The prosperity caused by the increase in the catte and dairy industry is being felt at Elida as well as the rest of Roosevelt

This has all been changed now and there is not a man in that who does not have a number of ness conditions and the financial conditions of the people is remarkable.

The Elida country, like the rest of the county, is now settled by a progressive people who are there to stay. They are making substantial improvments, better houses and barns and fixing up generally.

Business conditions in the town are good. The money derived from the sale of cream makes much of the business carried on by the merchants practically cash. One business man said "I had the best business last month that I had in five years."

success in Alan's understanding. The car slipped smoothly away from the curb, pursued only by a little gust of semi-ironic cheers from the little company of working men who had witnessed as well as measurably participated in the putative elopement from the house of Trine.

Vigilant for any indication that their evasion had had a witness in that strange home of deathless hatred, Alan watched it through the little window in the back of the cab until a corner blotted out the vision of it: then with a sigh of relief sank down by the side of the woman to whom his every thought, impulse and emotion were dedicated.

Had any of Trine's household been cognizant of his daughter's escape, Alan argued, interference must have been instant.

Despite the reassuring aspect, the preoccupation of his companion so wore upon him that he was presently so longer able to refrain from disturbmg her.

"Rose!" he begged again, closing a hand tenderly over hers. "Dearest girl, don't worry another instant! Do salm yourself: remember we are safe

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Ring.

Theirs was the last vehicle to swing between the gates before these last And this was quite as well; for Alan.

rising for one last backward glance and by ferry across the Hudson stood clamation when he descried a powershould prove the consummation of all the ferry-house, its one passenger half Alan had too often suffered the pen- driver, and exhibiting a countenance purple with congested chagrin as he saw his car barred out of the carriage entrance Quickly sensitive to his emotion, the girl caught nervously at Alan's hand. What is it, dear?"

"Marrophat," he snapped.

She uttered a hushed cry of dismay. "Don't be alarmed, however," he hastened to comfort her. "He's lost the race: the gates are shut-even the passenger gates—and there must be a company spotter somewhere near by, for the gateman is virtuously refusing to be bribed by a roll of money as thick as my wrist!"

At that instant the taxicab rolled aboard the ferry-boat; the deck gates were closed; a hoarse whistle rent the roaring silence of the city; winches rattled and chains clanked; and the boat wore ponderously out of its slip.

"So much for Mr. Marrophat!" Alan crowed, sitting down. "Foiled again! He can't stop us now!"

"Perhaps

"Why that perhaps? Why that tone?" he demanded sharply, struck by the foreboding her accents con-

"This isn't the only ferry. There's the Pennsylvania and the Lackawanna and by hard driving he might even manage to catch the boat that connects with this from the Christopher street ferry of the Erie!"

"Impossible! I don't believe it!

"Let's not," she agreed. "But, Alan

"Promise me-if he should manage to catch up with us-you won't let him talk to you. I mean, don't let him-" "No fear of that!" he asservated hotly. "If he tries to exchange one word with me-I only wish he would!"

She seemed satisfied with that; but the incident had served appreciably to chill their spirits. They accomplished the remainder of that voyage in a silence that was no less depressed because they sat hand in hand through-

Nor was their taxicab three minutes out of the ferry house on the Jersey shore—though the chauffeur, stimulater by Alan's extravagant promises.

His touring car was within fifty yards when they first were aware of "It it; and Marrophat standing on the running-board, was shouting inarticulately and flourishing an imperative hand; while the distance between them was momentarily growing less

As Marrophat's car drew abreas Alan nodded and said quietly: "Don't be slarmed; I can attend to this genleman single-handed."

And this he proceeded to demon-strate with admirable case, even though called upon to do so far soon er than he had thought to be—thanks to Marrophat's hair-brained precipi-tancy. For, failing to influence the tank driver by shouted demands or threats, or to gain the least attention from Alan, Trine's first lieutenant abruptly and surprisingly took his life n his hands and in one wild bound bridged the distance between the two flying cars and landed on the taxi's running-board.

Stop!" he screamed madly. "Stop. say! You don't know what you're doing! Let me tell you-"

He got that far but no farther. In the same breath Alan had flung wide the door and was at the fellow's throat. There was a struggle of negligible duration: Marrophat was in no way his antagonist's match; within three seconds he threw out both hands clutched hopelessly at the framework of the cab, and fell heavily to the street.

