PEACE KEYNOTE OF COX SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

Democratic Candidate Would Enter League, Immediately Ratify Treaty and State Interpretation of Covenant.

SAYS "BACK TO THE NORMAL" MEANS REACTION

Failure to Enforce Prohibition Is Worse Than Law's Violation-Declares Present Congress Has Not Passed a Single Constructive Law, but Has Spent Time and Millions in Seeking to Make America's Military Triumph an Odious Chapter In History-Favors Repeal of War Taxes, Criminal Prosecution of Profiteers, More Adequate Supervision of Railroads, a National Budget System, and Woman Suffrage.

Here is a summary of the speech of Governor James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for president, at the notification ceremonies at Day-

League of Nations .- Would enter the league, immediately ratify the treaty and state our interpretation of the covenant in reservations as a matter of good faith and as a matter of precaution against any misunderstanding in the future. The interpretation to clearly show that the league is not an alliance and that its basic purpose is peace and not controversy.

Domestic Problems.—Would repeal war taxes; reduce federal taxation; suggests, in place of excess profits tax, substitution of volume of business tax.

Profiteering.-Promises penalization under the criminal law.

Labor.—Stimulate Americanization. Writ of injunction should not be abused. No necessity now for the drastic laws of war days; guarantee of free speech; recognition of the rights of the principle of collective bargaining. Child life of the nation should be conserved.

Agriculture.—Federal government should sponsor agriculture and food production. Farmer should be amply compensated for his work. Favors municipal markets. Regulation of cold storage. Would increase area of tillable land.

National Prosperity. — Objective should be decreased tenantry and stimulation of home ownership.

Food Supply.—More adequate supervision of railroads; utilization of waterways.

Financial and Commercial.—Extols federal reserve act and merchant marine. Would extend facilities for exchange and credit and stimulate foreign trade.

National Budget .- Favors a national budget system. Would reduce armament expenditures on entering league of nations.

Republican Ungenerosity.—Republicans failed to recognize that America had saved the world or to appreciate the struggles and sacrifices of those who, in arms or industry, helped win the war. Present Congress has not passed a single constructive law, but spent time and millions in seeking to make military triumph an odious chapter in history.

Mexican Situation. - We have neither lust for their domain nor disposition to disturb their rights.

Disabled Soldiers.—Pledges immediate efforts to provide vocational training and favors employment of disabled soldiers of World War by Federal Board to supervise the rehabilitation of disabled soldiers.

Prohibition.—"Any candidate for the presidency who says he does not intend to enforce the law is more unworthy than the law viotator."

Woman Suffrage.—Strongly fa-

Official Responsibility.-Opposed to "government by party;" pledges service to the people as a whole. Education.—Federal government should not encroach on local contral, but rather should create an enlarged public interest.

Campaign Contributions, - No narrow dividing line between the legitimate and the illegitimate, underlying purpose only determining.

Industrial Peace.-We want a change from the world of yesterday, from the old industrial world. We are at the "forks of the road." So-called "return to the normal" means "reactionism."

Dayton, O., Aug. 7.—In his speech of acceptance today Governor James M. Cox, addressing a great crowd, said in part:

"We are in a time which calls for straight thinking, straight talking and straight acting. This is no time for wobbling. Never in all our history has more been done for government. Never was sacrifice more sublime. The most precious things of heart and home were given up in a spirit which guarantees the perpetuity of our institutions-if the faith is kept with those who served and suffered.

"The country received with interest, to say the least, the announcement from Chicago, where the Republican national convention was assembled, that a platform plank, dealing with the subject of world peace, had been drawn, leaving out the Lodge reservations, and yet remaining agreeable to an interests, meaning thereby the Lodge reservationists, the mild reservationists and the group of Republican senators that openly opposed the League of Nations in any form.

"As the platform made no definite committal of policy and was, in fact, so artfully phrased as to make almost any deduction possible, it passed through the convention with practical unanimity. Senator Johnson, however, whose position has been consistent and whose opposition to the league in any shape is well known, withheld his support of the convention's choice until the candidate had stated the meaning of the platform, and announced definitely the policy that would be his, if

"Senator Harding makes this new pledge of policy in behalf of his party: "I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign.'

"This means but one thing—a separate peace with Germany!

"No less an authority than Senator Lodge said, before the heat of recent controversy, that to make peace except in company with the Allies would brand us everlastingly with dishonor and bring ruin to us.'

"And then after peace is made with Germany, Senator Harding would, he says, 'hopefully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship.'

"In short, America, refusing to enter the League of Nations (now already established by twenty-nine nations) and bearing and deserving the contempt of the world, would submit an entirely new project. This act would either be regarded as arrant madness or attempted international bossism.

"These are fateful times. Organized government has a definite duty all over the world. The house of civilization is to be put in order. The supreme issue of the century is before us and the manity, rising above national lines, merely seek to make another horrible war impossible. Under the old order of international anarchy war came overnight, and the world was on fire before we knew it. It sickens our senses to think of another.

Ratification First Duty.

tration clearly will be the ratification harmony with the terms and intent of of the treaty. The matter should be the United States Constitution which approached without thought of the bit- cannot in any way be altered by the terness of the past. The public ver- treaty-making power.' dict will have been rendered, and I am confident that the friends of world peace as it will be promoted by the league will have in numbers the constitutional requisite to favorable senatorial action. The captious may say that our platform reference to reservations is vague and indefinite. Its meaning, in brief, is that we shall state our interpretation of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future. The point is that after the people shall have spoken the league will be in the hands of its friends in the senate, and a safe index as to what they will do is supplied by what reservations they have proposed in the past. Some months ago, in a contributed article to the New York Times, I expressed my own opinion of the situation as it then was. I reproduce it here:

"There can be no doubt but that some senators have been conscientious in their desire to clarify the provisions of the treaty. Two things apparently have disturbed them: First, they wanted to make sure that the league was not to be an alliance, and that its basic purpose was peace and not controversy. Second, they wanted the other powers signing the instrument to understand our constitutional limitations beyond which the treaty-making power cannot go. Dealing with these two questions in order, it has always seemed to me that the interpretation of the function of the league might have been stated in these words:

"In giving its assent to this treaty, the senate has in mind the fact that the League of Nations which it embodies was devised for the sole purpose of maintaining peace and comity among the nations of the earth and preventing the recurrence of such destructive conflicts as that through which the world has just passed. The co-operation of the United States with the League and its continuance as a member thereof, will naturally depend upon the adherence of the League to that fundamental purpose.'

"Such a declaration would at least express the view of the United States and justify the course which our nation would unquestionably follow if the basic purpose of the League were at any time distorted. It would also appear to be a simpler matter to pronation that halts and delays is playing vide against any misunderstanding in with fire. The finest impulses of hu- the future and at the same time to meet the objections of those who believe that we might be inviting a controversy over our constitutional rights, by making a senatorial addition in words something like these:

> "'It will of course be understood that in carrying out the purpose of the Helpful Additions Not Barred.

