Some 4000 bushels of grain was grown here last year. Seven head of horses one mule, twelve head of cattle, some hogs, chickens and turkeys insure auccess here also.

B. S. Anderson

Eight years ago Mr. Anderson settled on his present place a few miles west of Longs. He is making good. He had hied himself away to Portales with a load of grain but his good lady said heaps"of good things about the country. The biggest bunch of burros I have seen in the county is on this farm. Mrs. Anderson explained that these donkeys were just about the idea for real farming. She said: With eight burros last year we made $1700 worth of stuff." Guess that isn't bad. She expects to raise some 500 chickens this year. A great big bunch of brown leghorn hens were mighty busy scratching for bugs when they were not shelling out the eggs, which is to say they were doing the laying stunt muchly, for Mrs Anderson assured me that she sent "$5.00 worth of eggs to town today."

O. R. Anderson

For six years O. R. Anderson has lived on his farm near Longs and is pleased. He owns 320 acres of choice land, a few cattle, horses and mules, some full blood brown leghorn chickens and enough hogs for home con sumption. Like the majority of the farmers of the country, he is selling cream.

Last year $125 to Portales with a big load of worth of cream was sold and $75 worth of calves, besides chickens eggs and turkeys. Said Mr. Waters: "One fourth acre planted to garden truck last year was worth about $150 to us. I raised the usual crops, all good, but es pecially I want to call your attention to my dwarf kaffir corn. From five acres planted to this kaffir and two in feterita, I sold $109 worth of grain, besides I fed my stock during the winter and have plenty for seed on hand. This dwarf kaffir is far ahead of the standard kaffir, and is the thing for this country."

J. B. Judah

I reined in at Mr. Judah's at noon and showed in a most forceful manner my appreciation of good cooking and good grub. Mr.Judah has resided here eight years and is making good. He is farming about one hundred acres of his 320. He has some stock. A small orchard of apples, peaches and cherries is being nicely arranged around a dandy tank. These trees, with some shade trees and a small vineyard will add greatly to the comfort and value of this home. The Judahs have all sorts of canned vegetables from their 1914 garden. They have had fresh cabbage all the year. These were kept by pulling them up and burying them in a furrow, heads down, with about three inches of the roots projecting out of the ground. If you want sweet, tender cabbage all next winter try this plan.

There is no better way to show the prosperity that exists in our midst than to show the increased amount of business that is being done by the Santa Fe in shipping products from Portales. Conditions are better all over the country. The farmers and stockman in this county have raised products of a greater value, the past year than ever before in the history of the county. The business transacted at the ocal Santa Fe depot last month showed an increase of over $4000 more than for the same same period last year. This month promises to show a gain of 50 per cent over March of last year.

Last week, even under the unfavorable conditions which have existed, nine cars of products were shipped, and the week before, fifteen cars. Many farmers

SYNOPSIS.

The S of Hearts is the "death-sign" emgloyed by Sensea Trine in the private war of vengeance which he wages against Alsa Law, son of the man (now dead) who was innocently responsible for the accident which rendered Trine a helpless cripple for life. Alan loves and is loved by Trine's daughter Rose, Judith, Rose's twin and double, but a woman of violent and uncertain temper, promises her father to compass Alan's death; but under dramatic circumstances Alan saves her life and so, unwillingly, wins her love as well as Rose's. In spite of her jealousy of Rese, Judith remises to serve out the vow she made her father, and at the time this story opens is actively assisting Alan and Rose and their friend Tom Barcus to escape the persecution of Trine and his aldes led by his confidential man, one they might contemplate for been nothing more punderable than a pathy had grown out of the trials and low would, however, hardships they had of late suffered even in his most private thoughts Alan denied it flercely. Judith, on the other hand, not only acknowledged it freely to herself, but secretly derived a strangely sweet and poignant pleasure from the knowledge that she loved so madly and hopelessly.

That her love was hopeless she knew but too well. Even though Alan might not be altogether indifferent to her, after all that had passed between them, his loyalty to Rose was unshakable. And not for worlds would Rose's rival have had it otherwise. She could not have loved him as she did had he not been so unmovably true. As it was, since she could not hope her love might be returned, she was content to love and to promise herself that, if opportunity ever offered, she would not prove unready to prone and shuddering. sacrifice herself for her love.