The taxi sped on without pause, its driver deaf to the hails of innocent if indignant bystanders. Alan pulled himself together and looked back just in time to eatch a glimpse of a number of loafers lifting Marrophat to his feet and helping him to the sidewalk of an unsavory-looking tenement, before the cab took a corner on two wheels

"Not seriously injured, I fancy," he told the girl in response to her eager "Worse luck!" he added look. gloomily

But it seeemed that he was to have greater cause than this to complain of his luck, before that ride was ended. Three blocks further on a tire blew out with a report like a cannon-crack-been punctured by the bullet, he was to believe that Marrophat hoped to stop the taxicab by depriv ing it, in course of time, of its fuel. And with this in mind he was present ly surprised, as the cab took a corner, to see Marrophat's car stop at that corner and Marrophat himself get down. The brow of a hill intervened shutting off sight of the blackguard as he knelt and lit a match. It was the girl who gave the slarm, suddenly withdrawing her head from the window to scream at Alan: "He's fired the gasoline! It's flaming along the street, following the line of the leak—and catching up with us!" Without pausing to put his hand to the latch, Alan kicked the door open. "Jump!" he cried. "For your lifejump! As soon as that flame catches up with the tank-" Simultaneously the chauffeur, over hearing, shut off the power.

The three gained the sidewalk bare ly in time: the tiny trail of flames, almost imperceptible in the sunlight, was not a yard from the jet that spurted through the bullet hole in the tank. In the flutter of an eyelash the explosion followed. Had the cab been load ed with nitroglycerin its destruction could have been no more absolute. There was a roar . . . and then heap of smoking ruins. Without waiting to admire the spectacle, Alan caught the arm of the girl and hurried her up the street, at the same time calling to the chauffeur to follow. And chance brought them to the next corner as another cab, fareless, hove into view. Promising its driver anything he might ask, in or out of reason. Alan gave him the address and beload the girl in

If Marrophat pursued Alan could see no sign of him. The second car made better time than the first, Unhindered, and as far as could be determined, without being followed, it covered the brief remaining distance in a gratefully short lapse of time.

The suburb dropped behind a mass of streets where dwellings stood shoulder to shoulder and doorvards were hesitated, slowed down, and limped | scant. The car swept up to a corner dejectedly to the curb.

"That Woman is Judith Trine, You Idios-Not Rose!"

Alan and the chauffeur pfled out in the same instant, the one standing changing salutations with and making guard-with an eye out as well for another cab-while the other assessed damages.

"Nothing for it but a new tire, sir." this last reported sympathetically. "It must have been a broken bottle or comething like that-it sure did rip the usefulness clean out of that shoe."

"Go to it," Alan advised him terse y; "and if you make a quick job of it, I'll stand the cost of the new tire."

"But if another cab comes along while you're at it you'll lose us as quick as a wink. Here's my card, in case we have to desert you in a hurry; you understand this is a matter of life and death, and I'll have no time to settle up with you. But you can call at Mr. Digby's office and he'll fix things up to your satisfaction."

The man took the card and after a glance at the name touched his hat with more noticeable respect.

"All right, Mr. Law," he agreed; "anything you say." And forthwith got to work.

The rapidity with which he completed the change of tires proved him an excellent chauffeur, an adept at his craft; but the delay was one disastrous for all that. It worked together with what Alan pardonably described as the devil's own luck to bring the touring car in sight at the precise moment when the chauffeur was cranking up and Alan on the point of reentering the cab. And though they were off again before Alan could close the door, the attempt was hopeless from the start.

And yet-whether or not because Alan's distaste for interference had been too convincingly demonstratedthe touring car for the time being contented itself with trailing about fiffy feet in the rear, while the taxi fled the tenement purlieus of the Hoboken waterfront and found its way into the broader streets of an unpretentious suburban quarter.

Not until they were well into the no pedestrians to interfere, did Marrophat's purpose become apparent. Then, however-and it happened while Alan was looking back—the touring car drew in swiftly and easily and Marrophat, rising in his seat, leveled a re- spring as lithe as that of a leopardesa. volver over the windshield and fired. The crack of his weapon was prac-house of modest and homely aspect. Two minutes more, and Alan was exhis bride-to-be known to Digby's good friend, the Reverend Mr. Wright.