"Unquestioned friends of the League have made other proposals. Our platform clearly lays no bar against any additions that will be helpful, but it speaks in a firm resolution to stand against anything that disturbs the vital principle. We hear it said that interpretations are unnnecessary. That may be true, but they will at least be reassuring to many of our citizens, who feel that in signing the treaty, there should be no mental reservations that are not expressed in plain words, as a matter of good faith to our associates. Such interpretations possess the further virtue of supplying a base upon which agreement can be reached, and agreement, without injury to the convenant, is now of pressing importance. It was the desire to get things started, that prompted some members of the senate to vote for the Lodge reservations. Those who conscientiously voted for them in the final roll calls realized, however, that they acted under duress, in that a politically bigoted minority was exercising the arbitrary power of its position to enforce drastic conditions. Happily the voters of the republic, under our system of government, can remedy that situation, and I have the faith that they will, at the election this fall. Then organized government will be enabled to combine impulse and facility in the making of better world conditions. The agencies of exchange will automatically adjust themselves to the opportunities of commercial freedom. New life and renewed hope will take hold of every nation. Mankind will press a resolute shoulder to the task of readjustment, and a new era will have dawned upon the earth.

Federal Taxation.

"Federal taxation must be heavily reduced, and it will be done at once, if a Democratic administration is chosen in November. Without hampering essential national administrative departments, by the elimination of all others and strict economy everywhere, national taxes can be reduced in excess of two billion dollars yearly. Annoying consumption taxes, once willingly borne, now unfustified, should be repealed. The incomes from war-made fortunes, those of non-producers and those derived from industries that exist by unfair privilege may be able to carry their present load, but taxes on the earnings of the wage-earner, of the salaried and professional man, of the agricultural producer and of the small tradesman should be sharply modified. I believe that a better form of taxation than the so-called excess profits tax may be found and I suggest a small tax, probably one to one and one-half per cent on the total business of every going concern. It is to be understood that the term 'business' as used does not include income received by wageearners, salaried men, agriculturists and the small business man who should be exempt from this tax. The profiteer and some of the highly capitalized units have used the excess profits tax as a favorite excuse for loading on the consumer by means of highly inflated selling prices many times the amount actually paid the government. A necessary condition to the national contentment and sound business is a just proportion between fair profits to business and fair prices to the con-

Would Halt Profiteering.

"The tribe of profiteers has simply multiplied under the favoring circumstances of war. For years, large contributions have been made to the Republican campaign fund for no purpose except to buy a governmental underhold and to make illegal profits as the result of preference. Such largesses are today a greater menace to our contentment and our institutions than the countless temporary profiteers who are making a mockery of honest business, but who can live and fatten only in time . listurbed prices. If I am called to ... vice as president means will be found, if they do not already exist, for compelling these exceptions to the great mass of square dealing American business men, to use the same yardstick of honesty that governs most of us in our dealings with our fellowmen, or in language that they may understand, to suffer the penalty of criminal law.

"It has been my observation that the man who learns our language, yields to a controlling public opinion and respects our laws; besides, in proportion as his devotion to American life develops his interest in the impulsive processes of revolution diminishes. We must be patient in the work of assimilation and studiously avoid oppressive measures in the face of mere evidence of misunderstanding. The necessity for the drastic laws of war days is not present now, and we should return at the earliest opportunity, to the statutory provisions passed in time of peace for the general welfare. There is no condition now that warrants any infringement on the right of free speech and assembly nor on the liberty of the press. The greatest measure of individual freedom consistent with the safety of our institutions should be given. Excessive regulation causes manifestations that compel restraint.

Law Enforcement.

"The legislative branch of government is subjected to the rule of the majority. The public official who fails to enforce the law, is an enemy both to the Constitution and to the American principle of majority rule. It would seem quite unnecessary for any candidate for the Presidency to say that he does not intend to violate his oath of office. Anyone who is false to that oath is more unworthy than the law violator himself.

"Morals cannot easily be produced by statute. The writ of injunction should not be abused. Intended as a safeguard to person and property, it could easily by abuse cease to be the protective device it was intended to

"We should not, by law, abridge a man's right either to labor or to quit his employment. However, neither labor nor capital should at any time or in any circumstances, take action that would put in jeopardy the public welfare.

"We need a definite and precise statement of policy as to what business men and workingmen may do and may not do by way of combination and collective action. The law is now so nebulous that it almost turns upon the economic predilections of the judge or jury. This does not make for confidence in the courts nor respect for the laws, nor for a healthy activity in production and distribution. There surely will be found ways by which co-operation may be encouraged without the destruction of enterprise. The rules of business should be made more certain so that on a stable basis men may move with con-

"Government, however, should provide the means in the treatment of its employees, to keep in touch with conditions and to rectify wrong. It is needless to say that in order to be consistent, facts should at all times justify the pre-supposition that the government employees are properly compensated.

"The child life of the nation should be conserved; if labor in immature years is permitted by one generation.

"H-, thar ain't really no manner o' risk at all. Yer don't even hav' ter just got fer ter be done on the dead quiet, an' no question asked. I'll tell yer all yer need ter know. 'Tain't such a long story. This yere Joe Kirby he's a frien' o' mine; I've know'd him a yer know the rest." long time, an' he's in a h--- of a fix. Here's how it all happened: Thar wus an ol' planter livin' down in Missoury at a place called Beaucaire's Landin'. His name wus Beaucaire, an' he hed a son named Bert, a good-fer-nuthing cuss, I reckon. Wal, this Bert runned away a long while ago, an' never cum back; but he left a baby behind hima gurl baby—which a quadroon slave give birth to. The quadroon's name wrus Delia, an' the kid wus called Itene. Git them names in yer head. Ol' Beaucaire he knew the gurl wus his son's baby, so he brought her up 'lop' with his own daughter, who wus samed Eloise. They wus both bout ther same age, an' nobody seemed ter know that Rene wus a nigger. Fer sum reason ol' Beaucaire never set her free, ner the quadroon neither. Wai, Kirby he heard tell o' all this sumwhar down the river. Yer see he an' Bert Beaucaire run tergether fer a while, till Bert got killed in a row in New Orleans. I reckon he tol' him part o' the story, an' the rest he picked up in Saint Louee. Enyhow, it looked like a d- good thing ter Kirby, who ain't passin' up many bets. Ol' Beaucaire wus rich, an' considerable ov a sport; people who hed seed the gurls sed they wus both ov 'em beauties an' Eloise—the white one—hed an independent fortune left her through her mother. So Kirby, he an' a feller hamed Carver—a tin-horn—planned it |

brains. The plan wus ter git Beaucaire inter a poker game, ease him 'long a bit, an' then break him, land, niggers, an' all. They didn't figure this wud be hard, fer he wus a dead | for a moment's thought. The plan was game gambler, an' played fer big a diabolical one, cold-blooded and desstakes. It was luck, though, what giv' 'em their chance. Beaucaire hed sum serving Eloise, except by accepting minin' claims up on the Fevre, an' hed Rale's offer. I did not even know where ter go up thar. It's a long, lonesom' trip, I reckon, an' so the other two they went 'long. They got the ol' chap goin' and comin', an' finally coddled him 'long till he put up his big bet on a sure hand. When he found out whut hed happened the ol' gent got so excited he flung a fit, an' died."

"Leaving' Kirby ownin' all the property?"

