PORTALES, NEW MEXICO, THURSDAY JULY 13, 1916.

Number 30

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MUNICIPAL SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PORTALES, ROOSEVELT COUNTY, NEW MEXICO

This Report Covers the Period From June 30th, 1915, (date of last report) to June 30th, 1916.

It appears from the record of the County Treasurer of Roosevelt County, that there was a balance on hand, to the credit of our district, on the first day of July, 1915, in the amount of $1,967.88.

The total receipts, from all sources, during the period from June 30, 1915 to July 1, 1916, was the sum of $9,180.69.

Wherefore the total amount available for expenditure during the period from June 30, 1915 to July 1, 1916, was the sum of $11,148.57.

The amount covered in warrants issued by the Board during the said period from June 30, 1915 to July 1, 1916 was the total sum of $10,813.11, leaving a balance, excess of income over expenditures during the said period of only $335.46.

Taking into consideration a disputed claim involving a sum of $250.00, it may be readily seen how accurately the expenses of maintaining our schools, have been forecasted by the estimate of available resources.

A general itemization of the expense account as stated above, is as follows:

To the town of Portales for water and sewer services	$ 262.66
To the Central Coal Co. for coal	225.91
To D. DelCurto, janitor service (including payment for a fractional part of a month's service in the year 1915)	497.30
To various parties for sundry general expense, (all as per sworn accounts on file with the Board)	692.34
To teachers for salary	8,315.00
To bond holders, for interest	820.00
Total	$10,913.11

As matter of information, the Board, has to report that, up to present time it has been unable to secure any money for the $30,000.00 school building bonds, voted by the district at the bond election held, July 5, 1915. That immediately after this said vote the Board contracted the sale of said bonds for the sum of $30,895.00, as are all such propositions of purchase and sale, to the approval of the record of the issue of bonds by the attorneys for the proposing purchasers. These proposing purchasers, Messrs. Sweet, Causey, Foster & Co., Denver, Colorado, finally refused to take and pay for the said bonds, for the reason mainly, as the Board understands because of the omission of certain provisions of the law governing the issue of bonds by Municipal School Districts, from the 1915 Code of the Laws of New Mexico. After this rejection, the offer of Mr. Percival Brooks Coffin, of Chicago, Ill., to purchase the said bonds at the price of $30,700.00, he to pay the expense of printing the bonds etc. But the Board has to say that, up to the present time the said proposing purchaser has failed to take said bonds and pay over the money.

Expecting to secure the money on the said bonds on the said first proposed sale and purchase thereof, the Board secured plans and specifications to be drawn and made for the construction of school buildings on what is known as the "Unit System", utilizing the materials of the present school building so far as possible, so that the whole was to be constructed at a cost not exceeding the said $30,895.00 at the then prevailing prices of materials and labor.

Because of the failure of these proposing buyers of the said bonds as afore said, the Board has been unable to proceed with the new construction proposed, and the prospect is that the school will have to accommodate itself to the present building for at least another term.

The Board has to say that the attendance at the school has been greater, during the past year than during any other year in its history; and that the accommodations have been crowded throughout, particularly in the first grade, where it was found necessary to employ an additional teacher during about the last half of the term. That to accommodate this teacher and her pupils, the Christian church building was donated, without expense to the Board, by the congregation of that church.

The Board believes that the condition of the school, from an educational standpoint, is good and that the whole situation is progressing, due mainly to an exceptionally efficient and qualified teaching force.

The Board regrets that it has not been able to sell the bonds voted by the district, and construct the new buildings as the same has been projected, but sincerely hopes that by another year the same may be accomplished so that the accommodations and equipment for the education of the youth of our community may be adequate, and enjoyable to all of us.

The Board further reports that, at least during the school term, a meeting is held by the Board on the first Monday of each month. That it regrets that the patrons of the school have not attended upon these meetings for the discussion of school problems—to suggest and assist the Board in the promotion of the general welfare and education of our youth. That should the patrons of the school evince a willingness to attend such sessions of the Board, it would gladly convene in the court room at the court house or in any other convenient assembly place for their accommodation.

Respectfully submitted,
W. E. Lindsey,
President,
J. S. Peares,
Clerk pro tem.

He has all this and more in the Hudson-Super-Six.

Married Men Hospital.

The announcement the past week that the married men in the national guard, together with others with relatives dependent on them for support, will be discharged, was joyously received by those men affected by the order.

General Harry T. Herring says that to carry out this order will seriously cripple the New Mexico regiment, reducing it considerably below peace strength. Numerous married men have already placed their applications for discharge on file in the hope of getting action on them and securing their early release.

In the event the order is executed immediately, another big drive for recruits to fill the gaps in the regiment will necessarily have to be made.

Gregg Thanks Voters.

I take this means of expressing my deepest appreciation to my friends who so loyally supported me in the recent primary. Feeling highly honored by your having given me the nomination for sheriff, I thank you for the trust you have imposed upon me and if elected on November 7, I shall render to all the people of the county, a sober, fair and impartial administration to the very best of my ability.