And at times she caught herself praying that such opportunity would be accorded her, and quickly, and that the sacrifice it should demand would be complete. . . .

Now prayers are sometimes anwered when the boon craved is good

Slowly and painfully these four toiled along an obscure trail that followed the windings of the little river, until a branch struck into the main stream and so discovered to them yet another trail leading into the westward canyon.

Then again slowly and painfully they plodded on following blindly another trail blazed by Fates as blind as Above them, on the road they had abandoned, the crimson racer doubled back to the point where it had passed Judith and Barcus: its occupants descended, explored, and came presently upon the trail of the fugitives. Bloodhounds could not have settled down upon a scent with more good will and eagerness than Mr. Marrophat and his faithful aide. The sun was high and blazing above the canyon when the pursuit came within rifle shot of the chase.

A spiteful shot roused the quartet from a pause of lethargic dismay due to tardy appreciation of the fact that they had penetrated witlessly almost to the end of a blind alley.

A hasty council of war armed Alan with Judith's revolver and posted him behind a bowlder commanding the approaches to the chasm. The weapon, a powerful .45, had a range sufficient to numb the impetuosity of the assassins and keep them under cover and out of sight of the desperate essays the fugitives were making to compass an escape.

For in the shed behind an abandoned log cabin-souvenir, no doubt, of some forgotten prospector-Barcus had unearthed a length of stout hempen rope.

With the aid of a rusty shovel he had hacked this into two equal lengths. One of these lengths he proceeded to make fast around his own waist, then around Rose's. The other he left to be similarly employed by Alan and Judith. For it was agreed that they must climb, and while the cliff offered no problem to daunt a mountain climber of any pretensions, it was considered best that the fugitives should be hitched up in pairs against any possibility of a slip. The pairing had been determined by the fact that Barcus boasted some slight experience in mountaineering, while Rose was plainly the most exhausted of the two women, the least able to help herself in an emergency.

He had worked his cautious way with the girl in tow, to a point midway up the face of the cliff, following a long diagonal that provided the easlest climbing, when Alan stole back to Judith and reported that, on the evidence of observation and belief, he was convinced that the pursuit had turned back-perhaps for want of ammunition, perhaps to execute some less hazardous attempt upon the lives of the fugitives.

Without delay, then, he made the free end of the rope fast around his own waist, and, following the way Barcus had chosen, began the ascent.

Two-thirds of the climb had been accomplished, and Rose and Barcus had arrived in safety at the top, before the temptation to look down

Immediately beneath his heels the face of the cliff was seeply hollowed out, leaving a drop of 50 feet to a shelving ledge of shale as steep as a roof, whose eaves—perhaps another fifty feet below-jutted out over another fall of a hundred feet. Alan shuddered and swallowed hard a ledge quite six feet wide, offering a broad and easy path to the summit. He gained this with a prayer of heartfelt relief and was on the point of rising to his feet when a cry of horror from Barcus and a scream of terror from Rose, watching over the upper edge, warned him barely in time to enable him to snatch at and grasp a knob of rock before Judith's weight tautened the rope between them and ierked Alan's legs from under him.

His feet and legs kicked the empty air beyond the lip of the ledge, he lay face downward, clutching desperately the knob of rock, praying that it might not come away in his grasp, that his grasp might hold, that Bareus might arrive in time to save them both. The rope was cutting into his waist like a dull knife. The drag of Judith's body was frightful. He could feel her swinging like a pendulum at the end of its 30 feet, and could imagine but too vividly what would happen if the rope should prove

To Decorate Dancing Coiffures

S INCE dancing has come to be indulged in by everyone from grandmamma down to the baby, any number of hair ornaments and dancing caps have come to the light of day, or more probably, to the twinkling lights of night. Here are two of them, one for the carefully coifed lady and one for the curly-haired little girl.