"Every picayune, niggers an' all. It wus sum sweep, an' he hed signed bills o' sale. Wa'n't nobody cud git it away frum him. Wal' Joe he didn't want fer ter make no fuss, ner scare the gurl none, so he went down ter Saint Louee an' made proof o' ownership afore a jedge he know'd. Then, with the papers all straight, he, an' the sheriff, with Tim yere, the deputy, run up the river at night ter serve 'em quietly on the daughter—the white one, Eloise. Kirby he didn't aim ter be seen at all, but just went 'long so thar wudn't be no mistake. Yer see. them papers had ter be served afore they cud take away the niggers. Kirby wus goin' ter sell them down river, an' not bother bout the land fer thet notion in his hed."

"Sure; he hed the other by law. Wal, when they all got thar, nobody claimed fer ter be Rene-the one who wus a nigger, thet Kirby owned. Nobody know'd which wus which, an' so they hed ter take her word for it. They cudn't do nuthin' legal till they found the other one, an' they wus sittin' round waitin' fer her ter turn up, when the nigger guri they wus watchin' got away."

"How'd she do thet?" "Don't noboddy seem ter know. Damn funny story. Way they tell it, sumbody must'r knocked Kirby down an' run off with her. Whoever did it. stole the boat in which Kirby an' the sheriff cum up the river, an' just naturally skipped out-the sheriff's nigger an' all. It wus a slick job."

"Of course they chased them?" "Best they cud, not knowin' which way the'yd gone. They reckoned the ounce mastr got away tergetner. so the sheriff he started fer Saint Kirby be comin' down ter this yer the first words which came to his lips: Loues, an' the ethers got onto a troop place on Bear crick?" boat what happened ter cum long, and l'In a day er two, I reckon. They hed a fight in an' about his cabin, an' break the law, fer as I know. It's sum killin'. Two ov the womin got mouth shet. Them blamed soldiers away, but Kirby an' Tim got hold o' this gurl what hed claimed ter be Rene, an' a mulatto cook who wus a-workin' fer Shrunk. I reckon maybe

> "I know they was run down by the Adventurer, an' hauled aboard. But how did Kirby learn his prisoner wus white? Did she tell him?"

"I should say not. It wus the mulatto cook who told him, although, I reckon, he hed his doubts afore thet. I knew she wusn't no nigger the furst minute I got eyes on her—they cain't fool me none on niggers; I wus raised 'mong 'em. But so fur's the gurl's concerned, she don't know yet thet Kirby's found out." He emitted a weak laugh. "It sorter skeered Joe ter be caught 'way up yere in this kintry, kidnappin' a white gurl. He didn't leave Sal yere ter tend bar. Now git know whut the h-l ter do till I give this: thar's a right smart trail back him a p'inter."

"Wal', I sed she cudn't do nuthin' her. I thought o' thet right away... Yer see this wus how it happened: Kirby sed he'd like fer ter marry her, ol' bum ov a preacher yere at Yellow Banks, a sorter hanger-on ter one o' them militià companies, what'll do eny d--n thing I tell him to. I got the goods on him, an' he knows it.'

"'But she wouldn't marry me,' he says; 'yer don't know thet gurl.'

"'Don't I?' I asked sarcastic. 'Wal', thar ain't no gurl ever I see yet thet won't marry a man if the right means are used. How kin she help herself? Yer leave it ter me,'

"And he consented?"

"He wus d---n glad to, after I told him how it cud be done. But Tim he wudn't go in with us, an' thet's "Luck mostly, I reckon, an' Kirby's why we got ter have anuther man. Come on over ter the bar an' have a drink, Moffett; them other fellers are goin' ter eat now."

> The diversion gave me opportunity perate, yet I saw no certain way of she was concealed, or how I could lay hands on Kirby. The genial Rale pushed out a black bottle and we drank together.

"Wal," he said, picking up the conversation where it had ended, quite satisfied with his diplomacy, and wiping his lips on his sleeve. "What ye say, Moffett? Thar's a hundred dollars in this job," "Whar is the guri?"

"Oh, I reckon she ain't fur away; we kin find her all right. I got ter know 'bout yer furst. Are yer game?"

"I'm game 'nough, Jack," assuming a familiarity I thought he would appreciate. "Only I don't want'r jump inter this yere thing without knowin' nuthin' 'bout it. What is it yer got lined up fer me ter do?"

He helped himself to yet another liberal drink, and I was glad to note that the flery liquor was already beginning to have its effect, increasing his recklessness of speech. "All right, Dan; have another one on me-no? Wal' h-l; I s'pose 1 might as wal' tell ye furst as last. Thar ain't nuthin' fer eny o' us ter awhile, till after he'd hed a chance ter git skeered about. We got it all shine up ter this yere gurl Eloise. He'd planned. We don't want this affair ful lest he might come back. Suddenly never seen her-but, enyhow, he got talked about none, do we? I reckon the front door opened noiselessly and not. So we planned it out this way: "She wus the daughter; the white Thar's a frien' o' mine got a shack down on Bear creek, bout twenty mile ing his questions, which were spoken below yere. He sells red-eye ter barge an' keel-boatmen, what tie up thar was home, 'cept one o' the guris, who nights. Wal', he's all right-a h-l o' a good feller. What we aim ter do is run the gurl down thar ternight, unbekno'nst ter enybody. I reckon yer kin ride a hoss?"

"Yes; so thet's my job?"

"Thet's the whole o' it. Yer just got ter stay thar with her till Kirby kin git away, without noboddy think- aloud. "Rale has got him fixed, all in' enything bout it. It's d-n easy | right." money, ter my notion."

I thought swiftly. There were several questions I wanted to ask but dare not. It was better to trust to luck, for I must lull, not arouse suspicion. Thus far the affair had played wonderfully into my hands; if I could maintain my part to the end there ought to be no reason why the girl should not be saved uninjured.

"Why, if thet's all I got ter do fer a hundred dollars," I said gayly, "I'm to pinch the fellow rather severely ov the Illinov they caught up with a river. Yer see, this yer's all camp; thar ain't no fit place whar we kin 'tide the gurl, an' make her keep her are a-moosin' bout everywhar, an' if she onct got talkin' our goose wud be cooked. Furst thing we got ter do is git her outer this camp."

"Ternight, yer sed?" "'Bout midnight; yer'll go-hey?" "I reckon; yer got the money?"

With his eyes fastened on the two men eating he counted out some gold pieces on the bar and shoved them over to me, keeping them under cover of his hand.

"Thar's half o' it, an' the rest is yers when ye bring back the hosses." "How many hosses? Who's a-goin'?"

"Three o' yer. Kirby's fer sendin' the mulatter gurl 'long. She's a free nigger an' might let her tongue wag. Now listen, Moffett: I'm a-goin' out putty soon ter git things ready, an' I'll o' the cabin, leadin' straight down er "You were the one who suggested the crick, with a spring bout half way. Thar ain't no guard down thar, an' ye can't miss it, even en the dark. gainst him onct he wus married to The hosses will be thar et midnight waltin' fer yer. All ye got ter do is just put them two gurls on an' ride away. Yer don't never need ter speak an' I sez, 'Why not, then? Thar's an | ter 'em. Yer understand? All right, then; have anuther drink."

> I shook my head. "But how'm I goin' ter git ter this place-whatever it's called?"

> "Thar ain't no trouble bout thet; all yer got ter do is ride straight south till yer cum ter the crick, an' yer thar. It's Jenkins' crossing yer after."

"I reckon thar ain't eny Indians, er nuthin'?"

