Mr. McDowell is a graduate of one of the best colleges in the United States and completed an agricultural course. The ground for this planting has been scientifically prepared and the yield should be large, provided, any kind of a season develops.

Woman's Spiritual Obligation to League of Nations

(BY CAROLYN RANDOLPH GREENLEE)

Women of the south west, citizens of America, it is not my intention to attempt to make a speech when you are privileged to listen to such able statesmen as are in charge of this campaign, but I do wish to talk with you. Not on politics; not as a political person; not as a suffragette; but as a woman who considers it an honor and a privilege to be an American citizen. An honor and privilege I highly prize, not for any personal aggrandizement but because it gives me a voice in the greatest cause since our Saviour trod this earth.

I am more than willing to assume the responsibility and obligation which this franchise entails. The obligation of citizenship. And my friends we women of the southwest must not look upon this franchise as a privilege to be used or not as we choose. This right to ballot is a second duty, our solemn obligation to exercise intelligently the rights of a citizen of the United States. Whether we wished it or not is not the question. The responsibility is here. It falls alike upon the willing and the unwilling and I believe the control was in higher hands than ours. I believe that the same divine providence which has, since the birth of this glorious nation guided her footsteps to the very pinnacle of a righteous success, has governed this all important decision. No need to ask why, we know it is because America has always stood for all that was true, humane and God like.

The whole of the United States is watching with anxious eyes the vote of the women of this magnificent south west; Well they know the vote of California's women turned the tide for our revered president, the Hon. Woodrow Wilson, and I shall always thank God I was one of those women who made his election possible.

Have the women of the south ever failed in any crisis? It has been said that we women in this part of the country. (south west) are too indiffeunt or indolent to study even the spiritual side of the league of nations. We were not too indolent or indifferent to give till our hearts bled in the war for democracy, and we are not indifferent or indelent now. It is only that some of us are stunned by the suddenness, as it were, by the right to participate in this great world movement, and I tell you my friends a thoughtless vote is as dangerous to our national life as an unscrupulous one.

The paramount issue in this campaign is too familiar to need comment. Its mission you all know. It is not of the technical message of this league I wish to speak to you but your spiritual responsibility in deciding its fate. It has been said to me by many sincere women that they do not feel it is according to scripture for them to participate in politics, and to these of you I say, to lend your allegiance to the passing of the league of nations covenant is not participating in politics, but is helping to put to flight the forces of ignorance and darkness and in strict accord with the teachings of Jesus Christ. This issue so far transcends any issue since His time on earth as to be incomparable.

I HAVE NO ISSUE

This is not the freedom of a part nation or a whole nation but the whole of the civilized world. God did not so love America, France or Great Briton, that he gave his only begotten, but because he loved the world. And I believe the day is not far distant when the man or woman who voted against this league of nations treaty will be branded by the world as a civil, moral and spiritual slacker, second in shame only to those who crucified the Prince of Peace.

What does your flag mean to you, does it mean arrogance, selfishness and aloofness from the suffering of mankind? No, you say, a million times no! Then let me remind you of the type of nations not now in the league or in process of ratification, are such nations as Russia, whose horrors need no repetition; Old Mexico, crude and primitive; Turkey, whose very name spells blood; Germany, whose crimes we breathe with bated breath; and unless James M. Cox is elected president, the United States of America joins this gruesome list of anti-league members.

What does your flag mean to you? Does it mean any less than it did when you sent your boys to France to fight for world peace?

THAT IS WHAT THEY WENT FOR THAT IS WHAT TAEY FOUGHT FOR THAT IS WHAT THEY DIED FOR

This same principle is the spirit of this league, which is christian in essence and in peace.

Is Old Glory to have lived in vain? That old banner which has always floated where ever reigned justice, righteousness and peace.

God bless our flag, the red white and blue
No smoke of battle her beauty mars,
As she floats aloft her stripes and stars
Bringing this wondrous message anew
Peace on earth and good will toward men.

Red for the blood of our Savior blest
That flowed for us on Calvary's tree,
Shed that the world might from sin be free,
Shed that earth's people might be at rest
With peace on earth and good will to men.

White for the dove of peace so meek,
On whom the fate of our nation depends,
For to all mankind she now extends
The olive branch in her tiny beak,
For peace on earth and good will toward all men.

Blue for the heavens that watch o'er thee
Where the Prince of Peace looks from above,
Looks, with a smile of infinite love
O'er Columbia's land of the free,
Home of peace and good will toward all men.

God bless our flag the red white and blue
And let naught mar her colors so fair,
Look on her proudly and breathe this prayer,
"Make us worthy, oh God, our sovereign, true
Of peace; and good will of all men."

Died

Wanted

We want some one to represent the Missouri State Life Insurance Company of Portales and surrounding territory. Both salary and commission. For information address T. N. Belew, Clovis, N. M. Box 964.

There will be a meeting of the Cox-Hanna club at the courthouse Wednesday afternoon at which all members are urged to be present, and each member is expected to invite five others to come with them. The object of this meeting is to learn just how to mark your ballot that they may be counted in the general election. It will be an open meeting and one and all are urged to be present.

A. L. Conner, of Henriette, Texas, arrived this morning. Mr. Conner is the owner of several tracts of irrigable land close to Portales and he contemplates putting in a pumping plant and irrigating. He expects to move here, at least, by spring.

Next to voting a straight Republican ticket, Republicans ask you to scratch, knowing that the scratched ballot has only about one chance in ten of being counted for anyone.

There was a bunch of Japs here the first of the week but as to whether or not they were prospecting is not known. This is a proposition that should not be neglected.

The Republican state committee says that it is broke, has no money. Democratic newspapers which are carrying their advertising should adopt a cash with order system.

Carl Turner was in Clovis the later part of this week attending the Curry county fair. He had charge of the Roosevelt county exhibits.

Some party or parties last Saturday night stole a rear wheel casing and tube from the car belonging to Neely Blackard.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ball left Thursday of this week for the Black Range mountains where they expect to hunt.

J. B. Priddy, E. F. Dezonias and wat Stewart will leave Sunday morning for a hunt in the Black Hills.

B. F. Pankey and Judge Parker were here Thursday of this week looking over the political situation.

A. E. and Will Curren were here from Clovis the first of the week looking after business matters.

Judge Sam G. Bratton held an adjourned session of the district court here Wednesday of this week.

Prohibition Enforcement Officer A. L. Gregg was here Sunday visiting with his family.

Back Lame and Achy?

Housework is too hard for a woman who is half sick, nervous and always tired. But it keeps piling up, and gives weak kidneys no time to recover. If your back is lame and achy and your kidneys irregular; if you have "blue spells," sick headaches, nervousness, dizziness and rheumatic pains, use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have done wonders for thousands of worn out women.