My opponents ran me a fair and honorable race, and I trust we are as good friends if not better than before.

Hoping to roll up a solid vote on November 7th, I am
Your Friend,
A. L. (Arch) Gregg.

Return From Market.

They state that they paid more for the cattle than they received, which prove that we have a better market than Kansas City. They came out on the cattle that they recently purchased, but the ones that they bought early they lost as high as $10 a head.

There were two cars of Elida fans up Wednesday to see the ball game that was played between the home team and the Memphis, Texas team. The Memphis boys proved too much for our boys.

Will have a car of distillate or solar oil on tracts about the 20th of this month. Get storage tanks and barrels ready if you want any of this oil. Will burn in any gasoline engine. More power in distillate than gasoline. This will test 43 per cent, price 7 1-2 cents per gallon. See Carl Johnson at once if you want in on this car as this is last car of the season.

Earl's Ringing Fourth.

Of all the 4ths that bath come and go the last one capped them all. In it's wake we find Earl Lindsey hanging on
To his early youthful doll.
To Earl's fancy we all well admire,
And say he is a mighty good judge.
Not a word did he give in his work or attire,
Just slipped off to Texas and pulled off the strings.

We congratulate you on another week of life.

America is a good country let's tie to it.

Oh, yes, the world will speak well of you if you deserve it.

Pure water, you know, is an aid to digestion. Fill 'er up again!

Keep your money at home, William, and some day it may be yours again.

Some people are so pestiferous one can hardly tell whether they are bugs or just plain nuts.

Some men, like the cinder in your eye, are remembered chiefly for the smart they leave behind.

This war in Europe will certainly have a unique place in history. It is creating more widows than heroes.

The Angora goat is said to be noted as an indifferent mother. This, however, does not necessarily signify that mothers in high society are Angoras.

Stop! Do you remember the time when you was the most anxious of all times to make a good impression? And do you remember the fool break you made? We all do it.

Yes, brother, we are perfectly willing to fight, bleed and die for our country if it is needed. But we are praying powerfully hard that the good Lord will not permit the need.

Greeting the Fleet's New Chief

A typical scene on board a flagship of the United States Navy when a new commander-in-chief takes charge. The most recent event of this kind occurred at the Brooklyn Navy Yard in June, when Admiral Mayo succeeded Admiral Fletcher as commander of the Atlantic fleet. It was on such an occasion an ingenious executive officer coined an order that doesn't appear in the regulations. He piped all hands on deck and ordered "Attention!" and "Eyes Front!" Then he glanced down the lines of bluejackets, noticed a number of round white tags protruding from blouse pockets, and shouted, "Stow your Durham!" The tags were promptly tucked away alongside the tobacco sacks to which they were attached. In the picture above the new admiral is making a brief address.

have to say about cream separators this week

YOU will find the De Laval is the easiest and most satisfactory to use and keep in good running order. There is nothing about the operation, cleaning, adjustment or care of a modern De Laval which requires expert knowledge or special tools.

Only tool required

There are no parts which require frequent adjustment in order to keep the machine running smoothly or to conform to varying conditions in the every day use of a cream separator.

There is nothing about this machine that cannot be taken apart, removed or replaced by any one who can use a wrench or screw driver. In fact, the only tool which is needed for the operation of a De Laval Cream Separator is the combination wrench and screw driver illustrated above, furnished free with the machine.

We will be glad to have you examine a De Laval and see for yourself the simplicity and convenience of its construction.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

United States Should Aid in Emancipation of Latin-American States

By WOODROW WILSON President of the United States

There is one peculiarity about the history of the Latin-American states which, I am sure, they are keenly aware of. You hear of "concessions" to foreign capitalists in Latin America. You do not hear of concessions to foreign capitalists in the United States.

Jealousy Not Always Sign of Mean or Little Nature

By FRANK P. NIEMANN, County Judge of Nassau County, New York

A recent ruling of mine, whereby I refused to send a man to an insane asylum, caused a great deal of discussion, not because of the importance of the single case, but because of my assertion that if every jealous man were sent to an insane asylum we would have to build a double row of madhouses the length of the island.

What is the cure for it? Patience! Patience! And again patience! If you have caused any suffering through that emotion, treat it as you would any pathological state. Remove the cause.

"Yes." "Do you think he will be elected?" "That is rather hard to say, but he'll probably attract enough attention to get a few chautauqua engagements."

"If this country were to call for volunteers do you think many men would respond?"

"Oh, yes," answered the optimistic citizen. "I feel sure so many would respond that those who pretended to be hard of hearing would not be missed."

CANADA'S EXCELLENT FINANCIAL STANDING

Bank Clearings Increase—Agriculture Is a Paying Industry—Manufactures Doing Well.

"Business experts assert that Canada is on the threshold of perhaps the most prosperous era in her history. The unprecedented value of the farm products of 1915, together with the very large output of factories working on munitions of war has suddenly brought the country into a position, financially, scarcely hoped for as a nation for years to come.

The response by the farmers of Canada to the call for increased production in 1915 was a total net output exceeding one billion dollars, an increase over normal years of at least three hundred millions. The three Prairie Provinces contributed probably nearly one-half of the total product.