in those made for young women. caps to hold the hair in place have outnumbered all others, but, with the introduction of less strenuous dancing bands of all kinds encircling the head and holding the hair about the face in place have come to the fore. Nearly all these bands are more or ess elaborately set. Rhinestones with silver fliagree form the background to their alluring brilliance. The band shown in the picture employs both rhinestones and tiny velvet flowers in its composition. Small sprays of velvet forget-me-nots reminding one of branches of coral because they are coral-colored and set in short, straight spikes of the blossoms, are mounted on a strand of rhinestones. This ornament encircles the head, the ends fastening in with short hairpins. A more secure fastening is managed by a small hook at one end of the band which grasps a loop at the other end, the fastening concealed under a strand of hair. A fine hair net helped out with a closefitting band of this kind will keep the coiffure unspoiled for many a gay hour.

Purely for ornament and by way of being unusual, the fragile butterfly made of threads worked into a lace stitch, is mounted on a plain narrow band of ribbon, for the head of a litthe girl. Her dancing ourls will take care of themselves; the band of ribbon will restrain them from falling over her face. The lacy butterfly is outlined with the very finest of silkcovered wire which supports the more than gauzy wings.

The gay and buoyant bows of ribbon, which are set at pert angles on the heads of little girls, are like butterfites in shape and seem to lie poised ready to fly. Just a little more airy. the butterfly of needlework in the very simplest of stitches is pretty for the little girl who is herself like a dancing butterfly.

And Now the Military Shoe

NEW aspirant for favor, with all A the signs pointing toward its success, is just launched. Smart shoes, full of snap and style, usher in the military mode in footwear, with colors and braidings and new features in cut and finish distinguishing them from time-honored styles from which they have departed.

The vogue for cloth-topped boots, having gray or tan or white uppers, will help to make the military shoe a success. The transition from these to colors less unobtrusive promises to be easy. Footwear has for the past three seasons been growing more showy and no one can deny the attractiveness of boots made to match costumes, and the elegant black and white footwear which has distinguished the eeason just passing.

But the new military styles are not confining the manufacturers to neutral or quiet colors. Their uppers are made in cloth, in regimental or other blue shades, in marcon, green and brown. Just the smartest developments of all for spring is the shoe having cloth like the gown embodied in its make-up. The strong materials used in tailored skirts answer the purpose very well. A more practical idea is evident in spats, made of the material of the gown, to be worn over either high or low shoes having patent leather vamps. The military shoes are ornamented with soutache braid and brightened with patent leather tips. They are one of the straws which show which way the wind blows in new footwear. The trend of fashion is toward more fanciful models.

The picture given here includes a pair of shoes such as are made for children. There is nothing unusual about them, but they are to be commended for the shape, which accom modates itself perfectly to the footthis is the requisite of first importance in considering footwear for the young

JULIA BOTTOMLEY. Indestructible Volle.

A fabric called indestructible volle promises to be much used for spring and summer. A summery frock was embroidered in black and yellow daisies. The long sleeved bodice was shirred over the shoulders with a portion of the bodice edged with net hanging loose over a girdle of black velvet, which was extended in sash ends. The skirt was shirred at the top with two tucks at the center laid close ly together. A curving band of the volle was embroidered with daisles and frilled with a narrow edging of net, as was the hem of the skirt.

Ornamente Necessary,

The small furnishings of a room are the things that really furnish it. The wall covering may be in the most approved of neutral tones, the floors may be faultlessly finished, the rugs may be exquisite and in impeccable taste and the furniture may be the product of careful workmanship and careful choosing. Even the pictures on the wall and the lights may be faultless and yet the room in question will lack few objects, vaguely termed "ornaments," be included in its furnishings

Then Time to Stir. Thomas Edison once set out to nvent a perfect coffee machine suitable to use in camps or on hunting trips. Mr. Watts has lived near Rogers nearly nine years. Is here to stay. Said he: "The country is all right. When you hear a man knocking this country, you can put it down that there is something wrong with the man. I have pinned the blue ribbon on Mr. Watts as the champion broom corn grower of Roosevelt county. I will take it off if you beat him and will let me know. He raised $670 worth in 1914.

