Mary" while in fact she is bumming the streets with some cheap sport, and if there are men and women who regard the marriage tie lightly the telephone girl has them all spotted. She has advance information about every wedding, a line on every scandal, inside history of every neighborhood, every bit of this she knows without ever stooping to "listen in," for that is not only impossible in the rush of business, but totally unnecessary. Like the actor and the newspaper, the telephone girl knows a great many things she never speaks of, and if either of these three would be as free about their gossip as the average person, pandemonium would reign in town. It's wonderful how the fact that a person is carrying dynamite in his hands makes him careful about dropping it. There are folks everywhere who would be safer handling dynamite than carrying about with them some of the inside history these three agencies carry every day in the natural course of their service to humanity.—Hepford Brand.

WHY THE NEXT LEGISLATURE MUST BE DEMOCRATIC

TAXATION PLATFORM.

From the Democratic Platform. "We favor the reform of our taxation system from assessment to collection, including the creation of a tax commission, to the end that the burden of taxation may be equally imposed upon all classes of property subject to taxation." This plank, from the Democratic state platform, like that on county salaries, is clear, definite and easily understood. It has no equivocation in it; no complicated language; no "ifs." It means simply what it says; a sane, complete reform of our taxation system.

For twenty years the Republicans, in complete control of each succeeding legislature, territorial and state, in complete control of the convention which wrote the state constitution, have been tinkering with our taxation system.

Look at that system now! It is far worse at this time than ever before. It is worse than no system, and the present chaos in taxation matters is solely due to years of Republican control, to legislation designed to protect large interests and shield tax dodgers.

The Republicans now propose, through their proposed constitutional amendment, to abolish the state board of equalization. They created that board, expecting to control it by the election of Republican state officers. In this they failed. They now propose to abolish the board and leave the state without any guide or guard to the taxation system—to let the taxation problem run wild.

The same influences which have dictated Republican taxation legislation in the past in this state control the Republican party now. If Republican are elected to the legislature, those influences will dictate your taxation legislation.

Isn't it time to try a new deal in tax lawmaking?

SALARY PLATFORM.

From the Democratic Platform. "We favor reasonable salaries for county officers, commensurate with the work to be performed, fair alike to the taxpayers as well as the officials. We also favor a fixed, definite sum for each official, with proper compensation for a deputy or deputies, as may be required to perform the services for the public, and to be paid directly to such deputy, or deputies, so employed."

Here is a plain, clear statement which everyone can understand. It is the pledge of the Democratic party of New Mexico to the people of this state that if you elect a Democratic majority to the legislature that majority will enact just the kind of county salary legislation provided for in this platform plank, which is the kind of county salary legislation the people want.

The Republicans, with majorities in both houses of the legislature, have had this county salary question before them for twenty years. Every time they have enacted legislation on the question they have made the problem worse.

Doesn't sound common sense demand the election of men pledged as this Democratic platform plank pledges every legislative candidate? Why should we take any more chances with our money?

Finally, you have elected a governor who has been the ever-steadfast friend of the taxpayer. The governor must have a legislature that is favorable to the policies he advocates. A Republican legislature means high salaries, high taxes and special taxation privileges to the corporate interests.

APPROVE TAX BOOKS.

The County commissioners met today and approved the tax rolls. The Assessor, J. E. McCall, did not expect to have his work done as soon but the improved methods adopted in his office this year enabled him to get through sooner than was anticipated. The books will be turned over to the County Treasurer, M. S. Jones, Friday and 1914 taxes will be payable immediately.

DISTRIBUTING BALLOTS.

Owing to the fact that the law requires that the amendment ballots be printed in both Spanish and English, the Herald Printing company, the official county printers, were delayed somewhat in getting out the ballots because of our inability to get the Spanish amendments. They were printed Thursday and C. P. Mitchell, the county clerk, will commence distributing Friday. Three years ago Mr. Mitchell was unjustly criticized because some precincts did not get ballots but this year he is going to deliver personally, so far as he can, the ballots to each precinct.

GRADING MAIN STREET.

NOTICE OF PENDENCY CAUSE.

The State of New Mexico, To M. A. Hunter, Defendant, Greeting: You will take notice that a suit has been filed against you in the District Court of the Fifth Judicial District of the State of New Mexico, in and for Roosevelt County, wherein Susie L. Cheney is plaintiff and you, the said M. A. Hunter, are defendant, said cause being numbered 1053 upon the Civil Docket of said Court.

The general objects of said action are as follows: The plaintiff seeks to foreclose a mortgage deed executed and delivered by John L. Hunter (or J. L. Hunter) and his wife, Myrtle E. Hunter, to the plaintiff on the 11th day of May, 1911, for the sum of $600.00 with interest thereon at twelve per cent per annum from the 11th day of May, 1912, till paid, ten per cent additional upon said amount for attorney's fees, and all costs of suit, said mortgage being upon the following described real estate, to-wit: The Northwest Quarter of Section Seven in Township Two South of Range Thirty-four East of the New Mexico Meridian, New Mexico.

The plaintiff asks to have said mortgage lien declared superior to any right or claim of the defendant, M. A. Hunter, who is alleged to have bought said property subject to plaintiff's mortgage, and with due notice thereof; to have said property sold and the proceeds of such sale applied in the first place to the satisfaction of plaintiff's said demands, with costs of suit.

You are further notified that unless you enter your appearance in said cause on or before the 18th day of December, 1914, judgment by default will be rendered against you, and the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

George L. Reese is attorney for the plaintiff and his postoffice address is Portales, New Mexico. Witness my hand and the seal of said court this 27th day of October, 1914. C. P. MITCHELL, Clerk. By J. W. BALLOW, Deputy.

County Commissioners Ed Johnson and D. K. Smith, came in Thursday morning to attend the call meeting. Mrs. W. H. C. Smith left Wednesday morning to visit her children at Clovis.

REPUBLICAN STATE

Result of A The State is De

The vote in Roosevelt county was exceedingly light, shown in the towns many of the voters they did not care to vote. In eleven of the precincts about 400 votes, and in the other precincts will probably not be over 200. The total number of the tickets of voters were voted straight in this county against the amendment, with the exception of two.

The commission met this afternoon and called the vote which are slow coming.

In the State the vote was 2548 plurality over the Democratic ticket. Williams, Republican Corporation of P. Hill, Democrat, plurality. The legislative majority. The constitution is probable that it will be down.

The following is the result from eleven of the precincts in Roosevelt county (at Elida.)

Francis C. Wilson, 34. For Corporation, A. P. Hill, 33. 38; Hugh Williams (Granville A. Rich), 47. For Bryan, 336; Jas. E. Coffey, 13.

The amendments for article five section 296. For article six, section 156.

There are 15 precincts in the county but these will not be over 100 per cent of the total.