The wheat crop was worth $310,000,000, and accounted for about 30 per cent of the total agricultural product. Other things counted also. Look at dairying. In Ontario the dairy production was increased 20 per cent, and prices were over 10 per cent ahead of 1914. Other provinces shared in the increase, especially Alberta, Saskatchewan, Quebec and Nova Scotia. The dairy cow was "on the job" in 1915. So also were the beef cattle, the pigs and the hens.

It is not fair to the farmers of the Prairies to call the wheat crop of 1915 a "miracle" crop. The farmers cultivated more land and gave attention to their seed. Providence gave them favorable weather. Then they toiled early and late in the harvesting and threshing. Good cultivation gave bigger yields than careless work, 45 bushels as against 25.

The wealth of Western Canada is by no means all in its wheat crop. If the country had no wheat at all it would still be famous as a land of successful farmers on account of its stock production. From one shipping point (High River, Alberta) over $75,000,000 worth of horses have been sold in the last two months. The average price to the farmer has been about $175.00 per head. According to Government returns there are a million and a half horses in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, worth probably $150,000,000.

The investments which farmers of Western Canada are making in livestock and farm improvements are good evidence of the fact that they have money for those purposes. It is apparent, however, that they are also spending some of their profits on those things which will bring greater comfort and enjoyment to themselves, their wives and their families. The automobile trade all through the country is particularly active, and farmers are the biggest buyers. A recent report of the Saskatchewan district shows that in two months a million dollars' worth of automobiles have been sold, largely to farmers. Nor are all of these cars of the cheaper makes; some high-priced machines are in demand.

Bank clearings throughout the Western Provinces show greater commercial activity than at the same season in 1915 or 1914, the increase for the last week of February being $5,000,000 and almost $9,000,000, respectively, for the first week of March $15,000,000 over 1915 and $18,000,000 over 1914. The same excellent story comes from Moose Jaw, Sask., where they showed from 40 to 100 per cent over the previous year. Calgary, Alta., bank clearings continue to reflect the greatly improved business conditions as compared with a year ago. Canada's bank clearings for the month of February, 1916, were the greatest for any February in the country's history. The totals amounted to $94,222,000.00, as compared with $48,294,000.00 for the same month a year ago. An increase of $17,000,000.00 in bank clearings for the month tells its own story of the country's prosperity.—Advertisement.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WISH SAVED THE RACCOONS.

"Mother Raccoon believed strongly and firmly in Fairies," said Daddy, "and she used to tell the little 'Coons (for they are called that almost as often as Raccoons by each other) Stories of the kind Fairies and their games in the woods and of the wonderful Fairy Queen and her Magic Wand.
"But Daddy Raccoon was a funny old soul. He used to enjoy sitting up in the very top of a tree without any leaves and talking about the narrow escapes from being killed that he had had.
"Now, Mother Raccoon didn't think it was very nice or cheerful for Daddy Raccoon to always be talking about such sad and dangerous things and so she used to tell her Children Stories of the Fairies. All the little 'Coons of the neighborhood would come to hear Mother Raccoon's fine Stories, and they would all curl up on the old dead branches of a very, very tall tree which Daddy Raccoon had picked out as his special home.
"One day Mother Raccoon was just about to start telling one of her Stories when Daddy Raccoon saw all the Children around her.
"Now this afternoon," said Daddy Raccoon, "I want to take all those silly little 'Coons and show them how they can become brave big 'Coons like I am." And he thrust his tail this way and that with an air which said, "I'm certainly one of the finest, bravest Animals anyone could hope to be like."
"All the little 'Coons looked very mournful when they heard that they were to be taken off to learn how to hunt in the swamp nearby. They were always very much frightened when they went near the swamp, for they had often heard the sound of a big gun, or had seen a dangerous Man with a gun over his shoulder getting in behind the bushes.
"They began to wail and yell, but Daddy Raccoon was firm and as he was the head of the house—or rather the big tree without any leaves—Mother Raccoon had to let them all go.
"But as they were following Daddy Raccoon, she called out to them. "If anything happens to you wish very hard that you will be all right and the Fairy Queen may possibly be near by and will grant you the wish."
"Daddy Raccoon snuffed with scorn at such a remark, but he said that Mother Raccoon was such a sweet old dear she even thought well of the Rabbit family—and so she was apt to think so much of the Fairies in the same way.
"And off they all started. Some of the little 'Coons were rather proud at going off to hunt in the swamp and really pretended they were tired of Fairy Stories and were glad that Daddy Raccoon had thought it was time for them to grow up.
"Soon they reached the swamp and in they went to hunt for food to last them many days as Daddy Raccoon had said.
"They did just as they were told and were beginning to be very good hunters and finding just how to pick out the best parts of the swamp—when suddenly—
"An awful bang was heard near by.
"Oh, dear, oh, dear," shouted the little 'Coons.
"Do be quiet, or they'll know where we are," said Daddy Raccoon.
"The second bang sounded very much nearer and they all trembled.
"Oh, if Any Little 'Coon said, "Oh, if Any Little Fairy is Hovering Near."
"Hovering near—please tell the horrid Man with the gun to go away." And, would you believe it, that Man was heard to say:
"Well, I guess they're all away for the day and I won't try to catch Raccoons until tomorrow." Then Daddy Raccoon took all the little ones back to the old tree where Mother Raccoon was sitting curled up, shaking with fear while waiting.
"Tell them all the Stories you want to," said Daddy Raccoon, "for one of your Fairy friends saved all our lives and whispered to the Man with the gun to go home!"