Embarrassment worked confusion with the young man's perceptive faculties. As this moment approached when two should be made one who had gone through fire and flood, literally as well as figuratively, for each other's sake, incredulity drew a veil before his vision. He viewed the world as in a glass, darkly.

He was aware of a decently furnished minister's study; of two witnesses in the guise of unassuming womenfolk of the minister's household; of the Rev. Mr. Wright himself as a benevolent voice rolling sonorously forth from a black-clad pres ence; of the woman of his heart stand ing opposite him; of questions asked and responses made; of a ring that was magically conjured from some store apparently maintained against precisely similar emergencies; of a hand that took the hand that was to be his wife's and placed it in his; of his clumsy and witless bungling with the task of fitting that ring to the finger of his sweetheart's hand . .

And then he was aware of a door that banged violently in the hallway; of the sound of a man's voice making some indistinguishable demand; that Rose's hand was suddenly whipped away, before he could fit on the ring; that the study door was flung open and that this animal of a Marrophat had precipitated himself into the room. He opened his mouth to protest-and Marrophat stlenced him with a

"You fool! Drop that ring! Stop this farce! Don't you know whom you're marrying? That woman is Judith Trine, you idiot-not Rose!" Blankly Alan turned to the girl.

Her flaming face, her sullen eyes, her very pose, from which the manner of Rose had dropped like a cast garment, confessed the truth of Marrophat's assertion. And as if this were suburbs, with few dwellings near and not enough, Judith confessed it doubly with a sudden outbreak of such rage as never could have been brewed in Rose's gentle nature.

"You devil!" she cried-and threw herself in front of Marrophat with a "Take warning now from me: keep out of my way forever after this-or tically coincident with a metallic thud take the consequences! God knows," she panted, "why I don't kill you as so fiercely by the wrists that he in-structively lifted to protect himself, and she fairly threw him half a d feet from her. He brought up wit a crash against the wall even as the door slammed behind the girl. When Alan, the first to recover, ained the sidewalk, she was already in the taxicah. Whatever reward she had promised the man, he whipped his machine away as if from the fear of oudden death.

And darting from the house hard on the minister's beels, Marroj leaped into his own car and, as if I had not heard her threat or received substantial proof of her earn tore off in pursuit.

Reluctantly the minister surrendered the telephone.

"That you, Digby?"

"Alan! Bless my soul, what are you doing over there? Is Miss Trine with you? But how can that be possible?" "Rose? No. What about her?" Alan demanded, stammering with anxiety.

"Why-one of my spies has just reported by telephone. He was going on duty this morning when he saw a young woman-either Rose or Judith -wearing a rough coat over boudoir dress-climb out of one of the basement windows of Trine's house. She was apparently in great distress of mind and anxious to escape without being seen from the house; but before my man-whose post of observation is in the third story of one of the houses opposite-could get to the rtreet, she had been caught by several rough-looking customers, who rushed out of Trine's house, seized the girl, and made off with her in a motor-car bearing a New Jersey license number. am sending men to watch the Jersey ferries. Call me up in an hour-"

Without a word of response, and without a word of apology to the Reverend Mr. Wright, Alan dropped the receiver, snatched up his hat, and fied that house like a man demented.

Rose, escaping from Trine's house, overpowered and made the captive of Trine's lowest creatures—gunmen possibly, of the stamp of that animal whom Trine had charged with the assassination of Alan the night before!

There was neither a motor-car in sight for him to charter nor any time to waste in seeking one. Alan could only hope to find one on his way back toward the ferry. It must have been upwards of an hour before he came into a street which he recognized, by its dinginess and squalor, as that in which he had thrown Marrophat from the running-board of the taxicab.

And then, as he paused, breathless and footsore, to east about him for the way to the ferry, a touring car turned a corner at top speed and slowed to a stop before that selfsame tenement of the unsavory aspect to whose sidewalk he had seen Marrophat assisted by the loafers of the quarter.