J. F. Frazer of Carter, who owns 320 acres of land and is cul tivating one hundred acres is making good. He has some children less four. He has never stock, a lot of hogs, chickens and turkeys, and appears to be satisfied. The residence, barns, sheds, stacks of feed and stock all bespeak thrift and contentment. #### Road Dragging at Roswell.

The automobile owners at Ros well have adopted a practical plan to induce the farmers in that vicinity to drag the roads. Each owner contributes to a fund which is to be awarded to the farmer at the end of the year who has kept the road in front of his property in the best shape

Much interest is being taken in the plan and something of this nature would be practical here.

BEST INVESTMENT IN WORLD

The man who says "I wouldn't buy that car because its advertising increases the cost unnecessarily," is making the mistake of his life. He is overlooking an economic principle, tried and proved, that has more than any other one agency to do with bring-ing within his reach a really highclass product at a reasonable price He is as much mistaken as the farmer who would prefer hand-harvesting to the purchase of an automatic binder

The Largest Stock of Goods. In Roosevelt County

We have been in the mercantile business in Rogers for the past nine years. We have studied the needs and wants of all the people of this entire section of the country and have always tried to carry a satisfactory stock of goods—goods that we were delighted to sell because they would delight the purchaser; but we say without any hesitation that we have now considerably the largest and choicest stock of dependable merchandise we have ever brought to Rogers. In fact, we think we are perfectly safe in saying that there is not a larger stock of dependable merchandise in Roosevelt county. Mrs. Anderson and I went direct to the eastern markets, and with our buying experience, were able to purchase the rarest stock of Dry Goods, Dress Goods and Notions, both as to style and wearability. These goods have arrived, and we respectfully invite you—yes, we urge you to call at once and inspect these goods. Look where you will, but examine our goods before you buy. You owe this to yourself. It is not possible for us to describe all this splendid line of merchandise, or mention each article. These goods must be seen to be appreciated. Come and see. Do it now-today.

Ladies—

You will find here a full line of the latest styles and weaves in dress goods at prices that suit your purse. Come early and get first pick. HATS-We bought a complete line of all the nobby styles in Ladies Hats. You will make a mistake if you buy that spring hat before seeing our line.

Gentlemen

You will find a full line of dependable Clothing at attractive prices. Whatever you do don't fail to see our line of Men's and Boys' Suits before you buy.

PREVENT SCOURS IN CALVES

of Young Animal After Its Birth.

(By C. H. ECKLES, Missouri Experime Station.)

One kind of scours is an infectious disease which gains access to the body of the calf soon after birth through the freshly broken navel cord. It usually occurs within a week and often within 48 hours after the calf is born, and runs its course quickly. The symptoms are sudden, severe sickness, sunken eyes and usually a white, foulsmelling dung. If one calf has become infected others are liable to contract the disease and die in the same manner. It is important to thoroughly disinfect box stalls where calves are dropped and have them well bedded with clean straw. It is always a good plan to disinfect the navel cord, when the calf is born and, if there is reason to suspect they might contract the disease, extra precautions should be taken, such as singeing the cord with a hot iron, which stops up the opening, or to tie the end of the cord with string and wrap a strip of cloth around the calf's body. A mild solution of creolin, senoleum or carbolic acid should be applied to the cord as a disinfectant.

PROFIT IN CAREFUL FEEDING

on Cows Capable of Product Much Larger Yield Than Secured by Ordinary Methods.

(By T. L. HARCKER, Minnesota Experi-ment Station.)

From a careful investigation we find that our common cows are capable of producing a much larger yield than is ared from the average common cow in the state. During the past decade we have always had at the Minnesota university farm, in the dairy herd, a number of common cows; that is, cows with no dairy heredity.

The average yield from these comnon cows, for 28 yearly records, is ,000 pounds of milk and 222 pounds of butter; which last, valued at 27 cents per pound, is equal in round numbers to $60 for butter alone. The average receipt per common cow in the state is $46.40; which shows that the average cow is yielding $14 less per annum than she might easily yield If given the same care and feed as are. given the cows at university farm.