The Wheat Yield Tells the Story

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For, while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions.
The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York.
Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country; while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common.
Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc.
There is no war tax on land and no conscriptions.

Typewriter Service in Rural Communities

The typewriter is coming into more extended use in rural communities because of the assistance it renders to all classes of people. Here are a few examples of the possibilities of service:
The Farmer: Think of the possibilities of selling produce by the means of typewritten letters sent out to customers? Typewritten letters give the sender a business standing with the people who receive them and also enable the keeping of carbon copies of the correspondence, which many times does away with misunderstandings and lawsuits.
The General Store Merchant: More prompt and courteous treatment is likely to be accorded his orders and correspondence with the City jobber and manufacturer if his letters are typewritten.
In The Home: The boy or girl who is intending to follow a business career can secure no better start than a knowledge of typewriter operating. Children who learn to use the typewriter learn writing at the same time. The housewife finds it a great convenience in writing recipes and for general correspondence.
The Minister: No Clergyman should be without a typewriter. It is of great assistance in preparing sermons and writing the many letters that a pastor has to write.

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

The Traitor

By H. M. EGBERT

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chapman.)

Baset is a little green oasis amid the awful deserts of the war. The little, neat Swiss town is always overflowing with those engaged in reconstructing what they can out of the chaos of suffering and desolation. It is packed with Red Cross nurses and ambulances, and parties of French and German soldiers who are to be exchanged salute each other without animosity as they take the sun upon their crutches.

My officer friend and I enjoyed the sunlight together every morning, but he spent his afternoons lying down upstairs in his bedroom, shielded from the light by the green shutters. He was still far from strong. Hence he was not present late that afternoon when the Red Cross nurse made her confession to me.

We had noticed each other from the beginning, I believe. There was something striking and arresting in her appearance. She was a Russian, I discovered afterward, and, like all Russians who are not peasants, was of noble affiliations. I had performed some trifling service for her, and somehow she came to tell me this—you know how often we make confessions to comparative strangers.

"I am a spy, the daughter of a spy. I say 'am,' although I have not spied my trade for a long time, because once a spy always a spy. My father was a general in the army; he sold his country's secrets. Not for himself, but for the benefit of the Militaristic fraternity, to which he belonged. That was his sense of patriotism—perverted but not wholly base.

"He was discovered, as in the end he was bound to be, and put to death. He left me penniless. I was then a girl of nineteen. I spied too—for a living. It had been suggested to me that, with my advantages, I was capable of extracting secrets from Russian army officers, always unsuspecting. The proposal came from the foreign country.

"I fell upon my knees and told him that I had been sincere. I had loved him indeed, and it had been the love of a good man and the knowledge of my hideous perfidy that had awakened my soul. He listened till I had done.

"I prayed for that," he said. "Now I can die happily, Vera. And you will—"

"I shall devote the rest of my life to trying to atone for my past life," I answered.

"He kissed me, and then, as the guard was growing very impatient, I departed. I never saw him again. The enemy entered the town on the second day, and I have no doubt that he had already been shot in the citadel."

It would be impossible to exaggerate the horror on the face of the Red Cross nurse as she finished speaking. Then I took up the tale.

"You cannot be sure that he died," I answered. "Suppose, for instance, that the order of the czar had not arrived before the storming of Kruevatz, and that he escaped."

"He would give himself up," she answered with conviction.

"Well, then," I resumed, "let us suppose that the order had not arrived. Imagine that the prison was thrown open in the face of the enemy, and that he took a rifle and fought like a common soldier, distinguishing himself so greatly that afterward the case was reopened. Suppose—just for a possibility, which can do no harm—that the truth came out. Suppose he was pardoned and restored to his rank in the army."

She looked at me with wide eyes. "What do you mean? What do you know?" she cried.

"Suppose," I continued, "that he fought through the rest of that campaign until he received a crippling wound, which was the cause of his retirement, on half pay, and that he left the service full of honors and warmly appreciated by his royal master."

duty for a week in a distant town. When he came back the model reposed safely in his safe again, and the hundred thousand rubles were in my own pocket.

"The news soon leaked out. Colonel Repovitch was placed on trial. Even then nobody suspected me, except the colonel. He knew—and he simply sent me a message, by a trusted orderly, to leave the country."

"I went to Vienna, where I learned he had been condemned to death as a spy and was to be shot as soon as the czar confirmed the sentence. Why did I place my head within the lion's jaws again?"