An Oklahoma Case

Mrs. G. W. Barnett, 626 F. Street, Perry, Okla., says: "My kidneys were disordered and I suffered greatly. I had an awful pain through the small of my back, just as if a dart were piercing me. I suffered for a week or more when I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and tried them. This medicine relieved me, making my kidneys act regularly and I didn't have those pains in my back any more."

Beyond Temptation.

Junior, who is quite a mischief, was left in the kitchen alone while baby was being put to bed. A few minutes later he was discovered, with a toy in his little fist, up on top of the kitchen cabinet. When asked what he was doing, he said: "I'm putting this up where I can't get it."

Proposing in Slam.

In Slam a declaration of marriage is very simple. It is considered a proposal merely to offer a lady a flower, or to take a light from a cigarette if she is holding it in her mouth, so that even the most timid of youths need not fear the ordeal.

When Spiders Retreat.

Spiders hide themselves in threatening weather. This is because they know insects do not fly about in the damp atmosphere preceding rain, and not because they lack umbrellas.

PASTURING HOGS MOST ESSENTIAL

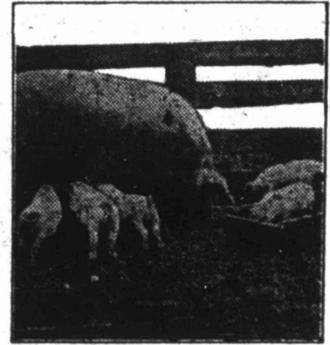

Interesting and Instructive Experiments Made With Sows at Illinois Station.

SIZE OF LITTER INCREASED

Popular Belief Substantiated That Young Mothers Produce Smaller Pigs—Variation in Length of Germination Period.

A careful study of records relating to the birth of 720 litters of pigs at the University of Illinois reveals many sidelights for those interested in hog raising. The 720 litters contained 5,540 pigs of seven distinct breeds. The following conclusions are drawn in bulletin No. 226 of the University of Illinois agricultural experiment station.

On the whole, the belief that young sows produce smaller pigs than do older sows is substantiated. Likewise the data substantiated popular belief that up to a certain age, about three years, there is an increase in the size of litter as sows grow older.

Farmers Should Be Careful That Pig Pens Are Clean and Dry.

The older sows farrowed 12.8 per cent of dead or immature pigs as compared to 8.1 per cent by the younger sows.

It is doubtful whether there are any variations in farrow attributable to the season at which pigs are farrowed.

Increase in Litter.

In succeeding litters from the same sow there was an increase in number of pigs per litter and in the weight of individual pigs until the fourth litter, at which time the sows were three and one-half years old.

The records obtained from 549 litters showed a wide range, 98 to 124 days, in the length of gestation period, with an average of 114.58 days. However, 98.6 per cent of the litters were farrowed between the one hundred and eleventh and one hundred and seventeenth days. The general belief that old sows have a gestation period one to three days longer than younger sows seems to have no very good basis.

Neither Sex Predominates.

There was little, if any, correlation between the length of gestation period and the birth weight of pigs, and the sex of pigs in relation to the length of gestation shows no tendency for either sex to predominate more than normal.

The average size of litters was 8.1 pigs. The average weight of a litter was about 20 pounds. The average weight of pigs in litters with fewer pigs than the average was 2.67 pounds, and in litters with more pigs it was 2.57 pounds. The grand average of all pigs was 2.55 pounds.

PROVIDE GOOD GREEN FEED

Unoccupied Space in Garden Should Be Seeded to Rapid Growing Crop of Some Kind.

The average poultry keeper is always short of succulent green feed during the late summer and early fall, and provision should be made for a supply. Every bit of ground in the garden from which early crops have been harvested should be seeded to chard, rape, lettuce, kale or whatever makes the most rapid growth in your locality.

POULTRY HOUSES IN SUMMER

Best Plan to Take Windows Out and Keep Doors Open So That Fowls Will Be Comfortable.

It is a good plan to take all windows out of the poultry house and to keep all doors open during warm weather, so that the fowls may be as comfortable as possible, for comfortable fowls are the only ones which make a profit.

AUTUMN IS CLEARING TIME FOR FARM LAND

Convert All Waste Places into Revenue Producers.

Goats, Sheep or Cattle Are Favored in Order Named for Keeping Down Sprout Growth—Methods for Removing Stumps.

The fair-weather days of the autumn afford the farmer an opportunity to undertake the clearing of land for which he has no time in the busy summer months, and which can not be done while the land is wet in the spring. On thousands of farms there are cut-over tracts which should be converted into revenue producers as soon as possible. If the owner decides that the land in question is better suited to crop production than to forest growth, a careful study of the most economical method of removing stumps and small growth should be made. Most cut-over land passes through three stages before reaching its greatest agricultural value. The waste and small growth is disposed of first, then it is allowed to remain in stumps for a few seasons, until the smaller stumps are dead and decayed, during which time it is used for pasture or may be cultivated. Finally, all the stumps are removed.

Generally it is best to cut brush as close as possible to the ground and avoid leaving sharp points that might injure stock. However, if the wood is of no value and the ground is not to be cultivated before the stumps are removed, it may be best to cut the trees rather high above the ground. If the stumps are left three feet high there will be less sprouting than if cut low down, and such stumps are more easily pulled.

The most successful method of keeping down sprout growth is by heavy pasturing by goats, sheep, or cattle, in the order named. Any sprouts not killed by pasturing should be cut or knocked off with the head of an ax.

There are a great variety of methods used in removing stumps, by means of burning, pullers and dynamite. Farmers' Bulletin 974, "Clearing Land," prepared by the United States department of agriculture, contains information designed especially for persons interested in this subject. A copy can be had on request.

POTATO DISEASE EXPLAINED

So-Called Blight Due to Tip-Burn or Small Insect Known as the Leaf-Hopper.

Much of the so-called potato blight which is to be found is due to what is really tip-burn, or it may be due to a small insect known as the leaf-hopper. The tip-burn is caused by the dry weather and extreme heat as the sun and wind draw the water from the plant faster than the roots can supply it from the ground. The leaf-hopper is a small, greenish-like insect, which will be found jumping from one plant to another as the plants are moved.

BORER EATS CLOVER ROOTS

Here are three life stages of one of the worst clover pests, the root borer. The root borer will attack peas as well as clover. The larvae and the beetles of the borer literally riddle the roots of the clover plant. The borer may be the trouble with that sickly, "spotty" clover patch of yours. Do a little investigating.

SILAGE FROM MATURED CORN

Feeding Value Not Decreased Where Ears Have Not Fully Developed When Preserved.