And this touring car was occupied by some half-a-dozen ruffians in whose hands a young girl writhed and struggled when, immediately on the stop, they jumped out and wrestled her out with brutal inconsideration. Like a shot Alan had crossed the street-but only to bring up nose to the panels of the tenement door, and to find himself seized and thrown roughly aside by a burly denizen when he grasped the knob and made as if to follow in. "Keep back, young feller!" his as of the stomach of one disposed of him for the time being. A blow from the shoulder sent the other reeling to the gutter. And Alan was in the tenement's lowermost hall—a foul and evil-odored place, dark as a pit the instant the door was closed, its murk relieved only by the flame of a kerosene lamp smoking in a bracket near the foot of the stairs. Sounds of scuffling of feet were an

ment of Agriculture.) A recent farmers' bulletin (No. 624) issued by the United States department of agriculture, entitled "Natural and Artificial Brooding of Chickens," contains some interesting suggestions regarding the feeding of young chickens. The accompanying figure illustrates a frame cover with wire netting to protect feed of young chicks from the older fowls.

Young chickens should be fed from three to five times daily, depending upon one's experience in feeding. Undoubtedly chickens can be grown faster by feeding five times daily than by feeding three times daily, but it should be borne in mind that more harm can be done to the young chickens by overfeeding than by under-feeding, and at no time should they be fed more than barely to satisfy their appetites and to keep them exercising, except at the evening or last meal, when they should be given all they will eat. Greater care must be exercised not to overfeed young chicks that are confined than those that have free range, as leg weakness is liable to result in those confined.

Farmers who have no experience in hog raising but who wish to start a herd on their farms are urged by the United States department of agriculture to make haste slowly. It will be real economy, they say, if the beginner can secure the advice and assist ance of an experienced breeder Whether he succeeds in this or not, he should start with a small herd. Five sows will be enough for the first year if these are really good animals. The chief points to be desired in a brood sow are set forth in farmers' bulletin 205 of the United States department of agriculture, published under the title of "Pig Measurement." The sows selected should be nearly the same age and uniform in type. The forehead should be broad between the wes the throat clean and trim, the neck moderately thin and the shoulders smooth and deep; the back should be fairly wide and straight, and ample room for the vital organs should be provided by a good width and depth of chest, well-sprung ribs and straight. deep sides—a deep, capacious body from end to end. Depth of chest and sides are specially important in a brood sow. Pinched chests and waists must be avoided. Brood sows should, of course, show quality, but this should not become overrefined and delicate. Extremes of refinement usually lead to delicacy of constitution and often ecompany sterility.

The selection of the boar is even more important than that of the sows. It is possible to obtain success from the use of a good boar with inferior sows, but nothing but disaster can possibly come from the use of an inferior boar with sows of high quality. One method raises the standard of the herd, the other lowers it. If, as is apt to be the case, the farmer's herd at the beginning is not of sufficient size to justify buying a high-grade boar for his exclusive use, it will be far better for him to join with his neighbors in obtaining one in common, then to attempt to get results from an inferior animal. One boar can serve fifty or sixty sows a season, so that co-operation will be found profitable in a great majority of instances.

A boar with strongly developed masculine characteristics should be selected, preferably as a yearling, or else as a pig that has been purchased at the same time as the sows and allowed to come to maturity before being used. He should have a strongly masculine head and a well-crested neck. His shoulders should be developed according to age; but shields on the shoulders in pigs under a year or eighteen months are objectionable. The same indications of a good porkproducing carcass that the sows required should be seen in the boar—a broad, straight, deeply fleshed back, much depth and length of side, and well-developed hind quarters. The boar should be selected to correct any defects that may be common to the sows, for example, if the sows are (Prepared by the United States Depart-| built, the boar should have high quality-fine bone, skin and hair. If the sows tend toward overrefinement and delicacy, the boar should be rather "rangy" and strong-boned.

Once the herd has been established by the careful selection of sows and boar, it must be maintained and its standard raised by the exercise of the greatest care in the selection of animals for breeding purposes. This selection should be made as early as possible. One celebrated breeder used to select his show lambs and calves when they were three days old. This, of course, is unusual, but the decision should not be delayed any longer than is absolutely necessary. No animals should be selected for breeding purposes except for good reasons and unless the breeder is guite sure that he is right in his selection.