"I went back to Serbia because I loved him, and I felt that this treachery, which had taken a man's life away, had awakened something that had slumbered within me against my knowledge. I went back to confess—but first I must see Colonel Repovitch."

"I reached Kruevatz—you know how these journeys can be arranged even in time of war. The colonel had not been put to death, but the czar's order was expected hourly. By means of my influence—for he had not denounced me—I managed to secure an interview with him in his cell."

"When he saw me his face seemed to light up. In that hour of imminent death the husk of the man had fallen away, revealing only the goodness of the spirit. He took my hands in his and bade me sit down."

"Tell me how you came to do it," he said, as if he had been a father speaking to a child.

"I burst into tears. Something hard in me melted also, and I confessed everything. I told him of my father's occupation and his death; how I had come to take up the work of espionage; that there was nothing that I did not reveal. When I had ended speaking he said, gently:

"At least my death will not have been in vain if I have saved Russia the services of one of her enemies' most trusted agents."

"Then he spoke solemnly, because the time was very short and the warden was growing impatient.

"I told you that I loved you, Vera," he said. "I had no suspicion of your occupation. When I discovered that you had forced the safe I felt that death would have been preferable to the knowledge of the dishonor of the one woman whom I had loved and believed in. You took away my faith. Can you give it back to me?"

"Yes, I would if it were possible," I answered, weeping.

"It is possible, Vera," he answered. "How?" I asked.

"By telling me that you did love me and were not playing a part," said Colonel Repovitch.

"I fell upon my knees and told him that I had been sincere. I had loved him indeed, and it had been the love of a good man and the knowledge of my hideous perfidy that had awakened my soul. He listened till I had done.

"I prayed for that," he said. "Now I can die happily, Vera. And you will—"

"I shall devote the rest of my life to trying to atone for my past life," I answered.

Laura Jean Libbey's TALKS ON HEAD TOPICS

WIVES FALL BEHIND HUSBANDS.

It is not in the mountains Nor the palaces of pride That love will fold his wings up And rejoicingly abide; But in meek and humble nature His home is ever found, As the lark that sings in heaven Builds its nest upon the ground.

No wonder even the wisest and most practical of people refuse to think marriage anything but a lottery wherein one may draw a prize or a blank. There's no banking on assured happiness or misfortune either, as for that matter you must take your chances on winning the one or the other.

If a girl has an ambitious young man for her lover, she is sure prosperity and therefor happiness will be theirs alike.

er wedlock. By some strange law of nature, the brainy, energetic, pushing young fellow usually chooses a quiet, modest, unobtrusive girl for his wife, one who will be content to shine in a reflected light, proud of his abilities and achievements, one to whom his will is law.

If they commence their wedded life in poverty, the young wife is not only willing, but glad, to put forth all her energies within the four walls of home so that it will be a pleasing abode for the man she loves. They make great plans for the future—that is, he does all the thinking, planning and talking, while she does the listening and admiring. The ambitious young man soon evinces a longing to rise in the world, make fame, fortune and wealth.

All his plans call for money and the only way they can acquire it is for the wife to pinch the pennies, save, grind and save.

This she does gladly, uncomplainingly. He advances steadily from one position to another, but he does not talk over his plans with her any more.

"You would not understand. What does a woman plodding amid pots and pans know of the world to which I now belong? You cook a good dinner—a corking one—why bother your head over anything else?"

He does not inform her of the financial gains he has made or of his popularity among men and women of the social world. The higher he has climbed on the social ladder, the farther he is from the plain, uncomplaining little woman he married in other days.

With the gain of wealth and position, life holds many allurements. Sweet is the clink of gold and sweet the siren song of pleasure.

Men think that the wives who have dropped behind are unconscious of the fact, but they are not. There are wives who grieve over it until the joy of living has died out of their hearts. Many have the remembrance of a plodding lover who laid his humble heart at their feet in early youth. Had choosing the overambitious young man turned out wisest and best after all? It takes love—that life elixir—an enduring word, the knowledge that she is appreciated, is first in her husband's heart and thoughts, to keep a wife keyed up to genuine happiness and content.

The joy of wedded life is over for the wife whose eyes have been opened to the fact that she is no longer companionable to husband. There is a little core of romance in every woman's heart. She never outlives it or allows it to wither if it is in her power to preserve it. O ye husbands! Many of you make future remorse for yourselves by letting go the hand you held so proudly at the altar and allowing her to drop behind. Never let the time come when you look back at your marriage with her as a mistake. You can make wedded life a blessing or a curse to the woman who has entrusted her life happiness to you. Hold her so close to your heart she cannot drop behind.

CASES OF HASTY MARRIAGES. Their dream was past; it had no future change. It was of a strange order that the doom Of these two creatures should be thus traced out To end in madness—both in misery.

For two who are utter strangers to meet, admire and fancy they are intensely in love with each other at the end of a fortnight is the most foolish of all follies—unless it be a hasty betrothal followed by marriage. To be sure, they are forewarned that there may be trouble ahead, for they are obliged to promise the parson that they will take each other for better or for worse. With the knot securely tied, they turn their back upon the past, eagerly looking toward the future with the expectation of living happily ever after.