Silage made from corn that has an opportunity to fully mature but which has been planted in such a way that the ears have not fully developed, has practically the same composition and the same feeding value as silage made from corn equally well matured but which will yield a fair crop of ear corn to the acre. This is supposed to be due to the fact that in the production of the ears there is merely a transfer of the nutrients from the stalk and leaves to the ear. There is a slight decrease in the feeding value of corn when placed in a silo, but this should not exceed 10%, and the loss is less from this method of preserving than in any other.

Spray for Cabbage Worms.

Arsenate of lead sprayed on cabbage plants at any stage of growth relieves them of cabbage worms. Paris green and lime are also good.

ROAD BUILDERS STUDY SOILS

Highway Engineers Expected to Obtain Important Information by Investigation.

An investigation which promises to place at the disposal of highway engineers important information regarding the relation of soils to highway durability has been undertaken by the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture. This work includes taking samples of soil at spots in the subgrade of a highway where the road has begun to fail, studying surrounding geological conditions to determine how moisture arrived in the subgrade, thus destroying its value; making laboratory tests to determine the physical characteristics of soils, and obtaining a scientific measure of the bearing value of soils. In this investigation it is proposed to obtain as much co-operation as possible from the various state highway departments. The bureau of soils is co-operating with the bureau of public roads in this work.

Preliminary investigation has been started in Maryland on the Washington-Baltimore road, and will be extended beyond Baltimore and on other roads in Maryland. Progress has been made in the matter of laboratory tests, a number of samples of subgrade material and other samples already having been examined.

The federal highway engineers point out that soils differ widely in their ability to support loads, particularly when they are wet. Just why this is true and just what are the characteristics which make them different is little understood at present. It is in this field of investigation, of increasing importance because of the growing volume of heavy traffic, that the federal investigators expect to secure important information.

POOR ROADS ARE HINDRANCE

Farmer Made Unable to Take Advantage of High Prices—Cost of Market News Wasted.

Today the farmer has wire communication facilities unsurpassed in the history of the United States. He knows, day by day, the fluctuating prices which prevail for his produce at the marketing points and knowing these things he can arrange to get his goods to market on the day when the price is the highest if the road is good. If the road is bad or impassable then much of the effort which has been expended in getting the news of market conditions to him is lost.

MONEY TO IMPROVE HIGHWAYS

Counties and States Appropriate $1,000,000,000 for Improvement of Local Roads.

Our counties and states have recognized the economic importance of road construction by appropriating more than $1,000,000,000 to local improvements. It is the nation's part to build and maintain highways, which are of national importance and which will serve to effect economy, facilitate interstate commerce and strengthen the common defense.

WEEDS ARE VEXING PROBLEM

One of Principal Reasons Is That Farmers Have Permitted Plants to Spread Over Land.

One of the principal reasons why weeds are such a serious problem on many farms these days is that farmers and land owners failed to keep a close watch of fields for new weeds and to have them identified before they had spread over such large areas as to make their eradication costly.

Geysers Are at Best This Year

Activity of Old Faithful and the Rest New Wonder of Yellowstone National Park.

TERRACES GORGEOUS IN COLOR

Great Depth of Snow Last Winter Believed Responsible for Unusual Brilliance of Natural Phenomena—Deer Often Seen.

Yellowstone National Park, Wyo.—Interesting changes have developed this year in the natural wonders of Yellowstone National park. Led by Old Faithful geyser, which has shortened the intervals of his performance by almost a quarter of an hour, and is now playing every 64 minutes, the geysers and hot springs are on their best behavior, promising a season of unsurpassed beauty, as if mindful that the number of visitors is expected to exceed 100,000 for the first time in the history of the park. Unusual depth of snow during the winter, followed by a rainy spring, is believed to be responsible for the brilliance of the natural phenomena. Abundant moisture has been stored in the underground passages feeding the geysers and springs to enable them to excel their previous exhibitions.

The Grand has become the park's most powerful geyser. It is playing once or twice each day, and for ten to thirty minutes affords a magnificent spectacle of a fountain of steaming water 200 feet in height, which is succeeded by five to twelve distinct eruptions. Giant and Giantess have been giving great exhibitions.

Constant has discontinued operations, its activity apparently transferred to the Whirligig, directly across the foot-path.

Terraces Gorgeous in Color.

Mud Boiler has changed its tactics and is discharging water that is almost clear. Scores of small geysers are constantly in action and of course Old Faithful, which attains a height of 125 to 170 feet, is observed hourly by persons from all parts of the world, as in previous years.

At Mammoth Hot Springs, the headquarters of the park administration, the terraces are a marvel of gorgeous coloring, where the hot water ripples over the unique formations. With the single exception of Minerva Terrace, which is less splendid than in past years, all of the terraces are performing with great volume. Cleopatra apparently is trying to make up for Minerva's deficiency by starting a new channel where the coloring changes daily.

Jupiter, for many years the finest of all the terraces, has lost its leadership, being surpassed by the prosaically named Pulpit Terrace, which is sending more water than ever from its sapphire pool over a series of beautifully curved basins, fretted and colored like some old Gothic carving, until more than 200 feet below a conduit is reached, which takes the warm waters from all the springs into the open-air bathing pool.

Deer Appear Occasionally.

Hymen Terrace is attracting great attention because of the abundance and exquisite shape of the algae, or microscopical plants, which give the terraces their color. Nowhere else in the park are to be found such graceful formations, floating in the water like ostrich plumes of delicate green.

Angel Terrace has developed a rich pink coloring, much like a birthday cake, a resemblance enhanced by the trees, which the growing terrace reached out and killed, and which now stick out through the crust like white candles. Occasionally a deer can be seen and photographed, nibbling the salty encrustations from the trees.

Orange Spring Terrace, which has grown to a great mound 15 feet high, has a tiny assistant, an "off-spring," to quote the pun of a visitor, which bubbles merrily at the original level of the parent spring, affording a comprehensive view of how the terraces have been built.

Mineral springs in the park, including the apollinaris and iron springs, which are eagerly sought by visitors desiring to drink the waters, are producing great quantities.

GIRLS PUT TO TEST

Juvenile Laboratory Latest Court Innovation in Denver.

Decisions Based on Manner in Which Juveniles Pass Mental and Physical Tests.

Denver, Colo.—A juvenile laboratory is a new addition to the machinery of the courts of Denver, through which wayward boys and girls pass before Judge Ben R. Lindsey. Upon the manner in which the boy or girl passes the mental and physical tests depends the ultimate disposal of his or her case.

Judge Lindsey asserts that a wayward girl has three ages. He explains it in this manner: A girl may be thirteen years old, have the physical development of a girl of eighteen and the mental development of a child of ten years.

The judge says that whenever a girl appears in his court, the first procedure is to obtain her three ages, through methods developed by medical men and psychologists. He declared he intends to make the juvenile laboratory available to the mothers of Denver so they can obtain the three ages of their children and use this in-

STORIES from Here and There

"One of the Ridgelys of Springfield"

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—It will be many a day before the old-timers of this city stop talking over "the Ridgely case."