ADVERTISING THAT REPELS

Landscape and Scenery With and Billboards Poor Way of the mysteries of advertising at men reputed to be shrewd their good money in methods of ity that repel the very buyers om they are anxious to attract. A a form of such misdirected effort is the huge billboards and signs along railroad lines. 'The effect which these atrocious blots upon the landscape produce upon many people, and especially those of the greatest buy ing capacity, is vigorously set forth by a Charleston (S. C.) paper, which, un-der the heading, "Down With the Vandals," has this to say to the movement on foot to prohibit the defacement of roadway scenery by paintrocks and by building huge signs proclaiming the virtues of this and that brand of tobacco to all who pass that way. Verily, we are progressing. We are developing aesthetically and are beginning to make head against the barbarians. Perhaps the time may yet come when summer resorts in the garden country of the south will and those of their merchants who stick up hideous advertisements along all the roads which lead into the towns. Certainly there are already many among the summer visitors who view these desecrations with resentment and make up their minds straightway not to patronize the stores which are responsible for them and not to buy the tobacco the manufacturers of which have done so much to deface the scenery of America. Hasten the day when the south as well as the west shall have no patience with the vandals."

The feeling of resentment here referred to is one shared by many Americans. Why alienate possible buyers by such crude methods when a wellworded advertisement in a newspaper will reach a larger public and create a favorable impression? With the best medium of advertising chosen the fight for business is half won.

of, J. V. Breitwieser Gives Valuable Information to Merchants of Colorado Springa.

Newspapers are the best advertising medium in the world of commerce, in the opinion of Prof. J. V. Breitwies-er of Colorado college, who addressed the retail merchants of the chamber of commerce the other night on the subject, "The Psychology of Adver-He classed the street car advertising, posters, programs and other sporadic forms of publicity as useful only for special purposes and temporary results in some cases.

Attention was called to the im-mense sums wasted every year in the United States on ineffective advertising and of the tremendous results secured on the other hands from skillful newspaper publicity.

"Advertising is being organized in a definite way to prevent waste," he said. "It has been estimated that the waste which could be saved by scientific advertising amounts to from 15 to 18 per cent., which means that $200,000,000 is being spent every year uselessly. The American people have the advertisement reading habit; You the advertisement reading habit; You can't simply say things in a dry-bones tashion and expect people to read the ud. You should never display the repelling things; an optimistic tone brings a positive reaction. The advertisement poorty written repels just as a dingy, crowded store. Tests have determined what proportions in space bring the best results."

ROADS IN BETTER CONDITION

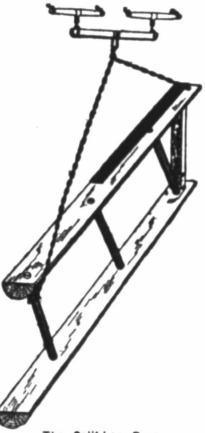

Split-Log Drag of Great Service in Keeping Thoroughfares in Shape -How It Is Built.

The use of the split-log drag is important in putting the roads in shape. There are over 2,000,000 miles of earth roads in the country, and the split-log drag is of great service in keeping them in economical repair. The drag is used in many states and in foreign countries. It is used with two, three, or four horses, and is easily constructed.

It is a mistake to construct a heavy drag. A dry red cedar log is the best material for a drag. Red elm and walnut when thoroughly dried are excellent, and box elder, soft maple, or even to the persuasive powers of the fair willow are preferable to oak, hickory

> The log should be seven or eight feet long, and from ten to twelve inches in diameter, and carefully split down the middle. The heaviest and best slabs should be selected for the front. At a point on the front slab four inches from the end that is to be at the middle of the road locate the center of the hole to receive a cross stake, and 22 inches from the other end of the front slab locate the center for another cross stake. The hole for the middle stake will lie on a line connecting and halfway between the outside stake. Find the center of the middle hole as before. When these holes are brought opposite each other, one end of the back slab will lie 16 inches nearer the center of the roadway than the front one. The holes should be two inches in diameter. Care must be taken to hold the auger plumb in boring these holes in order that the stakes shall fit properly.