RAISING THE COLT BY HAND

Youngsters Should Be Fed Cow's Milk Weakened With Water-Mixture Should Be Sweetened.

(By W. D. NEALE.) An orphan colt can be raised by hand successfully if a little care is taken. It should be fed on cow's milk, but the cow should be fresh in

Do not feed the milk at its normal strength, but weaken with one-third water-that is, to two parts milk put one part warm water.

The mixture should be sweetened a little with sugar and given when about the temperature of a mare's milk.

At the end of two weeks the quantity of water may gradually be reduced and the amount of milk in-creased until the water is left off altogether. Don't forget to sweeten the milk at all times.

Whenever possible the milk should be given immediately after milking it from the cow. If it is decired, a fresh It will be a strengthener and will make the colt's hair sleek and glossy.

The quantity of milk given should be governed by one's judgment. Some colts require more than others, but be careful not to overfeed, for the colt may get the scours. Until the colt is a month old it will be necessary to teed it three or four times each day. To teach the colt to drink from a pail is not a very great task. Put your finger in his mouth and lower your hand into the milk. He will get a taste of the milk and soon you can slip your finger from his mouth and he will proceed without you. If he proves obstinate, wrap a goose quill with a strip of cloth and use it as a nipple in a bottle or purchase a nipple from the drug store.

Good care must be taken of the pall from which the colt drinks. It should be scalded each time it is used. Never use sour or skim milk, if

The famous old prophet who rode in the fish is buried at Mosul, in far-off Mesopotamia. Mosul itself, from which our word "muslin" came, stands on the foaming Tigris opposite old Nineveh. And here is a sketch of what life is like today in the town where Jonah rests.

It is a dirty, crowded town, is Mosul, with 50,000 people jammed inside its medieval walls. Its narrow, warped streets are no more than crocked alleys that wander aimlessly through the town-dusty in summer and seas of mud in winter. So narrow are these passages that two loaded donkeys, if they chance to meet, cannot pass till one donkey has been backed into a doorway.

Mosul's houses are Moorish styletwo stories, few windows, an open court inside and flat roofs with parapets so that the family may sleep on the roof in summer. The main door to each house is a huge affair, studded to foot. with great bolts and barred at night like the gate to a fortress suggesting the old days of Mongol invasions.

WHY ANOTHER COUNTY

A few individuals at Fort Sumner are again active in behalf of organizing another county with Fort Sumner as the county seat and the proposed new coun ty to include a portion of Roose velt county.

The inhabitants of the north western part of Roosevelt county which part they propose to include in the new county are not in harmony with the program. The Taiban Herald, the leading paper, of that vicinity quotes a prominent Taiban man as saying that the people of that part are almost unanimously opposed to this move. J. M. Cheshire has always been opposed to the new county idea and judging from an article in his paper. The Taiban Herald last week he is still of the same opinion.

We believe the people of this part of Roosevelt county are proud of their county and have no desire for a change. Why should they want a change? Our older states referred to swelter county is in the best condition of any in the state and we have a set of county officials who are second to none.

Running a county is in many respects like running a business concern, the larger the cheaper it can be run in proportion. A new county like the proposed will mean higher taxes for it and the remaining part of Roosevelt county

It is true that county officers will be paid somewhat in propor tion to the valuation of the coun ty, but the percent of the valuation required to pay county officers in the smaller counties is greater than in a larger coun-

THE WANTON WASTE.

Along the tracks of the Santa Fe in this county are heaps of ashes, the remains of thousands of old ties that have been burned to get them out of the way. The employes are not allowed to give these worn out ties away, but are instructed to burn them.

A few years agoit was the custom to allow people to haul old ties away; but not being satisfied with this privilege, some people would take both old and new when available.

As scarce as wood is in eastern New Mexico, together with mean considerable to the people to have old ties for fuel.

The legislature is now in session and numerous laws of various kinds have been introduced for the benefit of the people. Perhaps some member can frame a bill which will provide a remedy which will be fair to the railroad company and be a great benefit to the people.

NEW TRAIN SCHEDULE.

The new train schedule seems to meet with the approval of most of the Portales people. The northbound train of course is somewhat early, but the progressive, industrious people of this town and vicinity are as a rule early risers, and are rather pleased to get an early start on a journey.