A strange story of hidden identity was told in the court of Judge Denis E. Sullivan in Chicago when the judge entered a decree which made it possible for Robert Edwards to become Robert Edwards Ridgely and legally assume his place as "one of the Ridgelys of Springfield"—a leading family in the Illinois capital.

Attorney David B. Woodworth, representing the young man, told the story.

"Young Ridgely is a son of Edward R. Ridgely, a national bank examiner, who died a few years ago," the attorney said: "He is also a nephew of the late William Barrett Ridgely, comptroller of the currency in 1908, and a nephew of Mrs. William A. Vincent, widow of the late judge."

Attached to the petition for a change of the name was a certified copy of a marriage license issued in Little Rock, Ark., in October, 1898, to Edward Ridgely and Miss Fannie Clark. According to the young man's petition, he is a son of that union.

"After the civil marriage in Arkansas," said Attorney Woodworth, "there was a fashionable church wedding in Springfield, after the birth of the boy Robert."

"With his birth his parents strangely hid his existence from friends of the family in Springfield. The boy himself, through the years of his childhood and education, was told by his father that he was the son of a very dear friend of the father's, named Edwards."

"It was not until Robert's presence was necessary in a contest over the will of his grandfather, Charles Ridgely, that the son learned his real identity. Then his father and Judge Vincent produced him in court as one of the heirs of the elder Ridgely's $5,000,000 estate."

Sorrows of a "Poor Little Rich Boy"

AURORA, Ill.—Daniel Volintine, Aurora's "poor little rich boy," who was left $1,000,000 when he was 14 and found himself an unwilling husband at 18, is at last free to marry the sweetheart of his school days, Miss Mildred Wessner.

Judge Adam A. C. Cliffe in the Kane county circuit court at Geneva granted his plea for an annulment of his marriage to Nora Udstad Volintine. The latter is said to have withdrawn her opposition following a settlement of approximately $10,000.

Volintine, who is now 28 years old, told Judge Cliffe he was attending the Northwestern Military academy at Lake Geneva, Wis., when, on Oct. 27, 1915, J. Bruce Amell, now assistant state's attorney of Kane county, and Dr. Eugene Pritchard, the Volintine family physician, appeared at the school and told him he would have to marry Miss Udstad.

He said he was brought to Chicago in an automobile, and that Miss Udstad joined the party here. They then drove to Crown Point, Ind., where, he says, Amell told him he would have to swear he was 21 years old in obtaining a license. The marriage was performed and young Volintine went back to school.

Four months later a baby girl was born to Mrs. Nora Volintine. Young Volintine denied parentage and produced Gustave Anderson of Grand Rapids, Mich., who admitted he was the child's father. Mrs. Volintine then obtained alimony of $80 a month.

When America entered the war young Volintine went into the army and was studying aviation when the armistice was signed. During his absence, Mrs. Ammon Wessner and her daughter, Mildred, occupied his home. In the meantime the court had reduced Mrs. Volintine's alimony from $80 to $60 a month. She filed suit for $50,000 damages against Miss Wessner and the latter was ordered to come into court and explain who purchased automobiles, diamonds and fine clothes for her.

"Mildred and I have been sweethearts for years," Volintine said. "Now I hope we will be married before long."

Who Got the Drop on These Diamonds?

NEW YORK.—A bullet which shattered several diamonds in a $100,000 diamond necklace is causing a controversy between Mrs. Gurnee Munn, daughter of Rodman Wanamaker, and the American Express company.

Mr. Munn purchased the necklace and sent it to his wife in Radnor, Pa., but before she received it a bullet had been fired into the package causing several thousand dollars' damage. Mr. Munn claimed damages from the express company, but the latter, setting forth that a receipt from the Munn housekeeper shows the package was delivered in good order, has refused to accept responsibility.

Both sides have called in experts to decide whether the shot might have been fired into the package before or after the outer wrappings had been removed. The company's theory is that somebody, after removing the wrapping, fired at the box, fearing it might be a bomb.

Anyway, the Wanamakers are bomb-shy. A bomb was delivered at the Wanamaker home at Tuxedo in an innocent-looking wrapping. Albert Gustave Kurth, a former butler in the home, who had been discharged, was arrested and sent to prison.

After the Fashion Set by Fannie Hurst

CHICAGO.—The domestic schedule of a la Fannie Hurst calls for husband and wife to breakfast together, twice a week. Every Sunday has been the rule with Mrs. Irene Hatfield ever since the monotony of home drove her into the whirl of commerce.

Now her 2-year-old daughter has been allotted by her physician a very short time to live, and Irene's husband, U. C. Hatfield, who manages a printing establishment at 6157 Wentworth avenue, cannot find her. About a month ago his wife announced she wanted to work. He had taught her how to operate a typewriter.

"She started out one Thursday and found herself a job and a furnished room," said Hatfield. "She would not tell me where they were. If I ever wanted to reach her, she said, I need only address a letter 'General Delivery, Chicago.'"

"There was no trouble between us. Irene used to come home every Sunday. The last Sunday she was melancholy—cried all day long. She'd had spells of that kind ever since our first baby died."

When the baby became sick, Hatfield hurried it to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Emma Anderson of 4061 North Mobile avenue. Then he began to search for his wife.

A general delivery letter was dispatched. No reply. Hatfield procured classified newspaper sections of the date when his wife left home. He checked up over 200 addresses appearing in the "furnished rooms" column, trudging from place to place in a tireless, fruitless pilgrimage. Not even a trace of his "lost" Irene.

DODSON KILLING USE OF CALOMEL

Says Drug Is Mercury and Acts Like Dynamite on Your Liver.

Dodson is making a hard fight against calomel in the South. Every druggist has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason, Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you will only ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.—Adv.

Nervous Spells—Near Heart Failure Eatonic Stopped It

Mr. C. B. Loats, writing from his home at Lay, Md., says, "I had been taking medicine from four specialists, but believe me, friends, one box of eatonic has done me more good than all the remedies I have ever tried. I was in awfully bad shape. About half an hour before meals, I got nervous, trembling and heart pressure so bad I could hardly walk or talk. One box of eatonic stopped it."

Eatonic quickly produces these truly marvelous results, because it takes up the poisons and gases and carries them right out of the body. Of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well.

Everyone that wants better health is told to have just a little faith—enough to try one box of eatonic from your own druggist. The cost is a trifle, which he will hand back to you if you are not pleased. Why should you suffer another day, when quick, sure relief, is waiting for you? Adv.

A Point.

"I am told, Mrs. Flanigan, your husband is very strong in his convictions."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Still, a man never seems anxious to marry a woman who isn't afraid of a mouse.