The two slabs should be held 30 inches apart by the stakes. The stakes should taper gradually toward the ends. There should be no shoulder at the point where the stakes enter the slab. The stakes should be fastened in place by wedges only. When the stakes have been placed in position and tightly wedged a brace two inches thick and four inches wide should be placed diagonally to them at the ditch end. The brace should be dropped on the front slab, so that its lower edge shall lie within an inch of the ground, while the other end should rest in the angle, between the slab and the end stake. A strip of fron about three and one-half feet long. three or four inches wide, and one-half of an inch thick may be used for the

An ordinary trace chain is strong enough to draw the implement, provided the clevis is not fastened through a link. The chain should be wrapped around the rear stake, then passed over the front slab. Raising the chain at this end of the slab allows the earth to drift past the face of the drag. The other end of the chain should be passed through the hole in the end of the slab.

among the general farmers who furis not often that the producer can get strictly fresh eggs during the fall and farmer to take to town at irregular intervals a basket of eggs some of which may be clean and some dirty, some absolutely fresh and some distinctly below the highest grade. He is usually paid by number, not quality, and thus gets no additional profit from the eggs that are really first class. The village merchant, moreover, who position to make regular shipments to large markets. The result of all this is that before the eggs reach the ultimate consumer they have deteriorated to such an extent that they are them. not of a quality to command the highest prices.

This waste can be, to a great extent at least, remedied by a system of marketing eggs through creameries. It is not necessary for the creamery to be a co-operative one, for even a privately owned establishment will naturally be desirous of adding to the prosperity of the neighborhood and to oblige as far as possible its patrons.

For this reason it should content itself with a moderate profit on the eggs. This was the case with one privately owned creamery in the northern part of Minnesota, which may be taken as an excellent example of the possibilities of marketing eggs in this sented to market their eggs for them each farmer was required to sign the following agreement:

"I agree to deliver eggs at the reamery that will not be to exceed eight days old and to be picked in (gathered) twice every day.

In the first place. eight days may not seem sufficiently often in the majority of places to deliver the eggs, but the nights in Minnesots, even in summer, are usually cool, and this, together with the gathering twice a day and the storage in dry, cool cellars, was found sufficient to keep the eggs in good condition. It this would be possible elsewhere.

The brown and white eggs were separated because it was found that this added to the attractiveness of the packages, and, secondly, because it encouraged the keeping of hens which lay white eggs. During the spring months the owner of the creamery paid one cent more for white eggs than for brown on the ground that in the future he could obtain more for them in the market, and that he wished to stimulate the keeping of one class of chickens in order to insure a more uniform market.

The stamping of the eggs is important. The stamp contained the name Thus, in case of any carelessness or failure to maintain the proper quality it was possible to trace the product back to the individual producer and lay the blame where it belonged.

Each farmer was furnished with a supply of cartons each of which held one dozen eggs and were so shaped careless handling.

The labor and cost of handling the eggs at the creamery were thus renish the great bulk of the supply, it duced to a minimum. They were never candled because the farmer was unthe full benefit of the high prices for der obligations to bring in only good eggs, and failure to do so was regardwinter months. It is customary in ed as sufficient ground for the creammany sections of the country for the ery's refusing to handle the eggs of the offender in the future. In the particular case described, the eggs were shipped to a large grocery store in Duluth, Minn., which was already taking butter from the creamery. This store was able to sell the eggs to its customers for several cents a dozen more than the prevailing prices for other eggs. It is interesting takes these eggs is not usually in a to note, also, that the buyers became accustomed to the stamp on the eggs and when by accident two cases reached the store unstamped there was a little difficulty in disposing of The increased profit to the farmers through this method of marketing was not as noticeable during the spring, when eggs are plentiful, as when they were scarce. During the winter the difference was sometimes as great as ten cents a dozen, and when this particular creamery was visited one December the farmers were receiving 40 cents a dozen for their eggs. At this very time farmers in the nearby village were paid 25 cents a dozen. With the increased prices the production rose rapidly also. Before the creamery took up the marketing of the eggs the supply received by the local storekeepers was hardly more than sufficient for the local demand. Later the creamery paid out in one year nearly $4,000 to producers of were selling their eggs through this eggs, nearly all of which were shipped agency. They were scattered over a away. This accounts for the fact that 14 miles. Before the creamery con- inclined to look with disfavor upon the innovation, soon saw that the increased returns to the community meant increased profits to them even-There is no reason why a system similar to the one just described should not be adopted in many other localities. Local conditions will, of course, require certain changes, but the fundamental principle will remain. Fresh eggs shipped regularly in good condition to city markets are certain to earn greater profits for the producers than those which are allowed to deteriorate on the road from the farm to the consumer. Finally the profits from its egg business may well make the establishment of a creamery ton and white in another and so possible when it could not be run for dairy products alone.