"H-, no; they're all t'other direction; nuthin' worse'n wolves. Say, though, yer might have trouble with them gurls-got a gun?"

"No." He reached back into a small drawer under the shelf and brought out an ugly looking weapon, tried the hammer movement with his thumb, and handed it over to me with a grin.

"Some cannon, an' I want it back. Don't fall at midnight."

"An' thar ain't nuthin' fer me ter do till then?"

"Not a thing; take a nap, if yer want'r. Sai kin wake ye up. I reckon I won't be back till after yer off."

I sat down in a chair and leaned back against the wall, tilting my hat down over my eyes and pretending to fall asleep. Through half-closed lids I managed to see all that transpired in the room, and my mind was busy with the approaching crisis.

Rale busied himself for some minutes before putting on his hat, counting over some money and filling his bottles from a reserve stock underneath the shelf. Tim slept peacefully on, but had slightly changed his posture, so that his face was now upturned to the light. The sight of his familiar features gave me an inspiration. He was, undoubtedly, an honest fellow. and had quarreled with Kirby over this very matter, refusing to have any hand in it. He had supposed up to that time that he was doing no more than his duty under the law. If I could arouse him from drunken stupor he might even be willing to work with me in the attempt to rescue Eloise. Rale disappeared through the rear door, after exchanging a few words with the woman, and did not return. I waited motionless for some time, fear-Kirby entered, advancing straight toward the bar. Sal served him, answerso low I could not catch the words. His eyes swept the room, but the hat concealed my face, and he only recognized Tim. He paused long enough to bend above the upturned features of the unconscious deputy, not unpleased, evidently, to discover him in that condition.

"The d- old fool," he muttered perhaps not aware that he spoke

CHAPTER XIII.

Kirby and I Meet.

Sal remained seated behind the bar, nodding, and so soon as I felt reasonably assured that she was without interest in my movements, I leaned forward and endeavored to arouse Kennedy. This was by no means easy of accomplishment, and I was compelled er man, Jack. An' how soon will before he sat up angrily, blurting out "What the devil-" His half-opened eyes caught my ges-stantly, his lips widely parted. "Meet me outside," I whispered, warningly. "But be careful about it." The slight noise had failed to disturb the woman, and I succeeded in slipping through the unlatched door without noting any change in her posture. Tim, now thoroughly awake, and aware of something serious in the air, was not long in joining me without, and I drew him aside into a spot of deeper blackness under the trees. He was still indignant over the pinching, and remained drunk enough to be quarrelsome. I cut his muffled profanity short. "That's quite enough of that, Tim," I said sharply, and was aware that he stared back at me, plainly perplexed by the change in my tone and manner. "You are an officer of the law; so am I, and it is about time we were working together."

He managed to release a gruff laugh. "You-you d- bery; h-, that's a good joke-what'r yer givin' me now?" "The exact truth; and it will be P'aug?" worth your while, my man, to brace up and listen. I am going to give you a chance to redeem yourself—a last chance. It will be a nice story to tell back in St. Louis that you helped to kidnap a wealthy young white woman, using your office as a cloak for the crime, and, besides that, killing two men to serve a river gambler. Suppose I was to tell that sort of tale to Governor Clark, and give him the proofs-where would you land?"

He breathed hard, scarcely able to articulate, but decidedly sober.

"What-what's that? Ain't you the fellar thet wus on the boat? Whowho the devil are yer?"

gravely, determined to impress bim ready fer a fight er a foot race. This first of all, "and I worked on that is how I size it up-if thar ain't no steamer merely to learn the facts in row, I'm just ter keep still an' low; an' this case. I know the whole truth now, if a fracas starts I'm ter jump in fer even to your late quarrel with Kirby. I do not believe you realized before what you were doing-but you do now. You are guilty of assisting that contemptible gambler to abduct Eloise Beaucaire, and are shielding him now in his cowardly scheme to compel her to marry him by threats and force."

"The d-, low-lived pup-I told him whut he wus." "Yes, but that doesn't prevent the crime. He's all you said, and more. But calling the man names isn't going to frighten him, nor get that girl out is, are you ready to help me fight the fellow? Block his game?"

"How? What do ye want done?" "Give me a pledge first, and I'll tell

"Did you say ye wus an army offer-"Yes, a lieutenant; my name is

"I never know'd yer."

"Probably not, but Joe Kirby does. was on the steamer Warrior coming down when he robbed old Judge Beaucaire. That was what got me mixed up in this affair. Later I was in that skiff you fellows rammed and sunk on the Illinois. I know the whole dirty story, Kennedy, from the very beginning. And now it is up to you whether or not I tell it to Governor Clark."

"I reckon yer must be right," he admitted helplessly. "Only I quit cold the minute I caught on ter whut wus up. I never know'd she wa'n't no nigger till after we got yere. Sure's yer live that's true. Only then I didn't know whut else ter do, so I got bilin' drunk."

"You are willing to work with me, then ?"

"Yer kin bet I am; I ain't no gurl-stealer."

"Then listen, Kennedy. Jack Rale told me exactly what their plans were, because he needed me to help him. When you jumped the reservation, he had to find someone else, and picked me. They mean to pull off the affair tonight. Here's the story."

I told it to him, exactly in the form it had come to me, interrupted only in the recital by an occasional profane ejaculation, or some interjected question. The deputy appeared sober enough before I had finished, and fully grasped the seriousness of the situa-

They either intend threatening her, or else to actually resort to force—likely both. No doubt they can rely on this renegade preacher in either case."

"Jack didn't name no name?"

No-why?" "Only ther uster be a bum hangin' who hed preacher's papers, en wore 3,227,000 down game he wudn't take a hand in fer a drink. His name wus Gaskins; 1 hed him up fer mayhem onct. I'll bet he's the duck, for he hung round Jack's place most o' the time. Whatcha want me ter do?"

"It has seemed to me, Tim," I said thoughtfully, "that the best action for us to take will be to let them place the girl in my hands, just as they have planned to do. That will throw them entirely off their guard. Once we succeed in getting her safely away, and remain unknown ourselves, there ought to be very little trouble in straightening out the whole matter. My plan would be to either ride around the camp in the night, and then report tha whole affair at headquarters, or else to strike out direct for Fort Armstrong across country. Do 3 : know any place you can pick up a horse?" "That's a slew ov 'em round yere," he admitted. "These fellers are most all hoss-coldiers. I reckon I cud cinch sum sort o' critter. Yer want me

"Perhaps not, Tim. Your disappearance might cause suspicion, and send them after us. My plan is to get away as quietly as possible, and let them believe everything is all right. I want a day or two in which to work, before Rale or Kirby discover we have not gone to Bear Creek. I'll r et them alone at the spring down the trail, but shall want you somewhere near by. You see this is bound to mean a fight if I am recognized-likely three against one; and those men wouldn't hesitate at murder."

"I reckon not, an' it wudn't be their furst one nuther. Looks ter me like yer wus takin' a big chance. I'll be "I am an officer in the army," I said | thar, though; yer kin bet on thet, an" all I'm worth. Is thet the program?"

"Exactly-that's my idea." "Wal' then, I'm a prayin' it starts; I want just one crack et thet Kirby, the ornary cuss."

We talked the whole matter over in detail, having nothing better to do, and endeavoring to arrange for every probability, yet did not remain together for long.