DAIRY BARN IS MOST IMPORTANT

Modern Buildings and Equipment Necessary on Farm.

HAS BEST OF NEW FEATURES

Design Shown Here is Excellent Type of Dairy Barn Embodying Most Important Improvements of Barn-Building Craft.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1227 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The successful farm is one that has the most modern types of buildings and the latest labor-saving equipment. In view of the alarming tendency of the youth to leave the farm as soon as he feels his "oats," progressive farmers are trying to make the farm as attractive and as efficient as possible. In short they are endeavoring to give the hired man time for recreation and amusement. The days of drudgery are passing. And modern buildings with equipment that makes the work a pleasure are the principal factor.

In the farm building scheme there is no building more important than the dairy barn. It is the source of revenue day in and day out. Crops may be poor, and unless the farmer has his dairy herd to fall back on, farmer to lay out definite rations in individual cases.

At the end of the barn are the special pens for the bull, calves, and a feed room. Two silos have been built outside. In keeping with the idea of making this barn as efficient as possible and also a pleasant workshop for the men, a carrier track has been installed over all the aisles. In the center aisle feed carriers can be run directly from the feed room or silos and stopped in front of each stall. Similarly litter carriers installed on a track which runs in back of each row of stalls enable the hired man to carry away the litter without breaking his back over a wheelbarrow.

Another important feature of modern barn equipment is the drinking cup placed in front of each stall. Here the cow can drink at will. As we all know plenty of good clean water is needed to produce milk. The more a cow drinks the better the chances are for increased production. Moreover it eliminates the driving of the herd twice a day to the water trough. In the cold winter days this trough is often covered with a thick layer of ice and the water is too cold for the cow to drink.

Good buildings and modern equipment work two ways. They make for contented cows, which means increased milk production. And just as important in these days of acute shortage in farm help, they are largely responsible for satisfied help, because they eliminate many of the old tasks that were absolutely unnecessary, make all of the work easier, and enable the men to finish their tasks in time to spend an hour or two fishing or swimming. In the warm sultry days this hour of rest and recreation is worth a whole lot.

Only when farmers throughout the country adopt this line of progress and build comfortable, clean, and efficient buildings will they find relief from the present conditions which threaten he will be out of luck. But with a good healthy herd of milk producers, he is sure of an income regardless of weather or crop conditions. For that reason he should give the dairy barn in which he houses his cows a great deal of attention and study. Many elements have to be considered.

An excellent type of dairy barn embodying most of the important features of barn building craft is shown in the accompanying illustration. It has been designed to hold a large herd and house them under ideal conditions. Rising from a substantial foundation of concrete, its first story is concrete block up to the wall plate supporting the hay mow. Above this it is frame construction supported by stout trusses and covered by a heavy waterproof gambrel-shaped shingle to tie up the country's food supply. In building dairy barns of the type shown here and installing modern equipment and using machinery the farmer is not only benefiting his hired help but he is insuring prosperity for himself in greater production.

The First Photograph.

Eighty-one years have elapsed since the first photographic portrait of a living person was taken.

This historic daguerreotype picture—still in existence in America—was of a Miss Dorothy Draper, daughter of Professor Draper of New York. The process was then so slow that the sitter's face was covered with white powder, the exposure being about 30 minutes, and in bright sunshine! One of the greatest photographic roof. This barn has a large stall floor and abundant storage space above.

One of the important features of a dairy barn of this size is ventilation. This is amply provided for in this barn by means of foul air flues and windows which let in germ-killing sunshine, the greatest disinfectant known to science. The foul air, which is warmer than the fresh, rises through these flues and is carried off while fresh air takes its place. The ventilators on the roof provide a source of fresh air.

The barn which is 86 by 96 feet has been arranged so as to have two rows of cow stalls facing in toward a central feed alley. The floor is concrete and so laid as to provide gutters and manger troughs. These stalls are of the latest design and equipped with stanchions that are easy for the cow and yet restrict her to certain limits. Robinson Crusoe's Island.

Tobago's failure to obtain greater recognition of its importance as the "only authentic Robinson Crusoe Island" is doubtless due to the fact that it is a retiring little island, concerned chiefly with its plantations and trade. Leaving Crusoe out altogether, Tobago has had an eventful history from the time it was discovered by Christopher Columbus, on his third voyage, until England took it from France in 1803 and started to turn it into a profitable colony. Its present estate after a century of English rule is less that of a desert island than of a partly wooded, partly cultivated and built up island of the tropics.

Teacher Flattered Herself That Youngster Was Crying Because She Was Leaving Them.

The graduating class of a Terre Haute school gave the teacher a parting gift. During the speech she made acknowledging the gift she noticed that one boy was weeping. Then she told how touched she was by the emotion displayed by this boy. "What greater tribute could a teacher have than to have a child cry because he was leaving her?" she later asked the class.

One of the other boys remained after the others had left. "Miss N—," he confided, "you thought Jim was crying because he was going to leave you, but he wasn't. It was because that was going to be the last time he would see that present. I had the hardest time to get his 50 cents toward it out of him I ever had getting anything. And when you took that package he was just bidding that 50 cents a tearful farewell."

Janitor's Sense of Responsibility Somewhat Embarrassing in This Particular Case.

The principal of a city school building is still young and has a very attentive admirer. Occasionally he comes to the school building after her and takes her home in his roadster. The other afternoon she was finishing reports and the young man came into her room until she was ready to go.

The janitor finished his work and she told him that he could leave whenever he wished to do so, and they would close the building. But still he lingered until they left. The next morning he explained his stay by remarking that he was late getting home the evening before. "But you could have gone home," reminded the principal. "I told you we would close up."

"Yes, I know," he returned, "but you see, Miss T—, it's this way. The board holds me responsible for this building and I'm not willing to leave it in charge of a perfectly strange man."

A DEMOCRATIC NEWSPAPER

Mr. Bursum's Mr. Mechem's Mr. Reed Holloman tried to leave the impression at Belen, that fusion was a violation of the corrupt practices act.

Speaking of bosses, Mr. Borah is not so far removed from that class. Whenever he pulls the string Harding commences to jig while Johnson tunes the banjo.

Mr. Bursum's Mr. Mechem says that he is in favor of tax revision and Mr. Bursum, himself, says that he is too, but that the taxes paid by the millionaire mine owners should be reduced.

Bursum says that he isn't a boss. That's right, Bursum, old boy. An ordinary boss would occupy about the same relative position to you as a peon would to the president of the Mexican republic.

There are some two thousand niggers quartered at Columbus that have been there some two years in the service and the matter of their voting in the coming election seems to be causing some stir among both parties.

Thirty-seven nations, including England, France, Italy, Spain, Belgium, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway and Greece, have joined the league of nations, while those remaining outside are Germany, Russia, Mexico, the unspeakable Turk and the Republican party.