OUR CLIMATE

While the people of the eastern and northern states are shivering with the cold, with the thermemeter many degrees below zero with roads impassible from snow, and impaired train service we here in eastern New Mexico, the 'Land of Sunshine' are enjoying a delightful climate with pure health giving air and day after cay of continued sunshine.

So far this winter the coldest temperature recorded is 9 above and the prospects are that is the coldest of the season. The roads have been good practically all winter and probably will remain so, while in the old states they will have mud, slush and raw unpleasant weather for the next three or four months.

The expense of building homes here is much less because we do not have to have protection against the extreme cold. The providing of shelter for cattle is an easy matter, in fact many ranchman are in the habit of providing little or no shelter for their stock. The time is not far off however when all the stock in the country will be provided shelter of some kind. They are getting too valuable not to be given the best of care.

Again we boast of our summer climate. When the people of the ing under the intense heat and with a heavy suffocating atmosphere, we read of people, by the dozen, being overcome by the heat, we go about in the comfortable invigorating atmosphere which gives comfort, health and delight to both man and beast.

[From the Taiban Herald]

The teachers began arriving in Taiban Thursday evening just about the time the bad weather struck us and the weather was as permanent as the visitors. Sunday now when the last pedagogue had departed hence the sun shone out as bright as any one could wish, which proved conclusively that "all is well that ends well." Not only did the teachers Association meeting end well but it was a fively, healthy, well, meeting. Every subject outlined in the program was discussed fully whether the regular member on the program were present or not. In fact some of the most interesting discussions were in papers sent by members who could not be present and those present deemed it fit to argue the question. This was the spirit of the meeting, that is; each one attendinging came with the idea that he or she could and would, either, learn something or teach some one else something for the good of education in Roosevelt county, which fulfilled the object of the meeting.

Our county superintendent, Mrs. S. F. Culberson, was, as usual, the "motive power" of the meeting and suffice it to say that she "discussed some subjects" with conclusive arguments.

Doctor Roberts president of the state normal at Las Vegas came in Saturday morning to grace the occasion with his presence and lend class to the discussions. Speaking of class to the discussions, Dr. Roberts has some ideas to think about which his lecture Saturday might disclosed and which all who heard him are still Ora Crawford thinking about. Professor J. S. Long, president of

of Portales schools gave this interview which has been boiled down to conserve space;

It was the most enthusiastic teachers meeting ever held in Roosevelt county and showed conclusively that the progress of schools in the county was more than could have been expected by the most pessimistic of the

Mr. Long was very emphatic in stat ing that the hospitality of Taiban was unexcelled and he was anxious to state to the interviewe that his visit he says that everyone here met him with courteousness in all ways. In fact Mr. Long is according to his interview, very well pleased.

The most interesting program of all for those that were not teachers was

While the snow drifted along with sembled the whole of the Taiban Public Schools in military parade before the flag-staff erected near the attention, Mr. L. E. Davies, member of the school board raised the flag. Mrs. J. M. Cheshire made the following address:

"As president of the Mothers' Club of Taiban I have the honor of presenting to the Public Schools of Taiban this magnificient flag which was purchased ani donated by the Mothers' The girls basket ball team of Club for this occassion. May the true to the Red White and Blue' and long may it wave over the land of the free and home of the brave'."

After Mrs. Cheshire's presentation speech the several columns of shivering pupils under direction of General Osborne gave the impressive military salute to "Old Glory" which was now waving in the breeze!

Mrs. Jenny M. Herlihy read a very instructive, intellectual and interest ing essay on the American Flag while the listeners shivered from the persecution of the elements. It was planed for the Mothers' Club exercises to be all out doors, but the snow and wind forbid so after the school song: "The Star Spangled Banner" it was decided to finish the program in the school house. After all were assembled inside Mrs. J. M. Suter recited that patriotic, soulfilling piece, "The Banner Betay Made", which was a very appropriate prelude to the song by the school "America". Never before has Taihan listened to such a rendition of Americal Every school child present had been taught that tune and had been taught to use their lungs when singing it. Be it known to the World the school children of Taiban can sing "America". A grand and fitting finale was the recitation by master Harold Suter (in costume "Unions and Lib erty". The little boy filled his position "manfully," After this interesting program the Mothers' Club se ved refreshments to all who would par-

Taiban, N. Mex. My Dear Mr. Cheshire: As you requested, I am sending you back a brief letter for publication.

enjoyed every minute of my visit while in Taiban. The greatest sur prise I received while there was the large number of representative teachers that came in spite of the weather. The two days I was with you were the coldest I have ever seen in the Balley, and yet you had a very good crowd at all your meetings. I was disappointed in your school buildings, but am pleased to know that you have already voted bonds for a new school building, which is really essential for town. town has in the way of advertising is its schools and its churches.