I felt nervous, anxious, eager for action. The time dragged horribly. What if something unforeseen should occur to change Rale's plan? My God! of his clutches. What I want to know | if I only knew where it was they had concealed the girl.

The two of us explored about the silent cabin, but discovered nothing. There was no light visible in the rear room, nor any sound of movement within. The two windows were closed, and the door locked. We found a convenlent stump in the woods and sat down to wait where we could see all that occurred about the cabin.

It was nearly twelve before even the slightest sound near at hand indicated the approach of others. I was already in an agony of suspense, imagining something might have gone wrong, when the dull scuffling of norses' hoofs being led cautiously up the trail to my right broke the intense silence. I listened to assure myself, then shook Tim into wakefulness, leaving him still blinking in the shadow of the stump. while I advanced in the direction of the spring. I saw nothing of Rale until he spoke.

"That yer, Moffett?"

"Yes; whar's yer party?" I caught a view of his dim outlines, as he stepped slightly forward, reassured by my voice. "They'll be yere; thar's a bit o' time ter spare yit. I aimed not ter keep 'em waitin'. Here, this is yer hoss, an' yere's the leadin' strap fer the others. Better tie it ter yer pommel, I reckon, so's ter leave both yer hands free yer might hav' need fer 'em. We'll tend ter mountin' the gurls, an' then all ye'll hav' ter do will be ter lead off. Better walk the hosses till yer git crost the crick, so the sojers won't hear yer. Got that?"

"I reckon I hav', an' sense 'nough ter know it without bein' told. Did yer think I wanted ter be catched on this job?"

"All right, but thar's no harm a tellin' yer. Whar's Tim gone to?" "I reckon he don't even know hisself; he's sure sum drunk." Rale chuckled, patting the side of the horse next him.

STOMACH TROUBLE AND TO KING CONSTIPATION ENDED

Suffered So He Couldn't Work for Year, but Mr. McCormick Was Cured Promptly.

"I had stomach trouble and constipa tion for five years. One year of this time I was unable to work, suffering untold agony. I doctored with some of the best physicians, also took many proprietary edicines, but could not find permanent relief. Finally a friend recommended Milks Emulsion. The first few doses relieved me greatly, and three bottles of it effected a permanent cure."-C. A. Mc-Cormick, Anderson, Ind.

Mr. McCormick is only one of many hundreds who have endured torture for years and then found that Milks Emuision gives blessed relief and real, lasting benefit. It costs nothing to try.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy and natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relievedusually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee-Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emul-Sica Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.-Adv.

Oh, No! Not to Eat. "May I have one more jelly, please?" entreated Bobby at the party.

"But do you think you can eat it?" asked the l:ostess.

"Oh, no!" answered Bobby. "I could not eat any more, but I wanted to drop it down Peter's neck!"

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

GOOD THINGS WORTH TRYING.

An inexpensive cake that is not at all common is:

Apple Cream Cake .-Take a half-cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, three eggs, four tablespoonfuls of milk, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar and half of a teaspoonful of soda. Mix as usual and bake in layers, using the following for filling:

Apple Cream.—Grate one good-sized apple; add the white of an egg, unbeaten, and one cupful of powdered sugar. Beat all together for 20 minutes, or until quite stiff; add almond or vanilla to flavor.

Bread Crumb Pudding.—Take two and one-half cupfuls of bread crumbs which have been put through a meat grinder, one cupful of sour milk, onehalf cupful of shortening, two eggs (one will do), one teaspoonful of soda, one cupful of raisins, one cupful of any preserve, one cupful of sugar; add cinnamon to flavor. Steam two hours.

Prune Pudding.—Take one cupful of choice prunes which have been soaked over night, stone and chop fine; add the whites of three eggs and a cupful of sugar. Bake in a slow oven. Serve with cream.

Suet Pudding.—Take one cupful of finely chopped suct, one cupful each of molasses and sour milk, three and onehalf cupfuls of flour, two beaten eggs, one cupful of raisins, one teaspoonful of soda and spices to taste. Steam two hours and serve with an egg sauce.

Date Pie.-Take half a pound of dates, cover with boiling water; remove pits and rub the dates until smooth; add one egg, three-quarters of a cupful of water, a bit of salt, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and a pint of milk, and bake in a crust like a custard ple. The dates may be stewed in the water until the pits show, then the same water used in the mixture.

Stuffed Eggs.—Remove the yolks from two hard-cooked eggs, mash the yolks and mix with two tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of anchovy paste. Add salt, pepper and cayenne, mix well and refill the whites Serve in head lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Of all fruitless errands sending a tear to look after a day that is gone is the most fruitless.-Dickens. THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Even with very little space one may have a garden and, by having a new crop growing as the crop already matured is being used, there is always something green coming on. Radishes and carrots may be sow-

ed in the same

row; the radishes when pulled will help to loosen the earth around the carrots, and as the radishes grow much faster they are out of the way before the carrots need the room. Vegetables that grow quickly and those that are slower of growth are best to sow together when space is very valuable. Where there is room a small herb bed will be an especial delight. Sage, summer savory, chevil, thyme, marjoram and other herbs will take but a small space and give back large yields of savory herbs which will be used all the year.

Peas can be planted a week apart for four or five crops, if one is fond of that delicious vegetable. Most all gardeners strive for the early varieties of vegetables, but they are not always as well flavored or as satisfactory as those that come a little later.

An asparagus bed, when once started, will bear for years with little care. Asparagus is one of the earliest of vegetables and almost universally well liked. A few cans may be put up for winter after the appetite has been partly satisfied, or when the bed produces abundantly. A can or two may be put up at a time, taking little time

A few horseradish roots are another vegetable which will be greatly cherished. Grated, the root is a good spring tonic and in the fall the pickle jar lacks flavor if it is not added. This is another vegetable which once started cares for itself.

One or two hills of cucumbers well taken care of will produce all the and a vine or two more all the pickles for winter use.

Galveston, Texas.—"After the flood in 1900 all my family became run-down, due to exposure of being in the water, loss of sleep, etc. They were all feeling miserable and the only medicine they took was Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By the use of this they were all restored to health and strength.

"I always keep the 'Pleasant Pellets' in my home. They are an excellent regulator of the stomach, liver and bowels, or for bilious attacks. I can speak in the highest terms of all of Dr. Pierce's Medicines."-Mrs. J. W. Moss, 3913 Ave. K.

Houston, Texas.—"All my life my liver has given me considerable trouble. have suffered with sick headaches and have had yellow blotches appear all over my body. At one time I was so bad with it that I lost all ambition to do my housework and was really 'all in' when 'Golden Medical Discovery' was recommended to me by a friend. I took six bottles of it, which made me feel like a different woman. I consider Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery the very best liver medicine I have ever known and have no hesitancy in recommending it to those afflicted with chronic liver ailments."-Mrs. C. A. THE REQUESTS.

Sometimes when the great store was dark and when the people had gone home the things in the store had storytelling hours and games and frolics and all sorts of nice times.

Sometimes they talked and sometimes they played and sometimes they would sing to themselves and to each other. There were times, too, when they would tell what had gone on during the long day when people had been shopping and when children had come and gone and come back again. Many a long talk did they all have and they had so much to tell always of what happened in the daytime. But to go on with what happened on this evening, just after the people had left the store.