'The election on November 2 is calculated to stimulate greatly the back to the farm movement.'

Is Mr. Harding figuring on again filling his pork barrel, and this time from the farm.

According to the latest statistics Mr. Harding has occupied, approximately 123,456,789, different attitudes on the peace treaty and the league of nations. His latest pronouncement is that he is unalterably opposed to any league or combinations of nations that might be calculated to preserve the peace of the world, and his latest position is, probably, the only true exposition of his attitude.

According to press dispatches, thirty thousand women of California have notified, through their organization heads, Senator Harding that his Des Moines speech against any league of nations has alienated their support and that, in accordance therewith their votes will be cast for Cox and Roosevelt. California women have taken politics seriously and intend that their votes shall be cast for the maintenance of America's honor and for the peace of the world.

Crooked Trails and Straight

ACTION! ACTION! ACTION!

Here's a story with action, action, action. "Out where the West begins" is still the land of romance, and this is the heart of the old-fashioned West in the days of the cowboy, the cattle rustler, the horse-thief, the outlaw, the express robber, the sheriff's posse, the bloody and thrilling battles with the six-gun. There are some human and lovable people in whose fortunes we are interested, and some "bad men" who very properly die with their boots on. Quite a plot there is, too. But action, action, action—the story moves with a rush.

PART I

Curly.

CHAPTER I

Following a Crooked Trail.

Across Dry valley a dust cloud had been moving for hours. It rolled into Saguache at the brisk heels of a bunch of horses just about the time the town was settling itself to supper. From out of the heart of it cantered a rider, who swung his pony as on a half dollar, and deflected the remuda toward Chunn's corral.

The rider was in the broad-rimmed felt hat, the gray shirt, the plain leather chaps of a vaquero. Under other conditions he might have been a college freshman for age, but the competent confidence of manhood sat easily on his broad shoulders. Curly Flandrau had more than once looked into the chill eyes of death.

The leaders of the herd dribbled into the corral through the open gate, and the others crowded on their heels. Three more riders followed Curly into the enclosure. One of them, a red-haired young fellow of about the same age as Curly, swung stiffly from the saddle.

"Me for a square meal first off," he gave out promptly.

"Not till we've finished this business, Mac. We'll put a deal right through if Warren's here," decided a third member of the party. He was a tough-looking customer of nearly fifty, "Bad Bill" Cranston he was called, and the man looked as if he had earned his sobriquet.

"And what if he ain't here?" snarled Lute Blackwell. "Are you aiming to sit down and wait for him?"

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," Bad Bill answered. "Curly, want to ride up to the hotel and ask if Mr. Dave Warren is there? Bring him right down if he is."

The young man cantered up the dusty street toward the hotel.

"Thought you'd fixed it with this Warren to be right on the spot so's we could unload on him prompt," Blackwell grumbled at Cranston without looking toward the latter.

"I didn't promise he'd be hanging round your neck soon as you hit town," Cranston retorted coolly.

The owner of the corral sauntered from the stable and glanced over the bunch of horses milling around.

"Drive all the way from Bar Double M?" asked the keeper, his eyes on the brand stamped on the flank of a pony circling past.

"Yep."

Bad Bill turned away and began to unsaddle.

"Looks like you been hitting the road at a right lively gait."

Mac cut in. "Shoulder of my bronc's chafed from the saddle. Got anything that'll heal it?"

"You bet I have." The man hurried into the stable and the red-headed cowpuncher winked across the back of his horse at Bill.

The keeper of the stable and the young man were still busy doctoring the sore when Curly arrived with Warren. The buyer was a round-bodied man with black gimlet eyes that saw much he never told. The bargain he drove was a hard one, but it did not take long to come to terms at about one-third the value of the string he was purchasing. Very likely he had his suspicions, but he did not voice them. No doubt they cut a figure in the price. He let it be understood that he was a supply agent for the rebels in Mexico. Before the bills were warm in the pockets of the sellers, his vaqueros were mounted and were moving the remuda toward the border.

Curly and Mac helped them get started. As they rode back to the corral a young man came out from the stable. Flandrau forgot that there were reasons why he wanted just now to be a stranger in the land with his identity not advertised. He let out a shout.

"Oh, you, Slats Davis!"

"Hello, Curly! How are things a-comin'?"

"Fine. When did you blow in to Saguache? Ain't you off your run some?"

They had ridden the range together and had frolicked around on a dozen boyish larks. To put it mildly the meeting was likely to prove embarrassing.

"Come down, to see about getting some cows for the old man from the Fiddleback outfit," Davis explained.

"You riding for the Bar Double M?"

There was a momentary silence. Curly's vigilant eyes met those of his old side partner. What did Slats know? Were his suspicions already active?

"No, I'm riding for the Map of Texas," Flandrau answered evenly.

"Come on, Curly. Let's go feed our faces," Mac called from the stable.

Flandrau nodded. "You still with the Hashknife?" he asked Davis.

"Still with 'em. I've been raised to assistant foreman."

"Bully for you. That's great. All right, Mac, I'm coming. That's sure great, old hoss. Well, see you later, Slats."

Flandrau followed Mac, dissatisfied with himself for leaving his friend so cavalierly. He guessed Slats would be hurt, but he had to think of his partners in this enterprise.

After supper they took a room at the hotel and divided the money Warren had paid for the horses. None of them had slept for the last fifty hours and Mac proposed to tumble into bed at once.

Bad Bill shook his head. "I wouldn't, Mac. Let's hit the trail and do our sleeping in the hills. There's too many telephone lines into this town to suit me."

"Sho! Our play isn't to hike out like we were scared stiff of something. What we want to do is to act as if we could look every darned citizen in the face. Mac's sure right," Curly agreed.

"You kids make me tired. I'm going to dust my pronto," Blackwell snarled.

"Sure. Whenever you like. You got to split up anyhow," Mac said.

Bad Bill looked at Blackwell and nodded. "That's right. We don't all want to pull a blue streak. That would be a dead give away. Let the kids stay if they want to."

"So that they can round on us if they're nabbed," Blackwell sneered.

Cranston called him down roughly. "That'll be enough along that line, Lute. I don't stand for any more cracks like it."

Blackwell, not three months out from the penitentiary, faced the other with an ugly look in his eyes. He was always ready to quarrel, but he did not like to fight unless he had a sure thing.

"Didn't mean any harm," the convict growled. "But I don't like this sticking around town."

"Then I wouldn't stay if I were you," Curly suggested promptly. "Mac and I have got a different notion. So we'll tie to Saguache for a day or two."

As soon as the older men had gone the others tumbled into bed and fell asleep at once. Daylight was sifting in through the open window before their eyes opened. Somebody was pounding on the bedroom door.

Mac was already out of bed when his partner's feet hit the floor.