I am sorry that I was unable to see your school teachers are doing good work. Your town is to be congratuis but the beginning of many good things that they will do for the public good. A good picture, given now and then, is a valuable addition to the picture will not do. # MADE IT CITY OF GARDENS

Minneapolis Club Has Planted Hundrade of Vacant Lots With Vegetables and Flowers.

The members of the Minneapolis Garden club planted 325 vacant lots to vegetables and flowers in the year 1911, 260,000 square feet to vegetables and 250,000 to flowers. It distributed 22,000 packages of nasturtium seeds to children; covered every vacant lot along two miles of the main arterial street with grass or flowers; cleared 600 acres of rubbish, and screened 20, 000 feet of street frontage with bushy plants.

Under its influence 700 persons, not including its members, also gardened vacant lots, and 18,000 had gardens at home. Nineteen hundred acres in all were improved. According to figures gathered by the Survey the cost of the Garden club was $3.684.48: the value of the crop was $11,801.78.

In Minneapolis there are 5,000 acres of vacant lot, sufficient to supply the entire state with vegetables. The economic value of vacant lot gardens to those who took them up greatly outweighed the cost. So many vegetables were grown that complaints were made by the grocers. Many of the stores were supplied with fresher vegetables at a lower cost. People in vacant lot gardens neighborhoods bought from the gardeners; the hotels during the week of the Minneapolis civic celebration served vacant lot vegetables

Three hundred and twenty-five vacant lot gardens were started. Of these only eight were abandoned through lack of interest on the part of the gardeners.

For a fee of one dollar the Barden club gave seeds for a lot 40 by 120 feet; plowed and harrowed the lot; provided supervision and instruction all summer, and offered valuable prizes. It was soon discovered that it was not necessary to get formal permission for the use of lots. Since there was no cost to them, and the lots were to be restored in the same if not better condition, the owners common for fathers and moth had no objections. The local congressman secured government seeds fer all the planting.

Before the middle of summer the garden fever had spread like a contagion. Appeals were made through the newspapers, and then by members of the club personally appealing before clubs, lodges, improvement organizations and other associations.

Exposition of a Novel Kird Has Been Completed in the Champs Biysses, Paris.

An admirable display of French art in landscape gardening, an entirely new kind of exposition, has been completed in the Champs Elysees in Paris. France, where the society known as the Amateur du Jardin (amateurs of the welfare of your boys and girls. the garden has laid out a series of doeth all things well. and for the business interests of the picturesque gardens, models of the came to earth for only a The biggest assest that the traditional classic type. The purpose of the exhibition was to cultivate love of gardens

As is well known, two centuries ago France was celebrated for her marvelsus gardens, and the most beautiful displays of art in gardening were the work of the greatest of French landlated upon its Mothers' Club, and they scape gardeners, Le Notre, who laid are to be congratulated upon their out the grounds surrounding Verpublic spirit in presenting to the saifles. One may say that the harmony, the order, the rational arrangement shown in the gardens of France reflect the equipment of the school, because of French taste. They may even be callits character-mabing power. Just any ed gardens of intelligence admirably illustrating Descartes', theory that "man is the master of nature." The effect of a classic landscape garden differs entirely from that produced by a natural landscape garden. A promenade in a forest in the midst of rugged trees, dense thickets, rustic moss, gives a purely animal, sensual pleasure, for nature dominates man; on the other hand an intense, refined, purely intellectual pleasure results If you want to know the real heart from a view of the well ordered, well kept, charmingly laid out French garten in which man dominates nature.