It was after six o'clock. The great children's store which sold everything anyone could think of-from canary birds to party frocks-was silent and Suddenly there came a laughing. All the dresses and gloves and pocketbooks and sashes peeped out from their blue coverings and began to laugh too. Just then, flying down the alsles of the store, between the counters, came a fairy.

"It's such a joke, such a joke," she said. "They all think we've gone to rest. Of course I am not a dress, nor am I a sash, but I play with all of you and so I say 'we' in a most friendly manner. To be sure you all do have a rest, later on, for you need it after the day you've had. But for a time we play."

"Oh," said a blue apron, "I had the most awful time today. I just couldn't stretch out. No one seemed to like me much so first I was thrown one way and then another. I thought my poor calico legs and arms would never be smoothed out properly. It was most uncomfortable.'

"You have nothing to grumble about," said a party dress from nearby, "you weren't tried on and criticized and tried on again. Oh, my feelings were hurt! Just because some one may want a party dress there is no reason why they should expect the whole world and what every one else ever had on a party dress to go on me, or be on me-whichever you say. I'm not much of a talker. "My dear party dress," said a gingham dress, peeping from its counter. "You can't talk well for talk comes from the mouth or the throat or both. I've heard that at times it comes from the brain too—where creatures think. But dresses can't make conversation well. No, it's impossible. You haven't a mouth, And you can't work by yourself for you haven't any hands." "Well," said the fairy, as she hopped upon a counter, "what are we going te play tonight?" "I don't know," said the gingham dress, "I don't feel much like playing."

"Neither de I," said the party dress at the top of its pile.

"If I'm to be in the children's department," said one of the goldfishes, "I must play at night too as they dothe dresses, and toys and games and books. But just tonight I don't feel like playing. I wish I were something else."

"That's what I wish," called the gingham dress.

"So do I," said the party dress, "So do I," said a doll's house. "I'm angry that things should be unfair," said the gingham dress.

"Yes," said the blue apron, "I know just what the gingham dress means. We aren't given any chances at all. We have to be so plain and we have to be worn for dull things such as dusting or playing in the gardens or something like that. Why can't we go to parties and hear music and see dancg and be danced around ourselves?"

"Do you all request to be something else?" asked the Fairy. "Well, I will call the wishing fairy at once and all your wishes will be granted. Yes, they W. N. U., Oklahoma City, No. 16-1920. will, heigh-ho!"

WHEN AND HOW TO PLANT GARDEN CROPS

Common garden crops are divided by the United States department of agriculture specialists into four groups as regards the time of planting them in the open ground.

The first group includes the vegetables that will withstand considerable frost and which may be planted two or three weeks before the danger scribed by physicians for nineteen ritis and of frost is past in the spring. The Alway second group, or semi-hardy crops, a Aspiria proved safe by ing Asp may be planted a few days before, or eafety about the time, that the last killing frost is likely to occur. The third Handy group, those easily killed by frost, should not be planted until all danger of frost is over. The fourth group, the heat-loving plants, should never be planted in the open until both the soil and the air are thoroughly warm.

> Among the crops of the first group —that may be planted before frosts are past—are Irish potatoes, smooth peas, onion sets, cabbage plants, kale, They may be planted early, because easily injured by frost, by the time frost danger is likely to be past.

Don't Follow Moon Rule. Some gardeners formerly believed in planting Irish potatoes and certain as for the extremely early crops. other garden crops in the proper phase of the moon. No one seems to know how the old moon theory origprehistoric times and probably was time by moons rather than by months. There is no definite experimental data to show that the moon has any influence one way or the other, and experienced gardeners prefer to plant their potatoes at a time when the weather and soil conditions are right rather than according to the phase of the moon. Experience has shown that of plants in the open very early. the point of most importance is to soon as weather conditions permit.

When Peas Should Go In. seed peas should be covered. Some ceptible to injury from cold soils. authorities claim they should be covered as much as four inches, while others maintain that two to three inches is sufficient. Much will depend. however, upon the character of the soil in which the crop is planted. If the soil is a light sandy loam and inclined to dry out quickly, the peas should be covered three to four inches. But if the soil is rather heavy and inclined to pack closely, they should not be covered more than one and one-half to two inches. The varieties of peas having wrinkled seed coats should not be planted until about two weeks after the smooth varieties. They are just a little more susceptible to injury from frost and will mature about as early if planted when the ground has slightly warmed. When to Take Chance.

In the case of certain garden crops the investment in seed is too great for taking a chance with the weather, CHICKENS IN SMALL FLOCKS but with beets, lettuce, and radishes a very small quantity of seed is required, and if they come through in good shape, the product will be ready for use much earlier than if the planting were delayed. About 25 or 30 feet of row will give all the early beets required by an ordinary family. Radishes may be planted in the rows with early peas. However, it will be necessary to remove the radishes before they begin to crowd the peas. As a rule, radishes will be ready for use or just about the time that the peas have begun to make a vigorcus, (Prepared by the United States Depart- | growth. Most gardeners make the mistake of planting toe many radishes, or at least of planting too many at one time and not being able to use the product.

The old-fashioned method of growing lettuce was to plant a bed along one side or in one corner of the garden, and when the plants were large enough, to thin them, using the product as needed and leaving the remainder to grow larger. This method of growing lettuce is not as desirable as the plan of growing it in rows, where it can be easily cultivated. Lettuce is very susceptible to heat, and it is difficult to grow it satisfactorily after the weather has become hot. For this reason it is best grown as a spring and a fall crop. Two or three plantings at intervals of ten days or two weeks in spring and a planting or two in autumn should be sufficient for the needs of the ordinary family,

Planting Second Group. The second group, including carrots, turnips, beets, lettuce and mustard. beets, parsnips, radishes, salsify, wrinkled peas, spinach and early they require two or three weeks to sweet corn, may be planted shortly come up. While the young plants are before the probable time for the last spring frost. The planting of these they sprout and come to the surface crops should be so timed that they will escape frost and yet be started just as early as possible. The same planting methods should be followed

When Frost Is Past.

The third group of garden crops, or those that should not be planted until inated, but it seems to date back to after danger of frost is past, includes cucumbers, cantaloupes, okra swiss based upon the method of keeping chard, snap beans, cauliflower and tomato plants. The time of setting tomato plants, however, will depend somewhat on whether or not they are becoming crowded in the plant bed. If they are not crowded, it may pay to delay setting them in the open ground until the air is thoroughly warmed. Little is gained by planting this class

The fourth group of plants, comhave the land in first-class condition monly known as the heat-loving for planting, then proceed to plant as plants, includes peppers, eggplants, sweet potatoes and summer squash. These crops are easily injured by cold The dwarf or smooth varieties of | nights and periods of rainy weather, English peas may be planted about and it is always best to delay plantthe same time as Irish potatoes. FARM WOODLOT IS VALUABLE

Fuel Furnished to Average Farm Famlly is Big Item-Should Not. Be Overlooked.

About half the fuel used on farms in general is furnished directly by the farm in the form of wood. The average farm family uses ahnually between nine and ten cords of wood for fuel, in addition to which about three tons of coal is bought. The wood, furnished almost altogether by the farm, represents a very considerable item. The farm woodlot should not be overlooked by the farmer in planning for the economical utilization of the resources of his farm, says the United States department of agriculture.