It takes the close companionship of marriage for a man and woman to know each other as they really are. The man or woman with a quick, unreasonable temper cannot hope to conceal it for long. Marriage does not carry with it a guaranty that it is a preventive against marital sparring by angry words. There is nothing more cruel than for a bride and groom to discover that their marriage was a mistake; that they are totally unsuited to each other.

They have not the courage to break the galling bond then and there, and decide to live it out, making the best of it. If they can successfully hide their unhappiness from the world they are thankful. It is either a pity or a blessing if children are born to such a couple. If they inherit dislike for either the one parent or the other the home is in continual contention. They have been ushered into the world without parental love in their hearts; bitter hatred and disrespect have taken its place. They fly from the home nest early. They drift to the far corners of the world and are heard from no more. Such children bring remorse and regret.

On the other hand, the coming of little ones into the home nest often draws wedded hearts together that were drifting apart. A child plays upon the harp strings of both hearts. How can a husband and father look into the innocent eyes of his child—his own flesh and blood—and despise the mother who bore it? Nor can a mother clasp her bosom the little one she loves better than her own life without a feeling of tenderness for its father, pushing aside the resentment that may have found lodgment in her breast against him.

Many an estranged couple have made new vows kneeling beside the cradle of the little child which God has sent them; aye, fallen in love with each other anew, earnestly, deliberately this time, whispering the one to the other that this is the beginning of their real union. Both work together, hand, brain, heart and soul, for the wellbeing of the child. The additional little ones that come knit their hearts, interests and hopes the closer together.

Hasty marriages seldom turn out to be the happiest ones if the home is a childless one. It is too much to risk to pledge the love and happiness one hopes for in the future with one whose tasks, habits and morals are an unopened book.

The old sage who said a couple should not wed until they have wintered and summered each other wrote more wisely than he knew. Do not wed in haste if you would not repent at leisure.

ASKING PARDON TOO OFTEN. Of all affection taught a lover yet To err is human, and good sense must ever join; To err is human, to forgive divine.

There is a limit to the patience of even the most good-natured of women. Whether they put too much faith in a man's word or whether men imagine they may cut as many capers as they like and only have to ask in apparent contriteness to be forgiven to have it granted them is somewhat of a problem.

A man may signify his intention to call upon a young woman on a certain evening, and, through the stress of unusual and unexpected business complications arising, work late and completely forget the date and that he is expected to call at a certain hour. Remembrance of the fact usually comes to him at an hour too late to put in an appearance. He does the next best thing—hastens home and writes the girl. He asks her pardon for disappointing her. He seldom tells the exact truth concerning the matter because, as he turns it over in his mind, it sounds too absurd. He frames up a reasonable excuse. The girl believes and pardons him.

Let this occur too often and annoyance crowds out interest in the girl's heart for him. It is bad enough to sit in her best bib and tucker waiting for him, painfully conscious her mother and father are commenting upon the lateness of the hour in the room above, and her two sisters in the front room, across from there, and her mischievous younger brothers giggling in the hall and whispering shrilly to each other between laughs. A spirited girl soon feels that she will lose her self-respect by forgiving such flagrant neglect again and again.

On some other occasion when he tells her he is to call, declaring she must trust him this time, he is astonished to hear the girl reply, "I am sorry, but I am expecting company on that evening." "Polite fiction," the man who has no word concludes, but the girl is sincere. She has told him the truth. She has grown tired of being asked to pardon his absenting himself on too many occasions and has turned to other acquaintances who would not thus abuse her confidence and forfeit her good opinion.

Her family makes no bones of expressing its disapproval of his methods. Her father sets him down as a man not to be depended on. Her mother thinks he is not sufficiently interested in her to spend an evening if he can find more congenial society elsewhere. Her sisters indignantly dub him a mean fellow. The small brothers do not like him on general principles, for he has never yet kept his word with them about bringing them marbles, kites and balls. They are not like their sister—after being fooled once by him they never afterward trust his word.

It is a lesson the boys are told never to forget—that they may be pardoned once or perhaps twice for negligence, but after that it becomes an old story. A man should be chary about breaking his word with women. They may forgive in part, but do they forget?

Never Missed. "When I grow up to be a man," said the boy who lived in a flat, "I want everybody to be sorry when I die." "That is a very laudable ambition," replied his father. "The only advice I can give you is: Don't be a janitor."

Rising Concern. "So you've invested your money in a new airship company." "Yes. If our airship goes up, the stock will go up." "But suppose it doesn't?" "Then the company will go up."

Human Nature. "Nobody—hold-durn him!—can stay in my hotel and sneer at our progressive little city!" snarled the landlord of the Petunia Tavern after he had kicked a guest out and buried his grip-sack after him—"He said that about all of the energy displayed by our citizens was in running for office!" "But," we objected, "we have often heard you declare that this town was the habitat of more crooks, deadbeats, hypocrites, fools and gossipers to the square inch than any other hamlet on the face of the earth." "Yes, and it's so, too!" he returned. "But, by gosh, I live here and am privileged to find as much fault as I like with everything in town, but no stranger has a right to criticize anything!"—Kansas City Star.