Before he had got the words out the door was open. Slats came in and shut it behind him. He looked at Flandrau.

"They're after you," he said.

"Who?" fired Curly back at him.

"The Bar Double M boys. They just reached town."

"Put up that gun, Mac, and move into your clothes immediately," ordered Curly. Then to Davis: "Go on. Unload the rest. What do they know?"

"They inquired for you and your friend here down at the Legal Tender."

"Have we got a chance to make our getaway?" Mac asked.

Davis nodded. "Slide out through the kitchen, cut into the alley, and across 'loots to the corral. We'll lock the door and I'll hold them here long as I can."

"Good boy, Slats. If there's a necktie party you'll get the first bid," Curly grinned.

Slats looked at him, cold and steady. Plainly that words he was telling his former friend that he would not joke with a horse thief. For the sake of old times he would save him if he could, but he would call any bluffs about the whole thing being a lark.

Curly's eyes fell away. It came to him for the first time that he was no longer an honest man. Up till this escapade he had been only wild, but now he had crossed the line that separates decent folks from outlaws.

Not another word was said while they hurried into their clothes. But as Curly passed out of the door he called back huskily. "Won't forget what you done for us, Slats."

Again their eyes met. Davis did not speak, but the chill look on his face told Flandrau that he had lost a friend.

The two young men ran down the back stairs, passed through the kitchen where a Chinese cook was getting breakfast, and out into the bright sunlight.

"Won't do to be in any hurry. The play is we're gentlemen of leisure, just out for an amble to get the morning air," Curly cautioned.

While they fed, watered and saddled they swapped gossip with the wrangler. It would not do to leave the boy with a story of two riders in such a hurry to hit the trail that they could not wait to feed their bronchos. So they stuck it out while the animals ate. At that, they shaved it fine, for as they rode away two men were coming down the street.

"Kite Bonfis," Curly called to his partner.

No explanation was needed. Bonfis was the foreman of the Bar Double M. He let out a shout as he caught sight of them and began to run forward. Simultaneously his gun seemed to jump from his holster.

Mac's quirt sang and his pony leaped to a canter in two strides. A bullet zipped between them. Another struck the dust at their heels. Faintly there came to the fugitives the sound of the foreman's impotent curses. They had escaped for the time.

Presently they passed the last barb wire fence and open country lay before them. It did not greatly matter which direction they followed, so long as they headed into the desert.

Neither of them had ever been in serious trouble before and both regretted the folly that had turned their drunken spree into a crime. They were stretched in front of the fire that evening trying to make a smoke serve instead of supper. Mac broke a gloomy silence to grunt out jerkily a situation he could no longer keep to himself.

"Here's where I get my walking papers, I reckon. No rustlers need apply."

Curly shot a sly glance at him. "Meaning—the girl?"

The red-headed puncher took from his coat pocket a photograph and showed it to his friend. The sweet clean face of a wholesome girl smiled at Curly.

"She's certainly a right nice young lady. I'll bet she stands by you all right. Where's she live at?"

"Waits in a restaurant at Tombstone. We was going to be married soon as we had saved five hundred dollars," Mac swallowed hard. "And I had to figure out this short cut to the money whilst I was drunk. As if she'd look at money made that way."

Curly tried to cheer him up, but did not make much of a job at it. The indisputable facts were that Mac was an outlaw and a horse thief.

The red-headed boy rolled another cigarette despondently. "Sho! I've cooked my goose. She'll not look at me—even if they don't send me to the pen. And she's the best ever. Her name's Myra Anderson."

They slept under a live oak with the soundness of healthy youth. For the time they forgot their troubles. Neither of them knew that as the hours slipped away red tragedy was galloping closer to them.

The sun was shining in his face when Curly awakened. He sat up and rubbed his eyes. Mac was nowhere in sight. Probably he had gone to get the horses.

A sound broke the stillness of the desert. Flandrau leaped to his feet, and at the same instant Mac came running over the brow of the hill. A smoking revolver was in his hand.

From behind the hill a gun cracked—then a second—and a third. Mac stumbled over his feet and pitched forward full length on the ground. His friend ran toward him, forgetting the revolver that lay in its holster under the live oak. Every moment he expected to see Mac jump up, but the figure stretched beside the cholla never moved. Flandrau felt the muscles round his heart tighten. He had seen sudden death before, but never had it come so near home.

A bullet sent up a spurt of dust in front of him, another just on the left. Riders were making a half circle around the knoll and closing in on him. In his right mind Curly would have been properly frightened. But now he thought only of Mac lying there so still in the sand. Right into the fire zone he ran, knelt beside his partner and lifted the red-tatched head. A little hole showed back of the left ear and another at the right temple. A bullet had plowed through the boy's skull.

Softly Flandrau put the head back in the sand and rose to his feet. The revolver of the dead puncher was in his hand. The riders were closing in on him. The nearest called to him to surrender. Almost at the same time a red-hot pain shot through the left arm of the trapped rustler. Someone had nipped him from the rear.

Curly saw red. Surrender nothing! He would go down fighting. As fast as he could blaze he emptied Mac's gun. When the smoke cleared the man who had ordered him to give up was slipping from his horse. Curly was surprised, but he knew he must have hit him by chance.

"We got him. His gun's empty," some one shouted.

Cautiously they closed in, keeping him covered all the time. Of a sudden the plain tilted up to meet the sky. Flandrau felt himself swaying on his feet. Everything went black. The boy had fainted.

When he came to himself strange faces were all around him and there were no bodies to go with them. They seemed to float about in an odd, casual sort of way. Then things cleared.

"He's coming to all right," one said. "How is Cullison?"

This was said to another who had just come up.

"Hard hit. Looks about all in. Got him in the side."

The rage died out of Curly. In a flash he saw all that had come of this drunken spree: the rustling of the Bar Double M stock, the discovery, the death of his friend and maybe of Cullison, the certain punishment that would follow. He was a horse thief caught almost in the act. Perhaps he was a murderer, too. And the whole thing had been entirely unpremeditated.

"You've played h—," one of the men told the boy.

He was a sawed-off little fellow known as Dutch. Flandrau had seen him in the Map of Texas country a year or two before. The rest were strangers to the boy. All of them looked at him out of hard, hostile eyes. He was scarcely a human being to them; rather a wolf to be stamped out of existence as soon as it was convenient.

At a shift in the group Flandrau's eyes fell on his friend lying in the sand with face turned whitely to the sky he never would see again. A lump came into the boy's throat and he had to work it down before he spoke.

"He's only a kid!"

"BLAZED" TRAILS IN WOODS

Guides for Travelers and Marking Bounds of Lot or Town Lasted for Many Years.