Both Young and Old Fowls Do Better When Separated Into Bunches of Limited Number.

It seems apparent to thinking poultry men that hens and growing chicks both do better when separated into small flocks. No matter how much room you may have, you will find that chicks will do best when they are put a limited number to a flock. It may take a few more brood coops or in three to four weeks after planting, brooders but it will be time and money well expended.

IN OTHER WORDS, SKEDADDLE

Short and Impressive Sentence That Marked the Ending of Romance of Alaskan Belle.

"Ki ac a hu la et sum gu ac gega!" That sentence, fairly hissed in the language of the Sitka tribe, marked the end of an Alaska romance that set a village on edge and brought out the latent powers of an Indian maiden. For four years Annie-The-Sea-Gull had been the belle of the Sitka tribe. The blood of a long line of warrior fathers and of fish-cleaning mothers coursed through her veins. Young bucks vied with each other in laying their choicest trophies of the hunt at the door of Annie's wigwam. But she gave them all the "sister" spiel.

Things stood thus when Sum Dum Thomas, a scion of the Hyder tribe came to Sitka. Sum Dum Thomas wore the latest in clothes-low-cut shoes, lavender socks and red neck ties. He smoked cigarettes in a holder and said "eyether" and "neyther."

Did Annie-The-Sea-Gull fall before the blandishments of Sum Dum Thomas? She did. The wedding was followed by a potlatch that lasted three days and nights.

Not satisfied to spend the honeymoon in Sitka, Thomas chartered a gas boat and they sought a beach 20 miles distant, where they could bill and coo and eat clams with no one to molest them.

Things went smoothly until one night an exceptionally high tide rolled in and rolled out again, taking with it the gas boat. The young couple were left on a lonely shore not frequented at this season of the year. All their provisions had gone with the boat, and the weather had turned too cold to dig

Sum Dum Thomas calmly sat down in the tent, lighted a cigarette and announced they would go together to the "Happy Hunting Grounds."

But Annie-The-Sea-Gull had not descended from a long line of warriors for nothing. She grasped Thomas by the shoulder, plucked the cigarette from his mouth and put him to work hewing out timber for a raft.

Four days later a clumsy craft was laboriously piloted into Sitka harbor. propelled by a sail that once was Annie's wedding dress. The entire tribe was at the landing when the strange craft grounded on the beach and the wet, bedraggled honeymooners stepped ashore.

Not deigning to notice any of the crowd, Annie-The-Sea-Gull took Sum Dum Thomas firmly by an arm and led him to one side, where she put her mouth close to his ear. In tones that left no chance for a mistaken meaning she hissed:

"Ki ac a hu la et sum gu ac gega!" (I am going home to mother, and you can go to h-1!)

And She Wished Him to Know.

He was in Indianapolis or business, and as he knows few persons here, he was lonesome. The sight of a familiar face, the sound of an old neighbor's SHE WEARS NOTHING voice, would have been worth more than he could express. Then came a messenger boy with a telegram. It might be good news, and it might be bad. Finally he tore open the envelope and saw it was from a Southern city. This is what it said:

He recognized the initials because they stood for the various names belonging to the only girl. But the meaning of the message; that was a blouses, stockings, skirts, children's mystery. SALTS IF BACKACHY AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop Eating Meat for a While If Your Bladder Is Troubling

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks, the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy speils; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts: take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.-Adv.

Adequate Farm Profits.

"Farming will not inspire individual effort unless profits, all things considered, are equal to those in other activities. However, the facilities for exchange and credit, howtime has come for its vigilant regulation and inasmuch as it becomes apart of interstate commerce, the responsibility is with the federal government. Supplies are gathered in from the farm in times of plenty. They can easily be fed out to the consumer in such manner as to keep the demand in excess of that part of the supply which is released from storage. This ia an unfair practice and should be stopped. Besides, there should be a time limit beyond which perishable foodstuffs should not be stored.

"Our objective should be a decreased tenantry. With the period of occupancy uncertain, the renter strips land of its tile elements, and each year diminishes our national assets. Under the operation of the federal reserve and the farm loan acts, encouragement has come to thousands who find that industry, character and intelligence are a golden security to the people's banker, the government of the United States. Multiply our home owners, and you will make the way of the seditious agitator more difficult.

Railroads and Waterways.

"Any discussion of the question of food supply leads very quickly to the closely related matter of transportation. There is no one thing which brings us so intermittently to critical conditions than the insufficiency of our transportation facilities. Both the railroads and the public are to blame. There has been no material addition to the total mileage in the last ten years, and the increase in terminals has been much less than required. At the beginning of the war the rolling stock was sadly reduced and inadequate. The public had not given in pay for service sufficient revenues on which credit could be allowed by the banks. Moral assistance was withheld because of railroad policies that did not bring approval. Many of these corporations had made themselves a part of political activities, local, state and national. Then there were more or less sporadic instances of stock watering operations, and the exploitation of utility properties for personal gain.

"Abuses were not general, but they were sufficient to bring the entire railroad systems of the country in disrepute. The good suffered with the evil. When the transportation lines were taken over by the government, they were barely able to limp through the task of the day. Unity in operation, the elimination of the long baul, and the merging of every mile of track and terminal and every car and engine into a co-ord nated plan of operation, enabled the government to transport troops as d supplies, at the same time affording, under great stress, a satisfactory outlet for our industries. It should be remembered in this connection that-except for the motor truck which supplemented transportation by rail, and except for the great pipe lines which conveyed oil for commercial purposes, we should not, in all probability have been able to throw our deciding strength into the balance and win the war. Any attempt to discredit the federal operation of railroads during the years of grave emergency is unfair. In the case of those who know the facts it is insincere. Too much cannot be said in praise of those who directed this work, nor of the men who physically operated the lines under the discouraging conditions of poor equipment. But all of this is water over the wheel. The problem of the railroads is still with us. The government and the public should render every co-operation in the utmost good faith, to give thorough test to private ownership. The railroads have had their lesson. Government regulation is accepted now as not only a safeguard to the public, but as a conserving process to the utility. Financial credit is necessary to physical rehabilitation and it should be sufficient for the periods of maximum demand. We should not lose sight, however, of the vast possibilities of supplementary service by water. The Great Lakes and St. Lawrence navigation project, particularly, should claim the interest of the government.

Federal Reserve System.

"It is almost unnecessary to speak of the Federal Reserve system in connection with the winning of the wer, commercial domain where we are so ever, in foreign parts, should be enlarged and under the federal reserve system, banks should be established in important trading centers.

Reduction of Armament.

"I am convinced after considerable study of the subject that the expense of the government can, without loss of efficiency, be reduced to a maximum of four billion dollars, including sinking fund and interest on the national debt. When we enter the League of Nations, we should at the same time diminish our cost for armament. To continue expenditures in either the war or the navy departments on a vast scale, once our memberschip in the League is assured, would seem to be a very definite refutation of the advantages of the world plan which we believe it possesses. An appealing fundamental in the League method, is the reduction of armaments. We cannot afford to do it, until other nations do likewise. If we do not enter the League, hundreds of millions of dollars must be spent for armaments. If we go in, and I believe the people will insist on it, then we can count on economies.