But a man never has the same interest in life after he loses the principal he had in the bank.

Boosters, Shovers, Pushers

This town is full of boosters, shovers, and pushers, and each is working valiantly toward a common end. The only difficulty in the accomplishment of definite results, as we see it, is that some begin at the bottom and work upward, while others start at the top and slide down.

Thus it is that when the two forces meet there is an inevitable conflict of opinion and resultant confusion, ending, as usual, in nothing being done.

It is a law of human nature that the child must first learn to crawl before it can walk, and the corn must sprout before it can grow. In each, you will note, the beginning is at the bottom. And so it should be with us as a community.

No satisfactory results are ever accomplished when a majority of the people are working at cross purposes, for that which is created by one is dissolved by another.

We have the boosters, the shovers, and the pushers in this community, but what we need is a unity of purpose, each with his eye centered upon the goal ahead, and not upon the one behind.

The mule is prone to move backward when its strength and energy is most needed in a strong and determined forward movement. And we, brother, should not emulate the mule.

It would be a splendid thing for this town if we could get all of the boosters, and shovers, and pushers together and fix our minds upon one certain goal, and then each boost side by side and all together as a unit until we attain the desired end. But success will come only by beginning at the bottom and working upward - always upward - with never a halt or backward glance until we reach the top.

In Bible times Lot's wife looked back and was turned into a pillar of salt. Now salt is a very useful article, but it does not figure in the scheme of community development. We don't want any mules or pillars of salt to retard our forward movement, but we do want men and women of resource and determination who will meet on a common ground and all labor, and march, and push, and shove in the same direction and to the same end - always forward and upward.

We want to make a bigger and better and more prosperous place of our home community, but it is difficult of accomplishment when so many insist on beginning at the top and sliding downward.

There are many and glorious possibilities ahead of us as a commercial and industrial proposition.

Our interests all lie in the future, and not in the buried past and its sorrows and disappointments.

There is life and achievement ahead, but it will require thought and energy, and unity, and action to accomplish results.

Simply a Case of When

With every mortal in this town of normal intelligence and thinking age it is simply a case of "when."

Some may scoff, others may ridicule this statement, but it is true.

For instance - Walking in the straight and narrow path is not a matter of compulsion or force of habit. It is done only WHEN we choose to do so.

The inoffensive dog or cat is kicked only WHEN the kicker chooses to descend to the level of the brute.

We go to church WHEN we please, we believe the minister WHEN we choose, and we serve the devil WHEN it strikes our fancy. Habit and necessity have no place in any of these.

We boost for the town WHEN it pleases us, or we knock it WHEN the inclination overtakes us, or we lapse into a state of indifference WHEN our thoughts and desires are dormant.

We are prosperous WHEN we give our best thought and energy to our business affairs, and we enjoy life to the fullest only WHEN we emerge from the shadows and bask in the sunlight of existence.

Go where you please, and view the subject from any angle you choose, in almost every instance life is simply one long case of WHEN.

MULE LOST - One bay horse mule, unbranded, about 15 hands high, and old - $2.50 for recovery of same at Gryders wagon yard.

Brown Summer.

There has been local showers over the county this week and in some places good rains, but as old times say this looks like a brown summer. Should we get a general rain in the next few days there would be plenty of feed raised in the county to care for the livestock through the winter and to feed the work stock while making another crop.

NATION ON THE WATER WAGON.

The German emperor has put us in the way of having ourselves, Not he, out drink, was our enemy, and the Kaiser has slain our enemy for us. He has made us adopt temperance and nothing can defeat us now." This was said in Petrograd by Mr. Bonislowsky, director of the Russian-American Steamship company and a member of the duma, as reported by Mary Isabel Brush in an article, "A Nation on the Water Wagon," in the Saturday Evening Post. To the czar the writer gives credit for the empire-wide stoppage of drink. Others, she says, would have stopped the sale of vodka merely for the mobilization, but it had long been the determination of the czar to abolish the evil and with the war came the psychological moment. When his prime minister declared a total abstinence measure "impossible" he resigned his resignation, and shortly afterwards issued the mandate which lifted the liquor curse from a domain which covers one-seventh of the entire globe.

"Russia," says Mrs. Brush, "entirely sober for the first time in her national existence, stands up bright and buoyant, with a new hope and a new joy. She has no regrets and no problems. Even the minister of finance, His Excellency Mr. Bark, says she has not, as he stands smiling with optimism in the capital of his emancipated country and faces the situation of raising—to replace the revenue from vodka—the modest sum of a thousand million rubles a year."

BEER CONDEMNED.