In earlier days, when large portions of the country were covered with forests and there were few roads, travel was often possible only by way of paths "blazed" through the woods. To blaze, as every woodsman knows, is to strike off a chip from the sides of trees, so that the line of marks shall indicate the direction of the trail.

In blazing for a path small trees were marked, but in blazing for the bounds of a lot or town or for a farm line larger trees were usually selected, the blaze being made about breast high. When, however, as was often the case, the blazing was done in winter on deep snow by men traveling on snowshoes, the mark was necessarily higher up. When such a line is traveled in the summer, especially after some years, during which the trees have grown, the marks are sometimes found high up on the trunks and are likely to escape the eye of the inexperienced. As many of them will also be partially overgrown the task of the surveyor who goes over one of these old lines is not always easy.

If the boundary line passes to the left of a tree selected for blazing the cut is made upon the right side. If the line goes to the right the tree is blazed upon the left side.

In running a boundary at a corner, where two lines come together, either a "monument" is erected—a stake supported by four boulders—or a tree is blazed on all four sides to indicate as nearly as possible the turning point of the line.

The wound of a blazed tree heals over, but never so completely that the scar may not be readily recognized by the experienced woodsman; hence it follows that so long as the blazed tree escapes fire and the ax of the lumberman so long it remains a faithful record of the line as surveyed.

Blazed trees also fix dates almost as accurately as they preserve boundaries. The outer shell which has grown over the scar is cut away, and the rings in the wood beneath the bark testify to the number of years which have elapsed since the blaze was made.

Prolific Olive Trees.

There are few trees that bear edible fruit which are good for more than half a century, the olive tree standing alone with its long period of usefulness to mankind. Some of these trees are extremely long lived. There are some in Syria which are known to be more than 400 years old; and not only are they in a flourishing condition, but they bid fair to bear fruit for another century or two. Formerly the olive trees were not expected to produce fruit oftener than once in three years, but with improved methods of culture they now bear abundantly each season. In ancient times the olives were thrashed from the trees with sticks, but now the Syrians pick them by hand, thereby preserving their trees and also improving the quality of the fruit.

Beside the Gentleman.

A few nights ago a lady, as the tale is told in the Boston Herald by Phillip Hale, arriving after midnight by train at the Back Bay station with two traveling bags, saw only one cab for passengers. Two men were getting into it. They looked at her and—got in. The driver, a negro, seeing the lady's plight, asked her where she wished to go. She answered: "The Chilton club." He said: "Would you mind, ma'am, sitting up here with me?" The two men inside heard this talk. They did not ask her to share the cab with them; they were not shamed by the negro's courtesy and solicitude. One said to the other: "I think I'll try the Algonquin club." They drove off, the men inside, the lady on the box, sitting next to a gentleman.

Eclipse of the Sun.

A total eclipse of the sun is expected to throw light on Australia. That is another way of saying that technical expeditions may be expected to hasten to the Commonwealth in 1922, the attraction being the total eclipse on September 22, which will be visible across the whole of Australia. It is stated that the eclipse will last six minutes, and that a line drawn diagonally from Broome in Western Australia to Newcastle in New South Wales will show its extent.

Velocity of Wind.

When wind travels at a speed of ninety miles an hour it becomes a hurricane, but it is on record that in tropical countries storms have been known during which the wind reached a velocity estimated at more than 600 miles an hour.

TAXES RAISED BY HARD TIMES

Burden Is Lightest in Communities Boasting Live and Thriving Towns.

FARMER FEELS THE EFFECT

Is Inclined to Forget, at Times, That He Is Most Vitally Interested in Prosperity of Near-by Cities.

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.) Taxes are always heavy—to the man who has to pay them—but taxes in some communities are much higher than in others. If you have ever stopped to investigate the matter you have discovered that the lowest taxes are found in the most prosperous communities. And there's a reason.

The prosperous community has the lowest taxes because there is a large amount of wealth in the community against which the taxes may be assessed. There are prosperous merchants with large stocks of goods upon which taxes are levied. Property values are high and there are thriving industries which pay a large proportion of the taxes.

The higher the property values and the greater the wealth of the community the lower are the tax levies, for a lower tax on each hundred dollars of valuation is required to produce the necessary revenue for the administration of the city and county governments.

Other Taxes Are Raised.

On the other hand, take a dead town. Property values are low. Merchants' stocks are small and they have little money in the bank. Industries which ordinarily pay a large part of the taxes of a community have closed down. There are vacant store buildings which were formerly filled with stocks of merchandise upon which the owners paid heavy taxes. Who pays the taxes that were once paid by the merchants, the manufacturers, the bankers and the men who had large holdings of high-priced property? The taxes to conduct the city and county governments, to maintain the schools, to build and repair the roads must be collected from someone. Who pays them? The man who owns his little home or the vacant lot or two upon which he has been planning to build his home must pay double or triple the amount which he paid in the times when the town was prosperous, to make up for the taxes which are not paid now by the merchants, the bankers, the manufacturers and the big property owners who bore the heaviest burdens of taxation when times were good.

The farmers in the country surrounding the town are also among the heaviest sufferers from the ebbing of the town's prosperity. A certain amount of money must be raised by taxation to provide for the expenses of the county. Roads must be built and kept in repair. Bridges must be built and maintained. Salaries of county officers must be paid. County institutions for the care of the sick and the poor must be maintained. In counties which contain one or more thriving towns, a large proportion of the taxes for the county are paid by the towns. The greater the wealth of the towns and the higher the property valuations, the lower the tax levy for the entire county. When the tax levy is low the burden placed upon the farmer is light.

Burden Falls on Farmer.

When the county contains no prosperous and wealthy towns, the greater part of the burden of taxation for the county falls upon the farmer. The value of the farmer's property does not fall in proportion to the value of the property in the town and the higher tax levy that results from the lower property values in the towns makes his taxes higher.

The farmer forgets at times that he is vitally interested in the prosperity of "his town." He thinks that it is up to the town to take care of itself and that it is up to him to take care of himself and he overlooks that fact that the prosperity of the town means as much to him as it does to those who live in it. The farmer who is inclined to overlook this fact has only to think of the matter of taxes and he is likely to change his point of view for taxes are one thing that neither he nor anyone else can escape, and they are one thing in which the farmer ordinarily takes a very lively interest.

How Farmer Can Help.

There is just one way in which the farmer can best promote prosperity in the town near which he lives and that is by spending his money in that town instead of sending it away to the far-distant city. Every time the farmer sends an order to a mail order house he helps to destroy the prosperity of his own community and to boost his own taxes. When he sends a dollar away from home he gets none of it back. When he spends a dollar at home, a part of that dollar comes back to him in some way. It helps the town where it is spent to provide a profitable market for his products and it helps the town pay a large part of his taxes.

The farmer is the one man in the community, above all others, who should have no love for the mail order houses for they are doing more to add to his troubles than any other one agency.