TO SPREAD OR PILE MANURE

Answer to Question is Largely One of Location-Much Loss Sustained by Broadcast Scattering.

(By ALVIN KEYSER, Colorado Experi-

The question frequently arises Should manure be spread thinly over the land in winter when it is bauled, or should it be dumped in piles to be scattered in the spring? The answer to the question is largely one of location. In a great deal of Colorado territory the winters are dry, with dry, very windy springs. Where such conditions normally prevail scattering manure broadcast on the land during the winter means that the manure will by no means follows, however, that dry out and frequently be blown away by the first heavy spring wind

Dropping in piles to be hand scat tered later saves a part of this loss. Where snow is on the ground and where winds are not a menace, or where conditions permit disking the scattered manure into the top soil, this loss by blowing is prevented From the standpoint of labor, dropping in piles increases the labor. From the standpoint of saving the manure it sometimes saves an appreciable percentage, while broadcast scattering would lose all of it. The farmer will have to decide these questions for himself in his own localities, based upon the points above enumerated.

WORTH WHILE RECIPES

SAVORY METHODS OF PREPARING VARIOUS VIANDS.

Tit-Bits to Serve With Game or Cold Meat-New Ideas for Vegetables-Combinations of Cheese and Sweets.

Here are some worth while recipes and ways of preparing food that will give a different savor to the viands: Take a small quantity of boiled cod, flake fine, add enough mayonnaise to make spreading paste, spread on lettuce leaf between rye slices. Salmon and tunny fish may be fixed in the same way, or instead of the mayonnaise add enough catchup and seasoning to make the paste. Cold boiled lobster, cold boiled shrimp may be shredded or cut fine and prepared in the same way. Many will like them with the French dressing, however, rather than the mayonnaise.

Game.-Minced chicken, guinea fowl or turkey are good mixed with a tiny bit of chowchow, sweet pickle, current jelly or orange marmalade, as well as with good mayonnaise made with mustard.

Meats.-All cold meats, thinly sliced or minced, are acceptable with any of the dressings, or lightly spreading the bread with apple sauce before laying on the sliced meat.

Vegetables,-French peas that have been stewed, mashed to a paste, seasoned to taste, lighted with a little whipped cream and a teaspoonful of chopped ham or tongue make an excellent filling. The macedoine of vegetables, drained and finely chopped, mixed with mayonnaise, is good. Grated with onion with a little finely minced cold roast beef, pepper and salt and a few drops of mustard dress ing it is quite appetizing if one likes

Cheese and Sweets.--Combinations with cream cheese which has been softened with whipped cream are numerous. Little finely chopped preserved ginger and a tablespoonful of the sirup mixed to a spreading paste: puree of chestnuts mixed with the cheese, orange marmalade, bar-le-duc, a little of any of the preserved fruits, or finely chopped fresh fruit may be blended with the cheese. If needed, a little mayonnaise or whipped cream may be used to bind the paste. A little grated cheese sprinkled on triscuits, then placed in an oven for a minute or two to melt, with another triscuit placed on it, are frail to carry out, but very nice sandwiches.

Pumpkin Pudding.-Into a pint of stewed pumpkin beat the whipped yolks of five eggs, two pints of milk, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and half a teaspoonful each of powdered mace, nutmeg and cinnamon. Last of all stir in lightly the stiffly beaten whites of live eggs, turn the mixture into a buttered pudding dish and bake until set. Serve hot with a hard