After twenty-five years of practice Dr. S. S. Langren, a leading physician and surgeon, has this to say about beer: "It is difficult to find any part in the confirmed beer drinker's machinery that is doing its work as it should. This is why their life cords snap off like glass rods when disease or accident gives them a little blow. Beer drinking shortens life. This is not a mere opinion; it is a well-settled, recognized fact. Physicians and insurance companies accept this as unquestionably as any other undisputed fact of science. The great English physicians decide that the heart's action is increased 13 per cent in its efforts to throw off alcohol introduced into the circulation. The result is easily figured out. The natural pulse beat is 70 per minute. If we multiply this by 60 an hour, and 24 hours in a day, and add 13 per cent, we find that the heart has been compelled to do an extra work during that time in throwing off the burden of a few drinks equal to 15 tons lifted one foot high."

REASONS FOR ABSTINENCE.

It is hard to be a physical adviser and keep off the subject of alcoholic liquors when you realize that there never can be anything like a high average of physical well-being in a country where a large part of the male population insists on poisoning itself regularly or periodically. I will simply sum up a few of the reasons—strictly from the standpoint of the physical trainer—why men should not drink alcohol.

Alcohol is not a food; it is a drug. It injures the blood. It retards the digestion. It is the worst enemy of the brain worker. It hardens the liver. It destroys the kidneys. It furnishes no support to the body. It is a depressant. It is a most destructive agent in the state of health or of disease. It deadens the body and the senses. It affects the mental and moral side of nature. Alcohol users show death rate of 20 per cent greater than nonusers.

THE PRIME CAUSE.

Chicago's recently appointed morals commission will, it is said, study the city's vice problem and find ways and means to solve it—will "investigate causes and devise methods of prevention." This is another blow for the saloon. There can be no investigation into causes of vice and disease which will not show that the liquor traffic does more than anything else to produce and foster all phases of immorality.

VALUES IN MAINE.

The valuation of Maine increased in 1914 by the substantial sum of $9,503,694. There was an increase of $71,071 in the value of live stock; and an increase of $995,991 in the value of automobiles. The total valuation of automobiles was $4,047,516; live stock, $17,961,690. The total valuation for the state is $439,529,196. This if divided among the population would give every one of the 742,371 inhabitants $592.60 each.

NEW WAGON NOT NEEDED.

In one West Virginia town it is reported they ordered a new automobile police patrol just before the new liquor law went into effect. It was not delivered for some weeks and after seeing the result of the new law they cancelled the order, saying that the old horse-drawn vehicle could do all the work necessary.

WHEN THE LID IS ON.

In a "dry" town only a criminal can sell liquor, and only a sneak can buy it.

POULTRY FACTS

SCRAPS GOOD FOR CHICKENS

Save all the parings, potato, pumpkin, squash, apple, etc., and when you are cooking your poonday meal cook these for the chickens. When it has cooled, stir in enough wheat bran to make a stiff mash. This makes an excellent but economical dinner. Give them an occasional mess of parings chopped fine without cooking. Turnips and beets are much relished by the fowls when eaten green.

If you have cabbage, take a small-sized head, fasten it to a wire and hang low enough that the fowls can reach it easily. You will be surprised to see how quickly they will clean up a cabbage in this way.

Don't feed your fowls milk in the watering trough. Have a separate trough for each. Be sure to feed a painful of milk each day.

Don't forget to water fowls when the weather gets cold. Milk doesn't quench their thirst, as I have often seen them turn from a pan of milk to the watering trough and drink an enormous quantity.

Keep a dust box in the henhouse when the hens are confined.

MOST PROLIFIC EGG LAYERS

What Chinese Breed of Geese Lack in Size They Make Up in Egg Production—Are Quite Hardy.

Apparently the Chinese geese lack in size has prevented them from becoming favorites with those who raise large numbers annually, but with those who keep a limited number they are found to be very practical. What they lack in size they gain in egg production, being the most prolific of all breeds of geese, averaging from 50 to 60 eggs a year. In size, aptitude to fatten, and ease of management they appear in no respect inferior to other geese, while the quality of flesh is decidedly superior.

They are exceedingly graceful in appearance, quite hardy, and the young mature early. There are two varieties of Chinese geese—the Brown and the White. They have medium-sized heads, with large knob at base of a medium-length bill, and long, gracefully arched neck. The backs are medium in length, and the breast is round and full; body of medium size, round and plump; wings large and strong; thigh bones short and stout, and shanks of medium length.

EXERCISE FOR LAYING HENS

Erroneous Impression Prevails Among Certain Poultrymen That Fowls Should Be Kept Moving.

The matter of exercise for laying hens is one of great importance to the breeder, and one which means much to the man who is producing eggs for the market only. There is a common impression prevailing among certain unenlightened poultrymen that fowls should be kept on the move all day long, but this is extremely erroneous especially in the case of winter egg production, and it has been proved most conclusively that a fowl will lay more eggs at a lower cost when not required to take an excessive amount of exercise.

Chickens to Fatten.

Chickens of from three and one half to four and one-half pounds are the most profitable to put in the fattening crates. Two parts oats, one part buckwheat and one part corn, all finely ground, mixed with sufficient butter-milk to make a batter, makes an excellent ration for crate feeding. With suitable birds an increase of one pound may be expected from three to five pounds of meal fed.

Make-Up of High Producer.

The bird that is a high producer must have a vigorous appetite and a large capacity for converting food materials into eggs.