P. Lyon, to collect a note for the sum of $645.00, executed to plaintiff by defendant C. P. Lyon, dated October 11, 1913, due two years after date with 8 per cent per annum intetest, from date until paid, and ten per cent additional on the sum due thereon as attorney's fees, it being alleged that by the terms of the mortgage executed to secure the due payment of said note and one other note, as hereinafter described, said above mentioned note became due October 12, 1914, and plaintiff further seeks to foreclose said mortgage so executed to secure said note and to have same decreed be a lien on said premises, subject to the lien held on same, as described in said mortgage, of the defendant, R. E. Brown, and to have the premises sold for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness.

The defendant, R. E. Brown, by his cross complaint seeks to collect a note, as against the plaintiff and defendant, C. P. Lyon, in the sum of $645.00, dated October 11, 1913, and due one year after date, with eight per cent per annum interest thereon from date until paid, and ten per cent additional on the sum due thereon as attorney's fees, no part of which, it is alleged has been paid, said note having been endorsed to said defendant, by said plaintiff and its payment guaranteed by him, same having been originally executed and delivered to plaintiff, by said defendant, R. E. Brown, further seeks to foreclose the mortgage executed to secure the due payment of said note so sold to him by plaintiff and said other note sued on by plaintiff said said note, cording to the U. S. survey, conditioned upon the due payment of said notes, and to have a lien decreed on said lands in favor of defendant, R. E. Brown, as prior and superior to any rights or claims of the plaintiff or the defendant, C. P. Lyon, in same and that said lands be ordered sold for the purposes of paying the indebtedness due said R. E. Brown, together w to be inferior and subsequent to that of said R. E. Brown.

The defendant, C. P. Lyon, is further notified that unless he enters his appearance in said action on or before the 20th day of March, 1915, that judgment will be rendered against him by default and the said plaintiff and defendant, as against him, be given the relief demanded in their respective complaints.

BAD DREAMS Caused by Coffee.

"I have been a coffee drinker, more ar less, ever since I can remember, until a few months ago I became more and more nervous and irritable, and finally I could not sleep at night for I was horribly disturbed by dreams of all sorts and a species of distressing nightmare.

"Finally, after hearing the experience of numbers of friends who had quit coffee and were drinking Postum, and learning of the great benefits they had derived, I concluded coffee must be the cause of my trouble, so I got some Postum and had it made strictly according to directions. "I was astonished at the flavor and taste. It entirely took the place of coffee, and to my very great satisfaction, I began to sleep peacefully and sweetly. My nerves improved, and I wish I could wean every man, woman large potatoes of uniform size, cut out and child from the unwholesome drug. an opening through them with an apdrink-coffee.

BIG EATERS HAVE BAD KIDNEYS AND BACKACHE

Take a Glass of Salts at Once If Your Back is Hurting or Kidneys and Bladder Trouble You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health. When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot inture, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

to Feed the World-

The war's fearful devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and there is an unusual demand for Canadian wheat. Canada's invitation to every industrious American is therefore especially attractive. She wants farmers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves while helping her to raise immense wheat crops. You can get a Homestead of 160 acres FREE and other lands can be bought at remarkably low prices. Think of the money you can make with wheat at its present high prices, where for some time it is lisble to continue. During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre, Wonderful crops also of Oats, Berley and Flax.

fixed farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The sent grasses, full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef purposes. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent.

Military service is not computery in Gunds, but there is an extra demand a labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for the war. The exament this year is urging farmers to put extra acronge into grain.

AS IT APPEARED TO EBEN

Surely Was Something of a Miracle as Event Was Explained by the Minister.

"In a town in Georgia lives an old colored fellow who is a real thorn in the side of the local ministers, for the old fellow is always asking embarrassing questions of them touching mooted theological points, says Mr.

"One day old Eben had a long and earnest discussion with his pastor in reference to just what constituted a miracle. The minister found it no easy matter to make his ideas clear to Eben.

"'I s'pose, now,' said the preacher, dat de greatest of all de miracles was dat of de loaves and fishes. You member, of co'ce, dat dere was five thousand loaves and two thousand fishes which was eaten by the twelve

25 Canadian Wheat 282 to Feed the World The war's fearful devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and there is an unusual demand for Canadian wheat. Canada's invitation to every industrious American is therefore especially attractive. She wants farmers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves while helping her to raise immense wheat crops,