"The Republican leaders who have taken charge of their party and nominated its candidate, are no more possessed of the spirit of the hour than they were in 1912 when they precipitated a revolution within the rank and file of a great organization. If further proof were needed, the action of the present Congress supplies it. Not a constructive law can be cited. Money and time were wasted in seeking to make a military triumph an odious chapter in history—and yet is it not significant that after two years of sleuthful inquiry, there was nothing revealed in that vast enterprise, carrying billions of dollars in expense, upon which they could base even a whisper of dishonesty?

"The Mexican situation, trying to our patience for years, begins to show signs of improvement. Not the least of the things that have contributed to it, is a realization by the people of that country, that we have neither the lust for their domain, nor disposition to disturb their sovereign rights. Peace smiles upon the border and incentive to individual effort seems to be making a national aspiration.

Disabled Soldiers,

"I feel deeply that the rehabilitation of the disabled soldiers of the recent war is one of the most vital issues before the people and I, as a candidate, pledge myself and my party to those young americans to do all in my nower to secure for them without unnecessary delay, the immediate training which is so necessary to fit them to compete in their struggle to overcome that physical handicap incurred while in the service of their government. I believe also that the Federal Board of Vocational Rehabilitation as far as possible should employ disabled soldiers themselves to supervise the rehabilitation of disabled soldiers, because of their known sympathy and understanding. The board itself and all agencies under it should be burdened with the care of securing for the disabled soldier who has finished his training, adequate employment.

"The women of America, in emotion and constructive service, measured up during the war to every requirement, and emergency exacted much of them. They demonstrated not only willingness, but capacity. They helped win the war, and they are entitled to the privilege of voting as a matter of right and because they will be helpful in maintaining wholesome and patriotic policy. It requires but one more state to ratify the national amendment and thus bring a long-delayed justice. I have the same earnest hope as our platform expresses that some one of the remaining states will promptly take favorable action.

Education. "There must be an awakened interest in education. The assumption that things are all right is an error. The plain fact reveals two startling things, one, a growing decimation in the ranks of teachers and the other, the existence of five and one-half millions illiterates. The army of instructors has been more or less demoralized through financial temptation from other activities which pay much better. We owe too much to the next generation to be remiss in this matter.

campaign to compete by dollars with our opposition. So many people have been in the money gathering bush ness for the reactionary cause that the millions already in hand are more or less a matter of general information. All that we ask is that both parties deal in the utmost good faith with the electorate and tell the plain truth as to the amounts received, the contributors, and the items of disbursements.

"The sort of readjustment which will J. A. (Jack) PIPKIN appeal to our self-respect and ultimately to our general prosperity, is the honest readjustment. Any unfair adjustment simply delays the ultimate process and we should remember the County Superintendent of Schoolslesson of history that one extreme usually leads to another. We desire industrial peace. We want our people Probate Judgeto have an abiding confidence in government, but no readjustment made under reactionary auspices will carry Commissioner, 1st Districtwith it the confidence of the country.

"The inconveniences incident to the war have been disquieting; the failure Commissioner, 2nd Districtof the Republican Congress to repeal annoying taxes has added to our troubles. The natural impulse is to forget the past, to develop new interests, to create a refreshened and refreshing atmosphere in life. We want to forget war and be free from the troubling thought of its possibility in the future. We want a change from the old world of yesterday where international intrigue made people mere pawns on the chess-board of war. We want a change from the old industrial world where the man who toiled was assured 'a full dinner pail' as his only lot and portion. But how are we to make the change? Which way shall we go? We stand at the forks of the road and must choose which to follow. One leads to vices backed by unlimited prodigal expenditures will be used to confuse and to lure. But I have an abiding faith the right road chosen.

MANY STILL LOVE TO BE HUMBUGGED

Seem Not to Mind Having "Something Put Over" on Them the Least Bit.

PINK PAJAMAS FOR SHIRT

Mall Order Houses Find It Easy to Make Substitutions Because of the Cost of Making Exchanges.

(Copyright.)

It was a famous American showman who declared that the American people love to be humbugged. That saying is many years old now but sometimes it seems that there is about as much truth in it now as there was when it was first uttered.

People as a rule do not like the idea of having "something put over" on them, but from the way in which the great mail order houses in the big cities flourish it seems that a great Guaranteed car work acetylene many people do not mind it a bit.

The business man who, when he gets a call for an article which he has not in stock, attempts to substitute some other article of a similar nature without telling the buyer of the substitution, Is "putting something over" on his customer. Few retail merchants nowadays attempt to do a thing of that kind. The great majority of merchants do not do this for two reasons. One reason is that they wouldn't do it if they could and the other is that they couldn't do it if they would. The man Portales Cream Station who buys an article over the counter and sees what he is buying before he pays for it, is pretty sure to get what he wants.

Ordered Shirt, Got Pajamas.

But there is another class of mer chants, of which the same thing cannot be said. A man who has been closely connected with some of the big mail order houses is authority for the statement that the heads of the various merchandise departments of many mail order houses have standing orders to substitute with the nearest thing they have if the articles ordered are not in stock and available for delivery. PORTALES GARAGE It is related that in one instance as a result of these instructions, a man who ordered a dress shirt from a mail order Always Busy-There's a Reason house received a pair of pink pajamas

It is easy for the mail order house to get away with this substitution of another article for the one that is ordered for the reason that to exchange an article received from a catalogue house is a costly undertaking. Exchanges Are Costly.

If a mail order buyer is disappoint ed in his purchase, as he is very apt to C. J. WHITCOMB be when he compares the article upon its arrival with the picture and flowery description which appeared in the catalogue, the wisest plan is to take for every time he sends an article back same quality of goodi. to be exchanged, he is piling up the express or freight charges and even if the article is exchanged as requested, the buyer is not apt to fare much better on the second attempt.

The mail order houses are well aware of the fact that the majority of their customers will not go to the trouble and expense of returning an article if it does not come up to their PORTALES LUMBER CO. expectations and as a result they can work the substitution game to their hearts' content.

The home merchant, however, cannot do business in this way and, as has been said, the majority of them would not do it if they could. The home merchant, if he has not the article called for may offer another with the explanation that it is of the same quality as the one for which the customer asked. Good merchants nowadays even hesitate to offer something "just as good" to the customer especially when the article called for is one that has become well-known and popular through the advertising done by the manufacturer, but to attempt to make a substitution without the knowledge or consent of the customer! Well, it houses, Furniture, new mattresses, isn't being done by the local merchants gas engines, everything from a gas en-

Substitution Made Easy. Substitution is made easy for the mail order houses, also, by the fact that they do not sell much of what is known as "advertised" goods-that is, goods that have been thoroughly advertised by the manufacturers and have become nationally known through such advertising. A large part of the merchandise which the mail order houses sell purports to be manufactured by them-although in most cases little of it is made in their own plants. Much of this merchandise bears only the name of the mail order house and It is easy to substitute one article for another without the customer being any the wiser.

The methods of the home merchant naturally are different. With the great development of advertising in recent years much of the merchandise carried by the retail merchant is "advertised" goods. These goods are of familiar brands, the names of which have been made famous by the national advertising of the makers. This advertising is a distinct protection to the buyer for the latter knows when he goes into his local store and asks for an article of this kind that he will get just what he asks for if the merchant has it in stock and that he will be told if the article is not in stock. There is absolutely no opportunity for the merchant to "put one over" on him, even if the merchant had the inclination to do so.
